have sold them, and will return your recompense upon your own head” (Joel 3:7) “And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them. And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be plucked up out of their land which I have given them, saith Jehovah thy God” (Amos 9:14-15). “In that day, saith Jehovah, will I assemble that which is lame, and I will gather that which is driven away, and that which I have afflicted; and I will make that which was lame a remnant, and that which was cast far off a strong nation: and Jehovah will reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth even for ever. And thou, O tower of the flock, the hill of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, yea, the former dominion shall come, the kingdom of the daughter of Jerusalem” (Mic. 4:6-8). “But thou, Beth-lehem Ephrathah, which art little to be among the thousands of Judah, out of thee shall one come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting. Therefore will he give them up, until the time that she who travaileth hath brought forth: then the residue of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel. And he shall stand, and shall feed his flock in the strength of Jehovah, in the majesty of the name of Jehovah his God: and they shall abide; for now shall he be great unto the ends of the earth. And this man shall be our peace” (Mic. 5:2-5). “Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thy heritage, which dwell solitarily, in the forest in the midst of Carmel: let them feed in Bashan and Gilead, as in the days of old. As in the days of thy coming forth out of the land of Egypt will I show unto them marvellous things. The nations shall see and be ashamed of all their might; they shall lay their hand upon their mouth; their ears shall be deaf. They shall lick the dust like a serpent; like crawling things of the earth they shall come trembling out of their close places; they shall come with fear unto Jehovah our God, and shall be afraid because of thee” (Mic. 7:14-17). “Israel is to be regathered in order to possess the Land ([Mic.] v. 14), and this regathering will be accompanied by miracles (v. 15)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 441). “I will gather them that sorrow for the solemn assembly, who were of thee; to whom the burden upon her was a reproach. Behold, at that time I will deal with all them that afflict thee; and I will save that which is lame, and gather that which was driven away; and I will make them a praise and a name, whose shame hath been in all the earth. At that time I will bring you in, and at that time will I gather you; for I will make you a name and a praise among all the peoples of the earth, when I bring back your captivity before your eyes, saith Jehovah” (Zeph. 3:18-20). “Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Behold, I will save my people from the east country, and from the west country; and I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God, in truth and in righteousness” (Zech. 8:7-8). “And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will bring them back; for I have mercy upon them; and they shall be as though I had not cast them off: for I am Jehovah their God, and I will hear them. And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man, and their heart shall rejoice as through wine; yea, their children shall see it, and rejoice; their heart shall be glad in Jehovah. I will hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them; and they shall increase as they have increased. And I will sow them among the peoples; and they shall remember me in far countries; and they shall live with their children, and shall return. I will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt, and gather them out of Assyria; and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon; and place shall not be found for them. And he will pass through the sea of affliction, and will smite the waves in the sea, and all the depths of the Nile shall dry up; and the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart. And I will strengthen them in Jehovah; and they shall walk up and down in his name, saith Jehovah” (Zech. 10:6-12). “As Zechariah portrayed the final regathering, he saw it in terms of hissing which is the call of a shepherd for his scattered sheep ([Zech. 10] v. 8a)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 798). “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her! how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not” (Matt. 23:37)! “He would oft have gathered them (as He will yet do according to Mt. 24:31); but they would not” (Chafer, KHP, 80%). ““And then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory. And He will send forth His angels with a great trumpet and they will gather together His elect from the four winds, from one end of the sky to the other” (Matt. 24:30-31). “If any of thine outcasts be in the uttermost parts of heaven, from thence will Jehovah thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee” (Deut. 30:4) “And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will beat off his fruit from the flood of the River unto the brook of Egypt; and ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great trumpet shall be blown; and they shall come that were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and they that were outcasts in the land of Egypt; and they shall worship Jehovah in the holy mountain at Jerusalem” (Isa. 27:12-13). “Matt. 24:31, is a gathering of... saints after the tribulation... members of the still elect Jewish nation, which, as many prophecies predict, shall at this very time be again gathered to Palestine” (Peters, TTK, 2:330). “Following Messiah’s second advent to the earth (Matt. 24:30), angels will regather living Israel from the four corners of the earth where they will be scattered during the Tribulation (v. 31)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 238). “Since His entire discourse had been devoted to the prophetic program for Israel, the reference to ‘His elect’ (v. 31) could not possibly refer to the church. Instead, it must refer to the nation God had chosen (Ex. 19:5-6)” (ibid., p. 255). “Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be mine own possession from among all peoples: for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and a holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel” (Ex. 19:5-6). “During the Tribulation Israel will be scattered out of the land by military invasions (Rev. 12:14-16), and the Israelites will flee and find refuge among the Gentile nations. Supernaturally God will bring the people back to the land through the instrumentality of angels, which will be the final restoration anticipated in the Old Testament (Deut. 30:1-8)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 255). “Jesus indicated that the gathering of His elect from the four directions of the world will take place in conjunction with ‘a great trumpet’ (literal translation of the Greek text of Mt. 24:31), so Isaiah 27:13 teaches that the scattered children of Israel will be gathered to their homeland in conjunction with the blowing of ‘a great trumpet’ (literal translation of the Hebrew)... Isaiah 27:13, which foretells this future regathering of Israel, is the only specific reference in the Old Testament to a ‘great’ trumpet” (Showers, M, p. 183). “The Matthew passage is based on Isaiah 27:12-13 and the Mark [13:27] passage is based on Deuteronomy 30:4. Its purpose was to make clear that the world-wide regathering predicted by the prophets will be fulfilled only after the second coming” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 799). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will beat off his fruit from the flood of the River unto the brook of Egypt; and ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great trumpet shall be blown; and they shall come that were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and they that were outcasts in the land of Egypt; and they shall worship Jehovah in the holy mountain at

Jerusalem” (Isa. 27:12-13). “And then He will send forth the angels, and will gather together His elect from the four winds, from the farthest end of the earth, to the farthest end of heaven” (Mark 13:27). “And it shall come to pass... If any of thine outcasts be in the uttermost parts of heaven, from thence will Jehovah thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee: and Jehovah thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers... And thou shalt return and obey the voice of Jehovah, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day” (Deut. 30:1-8). “With the additional background of Deuteronomy 30:3-4, Jesus added that the regathering will be from the uttermost part of the earth (living Israel) and the uttermost part of Heaven (resurrected Israel)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 420). “The background to the Mark passage is Deuteronomy 30:4, which also emphasizes that the final restoration will come from two localities: earth and Heaven. Those who are gathered from the uttermost parts of the earth will be living in Israel, the one-third Remnant that survives the Tribulation. Those who are gathered from the uttermost part of heaven will be the resurrected Old Testament saints” (ibid., p. 636). “The gathering of the nation as predicted by the prophets... such a gathering can only take place after the period of the tribulation has run its allotted course” (Peters, TTK, 1:412). “...the Theocratic-Davidic Kingdom... it involves, fully embraces, its restoration to Palestine” (ibid., 2:49). “...this, like the deliverance from Egypt, will be accompanied by an extraordinary manifestation of the supernatural” (ibid., p. 64). “The manifestation of divine power demonstrated in the placing of Israel in her land the last time will far exceed the manifestation of power which accompanied their removal from Egypt and placing in the land under Joshua” (Chafer, ST, 4:319). “If the ‘casting away’ of Israel is a literal fact, why should it be thought a thing incredible that God shall restore them again to His favor” (ibid., 5:332)? “At this point, all three dispersions have occurred and two of the three regatherings” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 417). “Chafer [in Systematic Theology, 7:123-126] then goes on to enumerate the three dispersions and restorations. The first was the ‘dispersion into Egypt’ which ‘bondage was predicted centuries before’ in the Abrahamic Covenant. The first restoration came with the Exodus under Moses and Aaron. The second dispersion was ‘the Captivities.’ The northern kingdom of Israel went into the Assyrian Captivity and the southern kingdom of Judah went into the Babylonian Captivity. The second restoration came in initially under Zerubbabel and Joshua and then under Ezra and Nehemiah. The third dispersion came in A.D. 70 with the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple and it 'exceeds the other two in part of duration and in the manner in which Israel is now scattered among all the nations of the earth.' The present scattering, according to Chafer, 'must continue until the Church be removed from the world.' The third restoration will be the final one for the Messianic Kingdom. This 'final return to the land is one of the major themes of Old Testament prophecy concerning the Jew,' and it 'is one of the Bible's most positive predictions.' According to Chafer, the final restoration is the subject of more than fifty biblical passages 'which yields to no fanciful notions for its interpretations.' Looking at these passages, they 'must either be accepted in its literal form or ignored completely.' As Chafer remarks, "Too often the latter is done" (ibid., p. 418). "There is a restoration now, but there will be one more forced exile from the land in the middle of the Great Tribulation, the one spoken of in Matthew 24:15-28 and Revelation 12:6-14. After the second coming, Israel will experience her final restoration. For some, this would be called the fourth, while for others it would be the completion of the third" (ibid.). "This regathering will surpass the miracle of the Exodus and will be accomplished with the aid of angels" (ibid., p. 553). "The dating of the regathering of Israel is after the second coming. Just as Israel was dispersed because of disobedience, they will some day be regathered because they will be obedient" (ibid., p. 555).

Survivors of the Tribulation are Gathered and Judged

Before the Millennial Kingdom begins, survivors of the Tribulation must be gathered and judged, to produce the inaugural subjects of the Kingdom and also to ensure that only saved individuals enter the Kingdom. "The reign of the saints cannot be consistently explained without including the perpetuation of the race" (Peters, TTK, 2:545). "The redeemed multitude from the nations of the earth together with the redeemed remnant in Israel will constitute a kingdom over which Messiah will rule at His return" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 313). "...unsaved people left to enter the Millennium, a concept that many Scriptures seem to contradict" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 190). "It is because the premillenarians insist on literal interpretation of the details as well as the event that they find the various judgments differing as to time, place and subjects" (Walvoord, MK, p. 110). "Taking in view all the divine judgments that pertain to this sequence of events, it may be concluded that as the millennium begins all the righteous are judged in one way or another and that the wicked are put to death and declared unworthy to enter the millennial kingdom" (ibid., p. 291). "The subjects of the millennial rule of Christ at the beginning of the millennium will consist in those who survive the searching judgments of both Israel and Gentiles as the millennial reign of Christ begins” (ibid., p. 302). “When the Kingdom begins, all natural men, both Jews and Gentiles, will be believers. The Jews in their entirety will be saved just prior to the Second Coming of the Messiah. All unbelieving Gentiles (goats) will be killed during the seventy-five day interval between the Tribulation and the Millennium, and only believing Gentiles (sheep) will be able to enter the Kingdom” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 383). (See also our discussions of the facts that Tribulation survivors are needed to participate in the post-Tribulation judgments on earth and Tribulation survivors are needed to populate the earth after the Tribulation in the section The timing of the Rapture: Not Post-Tribulation of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Jewish Survivors are Gathered and Judged

Jewish survivors of the Tribulation are to be judged prior to the beginning of the Millennial Kingdom. While Dr. Fruchtenbaum sees Israel’s judgment being completed during the Tribulation itself, others, including Drs. Chafer, Pentecost, Walvoord and Ryrie, see a judgment for Israel following the Tribulation, as placed in the chronological sequence of this chapter. But regardless of the timing of the judgment, all of these scholars are in agreement regarding the fact of the judgment. “As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. As for you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Go ye, serve every one his idols, and hereafter also, if ye will not hearken unto me; but my holy name shall ye no more profane with your gifts, and with your idols. For in my holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them, serve me in the land: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things. As a sweet savor will I accept you, when

I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country which I swear to give unto your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have polluted yourselves; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have dealt with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 20:33-44). "The regathering process completed, a judgment of Israel is described in Ezekiel 20:34-38" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 88). "Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, "Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him." Then all those virgins rose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the prudent, "Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out." But the prudent answered, saying, "No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves." And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. And later the other virgins also came, saying, "Lord, lord, open up for us." But he answered and said, "Truly I say to you, I do not know you." Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour" (Matt. 25:1-13). "...the Bride being omitted in the Parable of the Ten Virgins" (Peters, TTK, 3:47) "The Saviour does not censure them for being asleep, a natural result of long waiting, but for the lack of previous preparation, so that they were not ready when the bridegroom, whom they all anticipated, came" (ibid., p. 304) "Parable of the Wise and Foolish Virgins (Matt. 25:1-13)... We need to understand here that the virgins in the Oriental wedding refer to the guests at the banquet, in contrast to the bride who appears with the bridegroom... the wedding banquet, which is the Lord's literary figure for the Davidic, millennial kingdom" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 238). "In this parable Christ taught that living Israel would be brought back to the land of judgment to determine who is prepared and who is unprepared. Those who are prepared will be accepted into the Messiah's millennial kingdom, but the unprepared will be excluded" (ibid., p. 239). "...the parable of the ten virgins ([Matt.] 25:1-13), which teaches that the faithful will be watching for His return... Many dispensationalists believe this refers to the faithful (five prepared) and unfaithful (five unprepared) Jews at the end of the tribulation” (Geisler, ST, 4:485) “The foolish (unprepared) virgins don’t symbolize Christians, but rather unbelieving Jews during the Tribulation” (ibid.). “There is to be a future judgment of Israel, besides that of the Great Tribulation, in which there will also be Gentiles and professing Christendom. The subjects of that judgment will be all Israel who will be living on the earth at the glorious appearing of the Lord Jesus. He will take them alone, for Israel shall not be numbered among the nations, from all the countries where they have been scattered, and will bring them into the wilderness of the peoples, where He will plead with them face to face (Ezek. 20:33-38). They will be judged as to whether they will truly turn to God and accept His King. The result will be a purging of the nation, with many entering into the land to enjoy the long-awaited kingdom of the Son of David” (Feinberg, M, p. 361). “The nation Israel must be judged, and it is reasonable to believe that this judgment will include all of that nation who in past dispensations have lived under the covenants and promises. Therefore a resurrection of those generations of Israel is called for and must precede their judgment” (Chafer, ST, 4:406). “The judgment consists in putting to death all the rebels or unbelievers, leaving only the believers to enter the Promised Land” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 88). “Pentecost [in Things to Come, pp. 413-415] is correct that ‘the future judgment program will begin with a judgment upon the nation Israel,’ and that ‘before the [Messianic] kingdom can be instituted... there must be a judgment on Israel to determine those that will enter into the kingdom.’ However, this can all be accomplished if the Tribulation itself is that very judgment” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 544). “...a special or specific judgment after the second coming. It is at this very point that there is a contradiction in Pentecost’s view and others who hold this view. Chafer, Ryrie, Walvoord, and Pentecost all affirm that before or at the second coming, all Israel shall be saved. If this is true, and all these men believe it to be true, then there is no need for a special judgment of Israel following the second coming to separate the saved from the unsaved, for all Israel at this point is saved” (ibid., p. 545). (See also our discussions of Israel’s survival and judgment in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Gentile Survivors are Gathered and Judged

Gentile survivors of the Tribulation must also be judged as to their fitness for entry into the Millennial Kingdom. “God be merciful unto us, and bless us, And cause his face to shine upon us; Selah That thy way may be known upon earth, Thy salvation among all nations. Let the peoples praise thee, O God; Let all the peoples praise thee. Oh let the nations be glad and sing for joy; For thou wilt judge the peoples with equity, And govern the nations upon earth. Selah Let the peoples praise thee, O God; Let all the peoples praise thee. The earth hath yielded its increase: God, even our own God, will bless us. God will bless us; And all the ends of the earth shall fear him" (Ps. 67:1-7). "Say among the nations, Jehovah reigneth: The world also is established that it cannot be moved: He will judge the peoples with equity. Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice; Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; Let the field exult, and all that is therein; Then shall all the trees of the wood sing for joy Before Jehovah; For he cometh, For he cometh to judge the earth: He will judge the world with righteousness, And the peoples with his truth" (Ps. 96:10-13). "Before Jehovah; For he cometh to judge the earth: He will judge the world with righteousness, And the peoples with equity" (Ps. 98:9). "A Psalm of David. Jehovah saith unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thine enemies thy footstool. Jehovah will send forth the rod of thy strength out of Zion: Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people offer themselves willingly In the day of thy power, in holy array: Out of the womb of the morning Thou hast the dew of thy youth. Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent: Thou art a priest for ever After the order of Melchizedek. The Lord at thy right hand Will strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He will judge among the nations, He will fill the places with dead bodies; He will strike through the head in many countries. He will drink of the brook in the way: Therefore will he lift up the head" (Ps. 110:0-7). "And there shall come forth a shoot out of the stock of Jesse, and a branch out of his roots shall bear fruit. And the Spirit of Jehovah shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of Jehovah. And his delight shall be in the fear of Jehovah; and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither decide after the hearing of his ears; but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked" (Isa. 11:1-4). "Behold, my servant, whom I uphold; my chosen, in whom my soul delighteth: I have put my Spirit upon him; he will bring forth justice to the Gentiles. He will not cry, nor lift up his voice, nor cause it to be heard in the street. A bruised reed will he not break, and a dimly burning wick will he not quench: he will bring forth justice in truth. He will not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set justice in the earth; and the isles shall wait for his law” (Isa. 42:1-4). “For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted” (Isa. 60:12). “For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat; and I will execute judgment upon them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations: and they have parted my land, and have cast lots for my people, and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they may drink... Proclaim ye this among the nations; prepare war; stir up the mighty men; let all the men of war draw near, let them come up. Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong. Haste ye, and come, all ye nations round about, and gather yourselves together: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Jehovah. Let the nations bestir themselves, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the nations round about. Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, tread ye; for the winepress is full, the vats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining. And Jehovah will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but Jehovah will be a refuge unto his people, and a stronghold to the children of Israel” (Joel 3:1-16). “The grounds for this judgment will be anti-Semitism or pro-Semitism ([Joel 3] vv. 2b-3)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 790). “For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels; and will then recompense every man according to his deeds” (Matt. 16:27). “For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah. For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. Then there shall be two men in the field; one will be taken, and one will be left. Two women will be grinding at the mill; one will be taken, and one will be left” (Matt. 24:37-41). “pretribulationists... see the one taken in Matthew 24 as one taken for the gathering mentioned in Matthew 25, the ultimate end of which is judgment. In other words, Matthew 24:40-41 is a preliminary phase to Matthew 25:31-46” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 190). “For it is just like a man about to go on a journey, who called his own slaves, and entrusted his possessions to them. And to one he gave five talents, to another, two, and to another, one, each according to his own ability; and he went on his journey. Immediately the one who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and gained five more talents. In the same manner the one who had received the two talents gained two more. But he who received the one talent went away and dug in the ground, and hid his master's money. Now after a long time the master of those slaves came and settled accounts with them. And the one who had received the five talents came up and brought five more talents, saying, "Master, you entrusted five talents to me; see, I have gained five more talents." His master said to him, "Well done, good and faithful slave; you were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things, enter into the joy of your master." The one also who had received the two talents came up and said, "Master, you entrusted to me two talents; see, I have gained two more talents." His master said to him, "Well done, good and faithful slave; you were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master." And the one also who had received the one talent came up and said, "Master, I knew you to be a hard man, reaping where you did not sow, and gathering where you scattered no seed. And I was afraid, and went away and hid your talent in the ground; see, you have what is yours." But his master answered and said to him, "You wicked, lazy slave, you knew that I reap where I did not sow, and gather where I scattered no seed. "Then you ought to have put my money in the bank, and on my arrival I would have received my money back with interest. "Therefore take away the talent from him, and give it to the one who has the ten talents." For to everyone who has shall more be given, and he shall have an abundance; but from the one who does not have, even what he does have shall be taken away. And cast out the worthless slave into the outer darkness; in that place there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth" (Matt. 25:14-30). "In the Parable of the Talents (Matt. 25:14-30), our Lord revealed that there will be a judgment prior to the millennial kingdom to test one's faithfulness" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 239). "But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, "Come, you who are blessed of My Fa- ther, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For I was hungry, and you gave Me something to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and you invited Me in; naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to Me.” Then the righteous will answer Him, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, and feed You, or thirsty, and give You drink? And when did we see You a stranger, and invite You in, or naked, and clothe You? And when did we see You sick, or in prison, and come to You?” And the King will answer and say to them, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did it to one of these brothers of Mine, even the least of them, you did it to Me.” Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry, and you gave Me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink; I was a stranger, and you did not invite Me in; naked, and you did not clothe Me; sick, and in prison, and you did not visit Me.” Then they themselves also will answer, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not take care of You?” Then He will answer them, saying, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.” And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46). “For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat; and I will execute judgment upon them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations: and they have parted my land, and have cast lots for my people, and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they may drink... Let the nations bestir themselves, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the nations round about. Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, tread ye; for the winepress is full, the vats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision” (Joel 3:1-14). “But thou, Beth-lehem Ephrathah, which art little to be among the thousands of Judah, out of thee shall one come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel... his brethren... this man shall be our peace” (Mic. 5:2-5). “For I could wish that I myself were accursed, separated from Christ for the sake of my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh, who are Israelites, to whom belongs the adoption as sons and the glory and the covenants and the giving of the Law and the temple service and the promises, whose are the fathers, and from whom is the Christ according to the flesh, who is over all, God blessed forever. Amen” (Rom. 9:3–5). “...this fire is ‘prepared for the devil and his angels.’ At this Advent of the King, the fire is only ‘prepared’ for them, and while some others are cast in, they (the devil and his angels) are not then cast into it. This extremely and intentionally guarded expression of the Saviour most fully corroborates our Pre-Mill. application, since in Rev. 20:10 Satan is cast into this very fire (thus ‘prepared’ for Him)” (Peters, TTK, 2:377) “At this advent, ‘before Him shall be gathered all nations.’... We add, for the consideration of the advanced student, that the Spirit purposely here gives the word applicable to ‘Gentile’ nations, because these are the very nations arrayed against the Jews and against the Christ just previous to the Mill. era” (ibid., pp. 374, 376). “Russell (Our Lord’s Return, p. 27) locates the judgment of Matt. 25:31-46 in and during the Millennium, but this is an erroneous innovation upon ancient and modern exegesis. While it is true—as we advocate in detail—that judging involves frequently more than mere judicial action, yet the scene and action here described are utterly opposed to his idea, as seen (1) in the gathering of the nations, which is Pre-Mill.; (2) in the inheriting of the Kingdom, which is the same; (3) in the location of the fire and the judgment pronounced, which also is the same; (4) in the test applied, which is sustained by the condition of the Church [rather, the Jews?—ed.] at that period” (ibid., p. 383). “Finally, when He sits on the throne of His glory, the nations will be brought before Him to be judged as to the treatment of His brethren, the remnant of Israel, during the Great Tribulation (Matt. 25:31-46)” (Feinberg, M, p. 165). “The judgment of the nations is also clearly revealed in Scripture. In that judgment all the nations will be brought before the Lord Jesus when He returns in glory (cf. Matt. 25:31-46). He will sit on the throne of His glory. The nations will be judged as to their treatment of the Jewish remnant during the Tribulation period, which will be an indication of the general heart attitude of the individual toward God and His purposes. The outcome of the judgment will be the entrance of the sheep nations into the kingdom, later to be granted to enter into eternal life, while the goat nations will be denied participation in the kingdom and will go away into everlasting punishment” (ibid., p. 361). “According to the Book of Revelation God will seal a believing remnant, the 144,000, at the beginning of the tribulation period. They will be a witnessing remnant for that entire period and the fruits of their ministry are described in Revelation 7:9-17, where a great multitude is seen to have been redeemed. The ‘brethren’ are evidently these same believing witnesses of the tribulation period” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 418). “In the Parable of the Sheep and Goats (Matt. 25:31-46), Jesus revealed that Gentiles will also be gathered to judgment... The term brothers (v. 40) seems to make reference to either the nation of Israel as a whole, or to the chosen ones from among Israel (Rev. 7) who will proclaim the Gospel during the Tribulation. These will not be accepted because of their works, for no man is saved by works; rather, their works will prove the genuineness of their faith” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 239). “...their faithfulness will validate their faith” (ibid., p. 257). “The reference to ‘these brothers’ indicates there will be a third group there in the presence of Christ. That phrase may refer to those who are Christ’s brothers after the flesh, that is the nation Israel; or it may refer to those chosen messengers, the 144,000 of Revelation 7, who will bear witness of Him during the Tribulation. These 144,000 will be under a death sentence by the beast. They will refuse to carry the beast’s mark, and so they will not be able to buy and sell. Consequently, they will have to depend on those to whom they minister for hospitality, food, and support. Only those who receive the message will jeopardize their lives by extending hospitality to the messengers. Therefore, what is done for them will be an evidence of their faith in Christ, that is, what is done for them will be done for Christ. These will not be accepted because of their works, since no man is ever saved by works. But their works will demonstrate their faith in the person of Christ, which renders them acceptable to Him” (ibid., p. 260). “...the Sheep and the Goats. After judging living Israel, Christ will gather together living Gentiles. This is not a judgment on nations as nations, but rather is a judgment on individual Gentiles... The ‘brethren’ may be understood as a reference to the nation of Israel as a whole that had undergone attacks of Satan during the tribulation period, or it may refer to the 144,000 who are appointed as God’s servants to proclaim the Gospel to the ends of the earth—the Gentiles—during the Tribulation period. Either group, because of their refusal to submit to the economic system of the beast, will be dependent on others for food, for shelter, for clothing, for protection” (ibid., p. 314). “For a Gentile to befriend a Jew under those circumstances would be most unusual and would indicate his recognition of the Jewish people as the chosen people and would be a by-product of his understanding of God’s plan and purpose for the Jew in the Millennium. Accordingly, while kindness to the Jews in most dispensations would not be too significant, in the context of the Great Tribulation, it becomes an unmistakable mark of a person who is a Christian” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 191). “It will follow, however, that if the Gentiles are those who are non-Jews, those referred to as ‘my brethren’ (Matt. 25:40) would be the Jews, specifically the Jews of the tribulation time who were the objects of fearful persecution. Under such circumstances, befriending a Jew by clothing him or visiting him in prison, when according to governmental edict they were to be hounded to the death, would inevitably reveal a confidence in the Scriptures and in God. While the appeal is to the 'works,' it seems clear that their works as such reveal faith in Christ and in the Word of God and are therefore the fruit or evidence of salvation. This is the basic reason why they are ushered into the millennial kingdom and called 'the righteous'" (Walvoord, MK, p. 288). "Such a judgment would in fact be absolutely necessary before the righteous kingdom of Christ could be inaugurated. It had formerly been indicated in Matthew 13 in the parable of the wheat and tares as well as the parable of the good and bad fish that the end of the age would have a judgment resulting in only the saved entering the kingdom. This, then, is confirmed by the specific revelation of Matthew 25" (ibid.). "In this judgment, all the Gentiles will be divided into two camps: the pro-Semitic sheep camp and the anti-Semitic goat camp (v. 33). Verses 34-40 concern the pro-Semitic sheep. The pro-Semites are those who will provide help for Christ's brethren, the Jews, during the Great Tribulation, at a time when it will be very dangerous to do so" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 790). "This is an individual judgment on the basis of anti-Semitism or pro-Semitism" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 365) "The Jews who will have to flee into the wilderness without anything with them will often be provided with food, clothing and shelter by the sheep Gentiles" (ibid., p. 366). "It is the sheep Gentiles who will be involved in the destruction of Babylon (Is. 13:1-5). They will attain the 1,335th day and will be the ones who will populate Gentile nations in the Messianic Kingdom" (ibid.). "The place of the judgment is not given in this passage, but it is given in a parallel passage found in Joel 3:1-3. This is a judgment that will take place just outside the City of Jerusalem in the Valley of Jehoshaphat, which lies between the city and the Mount of Olives" (ibid., p. 648). "...the Messiah's brethren, namely, the Jewish people during the Tribulation (vv. 34-35)... If the brethren are saints in general, then who are the sheep, since they, too, have eternal life? It would be very confusing to make both the sheep and the brethren as saint of the same caliber... the parallel passage of Joel 3:1-3 makes it certain that these brethren are the Jewish people of the Tribulation" (ibid.). "Because these Gentiles are already believers in the Lord Jesus the Messiah, they will refuse to join the policy of the Antichrist in his attempt to destroy the Jews... Their works toward the Messiah's brethren will prove their faith. In this manner, they are the ones who will be watching, ready, and laboring in accordance with the admonitions of the five parables" (ibid., p. 649). "And while they were listening to these things, He went on to tell a parable, because He was near Jerusalem, and they supposed that the kingdom of God was going to appear immediately. He said therefore, ‘A certain nobleman went to a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then return. And he called ten of his slaves, and gave them ten minas, and said to them, “Do business with this until I come back.” But his citizens hated him, and sent a delegation after him, saying, “We do not want this man to reign over us.” And it came about that when he returned, after receiving the kingdom, he ordered that these slaves, to whom he had given the money, be called to him in order that he might know what business they had done. And the first appeared, saying, “Master, your mina has made ten minas more.” And he said to him, “Well done, good slave, because you have been faithful in a very little thing, be in authority over ten cities.” And the second came, saying, “Your mina, master, has made five minas.” And he said to him also, “And you are to be over five cities.” And another came, saying, “Master, behold your mina, which I kept put away in a handkerchief; for I was afraid of you, because you are an exacting man; you take up what you did not lay down, and reap what you did not sow.” He said to him, “By your own words I will judge you, you worthless slave. Did you know that I am an exacting man, taking up what I did not lay down, and reaping what I did not sow? “Then why did you not put the money in the bank, and having come, I would have collected it with interest?” And he said to the bystanders, “Take the mina away from him, and give it to the one who has the ten minas.” And they said to him, “Master, he has ten minas already.” I tell you, that to everyone who has shall more be given, but from the one who does not have, even what he does have shall be taken away. But these enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence” (Luke 19:11–27). “because He has fixed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness through a Man whom He has appointed, having furnished proof to all men by raising Him from the dead” (Acts 17:31). “Paul tells us, Acts 17:31, that when Christ comes to judge, He comes as the ‘Man ordained’” (Peters, TTK, 2:180). “Therefore do not go on passing judgment before the time, but wait until the Lord comes who will both bring to light the things hidden in the darkness and disclose the motives of men’s hearts; and then each man’s praise will come to him from God” (1 Cor. 4:5). “I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom” (2 Tim. 4:1) “And about these also Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, ‘Behold, the Lord came with many thousands of His holy ones, to execute judgment upon all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their ungodly deeds which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him’ (Jude 1:14-15). “Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to render to every man according to what he has done” (Rev. 22:12). “The purpose of the return of Jesus is to render to each man according to his works. His coming at the Rapture is to reward the saints for the works done in their bodies since salvation. The purpose of the Second Coming is to render judgment for the works of unrighteousness” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 537). “Both Advents, the First and the Second, are represented as finding the people arrayed against the Christ” (Peters, TTK, 1:377). “The parousia introduces the judgment and many other things, including the Kingdom, and is never called the judgment, as Popish and some Protestant theology take for granted” (ibid., 2:366). “That sympathy for and assistance tendered to the Jews when also suffering, shall likewise be remembered and rewarded, is clearly taught in other places” (ibid., p. 380) “God, in deference to His own rights, His own inheritance, His own Kingdom, His own saints, His own honor and glory, is compelled in consistency to arise and take vengeance on that humanity which is so impious, merciless, and cruel” (ibid., p. 772) “The opposing nations are, at the time of their judgment, dismissed to the lake of fire” (Chafer, ST, 4:380). “Unlike other judgments which reach backward to include past generations, this judgment falls only upon the then existing generation of Gentiles upon the earth” (ibid., p. 410). “When at the judgment of the nations some are dismissed to the lake of fire (cf. Matt. 25:41), it need not be implied that they are thus doomed solely because of their treatment of Israel in the tribulation; it is rather that they, like all Christ-rejecting peoples, are consigned to the lake of fire. The time of that consignment is probably at the close of the millennium and among all others at the great white throne (cf. Rev. 20:11-15; Matt 13:30)” (ibid.). “There is no mere accident in the fact that the two words blessed and cursed appear in the Abrahamic covenant respecting the attitude of Gentiles toward Abraham’s seed according to the flesh (Gen. 12:1-3), and that these words appear again when Gentiles are being brought into judgment respecting their treatment of God’s elect people” (Chafer, ST, 5:139). “The Millennium begins with only redeemed; those who have not experienced a resurrection (as the church and Old Testament saints) will live normal lives and bear children; they will not be born redeemed; and from among them will come the rebellious ones, the Gog and Magog of Revelation 20” (Feinberg, M, p. 337). “It is also God's purpose to populate the millennium with a multitude of saved Gentiles, who are redeemed through the preaching of the believing remnant. This is accomplished in the multitude from 'all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues' (Rev. 7:9) and in the 'sheep' (Matt. 25:31-46) that enter the millennial age. God's purpose, then, is to populate the millennial kingdom by bringing a host from among Israel and the Gentile nations to Himself" (Pentecost, TTC, p. 238). "Since the kingdom to follow is a reign of righteousness, this judgment must be viewed as another step in the progress of God's program in dealing with sin so that the Messiah may reign. This program of judgment on sinners constitutes the second great purpose of the tribulation period" (ibid., p. 239). "After Israel has been judged, 'All nations will be gathered before Him' (Matt. 25:32). This will not be a judgment of nations as national entities, but of individuals from the nations. If this were a judgment of national entities, it is obvious that some unsaved would be included in an accepted nation and some saved would be excluded because they were in a rejected nation. Therefore, we must conclude that this will be a judgment of individuals, not of nations" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 259). "It is not to some impersonal organization, but to the 'King,' that the judgments of God will be committed (Ps. 72:1)" (McClain, GK, p. 161). "Give the king thy judgments, O God, And thy righteousness unto the king's son" (Ps. 72:1) "The plurality of 'thrones' in Daniel 7:9 certainly suggests the presence of associate judges in the judgments which are about to proceed from the celestial court. The occupants of these thrones are not named, but they cannot be angels as Keil [in C. F. Keil, Commentary on Daniel, p. 229] wrongly insists. Only the saints of God are ever thus associated with the divine judgment of the world. Angels are but servants who stand before the throne of God (Dan. 7:10). Only when we come over into the New Testament do we find a clear identification of the occupants of these thrones (cf. 1 Cor. 6:1-3). And even the most careless reader could hardly miss the striking parallel between Daniel 7:9-10 and the scene pictured in Revelation 4 and 5" (McClain, GK, p. 180). "I beheld till thrones were placed, and one that was ancient of days did sit: his raiment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like pure wool; his throne was fiery flames, and the wheels thereof burning fire. A fiery stream issued and came forth from before him: thousands of thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: the judgment was set, and the books were opened" (Dan. 7:9-10). "Dare any of you, having a matter against his neighbor, go to law before the unrighteous, and not before the saints? Or know ye not that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world is judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters? Know ye not that we shall judge angels? how much more, things that pertain to this life” (1 Cor. 6:1-3)? “Around the throne were twenty-four thrones; and upon the thrones I saw twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and golden crowns on their heads” (Rev. 4:4). “It must be observed that this is not a general judgment of all men, but only of living Gentile nations on earth at the beginning of the Mediatorial Kingdom. There is no resurrection of the dead, as would be required in any such an alleged general judgment. But for the living men involved, as well as for existing governments it will be a final judgment. At the inauguration of the Kingdom on earth the judgment of God will make an absolute and final separation between the righteous and the unrighteous, between those who rebel and those who submit to the King. Rebellious governments will be abolished; rebellious men will be destroyed. ‘For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish’ (Isa. 60:12). In this respect the Millennial Kingdom will begin with a clean slate” (McClain, GK, p. 205). “For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted” (Isa. 60:12). “When the Kingdom has been established on earth, He will ‘sit upon the throne of his glory,’ judging ‘all nations,’ admitting some and excluding others from that Kingdom (Matt. 25:31-46). As a reward for faithful service, some servants will be given ‘authority over ten cities,’ and others over ‘five cities’ (Luke 19:11-19). For those who hate the King and rebel against His reign there will be no mercy. Here are the words of Christ Himself: ‘But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me’ (Luke 19:27)” (McClain, GK, p. 294). “The testimony of the New Testament writers as to this synchronism is both clear and consistent: The judging work of Christ will begin at His second coming (Matt. 25:31 ff.; 1 Cor. 4:5; 2 Tim. 4:1)” (ibid., p. 335). “No national group can qualify as a group as either ‘sheep’ or a ‘goat’ nation, and no nation inherits either the kingdom or everlasting fire for its works. Eternal judgment must of necessity apply to the individual” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 90). “During the Tribulation many people will be saved (Rev. 7). Many of those Tribulation saints will be martyred (Rev. 6:9-11); 13:7; 20:4), but a good number of them will survive the Tribulation alive” (Showers, M, p. 190). “...the believers who live through the Tribulation that will come at the ‘end of the age’... Scripture is saying that only those who live through the Great Distress will live into the thousand-year reign of Christ” (Geisler, ST, 3:322). “...the Advent (2 Tim. 1:10), when He came with grace, and of the Return, when He will come in judgment (1 Tim. 6:14; 2 Tim. 4:1)” (ibid., 4:491). “Those who endure until the end of the Tribulation will be saved (Matt. 24:13); unbelievers will be taken in the judgments (v. 39), and believers will be left to go into the Millennium alive (cf. 25:34)” (ibid., p. 602).

The surviving Tribulation believers are rewarded. “Who then is the faithful and sensible slave whom his master put in charge of his household to give them their food at the proper time? Blessed is that slave whom his master finds so doing when he comes. Truly I say to you, that he will put him in charge of all his possessions. But if that evil slave says in his heart, “My master is not coming for a long time,” and shall begin to beat his fellow slaves and eat and drink with drunkards; the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour which he does not know, and shall cut him in pieces and assign him a place with the hypocrites; weeping shall be there and the gnashing of teeth” (Matt. 24:45–51). “Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps and went out to meet the bridegroom. Five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, “Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.” Then all those virgins rose and trimmed their lamps. The foolish said to the prudent, “Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.” But the prudent answered, “No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.” And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. Later the other virgins also came, saying, “Lord, lord, open up for us.” But he answered, “Truly I say to you, I do not know you.” Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour” (Matt. 25:1–13). “...the ones who have the oil, a common symbol of the Holy Spirit... these who have the oil are people who became believers during the Tribulation... the text does not say that the foolish virgins ran out of oil, but that they have no oil with them. They never had the oil or the Holy Spirit to begin with” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 645). “For it is just like a man about to go on a journey, who called his own slaves, and entrusted his possessions to them. And to one he gave five talents, to another, two, and to another, one, each according to his own ability; and he went on his journey. Immediately the one who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and gained five more talents. In the same manner the one who had received the two talents gained two more. But he who received the one talent went away and dug in the ground, and hid his master's money. Now after a long time the master of those slaves came and settled accounts with them. And the one who had received the five talents came up and brought five more talents, saying, "Master, you entrusted five talents to me; see, I have gained five more talents." His master said to him, "Well done, good and faithful slave; you were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things, enter into the joy of your master." The one also who had received the two talents came up and said, "Master, you entrusted to me two talents; see, I have gained two more talents." His master said to him, "Well done, good and faithful slave; you were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master" (Matt. 25:14-21) "But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, "Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world"... And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life" (Matt. 25:31-46). "And while they were listening to these things, He went on to tell a parable, because He was near Jerusalem, and they supposed that the kingdom of God was going to appear immediately. He said therefore, 'A certain nobleman went to a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then return. And he called ten of his slaves, and gave them ten minas, and said to them, "Do business with this until I come back." But his citizens hated him, and sent a delegation after him, saying, "We do not want this man to reign over us." And it came about that when he returned, after receiving the kingdom, he ordered that these slaves, to whom he had given the money, be called to him in order that he might know what business they had done. And the first appeared, saying, "Master, your mina has made ten minas more." And he said to him, "Well done, good slave, because you have been faithful in a very little thing, be in authority over ten cities." And the second came, saying, "Your mina, master, has made five minas." And he said to him also, "And you are to be over five cities." And another came, saying, "Master, behold your mina, which I kept put away in a handkerchief; for I was afraid of you, because you are an exacting man; you take up what you did not lay down, and reap what you did not sow." He said to him, "By your own words I will judge you, you worthless slave. Did you know that I am an exacting man, taking up what I did not lay down, and reaping what I did not sow? Then why did you not put the money in the bank, and having come, I would have collected it with interest?” And he said to the bystanders, “Take the mina away from him, and give it to the one who has the ten minas.” And they said to him, “Master, he has ten minas already.” I tell you, that to everyone who has shall more be given, but from the one who does not have, even what he does have shall be taken away. But these enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence” (Luke 19:11–27). (See also our discussion of the fact that Gentile nations survive the Tribulation and judgment in the section Description of the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

Unrepentant sinners are punished. “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left... Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels”... And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46). “And while they were listening to these things, He went on to tell a parable, because He was near Jerusalem, and they supposed that the kingdom of God was going to appear immediately. He said therefore, ‘A certain nobleman went to a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then return. And he called ten of his slaves, and gave them ten minas, and said to them, “Do business with this until I come back.”... And another came, saying, “Master, behold your mina, which I kept put away in a handkerchief; for I was afraid of you, because you are an exacting man; you take up what you did not lay down, and reap what you did not sow.” He said to him, “By your own words I will judge you, you worthless slave. Did you know that I am an exacting man, taking up what I did not lay down, and reaping what I did not sow? Then why did you not put the money in the bank, and having come, I would have collected it with interest?” And he said to the bystanders, “Take the mina away from him, and give it to the one who has the ten minas.” And they said to him, “Master, he has ten minas already.” I tell you, that to everyone who has shall more be given, but from the one who does not have, even what he does have shall be taken away. But these enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and slay them in my pres- ence” (Luke 19:11–27). “The wicked shall see the glory and feel the authority of these saints. This is abundantly evident from the action of these saints at the Second Advent, ruling the nations with a rod of iron, etc... The wicked shall see this at the beginning of the Millennial era and again at its close. It will be a dreadful sight to them to see the saints thus honored with power, riches, dominion, and glory—triumphant heirs with Christ—and themselves defeated in their wickedness, fallen under Almighty power, trembling at the outpouring of the long-delayed wrath of the Lamb, and filled with forebodings of an impending and inevitable doom. No wonder the Spirit, all-foreknowing, tells us that they will ‘gnash with their teeth,’ for agony and despair with deep, untold remorse must be theirs when they contrast the exaltation of saints with their own unhappy one, and then remember that just such honor and blessedness and rank was freely, lovingly, and most urgently pressed upon them, but they—loving evil rather than good—foolishly and even contemptuously refused it” (Peters, TTK, 2:595).

Israel Possesses the Land

At the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom Israel will at long last possess the entire promised land.

Regarding the fact of the possession, “Now Jehovah said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father’s house, unto the land that I will show thee. And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great. And be thou a blessing. And I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse. And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed. So Abram went, as Jehovah had spoken unto him. And Lot went with him. And Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran. And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother’s son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had gotten in Haran. And they went forth to go into the land of Canaan. And into the land of Canaan they came. And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Shechem, unto the oak of Moreh. And the Canaanite was then in the land. And Jehovah appeared unto Abram, and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land. And there builded he an altar unto Jehovah, who appeared unto him” (Gen. 12:1-7). “And Jehovah said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, northward and southward and eastward and westward. For all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth. So that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then may thy seed also be numbered. Arise, walk through the land in the length of it and in the breadth of it. For unto thee will I give it” (Gen. 13:14-17). “And when the sun was going down, a deep sleep fell upon Abram. And, lo, a horror of great darkness fell upon him. And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be sojourners in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them. And they shall afflict them four hundred years. And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge. And afterward shall they come out with great substance. But thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace. Thou shalt be buried in a good old age. And in the fourth generation they shall come hither again. For the iniquity of the Amorite is not yet full. And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold, a smoking furnace, and a flaming torch that passed between these pieces. In that day Jehovah made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. The Kenite, and the Kenizzite, and the Kadmonite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Rephaim, and the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Girgashite, and the Jebusite” (Gen. 15:12-21). “Later however, as God confirmed the covenant, the exact boundaries were given in Genesis 15:12-21... The borders are to extend from the Euphrates River in the north to the River of Egypt in the south. Yet, Abram died having never possessed any part of the land except for a few wells and a burial cave which he had to purchase. In order for God to fulfill His promise to Abram, two things have to occur. Abram must be resurrected, and the land must be restored to Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 799). “And Jehovah appeared unto him [Isaac], and said, Go not down into Egypt. Dwell in the land which I shall tell thee of. Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bless thee. For unto thee, and unto thy seed, I will give all these lands, and I will establish the oath which I swear unto Abraham thy father. And I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these lands. And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed. Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws” (Gen. 26:2-5). “It should be noted that the promise of the possession of the land is not merely to Isaac’s descendants, but to Isaac himself, requiring Isaac’s future resurrection and possession of the land” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 800). “And, behold, Jehovah stood above it, and said, I am Jehovah, the God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac. The land whereon thou [Jacob] liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed. And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spread abroad to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south. And in thee and in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed. And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee, whithersoever thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land. For I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of” (Gen. 28:13-15). “The promise is made that the land will be given to both Jacob and to Jacob’s seed ([Gen. 28] v. 13b). Again, the possession of the land is not a promise to the seed only, but to the individual, Jacob, as well” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 800). “And they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, in their trespass which they trespassed against me, and also that, because they walked contrary unto me, I also walked contrary unto them, and brought them into the land of their enemies: if then their uncircumcised heart be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity; then will I remember my covenant with Jacob; and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land. The land also shall be left by them, and shall enjoy its sabbaths, while it lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity; because, even because they rejected mine ordinances, and their soul abhorred my statutes. And yet for all that, when they are in the land of their enemies, I will not reject them, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them; for I am Jehovah their God; but I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations, that I might be their God: I am Jehovah” (Lev. 26:40-45). “This third facet of Israel’s final restoration, the possession of the land, was further developed in both the law and the prophets. As far as the law is concerned, it is found in Leviticus 26:40-45. Following the regeneration of Israel (vv. 40-41), God will fully carry out the promises of the Abrahamic Covenant concerning the land (v. 42)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 800). “and Jehovah thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers” (Deut. 30:5). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will beat off his fruit from the flood of the River unto the brook of Egypt; and ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel” (Isa. 27:12). “In this passage, the first aspect (the borders of the land), is brought out. The northern (Euphrates River) and the southern (the Brook of Egypt) boundaries are possessed for the first time in all of Israel’s history. Israel will be able to settle in all the Promised Land” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 800). “And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country which I sware to give unto your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have polluted yourselves; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have dealt with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 20:42-44). "Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the nations, then shall they dwell in their own land which I gave to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell securely therein; yea, they shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and shall dwell securely, when I have executed judgments upon all those that do them despite round about them; and they shall know that I am Jehovah their God" (Ezek. 28:25-26). "Then was Jehovah jealous for his land, and had pity on his people. And Jehovah answered and said unto his people, Behold, I will send you grain, and new wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith; and I will no more make you a reproach among the nations; but I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive it into a land barren and desolate, its forepart into the eastern sea, and its hinder part into the western sea; and its stench shall come up, and its ill savor shall come up, because it hath done great things. Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice; for Jehovah hath done great things. Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field; for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth its fruit, the fig-tree and the vine do yield their strength. Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in Jehovah your God; for he giveth you the former rain in just measure, and he causeth to come down for you the rain, the former rain and the latter rain, in the first month. And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the vats shall overflow with new wine and oil. And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker-worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer-worm, my great army which I sent among you. And ye shall eat in plenty and be satisfied, and shall praise the name of Jehovah your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you; and my people shall never be put to shame. And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am Jehovah your God, and there is none else; and my people shall never be put to shame" (Joel 2:18-27). "To summarize, for the first time in Israel's history, she will possess all of the Promised Land while the land itself will greatly increase in its productivity and be well watered, all on the basis of the Abrahamic Covenant" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 802).

The basis of the possession of the land is The Abrahamic Covenant. "In that day Jehovah made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates” (Gen. 15:18). (See our discussion of the fact that possession of the land is a feature of the Abrahamic Covenant in the section The Abrahamic Covenant of our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise.)

Regarding the extent of the possession, “Thou hast increased the nation, O Jehovah, thou hast increased the nation; thou art glorified; thou hast enlarged all the borders of the land” (Isa. 26:15). “...the dimensions of Palestine, to accord with the original grant, will be greatly extended even from the Nile to the Euphrates” (Peters, TTK, 2:52) (See the description of the borders of the promised land in the section The Abrahamic Covenant of our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise.)

The reason for the possession is for God’s sake. “Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the nations, then shall they dwell in their own land which I gave to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell securely therein; yea, they shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and shall dwell securely, when I have executed judgments upon all those that do them despite round about them; and they shall know that I am Jehovah their God” (Ezek. 28:25-26). “Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: I do not this for your sake, O house of Israel, but for my holy name, which ye have profaned among the nations, whither ye went” (Ezek. 36:22). “God restores the nation for His own sake” (Peters, TTK, 2:53) “The restoration, therefore, is impreguably fixed, upon God’s honor as a covenant-keeping God, and upon His promises given to the Fathers, which will be realized” (ibid.). “God’s Word will be amply vindicated, and every declaration will find its realization” (ibid., p. 54).

The Intermediate State of the Dead

be fed with the crumbs which were falling from the rich man's table; besides, even the dogs were coming and licking his sores. Now it came about that the poor man died and he was carried away by the angels to Abraham's bosom; and the rich man also died and was buried. And in Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torment, and saw Abraham far away, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried out and said, "Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool off my tongue; for I am in agony in this flame." But Abraham said, "Child, remember that during your life you received your good things, and likewise Lazarus bad things; but now he is being comforted here, and you are in agony. And besides all this, between us and you there is a great chasm fixed, in order that those who wish to come over from here to you may not be able, and that none may cross over from there to us." And he said, "Then I beg you, Father, that you send him to my father's house — for I have five brothers — that he may warn them, lest they also come to this place of torment." But Abraham said, "They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them." But he said, "No, Father Abraham, but if someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent!" But he said to him, "If they do not listen to Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded if someone rises from the dead"" (Luke 16:19–31). "And He said to him, 'Truly I say to you, today you shall be with Me in Paradise'" (Luke 23:43). "...the intermediate state is 'something imperfect, abnormal'" (Peters, TTK, 2:228) "Whatever view may be held respecting the place or the actual state does not affect our doctrinal position, provided such a view places the period of recompensing, rewarding at the future resurrection of the just" (ibid., p. 394). "Every writer on the subject of the intermediate state confesses that no attempt is made in any place whatever to describe it" (ibid., p. 397). "...neither Sheol nor Hades ever stands for the third heaven, and yet all the departed, both good and bad, enter there" (ibid., p. 401) "...the intermediate state. One passage reporting the words of Christ is about all that Judaism reveals on the intermediate state. This is found in Luke 16:19-31. The rich man is in torment, while the beggar is in 'Abraham's bosom.' The latter is a strongly Jewish conception and in contrast to the revelation that when the Christian departs this life he goes to be 'with Christ; which is far better' (Phil. 1:23; cf. 2 Cor. 5:8)" (Chafer, D, 52%). "Evangelistic preaching is generally centered around the necessity of believing in order to avoid spending eternity in Hell and in order to spend eternity in Heaven. Neither point is biblically true" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 517). "While the sacrificial system was sufficient to keep them from Hell [the hot compartment of Hades], it was not able to get them into Heaven. So all who died, both the righteous and unrighteous, went to a place known as Sheol or Hades" (ibid.). "This place contained two compartments, and a description of the two sides of Sheol, or Hades, is found in Luke 16:19-31" (ibid.). "Sheol, or Hades, had two compartments. One compartment was for the unrighteous, and it could be called Hell in the way we use that term today; it was indeed a place of torment ([Luke 16] vv. 23-25, 28). The other compartment where the righteous went was known as Abraham's Bosom (v. 22); it was a place of comfort (v. 25), but it was not Heaven. Elsewhere, the righteous portion of Sheol, or Hades, is called Paradise, as in Luke 23:43" (ibid., p. 518). "The most common false view, especially because of the cults, is the fourth view: the doctrine of annihilationism" (ibid., p. 708). "It was Adam's body that was created from the dust, not Adam's soul. The soul came from the breath of God, not from the dust; therefore, it is the body, not the soul, that returns to dust. Luke 16:19-31 spells out what actually happens to the soul at death" (ibid., p. 714). "Whenever the Bible speaks of death in the sense of sleep, it is always used of the physical body and not the soul, because the appearance of a sleeping body and a dead body are very much the same" (ibid., p. 734). "...whenever the Bible uses the term 'sleep' in reference to death, uniquely, it is never used of unbelievers... From God's perspective, the death of a believer is a temporary suspension of physical activity" (ibid.). "The existence of angels shows that spirit beings can and do live and function apart from bodies (Heb. 1:14)" (ibid., p. 735). "Are they not all ministering spirits, sent out to render service for the sake of those who will inherit salvation" (Heb. 1:14)? "...the term 'resurrection' applies only to bodies, never to souls" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 735). "As for the Ecclesiastes passages, they record the conclusions of human philosophy and not the teaching of the Word of God" (ibid., p. 736). "Sheol or Hades has two primary compartments. One primary compartment was for the righteous ones, and this righteous side was known as Abraham's Bosom. Between Adam and the Ascension of Jesus, Paradise was located in Abraham's Bosom. The second primary compartment was for the unrighteous ones, both angels and humans. This second compartment has three parts. As far as humans are concerned, they are located in Hades Proper, better known among believers today as Hell. This part is also known by two other names: Abbadon and the Pit. The two other parts in the unrighteous side are for fallen angels. One of these is the Abyss, which is a temporary place of confinement for fallen angels. The other is Tartarus, which is the place of confinement for those angels who sinned in Genesis six. So Sheol or Hades had two primary compartments. The righteous side was known as Abraham's Bosom. The unrighteous side had three subdivisions of its own: for humans it is Hades or Hell, also known as Abbadon or the Pit; and for the fallen angels, the Abyss and Tartarus" (ibid., p. 751).

The Intermediate State of Believers

The intermediate state of believers is one of disembodied yet conscious bliss and rest while awaiting future bodily resurrection. Old Testament saints experienced this bliss and rest in the righteous compartment of Sheol/Hades; New Testament saints experience this bliss and rest in Paradise; in heaven itself. "But thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace. Thou shalt be buried in a good old age" (Gen. 15:15). "The joining of the fathers precedes the burial itself" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 699). "And Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years, and was gathered to his people" (Gen. 25:8). "gathered unto their people."... Some interpret this phrase to mean nothing more than being buried in the family cemetery. However, that would not be true of a person like Abraham whose family or clan cemetery was back in Haran" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 699). "And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, a hundred and thirty and seven years. And he gave up the ghost and died, and was gathered unto his people" (Gen. 25:17). "Notice that first, physical death takes place, Ishmael dies; then after death, he is seen as gathered unto his people, as joining a company that preceded him or that had gone on in advance" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 698). "And Isaac gave up the ghost, and died, and was gathered unto his people, old and full of days: and Esau and Jacob his sons buried him" (Gen. 35:29). "And he [Jacob] charged them, and said unto them, I am to be gathered unto my people: bury me with my fathers in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite" (Gen. 49:29) "And when Jacob made an end of charging his sons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghost, and was gathered unto his people" (Gen. 49:33). "And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and went, he and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night: and he said, Divine unto me, I pray thee, by the familiar spirit, and bring me up whomsoever I shall name unto thee. And the woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath cut off those that have familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land: wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to die? And Saul sware to her by Jehovah, saying, As Jehovah liveth, there shall no punishment happen to thee for this thing. Then said the woman, Whom shall I bring up unto thee? And he said, Bring me up Samuel. And when the woman saw Samuel, she cried with a loud voice; and the woman spake to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for thou art Saul. And the king said unto her, Be not afraid: for what seest thou? And the woman said unto Saul, I see a god coming up out of the earth. And he said unto her, What form is he of? And she said, An old man cometh up; and he is covered with a robe. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he bowed with his face to the ground, and did obeisance. And Samuel said to Saul, Why hast thou disquieted me, to bring me up? And Saul answered, I am sore distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me, and answereth me no more, neither by prophets, nor by dreams: therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do. And Samuel said, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing Jehovah is departed from thee, and is become thine adversary? And Jehovah hath done unto thee, as he spake by me: and Jehovah hath rent the kingdom out of thy hand, and given it to thy neighbor, even to David. Because thou obeyedst not the voice of Jehovah, and didst not execute his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore hath Jehovah done this thing unto thee this day. Moreover Jehovah will deliver Israel also with thee into the hand of the Philistines; and to-morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me: Jehovah will deliver the host of Israel also into the hand of the Philistines” (1 Sam. 28:8–19). “...witches... What happens in these situations is that a demon is impersonating the dead. But in this account, the real Samuel actually comes up to the surprise of the witch, which shows that she had nothing to do with it” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 702). “In 1 Samuel 28:12-19, Samuel appears in the form of a god, meaning in the form of a spirit (v. 13)... According to verse 14, when Samuel appeared as a spirit, he looked like he did when he had died. This shows that in the intermediate state, the soul-spirit has the same appearance as the body and yet there was no body there... King Saul was able to recognize him” (ibid., p. 727). “But now he [David’s son] is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he will not return to me” (2 Sam. 12:23). “But as for me [Job] I know that my Redeemer liveth, And at last he will stand up upon the earth: And after my skin, even this body, is destroyed, Then without [“from,” NASB] my flesh shall I see God” (Job 19:25–26) “And six days later Jesus took with Him Peter and James and John his brother, and brought them up to a high mountain by themselves. And He was transfigured before them; and His face shone like the sun, and His garments became as white as light. And behold, Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with Him. And Peter answered and said to Jesus, ‘Lord, it is good for us to be here; if You wish, I will make three tabernacles here, one for You, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.’ While he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them; and behold, a voice out of the cloud, saying, 'This is My beloved Son, with whom I am well-pleased; listen to Him!' And when the disciples heard this, they fell on their faces and were much afraid. And Jesus came to them and touched them and said, 'Arise, and do not be afraid.' And lifting up their eyes, they saw no one, except Jesus Himself alone" (Matt. 17:1-8). "In the case of Elijah, he was in his immortal body, because Elijah never died; he was raptured into Heaven, having undergone the same type of experience that living saints will undergo at the time of the Rapture of the Church... There is no hint in any way that there was an intermediate body of Moses... they do share in the Shechinah Glory, but it is not necessary to have an intermediate body to share in the Shechinah Glory" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 728). "Three passages speak of the Transfiguration: Matthew 17:1-8; Mark 9:2-8; and Luke 9:28-36. One of those men, Moses, had died and yet Moses is conscious even though he had died" (ibid., p. 735). "But Jesus answered and said to them, 'You are mistaken, not understanding the Scriptures, or the power of God. For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven. But regarding the resurrection of the dead, have you not read that which was spoken to you by God, saying, "I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob"? He is not the God of the dead but of the living'" (Matt. 22:29-32). "The point being made is that God has a continuous conscious, living, relationship with the Patriarchs, which is one reason why He cannot leave their bodies dead" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 703). "And six days later, Jesus took with Him Peter and James and John, and brought them up to a high mountain by themselves. And He was transfigured before them; and His garments became radiant and exceedingly white, as no launderer on earth can whiten them. And Elijah appeared to them along with Moses; and they were talking with Jesus. And Peter answered and said to Jesus, 'Rabbi, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles, one for You, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.' For he did not know what to answer; for they became terrified. Then a cloud formed, overshadowing them, and a voice came out of the cloud, 'This is My beloved Son, listen to Him!' And all at once they looked around and saw no one with them anymore, except Jesus alone" (Mark 9:2-8). "He is not the God of the dead, but of the living; you are greatly mistaken" (Mark 12:27). "And some eight days after these sayings, it came about that He took along Peter and John and James, and went up to the mountain to pray. And while He was praying, the appearance of His face became different, and His clothing became white and gleaming. And behold, two men were talking with Him; and they were Moses and Elijah, who, appearing in glory, were speaking of His departure which He was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. Now Peter and his companions had been overcome with sleep; but when they were fully awake, they saw His glory and the two men standing with Him. And it came about, as these were parting from Him, Peter said to Jesus, ‘Master, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles: one for You, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah’ — not realizing what he was saying. And while he was saying this, a cloud formed and began to overshadow them; and they were afraid as they entered the cloud. And a voice came out of the cloud, saying, ‘This is My Son, My Chosen One; listen to Him!’ And when the voice had spoken, Jesus was found alone. And they kept silent, and reported to no one in those days any of the things which they had seen” (Luke 9:28–36). “Now there was a certain rich man, and he habitually dressed in purple and fine linen, gaily living in splendor every day. And a certain poor man named Lazarus was laid at his gate, covered with sores, and longing to be fed with the crumbs which were falling from the rich man’s table; besides, even the dogs were coming and licking his sores. Now it came about that the poor man died and he was carried away by the angels to Abraham’s bosom; and the rich man also died and was buried. And in Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torment, and saw Abraham far away, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried out and said, “Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool off my tongue; for I am in agony in this flame.” But Abraham said, “Child, remember that during your life you received your good things, and likewise Lazarus bad things; but now he is being comforted here, and you are in agony. And besides all this, between us and you there is a great chasm fixed, in order that those who wish to come over from here to you may not be able, and that none may cross over from there to us.” And he said, “Then I beg you, Father, that you send him to my father’s house — for I have five brothers — that he may warn them, lest they also come to this place of torment.” But Abraham said, “They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them.” But he said, “No, Father Abraham, but if someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent!” But he said to him, “If they do not listen to Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded if someone rises from the dead”” (Luke 16:19–31) “Parables do not have names like ‘Lazarus’ and ‘Abraham.’ This is a true story” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 702). “Now He is not the God of the dead, but of the living; for all live to Him” (Luke 20:38). “And He said to him, “Truly I say to you, today you shall be with Me in Paradise” (Luke 23:43). “For to me, to live is Christ, and to die is gain. But if I am to live on in the flesh, this will mean fruitful labor for me; and I do not know which to choose. But I am hard-pressed from both directions, having the desire to depart and be with Christ, for that is very much better; yet to remain on in the flesh is more necessary for your sake. And convinced of this, I know that I shall remain and continue with you all for your progress and joy in the faith, so that your proud confidence in me may abound in Christ Jesus through my coming to you again” (Phil. 1:21–26). “To be in Heaven at death is to be with Jesus, according to Philippians 1:23” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 519). “For we know that if the earthly tent which is our house is torn down, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For indeed in this house we groan, longing to be clothed with our dwelling from heaven; inasmuch as we, having put it on, shall not be found naked. For indeed while we are in this tent, we groan, being burdened, because we do not want to be unclothed, but to be clothed, in order that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life. Now He who prepared us for this very purpose is God, who gave to us the Spirit as a pledge. Therefore, being always of good courage, and knowing that while we are at home in the body we are absent from the Lord — for we walk by faith, not by sight — we are of good courage, I say, and prefer rather to be absent from the body and to be at home with the Lord. Therefore also we have as our ambition, whether at home or absent, to be pleasing to Him. For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that each one may be recompensed for his deeds in the body, according to what he has done, whether good or bad” (2 Cor. 5:1–10). “When the believer dies, though his body is also buried in the ground, his soul goes immediately into Heaven, as Paul reveals in 2 Corinthians 5:8” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 519). “While one must recognize that as long as one is in this mortal body he is absent from the Lord, one should always be willing to give up one’s life, one’s mortal body, to be at home with the Lord. Here is a clear verse which says purely and simply that upon absence from the body, upon death, the believer is in God’s presence” (ibid., p. 725). “Is he speaking of an intermediate body, or is he speaking of the resurrection body? ...the evidence shows this to be the resurrection body” (ibid.). “Verses 3-4 do imply that there will be a temporary period of nakedness for the soul until it is clothed with the resurrection body” (ibid., p. 726). “The conclusions can be stated in two simple points. First, this passage does not teach the existence of an intermediate body. Second, the body it deals with is the resurrection body” (ibid.). “Therefore it says, ‘When He ascended on high, He led captive a host of captives, And He gave gifts to men.’ (Now this expression, ‘He ascended,’ what does it mean except that He also had descended into the lower parts of the earth? He who descended is Himself also He who ascended far above all the heavens, that He might fill all things.)” (Eph. 4:8–10) “While the body of Jesus remained in the tomb, His soul went down into the Paradise side of Sheol, or Hades, announcing that the atonement had been made. At the time of His ascension, all the souls of the Old Testament saints were removed out of Abraham’s bosom, or Paradise, and brought into Heaven. In this way the righteous portion of Sheol, or Hades, was eliminated and is no longer in existence” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 519). “The location of Sheol or Hades is in the center of the earth... Eph. 4:9-10... That is one of the reasons why Sheol or Hades is temporary, because when this earth is done away with at the end of the Messianic Kingdom, Sheol or Hades will no longer exist” (ibid., p. 750). “When the Messiah ascended into Heaven, He took the souls of the Old Testament saints with Him; he led captivity captive (Eph. 4:8-10)” (ibid., p. 754). “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13–18). “For I am already being poured out as a drink offering, and the time of my departure has come” (2 Tim. 4:6). “And when He broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of those who had been slain because of the word of God, and because of the testimony which they had maintained; and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, ‘How long, O Lord, holy and true, wilt Thou refrain from judging and avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?’ And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told that they should rest for a little while longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brethren who were to be killed even as they had been, should be completed also” (Rev. 6:9–11). “John does not say that he saw ‘souls’ that had been beheaded, but that he saw the souls of ‘them’ that had been thus executed” (McClain, GK, p. 486). “Then one of the elders answered, saying to me, “These who are clothed in the white robes, who are they, and where have they come from?" I said to him, "My lord, you know." And he said to me, "These are the ones who come out of the great tribulation [likely via martyrdom; see our discussion of the great multitude in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation—ed.], and they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. For this reason, they are before the throne of God; and they serve Him day and night in His temple; and He who sits on the throne will spread His tabernacle over them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore; neither shall the sun beat down on them, nor any heat; for the Lamb in the center of the throne shall be their shepherd, and shall guide them to springs of the water of life; and God shall wipe every tear from their eyes" (Rev. 7:13–17). "And I heard a voice from heaven, saying, 'Write, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on!" 'Yes,' says the Spirit, 'that they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow with them'" (Rev. 14:13). "And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years" (Rev. 20:4–6). "This view of the Kingdom sustains the doctrine of an intermediate state, in which, whatever the condition of the saints, they are waiting for the period of redemption, waiting for the crown and promised inheritance" (Peters, TTK, 2:224). "The prominence heaped upon the condition of saints after death (so different from the Scriptural position, which says so little respecting it), and the extravagant eulogies attached to it, are practically leading multitudes to make little or nothing of the Advent, the resurrection, the covenant, and the prophecies" (ibid., p. 394). "The saints after death are represented as hoping and waiting for greater blessings (Rev. 6:9, 10, 11, comp. with 20:4–6), and it is in view of this that the apostles, when comforting the bereaved, do not dwell on the intermediate state, but refer such for consolation to the period when Redemption is completed, as e.g. 1 Thess. 4:13–18" (ibid., p. 397). "The Jewish view... that the Patriarchs and their deceased descendants, that all who had died true Israelites, were only to be raised to glory and covenanted promises at the Coming of the Messiah” (ibid., p. 399). “Some Jews, however, as Hudson [Debt and Grace, p. 257], notices, ‘did not consider the Patriarchs as living until the resurrection.’ But all united in the idea of a detention, an intermediate state” (ibid.). “Irenaeus (Contra Haeres, I. 5, c. 31, § 2), thus opposes the Gnostics: ‘The souls of His (Christ’s) disciples also, for whom the Lord did these things, go away into an unseen place appointed them by God, and there abide until the resurrection which they await. Then receiving bodies and rising entire, that is, bodily, as the Lord also arose, they come thus to the vision of God’” (ibid., p. 400). “From those who advocate the highest blissful, active consciousness in a Paradise located in Hades, down through those who have gradations of bliss to a pleasant sleep, down to utter unconsciousness—all, whatever they may make out of this intermediate state, insist upon an imperfect state, outside of heaven, which imperfection is removed at the Second Coming of Jesus” (ibid., p. 402). “In the intermediate state the saints are waiting for the period of manifestation, when the reward, the crown, the inheritance, etc., is bestowed by the Theocratic King” (ibid., 3:60) “1 Thessalonians 4:13-18... In reference to the death of believers, Paul uses the term ‘sleep.’ This term, when used as a synonym for death, is used of believers only and never unbelievers. Thus, the Bible views the death of believers as a temporary suspension of physical activity until the believer awakens at the Rapture. Just as physical sleep is temporary (a temporary suspension of physical activity until one awakens, yet there is no suspension of mental activity), so is death: it is a temporary suspension of physical activity until one awakens at the resurrection. This verse does not teach ‘soul sleeping,’ for there is no cessation of spirit-soul activity, only physical activity” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 142). “In John 4:24, God is a Spirit, yet He is able to function without a body. Keep in mind that for all eternity past, the Second Person of the Trinity was also without a body; He took on a body only as of the Incarnation. Neither the Father nor the Spirit have a body; they are spirit beings and they are able to function apart from a body. Furthermore, Hebrews 1:14 [Are they not all ministering spirits, sent out to render service for the sake of those who will inherit salvation?] states that the angels are spirit beings and they function without a body” (ibid., p. 726). “...whenever the intermediate state of the dead is described, they are always seen as soul-spirits without bodies” (ibid., p. 728). “The conclusion is very simple: there is no intermediate body! The body that the believer has is the only body he will ever have. When the body that is now mortal dies, the soul-spirit goes into Heaven and is unclothed. It remains naked until the body is resurrected, and then the soul-spirit is clothed again. There is no intermediate body” (ibid., p. 729). “Paradise... it is a term describing the abode of the righteous ones, no matter where that abode may be at any point in time. In Luke 23:43, it is the same as Abraham's Bosom because at that point all the righteous ones went down to the righteous side of Sheol or Hades, known as Abraham's Bosom or Paradise. Until the death of Jesus, Paradise was in Abraham's Bosom... According to 2 Corinthians 12:[2-]4 ['...the third heaven... Paradise'], Paradise today is in Heaven. After the Ascension of Jesus, Abraham's Bosom was eliminated. Believers no longer descend down to Abraham's Bosom, but now go directly into Heaven. Today the believer's abode is Heaven, and so now Paradise is in Heaven... Revelation 2:7 ["...To him who overcomes, I will grant to eat of the tree of life which is in the Paradise of God."] speaks of the future, when Paradise will be in the New Jerusalem, which means that the abode of Paradise will change again. As the New Jerusalem on the new earth will be the abode of all believers after the Messianic Kingdom, even so, Paradise is going to be in the New Jerusalem... To summarize: from Adam until the Ascension of Jesus, Paradise was in Abraham's Bosom. From the Ascension of Jesus until the end of the Millennium, Paradise is in Heaven. Then after the Millennium and for all eternity, Paradise will be in the New Jerusalem on the new earth" (ibid., p. 747). "While the animal blood sacrifices were sufficient to keep the Old Testament saint out of Hell, they were not sufficient to get them into Heaven... The reason the blood sacrifices, while sufficient to keep the Old Testament Saints out of Hell, were not sufficient to get them into Heaven is because the blood sacrifices only covered sin, but they did not remove it" (ibid., p. 752). "It was also the death of Jesus that removed the sins of the Old Testament saints" (ibid., p. 753). "Abraham's Bosom, the righteous side of Sheol or Hades, has been eliminated and Paradise is no longer in Abraham's Bosom. Paradise is now in the Third Heaven (2 Cor. 12:1-4)" (ibid., p. 754). "Boasting is necessary, though it is not profitable; but I will go on to visions and revelations of the Lord. I know a man in Christ who fourteen years ago — whether in the body I do not know, or out of the body I do not know, God knows — such a man was caught up to the third heaven. And I know how such a man — whether in the body or apart from the body I do not know, God knows — was caught up into Paradise, and heard inexpressible words, which a man is not permitted to speak" (2 Cor. 12:1-4). "Second Corinthians 5:6-8 teaches that to be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord, and the Lord is in the Third Heaven. Philippians 1:21-23 states that to depart in death is to be with the Messiah, and the Messiah is in the Third Heaven, seated at the right hand of God the Father" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 754). "The intermediate state between death and resurrection is both temporal and incomplete. Paul describes this state as being ‘unclothed’ (2 Cor 5:1-4), one that awaits the return to its natural union of body and soul” (Geisler, ST, 2:453).

See our discussion of the fact that the Kingdom is not the intermediate state in the section The Kingdom was Not Transformed of our chapter Postponement of the Kingdom.

Concerning immortality, “to those who by perseverance in doing good seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life” (Rom. 2:7) “For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality. But when this perishable will have put on the imperishable, and this mortal will have put on immortality, then will come about the saying that is written, ‘Death is swallowed up in victory’” (1 Cor. 15:53–54). “which He will bring about at the proper time — He who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords; who alone possesses immortality and dwells in unapproachable light; whom no man has seen or can see. To Him be honor and eternal dominion! Amen” (1 Tim. 6:15–16). “but now has been revealed by the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel” (2 Tim. 1:10) “...‘immortality’... to be technical, the biblical usage of the term is limited to the body only” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 697). “In 1 Corinthians 15:53-54, the Bible speaks of ‘putting on’ immortality, and the body puts on immortality at the Rapture of the Church. For the dead believer, immortality is put on by means of resurrection, and for the living believer immortality is put on by translation. This will occur at the Rapture” (ibid.).

The Intermediate State of Unbelievers

The intermediate state of unbelievers is one of disembodied yet conscious torment in the unrighteous compartment of Sheol/Hades while awaiting future bodily resurrection. “Sheol from beneath is moved for thee to meet thee at thy coming; it stirreth up the dead for thee, even all the chief ones of the earth; it hath raised up from their thrones all the kings of the nations. All they shall answer and say unto thee, Art thou also become weak as we? art thou become like unto us? Thy pomp is brought down to Sheol, and the noise of thy viols: the worm is spread under thee, and worms cover thee” (Isa. 14:9–11). “And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison; and after many days shall they be visited” (Isa. 24:22). “for just as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the sea monster, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth” (Matt. 12:40). “When Jesus died, His soul, His immaterial part, descended into the righteous portion of Sheol or Hades. In Matthew 12:40, Jesus predicted that He must go down into the heart of the earth where Sheol or Hades is located. Ephesians 4:9 states that Jesus descended into the lower parts of the earth. First Peter 3:18-19 points out that in His spirit, Jesus preached unto the spirits in prison. These spirits were the unrighteous ones in Hell” (Frucht-enbaum, FM, p. 753). “(Now this expression, ‘He ascended,’ what does it mean except that He also had descended into the lower parts of the earth” (Eph. 4:9)? “For Christ also died for sins once for all, the just for the unjust, in order that He might bring us to God, having been put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit; in which also He went and made proclamation to the spirits now in prison” (1 Pet. 3:18–19) “Now there was a certain rich man, and he habitually dressed in purple and fine linen, gaily living in splendor every day. And a certain poor man named Lazarus was laid at his gate, covered with sores, and longing to be fed with the crumbs which were falling from the rich man’s table; besides, even the dogs were coming and licking his sores. Now it came about that the poor man died and he was carried away by the angels to Abraham’s bosom; and the rich man also died and was buried. And in Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torment, and saw Abraham far away, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried out and said, “Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool off my tongue; for I am in agony in this flame.” But Abraham said, “Child, remember that during your life you received your good things, and likewise Lazarus bad things; but now he is being comforted here, and you are in agony. And besides all this, between us and you there is a great chasm fixed, in order that those who wish to come over from here to you may not be able, and that none may cross over from there to us.” And he said, “Then I beg you, Father, that you send him to my father’s house — for I have five brothers — that he may warn them, lest they also come to this place of torment.” But Abraham said, “They have Moses and the Prophets; let them hear them.” But he said, “No, Father Abraham, but if someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent!” But he said to him, “If they do not listen to Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded if someone rises from the dead”” (Luke 16:19–31). “(Now this expression, ‘He ascended,’ what does it mean except that He also had descended into the lower parts of the earth” (Eph. 4:9)? “then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from temptation, and to keep the unrighteous under punishment for the day of judgment" (2 Pet. 2:9) "For Christ also died for sins once for all, the just for the unjust, in order that He might bring us to God, having been put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit; in which also He went and made proclamation to the spirits now in prison" (1 Pet. 3:18–19) "What happened when Jesus descended is that His spirit made a proclamation that His death guarantees the judgment of the unsaved. Jesus made the proclamation to those in Hell. Because of this, some assumed that Jesus descended into Hell and this He did not. He told the dying thief on the cross that on that very day, that both of them would be in Paradise, not in Hell. When Jesus died, His spirit descended to the righteous side of Sheol or Hades, Abraham's Bosom. As has been noted, if one were in Abraham's Bosom, he could see those in Hell and converse with those in Hell. So the spirit of Jesus descended into Abraham's Bosom and He made the proclamation that the death of the Messiah guaranteed their future judgment. Those who were to benefit from the death of Jesus were the souls of Abraham's Bosom only, not the souls of Hell" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 754). "Today, when an unbeliever dies, his body is still buried in the ground and his soul still goes into Hell" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 519). "...the unbeliever has a spiritually dead soul, but it is not nonexistent" (ibid., p. 713). "There is present suffering for the soul with the worst to come after the final judgment. Now in Hell, only the soul is suffering, but later in the Lake of Fire, there will be suffering of both the soul and body. The verses that are used to try to prove that final determination is made only at the final judgement, not at death, too often confuse the various types of punishment. The issue of salvation is determined upon death; the final judgment determines only the degree of punishment. So like second probation, soul-sleeping is not the teaching of the Word of God" (ibid., p. 736). "While the Scriptures do not actually use a special term for 'Hell,' the concepts of Hell are definitely biblical. What people call 'Hell' is what the Old Testament calls Abbadon or the Pit, the unrighteous side of Sheol or Hades" (ibid., p. 743). "Based upon what has already been stated about the unrighteous side of Sheol or Hades, and what has been stated about Abbadon or the Pit, this Hell contains unsaved humans only. It does not include fallen angels, because fallen angels are in two other places, the Abyss or Tartarus" (ibid.). "As far as unbelievers are concerned, nothing has changed for them. What happens to unbelievers today is a continuation of what was true before the Ascension of Jesus. The souls of unbelievers still go down to Hades Proper or Hell" (ibid., p. 754).

The First Resurrection

The first resurrection is the (bodily) resurrection of the righteous. It occurs prior to the Millennial Kingdom, in stages. It includes the resurrections of Christ, the church, Tribulation saints and Old Testament saints. “Thy dead shall live; my dead bodies shall arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast forth the dead” (Isa. 26:19). “And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt” (Dan. 12:2). “But when you give a reception, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed, since they do not have the means to repay you; for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous” (Luke 14:13-14). “Truly, truly, I say to you, an hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear shall live. For just as the Father has life in Himself, even so He gave to the Son also to have life in Himself; and He gave Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man. Do not marvel at this; for an hour is coming, in which all who are in the tombs shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; those who did the good deeds to a resurrection of life, those who committed the evil deeds to a resurrection of judgment” (John 5:25-29). “...the word ‘hour’... hora... The use of the same word in John 4:21-23 [‘Jesus said to her, ‘Woman, believe Me, an hour is coming when neither in this mountain nor in Jerusalem will you worship the Father. You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews. But an hour is coming, and now is, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth; for such people the Father seeks to be His worshipers.’]... an extended period of time... the ‘hour’ has lasted throughout the present dispensation... So the word ‘hour’ does not militate in the least particular against the doctrine that there will be a first and a second resurrection, for, as Meyer has well pointed out, the word is capable of prophetic extension” (Feinberg, M, p. 348). “Martha said to Him, ‘I know that he [Lazarus] will rise again in the resurrection on the last day’” (John 11:24). “Jesus said to her, ‘I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die. Do you believe this’” (John 11:25-26)? “But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who are asleep. For since by a man came death, by a man also came the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all shall be made alive. But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, after that those who are Christ's at His coming, then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power" (1 Cor. 15:20-24). "in order that I may attain to the resurrection from the dead" (Phil. 3:11). "But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord" (1 Thes. 4:13-17). "Women received back their dead by resurrection; and others were tortured, not accepting their release, in order that they might obtain a better resurrection" (Heb. 11:35) "and the living One; and I [Jesus] was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of death and of Hades" (Rev. 1:18). "And I will grant authority to my two witnesses, and they will prophesy for twelve hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth.'... And when they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up out of the abyss will make war with them, and overcome them and kill them. And their dead bodies will lie in the street of the great city which mystically is called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. And those from the peoples and tribes and tongues and nations will look at their dead bodies for three and a half days, and will not permit their dead bodies to be laid in a tomb. And those who dwell on the earth will rejoice over them and make merry; and they will send gifts to one another, because these two prophets tormented those who dwell on the earth. And after the three and a half days the breath of life from God came into them, and they stood on their feet; and great fear fell upon those who were beholding them. And they heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, 'Come up here.' And they went up into heaven in the cloud, and their enemies beheld them" (Rev. 11:3-13) "And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4-6). “The doctrine of a general resurrection was of later origin, developed by the Alexandrian school; the first Christians, as far as known, not advocating it, but holding to a first and second resurrection” (Peters, TTK, 1:472). “...believers... like Jesus, they only triumph over death (so e.g. Paul, 1 Cor. 15) through the power of the resurrection” (ibid., 2:172). “The Bride of Christ who will reign with Christ will be constituted of translated and resurrected saints, the two companies now joined forever. Furthermore, the King and Queen will rule over people alive when Christ comes (see Matt. 25:31-46), but there will also be some who have been resurrected from Israel (Dan. 12:1-2) and from the nations (Rev. 21:24)” (Feinberg, M, p. 335). “Three diverse resurrections are named in 1 Corinthians 15:20-24, and two in John 5:25-29 and Revelation 20:4-6. When three are indicated it is of Christ, of believers, and of the unsaved. Between the resurrection of Christ and that of believers, the present age obviously intervenes. Between the resurrection of believers and the end or final resurrection, which is of the unsaved, is the kingdom reign of Christ (cf. 1 Cor 15:24-26). The two resurrections of humanity are termed the first and the second (cf. Rev 20:4-6; Phil. 3:11; 1 Thess. 4:13-18)” (Chafer, ST, 4:394). “1 Corinthians 15:23... ‘every man in his own order.’ The first resurrection is composed of different groups: church saints, Old Testament saints, tribulation saints. Even though these groups are raised at different times, they are a part of the first resurrection program and are ‘orders’ in that program” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 176). “The order of events in the resurrection program would be: (1) the resurrection of Christ as the beginning of the resurrection program (1 Cor. 15:23) (2) the resurrection of the church age saints at the rapture (1 Thess. 4:16) (3) the resurrection of the tribulation period saints (Rev. 20:3-5), together with (4) the resurrection of Old Testament saints (Dan. 12:2; Isa. 26:19) at the second advent of Christ to the earth; and finally (5) the final resurrection of the unsaved dead (Rev. 20:5, 11-14) at the end of the millennial age. The first four stages would all be included in the first resurrection or resurrection to life, inasmuch as all receive eternal life and the last would be the second resurrection, or the resurrection unto damnation, inasmuch as all receive eternal judgment at that time” (ibid., p. 411). “All of the righteous dead of all the ages will have been resurrected before the institution of Christ’s earthly Davidic kingdom, leaving only the wicked dead unresurrected after the Second Advent” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 318). “Thus the Lord outlined the framework of a future age characterized by two divine works: first, the work of spiritual regeneration; and second, the work of bodily resurrection. The details are filled in by the Old Testament prophets and the Book of Revelation. The age will begin with the resurrection of the saints of past ages, and it will end with the resurrection of the unsaved. During the same age multitudes will be saved by the work of regeneration, and for these, apparently, there will be no physical death” (McClain, GK, p. 489). “The words, ‘This is the first resurrection,’ do not mean that this resurrection is confined to the ‘beheaded’ martyrs of [Rev. 20] verse 4. For, in the Biblical record, the Church of the present age, the bride of Christ, has already appeared in her glorified state in heaven (19:1-9). And the two witnesses of chapter 11 were resurrected almost immediately following their death (11:11-12). As a matter of fact, there are various classes of saved people who will have a part in this ‘first resurrection.’ But the martyrs of the judgment period of chapters 6-19 constitute the last of these classes. When these martyrs ‘live’ again, the Holy Spirit writes finis to this blessed resurrection with the pronouncement—‘This is the first resurrection’ (20:5). In the excellent comment of Lange: ‘With these words the Seer constitutes that entire resurrection-process which begins with the Parousia of Christ, a distinct dogmatical conception’” [quoting J. P. Lange, Revelation of St. John] (ibid., p. 490). “It is significant that when the record moves from the resurrection of the martyred saints of [Rev. 20] verses 4-5 to the material in verse 6, the writer seems to broaden the scope of the first resurrection. It is no longer a specific class under consideration (the ‘beheaded ones’), but the statement becomes very general: ‘Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: on such the second death hath no power’ (vs. 6). There is room left here for all the various groups of the saved, from the ‘church of the first-born’ (Heb. 12:23) down to the last martyr of the end-time” (ibid.). “All elect of all ages converge upon the millennial scene” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 61). “Pentecost [in Things to Come, pp. 407-411] concludes that ‘the resurrection of the church and Israel take place at two different times’ for ‘Scripture shows that Israel will be resurrected at the close of the tribulation period, while the church will be resurrected prior to it’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 544). “The first resurrection includes the following five stages: The first was the resurrection of Jesus ([1 Cor. 15] vs. 23)—He is the firstfruits of the first resurrection; the second is the resurrection of the Church saints at the Rapture of the Church (1 Thess. 4:16) prior to the Great Tribulation; the third will be the resurrection of the Two Witnesses in the middle of the Tribulation; fourth will come the Old Testament saints (Is. 26:19; Dan. 12:2) during the seventy-five day interval after the Tribulation; and fifth, the Tribulation saints (Rev. 20:4). The resurrection of the Tribulation saints completes the first resurrection. There will be no such thing as a resurrection of millennial saints” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 369) “The Old Testament saints (Is. 26:19; Dan. 12:2) and the Tribulation saints (Rev. 20:4) will be resurrected in the seventy-five day interval between the Tribulation and the Millennium” (ibid., p. 395). “When the first resurrection occurs, the bodies of the believers will be resurrected and reunited with their souls. This will occur at the Rapture of the Church saints, and for the Old Testament and Tribulation saints it will occur after the Second Coming” (ibid., p. 519). “There will be two resurrections. The first is of believers and will occur before the thousand-year reign of Christ; the second is of unbelievers and will happen after the millennium” (Geisler, ST, 4:291). “Death was officially defeated by the Crucifixion and Resurrection (Col. 2:14-15; 1 Cor. 15:54-55), yet death still reigns in that all still physically die (Rom. 5:12). Death will be actually defeated after the Second Coming (Rom. 8:22-23; 1 Cor. 15:50-54; Rev. 21:4)” (ibid., p. 565).

As is true of all biblical resurrections, the first resurrection is a bodily resurrection. “Thy dead shall live; my dead bodies shall arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast forth the dead” (Isa. 26:19). “And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt” (Dan. 12:2). “Martha said to Him, ‘I know that he [Lazarus] will rise again in the resurrection on the last day’” (John 11:24). “But if the Spirit of Him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, He who raised Christ Jesus from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies through His Spirit who indwells you” (Rom. 8:11). “And not only this, but also we ourselves, having the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting eagerly for our adoption as sons, the redemption of our body” (Rom. 8:23). “in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality” (1 Cor. 15:52-53). “For our citizenship is in heaven, from which also we eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who will transform the body of our humble state into conformity with the body of His glory, by the exertion of the power that He has even to subject all things to Himself” (Phil. 3:20-21). “...resurrection of the bodies of dead saints” (Peters, TTK, 2:228) “The belief in a literal resurrection of the body, according to numerous writers, was a common one among the Jews at the time of Christ (Matt. 22; Luke 20; Acts 23:6-8; John 11:24, etc.), and the language of Christ and the apostles is pre-eminently calculated to confirm them in their belief” (ibid.). “That the language of Christ and the apostles taught such a resurrection, is confirmed by the fact that all the early churches distinctively proclaimed it as their faith, thus corroborating the views entertained by the Jews. And this general belief was not confined to Jewish but was embraced in the Gentile churches” (ibid.). “If the body is not also redeemed, restored to its forfeited condition, then the Redemptive process is in so far incomplete” (ibid., p. 229). “...forming again a reunion of soul and body” (ibid., p. 230) “The Church is rapidly drifting away from the idea of a corporeal resurrection. The old-fashioned faith—even evidenced by the Patriarchs—does not suit modern notions” (ibid.). “Philosophy, science, spiritualizing may speculate and tender objections, but faith accepts the asserted fact that the body itself—like Christ’s—shall undergo this change or transformation, just as it is represented that the bodies of the living at the Second Advent, when translated, shall also undergo a wonderful transformation” (ibid., p. 232). “Luther’s view, as repeatedly taught, was that of a resurrection of the body, but that the resurrected body was one totally changed from the corruptible body buried, and that such a change was only to be realized at the future Second Advent” (ibid., p. 234). “We are old-fashioned enough in our belief to cling with hope to that day beyond the intermediate period or state, when the redemption of the body will also be effected. And this, because we rest on a perfect, complete Redemption... Everything else that man and the race forfeited by sin is restored through Christ, and we can make no exception in favor of the body, given over to death and corruption, without making Redemption in so far incomplete, and giving in this particular the victory and triumph to Satan... Hence, every theory, however plausible, and no matter by whom advocated, that proceeds to limit Redemption, the work of Christ, must be rejected as irreconcilable with the honor, power, etc. of God in Redemption” (ibid., p. 236). “Knapp (Ch. Theol., 151, 1) remarks: ‘Death was compared with sleep and the dead body with a sleeping person. Hence the terms which literally signify to awake, to rise up, to rise out of sleep, are also used to denote the resurrection of the lifeless body.’... Our opponents, themselves, give us the proper interpretation and application, although they cannot logically fit it into their system” (ibid., p. 258). “They were put to death physically, and they will come to life physically” (Feinberg, M, p. 334). “In more than forty New Testament references to resurrection, with the possible exception of Luke

2:34, it is always used of a literal resurrection, never in a spiritual or non-literal sense, and has to do with the raising up of the physical body. This is assumed and not debated at this point” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 395). “And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary His mother, ‘Behold, this Child is appointed for the fall and rise of many in Israel, and for a sign to be opposed —” (Luke 2:34) “...the term ‘resurrection’ (anastasis)... no one has ever produced a single indisputable instance in the New Testament where the Greek anastasis is ever applied to man’s soul, or an instance where the new birth is ever called a ‘resurrection’” (McClain, GK, p. 488). “...the unbiblical notion of disembodied ‘souls’ reigning with Christ before their resurrection and glorification” (ibid., p. 492). “...if what died had not risen again, God would have lost the battle over death to Satan” (Geisler, ST, 4:269). “Rather than replacing the mortal body, the immortal resurrection body is ‘put on’ over it. We will be raised in our physical bodies” (ibid., p. 270). “The resurrection body is not a mere physical body, it is a supernatural physical body, spiritually powered, literally Spirit-dominated (1 Cor. 15:44)... the ‘change’ (v. 51) will not be from a material body to an immaterial body but from a perishable physical body to an imperishable physical body” (ibid.). “it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body” (1 Cor. 15:44). “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed” (1 Cor. 15:51) “A ‘spiritual’ body is one dominated by the spirit, not one devoid of matter; the Greek word pneumatikos (spiritual) means a body directed by the Spirit, as opposed to one under the dominion of the flesh. Spiritual here does not mean ‘immaterial’ but ‘immortal, imperishable’” (Geisler, ST, p. 276) “1 Cor. 15:50... ‘nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable.’ Paul is not saying the resurrection body will not have flesh, but that it will not have perishable flesh” (ibid., p. 281). “The resurrection body is called ‘spiritual’ and ‘life-giving spirit’ because its source is the spiritual realm, not because its substance is immaterial” (ibid., p. 285). “‘Resurrection’ (Gk: anastasis) is never biblically used of a spiritual resurrection; it always means a literal physical resurrection from the dead. There is a spiritual coming to life called ‘regeneration’ (Titus 3:5-7; cf. Eph. 2:1), but this is never scripturally called a resurrection. It isn’t a resurrection, that is, ‘a coming alive again’; those dead in sin were born that way—they were never alive spiritually” (ibid., p. 585). “He saved us, not on the basis of deeds which we have done in righteousness, but according to His mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewing by the Holy Spirit, whom He poured out upon us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior, that being justified by His grace we might be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life” (Titus 3:5–7). “And you were dead in your trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1) (See also our discussion of the fact that Christ’s resurrection was a bodily resurrection in the section Career of the King of our chapter The King of the Kingdom.)

The first resurrection is distinct from glorification. “Many writers confound the resurrection and subsequent glorification, speaking of the future body as the resultant only of the resurrection, when it is one of the resurrection and the subsequent transforming (making the mortal immortal, etc.) power of God” (Peters, TTK, 2:230). (See our discussion of the glorification of the church in the section Purposes of the Rapture of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

It is distinct from the second resurrection. “And many of those who sleep in the dust of the ground will awake, these to everlasting life, but the others to disgrace and everlasting contempt” (Dan. 12:2). “But when you give a reception, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed, since they do not have the means to repay you; for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous” (Luke 14:13-14). “And Jesus said to them, ‘The sons of this age marry and are given in marriage, but those who are considered worthy to attain to that age and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage; for neither can they die anymore, for they are like angels, and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection’” (Luke 20:34–36). “Luke 20:34-36... ‘they that shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world and the resurrection from the dead,’ implies that some shall not be accounted worthy, and hence shall not then be raised up” (Peters, TTK, 2:275). “Do not marvel at this; for an hour is coming, in which all who are in the tombs shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; those who did the good deeds to a resurrection of life, those who committed the evil deeds to a resurrection of judgment” (John 5:28-29). “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first” (1 Thess. 4:16). “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4-6). “...resurrection... the term ‘first’... has not so much reference to time as to privilege” (Peters, TTK, p. 243) “...the Jewish view... Aben Ezra... says: ‘Those who awake shall be (appointed) to everlasting life, and those who awake not shall be (doomed) to shame and everlasting contempt’” (ibid., p. 247). “No clearer truth is taught in God’s Word than this: that there are two resurrections... one for the righteous unto life, and the other for the wicked unto condemnation” (ibid., p. 278). “Wherever the resurrection of Christ or of His people is spoken of in Scripture, it is a ‘resurrection from the dead;’ and wherever the general resurrection is spoken of, it is the ‘resurrection of the dead’” (ibid., p. 308). “The word ‘first’ applied to the resurrection has reference not to its being first in time (which would be incorrect, seeing that Christ’s res. and that of saints, Matt. 27:52, 53, preceded), but of its being a resurrection which also brings those who participated in it within the privileges of ‘the first-born,’ viz., a double portion, Deut. 21:17; priesthood, Num. 3:13, and government or dominion, Gen. 27:29. The subject of the resurrection, for a long time, was not clear to the writer until he observed the real scriptural application of the word ‘first,’ as just given” (ibid., p. 315). “The notion that there is one general, all-inclusive, simultaneous resurrection within one hour is more a product of Romish theology than a doctrine of the Scriptures” (Chafer, ST, p. 366). “Scripture knows nothing of a general resurrection, either of Israelites or of all men, both good and bad, simultaneously” (McClain, GK, p. 196). “Dan. 12:2... John 5:28-29... In each of these passages where both resurrections are mentioned, the order is the same: The saved are raised, then the unsaved are later raised” (Geisler, ST, 4:263). “The two resurrections will be separated by a thousand years—Christ’s millennial reign” (ibid.) (See our discussion of the second resurrection in the section Events in Preparation for the Eternal Order of our chapter The Lake of Fire.)

It is to occur “On the last day.” ““And this is the will of Him who sent Me, that of all that He has given Me I lose nothing, but raise it up on the last day. For this is the will of My Father, that everyone who beholds the Son and believes in Him, may have eternal life; and I Myself will raise him up on the last day” (John 6:39–40). “No one can come to Me, unless the Father who sent Me draws him; and I will raise him up on the last day” (John 6:44). “He who eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up on the last day” (John 6:54). “Martha said to Him, ‘I know that he [Lazarus] will rise again in the resurrection on the last day” (John 11:24). “He will raise up believers (not at death) at the last day” (Peters, TTK, 2:230).

It is the time of reward. “But when you give a reception, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed, since they do not have the means to repay you; for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous” (Luke 14:13-14). (See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Rapture of the church is to judge and reward the church in the section Purposes of the Rapture of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

It is for the purpose of raising up kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom. “Rev. 20:1-6... the Divine Purpose... it is futile to attempt to dwarf it into the narrow boundary suggested. The Pre-Millennial resurrection is only a means necessary to secure a part of the rulers of this Kingdom; the idea of the Kingdom is not to be sought for in the means used for its re-introduction, but lies firmly imbedded in the oathbound covenant of God” (Peters, TTK, 3:599). (See our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Rapture of the church is to prepare rulers for the Kingdom in the section Purposes of the Rapture of our chapter The Rapture of the Church. See also our discussion of the fact that believers will reign with Christ in the Millennial Kingdom in the section Government of the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

It includes the resurrection of the church, which is accomplished at the Rapture. “Jesus said to her, I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die. Do you believe this?” (John 11:25-26)? “But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who are asleep. For since by a man came death, by a man also came the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all shall be made alive. But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, after that those who are Christ’s at His coming, then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power” (1 Cor. 15:20-24). “in order that I [Paul] may attain to the resurrection from the dead” (Phil. 3:11). “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “Sheol and Hades are used to denote the grave or the place of the dead. Many writers correctly infer that Matt. 16:18, ‘the gates of hell shall not prevail against it,’ includes a direct reference to the resurrection, viz., that the power of death, decimating the Church, shall be destroyed—its prisoners being released. Lange presents the view of such in the following: ‘The leading thought in these words, is the triumph of life over death, of the Kingdom of the resurrection over the usurped reign of the Kingdom of Hades’” (Peters, TTK, 2:258). “Tertullian tells us that in his day it was customary for Christians to pray ‘that they might have part in the first resurrection’” (ibid., p. 305) “The thought in the mind of Paul [in Phil. 3:11], then, at the time of his turning to God, was not that he might attain to the general resurrection in which all would participate, but that he might take part in the out-resurrection from among the dead, the resurrection of the just” (Feinberg, M, p. 350). “...those who will be resurrected before the Tribulation, when Christ returns for His bride, which is the first stage of the first resurrection” (Geisler, ST, 4:631). (See also our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

It includes the resurrection of the Tribulation saints. “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4-6). “Tribulation martyrs... Scripture also reveals there are others besides the saved Jews and the saved Gentiles who will participate in Christ’s earthly kingdom. In Revelation 20:4-6 it is revealed that those in the Tribulation period who receive Christ as personal Saviour and seal their testimony with their lives will be resurrected and ‘will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years’ (v. 6). Thus the martyred Tribulation saints will have their part in that earthly kingdom. They will be joined by all the Old Testament saints who looked forward as Abraham did, ‘For he was looking forward to the city with foundations, whose architect and builder is God’ (Heb. 11:10)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 315). “In this verse [Rev. 20:4], John sees two groups of saints co-reigning with Messiah. First are those to whom judgment was given. The judgment spoken of here is the Judgment Seat of the Messiah. These saints, then, will be the Church saints who will be resurrected at the Rapture of the Church and will receive their rewards in the course of the judgment... the second group... nor... the mark of the Beast... the Tribulation saints” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 368) “The Tribulation saints, those who had been beheaded for the testimony of Jesus will also be resurrected after the Second Coming. They will also co-reign, like the Church saints, with the Messiah for one thousand years” (ibid., p. 755). “All who die must be resurrected; those who die after Christ raptures His bride into heaven will be resurrected at the end of the Tribulation” (Geisler, ST, 4:631).

It includes the resurrection of Israel’s Old Testament saints. “Thus saith Jehovah: A voice is heard in Ramah, lamentation, and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children; she refuseth to be comforted for her children, because they are not. Thus saith Jehovah: Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears; for thy work shall be rewarded, saith Jehovah; and they shall come again from the land of the enemy. And there is hope for thy latter end, saith Jehovah; and thy children shall come again to their own border” (Jer. 31:15–17). “This is applied (Matt. 2:17, 18) to a literal slaughter, and the resurrection promised is also literal” (Peters, TTK, 2:253). “Then that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet was fulfilled, saying, ‘A VOICE WAS HEARD IN RAMAH, WEEPING AND GREAT MOURNING, RACHEL WEEPING FOR HER CHILDREN; AND SHE REFUSED TO BE COMFORTED, BECAUSE THEY WERE NO MORE’” (Matt. 2:17–18). “The application made by Matthew of the passage in Jeremiah... Rachel... This passage is intensely interesting, because it answers the question whether little children (comp. with Matthew) will participate in this resurrection. The answer is given by God Himself in the affirmative” (Peters, TTK, p. 255). “He hath swallowed up death for ever; and the Lord Jehovah will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the reproach of his people will he take away from off all the earth: for Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isa. 25:8). “A perfect exhibition of ‘death being swallowed up in victory’ (Isa. 25:8) will be manifested in the resurrected and glorified saints” (Peters, TTK, p. 148) “Thy dead shall live; my dead bodies shall arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast forth the dead” (Isa. 26:19). “The hand of Jehovah was upon me, and he brought me out in the Spirit of Jehovah, and set me down in the midst of the valley; and it was full of bones. And he caused me to pass by them round about: and, behold, there were very many in the open valley; and, lo, they were very dry. And he said unto me, Son of man, can these bones live? And I answered, O Lord Jehovah, thou knowest. Again he said unto me, Prophecy over these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear the word of Jehovah. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah unto these bones: Behold, I will cause breath to enter into you, and ye shall live. And I will lay sinews upon you, and will bring up flesh upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath in you, and ye shall live; and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. So I prophesied as I was commanded: and as I prophesied, there was a noise, and, behold, an earthquake; and the bones came together, bone to its bone. And I beheld, and, lo, there were sinews upon them, and flesh came up, and skin covered them above; but there was no breath in them. Then said he unto me, Prophecy unto the wind, prophecy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live. So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army. Then he said unto me, Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel: behold, they say, Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost; we are clean cut off. Therefore prophecy, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, O my people; and I will bring you into the land of Israel. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have opened your graves, and caused you to come up out of your graves, O my people. And I will put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live, and I will place you in your own land: and ye shall know that I, Jehovah, have spoken it and performed it, saith Jehovah” (Ezek. 37:1-14). “The Jews (comp. e.g. Westminster Review, Oct., 1861, p. 246) held that Ezek. 37 taught a literal resurrection” (Peters, TTK, p. 253) “Now at that time Michael, the great prince who stands guard over the sons of your people, will arise. And there will be a time of distress such as never occurred since there was a nation until that time; and at that time your people, everyone who is found written in the book, will be rescued. And many of those who sleep in the dust of the ground will awake, these to everlasting life, but the others to disgrace and everlasting contempt. And those who have insight will shine brightly like the brightness of the expanse of heaven, and those who lead the many to righteousness, like the stars forever and ever” (Dan.

12:1-3). "...a leading objection against the Book of Daniel by destructive critics is, that a literal resurrection is taught" (Peters, TTK, p. 246). "Judaism contemplated a resurrection for Israel. In Daniel 12:1-3 we read that, following the great tribulation, Daniel's people will be raised from the dead" (Chafer, ST, 4:23). "The first resurrection is complete before the thousand years begin. All Old Testament saints are raised some time after the Tribulation, probably immediately after, according to Daniel 12:2, which follows the prophet's word on the time of trouble (12:1)" (Feinberg, M, p. 184). "What becomes of the Old Testament saints?... their place has been noted in Daniel 12:2 as after the time of trouble that is to come upon Israel" (ibid., p. 350). "...a resurrection of godly Israelites (Dan. 12:1-3)" (McClain, GK, p. 172). "In the context of Daniel 12:2, Daniel is speaking of events after the Tribulation and, therefore, this is the time that the Old Testament saints will be resurrected" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 368). "But go thou thy way till the end be; for thou [Daniel] shalt rest, and shalt stand in thy lot, at the end of the days" (Dan. 12:13). "I will ransom them from the power of Sheol; I will redeem them from death: O death, where are thy plagues? O Sheol, where is thy destruction? repentance shall be hid from mine eyes" (Hos. 13:14). "Hos. 13:14... 'O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?'"... Paul well knew that Hosea 13:14 (as well as Isa. 25:8) was a favorite passage of the Jews to support a resurrection of righteous Jews at the inauguration of the Kingdom by the coming of the Messiah" (Peters, TTK, 2:244) "Truly, truly, I say to you, an hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear shall live. For just as the Father has life in Himself, even so He gave to the Son also to have life in Himself; and He gave Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man. Do not marvel at this; for an hour is coming, in which all who are in the tombs shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; those who did the good deeds to a resurrection of life, those who committed the evil deeds to a resurrection of judgment" (John 5:25-29). "Martha said to Him, 'I know that he [Lazarus] will rise again in the resurrection on the last day'" (John 11:24). "...the covenant given by God to Abraham and David cannot possibly be realized until the enemy death, which holds its chosen ones, is overcome" (Peters, TTK, p. 251) "This doctrine of a literal Pre-Millennial resurrection we admit, is 'Jewish.' This term of reproach (given in this sense by man) we cheerfully accept, for it is a distinguishing feature of our faith, seeing that we find it in the covenant given to Jews, in Jewish Prophets, in the teaching of a Jewish Saviour and Jewish apostles, and in agreement with Jewish statements of doctrine; and that only such who are engrafted into the Abrahamic stock and become members of the Jewish commonwealth, shall participate in it. It belongs pre-eminently to the introduction of that Theocratic-Davidic Kingdom promised to the Jewish select nation. Even Rabbinical lore is full of intimations respecting it. That, therefore, which forms such an objectionable feature to many, is only an additional reason for retaining it” (ibid., p. 260). “Barnes (Com. loci) says: ‘A doctrine similar to this was held by the Jews. Resch Lachish said, “Those who die in the Land of Israel shall rise first in the days of the Messiah”’” (ibid., p. 297). “As to the Jewish belief, we only need to quote one authority hostile to Pre-Millenarianism, viz., Prof. Stuart, who (Com. Apoc., vol. 1, p. 177) says; ‘That the great mass of Jewish Rabbins have believed and taught the doctrine of the resurrection of the just, in the days of the Messiah’s development, there can be no doubt on the part of him who has made any considerable investigation of this matter’” (ibid., p. 311). “The ancient Jews (Cudworth’s Intel. System, p. 797) called the resurrection of the body ‘the angelic clothing of the soul,’ which, reminds one of the saying of Jesus, ‘made equal unto the angels’” (ibid., p. 313). “The simplicity of the early meaning... The Jews held to the resurrection of the pious dead at the Advent of the Messiah, and from the prophets believed that this would be followed by a renovation of nature resulting from the exalted nature, power, and glory of the Messiah’s Kingdom” (ibid., p. 476). “A resurrection is in store for Israel (Ezek. 37:1-14; Dan. 12:1-3), but there seems to be no revelation of the precise time when it will take place. The passage in Daniel relates this resurrection to the great tribulation. The passage in Ezekiel, if interpreted as a bodily resurrection, is definitely, according to the whole context, a part of the restoration of Israel to their own land” (Chafer, ST, 4:399). “Old Testament saints... Old Testament saints who died in faith will be resurrected at the second advent of Jesus Christ to the earth (Dan. 12:2; Isa. 26:19-20)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 315). “The surviving remnant enters into the millennial land of Israel where they will be joined by the resurrected Old Testament saints. At that time, the ‘Old Testament saints and resurrected Israel’ will be ‘given their places of honor and privilege and are associated with Christ in His millennial government’” [quoting Walvoord, Millennial Kingdom, pp. 288-291] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 543). “After the second coming, the Old Testament saints will be resurrected. This is stated by two Old Testament passages: Isaiah 26:19 and Daniel 12:2. With this resurrection, the unfulfilled covenantal promises will finally be fulfilled to them” (ibid., p. 791). “These are the friends of the bridegroom (Jn. 3:29) who will be invited to the wedding feast with which the Millennium will begin” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 368). “He that hath the bride is the bridegroom:

but the friend of the bridegroom, that standeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly because of the bridegroom's voice: this my joy therefore is made full" (John 3:29). "As for the Old Testament saints, they will be resurrected only after the Second Coming (Is. 26:19; Dan. 12:2), and they will be inside the Promised Land during the Kingdom. The Old Testament saints will inherit all of the Promised Land" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 755).

It may include the resurrection of godly Gentiles. "Thy dead shall live; my dead bodies shall arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast forth the dead. Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, Jehovah cometh forth out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain" (Isa. 26:19-21). "Whether or not there may be a resurrection hope for godly Gentiles at this time is a matter of which Daniel says nothing. But Isaiah seems to indicate a wider scope in his words, 'Thy dead men shall live... Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust' (26:19). For this resurrection of God's 'men' is associated with the glorious coming of the Lord to punish the inhabitants of the earth (vs. 21)" (McClain, GK, p. 197).

Finally, we should point out, because Jehovah's Witnesses teach otherwise, that Scripture does not mention any resurrection as occurring during the Millennial Kingdom itself. Neither the Witnesses' millennial Kingdom resurrection hope nor their associated millennial "second chance" doctrine have any Scriptural support. Instead, the plain teaching of Scripture is that "it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment" (Heb. 9:27).

The Marriage Feast of the Lamb

The Millennial Kingdom will be inaugurated with the celebratory marriage feast of the Lamb. "And in this mountain will Jehovah of hosts make unto all peoples a feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined. And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering that covereth all peoples, and the veil that is spread over all nations. He hath swallowed up death for ever; and the Lord Jehovah will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the reproach of his people will he take away from off all the earth: for Jehovah hath spoken it" (Isa. 25:6-8). "Isaiah... connects a feast with the Kingdom and with a resurrection from the dead in Isaiah 25:6-8" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 372). "And Jesus answered and spoke to them again in parables, saying, ‘The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king, who gave a wedding feast for his son. And he sent out his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding feast, and they were unwilling to come. Again he sent out other slaves saying, ‘Tell those who have been invited, Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and my fattened livestock are all butchered and everything is ready; come to the wedding feast.’ But they paid no attention and went their way, one to his own farm, another to his business, and the rest seized his slaves and mistreated them and killed them. But the king was enraged and sent his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and set their city on fire. Then he said to his slaves, ‘The wedding is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy. Go therefore to the main highways, and as many as you find there, invite to the wedding feast.’ And those slaves went out into the streets, and gathered together all they found, both evil and good; and the wedding hall was filled with dinner guests. But when the king came in to look over the dinner guests, he saw there a man not dressed in wedding clothes, and he said to him, ‘Friend, how did you come in here without wedding clothes?’ And he was speechless. Then the king said to the servants, ‘Bind him hand and foot, and cast him into the outer darkness; in that place there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ For many are called, but few are chosen” (Matt. 22:1–14). “Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, ‘Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.’ Then all those virgins rose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the prudent, ‘Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.’ But the prudent answered, saying, ‘No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.’ And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. And later the other virgins also came, saying, ‘Lord, lord, open up for us.’ But he answered and said, ‘Truly I say to you, I do not know you.’ Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour” (Matt. 25:1–13). “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, ‘Write, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”’ And he said to me, ‘These are true words of God’” (Rev. 19:6-9). “Dispensationalists do believe that the marriage feast comes after ‘the return of Christ in glory,’ and many believe that it is with this feast that the Millennium begins” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 296). “The marriage feast will take place on earth after the Second Coming, and with the feast the Messianic Kingdom will begin... Whereas the marriage ceremony involves only the Church, the marriage feast will include the Old Testament saints and the Tribulation saints... The Seventy-Five Day Interval” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 162). “[Rev.] 19:9:... Blessed are they that are bidden to the marriage supper of the Lamb... It is with the Marriage Feast that the Millennium will begin, but the invitations are sent out just prior to the Second Coming. They go out to all the redeemed who are not members of the Church, i.e., the Old Testament and Tribulation saints soon to be resurrected” (ibid., p. 344). “In a sense then, there will be a double wedding feast: One for the Church as the Bride of the Messiah and one for Israel as the remarried Wife of Jehovah” (ibid., p. 372). (See our discussion of the marriage of the Lamb in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation and our discussion of the restoration of Israel’s marriage relationship to Jehovah in the section The Church is Not Israel of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church).)

Chapter 25: The Millennial Kingdom

The Millennial Kingdom is the capstone of God's theocratic Kingdom program. It is the goal and the end result of the four unconditional Jewish covenants, and the subject of hundreds of Hebrew prophecies. It is the Kingdom for which Jesus taught His disciples to pray. Indeed, the Millennial Kingdom is the foreordained consummation of all biblical and human history. (For an introductory summary of the Millennial Kingdom, especially as it relates to the other four facets of the Kingdom of God, see the section 4. The Messianic or Millennial Kingdom of our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom.)

Basis for Belief in the Millennial Kingdom

Belief in the Millennial Kingdom is the inevitable result of acceptance of a literal or "plain sense" understanding of Israel's covenants, Old Testament prophecy, Jewish tradition and Jesus' teachings. "It is the extensive prophetic writings as well as the unfulfilled portions of these covenants that provide the basis for the belief in the future Messianic Kingdom, and not merely one chapter of a highly symbolic book [Rev 20]" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 793). "To summarize, the basis for the belief in a Messianic Kingdom is two-fold: the unfulfilled promises of the Jewish covenants, and the unfulfilled prophecies of the Jewish prophets" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 377).

Considering these sources individually, belief in the Millennial Kingdom is based on:

Israel's covenants. The foundational basis of the Millennial Kingdom is God's four unconditional covenants with Israel: The Abrahamic, Palestinian, Davidic and New Covenants. "The kingdom expectation is based on the Abrahamic covenant, the Davidic covenant, and the Palestinian covenant, but is in no way based on the Mosaic covenant. It is insisted that the covenants will be fulfilled in the kingdom age" (Pentecost, TTC, p. 518). "The second basis for the belief in a coming kingdom rests on the four unconditional, unfulfilled covenants God made with Israel [the first basis in Fruchtenbaum's Israelology being Old Testament prophecy; see our next paragraph below—ed.]. These covenants are unconditional and so rely solely on God for their fulfillment and not on Israel. They are also unfulfilled and, since God is One who keeps His promises, they must be fulfilled in the future. They can only be fulfilled within the framework of a Messianic Age or a Millennial Kingdom... The first of these is the Abrahamic Covenant which promised an eternal seed developing into a nation that will possess the Promised Land with some definite borders. While that nation, the Jews, continues to exist, never in Jewish history have they possessed all of the Promised Land. For this promise to be fulfilled, there must be a future kingdom. Furthermore, the possession of the land was not merely a promise to Abraham's seed, but to Abraham personally when God said: To thee will I give it and to thy seed forever. For God to fulfill His promise to Abraham (as well as to Isaac and Jacob), there must be a future kingdom. The second covenant is the Palestinian Covenant which spoke of a worldwide regathering of the Jews and repossession of the land following their dispersion. While the dispersion has already occurred and is in effect today, the regathering and repossession of the land still awaits fulfillment in the future. This too requires a future kingdom. The Davidic Covenant is the third covenant which promised four eternal things: an eternal house (dynasty), an eternal throne, an eternal kingdom, and an eternal person. The dynasty became eternal because it culminated in a Person who is Himself eternal: Jesus the Messiah. For that reason, the throne and kingdom will be eternal as well. Jesus has never yet sat upon the Throne of David ruling over a kingdom of Israel. The re-establishment of the Davidic throne and Christ's rule over the kingdom still awaits a future fulfillment. It requires a future kingdom. The last of these covenants is the New Covenant which spoke of the national regeneration and salvation of Israel encompassing each individual Jewish member of that nation. This, too, awaits its final fulfillment and requires a future kingdom" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 792). (See also our discussion of Israel's four unconditional covenants in our chapter Covenants of the Kingdom.)

Old Testament prophecy. "The basis for the belief in the Messianic Age is based on two things. The first is the numerous prophecies of the Old Testament which speak of the coming of the Messiah who will reign on David's throne and rule over a peaceful kingdom. There is a great amount of material in the Old Testament on the Messianic Kingdom and the belief in a Messianic Kingdom rests on the basis of a literal interpretation of this massive material" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 792). "Israel, in the period of the Messianic Kingdom, is a major theme of the Old Testament prophets. Indeed, it was the high point of Old Testament prophecy and every writing prophet with the exception of Jonah, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Malachi had something to say about it. To spiritualize and allegorize away such a great amount of Scripture is to confuse the whole science of interpretation. There is no reason to spiritualize any of these prophecies any more than there is reason to do so to those prophecies dealing with the first coming of Christ, such as the virgin birth, the birth in Bethlehem, His death, or His physical resurrection, etc." (ibid., p. 793) (See hundreds of examples of Old Testament prophecies which pertain to the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Kingdom in Hebrew Prophecy.)

Jewish tradition. “...the Jewish idea of a dispensation to follow this one” (Peters, TTK, 2:424) (For a full discussion of the Jewish expectation of the Kingdom see our chapter First-Century Expectation of the Kingdom.)

And, Jesus’ teachings. “Pray, then, in this way: “Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, On earth as it is in heaven”” (Matt. 6:9–10). “It is to be regretted, however, that the word ‘Millennium’ ever supplanted the Biblical word ‘Kingdom,’ for it is this period that Christ taught His Disciples to pray for in the petition—‘Thy Kingdom Come’” (Larkin, DT, p. 92). (See our discussion of Jesus’ announcement and offer of the Kingdom in our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom.)

Purposes of the Millennial Kingdom

The Millennial Kingdom is not the ultimate, desired end in itself (the ultimate, desired end being the Eternal Order), but rather a means to an end. “He made known to us the mystery of His will, according to His kind intention which He purposed in Him with a view to an administration suitable to the fulness of the times, that is, the summing up of all things in Christ, things in the heavens and things upon the earth” (Eph. 1:9–10). (For a full discussion of the purposes of the Millennial Kingdom, see our chapter A Kingdom Needed.)

Timing of the Millennial Kingdom

The timing of the Millennial Kingdom is after Jesus’ Second Coming. After His Second Coming, Jesus will be physically (bodily) present and available to administer His Kingdom. “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). (See our discussion of the fact that the Second Coming occurs before the Millennial Kingdom in the section Timing of the Second Coming of our chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

Some speculation has been offered that the Millennial Kingdom might possibly coincide with the seventh millennium of man’s existence. “...the Covenant promises were linked with the seventh Millenary by the Jews... they believed that David’s Son would inaugurate in His Kingdom the Great Sabbath” (Peters, TTK, 2:455) “The kingdoms of this world are to last for Six Thousand Years. Moses was compelled to wait for Six days on the Mount before God revealed Himself unto him” (Larkin, DT, p. 172). “It was Six days after Jesus foretold of His coming glory before He took His Disciples to the Mount where He was transfigured before them. Matt. 16:28-17:2” (ibid.).

Duration of the Millennial Kingdom

The duration of the Millennial Kingdom is, by definition and by Scripture, one thousand years. “And I saw an angel coming down out of heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, the old serpent, which is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and cast him into the abyss, and shut it, and sealed it over him, that he should deceive the nations no more, until the thousand years should be finished: after this he must be loosed for a little time. And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I saw the souls of them that had been beheaded for the testimony of Jesus, and for the word of God, and such as worshipped not the beast, neither his image, and received not the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they lived, and reigned with Christ a thousand years. The rest of the dead lived not until the thousand years should be finished. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: over these the second death hath no power; but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison” (Rev. 20:1-7) “The 1000 years of Rev. 20:2-7 are ordinary years, just as the 70 years of the Babylonian Captivity were” (Larkin, DT, p. 74). “This period is mentioned 6 times in Rev. 20:1-7, and is generally called ‘The Millennium,’ from the Latin words ‘Mille’ (1000) and ‘Annum’ (year)” (ibid., p. 92). “Six times in this passage [Rev. 20:1-7] it is stated that Christ’s millennial kingdom will continue for a thousand years” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 491). “Since the Kingdom is to be established at the second coming of Christ, and it is to be delivered up to the Father at the ‘end,’ the period of the Kingdom must be located in the future between the two resurrections, as also indicated clearly in Revelation 20” (McClain, GK, p. 435). “The only real contribution that Revelation makes to the knowledge of the kingdom is to disclose just how long the Messianic Kingdom will last, namely one thousand years, for which the term ‘Millennium’ is used. This is the one key truth concerning the kingdom that was not revealed in the Old Testament” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 792). “...material in the Old Testament on the Messianic Kingdom... the belief in a Messianic Kingdom rests on the basis of a literal interpretation of this massive material... The only real contribution that the Book of Revelation makes to the knowledge of the Kingdom is to disclose just how long the Messianic Kingdom will last—namely one thousand years” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 376). “A second thing that was unknown from the Old Testament prophets was the circumstances by which the Kingdom would come to an end and how this would lead into the Eternal Order” (ibid.) “John also declares the messianic reign is temporary, affirming six times that it is a thousand years long (Rev. 20)” (Geisler, ST, 4:474). “Facts mentioned only once in the Bible are true; the future messianic kingdom is said to be a thousand years long six times in Revelation 20:1-7” (ibid., p. 558). “Other numbers in Revelation are used literally; for example, 1,260 days (12:6) is a literal three and one-half years (Dan. 12:7, 11)” (ibid.). “The ‘thousand years’ of the millennial reign is mentioned six times (Rev. 20:2-7). Being ‘born again’ is only mentioned twice (John 3:3, 7), yet no evangelical has difficulty upholding that” (ibid., p. 574).

However, the Kingdom will extend beyond the one thousand years. “And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall the sovereignty thereof be left to another people; but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever” (Dan. 2:44). “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13-14). “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever” (Isaiah 9:6-7). “And behold, you will conceive in your womb, and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:31-33). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, ‘The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever’” (Rev. 11:15). “Calvin’s [in John Calvin, Institutes of the Christian Religion, II, 250-51] reason for rejecting the premillennial view was his concept that the thousand year reign nullified the eternal reign of Christ. Did the premillennialist limit the reign of Christ to a thousand years, his contention that ‘their fiction is too puerile to require or deserve refutation’ would be true. However such is not the case” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 491). “...‘the thousand years,’... the mediatorial reign of Christ is not limited to this precise measure of time. The record specifically states that this measure applies to the reign of the saints: ‘they... shall reign with him a thousand years’ (20:6). In a very real sense, the mediatorial reign of Christ Himself may be said to begin de jure with His judicial work from heaven, as suggested by the announcement in 11:15 — ‘The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ.’ And not only so, but His mediatorial reign extends beyond the end of the thousand years. ‘For he must reign,’ Paul writes, ‘till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death’ (1 Cor. 15:25-26). And the destruction of death is beyond the end of the thousand years (Rev. 20:7, 14)” (McClain, GK, p. 495). “Even though Christ’s reign is less than literally eternal, the results of it are everlasting” (Geisler, ST, 4:474). “The actual result of a literal thousand-year reign will be an unending kingdom” (ibid.).

Description of the Millennial Kingdom

The Millennial Kingdom will be glorious, encompassing the earth, the human race, the government of mankind, nations, culture and life. “...language is too feeble to express what will be realized” (Peters, TTK, 2:127). “Yes let us, in imagination, take our position in the established Theocratic Kingdom, and we can easily realize the simple fact that the Theocratic King —so exalted and majestic, so mighty and the Purchaser of salvation—having died to secure redemption, will ever preserve the loyalty and love of His subjects. Saints experiencing the blessings of perfected salvation are, of course, self-devoted to the Theocracy; Jews, repentant and believing, restored and exultant with their station after painful ages of affliction, are jubilant in their adhesion to a Messiah once scorned and rejected; and Gentiles, coming under and realizing the blessings of the Theocratic sway, cheerfully honor and praise the King. Imagine ourselves in such a happy state, and in it to read Rom. 5:10; 2 Cor. 5:19; Eph. 2:16, and a thousand similar passages, and will not our hearts be so bound up with this King and the welfare of His Kingdom that to serve and honor Him will be our highest joy? Well can we see how the future mission of the Church (Eph. 3:21) and of the Jews and Gentiles (Rom. 11) will be verified by glorious experience” (ibid., 3:456). “For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of His Son, much more, having been reconciled, we shall be saved by His life" (Rom. 5:10). "namely, that God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and He has committed to us the word of reconciliation" (2 Cor. 5:19). "and might reconcile them both in one body to God through the cross, by it having put to death the enmity" (Eph. 2:16). "to Him be the glory in the church and in Christ Jesus to all generations forever and ever. Amen" (Eph. 3:21). "The most reasonable thing in the world, if once the prophetic and covenanted idea of the Messianic Kingdom is retained, is that, when the Theocratic Kingdom is restored under David's Son and Lord, the greatness and majesty of the King should bring forth, as Jesus testifies, a splendor and glory far exceeding anything that the world has ever witnessed, or that we can imagine" (Peters, TTK, p. 528). "The Millennium includes all the saints of all ages" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 187). "...the glory of a millennial kingdom" (Walvoord, MK, p.183) "Consequently, if the Paradise lost is not a Paradise regained, then God will have lost the war; if physical death is not reversed by physical resurrection, then Satan obtains ultimate victory; if literal perfection is not restored, then God will have lost what He created. However, because God is immutable and omnipotent, He will reverse the curse and gain victory over the Satan-damaged creation. This He will do by a literal resurrection and by a literal earthly reign of Christ. He will reign until death is actually defeated (1 Cor. 15:24-27; Rev. 20:4-6), at the end of the Millennium and the beginning of the new heaven and earth (21:4)" (Geisler, ST, 4:565). "Premillennialism maintains that the Millennium is not the first chapter of eternity but the last chapter of time, the time when sin, suffering, and death will be finally overcome by Christ's reign (1 Cor. 15:24-25)" (ibid.).

The Earth in the Millennial Kingdom

The earth will return to a paradisiacal, Edenic state, as originally proposed by God.

The earth will be renovated. "For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people; and there shall be heard in her no more the voice of weeping and the voice of crying. There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die a hundred years old, and the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed. And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree shall be the days of my people, and my chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for calamity; for they are the seed of the blessed of Jehovah, and their offspring with them. And it shall come to pass that, before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox; and dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith Jehovah" (Isa. 65:17–25). "This passage begins with the announcement of the creation of new heavens and a new earth ([Isaiah] v. 17). These new heavens and new earth are not to be confused with those of Revelation 21-22. The latter describes the new heavens and new earth of the Eternal Order, while the Isaiah passage describes those of the Messianic Kingdom which will be a renovation of the present heavens and earth. Those of the Revelation are not a renovation, but a brand new order. Hence, for the Millennium, there will be a total renovation of the heavens and the earth. The fact that the term create is used shows that this renovation will be a miraculous one, possible by God alone" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 382).

The curse will be removed. "And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life" (Gen. 3:17) "For the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will, but because of Him who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself also will be set free from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the children of God" (Rom. 8:20–21). "And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him" (Rev. 22:3) "At the Millennium's commencement, the Paradise lost will become the Paradise regained. The dead who believed will be raised and reverse the curse on the body; nature will be restored and reverse the curse on creation" (Geisler, ST, 4:563). "...with many (but not all) of the effects of the curse removed" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 384). (See also our discussion of the removal of the curse in the section Purposes of the Kingdom in our chapter A Kingdom Needed.)

Visible light will be increased. "Moreover the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day that Jehovah bindeth up the hurt of his people, and healeth the stroke of their wound” (Isa. 30:26). “The sun shall be no more thy light by day; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee: but Jehovah will be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for Jehovah will be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended” (Isa. 60:19–20). “Isa. 30:26... Isa. 60:19-20... This may refer to that part of the Holy Land that shall be illuminated by the ‘Shekinah Glory,’ where it will make no difference whether the sun shines or not. It will have its complete fulfillment when the nations of the New Earth shall walk in the Light of the New Jerusalem. Rev. 21:23-24” (Larkin, DT, p. 96). “And the city has no need of the sun or of the moon to shine upon it, for the glory of God has illumined it, and its lamp is the Lamb. And the nations shall walk by its light, and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory into it” (Rev. 21:23–24). “...astonishing changes in the light enjoyed, Isa. 30:26 and 60:19” (Peters, TTK, 2:143)

The earth will be productive. “There shall be abundance of grain in the earth upon the top of the mountains; The fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon” (Ps. 72:16) “And he will give the rain for thy seed, wherewith thou shalt sow the ground; and bread of the increase of the ground, and it shall be fat and plenteous. In that day shall thy cattle feed in large pastures; the oxen likewise and the young asses that till the ground shall eat savory provender, which hath been winnowed with the shovel and with the fork. And there shall be upon every lofty mountain, and upon every high hill, brooks and streams of waters, in the day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall. Moreover the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day that Jehovah bindeth up the hurt of his people, and healeth the stroke of their wound” (Isa. 30:23-26). “Until the Spirit is poured out upon us from on high, And the wilderness becomes a fertile field And the fertile field is considered as a forest” (Isa. 32:15). “The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing; the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon: they shall see the glory of Jehovah, the excellency of our God” (Isa. 35:1-2). “Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. And the glowing sand shall become a pool, and the thirsty ground springs of water: in the habitation of jackals, where they lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes” (Isa. 35:6-7).

The Human Race in the Millennial Kingdom

The human race will be rejuvenated. It will be:

Saved. “For the anxious longing of the creation waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God. For the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will, but because of Him who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself also will be set free from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the children of God” (Rom. 8:19–21). “This Theocracy embraces not only perfected salvation as in the Rulers, i.e. those who reign with Jesus Christ, who are crowned as the inheritors of the Kingdom, but it includes the contemplated salvation of others, and the redemption of the race as a race” (Peters, TTK, 2:128).

The subjects of the kingdom. “The early Church, consistently with the doctrine of the Kingdom advocated, taught that after the Advent and after the resurrection and glorification of the saints, the Kingdom then established—being the Theocratic-Davidic restored under Messiah, David’s Son—would have the Jewish nation and spared Gentiles for its willing subjects” (Peters, TTK, 2:539).

Populous. “No one has ever yet found a passage within the Bible that directly teaches that the multiplication of the race ceases after the Advent of Christ” (Peters, TTK, 2:542) (See our discussions of the facts that both Israel and the Gentile nations will be populous during the Millennial Kingdom in our section Nations of the Millennial Kingdom below.)

Government of the Millennial Kingdom

In the Millennial Kingdom mankind will enjoy perfect government.

The government will be global. “And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it” (Isa. 2:2). “And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one” (Zech. 14:9). “‘In that day,’ the prophet Zechariah writes, ‘The LORD shall be king over all the earth’ (14:9). The Kingdom will include ‘all nations’ (Isa. 2:2)” (McClain, GK, p. 213). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever” (Rev. 11:15).

It will be pervasive. “Instead of regarding government as a necessary evil—the less of it, the better—the beneficent rule of this Kingdom will extend to every department of human life and affect in some way its every detail” (McClain, GK, p. 213)

Israel will be politically supreme. “And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem. And he will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more” (Isa. 2:2–4). “For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted” (Isa. 60:12). “But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it. And many nations shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem; and he will judge between many peoples, and will decide concerning strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of Jehovah of hosts hath spoken it” (Mic. 4:1-4). “To ‘be established in the top of the mountains’ and to be ‘exalted above the hills’ denotes supremacy; for mountains and hills, being symbolic of kingdoms and nations, the meaning is, that the first position among the nations, an elevation above all others, is assigned to this ‘mountain of the house of the Lord’” (Peters, TTK, 2:92). “The nations today are a ‘Headless’ body... There is no ‘Chief Nation’ today. In that day Israel shall be the ‘Chief Nation,’ and the nation that will not serve her shall perish. Isa. 60:12” (Larkin, DT, p. 96). “The political supremacy of Israel will be restored, this time to be exercised by a regenerated nation over Gentile nations which are willing to submit to the rule of Israel's regal Messiah in the coming days of His power and Kingdom (Mic. 4:1-4)" (McClain, GK, p. 298). "...the Law of the Millennial Kingdom will emanate from this mountain ([Isaiah 2] vv. 2b-3). This will result in world-wide peace because differences among the nations will be settled by the Word of the Lord that will come from the Mountain of Jehovah's House (vv. 3b-4)" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 444). (See also our discussion of Israel's exaltation in our section Nations of the Millennial Kingdom: Israel below and our discussion of the Gentile nations' recognition of Israel's blessedness in the section Nations of the Millennial Kingdom: Gentile Nations below.)

Jehovah will visibly reign as King from Jerusalem in the Person of Messiah. "Yet I have set my king Upon my holy hill of Zion. I will tell of the decree: Jehovah said unto me, Thou art my son; This day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, And the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession" (Ps. 2:6-8). "Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, Is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, The city of the great King" (Ps. 48:2). "The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem. And he will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (Isa. 2:1-4). "Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign: behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel ["God with us"]" (Isa. 7:14). "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this" (Isa. 9:6-7). "Cry aloud and shout, thou inhabitant of Zion; for great in the midst of thee is the Holy One of Israel" (Isa. 12:6). "Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed; for Jehovah of hosts will reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem; and before his elders shall be glory” (Isa. 24:23). “And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering that covereth all peoples, and the veil that is spread over all nations. He hath swallowed up death for ever; and the Lord Jehovah will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the reproach of his people will he take away from off all the earth: for Jehovah hath spoken it. And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is Jehovah; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation. For in this mountain will the hand of Jehovah rest; and Moab shall be trodden down in his place, even as straw is trodden down in the water of the dung-hill” (Isa. 25:7-10). “Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tent that shall not be removed, the stakes whereof shall never be plucked up, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken. But there Jehovah will be with us in majesty, a place of broad rivers and streams, wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall gallant ship pass thereby. For Jehovah is our judge, Jehovah is our lawgiver, Jehovah is our king; he will save us. Thy tacklings are loosed; they could not strengthen the foot of their mast, they could not spread the sail: then was the prey of a great spoil divided; the lame took the prey. And the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity” (Isa. 33:20–24). “The Messiah in the midst of the city will serve as the Judge, Lawgiver, King, and Savior (v. 22)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 472) “O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion, get thee up on a high mountain; O thou that tellest good tidings to Jerusalem, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold, your God! Behold, the Lord Jehovah will come as a mighty one, and his arm will rule for him: Behold, his reward is with him, and his recompense before him. He will feed his flock like a shepherd, he will gather the lambs in his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and will gently lead those that have their young” (Isa. 40:9-11). “Thus saith Jehovah, the King of Israel, and his Redeemer, Jehovah of hosts: I am the first, and I am the last; and besides me there is no God” (Isa. 44:6). “At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of Jehovah; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of Jehovah, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the stubbornness of their evil heart” (Jer. 3:17). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and he shall reign as king and deal wisely, and shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely; and this is his name whereby he shall be called: Jehovah our righteousness” (Jer. 23:5-6). “And the Spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, the glory of Jehovah filled the house. And I heard one speaking unto me out of the house; and a man stood by me. And he said unto me, Son of man, this is the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever; and the house of Israel shall no more defile my holy name, neither they, nor their kings, by their whoredom, and by the dead bodies of their kings in their high places” (Ezek. 43:5-7) “Then he brought me back by the way of the outer gate of the sanctuary, which looketh toward the east; and it was shut. And Jehovah said unto me, This gate shall be shut; it shall not be opened, neither shall any man enter in by it; for Jehovah, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it; therefore it shall be shut” (Ezek. 44:1-2). “And I will cleanse their blood, that I have not cleansed: for Jehovah dwelleth in Zion” (Joel 3:21). “Therefore shall Zion for your sake be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house as the high places of a forest. But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it. And many nations shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem; and he will judge between many peoples, and will decide concerning strong nations afar off: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more” (Mic. 3:12-4:3). “and I will make that which was lame a remnant, and that which was cast far off a strong nation: and Jehovah will reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth even for ever” (Mic. 4:7). “But thou, Beth-lehem Ephrathah, which art little to be among the thousands of Judah, out of thee shall one come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting. Therefore will he give them up, until the time that she who travaileth hath brought forth: then the residue of his brethren shall return unto the children of Israel. And he shall stand, and shall feed his flock in the strength of Jehovah, in the majesty of the name of Jehovah his God: and they shall abide; for now shall he be great unto the ends of the earth. And this man shall be our peace. When the Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our palaces, then shall we raise against him seven shepherds, and eight principal men” (Mic. 5:2-5). “Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith Jehovah. And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee. And Jehovah shall inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and shall yet choose Jerusalem” (Zech. 2:10-12). “and speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying, Behold, the man whose name is the Branch: and he shall grow up out of his place; and he shall build the temple of Jehovah; even he shall build the temple of Jehovah; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne; and the counsel of peace shall be between them both. And the crowns shall be to Helem, and to Tobijah, and to Jedaiah, and to Hen the son of Zephaniah, for a memorial in the temple of Jehovah. And they that are far off shall come and build in the temple of Jehovah; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me unto you. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently obey the voice of Jehovah your God” (Zech. 6:12-15). “Thus saith Jehovah: I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called The city of truth; and the mountain of Jehovah of hosts, The holy mountain” (Zech. 8:3). “And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one” (Zech. 14:9). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain” (Zech. 14:16-17). “or by the earth, for it is the footstool of His feet, or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King” (Matt. 5:35). “And the angel said to her, ‘Do not be afraid, Mary; for you have found favor with God. And behold, you will conceive in your womb, and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:30-33). “But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, after that those who are Christ’s at His coming, then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet" (1 Cor. 15:23-25). "John to the seven churches that are in Asia: Grace to you and peace, from Him who is and who was and who is to come; and from the seven Spirits who are before His throne; and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the first-born of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To Him who loves us, and released us from our sins by His blood" (Rev. 1:4-5) "And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, 'The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever'" (Rev. 11:15). "Jesus, who is the promised King of this re-established Theocracy" (Peters, TTK, 1:220) "Jesus was literally, personally a Prophet in teaching; He was also a personal Priest, offering up a real sacrifice in His own person. Thus He will also personally manifest His Kingly office, for the same language is employed in relation to this Kingship that is used in reference to His Prophetical and Priestly offices" (ibid., 2:188). "No one, that we are aware of, has ever yet presented a passage of Scripture to prove the invisibility of the reign in the future" (ibid., p. 341). "If His stay on earth at the First Advent as Son of Man included His personal, visible presence, so precisely at the Second Advent and stay on earth must the visible presence and reign be embraced because He then also comes and reins as the Son of Man and Son of David" (ibid.). "The leading objection urged against our doctrine, viz., that it is a lowering, etc., of the majesty of Christ, is precisely the same urged by the ancient Celsus against the First Advent of Jesus, viz., that it could not be credited that a divine Being should assume humanity, suffer, etc., because all this would be a virtual degradation" (ibid., p. 342). "Mt. Zion, where David's throne was located" (ibid., p. 349). "...the references to the Christ reigning in Mt. Zion and in Jerusalem are numerous... the very same Jerusalem that was overthrown, and made desolate and oppressed, is the one to which this Jesus comes and in which He is to reign... The Lord 'shall choose Jerusalem again.' The same contrast is preserved in Micah 3 and 4. For the identical Zion that was 'ploughed as a field' and the same Jerusalem that 'became heaps,' is to be re-established and exalted, and 'the Lord shall reign in Mt. Zion from henceforth, even forever'" (ibid., 3:32). "What thoughts must have filled the mind of this King when, with His knowledge of the future, He walked the streets of the city destined to such long-continued downtreading and then to such honor and glory" (ibid., p. 35). "Indeed, it would be difficult to identify this earthly Jerusalem more decisively than God has done" (ibid.). "Simple faith in God's promises should prevent the substitutions which are to-day offered in place of Mt. Zion and Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 37). “God in the Person of ‘the Christ’ is King” (ibid., p. 595). “...the Christocracy... our danger does not lie in believing too implicitly or too literally what is written” [quoting Adolph Saphir, The Lord’s Prayer, p. 193] (McClain, GK, p. 149). “Certainly, if there is ever to be a Kingdom of God on earth, no more appropriate place for its world center could be found than the place hallowed by the sacred memories of the One who there suffered and died for the sins of the world” (ibid., p. 230). “It is a great privilege to walk where the Son of God once lived, suffered, and died. If this be so, how much more wonderful it will be to go there when He is once more there in visible manifestation and glory” (ibid., p. 253). “If our Lord can be present bodily in heaven today while at the same time He is manifesting Himself wherever two or three are gathered in His name, why could He not during the millennial reign be present bodily in Jerusalem, while at the same time manifesting Himself spiritually wherever men call upon Him” (ibid., p. 500). (See also our discussion of the meaning of the title “the Christ” in the section Titles of the King of our chapter The King of the Kingdom.)

Believers will reign with the Christ. “Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in justice” (Isa. 32:1). “But the saints of the Most High shall receive the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever” (Dan. 7:18). “I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; until the ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High, and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom” (Dan. 7:21–22). “And the kingdom and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High: his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him” (Dan. 7:27). “And they that are wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever” (Dan. 12:3). “Truly, I say to you, among those born of women there has not arisen anyone greater than John the Baptist; yet he who is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he” (Matt. 11:11). “Then THE RIGHTEOUS WILL SHINE FORTH AS THE SUN in the kingdom of their Father. He who has ears, let him hear” (Matt. 13:43). “And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel’” (Matt. 19:28). “He said therefore,

‘A certain nobleman went to a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then return. And he called ten of his slaves, and gave them ten minas, and said to them, “Do business with this until I come back.” But his citizens hated him, and sent a delegation after him, saying, “We do not want this man to reign over us.” And it came about that when he returned, after receiving the kingdom, he ordered that these slaves, to whom he had given the money, be called to him in order that he might know what business they had done. And the first appeared, saying, “Master, your mina has made ten minas more.” And he said to him, “Well done, good slave, because you have been faithful in a very little thing, be in authority over ten cities.” And the second came, saying, “Your mina, master, has made five minas.” And he said to him also, “And you are to be over five cities.” And another came, saying, “Master, behold your mina, which I kept put away in a handkerchief; for I was afraid of you, because you are an exacting man; you take up what you did not lay down, and reap what you did not sow.” He said to him, “By your own words I will judge you, you worthless slave. Did you know that I am an exacting man, taking up what I did not lay down, and reaping what I did not sow? Then why did you not put the money in the bank, and having come, I would have collected it with interest?” And he said to the bystanders, “Take the mina away from him, and give it to the one who has the ten minas.” And they said to him, “Master, he has ten minas already.” I tell you, that to everyone who has shall more be given, but from the one who does not have, even what he does have shall be taken away. But these enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence” (Luke 19:12–27). “that you may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Luke 22:30). “The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, heirs also, heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ, if indeed we suffer with Him in order that we may also be glorified with Him. For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that is to be revealed to us. For the anxious longing of the creation waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God. For the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will, but because of Him who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself also will be set free from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the children of God” (Rom. 8:16–21). “You are already filled, you have already become rich, you have become kings without us; and I would indeed that you had become kings so that we also might reign with you” (1 Cor. 4:8). “If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us” (2 Tim. 2:12) “and He has made us to be a kingdom, priests to His God and Father; to Him be the glory and the dominion forever and ever. Amen” (Rev. 1:6). “And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, TO HIM I WILL GIVE AUTHORITY OVER THE NATIONS; AND HE SHALL RULE THEM WITH A ROD OF IRON, AS THE VESSELS OF THE POTTER ARE BROKEN TO PIECES, as I also have received authority from My Father” (Rev. 2:26–27) “And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy are You to take the book and to break its seals; for You were slain, and purchased for God with Your blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. You have made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth’” (Rev. 5:9-10). “Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:6). “Saints are co-heirs with Jesus in this Judgeship, for they are to judge with Him on earth. But the passages explanatory of this Judgeship represent it as equivalent to the possession of authority, rulership, or kingship” (Peters, TTK, 2:355). “The taunt employed in the early Church (evidently derived from this doctrinal feature) that Christians were a ‘genus tedium,’ a class elevated above others, is, after all, but sober truth” (ibid., p. 588). “...they shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and as the stars forever and ever (Dan. 12:3), or as the sun in the Kingdom of their Father (Matt. 13:43)... The least in this body of kings and priests is far greater than John the Baptist, Matt. 11:11... It is ‘a manifestation of the sons of God,’ a multitude of royal personages, forming the ruling power of an earth-wide dominion; the very number of them, all arrayed in magnificence, swelling the splendor of the court of the great King, thus presenting a scene of glory that shall be the praise of the world. The very services rendered by these kings and priests aid materially to exalt and endear them to the nations over whom they rule; for not only their authority shall be recognized, but their love, favor, and friendship” (ibid., p. 592). “...discourses by Hon. Gerard T. Noel in his Brief Inquiry into the Prospects of the Church of Christ... ‘The higher management and control of the world will be in the hands, first of Christ Himself, and under Him, in the hands of men—of men, once like the mortal sojourners they govern, but now glorified like their Lord, and living amid their mortal kindred, as benefactors, princes, and kings. It is not needful to suppose their presence to be always apparent to their happy subjects; but still their visible manifestations to be sufficiently frequent, to sustain the mutual allegiance and concord of mankind; to cheer the intercourse of life; and to perpetuate an abiding recognition of their intense benevolence and their sovereign authority,'... 'Is it not a reasonable anticipation, that in the future scenes of predicted glory it may be within the power of the glorified saints still to mingle invisibly amid the mortal sojourners of earth; sometimes to veil the radiance with which they will be clothed?'... Let the reader compare our doctrine of this reign, thus making the saints, while highly exalted, engaged in the most noble work in behalf of the race, with that shadowy, intangible, ethereal theory now so prevailing in the church" (ibid., p. 593). "Compare our view with the vague, indefinite, spiritualistic views so prevalent and see the great difference. Here we have something substantial, real, for faith to see and hope to grasp, founded, not on the vain conjectures of man, but on the oath-bound covenants of God and His precious promises, which are 'Yea and Amen.' Our doctrine does not present the saint in his future inheritance as subject to a blind fate, or the unswerving forces of nature, or resolving back into original elements through natural causes, or uniting with the Supreme in some Pantheistic union, or taken away from his forfeited inheritance to unknown regions, or being enshrouded in a mystical grandeur and glory that no one can comprehend, etc., but it presents him in a definite inheritance, in a well-known Kingdom, in a position so accurately described, that we behold him sustaining an intelligent, religious, social, and civil relationship with the Supreme Intelligence and Ruler, being evermore a blessed, exalted co-worker with God and His Christ" (ibid.). "Dr. Schmucker (On Rev. ch. 20: 4-6, vol. 2, p. 852) correctly says: 'The Lord here invests those worthy and qualified from among His combatants with royal authority to govern the different nations, kingdoms, countries, and States as His viceroys, under His superintendence and direction. This is indicated by the thrones, upon which they seated themselves to execute krima, temporal judgment, against the disobedient,' etc." (ibid., p. 600) "They are specially designed to exhibit the Theocratic ordering—its authority, institutions, laws, privileges, blessings, etc.—forming a medium between its King and its subjects, its magnificent throne and the nations... a channel of communication between God and the nations" (ibid., p. 611) "As Lincoln (Lect. on Rev., p. 232) has well said: 'For surely it would be a diminution of heaven's joy, if, once there, we were no more allowed to serve Him whom we love—if our hearts, brimful, had no outlet provided for their relief'" (ibid., p. 612). "In virtue of their office they are near to God and accessible to men, and their influence will be felt in a commanding manner among all nations" (ibid., p. 613). "...in Revelation 19:16, Christ is 'KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS.' This would certainly imply other rulers (cf. Isa.

32:1; Ezek. 45:8-9; Matt. 19:28; Luke 19:12-27)” (Walvoord, MK, p. 301). “If resurrected saints are to reign with Christ over the millennial earth, it would seem evident that there must be at least a limited amount of communication and association between resurrected saints and those in their natural bodies... comingling. As far as Scripture revelation is concerned, however, it seems to be limited to a few specific functions, and the primary activity of the resurrected saints will be in the new and heavenly city” (ibid., p. 329). “...our Lord in His resurrection body was able to mingle freely with His disciples” (ibid., p. 330). “The rod of iron that will characterize the rule of the government in the Kingdom will be implemented through various spheres and positions of authority” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 401).

There will be two branches of government: Jewish and Gentile. “The Messianic Kingdom will be administered through an absolute monarchy with a definite chain of command and lines of authority. The absolute monarch will be the Person of Jesus the Messiah. The delegated authority will be split into two branches: a Jewish branch of government and a Gentile branch, each in turn having a chain of command” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 387).

Jewish Government

The Jewish people will enjoy perfect government and political supremacy on the world stage. (See our discussion of the fact that Israel will be politically supreme above.)

The chain of command in the Jewish government will be: “Jesus the Messiah the King -> David -> The Twelve Apostles -> Princes -> Judges and Counselors -> Israel -> Gentiles” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 387)

Regarding Jesus, see our discussion of the fact that Jehovah will visibly reign as King from Jerusalem in the Person of Messiah above.

Regarding David, “And these are the words that Jehovah spake concerning Israel and concerning Judah... but they shall serve Jehovah their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them” (Jer. 30:4-9). “And I will bring them out from the peoples, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them into their own land; and I will feed them upon the mountains of Israel, by the watercourses, and in all the inhabited places of the country. I will feed them with good pasture; and upon the mountains of the height of Israel shall their fold be: there shall they lie down in a good fold; and on fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel. I myself will be the shepherd of my sheep, and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord Jehovah... And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd. And I, Jehovah, will be their God, and my servant David prince among them; I, Jehovah, have spoken it” (Ezek. 34:13–24). “And my servant David shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in mine ordinances, and observe my statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, they, and their children, and their children’s children, for ever: and David my servant shall be their prince for ever” (Ezek. 37:24–25). “afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek Jehovah their God, and David their king, and shall come with fear unto Jehovah and to his goodness in the latter days” (Hos. 3:5). “As the ‘Lord of Hosts’ shall reign in Mt. Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before His ancients ‘gloriously’ (Isa. 24:23), the inference is that King David will reign simply as ‘Regent’” (Larkin, DT, p. 92) “In Ezekiel’s visions of the coming Kingdom, David is named a ‘prince’ who will resume his shepherdly care and reign in the midst of Israel ‘for ever’ ([Ezek.] 37:24-25; cf. 34:23-24)” (McClain, GK, p. 210). “David... He will be a king because he will rule over Israel, but he will be a prince in that he will be under the authority of the Messiah. Just as all the Gentile nations will have kings, so will Israel. The difference is that the Gentile kings will all have their natural bodies, while David will have his resurrected body” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 396). “From the viewpoint of Israel, David will be their king ruling over them. But from the viewpoint of the Messiah, David will be a prince” (ibid., p. 397). “David will apparently be a regent in the millennial kingdom. A number of prophecies speak of David’s important place in the kingdom (Jer. 30:9; Ezek. 37:24-25). Apparently David, who with other Old Testament believers will be resurrected at the second coming of Christ, will act as a prince under the authority of Christ, the King. Authority over the twelve tribes of Israel will be vested in the hands of the 12 Apostles (Matt. 19:28)” [quoting Ryrie, Basic Theology, p. 509] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 556).

Regarding the twelve apostles, “Then Peter answered and said to Him, ‘Behold, we have left everything and followed You; what then will there be for us?’ And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel’” (Matt. 19:27–28). “‘...judging the twelve tribes of Israel,’ thus explaining why they are to be enthroned, viz., to govern the restored Jewish nation, which will again be manifested in its tribal divisions (comp. e.g. Isa. 1: 26, 27)” (Peters, TTK, 2:586). “and I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy coun- sellors as at the beginning: afterward thou shalt be called The city of righteousness, a faithful town. Zion shall be redeemed with justice, and her converts with righteousness” (Isa. 1:26–27). “You who have followed Me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel’ ([Matt.] 19:28). These men were assured positions of administrative authority in the kingdom that Christ will establish on earth at His return” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 268). “Again, the literal sense of a visible, outward political kingdom seems clearly to be in view; this is the common (if not universal) biblical use of terms like tribes and Israel” (Geisler, ST, 4:470). “Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to Him with her sons, bowing down, and making a request of Him. And He said to her, ‘What do you wish?’ She said to Him, ‘Command that in Your kingdom these two sons of mine may sit, one on Your right and one on Your left’” (Matt. 20:20–21). “James and John had just previously heard from the lips of the Saviour (Matt. 19:28) that the apostles would be rewarded in the Kingdom with a rulership on twelve thrones; hence the request itself is indicative of this acquired knowledge of rulership and of their faith in its ultimate attainment” (Peters, TTK, 2:586). “And you are those who have stood by Me in My trials; and just as My Father has granted Me a kingdom, I grant you that you may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Luke 22:28–30). “The Twelve are promised two privileges with this appointment. The first is that they will be continually with Jesus and eating and drinking at His table throughout the Kingdom period. The second privilege is to have their own thrones from which they will rule over the Tribes of Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 398). “Unfortunately, nothing is said as to which Apostle is to rule over which tribe. The answer to that question awaits the fulfillment in the future Kingdom” (ibid.).

Regarding princes, “Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in justice” (Isa. 32:1). “In the land it shall be to him for a possession in Israel: and my princes shall no more oppress my people; but they shall give the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Let it suffice you, O princes of Israel: remove violence and spoil, and execute justice and righteousness; take away your exactions from my people, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 45:8–9). “And the word of Jehovah came the second time unto Haggai in the four and twentieth day of the month, saying, Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, saying, I will shake the heavens and the earth; and I will overthrow the throne of kingdoms; and I will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations; and I will overthrow the chariots, and those that ride in them; and the horses and their riders shall come down, every one by the sword of his brother. In that day, saith Jehovah of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel, my servant, the son of Shealtiel, saith Jehovah, and will make thee as a signet; for I have chosen thee, saith Jehovah of hosts” (Hag. 2:20–23). “...will make him as close to God as a signet ring is to a king. Zerubbabel has been chosen for an exalted position in the Kingdom and will apparently be among the princes mentioned by the other two prophets. Zerubbabel is also of the House of David” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 399) “...save the race as a race. This class also become saints, but subordinate to the saints raised to special Theocratic position under ‘the Christ.’... We are not authorized (as the Duke of Manchester in The Finished Mystery), to limit the saints elevated in the Theocracy to Kingship and Priesthood with Christ, to those living between the First and Second Advents. The transfiguration which introduces Moses and Elias who lived before, evidences this fact” (Peters, TTK, 2:563)

Regarding judges and counselors, “Therefore saith the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel, Ah, I will ease me of mine adversaries, and avenge me of mine enemies; and I will turn my hand upon thee, and thoroughly purge away thy dross, and will take away all thy tin; and I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counsellors as at the beginning: afterward thou shalt be called The city of righteousness, a faithful town” (Isa. 1:24-26). “...‘the first-fruits’ (144,000)... a variety of station and rank will be introduced into the incoming Theocracy” (Peters, TTK, 2:380). “These rulers will be responsible for the dispensing of justice in a judicial sense, and there will be no perversion of this justice” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 400).

Gentile Government

The Gentiles will also enjoy perfect government. “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4–6). “The Church and Tribulation saints will co-reign with the Messianic King over the Gentile nations. They will be the King's representative authority and will carry out His decrees to the nations" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 395). "...in Psalm 72, the different Gentile nations will have kings over them... These kings will have their natural bodies, while the saints who will be over them will have their spiritual, resurrected, and glorified bodies. While the individual kings will be the supreme rulers over their own nations, they themselves will be under the authority of the Church and Tribulation saints" (ibid.). "A Psalm of Solomon. Give the king thy judgments, O God, And thy righteousness unto the king's son. He will judge thy people with righteousness, And thy poor with justice. The mountains shall bring peace to the people, And the hills, in righteousness. He will judge the poor of the people, He will save the children of the needy, And will break in pieces the oppressor. They shall fear thee while the sun endureth, And so long as the moon, throughout all generations. He will come down like rain upon the mown grass, As showers that water the earth. In his days shall the righteous flourish, And abundance of peace, till the moon be no more. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, And from the River unto the ends of the earth. They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him; And his enemies shall lick the dust. The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall render tribute: The kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts. Yea, all kings shall fall down before him; All nations shall serve him. For he will deliver the needy when he crieth, And the poor, that hath no helper. He will have pity on the poor and needy, And the souls of the needy he will save. He will redeem their soul from oppression and violence; And precious will their blood be in his sight: And they shall live; and to him shall be given of the gold of Sheba: And men shall pray for him continually; They shall bless him all the day long. There shall be abundance of grain in the earth upon the top of the mountains; The fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: And they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth. His name shall endure for ever; His name shall be continued as long as the sun: And men shall be blessed in him; All nations shall call him happy. Blessed be Jehovah God, the God of Israel, Who only doeth wondrous things: And blessed be his glorious name for ever; And let the whole earth be filled with his glory. Amen, and Amen. The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended" (Ps. 72:0–20).

The chain of command in the Gentile government will be: "Jesus the Messiah the King -> The Church and the Tribulation Saints -> Kings -> Gentile Nations" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 387) "So then, in the Gentile branch of government, the chain of command will be from Messiah to the Church and Tribulation saints to the kings of the Gentile nations" (ibid., p. 396).

Regarding Jesus, see our discussion of the fact that Jehovah will visibly reign as King from Jerusalem in the Person of Messiah above.

Regarding the church, “The Son of Man will send forth His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all stumbling blocks, and those who commit lawlessness, and will cast them into the furnace of fire; in that place there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then the righteous will shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He who has ears, let him hear” (Matt. 13:41-43). “You are already filled, you have already become rich, you have become kings without us; and I would indeed that you had become kings so that we also might reign with you” (1 Cor. 4:8). “Remember Jesus Christ, risen from the dead, descendant of David, according to my gospel, for which I suffer hardship even to imprisonment as a criminal; but the word of God is not imprisoned. For this reason I endure all things for the sake of those who are chosen, that they also may obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus and with it eternal glory. It is a trustworthy statement: For if we died with Him, we shall also live with Him; If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us” (2 Tim. 2:8-12) “And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy art Thou to take the book, and to break its seals; for Thou wast slain, and didst purchase for God with Thy blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. And Thou hast made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth” (Rev. 5:9-10). “Coreigning with Christ will not confine the church to the earth; she will still have free access to heaven” (Feinberg, M, p. 318). “The gracious New Testament promise, ‘we shall... reign with him’ (2 Tim. 2:12), should never blind our eyes to the unbridgeable gulf between Him and us. He is infinite; we are finite. He is perfect in holiness; we are sinners saved by grace. In Him alone resides that regal authority which is final and complete, and which cannot be equally shared by even the highest and best of His creatures” (McClain, GK, p. 210). “Christ will reign with His transfigured saints over men in the flesh (Auberlen)” (ibid., p. 483). “...if Christ and His saints are to be present bodily ruling in the coming Kingdom, where would they live... The answer is, of course, in heaven. The residence of the saints in heaven while ruling on earth, actually, is much less of a problem than that of a business man whose office is in a city while his residence is in the suburbs. One wonders at times how foolish the objectors can get. Have they learned nothing about the powers of a resurrection body, as set forth in the Bible, with its immeasurable superiority over both space and time” (ibid., p. 500) “After the Tribulation period, at the time of His coming with His angels, He will bring the church with Him from heaven to remain with Him on the earth throughout the Millennium” (Showers, M, p. 13). “He is King of kings and Priest of priests; we will reign and minister under Him, drawing from Him both example and power” (Geisler, ST, 4:49). “There is no reason immortals and mortals cannot mix together in the Millennium. The immortals will have physical bodies and can eat and drink, just as Jesus did after His resurrection (cf. Luke 24:36-43; Acts 1:3). Jesus also was sinless and lived for some thirty-three years with sinful people; if anything, it will encourage sinful mortals to live alongside sinless immortals, seeing what they will soon be realizing (cf. 1 John 3:1-3)” (ibid., p. 594). (See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Church Age is to select and prepare kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom in the section Purposes of the Church Age of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church), and our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Rapture of the church is to reward faithful believers with authority in the Millennial Kingdom in the section Purposes of the Rapture of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Regarding the Tribulation saints, “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4).

Positionally, Israel will be over the Gentiles. “For Jehovah thy God will bless thee, as he promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt rule over many nations, but they shall not rule over thee” (Deut. 15:6). “And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of Jehovah thy God, to observe to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that Jehovah thy God will set thee on high above all the nations of the earth” (Deut. 28:1) “And Jehovah will make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if thou shalt hearken unto the commandments of Jehovah thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them” (Deut. 28:13) “For Jehovah will have compassion on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the sojourner shall join himself with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob. And the peoples shall take them, and bring them to their place; and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of Jehovah for servants and for handmaids: and they shall take them captive whose captives they were; and they shall rule over their oppressors” (Isa. 14:1–2). (See also our discussion of the fact that Israel will be politically supreme above and our discussion of the Gentile nations’ recognition of Israel’s blessedness in the section Nations of the Millennial Kingdom: Gentile Nations below.)

The rulers will be ideal and perfect rulers. “Love never fails; but if there are gifts of prophecy, they will be done away; if there are tongues, they will cease; if there is knowledge, it will be done away. For we know in part and we prophesy in part; but when the perfect comes, the partial will be done away. When I was a child, I used to speak like a child, think like a child, reason like a child; when I became a man, I did away with childish things. For now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face; now I know in part, but then I will know fully just as I also have been fully known” (1 Cor. 13:8–12). “For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality. But when this perishable will have put on the imperishable, and this mortal will have put on immortality, then will come about the saying that is written, ‘DEATH IS SWALLOWED UP in victory’” (1 Cor. 15:53–54). “For we do not have a high priest who cannot sympathize with our weaknesses, but One who has been tempted in all things as we are, yet without sin” (Heb. 4:15). “And all these, having gained approval through their faith, did not receive what was promised, because God had provided something better for us, so that apart from us they would not be made perfect” (Heb. 11:39–40). “Freedom consistent with the benefit and happiness of all is the only liberty, as the greatest of statesmen have shown, that ought to pertain to a State striving to become a blessing to its subjects... With a King who suffered in humanity and died for man, and with subordinate rulers who passed through the trials incident to an earthly pilgrimage, we have a body of rulers who can and will sympathize with the people, and manifest it by the power exerted in their behalf” (Peters, TTK, 3:596). “The Theocracy of the past (established to evidence God’s own chosen form of government, and to show that man as now constituted is incapable of properly appreciating and perpetuating it), could not be sustained because of man’s love for sin and guilt, which caused its withdrawal. Before it can be restored to its perfected, covenanted form to remain a permanency, there must be raised up for it a body of rulers who shall be permanently delivered both from the love of sin and its guilt... Hence as a preliminary to the future Theocracy, as an essential work to secure its stability and holiness, as a prerequisite to cause the will of God to be done on earth as it is done in heaven, He, the King, tenders Himself as a sacrifice for His people, so that by faith in Him they might be justified, made holy, receive the better resurrection, and obtain the salvation and glory inseparably connected with His Kingdom” (ibid., p. 600). “The Kingdom and reign of the saints are said to be in the future ‘on the earth’ (Rev. 5:10; see also Matt. 13:41-43; Luke 19:12, 17, 19, etc.). The error of identifying the Kingdom with the Church, followed by the logical attempt of certain ecclesiastical organizations to exercise during the present age a regal authority which belongs to the true Church in a future Kingdom, has been the source of untold evil and disaster. Such authority and power could never be safely committed to sinful men, even though redeemed and members of the body of Christ. To this lamentable fact we have the clear witness of nineteen centuries of church history. The Church must be perfected in order to reign with Christ over the nations in the coming Kingdom (Rom. 8:17-23)” (McClain, GK, p. 329). “There is a judging activity, however, of which men are capable even today, though very imperfectly. This consists in the investigation of facts, the interpretation of existing law, its application to specific cases, and the rendering of verdicts. Since throughout the Millennial Kingdom human life will continue with the possibilities of sin and error, though greatly restrained and controlled, it should be obvious that there will be need for such judicial activity then as well as now. But the immeasurable superiority of this millennial judging will be the absence of that prejudice and fallibility so characteristic of present human courts, even at their best. For, in that glad day, there will be no weariness, no disease, no weakening of the faculties of the mind by reason of age, and no sinful inclinations to cloud the pure judgments which will be issued by the perfected members of the Church. And each of the judges, we must not forget, will then be fully possessed and indwelt without hindrance by the Holy Spirit of God, who is ‘the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and the fear of the Lord’ (Isa. 11:2)” (ibid., p. 485).

Believers will be priests with Christ. “And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy art Thou to take the book, and to break its seals; for Thou wast slain, and didst purchase for God with Thy blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. And Thou hast made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth’” (Rev. 5:8–10). “The saints who inherit this Kingdom, i.e. are rulers in it, are designated as Priests, whose office can only be explained by referring it chiefly to an official position in which they make known the Will of God” (Peters, TTK, 3:30). (See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Church Age is to select and prepare kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom in the section Purposes of the Church Age of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church).)

The government will be a union of church and state. (See our discussion of the fact that the government of the Millennial Kingdom will be a union of church and state in the section 4. The Messianic or Millennial Kingdom: Description of the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom.)

It will be supernatural. “The divine King who controls all the factors of physical environment will need no armies to rule the nations. The sanction of hunger alone would be a sufficient deterrent to all rebellion” (McClain, GK, p. 245).

It will be lawful. “And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem. And he will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more” (Isa. 2:2–4). “During the Messianic Kingdom, a whole new system of law, Kingdom Law, will be instituted. There will be no reinstatement of any previous code of law” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 452).

It will be righteous and just. “Give the king thy judgments, O God, And thy righteousness unto the king’s son. He will judge thy people with righteousness, And thy poor with justice. The mountains shall bring peace to the people, And the hills, in righteousness. He will judge the poor of the people, He will save the children of the needy, And will break in pieces the oppressor. They shall fear thee while the sun endureth, And so long as the moon, throughout all generations. He will come down like rain upon the mown grass, As showers that water the earth. In his days shall the righteous flourish, And abundance of peace, till the moon be no more. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, And from the River unto the ends of the earth. They that dwell in the wilderness shall bow before him; And his enemies shall lick the dust. The kings of Tarshish and of the isles shall render tribute: The kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts. Yea, all kings shall fall down before him; All nations shall serve him. For he will deliver the needy when he crieth, And the poor, that hath no helper. He will have pity on the poor and needy, And the souls of the needy he will save. He will redeem their soul from oppression and violence; And precious will their blood be in his sight: And they shall live; and to him shall be given of the gold of Sheba: And men shall pray for him continually; They shall bless him all the day long. There shall be abundance of grain in the earth upon the top of the mountains; The fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: And they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth. His name shall endure for ever; His name shall be continued as long as the sun: And men shall be blessed in him; All nations shall call him happy. Blessed be Jehovah God, the God of Israel, Who only doeth wondrous things: And blessed be his glorious name for ever; And let the whole earth be filled with his glory. Amen, and Amen” (Ps. 72:1-19) “And there shall come forth a shoot out of the stock of Jesse, and a branch out of his roots shall bear fruit. And the Spirit of Jehovah shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of Jehovah. And his delight shall be in the fear of Jehovah; and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither decide after the hearing of his ears; but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his waist, and faithfulness the girdle of his loins” (Isa. 11:1-5). “And a throne shall be established in lovingkindness; and one shall sit thereon in truth, in the tent of David, judging, and seeking justice, and swift to do righteousness” (Isa. 16:5). “And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree shall be the days of my people, and my chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands” (Isa. 65:21-22). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and he shall reign as king and deal wisely, and shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely; and this is his name whereby he shall be called: Jehovah our righteousness” (Jer. 23:5-6). “The word of God is unmistakable on this point: nowhere short of the established Kingdom under the personal control of Christ will complete social justice rule on earth” (McClain, GK, p. 226). “Isaiah... ‘They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat’ (65:21-22)... The wastrels and parasites will not be living at the expense of others” (ibid.)

And, it will be balanced. “Historically, governments have been prone to swing between the two opposite poles of legal harshness on the one hand or sentimental laxness on the other. And the end is disaster in either case. But under the coming Mediatorial Kingdom the perfect equilibrium shall be reached” (McClain, GK, p. 209).

Nations of the Millennial Kingdom

Both Israel and Gentile nations will exist in the Millennial Kingdom. While they will have differing (although complimentary) roles in the Kingdom, they will both enjoy God’s blessings under idyllic conditions.

Israel

Israel, God’s chosen nation, will be regenerated and restored. She will be prosperous, with her covenants fulfilled and Jerusalem rebuilt and exalted. Her people will be God’s witnesses and ministers to the Gentiles. “...the promises of restoration were never realized in the return from Babylon; not in the King that was to reign over them, not in the magnitude of the return, not in the dwelling safely, removal of sorrow, imparting of prosperity, etc., not in the union of the two Kingdoms, or in the protection from enemies and perpetuity of the Kingdom, or in a manifestation of the Branch, or in repentance of the nation occurring as described, or in an engrafting of Gentiles, or in a gathering of nations against Jerusalem and a sudden deliverance, or in a fearful overthrow of nations and corresponding exaltation of the nation, or in a removal from nations so far off that they then did not know them (Zech. 7:14), etc... No! The Divine Spirit deals in sober, actual, blessed truth and, as fulfillment down to the present day abundantly testifies, never deals in Oriental eulogies with their engrafted exaggerations. It is amazing that believers in Holy Writ can overlook the fact that not only prophets before, but prophets at and after, the return from Babylon predict the same glorious restoration... The one from Babylon was designed and carried out to provide the necessary preliminary conditions for the First Advent; the one in the future is identified with the Second Advent... It is sad to reflect on the lack of faith existing in God’s promises, and how, to accommodate such want of faith, human reason seeks after an apologetic fulfillment which diminishes the lustre of the Divine Record, bringing its prophetic portion down to the level of the uninspired productions of man. Well may it be asked, if the return from Babylon with its small colony, under Persian rule, struggling painfully on, etc, is all that is meant by those glowing portrayals of restoration, dominion, and exaltation, where, in the light of historical fact, is the boasted foreknowledge of the Spirit which these prophets professed to be guided by, and what becomes then of the credibility of their utterances in other respects? Such manipulation of Scripture is not only unwarranted but dangerous, leading as it does (as infidels have shown in seizing this Maccabean theory) to a direct impeachment of the truthfulness of the Divine Word” (Peters, TTK, 2:59). “It is impossible to apply them to the extremity under the Romans, for the events represented to follow, did not then take place; there was no deliverance and triumph of the nation, no Divine interposition and destruction of enemies, no Millennial glory, etc.” (ibid., p. 60) “The great spiritual blessings are promised to the identical people that suffered dispersion from their land, and are so repeatedly linked with a return to the same land from which they were driven, that it is folly to apply these to the Church as now constituted, and not to the time, place, and people for whom they are intended” (ibid., p. 90). “Millennial blessedness without the cessation of Jewish tribulation and the elevation of that nation to its predicted supremacy, is something unknown to the Scriptures. Hence this simple distinctive point is itself sufficient to crush opposing theories which contradict it” (ibid., p. 629). “Within the ranks of those who accept inspiration the restoration of Israel is recognized in exact proportion to the degree of literal interpretation allowed” (Walvoord, MK, p. 184). “J. Dwight Pentecost [in Things to Come, p. 507] gives an excellent summary of the important place of Israel in the millennium in the following statement: ‘Israel will become the subject of the King’s reign (Isa. 9:6-7; 33:17; 22; 44:6; Jer. 23:5; Mic. 2:13; 4:7; Dan. 4:3; 7:14, 22, 27). In order to be subjects, Israel, first, will have been converted and restored to the land, as has already been shown. Second, Israel will be reunited as a nation (Jer. 3:18; 33:14; Ezek. 20:40; 37:15-22; 39:25; Hos. 1:11). Third, the nation will again be related to Jehovah by marriage (Isa. 54:1-17; 62:2-5; Hos. 2:14-23). Fourth, she will be exalted above the Gentiles (Isa. 14:1-2; 49:22-23; 60:14-17; 61:6-7). Fifth, Israel will be made righteous (Isa. 1:25; 2:4; 44:22-24; 45:17-25; 48:17; 55:7; 57:18-19; 63:16; Jer. 31:11; 33:8; 50:20, 34; Ezek. 36:25-26; Hos. 14:4; Joel 3:21; Mic. 7:18-19; Zech. 13:9; Mal. 3:2-3). Sixth, the nation will become God’s witnesses during the millennium (Isa. 44:8, 21; 61:6, 66:21; Jer. 16:19-21; Mic. 5:7; Zeph. 3:20; Zech. 4:1-7; 4:11-14; 8:23). Seventh, Israel will be beautified to bring glory to Jehovah (Isa. 62:3; Jer. 32:41; Hos. 14:5-6; Zeph. 3:16-17)’” (ibid., p. 303). “Israel within the period of the Messianic Kingdom is a major theme of the Old Testament Prophets. Indeed, it was the high point of Old Testament prophecy and every writing prophet with the exception of Jonah, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Malachi had something to say about it. The latter two did make reference to the Second Coming and the Tribulation, which, in the wider context of the Prophets, implied a kingdom to follow. To spiritualize and allegorize away such a great amount of Scripture is to confuse the whole science of interpretation. There is no reason to spiritualize any of these prophecies any more than there is reason to do so to those prophecies dealing with the First Coming of the Messiah such as the virgin birth, the birth in Bethlehem, His death, or His physical resurrection” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 403). “To summarize, for the first time in Israel’s history, she will possess all of the Promised Land while the Land itself will greatly increase in its productivity and be well watered, all on the basis of the Abrahamic Covenant” (ibid., p. 432).

Specifically:

Jerusalem will again be chosen. “And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee. And Jehovah shall inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and shall yet choose Jerusalem” (Zech. 2:11-12).

Jerusalem will be rebuilt and exalted. And as the following passages make abundantly clear, the Jerusalem that is to be rebuilt and exalted during the Millennial Kingdom is not a “spiritual” Jerusalem or the heavenly New Jerusalem, but is rather the same earthly Jerusalem that has for millennia been center stage for Jehovah’s theocratic activities on earth. “Great is Jehovah, and greatly to be praised, In the city of our God, in his holy mountain. Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, Is mount Zion, on the sides of the north, The city of the great King. God hath made himself known in her palaces for a refuge. For, lo, the kings assembled themselves, They passed by together. They saw it, then were they amazed; They were dismayed, they hasted away. Trembling took hold of them there, Pain, as of a woman in travail. With the east wind Thou breakest the ships of Tarshish. As we have heard, so have we seen In the city of Jehovah of hosts, in the city of our God: God will establish it for ever. Selah We have thought on thy lovingkindness, O God, In the midst of thy temple. As is thy name, O God, So is thy praise unto the ends of the earth: Thy right hand is full of righteousness” (Ps. 48:1-10). “I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of Jehovah. Our feet are standing Within thy gates, O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that art builded As a city that is compact together; Whither the tribes go up, even the tribes of Jehovah, For an ordinance for Israel, To give thanks unto the name of Jehovah. For there are set thrones for judgment, The thrones of the house of David. Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: They shall prosper that love thee. Peace be within thy walls, And prosperity within thy palaces. For my brethren and companions’ sakes, I will now say, Peace be within thee. For the sake of the house of Jehovah our God I will seek thy good” (Ps. 122:1-9). “Praise ye Jehovah; For it is good to sing praises unto our God; For it is pleasant, and praise is comely. Jehovah doth build up Jerusalem; He gathereth together the outcasts of Israel. He healeth the broken in heart, And bindeth up their wounds. He counteth the number of the stars; He calleth them all by their names. Great is our Lord, and mighty in power; His understanding is infinite. Jehovah upholdeth the meek: He bringeth the wicked down to the ground. Sing unto Jehovah with thanksgiving; Sing praises upon the harp unto our God, Who covereth the heavens with clouds, Who prepareth rain for the earth, Who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains. He giveth to the beast his food, And to the young ravens which cry. He delighteth not in the strength of the horse: He taketh no pleasure in the legs of a man. Jehovah taketh pleasure in them that fear him, In those that hope in his lovingkindness. Praise Jehovah, O Jerusalem; Praise thy God, O Zion. For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates; He hath blessed thy children within thee. He maketh peace in thy borders; He filleth thee with the finest of the wheat. He sendeth out his commandment upon earth; His word runneth very swiftly. He giveth snow like wool; He scattereth the hoar-frost like ashes. He casteth forth his ice like morsels: Who can stand before his cold? He sendeth out his word, and melteth them: He causeth his wind to blow, and the waters flow. He showeth his word unto Jacob, His statutes and his ordinances unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation; And as for his ordinances, they have not known them. Praise ye Jehovah” (Ps. 147:1-20). “and I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counsellors as at the beginning: afterward thou shalt be called The city of righteousness, a faithful town. Zion shall be redeemed with justice, and her converts with righteousness” (Isa. 1:26-27). “And it shall come to pass, that he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, even every one that is written among the living in Jerusalem; when the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and shall have purged the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof, by the spirit of justice, and by the spirit of burning. And Jehovah will create over the whole habitation of mount Zion, and over her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night; for over all the glory shall be spread a covering. And there shall be a pavilion for a shade in the day-time from the heat, and for a refuge and for a covert from storm and from rain” (Isa. 4:3-6).

“Over the entire Mount Zion will be the visible form of the Shechinah Glory ([Isaiah 4] vv. 5-6)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 815). “What then shall one answer the messengers of the nation? That Jehovah hath founded Zion, and in her shall the afflicted of his people take refuge” (Isa. 14:32). “Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tent that shall not be removed, the stakes whereof shall never be plucked up, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken. But there Jehovah will be with us in majesty, a place of broad rivers and streams, wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall gallant ship pass thereby. For Jehovah is our judge, Jehovah is our lawgiver, Jehovah is our king; he will save us. Thy tacklings are loosed; they could not strengthen the foot of their mast, they could not spread the sail: then was the prey of a great spoil divided; the lame took the prey. And the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity” (Isa. 33:20-24). “Jehovah in the person of the Messiah will dwell in this city ([Isaiah 33] v. 21a)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 815). “How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth! The voice of thy watchmen! they lift up the voice, together do they sing; for they shall see eye to eye, when Jehovah returneth to Zion. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem; for Jehovah hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. Jehovah hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God” (Isa. 52:7-10). “Jerusalem will be built all over again” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 472) “And foreigners shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favor have I had mercy on thee. Thy gates also shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the wealth of the nations, and their kings led captive. For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted. The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir-tree, the pine, and the box-tree together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious. And the sons of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee The city of Jehovah, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel” (Isa.

60:10-14). “For Zion’s sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem’s sake I will not rest, until her righteousness go forth as brightness, and her salvation as a lamp that burneth. And the nations shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory, and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of Jehovah shall name. Thou shalt also be a crown of beauty in the hand of Jehovah, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate: but thou shalt be called Hephzi-bah, and thy land Beulah; for Jehovah delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married. For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee; and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee. I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem; they shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that are Jehovah’s remembrancers, take ye no rest, and give him no rest, till he establish, and till he make Jerusalem a praise in the earth. Jehovah hath sworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his strength, Surely I will no more give thy grain to be food for thine enemies; and foreigners shall not drink thy new wine, for which thou hast labored: but they that have garnered it shall eat it, and praise Jehovah; and they that have gathered it shall drink it in the courts of my sanctuary. Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up an ensign for the peoples. Behold, Jehovah hath proclaimed unto the end of the earth, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his recompense before him. And they shall call them The holy people, The redeemed of Jehovah: and thou shalt be called Sought out, A city not forsaken” (Isa. 62:1-12). “To make sure that these promises will some day be fulfilled, angelic messengers have been placed upon the walls of Jerusalem whose entire ministry consists of reminding God of His promises to make Jerusalem the joy and praise of the whole earth ([Isa. 62] vv. 6-7)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 474). “But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people; and there shall be heard in her no more the voice of weeping and the voice of crying” (Isa. 65:18-19). “Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad for her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn over her; that ye may suck and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations; that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory. For thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the nations like an overflowing stream: and ye shall suck thereof; ye shall be borne upon the side, and shall be dandled upon the knees. As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. And ye shall see it, and your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like the tender grass: and the hand of Jehovah shall be known toward his servants; and he will have indignation against his enemies” (Isa. 66:10-14). “At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of Jehovah; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of Jehovah, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the stubbornness of their evil heart” (Jer. 3:17). “In Jeremiah 3:17, the re-established Davidic throne will be situated in Jerusalem, making it the center of Gentile attention” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 816). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that the city shall be built to Jehovah from the tower of Hananel unto the gate of the corner. And the measuring line shall go out further straight onward unto the hill Gareb, and shall turn about unto Goah. And the whole valley of the dead bodies and of the ashes, and all the fields unto the brook Kidron, unto the corner of the horse gate toward the east, shall be holy unto Jehovah; it shall not be plucked up, nor thrown down any more for ever” (Jer. 31:38-40). “And this city shall be to me for a name of joy, for a praise and for a glory, before all the nations of the earth, which shall hear all the good that I do unto them, and shall fear and tremble for all the good and for all the peace that I procure unto it. Thus saith Jehovah: Yet again there shall be heard in this place, whereof ye say, It is waste, without man and without beast, even in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, that are desolate, without man and without inhabitant and without beast, the voice of joy and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that say, Give thanks to Jehovah of hosts, for Jehovah is good, for his lovingkindness endureth for ever; and of them that bring sacrifices of thanksgiving into the house of Jehovah. For I will cause the captivity of the land to return as at the first, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 33:9-11). “And these are the egresses of the city: On the north side four thousand and five hundred reeds by measure; and the gates of the city shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel, three gates northward: the gate of Reuben, one; the gate of Judah, one; the gate of Levi, one. And at the east side four thousand and five hundred reeds, and three gates: even the gate of Joseph, one; the gate of Benjamin, one; the gate of Dan, one. And at the south side four thousand and five hundred reeds by measure, and three gates: the gate of Simeon, one; the gate of Issachar, one; the gate of Zebulun, one. At the west side four thousand and five hundred reeds, with their three gates: the gate of Gad, one; the gate of Asher, one; the gate of Naphtali, one. It shall be eighteen thousand reeds round about: and the name of the city from that day shall be, Jehovah is there” (Ezek. 48:30-35). “The total measurement of the city will be ten miles square ([Ezek. 48] v. 35a), and Jerusalem’s name will be changed to Jehovah Shammah, which means ‘Jehovah is there’ (v. 35b). Since the Messiah will personally reign from this particular city, the city will not only fulfill the meaning of its name of Jerusalem (the city of peace) but also Jehovah Shammah (Jehovah is there)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 815). “So shall ye know that I am Jehovah your God, dwelling in Zion my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more” (Joel 3:17). “In that day, saith Jehovah, will I assemble that which is lame, and I will gather that which is driven away, and that which I have afflicted; and I will make that which was lame a remnant, and that which was cast far off a strong nation: and Jehovah will reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth even for ever. And thou, O tower of the flock, the hill of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, yea, the former dominion shall come, the kingdom of the daughter of Jerusalem” (Mic. 4:6-8). “And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them” (Amos 9:14). “Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. Jehovah hath taken away thy judgments, he hath cast out thine enemy: the King of Israel, even Jehovah, is in the midst of thee; thou shalt not fear evil any more. In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, Fear thou not; O Zion, let not thy hands be slack. Jehovah thy God is in the midst of thee, a mighty one who will save; he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love; he will joy over thee with singing” (Zeph. 3:14-17). “So the angel that talked with me said unto me, Cry thou, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: I am jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion with a great jealousy. And I am very sore displeased with the nations that are at ease; for I was but a little displeased, and they helped forward the affliction. Therefore thus saith Jehovah: I am returned to Jerusalem with mercies; my house shall be built in it, saith Jehovah of hosts, and a line shall be stretched forth over Jerusalem. Cry yet again, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: My cities shall yet overflow with prosperity; and Jehovah shall yet comfort Zion, and shall yet choose Jerusalem” (Zech. 1:14-17). “And I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, a man with a measuring line in his hand. Then said I, Whither goest thou? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what is the breadth thereof, and what is the length thereof. And, behold, the angel that talked with me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him, and said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as villages without walls, by reason of the multitude of men and cattle therein. For I, saith Jehovah, will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and I will be the glory in the midst of her” (Zech. 2:1-5). “The Shechinah Glory in a form of fire will surround the city ([Zech. 2] v. 5)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 817). “Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith Jehovah. And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee. And Jehovah shall inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and shall yet choose Jerusalem” (Zech. 2:10-12). “God, in the person of the Messiah, will indeed dwell in Jerusalem ([Zech. 2] v. 10). For this reason, Jerusalem will be the center of worldwide Gentile attention (v. 11)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 817). “And the word of Jehovah of hosts came to me, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: I am jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I am jealous for her with great wrath. Thus saith Jehovah: I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called The city of truth; and the mountain of Jehovah of hosts, The holy mountain. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, every man with his staff in his hand for very age. And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: If it be marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days, should it also be marvellous in mine eyes? saith Jehovah of hosts. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Behold, I will save my people from the east country, and from the west country; and I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God, in truth and in righteousness” (Zech.

8:1-8). “The very young will be those who will be born in the kingdom, while the very old will indeed be very old, for many will be several hundred years of age in the closing centuries of the Millennium” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 818). “Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: It shall yet come to pass, that there shall come peoples, and the inhabitants of many cities; and the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to entreat the favor of Jehovah, and to seek Jehovah of hosts: I will go also. Yea, many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek Jehovah of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the favor of Jehovah” (Zech. 8:20-22). “And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one. All the land shall be made like the Arabah, from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem; and she shall be lifted up, and shall dwell in her place, from Benjamin’s gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananel unto the king’s wine-presses. And men shall dwell therein, and there shall be no more curse; but Jerusalem shall dwell safely” (Zech. 14:9-11). “In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, HOLY UNTO JEHOVAH; and the pots in Jehovah’s house shall be like the bowls before the altar. Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holy unto Jehovah of hosts; and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and boil therein: and in that day there shall be no more a Canaanite in the house of Jehovah of hosts” (Zech. 14:20-21). “In Holy Scripture there are two Jerusalems: the one is on earth in the land of Palestine; the other is ‘above,’ in heaven (Gal. 4:25-26; Heb. 12:22). Now the Old Testament prophets speak of a city which, in the coming Kingdom, shall be reclaimed from Gentile power, rebuilt, restored to the historic nation of Israel, and made the religious center of the world. This Jerusalem cannot be the ‘heavenly Jerusalem,’ for that city is impeccably holy, the eternal dwelling of the true God, and has never been defiled or marred by human sin and rebellion. Any such notion is to the highest degree impossible and absurd. All predictions of a restored and rebuilt Jerusalem must therefore refer to the historical city of David on earth” (McClain, GK, p. 244). “Isaiah is the primary Major Prophet describing the Millennial Jerusalem” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 475) “Of all the Minor Prophets, Zechariah had the most to say concerning the Millennial Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 477). “The golden age of Jerusalem is yet to come” (ibid., p. 480).

The mountain of Jehovah’s house will be raised up. “And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem. And he will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more” (Isa. 2:2-4). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great trumpet shall be blown; and they shall come that were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and they that were outcasts in the land of Egypt; and they shall worship Jehovah in the holy mountain at Jerusalem” (Isa. 27:13). “Also the foreigners that join themselves to Jehovah, to minister unto him, and to love the name of Jehovah, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from profaning it, and holdeth fast my covenant; even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples. The Lord Jehovah, who gathereth the outcasts of Israel, saith, Yet will I gather others to him, besides his own that are gathered” (Isa. 56:6-8). “And they shall bring all your brethren out of all the nations for an oblation unto Jehovah, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith Jehovah, as the children of Israel bring their oblation in a clean vessel into the house of Jehovah” (Isa. 66:20). “Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: I will also take of the lofty top of the cedar, and will set it; I will crop off from the topmost of its young twigs a tender one, and I will plant it upon a high and lofty mountain: in the mountain of the height of Israel will I plant it; and it shall bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar: and under it shall dwell all birds of every wing; in the shade of the branches thereof shall they dwell. And all the trees of the field shall know that I, Jehovah, have brought down the high tree, have exalted the low tree, have dried up the green tree, and have made the dry tree to flourish; I, Jehovah, have spoken and have done it” (Ezek. 17:22-24). “For in my holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them, serve me in the land: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things. As a sweet savor will I accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations” (Ezek. 20:40-41). “In the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, in the selfsame day, the hand of Jehovah was upon me, and he brought me thither. In the visions of God brought he me into the land of Israel, and set me down upon a very high mountain, whereon was as it were the frame of a city on the south. And he brought me thither; and, behold, there was a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of brass, with a line of flax in his hand, and a measuring reed; and he stood in the gate. And the man said unto me, Son of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thy heart upon all that I shall show thee; for, to the intent that I may show them unto thee, art thou brought hither: declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel” (Ezek. 40:1-4). “Moreover, when ye shall divide by lot the land for inheritance, ye shall offer an oblation unto Jehovah, a holy portion of the land; the length shall be the length of five and twenty thousand reeds, and the breadth shall be ten thousand: it shall be holy in all the border thereof round about. Of this there shall be for the holy place five hundred in length by five hundred in breadth, square round about; and fifty cubits for the suburbs thereof round about. And of this measure shalt thou measure a length of five and twenty thousand, and a breadth of ten thousand: and in it shall be the sanctuary, which is most holy... In the land it shall be to him for a possession in Israel: and my princes shall no more oppress my people; but they shall give the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes” (Ezek. 45:1-8). “And by the border of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be the oblation which ye shall offer, five and twenty thousand reeds in breadth, and in length as one of the portions, from the east side unto the west side: and the sanctuary shall be in the midst of it. The oblation that ye shall offer unto Jehovah shall be five and twenty thousand reeds in length, and ten thousand in breadth. And for these, even for the priests, shall be the holy oblation: toward the north five and twenty thousand in length, and toward the west ten thousand in breadth, and toward the east ten thousand in breadth, and toward the south five and twenty thousand in length: and the sanctuary of Jehovah shall be in the midst thereof. It shall be for the priests that are sanctified of the sons of Zadok, that have kept my charge, that went not astray when the children of Israel went astray, as the Levites went astray... Moreover from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city, being in the midst of that which is the prince’s, between the border of Judah and the border of Benjamin, it shall be for the prince” (Ezek. 48:8-22). “Ezekiel

48:8-22 describes the holy oblation discussed earlier. But now Ezekiel notes the exact location of this mountain of Jehovah's house. The mountain of the holy oblation will be situated south of Judah's border and north of Benjamin's border and will serve as the dividing line between the northern seven tribes and the southern five tribes" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 814). "But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it. And many nations shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem" (Mic. 4:1-2) "Charles L. Feinberg [in God Remembers, pp. 257-58] summarizes these topographical changes as follows:... '...the description must be taken literally (else why the abundance of detail?)" (Walvoord, MK, p. 321) "At the time of the second coming of Christ the land will undergo some tremendous geographical and topographical changes. One of the key changes in the Land of Israel will be the rise of a very high mountain which will become the highest mountain of the world. On top of this mountain the Millennial Temple and the Millennial Jerusalem will stand" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 809). "This very high mountain, the highest in the world, will itself have a fifty-mile square plateau on top... the Millennial Temple, which will be one mile square in size" (ibid.).

The millennial temple will be built. "And, behold, a wall on the outside of the house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed six cubits long, of a cubit and a handbreadth each: so he measured the thickness of the building, one reed; and the height, one reed. Then came he unto the gate which looketh toward the east, and went up the steps thereof: and he measured the threshold of the gate, one reed broad; and the other threshold, one reed broad... Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits; and the posts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of the gate was toward the house... And he measured the breadth of the opening of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of the gate, thirteen cubits; and a border before the lodges, one cubit on this side, and a border, one cubit on that side; and the lodges, six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side... Then brought he me into the outer court; and, lo, there were chambers and a pavement, made for the court round about: thirty chambers were upon the pavement... And he led me toward the south; and, behold, a gate toward the south: and he measured the posts thereof and the arches thereof according to these measures. And there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about, like those windows: the length was fifty cubits, and the breadth five and twenty cubits... Then he brought me to the inner court by the south gate: and he measured the south gate according to these measures; and the lodges thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures: and there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about; it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad... And he brought me into the inner court toward the east... And he brought me to the north gate... And a chamber with the door thereof was by the posts at the gates; there they washed the burnt-offering. And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the burnt-offering and the sin-offering and the trespass-offering. And on the one side without, as one goeth up to the entry of the gate toward the north, were two tables; and on the other side, which belonged to the porch of the gate, were two tables. Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate; eight tables, whereupon they slew the sacrifices. And there were four tables for the burnt-offering, of hewn stone, a cubit and a half long, and a cubit and a half broad, and one cubit high; whereupon they laid the instruments wherewith they slew the burnt-offering and the sacrifice. And the hooks, a handbreadth long, were fastened within round about: and upon the tables was the flesh of the oblation. And without the inner gate were chambers for the singers in the inner court, which was at the side of the north gate; and their prospect was toward the south; one at the side of the east gate having the prospect toward the north. And he said unto me, This chamber, whose prospect is toward the south, is for the priests, the keepers of the charge of the house; and the chamber whose prospect is toward the north is for the priests, the keepers of the charge of the altar: these are the sons of Zadok, who from among the sons of Levi come near to Jehovah to minister unto him. And he measured the court, a hundred cubits long, and a hundred cubits broad, foursquare; and the altar was before the house. Then he brought me to the porch of the house, and measured each post of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side: and the breadth of the gate was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side... And he brought me to the temple, and measured the posts, six cubits broad on the one side, and six cubits broad on the other side, which was the breadth of the tabernacle. And the breadth of the entrance was ten cubits; and the sides of the entrance were five cubits on the one side, and five cubits on the other side: and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits. Then went he inward, and measured each post of the entrance, two cubits; and the entrance, six cubits; and the breadth of the entrance, seven cubits. And he measured the length thereof, twenty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits, before the temple: and he said unto me, This is the most holy place. Then he measured the wall of the house, six cubits; and the breadth of every side-chamber, four cubits, round about the house on every side. And the side-chambers were in three stories, one over another, and thirty in order; and they entered into the wall which belonged to the house for the side-chambers round about, that they might have hold therein, and not have hold in the wall of the house... And the building that was before the separate place at the side toward the west was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits. So he measured the house, a hundred cubits long; and the separate place, and the building, with the walls thereof, a hundred cubits long; also the breadth of the face of the house, and of the separate place toward the east, a hundred cubits. And he measured the length of the building before the separate place which was at the back thereof, and the galleries thereof on the one side and on the other side, a hundred cubits; and the inner temple, and the porches of the court; the thresholds, and the closed windows, and the galleries round about on their three stories, over against the threshold, ceiled with wood round about, and from the ground up to the windows now the windows were covered, to the space above the door, even unto the inner house, and without, and by all the wall round about within and without, by measure. And it was made with cherubim and palm-trees; and a palm-tree was between cherub and cherub, and every cherub had two faces; so that there was the face of a man toward the palm-tree on the one side, and the face of a young lion toward the palm-tree on the other side: thus was it made through all the house round about. From the ground unto above the door were cherubim and palm-trees made: thus was the wall of the temple. As for the temple, the door-posts were squared; and as for the face of the sanctuary, the appearance thereof was as the appearance of the temple. The altar was of wood, three cubits high, and the length thereof two cubits; and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood: and he said unto me, This is the table that is before Jehovah. And the temple and the sanctuary had two doors. And the doors had two leaves apiece, two turning leaves; two leaves for the one door, and two leaves for the other. And there were made on them, on the doors of the temple, cherubim and palm-trees, like as were made upon the walls; and there was a threshold of wood upon the face of the porch without... Then he brought me forth into the outer court, the way toward the north: and he brought me into the chamber that was over against the separate place, and which was over against the building toward the north... Then said he unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers, which are before the separate place, they are the holy chambers, where the priests that are near unto Jehovah shall eat the most holy things: there shall they lay the most holy things, and the meal-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; for the place is holy. When the priests enter in, then shall they not go out of the holy place into the outer court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister; for they are holy: and they shall put on other garments, and shall approach to that which pertaineth to the people... Afterward he brought me to the gate, even the gate that looketh toward the east: and, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east: and his voice was like the sound of many waters; and the earth shined with his glory. And it was according to the appearance of the vision which I saw, even according to the vision that I saw when I came to destroy the city; and the visions were like the vision that I saw by the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face. And the glory of Jehovah came into the house by the way of the gate whose prospect is toward the east. And the Spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, the glory of Jehovah filled the house. And I heard one speaking unto me out of the house; and a man stood by me. And he said unto me, Son of man, this is the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever; and the house of Israel shall no more defile my holy name, neither they, nor their kings, by their whoredom, and by the dead bodies of their kings in their high places; in their setting of their threshold by my threshold, and their door-post beside my door-post, and there was but the wall between me and them; and they have defiled my holy name by their abominations which they have committed: wherefore I have consumed them in mine anger. Now let them put away their whoredom, and the dead bodies of their kings, far from me; and I will dwell in the midst of them for ever. Thou, son of man, show the house to the house of Israel, that they may be ashamed of their iniquities; and let them measure the pattern. And if they be ashamed of all that they have done, make known unto them the form of the house, and the fashion thereof, and the egresses thereof, and the entrances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and all the forms thereof, and all the laws thereof; and write it in their sight; that they may keep the whole form thereof, and all the ordinances thereof, and do them. This is the law of the house: upon the top of the mountain the whole limit thereof round about shall be most holy. Behold, this is the law of the house. And these are the measures of the altar by cubits: the cubit is a cubit and a handbreadth: the bottom shall be a cubit, and the breadth a cubit, and the border thereof by the edge thereof round about a span; and this shall be the base of the altar... And he said unto me, Son of man, thus saith the Lord Jehovah: These are the ordinances of the altar in the day when they shall make it, to offer burnt-offerings thereon, and to sprinkle blood thereon. Thou shalt give to the priests the Levites that are of the seed of Zadok, who are near unto me, to minister unto me, saith the Lord Jehovah, a young bullock for a sin-offering. And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and put it on the four horns of it, and on the four corners of the ledge, and upon the border round about: thus shalt thou cleanse it and make atonement for it. Thou shalt also take the bullock of the sin-offering, and it shall be burnt in the appointed place of the house, without the sanctuary. And on the second day thou shalt offer a he-goat without blemish for a sin-offering; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they did cleanse it with the bullock. When thou hast made an end of cleansing it, thou shalt offer a young bullock without blemish, and a ram out of the flock without blemish. And thou shalt bring them near before Jehovah, and the priests shall cast salt upon them, and they shall offer them up for a burnt-offering unto Jehovah. Seven days shalt thou prepare every day a goat for a sin-offering: they shall also prepare a young bullock, and a ram out of the flock, without blemish. Seven days shall they make atonement for the altar and purify it; so shall they consecrate it. And when they have accomplished the days, it shall be that upon the eighth day, and forward, the priests shall make your burnt-offerings upon the altar, and your peace-offerings; and I will accept you, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 40:5-43:27). “Just as the Shechinah Glory authenticated and sanctioned the Solomonic Temple, it will also sanction this Temple by its return from the same direction that it left ([Ezek. 43] vv. 1-5)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 452). “Then he brought me back by the way of the outer gate of the sanctuary, which looketh toward the east; and it was shut. And Jehovah said unto me, This gate shall be shut; it shall not be opened, neither shall any man enter in by it; for Jehovah, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it; therefore it shall be shut. As for the prince, he shall sit therein as prince to eat bread before Jehovah; he shall enter by the way of the porch of the gate, and shall go out by the way of the same” (Ezek. 44:1-3). “In the beginning of the Millennium, the outer eastern gate will be shut, never to be reopened again throughout the Millennium (v. 1). The reason for the shutting of the outer eastern gate is due to the fact that the Shechinah Glory returned by way of the eastern gate (Ezek. 43:1-9), never to leave Israel again ([Ezek. 44] v 2)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 453). “It should be pointed out that this passage of Scripture has nothing to do with the present eastern gate of Jerusalem, known today as the Golden Gate. This passage, in its context, is not dealing with Jerusalem today, but is dealing with the Temple Gate in the Millennium. The gate of Jesus' day was destroyed in A.D. 70. The present Golden Gate was built in the seventh century and later modified by the Crusaders. It was partially destroyed by the Ottoman Turks and rebuilt in the early sixteenth century. It was walled up by the Turkish governor of Jerusalem in 1530" (ibid.). "In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up its ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old" (Amos 9:11) "As a result of the coming of the Lord, the tabernacle of David will be built again... 'as it used to be' (Amos 9:11)" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 145) "For thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations; and the precious things of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory, saith Jehovah of hosts. The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith Jehovah of hosts. The latter glory of this house shall be greater than the former, saith Jehovah of hosts; and in this place will I give peace, saith Jehovah of hosts" (Hag. 2:6-9). "and speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying, Behold, the man whose name is the Branch: and he shall grow up out of his place; and he shall build the temple of Jehovah; even he shall build the temple of Jehovah; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne; and the counsel of peace shall be between them both. And the crowns shall be to Helem, and to Tobijah, and to Jedaiah, and to Hen the son of Zephaniah, for a memorial in the temple of Jehovah. And they that are far off shall come and build in the temple of Jehovah; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me unto you. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently obey the voice of Jehovah your God" (Zech. 6:12-15). "...the restored earthly Jerusalem... has a temple worship and to which the nations come" (Peters, TTK, 2:422) "Admitting that in the earthly Jerusalem a temple will be rebuilt in order to manifest in a public manner the worship of God" (ibid., 3:90) "...the temple will be rebuilt with the sacrifices, as memorials, reinstated (Ezek. 40-48)" (Feinberg, M, p. 186). "...the superlatively glorious temple in the future Kingdom, a structure which will far exceed anything in the past... 'The latter glory of this house shall be greater than the former'... (Hag. 2:6-9, ASV)... the historic temples of Solomon and Zerubbabel" (McClain, GK, p. 248). "It will be the largest and most beautiful Temple Israel has had so far. It is impossible to make any sense of this passage if it is to be allegorized away. As much detail is given here as in the construction of the Tabernacle and the construction of the First Temple” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 810). “From all these various measurements, it is evident that this particular Temple will be larger than all previous Temples, measuring about one mile square. The area of the present Temple Compound is not large enough to hold the Temple described by Ezekiel and will require some major geographical changes. That is why the new Mountain of Jehovah’s House will be necessary” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 451). “Since God Himself in the Person of the Messiah will be dwelling in and reigning from Jerusalem, there will be no need for any Ark of the Covenant. Furthermore, the Ark of the Covenant contained the tablets of stone that were the embodiment of the Law of Moses. The fact that the Law of Moses is no longer in effect is another reason why the Ark of the Covenant will be missing” (ibid., p. 454). “Some say, these chapters of Ezekiel must not be taken literally. But if not, Ezekiel gives a lot of detail that would suddenly become meaningless... There are at least four reasons to take this whole section of Ezekiel literally... First: This is the normal hermeneutic used elsewhere in Scripture and all theologies use the literal approach in at least parts of the Bible. Only the Dispensationalist uses the literal approach consistently... Second: Ezekiel is not the only one to speak of the Millennial Temple and sacrifices... Daniel... Joel... Haggai... Jeremiah... Malachi... Zechariah... allegorize away... Third: The Millennial Temple is not the only temple that Ezekiel describes. In chapters 8-11, he describes the departure of the Shechinah Glory from Israel from the First Temple... the Fourth Temple... If what he said about the First Temple was literal, then what he says about the Fourth Temple should also be taken literally... Fourth: Ezekiel provides a tremendous amount of detail which includes specific measurements and types of sacrifices. All accept the details of the sacrifices of the Law of Moses to be very literal. All accept the detailed measurements of the Tabernacle and the First Temple to be very literal. There is no good reason not to accept the details of the Fourth Temple to be equally literal. If they are not and are all symbolic, then why does Ezekiel not explain the meanings of these symbols? Why have those who take these passages as allegorical and symbolic not been able to give explanations for what the symbols mean” (ibid., p. 455)?

A sacrificial system will be instituted. “even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples” (Isa. 56:7). “neither shall the priests the Levites want a man before me to of- fer burnt-offerings, and to burn meal-offerings, and to do sacrifice continually” (Jer. 33:18). “Then he brought me back by the way of the outer gate of the sanctuary, which looketh toward the east; and it was shut. And Jehovah said unto me, This gate shall be shut; it shall not be opened, neither shall any man enter in by it; for Jehovah, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it; therefore it shall be shut. As for the prince, he shall sit therein as prince to eat bread before Jehovah; he shall enter by the way of the porch of the gate, and shall go out by the way of the same. Then he brought me by the way of the north gate before the house; and I looked, and, behold, the glory of Jehovah filled the house of Jehovah: and I fell upon my face. And Jehovah said unto me, Son of man, mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that I say unto thee concerning all the ordinances of the house of Jehovah, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the entrance of the house, with every egress of the sanctuary... Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, No foreigner, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any foreigners that are among the children of Israel. But the Levites that went far from me, when Israel went astray, that went astray from me after their idols, they shall bear their iniquity. Yet they shall be ministers in my sanctuary, having oversight at the gates of the house, and ministering in the house: they shall slay the burnt-offering and the sacrifice for the people, and they shall stand before them to minister unto them... But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to minister unto me; and they shall stand before me to offer unto me the fat and the blood, saith the Lord Jehovah: they shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to my table, to minister unto me, and they shall keep my charge... They shall eat the meal-offering, and the sin-offering, and the trespass-offering; and every devoted thing in Israel shall be theirs. And the first of all the first-fruits of every thing, and every oblation of every-thing, of all your oblations, shall be for the priest: ye shall also give unto the priests the first of your dough, to cause a blessing to rest on thy house... a holy portion of the land; it shall be for the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, that come near to minister unto Jehovah; and it shall be a place for their houses, and a holy place for the sanctuary... The gate of the inner court that looketh toward the east shall be shut the six working days; but on the sabbath day it shall be opened, and on the day of the new moon it shall be opened. And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of the gate without, and shall stand by the post of the gate; and the priests shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings, and he shall worship at the threshold of the gate: then he shall go forth; but the gate shall not be shut until the evening. And the people of the land shall worship at the door of that gate before Jehovah on the sabbaths and on the new moons. And the burnt-offering that the prince shall offer unto Jehovah shall be on the sabbath day six lambs without blemish and a ram without blemish; and the meal-offering shall be an ephah for the ram, and the meal-offering for the lambs as he is able to give, and a hin of oil to an ephah... And when the prince shall prepare a freewill-offering, a burnt-offering or peace-offerings as a freewill-offering unto Jehovah, one shall open for him the gate that looketh toward the east; and he shall prepare his burnt-offering and his peace-offerings, as he doth on the sabbath day: then he shall go forth; and after his going forth one shall shut the gate... Thus shall they prepare the lamb, and the meal-offering, and the oil, morning by morning, for a continual burnt-offering... Then he brought me through the entry, which was at the side of the gate, into the holy chambers for the priests, which looked toward the north: and, behold, there was a place on the hinder part westward. And he said unto me, This is the place where the priests shall boil the trespass-offering and the sin-offering, and where they shall bake the meal-offering; that they bring them not forth into the outer court, to sanctify the people. Then he brought me forth into the outer court, and caused me to pass by the four corners of the court; and, behold, in every corner of the court there was a court. In the four corners of the court there were courts inclosed, forty cubits long and thirty broad: these four in the corners were of one measure. And there was a wall round about in them, round about the four, and boiling-places were made under the walls round about. Then said he unto me, These are the boiling-houses, where the ministers of the house shall boil the sacrifice of the people” (Ezek. 44:1-46:24). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, neither shall it be upon them; there shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, HOLY UNTO JEHOVAH; and the pots in Jehovah’s house shall be like the bowls before the altar. Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holy unto Jehovah of hosts; and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and boil therein: and in that day there shall be no more a Canaanite in the house of Jehovah of hosts” (Zech. 14:16-21). “and he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi, and refine them as gold and silver; and they shall offer unto Jehovah offerings in righteousness” (Mal. 3:3). “How consistent to view Old Testament sacrifices as promissory notes (Rom. 3:25) of the coming all-sufficient redemption, and millennial sacrifices as receipts” (Feinberg, M, p. 190). “Those sacrifices will serve as a memorial, looking back to Calvary as does the Lord’s Supper now” (ibid., p. 319). “The sacrifices in Leviticus were not expiatory, but anticipatory” (ibid., p. 328). “The church has had for over 1900 years a memorial of that sacrifice of Christ in the Lord’s Supper; Israel as such has had none. It will be that memorial for them primarily” (ibid., p. 329). “The absence of that which was most vital to the Levitical system shows that the millennial age will not see the re-establishment of Judaism” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 522). “In the Lord’s Supper we commemorate Christ’s death; we altogether repudiate the Popish doctrine of a repetition of the offering of Christ; we do not believe in any such renewal of the sacrifice, but we gratefully obey the command of Christ to commemorate His death in such a way that both an external memorial is presented to the world, and an outward and visible sign and seal given to the believing partaker. May not a similar plan succeed the Lord’s Supper, which we know shall cease at Christ’s coming? It is also possible that both the glorified saints in heaven and the nations on the earth will contemplate during the millennium the full and minute harmony between type and reality. Even the Church has as yet only a superficial knowledge of the treasures of wisdom in the Levitical institutions and its symbols.” [quoting Arno C. Gaebelin, The Prophet Ezekiel, pp. 312-13] (ibid., p. 526). “...the Passover will be observed throughout the Millennial Age as a memorial of the death of Christ (Ezek. 45:21)... blood sacrifices will be offered in the millennial temple as memorials of the death of Christ (43:19-27)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 317). “No animal sacrifice in the Bible has ever had any expiatory efficacy” (McClain, GK, p. 250). “If it has been fitting for the church in the present age to have a memorial of the death of Christ in the Lord’s Supper, it is suggested that it would be suitable also to have a memorial of possibly a different character in the millennium in keeping with the Jewish characteristics of the period” (Walvoord, MK, p. 312). “The entire sacrificial system of the Old Testament, while perhaps incongruous with western civilization aesthetics, was nevertheless commanded by God Himself as a proper typical presentation of the coming work of Christ. If such sacrifices were fitting in the mind of God to be the shadows of the cross of Christ, what more fitting memorial could be chosen if a memorial is desired for that same sacrifice. Obviously, a memorial is not intended to equal or to be a substitute of the real sacrifice, but as a ritual it is to point to the reality which is Christ” (ibid., p. 314). “Dispensationalists do not believe that in the Millennium there will be a reinstatement of ‘the Old Testament sacrificial system,’ since the very nature of Dispensationalism forbids it. It is the Dispensationalist who believes that the Law of Moses has forever been rendered inoperative and will not be reinstated in the Millennium. What Dispensationalists do believe is that in the Messianic Kingdom, the sacrificial system described in such detail by Ezekiel the Prophet will be instituted. While this system has many similarities with the Mosaic, it also has many dissimilarities, showing it is not the same system” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 310). “The Church has been commanded to keep the Lord’s Supper as a physical and visual picture of what Christ did on the cross. God intends to provide for Israel in the kingdom a physical and visual picture of what the Messiah accomplished on the cross. For Israel, however, it will be a sacrificial system instead of communion with bread and wine. The purpose of the sacrificial system in the kingdom will be the same as the purpose of communion of the Church: in remembrance of me” (ibid., p. 811). “Whitcomb [in John C. Whitcomb, ‘Christ’s Atonement and Animal Sacrifices in Israel,’ Grace Theological Journal 6:2 (1985): 201-217] affirms that ‘future sacrifices will have nothing to do with eternal salvation which only comes through true faith in God.’ However, these future animal sacrifices will also be efficacious, but ‘only in terms of the strict provision for ceremonial (and thus temporal) forgiveness within the theocracy of Israel.’ Whitcomb’s conclusion on this point is: ‘Thus, animal sacrifices during the coming Kingdom age will not be primarily memorial...’ The millennial sacrificial system is a distinct system arising out of the New Covenant, not the Mosaic Covenant” (ibid., p. 812). “While there are many similarities with the sacrifices of the Mosaic Law, as there are between the sacrifices of Noah and Moses, the differences show they are not the same. It was these very differences that kept the rabbis from accepting Ezekiel into the Hebrew Canon for some time” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 456). “Under the Mosaic Law, only the high priest could enter the Holy of Holies, but in Ezekiel 44:15-16, all priests will be able to enter” (ibid., p. 457). “But the priests the Levites, the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of my sanctuary when the children of Israel went astray from me, they shall come near to me to minister unto me; and they shall stand before me to offer unto me the fat and the blood, saith the Lord Jehovah: they shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall come near to my table, to minister unto me, and they shall keep my charge” (Ezek. 44:15–

16). “Since when is taking the Bible literally and believing it literally a heresy? The burden of proof is always on the one who claims that a certain part of the Bible does not mean what it says. Just because there are no blood sacrifices for the Church does not mean there cannot be such sacrifices for Israel. Just because there is no physical temple, priesthood, and sacrifice for the Church does not mean the same will be true for Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 458). “The Kingdom sacrifices will also be multi-purposed and there are at least four purposes for the sacrificial system that can be suggested. First: A memorial of the death of the Messiah... The Church has been asked to do something very physical, to partake of the bread and the cup, to remember the body and the blood of the Messiah. This ceremony is to be terminated with the Second Coming (1 Corinthians 11:26). What will be used to remember the Lord’s death by Israel in the Messianic Kingdom? The blood sacrifices of the Kingdom will also be a physical ceremony to serve for Israel what communion serves for the Church: to remember the body and blood of the Messiah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 459). “For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord’s death until He comes” (1 Cor. 11:26). Second: The means of restoring fellowship for the millennial saint... The blood sacrifices were the means of restoring fellowship of the Mosaic saint who sinned. In this age, fellowship for the believer is restored by confession (1 John 1:9). The millennial sacrifices will not take away sin either, but they will be the means of restoring fellowship for the millennial saint who sins. Third: Ritual cleansing for ritual uncleanness. Since the Shechinah Glory will be within the Holy of Holies of the Millennial Temple, it would be impossible to approach the Temple compound in a state of ritual impurity and therefore the sacrifices will be for the cleansing of ceremonial uncleanness. Ice [in Thomas Ice, ‘Literal Sacrifices in the Millennium,’ Pre-Trib Perspectives, June 2000, pp. 4-5] expresses it this way: ‘Since all the sacrifices of Ezekiel relate to purification of the priests for Temple service, they do not specifically depict or represent Christ’s atoning sacrifice.’... Jerry Hullinger [in Jerry Hullinger, ‘The Problem of Animal Sacrifices in Ezekiel 40-48,’ Bibliotheca Sacra, July-September 1995, pp. 281, 289] also reaches the same conclusion: ‘...Because of God’s promise to dwell on earth during the Millennium (as stated in the New Covenant), it is necessary that He protect His presence through sacrifice... It should further be added that this sacrificial system will be a temporary one in that the Millennium (with its partial population of unglorified humanity) will last only one thousand years. During the eternal state all inhabitants of the New Jerusalem will be glorified and will therefore not be a source of contagious impurities to defile the holiness of Yahweh.’ Fourth: The privilege of life and physical blessing in a theocratic kingdom. Dr. John C. Whitcomb [in ‘Christ’s Atonement and Animal Sacrifices in Israel,’ Grace Theological Journal, Fall 1985, pp. 201-21]... ‘...Millennial sacrifices will not simply memorialize Christ’s redemption but will primarily function in restoring theocratic harmony.’ ...Whitcomb shows what the animal sacrifices did with regard to forgiveness and atonement. The real issue is not whether forgiveness and atonement took place, but rather the precise nature of this forgiveness and atonement. Whitcomb states that whatever happened was temporal, finite, external, and legal—not eternal, infinite, internal, and soteriological... What the animal sacrifices of the Law of Moses did achieve was national/theocratic forgiveness for national/theocratic transgressions. They provided for external cleansing and outward efficacy. Under the Mosaic Law, the choice was not either faith or sacrifices; rather, it was to be both faith and sacrifices. The former resulted in spiritual salvation and the latter was for the cleanness of the flesh in accordance with Hebrews 9:13... Whitcomb’s conclusion on this point is [ibid., pp. 210, 211]: ‘Thus, animal sacrifices during the coming Kingdom age will not be primarily memorial (like the Eucharist in church communion services), any more than sacrifices in the age of the of the Old Covenant were primarily prospective or prophetic in the understanding of the offerer... The distinction between ceremonial and spiritual atonement is by no means a minor one, for it is at the heart of the basic difference between the theocracy of Israel and the Church, the Body and Bride of Christ. It also provides a more consistent hermeneutical approach for dispensational Premillennialism’” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 460). “...such sacrifices will not be totally voluntary and purely memorial as is true of the Christian Eucharist... just as in Old Testament times, the privilege of life and physical blessing in the theocratic kingdom will be contingent upon outward conformity to the ceremonial law... their symbolic and pedagogic value, unlike the communion service, will be upheld by a legalistic system of enforced participation. For example, those who decide to neglect the annual Feast of Tabernacles will be punished by a draught or a plague... If the true significance of the five offerings be understood, it is not difficult to see how they could serve as effective vehicles of divine instruction and discipline for Israel and the nations during the Kingdom age” [quoting John C. Whitcomb, ‘The Millennial Temple of Ezekiel 40-48,’ The Diligent Workman Journal, May 1994, p. 22] (ibid., p. 463). “Even Jewish Christians in the New Testament church practiced temple worship (Acts 2:46; 3:1; 5:42), including animal sacrifices (21:26)” (Geisler, ST, 4:590). “And day by day continuing with one mind in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, they were taking their meals together with gladness and sincerity of heart” (Acts 2:46) “Now Peter and John were going up to the temple at the ninth hour, the hour of prayer” (Acts 3:1). “And every day, in the temple and from house to house, they kept right on teaching and preaching Jesus as the Christ” (Acts 5:42). “Then Paul took the men, and the next day, purifying himself along with them, went into the temple, giving notice of the completion of the days of purification, until the sacrifice was offered for each one of them” (Acts 21:26). “Ezekiel’s prediction ([in Ezekiel chapters] 40-48) will be fulfilled in the Millennium; later, in the new heaven and new earth, there will be no temple or sacrifices” (Geisler, ST, 4:590). “The Ezekiel sacrifices mentioned have no atonement significance; they are memorial in nature. Like the Lord’s Supper, they look back in remembrance at the accomplished work of Christ on the Cross” (ibid.). “Celebration of the Eucharist will end at the Second Coming (1 Cor. 11:26). After this, Israel will be restored (Rom. 11:25-27), along with her sabbaths and sacrifices, which will be with her during the Millennium” (ibid.). “For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord’s death until He comes” (1 Cor. 11:26). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in; and thus all Israel will be saved; just as it is written, ‘The Deliverer will come from Zion, He will remove ungodliness from Jacob.’ ‘And this is My covenant with them, When I take away their sins’” (Rom. 11:25-27). “Hebrews (8-10) speaks of abolishing animal sacrifices in an atonement sense, not as regards memorial observance. Otherwise, the use of bread and wine to symbolize Christ’s body and blood would not be legitimate either” (Geisler, ST, p. 591) “Certainly the Hebrews’ epistle says, “Where forgiveness of sins is there is no more offering for sin” (10:18). But this in no way proves that there can be no more symbolic actions in Divine service after the redeeming work of Christ” [quoting Erich Sauer, From Eternity to Eternity, p. 183]” (ibid.). “Both baptism and the Lord’s Supper go beyond the merely symbolic and are associated with the reception of divine blessing (1 Cor. 10:16-21)” (ibid.). “Is not the cup of blessing which we bless a sharing in the blood of Christ? Is not the bread which we break a sharing in the body of Christ? Since there is one bread, we who are many are one body; for we all partake of the one bread. Look at the nation Israel; are not those who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar? What do I mean then? That a thing sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? No, but I say that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons, and not to God; and I do not want you to become sharers in demons. You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons; you cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons” (1 Cor. 10:16-21).

A millennial river will flow from the temple. “And he brought me back unto the door of the house; and, behold, waters issued out from under the threshold of the house eastward; for the forefront of the house was toward the east; and the waters came down from under, from the right side of the house, on the south of the altar. Then he brought me out by the way of the gate northward, and led me round by the way without unto the outer gate, by the way of the gate that looketh toward the east; and, behold, there ran out waters on the right side” (Ezek. 47:1-2). “Then said he unto me, These waters issue forth toward the eastern region, and shall go down into the Arabah; and they shall go toward the sea; into the sea shall the waters go which were made to issue forth; and the waters shall be healed. And it shall come to pass, that every living creature which swarmeth, in every place whither the rivers come, shall live; and there shall be a very great multitude of fish; for these waters are come thither, and the waters of the sea shall be healed, and everything shall live whithersoever the river cometh. And it shall come to pass, that fishers shall stand by it: from En-ge-di even unto En-eglaim shall be a place for the spreading of nets; their fish shall be after their kinds, as the fish of the great sea, exceeding many” (Ezek. 47:8-10). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down sweet wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the brooks of Judah shall flow with waters; and a fountain shall come forth from the house of Jehovah, and shall water the valley of Shittim” (Joel 3:18). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the eastern sea, and half of them toward the western sea: in summer and in winter shall it be” (Zech. 14:8).

Jewish feasts will be observed. “In the first month, in the fourteenth day of the month, ye shall have the passover, a feast of seven days; unleavened bread shall be eaten. And upon that day shall the prince prepare for himself and for all the people of the land a bullock for a sin-offering. And the seven days of the feast he shall prepare a burnt-offering to Jehovah, seven bullocks and seven rams without blemish daily the seven days; and a he-goat daily for a sin-offering. And he shall prepare a meal-offering, an ephah for a bullock, and an ephah for a ram, and a hin of oil to an ephah” (Ezek. 45:21-24). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, neither shall it be upon them; there shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles” (Zech. 14:16–19). “Two Feasts are to be observed, ‘The Passover,’ but no Passover Lamb will be offered as Jesus fulfilled that Type (Ezek. 45:21-24), and the ‘Feast of Tabernacles,’ Zech. 14:16-19. This feast is to be observed by all the nations under penalty of ‘Drought’ or ‘Plague’” (Larkin, DT, p. 94). “The ‘Feast of Pentecost’ will be done away with on account of its fulfillment” (ibid.). “In obedience to God's command ([Lev. 23] v. 2), Moses announced to the Israelites the appointed feasts of the Lord. The annual cycle of the appointed feasts of the Lord is regarded by many as typical of God's future program for Israel as a nation. The interrelated spring and early summer festivals are thought to typify the events of Christ's First Advent: (a) the death of Christ on the cross as the Passover Lamb (1 Cor. 5: 7), (b) the believer's holy walk and complete break from the old life, pictured by the absence of leaven (1 Cor. 5:7-8) (others think the unleavened bread pictures the sinless humanity of Christ), (c) the resurrection of Christ as prefigured by the firstfruits of the barley harvest (1 Cor. 15: 20-23), and (d) the advent of the Holy Spirit as a fulfillment of the Feast of Pentecost (Acts 2; cf. Joel 2: 28). The break in the festival calendar before the fall festivals suggests the present interadvent period during which Israel's messianic King is in heaven. The fall festivals prefigure events associated with His Second Advent: (a) Israel's future re-gathering at the end of the Tribulation period (Feast of Trumpets; Matt. 24:29-31), (b) Israel's national conversion at the Second Advent based on the death of Christ at the First Advent (Day of Atonement; Heb. 9:23-28; Zech. 12:10-13:1; Rom. 11:26-27), and (c) Israel's blessing by God on the millennial earth (Feast of Tabernacles, Zech. 14:9-20)” (Walvoord, BKC, Lev. 23:44). (See also our discussion of the fact that the Gentile nations will worship the King and observe the Feast of Tabernacles in our section Gentile Nations below.)

Israel's borders will be enlarged. “Thou hast increased the nation, O Jehovah, thou hast increased the nation; thou art glorified; thou hast enlarged all the borders of the land” (Isa. 26:15). (See our discussion of the borders of the promised land in the section The Abrahamic Covenant of our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise.)

The Jews will be in the land forever. “Thy people also shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified” (Isa. 60:21). “And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, they, and their children, and their children’s children, for ever: and David my servant shall be their prince for ever” (Ezek. 37:25). “And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them. And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be plucked up out of their land which I have given them, saith Jehovah thy God” (Amos 9:14-15). “...Ezek. 37:25, when at the time the nation is restored in its undivided form and ‘my servant David shall be their prince forever,’ then the nation shall dwell in the land ‘wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children and their children’s children forever.’ (Comp. Jer. 32:39, 40; Jer. 33:7-14; Joel 3:27-30, etc.) The unity on this point running through Scripture is surprising, and the repeated declarations on the subject seem to be given as if to meet the lack of faith in such predictions” (Peters, TTK, 2:550).

Israel’s covenants will be fulfilled. “who are Israelites, to whom belongs the adoption as sons and the glory and the covenants and the giving of the Law and the temple service and the promises” (Rom. 9:4) “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in; and thus all Israel will be saved; just as it is written, ‘THE DELIVERER WILL COME FROM ZION, HE WILL REMOVE UNGODLINESS FROM JACOB.’ ‘AND THIS IS MY COVENANT WITH THEM, WHEN I TAKE AWAY THEIR SINS.’ From the standpoint of the gospel they are enemies for your sake, but from the standpoint of God’s choice they are beloved for the sake of the fathers; for the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable” (Rom. 11:25–29). “What I am saying is this: the Law, which came four hundred and thirty years later, does not invalidate a covenant previously ratified by God, so as to nullify the promise” (Gal. 3:17). “This age will see the complete fulfillment of all the covenants that God made with Israel... the kingdom on earth is viewed as the complete fulfillment of those covenants, and that the millennial age is instituted out of necessity in order to fulfill the covenants. A. The Abrahamic covenant. The promises in the Abrahamic covenant concerning the land and the seed are fulfilled in the millennial age... Israel's perpetuity, their possession of the land, and their inheritance of blessings are directly related to the fulfillment of this covenant. B. The Davidic covenant. The promises in the Davidic covenant concerning the king, the throne, and the royal house are fulfilled by Messiah in the millennial age... The fact that Israel has a kingdom, over which David's Son reigns as King, is based on this Davidic Covenant. C. The Palestinian covenant. The promises in the Palestinian covenant concerning the possession of the land are fulfilled by Israel in the millennial age... These references to the possession of the land promise fulfillment of the Palestinian covenant. D. The new covenant. The promises of the new covenant of a new heart, the forgiveness of sin, the filling of the Spirit are fulfilled in the converted nation in the millennial age... All the spiritual blessings Israel receives are fulfillment of this covenant. Simply put, since the above-mentioned covenants are all eternal and unconditional, and since they contain promises not fulfilled heretofore, they require a future fulfillment, and in the program of God they could only be fulfilled in the Millennium" [quoting Pentecost, Things to Come, pp. 476-477] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 557). (See our discussion of Israel's four unconditional covenants in our chapter Covenants of the Kingdom. See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Second Coming is to fulfill Israel's covenants and prophecies in the section Purposes of the Second Coming of our chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

Israel's life and culture in the Millennial Kingdom will be spiritual. Israel will be:

Regenerated. (See our discussion of Israel's regeneration in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Reconciled to God. "And I will sow her unto me in the earth; and I will have mercy upon her that had not obtained mercy; and I will say to them that were not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art my God" (Hos. 2:23). "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely; for mine anger is turned away from him. I will be as the dew unto Israel; he shall blossom as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive-tree, and his smell as Lebanon. They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the grain, and blossom as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon. Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have answered, and will regard him: I am like a green fir-tree; from me is thy fruit found” (Hos. 14:4-8). “So shall ye know that I am Jehovah your God, dwelling in Zion my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down sweet wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the brooks of Judah shall flow with waters; and a fountain shall come forth from the house of Jehovah, and shall water the valley of Shittim. Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence done to the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land. But Judah shall abide for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. And I will cleanse their blood, that I have not cleansed: for Jehovah dwelleth in Zion” (Joel 3:17-21). (See also our discussion of the restoration of Israel’s marriage relationship to Jehovah in the section The Church is Not Israel of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church).)

Restored. “Then I will restore your judges as at the first, And your counselors as at the beginning; After that you will be called the city of righteousness, A faithful city” (Isa. 1:26). “And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker-worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer-worm, my great army which I sent among you” (Joel 2:25). “In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up its ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old” (Amos 9:11) “...the restoration of the Jewish nation (so all the prophets)” (Peters, TTK, 2:486) “The Kingdom itself can never be realized, as promised, until Jerusalem and its nation experience the returned mercy of God and His Christ” (ibid., 3:424). “With all the inestimable spiritual blessings, the deliverance from sin and the results of sin, we have added as inseparably connected a remarkable temporal deliverance... For if, as many Christians declare, this Jesus is not to restore the Jewish nation and elevate it in honor and power; if He is not to re-establish the Davidic throne and Kingdom, exalting it in dominion and glory over the earth, then it necessarily and inevitably follows that Jesus is not the Messiah covenanted to David and predicted by the prophets... This Jesus will yet come as promised, and then the full parallel between Him and Moses (Acts 7:5-37; Deut. 18:15-18) will be brought out, a Deliverer of the nation and the instrument through whom a Theocracy is established” (ibid., p. 426). “The restoration of the Jews unmistakably proves the correctness of our position, because that restoration is indispensable to the re-establishment of the same Theocracy overthrown

(the nation being in covenanted relationship to it), and its extension over the world... The supremacy of the Jewish nation, so clearly taught, can only be explained in view of this future restored Theocracy" (ibid., p. 586) "All the prophetic descriptions of historic Israel's future restoration indicate that the restored relation to Jehovah's favor will be something permanent, never again to be interrupted" (McClain, GK, p. 151). (See also our discussion of the fact that eventual restoration of the Theocracy is promised in our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom and our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Second Coming is to restore the Theocratic Kingdom in the section Purposes of the Second Coming of our chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

United. "In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I gave for an inheritance unto your fathers" (Jer. 3:18). "And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the nations, whither they are gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land: and I will make them one nation in the land, upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all; neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions; but I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God" (Ezek. 37:21-23). "When the regathering of Israel comes ([Ezek. 37] v. 21), they will not be regathered into two nations, but only into one, for they will be under one king in one kingdom (v.22). At that time they will be thoroughly cleansed of their sins which were the root cause of the original division (v. 23)" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 807).

Forgiven. "Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tent that shall not be removed, the stakes whereof shall never be plucked up, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken. But there Jehovah will be with us in majesty, a place of broad rivers and streams, wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall gallant ship pass thereby. For Jehovah is our judge, Jehovah is our lawgiver, Jehovah is our king; he will save us. Thy tacklings are loosed; they could not strengthen the foot of their mast, they could not spread the sail: then was the prey of a great spoil divided; the lame took the prey. And the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity” (Isa. 33:20–24). “Israel’s sins will be totally forgiven ([Isaiah 33] vv. 23-24)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 472).

Healed. “Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. And the glowing sand shall become a pool, and the thirsty ground springs of water: in the habitation of jackals, where they lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes. And a highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for the redeemed: the wayfaring men, yea fools, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast go up thereon; they shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there: and the ransomed of Jehovah shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away” (Isa. 35:5-10). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the eastern sea, and half of them toward the western sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one. All the land shall be made like the Arabah, from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem; and she shall be lifted up, and shall dwell in her place, from Benjamin’s gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananel unto the king’s wine-presses. And men shall dwell therein, and there shall be no more curse; but Jerusalem shall dwell safely” (Zech. 14:8-11).

Exalted. “For Jehovah thy God will bless thee, as he promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt rule over many nations, but they shall not rule over thee” (Deut. 15:6). “And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of Jehovah thy God, to observe to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that Jehovah thy God will set thee on high above all the nations of the earth” (Deut. 28:1) “And Jehovah will make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if thou shalt hearken unto the commandments of Jehovah thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them” (Deut. 28:13) “The word that the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peo- ples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem” (Isa. 2:1-3). “For Jehovah will have compassion on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the sojourner shall join himself with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob. And the peoples shall take them, and bring them to their place; and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of Jehovah for servants and for handmaids: and they shall take them captive whose captives they were; and they shall rule over their oppressors” (Isa. 14:1-2). “Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Behold, I will lift up my hand to the nations, and set up my ensign to the peoples; and they shall bring thy sons in their bosom, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders. And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their faces to the earth, and lick the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah; and they that wait for me shall not be put to shame” (Isa. 49:22-23). “For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted” (Isa. 60:12). “And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and foreigners shall be your plowmen and your vine-dressers. But ye shall be named the priests of Jehovah; men shall call you the ministers of our God: ye shall eat the wealth of the nations, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves. Instead of your shame ye shall have double; and instead of dishonor they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess double; everlasting joy shall be unto them” (Isa. 61:5-7). “But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it” (Mic. 4:1). “There is abundant prophecy announcing the fact that in the coming kingdom age the Jew will be again and forevermore be divinely exalted above the Gentiles (Isa. 14:1-2, 60:12)” (Chafer, ST, 2:317). “...Israel. In the future Kingdom this historic people will at last realize fully that international supremacy implied in the Abrahamic covenant” (McClain, GK, p. 211). “Their political supremacy will be guaranteed by the edict of Jehovah: ‘For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted’ ([Isa. 60] vs. 12)” (ibid., p. 212). (See also our discussion of Israel’s political supremacy in the section Government above, our discussion of Jerusalem’s exaltation above and our discussion of the

Righteous. "Then justice shall dwell in the wilderness; and righteousness shall abide in the fruitful field. And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, quietness and confidence for ever. And my people shall abide in a peaceable habitation, and in safe dwellings, and in quiet resting-places. But it shall hail in the downfall of the forest; and the city shall be utterly laid low. Blessed are yet that sow beside all waters, that send forth the feet of the ox and the ass" (Isa. 32:16-20). "Thy people also shall be all righteous; they shall inherit the land for ever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands, that I may be glorified" (Isa. 60:21). "I will greatly rejoice in Jehovah, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with a garland, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels. For as the earth bringeth forth its bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord Jehovah will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations" (Isa. 61:10-11). "Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy" (Dan. 9:24). "The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid" (Zeph. 3:13). "Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Behold, I will save my people from the east country, and from the west country; and I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and they shall be my people, and I will be their God, in truth and in righteousness" (Zech. 8:7-8). "While there will be Gentile unbelievers in the kingdom, there will not be Jewish unbelievers in the kingdom" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 794).

Sinless [?—ed.]. "Therefore by this shall the iniquity of Jacob be forgiven, and this is all the fruit of taking away his sin: that he maketh all the stones of the altar as chalkstones that are beaten in sunder, so that the Asherim and the sun-images shall rise no more" (Isa. 27:9). "Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah. But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people: and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith Jehovah: for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more” (Jer. 31:31–34). “And I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep mine ordinances, and do them” (Ezek. 36:25–27). “neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions; but I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God” (Ezek. 37:23). “Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy” (Dan. 9:24). “AND THIS IS MY COVENANT WITH THEM, WHEN I TAKE AWAY THEIR SINS” (Rom. 11:27).

Holy. “Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. And the glowing sand shall become a pool, and the thirsty ground springs of water: in the habitation of jackals, where they lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes. And a highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for the redeemed: the wayfaring men, yea fools, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast go up thereon; they shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there: and the ransomed of Jehovah shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away” (Isa. 35:5–10). “Thus saith Jehovah: I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem: and Jerusalem shall be called The city of truth; and the mountain of Jehovah of hosts,

The holy mountain” (Zech. 8:3). “In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness” (Zech. 13:1). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the eastern sea, and half of them toward the western sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one. All the land shall be made like the Arabah, from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem; and she shall be lifted up, and shall dwell in her place, from Benjamin’s gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananel unto the king’s wine-presses. And men shall dwell therein, and there shall be no more curse; but Jerusalem shall dwell safely” (Zech. 14:8-11). “In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, HOLY UNTO JEHOVAH; and the pots in Jehovah’s house shall be like the bowls before the altar. Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holy unto Jehovah of hosts; and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and boil therein: and in that day there shall be no more a Canaanite in the house of Jehovah of hosts” (Zech. 14:20-21).

Spiritual. “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah. But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people: and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith Jehovah: for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more” (Jer. 31:31-34). “And I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh” (Ezek. 36:25-26). “And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit” (Joel 2:28-29). ““AND IT SHALL BE IN THE LAST DAYS,” God says, “THAT I WILL POUR FORTH OF MY SPIRIT UPON ALL MANKIND; AND YOUR SONS AND YOUR DAUGHTERS SHALL PROPHECY, AND YOUR YOUNG MEN SHALL SEE VISIONS, AND YOUR OLD MEN SHALL DREAM DREAMS”” (Acts 2:17) “authentic miracles... if continued on, perpetuated on in the Church without intermission, the Baptism of the Spirit would have failed in its significance as a sign, a pledge of the future fulfillment... This is a sign that the prophets will be fulfilled in this very particular; but had the sign been perpetuated (as many claim it ought to have been, and was), then it would have defeated itself in causing the mistake (which was made, and is now so tenaciously held by the multitude), that all that the prophets predicted related, to the present dispensation, and that we need not look for any better here on earth... Now the prophecies associate this peculiar outpouring of the Spirit with the Jewish nation—it is not isolated from it, but inseparably joined with its restoration, and the period of the restored Theocracy. While it was suitable to exhibit even the signs or pledges of future fulfillment when the temple, city, land, and people were prospered, the propriety ceased after the destruction of the temple and city, and the captivity of the land and the people. The consideration due to the prophets inspired by the Spirit itself (who locate the period), the respect due to Jerusalem, etc., which the Spirit itself expresses in the Word (owing to its relationship to David’s Son and God Himself), now prevents the repetition of those signs so long as Jerusalem is trodden down by the Gentiles. A perfect realization of this baptism as described by the prophets is an utter impossibility so long as the Jewish nation remains unrestored, because it is linked with the period of restoration; and to have continued the prelude to, or earnest of, better things, would have not only contradicted the prophets, but would have made a kind of imperfect fulfillment take the place of the true and perfect one. As it is, this dispensation, so exceedingly precious especially to us Gentiles, has been by many, exalted out of all proportion in comparison with others; and if this baptism had continued, then under its influence, an antagonism between prediction and fact would have at once existed, and this dispensation would have been greatly magnified to the exclusion of any such gifts being connected with the Jewish race—with the loss of them, Gentiles have become so ‘highminded’ that anything distinctively ‘Jewish’ is obnoxious—with the retention of them they really would possess an argument against our being ‘too Jewish,’ for then they could triumphantly point to the very prophecies pertaining to the Jews and claim that they too realized them without having arrived at the period designated. This baptism

then ceased from the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, both that it might be a sign during the prevalence of ‘the times of the Gentiles,’ and that the Spirit might preserve the integrity and consistency of His own glorious and truthful predictions” (Peters, TTK, 3:74). “born of water and of the Spirit,”... Christ’s appeal to Nicodemus that he ought to know these things, evidently because recorded in the Scriptures, indicates that reference is made to the prophecies which predict the sprinkling with ‘clean water,’ the obtaining of ‘a new spirit,’ the putting of God’s Spirit ‘within’ them, and the raising up of the dead out of their graves by the power of the Spirit, all of which is represented as essential to the introduction of the Kingdom, and its blessings, and as related to the glorious reign of David’s Son. The language of Christ is, therefore, far from being exhausted in the experience of believers in the present dispensation” (ibid., p. 80).

Joyful. “Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. And the glowing sand shall become a pool, and the thirsty ground springs of water: in the habitation of jackals, where they lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes. And a highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for the redeemed: the wayfaring men, yea fools, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast go up thereon; they shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there: and the ransomed of Jehovah shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away” (Isa. 35:5-10). “For Jehovah hath comforted Zion; he hath comforted all her waste places, and hath made her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of Jehovah; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of melody” (Isa. 51:3). “For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing; and all the trees of the fields shall clap their hands. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir-tree; and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle-tree: and it shall be to Jehovah for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off” (Isa. 55:12-13). “Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for Jehovah will be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended” (Isa. 60:20). “I will greatly rejoice in Jehovah, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with a garland, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels. For as the earth bringeth forth its bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord Jehovah will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations” (Isa. 61:10-11). “But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people; and there shall be heard in her no more the voice of weeping and the voice of crying” (Isa. 65:18-19). “Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad for her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn over her; that ye may suck and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations; that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory. For thus saith Jehovah, Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the nations like an overflowing stream: and ye shall suck thereof; ye shall be borne upon the side, and shall be dandled upon the knees. As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. And ye shall see it, and your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like the tender grass: and the hand of Jehovah shall be known toward his servants; and he will have indignation against his enemies” (Isa. 66:10-14). “And all nations shall call you happy; for ye shall be a delightful land, saith Jehovah of hosts” (Mal. 3:12).

And, peaceful. “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this” (Isa. 9:6-7). “Then justice shall dwell in the wilderness; and righteousness shall abide in the fruitful field. And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, quietness and confidence for ever. And my people shall abide in a peaceable habitation, and in safe dwellings, and in quiet resting-places” (Isa. 32:16-18). “Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, desolation nor destruction within thy borders; but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise” (Isa. 60:18). “Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad for her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn over her; that ye may suck and be satisfied with the breasts of her consolations; that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory. For thus saith Jehovah, Behold,

I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the nations like an overflowing stream: and ye shall suck thereof; ye shall be borne upon the side, and shall be dandled upon the knees. As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you; and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem. And ye shall see it, and your heart shall rejoice, and your bones shall flourish like the tender grass: and the hand of Jehovah shall be known toward his servants; and he will have indignation against his enemies” (Isa. 66:10-14). “And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David; he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd. And I, Jehovah, will be their God, and my servant David prince among them; I, Jehovah, have spoken it. And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause evil beasts to cease out of the land; and they shall dwell securely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods. And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing; and I will cause the shower to come down in its season; there shall be showers of blessing. And the tree of the field shall yield its fruit, and the earth shall yield its increase, and they shall be secure in their land; and they shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have broken the bars of their yoke, and have delivered them out of the hand of those that made bondmen of them. And they shall no more be a prey to the nations, neither shall the beasts of the earth devour them; but they shall dwell securely, and none shall make them afraid. And I will raise up unto them a plantation for renown, and they shall be no more consumed with famine in the land, neither bear the shame of the nations any more. And they shall know that I, Jehovah, their God am with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord Jehovah. And ye my sheep, the sheep of my pasture, are men, and I am your God, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 34:23-31). “And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the heavens, and with the creeping things of the ground: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the land, and will make them to lie down safely” (Hos. 2:18). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the eastern sea, and half of them toward the western sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one. All the land shall be made like the Arabah, from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem; and she shall be lifted up, and shall dwell in her place, from Benjamin’s gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananel unto the king’s wine-presses. And men shall dwell therein, and there shall be no more curse; but Jerusalem shall dwell safely" (Zech. 14:8-11).

Israel will be populous. "The little one shall become a thousand, and the small one a strong nation; I, Jehovah, will hasten it in its time" (Isa. 60:22). "And I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all the countries whither I have driven them, and will bring them again to their folds; and they shall be fruitful and multiply. And I will set up shepherds over them, who shall feed them; and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, neither shall any be lacking, saith Jehovah" (Jer. 23:3-4). "But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people Israel; for they are at hand to come. For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn into you, and ye shall be tilled and sown; and I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it; and the cities shall be inhabited, and the waste places shall be builded; and I will multiply upon you man and beast; and they shall increase and be fruitful; and I will cause you to be inhabited after your former estate, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel; and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou shalt no more henceforth bereave them of children. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Because they say unto you, Thou land art a devourer of men, and hast been a bereaver of thy nation; therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither bereave thy nation any more, saith the Lord Jehovah; neither will I let thee hear any more the shame of the nations, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the peoples any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nation to stumble any more, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 36:8-15). "Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: For this, moreover, will I be inquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them: I will increase them with men like a flock. As the flock for sacrifice, as the flock of Jerusalem in her appointed feasts, so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men; and they shall know that I am Jehovah" (Ezek. 36:37-38). "...36th chapter of Ezekiel... a great increase in population shall fill the devastated cities (vss. 37-38)" (McClain, GK, p. 220) "and said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as villages without walls, by reason of the multitude of men and cattle therein. For I, saith Jehovah, will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and I will be the glory in the midst of her" (Zech. 2:4-5). "Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, every man with his staff in his hand for very age. And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof” (Zech. 8:4-5). “...Israel will increase tremendously in population” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 408).

The land will be productive. “And he will give the rain for thy seed, wherewith thou shalt sow the ground; and bread of the increase of the ground, and it shall be fat and plenteous. In that day shall thy cattle feed in large pastures; the oxen likewise and the young asses that till the ground shall eat savory provender, which hath been winnowed with the shovel and with the fork. And there shall be upon every lofty mountain, and upon every high hill, brooks and streams of waters, in the day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall. Moreover the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day that Jehovah bindeth up the hurt of his people, and healeth the stroke of their wound” (Isa. 30:23-26). “The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing; the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon: they shall see the glory of Jehovah, the excellency of our God” (Isa. 35:1-2). “And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree shall be the days of my people, and my chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for calamity; for they are the seed of the blessed of Jehovah, and their offspring with them” (Isa. 65:21-23). “At that time, saith Jehovah, will I be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be my people. Thus saith Jehovah, The people that were left of the sword found favor in the wilderness; even Israel, when I went to cause him to rest. Jehovah appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with lovingkindness have I drawn thee. Again will I build thee, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel: again shalt thou be adorned with thy tabrets, and shalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry. Again shalt thou plant vineyards upon the mountains of Samaria; the planters shall plant, and shall enjoy the fruit thereof. For there shall be a day, that the watchmen upon the hills of Ephraim shall cry, Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto Jehovah our God. For thus saith Jehovah, Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout for the chief of the nations: publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Jehovah, save thy people, the remnant of Israel. Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the utter-most parts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together: a great company shall they return hither. They shall come with weeping; and with supplications will I lead them: I will cause them to walk by rivers of waters, in a straight way wherein they shall not stumble; for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born. Hear the word of Jehovah, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off; and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as shepherd doth his flock. For Jehovah hath ransomed Jacob, and redeemed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he. And they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow unto the goodness of Jehovah, to the grain, and to the new wine, and to the oil, and to the young of the flock and of the herd: and their soul shall be as a watered garden; and they shall not sorrow any more at all. Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, and the young men and the old together; for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow. And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 31:1-14). “Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the nations, then shall they dwell in their own land which I gave to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell securely therein; yea, they shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and shall dwell securely, when I have executed judgments upon all those that do them despite round about them; and they shall know that I am Jehovah their God” (Ezek. 28:25-26). “And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause evil beasts to cease out of the land; and they shall dwell securely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods. And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing; and I will cause the shower to come down in its season; there shall be showers of blessing. And the tree of the field shall yield its fruit, and the earth shall yield its increase, and they shall be secure in their land; and they shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have broken the bars of their yoke, and have delivered them out of the hand of those that made bondmen of them. And they shall no more be a prey to the nations, neither shall the beasts of the earth devour them; but they shall dwell securely, and none shall make them afraid. And I will raise up unto them a plantation for renown, and they shall be no more consumed with famine in the land, neither bear the shame of the nations any more. And they shall know that I, Jehovah, their God am with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord Jehovah. And ye my sheep, the sheep of my pasture, are men, and I am your God, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 34:25-31). “But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches, and yield your fruit to my people Israel; for they are at hand to come. For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn into you, and ye shall be tilled and sown; and I will multiply men upon you, all the house of Israel, even all of it; and the cities shall be inhabited, and the waste places shall be builded; and I will multiply upon you man and beast; and they shall increase and be fruitful; and I will cause you to be inhabited after your former estate, and will do better unto you than at your beginnings: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel; and they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance, and thou shalt no more henceforth bereave them of children. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Because they say unto you, Thou land art a devourer of men, and hast been a bereaver of thy nation; therefore thou shalt devour men no more, neither bereave thy nation any more, saith the Lord Jehovah; neither will I let thee hear any more the shame of the nations, neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the peoples any more, neither shalt thou cause thy nation to stumble any more, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 36:8-15). “And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God. And I will save you from all your uncleannesses: and I will call for the grain, and will multiply it, and lay no famine upon you. And I will multiply the fruit of the tree, and the increase of the field, that ye may receive no more the reproach of famine among the nations. Then shall ye remember your evil ways, and your doings that were not good; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for your iniquities and for your abominations. Nor for your sake do I this, saith the Lord Jehovah, be it known unto you: be ashamed and confounded for your ways, O house of Israel. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: In the day that I cleanse you from all your iniquities, I will cause the cities to be inhabited, and the waste places shall be builded. And the land that was desolate shall be tilled, whereas it was a desolation in the sight of all that passed by. And they shall say, This land that was desolate is become like the garden of Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are fortified and inhabited. Then the nations that are left round about you shall know that I, Jehovah, have builded the ruined places, and planted that which was desolate: I, Jehovah, have spoken it, and I will do it. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: For this, moreover, will I be inquired of by the house of Israel, to do it for them: I will increase them with men like a flock. As the flock for sacrifice, as the flock of Jerusalem in her appointed feasts, so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men; and they shall know that I am Jehovah” (Ezek. 36:28-38). “Ezekiel declared that Israel will again possess the land ([Ezek. 36] v. 28) as a result of her regeneration (v. 29). The reproach of Israel will be removed (v. 30) and Israel will detest her past sins (v. 31). It is not for Israel’s glory (v. 32) that the regeneration (v.33), possession (v. 34) and the rebuilding of the land (v. 35) will occur, but it is for God’s own glory among the nations (v. 36)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 802). “And it shall come to pass in that day, I will answer, saith Jehovah, I will answer the heavens, and they shall answer the earth; and the earth shall answer the grain, and the new wine, and the oil; and they shall answer Jezreel” (Hos. 2:21-22). “Then was Jehovah jealous for his land, and had pity on his people. And Jehovah answered and said unto his people, Behold, I will send you grain, and new wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith; and I will no more make you a reproach among the nations; but I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive it into a land barren and desolate, its forepart into the eastern sea, and its hinder part into the western sea; and its stench shall come up, and its ill savor shall come up, because it hath done great things. Fear not, O land, be glad and rejoice; for Jehovah hath done great things. Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field; for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth its fruit, the fig-tree and the vine do yield their strength. Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in Jehovah your God; for he giveth you the former rain in just measure, and he causeth to come down for you the rain, the former rain and the latter rain, in the first month. And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the vats shall overflow with new wine and oil. And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker-worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer-worm, my great army which I sent among you. And ye shall eat in plenty and be satisfied, and shall praise the name of Jehovah your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you; and my people shall never be put to shame. And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am Jehovah your God, and there is none else; and my people shall never be put to shame” (Joel 2:18-27). “The ‘early’ rain falls in October and November, and prepares the land for ploughing and sowing; the ‘latter’ rain falls in April and May and insures a good crop” (Larkin, DT, p. 95). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down sweet wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the brooks of Judah shall flow with waters; and a fountain shall come forth from the house of Jehovah, and shall water the valley of Shittim” (Joel 3:18). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that the plowman shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of grapes him that soweth seed; and the mountains shall drop sweet wine, and all the hills shall melt. And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them” (Amos 9:13-14). “For there shall be the seed of peace; the vine shall give its fruit, and the ground shall give its increase, and the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to inherit all these things” (Zech. 8:12). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem; half of them toward the eastern sea, and half of them toward the western sea: in summer and in winter shall it be. And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth: in that day shall Jehovah be one, and his name one. All the land shall be made like the Arabah, from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem; and she shall be lifted up, and shall dwell in her place, from Benjamin’s gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananel unto the king’s wine-presses. And men shall dwell therein, and there shall be no more curse; but Jerusalem shall dwell safely” (Zech. 14:8-11).

Israel will be prosperous. “Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of Jehovah is risen upon thee. For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the peoples; but Jehovah will arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And nations shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising. Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: they all gather themselves together, they come to thee; thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be carried in the arms. Then thou shalt see and be radiant, and thy heart shall thrill and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be turned unto thee, the wealth of the nations shall come unto thee. The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come; they shall bring gold and frankincense, and shall proclaim the praises of Jehovah. All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee; they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar; and I will glorify the house of my glory. Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows? Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, for the name of Jehovah thy

God, and for the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee. And foreigners shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favor have I had mercy on thee. Thy gates also shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the wealth of the nations, and their kings led captive. For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted. The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir-tree, the pine, and the box-tree together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious. And the sons of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee The city of Jehovah, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel. Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man passed through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations. Thou shalt also suck the milk of the nations, and shalt suck the breast of kings; and thou shalt know that I, Jehovah, am thy Saviour, and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob. For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass, and for stones iron. I will also make thy officers peace, and thine exactors righteousness" (Isa. 60:1-17). "to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them a garland for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of Jehovah, that he may be glorified. And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations. And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and foreigners shall be your plowmen and your vine-dressers. But ye shall be named the priests of Jehovah; men shall call you the ministers of our God: ye shall eat the wealth of the nations, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves. Instead of your shame ye shall have double; and instead of dishonor they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess double; everlasting joy shall be unto them. For I, Jehovah, love justice, I hate robbery with iniquity; and I will give them their recompense in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them. And their seed shall be known among the nations, and their offspring among the peoples; all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which Jehovah hath blessed" (Isa. 61:3-9). "For thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations; and the precious things of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory, saith Jehovah of hosts. The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, saith Jehovah of hosts. The latter glory of this house shall be greater than the former, saith Jehovah of hosts; and in this place will I give peace, saith Jehovah of hosts” (Hag. 2:6-9).

Israel will be glorious. “And Jehovah will create over the whole habitation of mount Zion, and over her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night; for over all the glory shall be spread a covering” (Isa. 4:5). “In Isa. 4:5 we find that there will be exhibited a visible manifestation of ‘the glory of the Lord’ over the houses and the religious assemblies of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, somewhat similar to that which accompanied the Israelites in their journey from Egypt” (Peters, TTK, 4:146). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the root of Jesse, that standeth for an ensign of the peoples, unto him shall the nations seek; and his resting-place shall be glorious” (Isa. 11:10). “Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation, a tent that shall not be removed, the stakes whereof shall never be plucked up, neither shall any of the cords thereof be broken. But there Jehovah will be with us in majesty, a place of broad rivers and streams, wherein shall go no galley with oars, neither shall gallant ship pass thereby” (Isa. 33:20–21). “and the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isa. 40:5). “Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of Jehovah is risen upon thee. For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the peoples; but Jehovah will arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And nations shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising” (Isa. 60:1–3). “According to Isaiah 60:1-3, the reason why Israel will become the center of Gentile attention is due to the fact that the Shechinah Glory will abide over Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 439). “Then thou shalt see and be radiant, and thy heart shall thrill and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be turned unto thee, the wealth of the nations shall come unto thee. The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come; they shall bring gold and frankincense, and shall proclaim the praises of Jehovah” (Isa. 60:5–6). “Over the entire Mount Zion will be the visible form of the Shechinah Glory ([Isa.] vv. 5-6)” (ibid., p. 471). “Afterward he brought me to the gate, even the gate that looketh toward the east: and, behold, the glory of the God of Israel came from the way of the east: and his voice was like the sound of many waters; and the earth shined with his glory. And it was according to the appearance of the vision which I saw, even according to the vision that I saw when I came to destroy the city; and the visions were like the vision that I saw by the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face. And the glory of Jehovah came into the house by the way of the gate whose prospect is toward the east. And the Spirit took me up, and brought me into the inner court; and, behold, the glory of Jehovah filled the house. And I heard one speaking unto me out of the house; and a man stood by me. And he said unto me, Son of man, this is the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever; and the house of Israel shall no more defile my holy name, neither they, nor their kings, by their whoredom, and by the dead bodies of their kings in their high places” (Ezek. 43:1–7) “and said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as villages without walls, by reason of the multitude of men and cattle therein. For I, saith Jehovah, will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and I will be the glory in the midst of her” (Zech. 2:4–5). “It does not require much reason to see, that when God’s Plan is carried out and openly manifested, it will exceed the highest eulogies that the Prophets have given, and most amply vindicate God’s Word. Let all the seed of Abraham be brought together at the appointed time, and language fails to express the might and grandeur of the nation. The world will be astonished at the sublime manifestation” (Peters, TTK, 1:416). “Jesus will again be a visible manifestation of the Shechinah Glory in the form of the God-Man without the veiling, while other manifestations will be in the forms of cloud, fire and smoke. All of this will be related to Israel, for it is with Israel that the Shechinah Glory will dwell in every one of its manifestations” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 618).

And, Israel will be God’s witnesses and ministers to the Gentiles. “Now Jehovah said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father’s house, unto the land that I will show thee. And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great. And be thou a blessing. And I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse. And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed” (Gen. 12:1–3). “The word that the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem” (Isa. 2:1-3). “to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them a garland for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of Jehovah, that he may be glorified. And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations. And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and foreigners shall be your plowmen and your vine-dressers. But ye shall be named the priests of Jehovah; men shall call you the ministers of our God: ye shall eat the wealth of the nations, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves. Instead of your shame ye shall have double; and instead of dishonor they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess double; everlasting joy shall be unto them. For I, Jehovah, love justice, I hate robbery with iniquity; and I will give them their recompense in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them. And their seed shall be known among the nations, and their offspring among the peoples; all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which Jehovah hath blessed” (Isa. 61:3-9). “Israel... they will be the ministers of the Word to the Gentiles ([Isaiah 61] v. 6a)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 807). “And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples as dew from Jehovah, as showers upon the grass, that tarry not for man, nor wait for the sons of men. And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the nations, in the midst of many peoples, as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep; who, if he go through, treadeth down and teareth in pieces, and there is none to deliver” (Mic. 5:7-8). “...the Remnant will spread the Word of God among the Gentile nations, according to Micah 5:7-8” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 792) “And it shall come to pass that, as ye were a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing. Fear not, but let your hands be strong” (Zech. 8:13). “Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: It shall yet come to pass, that there shall come peoples, and the inhabitants of many cities; and the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to entreat the favor of Jehovah, and to seek Jehovah of hosts: I will go also. Yea, many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek Jehovah of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the favor of Jehovah. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold, out of all the languages of the nations, they shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you” (Zech. 8:20-23). “In the past, when ten Gentiles grabbed the clothes of the Jew, it was for other reasons than to say, Let us go with you, for we have heard God is with you. At the time of the final restoration, the Jews will no longer be reproached. Instead, Jews will be treated with reverential respect, for they will be known as the ministers of God” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 441). “Israel ‘will become God’s witnesses during the millennium” [quoting Pentecost, Things to Come, pp. 504-508] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 558) “But this world supremacy of Israel, as set forth in the prophets, is never an end in itself. Its grand purpose is the welfare of all nations, as asserted in the original covenant, ‘In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed’ (Gen. 12:3). All the hard discipline of the centuries has had only one divine intention—the preparation of a nation to be the channel of divine blessing to a world unable to solve its own problems” (McClain, GK, p. 212). “In the establishment of the historical Theocracy at Sinai, the word of Jehovah came to Israel, saying, ‘Ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests’ (Exod. 19:6). And, although the nation failed through unbelief and disobedience, the purpose of God will not fail... the blessing of God promised through the seed of Abraham, although already realized in part even in the present age, will receive its ultimate fulfillment in the future Millennial Kingdom of God on earth... the tribe of Levi will again have a definite place (Jer. 33:17-22)” (ibid., p. 243). “For thus saith Jehovah: David shall never want a man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel; neither shall the priests the Levites want a man before me to offer burnt-offerings, and to burn meal-offerings, and to do sacrifice continually. And the word of Jehovah came unto Jeremiah, saying, Thus saith Jehovah: If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, so that there shall not be day and night in their season; then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant, that he shall not have a son to reign upon his throne; and with the Levites the priests, my ministers. As the host of heaven cannot be numbered, neither the sand of the sea measured; so will I multiply the seed of David my servant, and the Levites that minister unto me” (Jer. 33:17–22). “The nation of Israel remains the divinely ordained channel of blessing for the world” (McClain, GK, p. 293). “Israel will take a lead role in teaching God’s Word to the nations... (Isa. 2:2-3)” (Geisler, ST, 4:435) “A central sanctuary, established for all worship (Ezek. 37:27-28), will be filled with God’s shekinah (43:1-7). God’s original intention for Israel will be established as she becomes a spiritual beacon to the nations (Isa. 61:6)” (ibid., p. 562). “My tabernacle also shall be with them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And the nations shall know that I am Jehovah that sanctifieth Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore” (Ezek. 37:27–28).

Gentile Nations

In the Millennial Kingdom, along with Israel, Gentile nations and individuals will also be in existence.

Some Gentiles will survive the Tribulation and the subsequent “sheep and goats” judgment, thus enabling them to populate the Millennial Kingdom. “God be merciful unto us, and bless us, And cause his face to shine upon us; Selah That thy way may be known upon earth, Thy salvation among all nations. Let the peoples praise thee, O God; Let all the peoples praise thee. Oh let the nations be glad and sing for joy; For thou wilt judge the peoples with equity, And govern the nations upon earth. Selah Let the peoples praise thee, O God; Let all the peoples praise thee. The earth hath yielded its increase: God, even our own God, will bless us. God will bless us; And all the ends of the earth shall fear him” (Ps. 67:1-7). “Say among the nations, Jehovah reigneth: The world also is established that it cannot be moved: He will judge the peoples with equity. Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice; Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; Let the field exult, and all that is therein; Then shall all the trees of the wood sing for joy Before Jehovah; For he cometh, For he cometh to judge the earth: He will judge the world with righteousness, And the peoples with his truth” (Ps. 96:10-13). “Thus saith Jehovah against all mine evil neighbors, that touch the inheritance which I have caused my people Israel to inherit: behold, I will pluck them up from off their land, and will pluck up the house of Judah from among them. And it shall come to pass, after that I have plucked them up, I will return and have compassion on them; and I will bring them again, every man to his heritage, and every man to his land. And it shall come to pass, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name, As Jehovah liveth; even as they taught my people to swear by Baal; then shall they be built up in the midst of my people. But if they will not hear, then will I pluck up that nation, plucking up and destroying it, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 12:14–17). “And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of

Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem. And he will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more” (Isa. 2:2-4). “For Jehovah will have compassion on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the sojourner shall join himself with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob” (Isa. 14:1). “Behold, my servant, whom I uphold; my chosen, in whom my soul delighteth: I have put my Spirit upon him; he will bring forth justice to the Gentiles. He will not cry, nor lift up his voice, nor cause it to be heard in the street. A bruised reed will he not break, and a dimly burning wick will he not quench: he will bring forth justice in truth. He will not fail nor be discouraged, till he have set justice in the earth; and the isles shall wait for his law” (Isa. 42:1-4). “For I know their works and their thoughts: the time cometh, that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and shall see my glory. And I will set a sign among them, and I will send such as escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, to the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the nations. And they shall bring all your brethren out of all the nations for an oblation unto Jehovah, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith Jehovah, as the children of Israel bring their oblation in a clean vessel into the house of Jehovah. And of them also will I take for priests and for Levites, saith Jehovah. For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith Jehovah, so shall your seed and your name remain. And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith Jehovah. And they shall go forth, and look upon the dead bodies of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh” (Isa. 66:18-24). “But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it. And many nations shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob;

and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem; and he will judge between many peoples, and will decide concerning strong nations afar off: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more” (Mic. 4:1-3). “Likewise, the prophets indicate, ‘many nations’ will survive the holocaust of divine judgment on their political systems, but under new and happier forms. There will be humble submission to the ‘God of Jacob,’ in whose ways they will walk, and political forms based on military force will be abandoned as of no longer any effective purpose in the face of authority enforced by supernatural power (Mic. 4:1-3)” (McClain, GK, p. 154). “Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold, out of all the languages of the nations, they shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you” (Zech. 8:23). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles” (Zech. 14:16). “For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah. For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. Then there shall be two men in the field; one will be taken, and one will be left. Two women will be grinding at the mill; one will be taken, and one will be left” (Matt. 24:37-41). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, ‘Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world’... Then He will answer them, saying, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.” And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46). “The Gentiles who survive the Judgment of the Gentiles for their treatment of Israel are the ones who will enter and populate the Gentile nations in the Millennium. These are the sheep Gentiles who, because of their faith shown by their pro-Semitism, will be able to participate in and populate the Kingdom” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 485). (See also our discussion of the gathering and judgment of the Gentiles (the sheep and goats judgment) in our previous chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

Gentile nations and individuals will therefore be in existence throughout the Millennial Kingdom. “for that Jehovah of hosts hath blessed them, saying, Blessed be Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel mine inheritance” (Isa. 19:25). “Isaiah 19:25... What the coming King will be able to do for Egypt and Assyria is a token of the unimaginable reach of His Kingdom, not only in spiritual blessings but also in political and social benefits for a needy and confused world” (McClain, GK, p. 154). “and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore” (Rev. 20:8). “...that the human race would become Jewish... it is not quite accurate seeing that Gentile nations are predicted as continuously existing, acknowledging and enjoying the blessings of such a rule” (Peters, TTK, 1:428).

The Gentile nations will recognize and acknowledge Israel's preeminence in the Kingdom. “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the root of Jesse, that standeth for an ensign of the peoples, unto him shall the nations seek; and his resting-place shall be glorious” (Isa. 11:10). “And now saith Jehovah that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob again to him, and that Israel be gathered unto him for I am honorable in the eyes of Jehovah, and my God is become my strength; yea, he saith, It is too light a thing that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth. Thus saith Jehovah, the Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One, to him whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth, to a servant of rulers: Kings shall see and arise; princes, and they shall worship; because of Jehovah that is faithful, even the Holy One of Israel, who hath chosen thee” (Isa. 49:5–7). “Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of Jehovah is risen upon thee [Jacob, 59:20]. For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the peoples; but Jehovah will arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And nations shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising” (Isa. 60:1-3). “For I, Jehovah, love justice, I hate robbery with iniquity; and I will give them [Zion, vs. 3] their recompense in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them. And their seed shall be known among the nations, and their offspring among the peoples; all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which Jehovah hath blessed” (Isa. 61:8-9). “For Zion’s sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem’s sake I will not rest, until her righteousness go forth as brightness, and her salvation as a lamp that burneth. And the nations shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory, and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of Jehovah shall name. Thou shalt also be a crown of beauty in the hand of Jehovah, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God” (Isa. 62:1-3). “Feed thy people with thy rod, the flock of thy heritage, which dwell solitarily, in the forest in the midst of Carmel: let them feed in Bashan and Gilead, as in the days of old. As in the days of thy coming forth out of the land of Egypt will I show unto them marvellous things. The nations shall see and be ashamed of all their might; they shall lay their hand upon their mouth; their ears shall be deaf. They shall lick the dust like a serpent; like crawling things of the earth they shall come trembling out of their close places; they shall come with fear unto Jehovah our God, and shall be afraid because of thee” (Mic. 7:14-17). “At that time I will bring you [Israel, vs. 14] in, and at that time will I gather you; for I will make you a name and a praise among all the peoples of the earth, when I bring back your captivity before your eyes, saith Jehovah” (Zeph. 3:20). “Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: It shall yet come to pass, that there shall come peoples, and the inhabitants of many cities; and the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to entreat the favor of Jehovah, and to seek Jehovah of hosts: I will go also. Yea, many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek Jehovah of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the favor of Jehovah. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold, out of all the languages of the nations, they shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you” (Zech. 8:20-23). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, neither shall it be upon them; there shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles” (Zech. 14:16-19). “What the ark has hitherto been to Jerusalem... Jerusalem is now to be to the nations” (McClain, GK, p. 148). (See also our discussion of Israel’s political supremacy in the section Government of the Millennial Kingdom above.)

The Gentiles who observe Israel’s glory will tell other nations of Israel’s blessedness. “For I know their works and their thoughts: the time cometh, that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and shall see my glory. And I will set a sign among them, and I will send such as escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, to the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the nations. And they shall bring all your brethren out of all the nations for an oblation unto Jehovah, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith Jehovah, as the children of Israel bring their oblation in a clean vessel into the house of Jehovah. And of them also will I take for priests and for Levites, saith Jehovah. For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith Jehovah, so shall your seed and your name remain. And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith Jehovah. And they shall go forth, and look upon the dead bodies of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh” (Isa. 66:18-24). “The Shechinah Glory, which will be especially manifested in the Kingdom, will be seen by many of the Gentiles ([Isaiah 66] v. 18), and those who do see it will set off to travel among the Gentiles who have not seen it to tell them of it (v. 19)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 488). “From among these Gentiles, God will choose some to serve as priests in the Temple ([Isaiah 66] v. 21)” (ibid.). “As for the unfaithful among the Gentiles, their dead bodies and the suffering of their souls will be visible throughout the Kingdom ([Isaiah 66] v. 24), illustrating for one thousand years God’s grace to the faithful and His severity to the lost” (ibid.).

The Gentiles will serve Israel. “For Jehovah will have compassion on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the sojourner shall join himself with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob. And the peoples shall take them, and bring them to their place; and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of Jehovah for servants and for handmaids; and they shall take them captive whose captives they were; and they shall rule over their oppressors” (Isa. 14:1-2). “Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Behold, I will lift up my hand to the nations, and set up my ensign to the peoples; and they shall bring thy sons in their bosom, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders. And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and their queens thy nursing mothers: they shall bow down to thee with their faces to the earth, and lick the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah; and they that wait for me shall not be put to shame” (Isa. 49:22-23). “And foreigners shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favor have I had mercy on thee. Thy gates also shall be open continually; they shall not be shut day nor night; that men may bring unto thee the wealth of the nations, and their kings led captive. For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted. The glory of Lebanon shall come unto thee, the fir-tree, the pine, and the box-tree together, to beautify the place of my sanctuary; and I will make the place of my feet glorious. And the sons of them that afflicted thee shall come bending unto thee; and all they that despised thee shall bow themselves down at the soles of thy feet; and they shall call thee The city of Jehovah, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel. Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man passed through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations. Thou shalt also suck the milk of the nations, and shalt suck the breast of kings; and thou shalt know that I, Jehovah, am thy Saviour, and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob” (Isa. 60:10-16). “to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them a garland for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of Jehovah, that he may be glorified. And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations. And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and foreigners shall be your plowmen and your vine-dressers. But ye shall be named the priests of Jehovah; men shall call you the ministers of our God: ye shall eat the wealth of the nations, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves” (Isa. 61:3-6). “In the Messianic Kingdom all ‘nations or peoples that will not serve Israel will perish’” [quoting Chafer, Systematic Theology, 7:134] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 333). “Yes, there will be Gentile nations in the Millennium, but positionally they will be there ‘to abide in the reflected glory of Israel.’ Not only will the Gentiles not replace Israel in the kingdom, but the Gentiles will be subservient to Israel in the kingdom” [quoting Chafer, Systematic Theology, 3:105-108] (ibid., p. 554). “McClain [in The Greatness of the Kingdom, pp. 231-323] concludes that ‘when the political unification and supremacy of Israel have been firmly established by divine power, all nations will gladly recognize the benefits of such an arrangement.’ In this way, the so-called ‘Jewish problem’ will be solved forever” (ibid., p. 559).

Some Gentiles will help build the millennial temple and some will serve in it. “Also the foreigners that join themselves to Jehovah, to minister unto him, and to love the name of Jehovah, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from profaning it, and holdeth fast my covenant; even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples” (Isa. 56:6-7). “For I know their works and their thoughts: the time cometh, that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and shall see my glory. And I will set a sign among them, and I will send such as escape of them unto the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, to the isles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the nations. And they shall bring all your brethren out of all the nations for an oblation unto Jehovah, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith Jehovah, as the children of Israel bring their oblation in a clean vessel into the house of Jehovah. And of them also will I take for priests and for Levites, saith Jehovah. For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith Jehovah, so shall your seed and your name remain. And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith Jehovah” (Isa. 66:18-23). “and speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying, Behold, the man whose name is the Branch: and he shall grow up out of his place; and he shall build the temple of Jehovah; even he shall build the temple of Jehovah; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne; and the counsel of peace shall be between them both. And the crowns shall be to Helem, and to Tobijah, and to Jedaiah, and to Hen the son of Zephaniah, for a memorial in the temple of Jehovah. And they that are far off shall come and build in the temple of Jehovah; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me unto you. And this shall come to pass, if ye will diligently obey the voice of Jehovah your God” (Zech. 6:12-15). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain” (Zech. 14:16-17). “In the Mosaic Law, the observance of the Feast of Tabernacles was mandatory for Jews only, while under Kingdom Law, it will be mandatory for both Jews and Gentiles (Zech. 14:16-21). Under the Law of Moses, only Jews could be priests, but under Kingdom Law, Gentiles will also serve as priests (Is. 66:18-21)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 457). “The Temple ministry will be open to all Gentiles who are rightly related to the King” (ibid., p. 487).

The Gentiles will also be blessed. They will be populous, “and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore” (Rev. 20:8). “During the Millennium, children will be born (Isa. 65:20), and there will be innumerable people by the end of it (Rev. 20:8). People in resurrection bodies do not have children... populate the earth during Christ’s reign... many of the 144,000 Jews saved therein, and the great multitude of others they win (7:4, 9), will be alive on earth in unresurrected bodies. These are the ‘sheep’ of Matthew 25 who will replenish the earth during a thousand years of reproduction under perfect conditions” (Geisler, ST, 4:619). “There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die a hundred years old, and the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed” (Isa. 65:20). and they will be blessed. “And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it” (Isa. 2:2). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the root of Jesse, that standeth for an ensign of the peoples, unto him shall the nations seek; and his resting-place shall be glorious” (Isa. 11:10). “In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian shall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria; and the Egyptians shall worship with the Assyrians. In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, a blessing in the midst of the earth; for that Jehovah of hosts hath blessed them, saying, Blessed be Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel mine inheritance” (Isa. 19:23-25). “and the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isa. 40:5). “Thus saith Jehovah, Keep ye justice, and do righteousness; for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed. Blessed is the man that doeth this, and the son of man that holdeth it fast; that keepeth the sabbath from profaning it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil. Neither let the foreigner, that hath joined himself to Jehovah, speak, saying, Jehovah will surely separate me from his people; neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree. For thus saith Jehovah of the eunuchs that keep my sabbaths, and choose the things that please me, and hold fast my covenant: Unto them will I give in my house and within my walls a memorial and a name better than of sons and of daughters; I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off. Also the foreigners that join themselves to Jehovah, to minister unto him, and to love the name of Jehovah, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from profaning it, and holdeth fast my covenant; even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt-offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples. The Lord Jehovah, who gathereth the outcasts of Israel, saith, Yet will I gather others to him, besides his own that are gathered” (Isa. 56:1-8). “And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith Jehovah” (Isa. 66:23). “that they may possess the remnant of Edom, and all the nations that are called by my name, saith Jehovah that doeth this” (Amos 9:12). “And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee” (Zech. 2:11). “For from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same my name shall be great among the Gentiles; and in every place incense shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering: for my name shall be great among the Gentiles, saith Jehovah of hosts” (Mal. 1:11). “Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world” (Matt. 25:34) “Or is God the God of Jews only? is he not the God of Gentiles also? Yea, of Gentiles also” (Rom. 3:29). “These nations will be owned of Jehovah as ‘nations that are called by my name’ (Amos 9:12, ASV). Even those peoples which were once enemies of Israel and her God may find a place of favor within the future Mediatorial Kingdom (Isa. 19:23-25). For, as the New Testament reminds us, God is the God of all men, whether Jews or Gentiles (Rom. 3:29)” (McClain, GK, p. 213). “The residue of men will seek the Lord; that is, all the Gentiles will be brought to a knowledge of the Lord after the kingdom is established. This same truth is taught in passages like Isaiah 2:2, 11:10; 40:5; and 66:23” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 146).

And, the Gentiles will worship the King; they will observe the Feast of Tabernacles. “The multitude of camels shall cover thee, the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah; all they from Sheba shall come; they shall bring gold and frankincense, and shall proclaim the praises of Jehovah. All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee; they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar; and I will glorify the house of my glory” (Isa. 60:6–7). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, neither shall it be upon them; there shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles” (Zech. 14:16–19). “And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith Jehovah” (Isa. 66:23). “Zech. 14... the yearly worship at Jerusalem ([Zech. 14] v. 16)... a national acknowledgement of nations through their representatives of the Theocratic King and Kingdom” (Peters, TTK, 2:93). “...the restored Theocracy... All nations falling under its sway and enjoying its blessings must publicly worship the Ruler” (ibid., 3:596) “Of the various feasts and celebrations and festival offerings of the Millennium mentioned by Ezekiel, there is one feast, the Feast of Tabernacles, that will be obligatory for all Gentile nations. This is declared in Zechariah 14:16-19” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 488). “All the Gentile nations that will populate the Kingdom will be obligated to send a delegation to Jerusalem in order to worship the King at the time of the Feast of Tabernacles (v. 16)”

(ibid., p. 489). (See also our discussion of Israel's observance of the Jewish feasts in our section Israel above.)

In the Millennial Kingdom, there will be no war between nations. "The word that the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. And many peoples shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem. And he will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of Jehovah" (Isa. 2:1-5). "And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the heavens, and with the creeping things of the ground: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the land, and will make them to lie down safely" (Hos. 2:18). "But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah's house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it. And many nations shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of Jehovah from Jerusalem; and he will judge between many peoples, and will decide concerning strong nations afar off: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more" (Mic. 4:1-3). "So plain and decisive are these predictions [Isa. 2:1-5 and Micah 4:1-3] that it is a matter of amazement that the Church has ever departed from the early Church belief, sustained as it is by the fair grammatical sense and analogy of the Word" (Peters, TTK, 1:685). "While differences between nations will arise, such differences will no longer be settled by military conflicts, but only by the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 380).

Culture in the Millennial Kingdom

Culture in the Millennial Kingdom will be diverse. “The peculiar cultural values of the various nations, in so far as they may be used to contribute to the good of all, will not be abolished. In this respect, there will be no reduction of human society to one dull and faceless mediocrity, as it appears in the ‘one world’ of Marxism” (McClain, GK, p. 212).

Life in the Millennial Kingdom

Life in the Millennial Kingdom will be agrarian, spiritual and good.

Lifestyles will likely be largely agrarian. “But in the latter days it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it. And many nations shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths.. they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of Jehovah of hosts hath spoken it” (Mic. 4:1–4). “And they shall build houses and inhabit them; They shall also plant vineyards and eat their fruit. They shall not build, and another inhabit, They shall not plant, and another eat; For as the lifetime of a tree, so shall be the days of My people, And My chosen ones shall wear out the work of their hands” (Isa. 65:21–23) “The Agrarian law of the Theocracy, which divided the land equally among all, and prevented that enormous accumulation of landed estate in the hands of the few to the detriment of the many, may reasonably give us a hint how in the future the earth will be occupied by the subjects” (Peters, TTK, 3:596).

Life will be spiritual. “until the Spirit is poured out upon us from on high, And the wilderness becomes a fertile field And the fertile field is considered as a forest” (Isa. 32:15). “And it shall come to pass that, before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear” (Isa. 65:24) “But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people” (Jer. 31:33) “For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea” (Hab. 2:14). “Christ has the Spirit without measure, and it is simply to be faithless to doubt His ability to produce through the Spirit, thus working in harmony with His will, all the glorious things predicted by this same Spirit” (Peters, TTK, 3:72). “The reader is reminded how this view at once completely removes the ungenerous objection urged against us, that we do not make out a spiritual but ‘carnal’ Kingdom. When the King has this Spirit without measure; when He baptizes His associated body of rulers in a large, wonderful measure, and the subjects in a measure indicative of the variety of the Spirit’s ministrations; when the Spirit exerts His Almighty energy in every direction extending even to the material creation; surely the government swayed under such imparted and revealed power, must be also preeminently spiritual. So plain is this, that it needs no additional remarks” (ibid., p. 80). “The wondrous power exerted by this Theocratic ordering in its King and associated rulers, so that it even extends to the deliverance of creation, the final and complete removal of the curse, exhibits a spirituality far beyond our comprehension. A recreative and beneficent force is then at work, which frees groaning nature itself from its load of suffering and corruption” (ibid., p. 464). “Smyth (Key to Rev., p. 352) adds: ‘His reign (Christ’s) must be only spiritual. The days of miracles are past; the Bible is filled; and they are not needed; and Christ can reign as effectually without miracles as with them.’... This is taking a low estimate of the grand results involved in that predicted reign, and we turn away from it with relief, accepting of a better hope, of a reign far more comprehensive and sublime in its effects and consequences” (ibid.). “While the power of the Spirit has been manifested in some saints in previous generations, it will be common and abundant in the millennial period” (Walvoord, MK, p. 309). “...implies that the period of the kingdom will be in some measure inferior to the Dispensation of Grace. This is an area with which many other Dispensationalists would disagree with Chafer. Many Dispensationalists would say that Kingdom Law is not a reinstatement of the Law of Moses, nor is it an intensification of the demands of the Law of Moses. On the contrary, the death of Christ has forever terminated the law so that it can never be reinstated. In the Millennium, there will be a new body of law that can be called the Kingdom Law” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 554). However, sinners will be born who will need salvation. “There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die a hundred years old, and the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed” (Isa. 65:20). “Their children also shall be as aforetime, and their congregation shall be established before me; and I will punish all that oppress them” (Jer. 30:20). “In those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children’s teeth are set on edge. But every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge” (Jer. 31:29-30). “And it shall come to pass, that ye shall divide it by lot for an inheritance unto you and to the strangers that sojourn among you, who shall beget children among you; and they shall be unto you as the home-born among the children of Israel; they shall have inheritance with you among the tribes of Israel” (Ezek. 47:22). “I will hiss for them, and gather them; for I have redeemed them; and they shall increase as they have increased” (Zech. 10:8).

Life will be holy. “...when it is fulfilling the Lord’s prayer (the spirit of which even Luther located in the future, so Michelet’s Life, p. 343) in causing the will of God to be done on earth as in heaven, it will be seen that such passages as John 1:29, ‘Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world,’ etc., are verified on a scale far exceeding the limited view usually taken of them, i.e. confining them more to a provisionary than to an actual realization” (Peters, TTK, 3:391).

Life will be supernatural. “McClain [in The Greatness of the Kingdom, p. 235], commenting on the common failing of the amillenarians, incisively states: ‘It indicates the ease with which antimillennialism slips into an attitude of antisupernaturalism in the physical realm. The Old Testament prophets were not hampered by any such dualistic prejudices. Recognizing the hand of God everywhere present in the processes of nature, they saw nothing incredible in the idea of a spiritual Kingdom where intrusions of supernatural power would become the rule instead of the exception’” (Feinberg, M, p. 321).

Miraculous events will likely be commonplace. “‘Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes in Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go to the Father’” (John 14:12). “...in the fulfillment of the promise (John 14:12) that the believers of Christ shall perform the miraculous works of Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 2:144). “...the amazing power of these kings and priests... They shall receive the promised Baptism of the Holy Ghost and Fire. It is for this reason that Jesus promised His disciples that they should perform greater works than He had done while on earth; and that all things that they would ask for would be granted, etc. This has never yet been realized. There was a partial fulfillment in the case of the apostles and their contemporaries, but even then their works did not exceed the miraculous power exerted by the Master... But the time is coming when this same miraculous power shall be given to those who have made themselves worthy of it in a higher degree than ever yet experienced” (ibid., p. 595) “These priests, being all ‘baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire,’ are endowed with supernatural powers.

Hence, now enabled to perform ‘the greater works’ promised, they are admirably adapted by sympathy and ample power to minister to the wants, necessities, etc., of the nations, and to materially aid their Master in mitigating and removing the curse as the Theocratic dominion extends itself. It is not mere imagination to suppose that they will visit, and lay hands upon, the sick and dying, that they will dry up tears of anguish and grief, that they will administer comfort, consolation, mercy, and hope” (ibid., p. 613). “...perform great works... Thus promises which are, on the one hand, perverted by fanaticism and, on the other, form a stumbling-block to unbelief (ridiculing non-fulfillment), are preserved in all their integrity, fullness, and preciousness” (ibid., 3:390). “John 14:12, ‘He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.’... the complete fulfillment of the promise must be found in a future Kingdom such as we find described by the Old Testament prophets” (McClain, GK, p. 300). “In other words, we still need on earth the complete fulfillment of the promised ‘greater works’ as they shall be ministered in the coming Kingdom by those who will be reigning with its King” (ibid., p. 301). (See also our discussion of the fact that the Kingdom was announced and foreshadowed by Jesus’ miracles in the section The Kingdom was Announced of our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom.)

Angelic visitations will also likely be commonplace. “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). “And He said to him, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, you shall see the heavens opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man” (John 1:51). “And He said to him, ‘Most assuredly, I say to you, hereafter you shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man” (John 1:51, NKJV) “...angelic communication restored, John 1:51” (Peters, TTK, 2:143) “...the uniting, as declared to Nathanael (John 1:51), of the heavenly with the earthly, so that the angels of God shall be seen ascending and descending” (ibid., p. 144) “In the future will be verified Christ’s promise to Nathaniel, Jno. 1:51, ‘Verily, verily I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man.’ The futurity is evidenced, not simply from the fact that the past has never witnessed such a fulfillment, but by the ‘hereafter’ and the ‘Son of man’ referring to the period of the Sec. Advent, as seen in Luke 22:69, and Matt. 26:64” (ibid., p. 618). “Jesus said to him, ‘You have said it yourself; nevertheless I tell you, hereafter you shall see THE SON OF MAN SITTING AT THE RIGHT HAND OF POWER, and COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF HEAVEN” (Matt. 26:64). “Hereafter the Son of Man will sit on the right hand of the power of God” (Luke 22:69, NKJV). “Such angelic presiding over nations, even by ‘the chief princes,’ only indicates how interested the angelic host must be in the development of the ultimate deliverance of the nations from the bondage under which they groan. The past agency insures a continued interest, and such sympathy and aid as may be in accordance with the Theocratic ordering” (Peters, TTK, p. 621). “One of the blessed ingredients of future happiness and glory will be the intercourse of the glorified saints with the angelic host. This will prove a never-ending source of blissful enjoyment. To converse with those who witnessed creation, who have been the trusted messengers of God in countless missions of mercy and love, who for ages have had the honor and glory of God at heart, who are so exalted in knowledge, wisdom, and power—this will be a privilege indeed. To familiarly associate with such beings, to visit with them earth or heaven, to be united with them in the strongest ties of a common devotion and communion, to interchange experiences of the past and present, etc., all this is an honor exceedingly great—such as never was found in the most splendid of earthly courts” (ibid.). “Owing to rebellion, the angelic hosts, which once shouted for joy at the exhibition of creative energy, withdrew from this world, and only occasionally have they been permitted to reveal themselves to man. But this interdiction, caused by sinfulness, will be withdrawn, for on the restoration of this Kingdom, under the blessed reign of Christ, they shall freely communicate with this earth as Jesus told Nathaniel (John 1:51)” (ibid., 3:446).

Life will be good:

Life will be peaceful, with no war (see our discussion of the fact that there will be no war in the Millennial Kingdom our section Nations of the Millennial Kingdom above), peace among people, “And the work of righteousness will be peace, And the service of righteousness, quietness and confidence forever” (Isa. 32:17). “In that day, saith Jehovah of hosts, shall ye invite every man his neighbor under the vine and under the fig-tree” (Zech. 3:10). “Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy king cometh unto thee; he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, even upon a colt the foal of an ass. And I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem; and the battle bow shall be cut off; and he shall speak peace unto the nations: and his dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth” (Zech. 9:9-10). and peace among the animals. “And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and

the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the adder's den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea" (Isa. 11:6-9). "The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox; and dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith Jehovah" (Isa. 65:25). "And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the heavens, and with the creeping things of the ground: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the land, and will make them to lie down safely" (Hos. 2:18). "No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast go up thereon; they shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there" (Isa. 35:9) "We cannot spiritualize these words. This was the character of these animals in Eden before the Fall, and in the Ark" (Larkin, DT, p. 95). "Once again animals will be tame and snakes harmless" (Showers, M, p. 90). "There Will Be No Carnivorous Animals... The curse on the animal kingdom likewise will be reversed. No longer will nature be red in tooth and claw; no animals will be carnivorous; rather, they will be herbivorous, as in the Garden of Eden (Gen. 2:9; 3:2)" (Geisler, ST, 4:563). "And out of the ground made Jehovah God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil" (Gen. 2:9). "And the woman said unto the serpent, Of the fruit of the trees of the garden we may eat" (Gen. 3:2)

Life will be righteous. "For as the earth bringeth forth its bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord Jehovah will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations" (Isa. 61:11).

Life will be good. "If this is 'a Gospel dispensation,' the one Coming is only a far greater one, seeing that the goodness of the Kingdom and of salvation is realized in all its preciousness to a far greater extent in the Coming one" (Peters, TTK, 2:408).

Life will be healing. "Is it not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest? And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and out of darkness. The meek also shall increase their joy in Jehovah, and the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel” (Isa. 29:17-19). “Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, with the recompense of God; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert” (Isa. 35:3-6). “The Spirit of the Lord Jehovah is upon me; because Jehovah hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound; to proclaim the year of Jehovah’s favor, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn” (Isa. 61:1-2) “Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the uttermost parts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together: a great company shall they return hither” (Jer. 31:8). “In that day, saith Jehovah, will I assemble that which is lame, and I will gather that which is driven away, and that which I have afflicted; and I will make that which was lame a remnant, and that which was cast far off a strong nation: and Jehovah will reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth even for ever” (Mic. 4:6-7). “Behold, at that time I will deal with all them that afflict thee; and I will save that which is lame, and gather that which was driven away; and I will make them a praise and a name, whose shame hath been in all the earth” (Zeph. 3:19). “But unto you that fear my name shall the sun of righteousness arise with healing in its wings; and ye shall go forth, and gambol as calves of the stall” (Mal. 4:2). “The utmost perfection of body is to be enjoyed in the kingdom; this is foreshadowed by the removal of blindness, lameness, deafness, and dumbness” (Peters, TTK, 1:90). (See also our discussion of the fact that the Kingdom was announced and foreshadowed by Jesus’ miracles in the section The Kingdom was Announced of our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom.)

Life will be free from corruption. “For I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that is to be revealed to us. For the anxious longing of the creation waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God. For the creation was subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of Him who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself also will be set free from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation groans and suffers the pains of childbirth together until now. And not only this, but also we ourselves, having the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting eagerly for our adoption as sons, the redemption of our body” (Rom. 8:18-23).

Life will be fair. “And He will judge between many peoples And render decisions for mighty, distant nations. Then they will hammer their swords into plowshares And their spears into pruning hooks; Nation will not lift up sword against nation, And never again will they train for war” (Mic. 4:3). “...men, women, and children will not be converted into mere machines to add to others’ wealth; it does not, owing to its Supernatural basis of immortal and glorified rulers, grind down its subjects with taxes to support its governmental machinery” (Peters, TTK, 3:597)

Life will be efficient. “The knowledge, improvements, inventions, discoveries, etc., of former ages will be adapted to promote the glory of this coming one. The telegraph, steam, printing, telephone, a thousand other things, will be increased in efficiency” (Peters, TTK, 2:147)

Life will be joyful. “But be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for, behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people; and there shall be heard in her no more the voice of weeping and the voice of crying” (Isa. 65:18-19). “and the ransomed of Jehovah shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away” (Isa. 35:10). “As to man’s social life, at a wedding He provides wine by a miracle, not to sustain mere physical existence, but in order that men might have the physical means of their social enjoyment” (McClain, GK, p. 300).

Life will be enjoyed. “This is no kingdom of asceticism where the normal impulses of humanity, implanted by divine creation, will be rigorously suppressed” (McClain, GK, p. 228).

Life will be abundant. “Do not be anxious then, saying, ‘What shall we eat?’ or ‘What shall we drink?’ or ‘With what shall we clothe ourselves?’ For all these things the Gentiles eagerly seek; for your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things. But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added to you” (Matt. 6:31-33). “‘The thief comes only to steal, and kill, and destroy; I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly’” (John 10:10). “Take the promise (Matt. 6:33), ‘Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.’ If we consider that this was said before the postponement of the Kingdom when the Kingdom was offered on the condition of repentance, we see at once how this would have been fulfilled just as given. For, if the nation had repented and the Kingdom would have been re-established then under the marvellous influence of the Spirit, just as predicted by the prophets, ‘all these things’ would have been added, seeing that under this Spirit’s influence abundance and plenty for all classes is expressly promised. Aside from the grace of God which now even in response to faith so often inchoately verifies the promise, it still points us on when the Kingdom itself shall be attained and there will be no lack, owing to the power and manifestation of the Spirit” (Peters, TTK, 3:79). (See also our discussion of the fact that the earth will be productive in our section The Earth in the Millennial Kingdom above.)

Life will be long. “There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die a hundred years old, and the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed” (Isa. 65:20). “With infant mortality removed, everyone born in the Millennium will live at least until his hundredth year of life... death in the Kingdom will be for unbelievers only” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 382).

And, life will be glorious. “And blessed be his glorious name for ever; And let the whole earth be filled with his glory. Amen, and Amen” (Ps. 72:19). “For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea” (Hab. 2:14). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31).

But again, in the Millennial Kingdom, even with all this goodness, there will still be some sin and death. “In those days they shall say no more, The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children’s teeth are set on edge. But every one shall die for his own iniquity: every man that eateth the sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge” (Jer. 31:29–30). “but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked” (Isa. 11:4). “No longer will there be in it an infant who lives but a few days, Or an old man who does not live out his days; For the youth will die at the age of one hundred And the one who does not reach the age of one hundred Shall be thought accursed” (Isa. 65:20). “And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso of all the families of the earth goeth not up unto Jerusalem to worship the King, Jehovah of hosts, upon them there shall be no rain. And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not, neither shall it be upon them; there shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles. This shall be the punishment of Egypt, and the punishment of all the nations that go not up to keep the feast of tabernacles” (Zech. 14:16-19). “And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God and to His throne” (Rev. 12:5). “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever” (Rev. 20:7-10). “...some will die in the Mill. age (comp. Isa. 65:20; Jer. 31:29-30) ...but these passages seem to make death a resultant of sinning... Fausset, Com., Isa. 65:20, explains, ‘the sinner that dieth at a hundred years shall be deemed accursed,’ i.e. ‘his death at so early an age, which in those days the hundredth year will be regarded, just as if it were mere childhood, shall be deemed the effect of God’s special visitation in wrath’” (Peters, TTK, 2:148) “...this work of entirely abolishing death from the earth is a gradual work; the glorious beginning being seen in the immortal saints, next in the wonderful deliverances of the Jewish nation, next in the astounding blessings bestowed upon the nations rendering allegiance, and lastly in the final outcome, when all wickedness (the entailer of death) is forevermore crushed” (ibid.). “Those from both Israel and the Gentiles who go out of the Tribulation period into Messiah’s earthly kingdom will go in unredeemed bodies with an unredeemed nature within them. It will not be the citizens of the heavenly Jerusalem who will be charged with the responsibility of repopulating the earth. This will be done by the saved who enter the millennial kingdom in their natural bodies. And the multitudes born to them will be born with an unredeemed, fallen, sin nature within them. Even though they will be living under the benefits of the King’s reign, they will need to be saved” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 316). “The outbreak of sin will be punished by immediate death (Isa. 11:4). Rebellion against the authority of the King will be immediately judged (Zech.

14:16-19)” (ibid., p. 317). “All those born during the millennial kingdom will have opportunity to receive the salvation that the King has provided, and because of fear of judgment and respect for the power of the King they will outwardly live in conformity to His law” (ibid.). “...the curse on the earth is only partly lifted as indicated by the continuance of death” (Walvoord, MK, p. 318). “The Scriptures prophesy that Christ will put to death the wicked during His millennial reign (Isa. 11:4)... there will be death for some people during the Millennium” (Showers, M, p. 187). “Those born in the Kingdom will have until their hundredth year to believe. If they do not, they will die in their hundredth year... However, if they do believe, they will live throughout the Millennium and never die. Thus, death in the Millennium will be for unbelievers only. This is why the Bible nowhere speaks of a resurrection of millennial saints. This is why the resurrection of the Tribulation saints is said to complete the first resurrection (Rev. 20:4-6). It is also clear from the New Covenant of Jeremiah 31:31-34 that there will be no Jewish unbelievers in the Kingdom; all Jews born during the Kingdom will accept the Messiah by their hundredth year. Unbelief will be among the Gentiles only and, therefore, death will exist only among the Gentiles” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 383). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah. But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people: and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith Jehovah: for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more” (Jer. 31:31-34). “During the thousand years Christ will have to rule with a rod of iron (Rev. 12:5), some sinners will be judged and die (Isa. 65:20), and He will crush a large rebellion at the end (Rev. 20:7-10)” (Geisler, ST, 4:559). “Some Children Born During the Millennium Will Not Believe... Saved parents can have unsaved children; of those born during the Millennium, some will accept Christ as their Savior, and others will not. Of those who do not, some will go along with His reign outwardly, while others will overtly rebel against it. The latter will be judged and die prematurely (Isa. 65:20) under the rod of iron (Rev. 12:5) with which Christ will crush all opposition. At the end of the Millennium, the false believers who only followed outwardly will rebel, at the instigation of the devil's release from his prison, only to be destroyed by Christ" (ibid., p. 561). "Death Will Result From Rebellion and Punishment... Even though life is lengthened in the Millennium, death will still occur; those who survive the Tribulation will still be mortal. Apparently, though, there will be no death of natural causes—decay, disease, or degeneration. It will be by judgment for rebellion against God (Rev. 12:5; Isa. 65:20) and perhaps by accident. The Millennium is not heaven—it will not be absolutely perfect, but it will be as perfect as it can be on earth with unsaved people still in the mix (Matt. 13:29-30). The Millennium is not the first chapter of heaven but the last chapter of earth—not the completed victory but the last chapter in the ultimate victory: 'He must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet' (1 Cor. 15:25; cf. 13:10-12). Nonetheless, the Millennium will be a vast improvement over the world before the Second Coming: There will be no more poverty, sickness, famine, plagues, or war, and, instead, there will be peace, prosperity, and tranquility. "They will neither harm nor destroy on all my holy mountain, for the earth will be full of the knowledge of the LORD as the waters cover the sea" (Isa. 11:9)" (ibid., p. 564). "According to premillennialism, the Millennium will have both mortals and immortals at the same time; some who are already resurrected and some who are not yet resurrected. Those who are resurrected cannot have children (Matt. 22:30), while those who are not yet resurrected can and will (see Isa. 65). The resurrected ones will be perfect and sinless; the others will not" (ibid., p. 593).

Chapter 26: A Final Rebellion

The Fact of the Rebellion

The final rebellion is noted and described in Revelation chapter twenty. “And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the serpent of old, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he should not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be released for a short time” (Rev. 20:1-3). “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever” (Rev. 20:7-10). “Within one chapter alone (Rev 20) is the revelation given which asserts that Satan must be loosed for a little season from his thousand-year imprisonment. Mere speculation over why he is loosed is uncalled for. Evidently, it completes the ground upon which divine judgment against this great angel may be imposed. It is to be seen, however, that wars which had ceased when he was bound are resumed, and that those who had lived in the peace and glory of the kingdom are deceived, as people of this age have been; and war follows only to be terminated by supernatural destruction of those armies” (Chafer, ST, 4:400). “Gog as the prince and Magog as the people... Apparently the defection against Christ will extend even to some of the subrulers involved in the political government of the world at the close of the millennium” (Walvoord, MK, p. 331). “...a great number of unregenerate men will be alive at the time of the close of the Messianic Kingdom, all born during the last century of the Millennium” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 511).

Why the Rebellion?

It is puzzling to many how, after a thousand years of idyllic conditions on earth under the righteous and just rulership of Christ and His co-rulers, Satan could manage to deceive the nations again, and why anyone, let alone a large number of people “like the sand of the seashore” would choose to join Satan in this final rebellion. The solution appears to lie in the incorrigible nature of the fallen human heart. “While the astounding revolt on earth is closely related to the release of Satan, as intimated above, it stands much alone as a demonstration that the the millennial age will not have changed the temptable character of the human heart” (Chafer, ST, 5:360). “That mankind should again fail under such ideal circumstances and be ready to rebel against Christ at the close of the millennium is the final answer to those who would put faith in the inherent goodness of man” (Walvoord, MK, p. 319). “Many will be greatly annoyed and irritated by the absolute, righteous rule of Christ and the saints, which will be administered worldwide. They will hope for someone supernatural to appear and lead them in a revolt to overthrow this rule. As a result, these unsaved rebels will flock to Satan when he appears on the earth after the Millennium to lead such a revolt (Rev. 20:7-9)” (Showers, M, p. 190).

The Seven Dispensations

The quelling of the final rebellion brings to a close the Millennial Kingdom, the last of the seven dispensations of human history. Having at this point in our study traced the biblical Kingdom and mankind’s relationships to it throughout history in considerable detail, now would be an ideal time for us to take a step back and retrospectively summarize and review these seven dispensations. Doing so should help us to even more completely and satisfactorily conceptualize the outworking of God’s overall Kingdom program in history.

Summary of the Dispensations

Dr. Chafer summarizes the dispensations, or ages of human history, “As to time, the Bible may be apportioned into well-defined periods. These periods are clearly separated and the recognition of their divisions with their divine purposes constitutes one of the important factors in true interpretation of the Scriptures. These divisions of time are termed dispensations, which word is somewhat different than the word age in that the word age is more general, being used of any brief division of time or generation of men, though the word age is rightly used as synonymous with the word dispensation... It is probable that the recognition of the dispensations sheds more light on the whole message of the Scriptures than any other aspect of Bible study. Often the first clear understanding of the dispensations and God's revealed purposes in them results in the beginning of useful Bible knowledge and in the fostering of a personal interest in the Bible itself... Man's relation to God is not the same in every age. It has been necessary to bring fallen man into divine testing. This, in part, is God's purpose in the ages, and the result of the testings is in every case an unquestionable demonstration of the utter failure and sinfulness of man. In the end, every mouth will have been stopped because every assumption of the human heart will have proven its unwisdom and wickedness by centuries of experience. Each dispensation, therefore, begins with man divinely placed in a new position of privilege and responsibility, and closes with the failure of man resulting in righteous judgments from God. While there are certain abiding facts such as the holy character of God which are of necessity the same in every age, there are varying instructions and responsibilities which are, as to their application, limited to a given period. In this connection, the Bible student must recognize the difference between a primary and a secondary application of the Word of God. Only those portions of the Scriptures which are directly addressed to the child of God under grace are to be given a personal or primary application. All such instructions he is expected to perform in detail. In the matter of a secondary application it should be observed that, while there are spiritual lessons to be drawn from every portion of the Bible, it does not follow that the Christian is appointed by God to conform to those governing principles which were the will of God for people of other dispensations. The child of God under grace is not situated as was Adam, or Abraham, or the Israelites when under the Law; nor is he called upon to follow that peculiar manner of life which according to the Scriptures will be required of men when the King shall have returned and set up His kingdom on the earth. Since the child of God depends wholly on the instructions contained in the Bible for his direction in daily life, and since the principles obtaining in the various dispensations are so diverse, and at times even contradictory, it is important that he shall recognize those portions of the Scriptures which directly apply to him if he is to realize the will of God and the glory of God. In considering the whole testimony of the Bible it is almost as important for the believer who would do the will of God to recognize that which does not concern him as it is for him to recognize that which does concern him. It is obvious that, apart from the knowledge of dispensational truth, the believer will not be intelligently adjusted to the present purpose and will of God in the world. Such knowledge alone will save him from assuming the hopeless legality of the dispensation that is past or from undertaking the impossible world-transforming program belonging to the dispensation which is to come... Because of imperfect translations, some important truth is hidden to the one who reads only the English text of the Bible. This is illustrated by the fact that the Greek word aion, which means an age, or dispensation, is forty times translated by the English word world. Thus when it is stated in Matthew 13:49, 'So shall it be in the end of the world,' there is reference not to the end of the material earth, which in due time must come (2 Pet. 3:7; Rev. 20:11; Isa. 66:22), but rather to the end of this age. The end of the world is not drawing near, but the end of the age is... According to the Scriptures there are in all seven major dispensations and it is evident that we are now living in the extreme end of the sixth. The kingdom age of a thousand years (Rev. 20:4, 6) is yet to come... A dispensation is more or less marked off by the new divine appointment and responsibilities with which it begins and by the divine judgments with which it ends. The seven dispensations are:..." (Chafer, MBT, 31%)

Dr. Pentecost summarizes the dispensations, "The rebellion of Lucifer against the authority of God initiated a false kingdom characterized by its lawlessness and independence of God. In order to demonstrate His right to rule, God formed the earth and populated it with rational intelligent beings to whom He could reveal Himself, so that they would submit themselves to His authority because His right to rule and His worthiness to be worshiped would be recognized, thus answering Lucifer's challenge to God. A perfect miniature theocracy existed in the garden, in which God was sovereign; His right to rule was invested in Adam, who was to subject all things to his authority and thus bring all creation into subjection to God. Satan enticed man from obedience to God, and thus introduced his false kingdom into this sphere. God responded to man's disobedience in judgment, expelling Adam and Eve from the garden. A new form of theocratic administration was established. All men were subjected to the law of conscience, through which God ruled. Again, Satan lured men from obedience to conscience and brought the race under his authority. God again judged the race, this time by a flood, thus demonstrating that He alone had the right to rule. God then entrusted theocratic administration to human government, whose function it was to curb lawlessness and punish evildoers, thus providing an atmosphere in which righteous men might live in peace and in subjection to God. But the race rebelled against this form of administration. God demonstrated His right to rule again in judgment, this time scattering abroad over the earth those who had united in rebellion against Him. God chose one man, from whom could spring a great race, and gave him a land for his possession and that of his descendants, in which God would establish a kingdom. This kingdom was determined by certain eternal, unconditional covenants which God gave to that people: the Abrahamic Covenant that guaranteed the perpetuity of Abraham's descendants, and their right to the land given to Abraham; the Palestinian Covenant that laid down the prerequisites for blessing from God on that covenant people; the Davidic Covenant that guaranteed that one of David's Sons would sit on David's throne and rule over David's kingdom; and the New Covenant that guaranteed God's provision for salvation, a new heart, and the empowerment by the Holy Spirit. That nation forsook God and abandoned God's law, thus rejecting His right to rule. God responded in judgment, giving the northern kingdom over to Assyria and the southern kingdom over to Babylon. This discipline would continue during the centuries that that nation was ruled over by Gentiles, known as the 'times of the Gentiles.' In the fullness of time the promised Messiah, David's Greater Son, came to call that nation to repentance with the offer of Himself as the true Messiah and the offer of the covenanted kingdom. That nation, however, refused to repent and put faith in Jesus Christ, the Messiah. Once again judgment came as the times of the Gentiles continued through the devastation of Titus in A.D. 70. Because of the rejection of the covenanted form of the kingdom by the nation, a new form of theocratic administration was introduced as predicted by Christ in Matthew 13, which has continued through this present age. The church is within this new form of the kingdom. After the translation of all believers out of this earthly sphere into what Christ referred to as 'My Father's house' (John 14:2), God will resume His program with the nation Israel. He will subject them to the disciplines of the period Christ called 'the tribulation, the great one.' As a consequence, multitudes from that nation will repent and turn in faith to Jesus Christ, the Messiah. They will be joined by innumerable multitudes of Gentiles who will be reached during that time with the Gospel of salvation by faith, through blood, because of the grace of God. That period of discipline will end in the catastrophic judgments at the second advent of Jesus Christ back to this earth. By judgment all unbelievers will be removed and Satan will be bound, and Christ will ascend David's throne in Jerusalem, and will institute a kingdom characterized by peace and righteousness in which He rules as KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS. 'At the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father' (Phil. 2:10-11). In subjecting everything to Himself, Jesus Christ is subjecting all things to God, thus demonstrating that Satan is an impostor, his kingdom is a false kingdom, and that God is sovereign and He alone has the right to rule, the right to be obeyed, and right to be worshiped. The original challenge by Satan that questioned God's authority finds its ultimate answer in the reign of Jesus Christ here on this earth in fulfillment of God's promises and covenants" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 320).

And Jack Kelley, a frequent contributor to the Rapture Ready web site, summarizes in his article The Seven Dispensations, "Throughout history God has dealt with His people in different ways as part of the process of revealing His character. Each of these dispensations has begun with an agreement between God and man that man subsequently violated, ending the relationship in failure and requiring a judgment from God" (Kelley, SD).

Review of the Dispensations

Considering each of the seven dispensations individually:

1. Innocence. "1. The Dispensation of Innocence. The duration of this period is unrevealed. It began with the creation of man, was characterized by those conditions which obtained in the time of man's innocence, it includes the sin of man and ends with a divine judgment by which man received a sentence from God and was expelled from Eden (Gen. 1:28 to 3:22)" (Chafer, MBT, 31%). "1) Innocence... Between the Creation and the Fall of Man God interacted freely and personally with man. Man... while he had agency (the power of choice) he didn't have a sin nature. God placed Adam and Eve in His garden and gave them only one restriction. But they violated this restriction and were expelled from the Garden. Adam, Eve, and the Serpent were all judged, the Creation was cursed, and sin entered the world" (Kelley, SD). (See also our chapter God and Creation.)

2. Conscience. "2. The Dispensation of Conscience. Possessed with the knowledge of both good and evil, man, for about eighteen hundred years, was required to act according to his own conscience—choosing the good and rejecting the evil. His failure is recorded in the history of that period. In this time man became so wicked that the age was closed with the judgment of the flood (Gen. 3:22 to 7:23)" (Chafer, MBT, 31%). "2) Conscience... Between the Fall of Man and the Great Flood God allowed man's conscience to rule without Divine interference. Because of man's newly acquired sin nature, the result of this was 'the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually.' (Genesis 6:5) After repeated warnings, God destroyed all but eight members of the Human race in the Great Flood" (Kelley, SD). (See also the Conscience section of our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise.)

3. Government. “3. The Dispensation of Human Government. Continuing more than four hundred years, the history of this dispensation records that man was given the new responsibility of government in the earth with the power of taking human life (Gen. 9:1-8), which power has never been withdrawn. Man’s failure to govern for God and his success in governing for himself is seen in the ungodly assumptions with which the age ended. The divine judgment on this age was the confusion of tongues (Gen. 8:20 to 11:9)” (Chafer, MBT, 31%). “3) Human Government... from Noah to the Tower of Babel. After the Flood, God allowed man to establish his first system of government. But the people disobeyed God’s commandment to go forth and replenish the Earth, setting about instead to build a great city and a tower to protect themselves from another flood. They also used the tower to study astrology, a corruption of the Gospel that God had written in the stars using the names of twelve constellations. So God gave each of the seventy families of man a unique language that other families weren’t able to understand. This caused confusion and distrust among the people and they drifted apart to be scattered throughout the world, and God destroyed the tower” (Kelley, SD). (See also the Government section of our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise.)

4. Promise. “4. The Dispensation of Promise. In this period of more than four hundred years, extending from the call of Abraham to the giving of the law at Sinai, the new nation which began with Abraham is alone in view. By the terms of this dispensation they are under the gracious promise and covenants of Jehovah with varied instructions as to their relation to God, to the land of promise, and as to their walk before God. The period ends with that people in bondage in Egypt from which they are delivered by the mighty hand of God (Gen. 12:1 to Exod. 19:8)” (Chafer, MBT, 31%). “4) Promise... God set Abraham’s descendants apart as His Chosen People and promised Abraham and Sarah a son through whom He said He would bless the world. But they grew tired of waiting for Him, and they produced a son on their own, calling him Ishmael. Later, when God gave them Isaac, the son He had promised, Ishmael was sent away causing bad blood between Ishmael (Arabs) and Isaac (Jews) that continues to this day” (Kelley, SD). (See also the Promise section of our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise.)

5. Law. “5. The Dispensation of the Law. This lengthened period began with Israel’s assumption of the law at Mount Sinai (Exod. 19:8), was characterized by fifteen hundred years of unfaithfulness and broken law, and terminates with the Great Tribulation in the earth. Its course was interrupted by the death of Christ and the thrusting in of the hitherto unannounced age of the church. Thus the church age, while complete in itself, is parenthetical within the age of the law. At the removal of the Church when the Lord comes again to receive His own, the law age will be resumed and continue for that period known as Daniel's seventieth week (Dan. 9:24-27)—which week is generally conceded to be Seven years.²² Israel's judgments began with her dispersions, were continued in the destruction of Jerusalem and her final scattering among the Gentiles, and will end with that hour of her greatest afflictions in the coming tribulation. The greatest of her sins is the rejection of her Messiah at the first advent of Christ." (Chafer, MBT, 31%). "5) Law... from Mt. Sinai to Pentecost. After God brought the Israelites out of Egypt, He gave Moses the Ten Commandments and offered the Jews the land He had promised to Abraham along with a life of peace and plenty if they obeyed His Law. After two thousand years of vacillating between obedience and rebellion that resulted in them rejecting the Messiah, God finally had enough, expelled them from their land, and dispersed them throughout the world" (Kelley, SD). (See also our chapter The Theocratic Kingdom.)

6. Grace. "6. The Dispensation of the Church. Beginning with the death of Christ and the day of Pentecost, a new responsibility is imposed on all men—both Jews and Gentiles. This responsibility is personal and calls for the acceptance by each individual of the grace of God toward sinners as it has been provided in Christ, with good works as the fruit of salvation. While the primary purpose of God in this dispensation will be perfectly accomplished in the gathering out of the Church, the course and end of this age is characterized by an apostate church and a Christ rejecting world. The judgment will be personal as has been the responsibility. The dispensation

²² In determining the dispensation to which the Tribulation period belongs, it should be observed that it bears no relation to the features of this Church Age, nor has it the characteristics of a dispensation in itself. Though it is the consummation of divine judgment upon all men and their institutions, it is especially Israelitish. The continuity of that Jewish age which began at Sinai is incomplete apart from the events which belong to the Great Tribulation. As stated by Daniel, the seventieth week is required for the finishing of Israel's transgression and the bringing in of everlasting righteousness (Dan. 9:24-27). The transgression to be 'finished' could be no part of this age of grace, but is rather of the preceding age. The fact that the general features which obtain in the Tribulation are similar to those principles which were peculiar to the law age is also conclusive. The sabbath is re-established (Matt. 24:20), the temple worship is renewed—though in unbelief—(Matt. 24:15; 2 Thess. 2:4), the Old Testament kingdom-hope will again be announced (Matt. 24:14), and the legal principle of merit and reward for endurance will again obtain throughout that brief period (Matt. 24:13). Not only does the law dispensation require the yet future Tribulation period for the execution of those divine judgements which belong to it, but, by the recognition of the sequence connecting these two periods of time, the continuity of purpose is preserved wherein the Messianic, earthly kingdom, which follows the Tribulation, is seen to be both the legitimate expectation and the logical consummation of the dispensation of the law. By so much it may be observed that the present unforeseen dispensation of grace is wholly parenthetical within the dispensation of the law.

of the Church continues from the cross of Christ and the advent of the Spirit to Christ's coming again to receive His own" (Chafer, MBT, 31%). "6) Grace... The Church Age. No longer requiring that righteousness be earned through obedience to the Law, God imputed His own righteousness to man by grace through faith in the completed work of the Lord Jesus, promising eternal blessing and a place in His own house to all who accept. It was the most outrageously lavish gift ever bestowed, free for the asking. But by the end of the Age of Grace most of humanity will have rejected His gift, choosing instead to live on their own terms, betting that either God doesn't exist, or if He does He'll allow them into His kingdom anyway. After removing the relative few who have accepted His gift so they'll be safe with Him, He'll punish the rest through the most severe time of judgment ever visited on Earth" (Kelley, SD). (See also our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church).)

7. Kingdom. "7. The Dispensation of the Kingdom. As predicted in all the Scriptures, Christ will return to this earth and reign sitting on the throne of David. In that time Israel's covenants will be fulfilled and her earthly blessings will overflow. However, the age ends with a revolt against God and the judgment of fire from heaven (Rev. 20:7-9). The duration of this dispensation is clearly declared to be a thousand years (Rev. 20:4, 6), or from the second coming of Christ to the new heaven and the new earth. As there was a dateless period before the creation of man in which there was both heaven and earth, so there will be a new heaven and a new earth after all dispensations have ceased" (Chafer, MBT, 31%). "The aim of God in the millennial age will be to test man with a last test to see if he will serve and obey Him. He has been tested in innocency, under conscience, under human government, under promise, under law; he is being tested now under distinctive grace. Then he will be tested in an age of righteousness. The test will show whether man under the most favorable of circumstances—with Satan bound and rendered harmless, with a renovated earth, with a harmony present throughout nature, and with the righteous King ruling and governing in righteousness, judgment, and justice—can be found to be well-pleasing in the sight of God. Man will fail, for he will still have the sin nature present with him. Another purpose of the age will be to fulfill God's oath and promise to David... to fulfill all the numberless prophecies of the Old Testament to Israel for her blessing" (Feinberg, M, p. 186). "7) Kingdom... the One Thousand Year Reign of the Lord, also known as the Millennium. At its outset Satan will be bound, all unbelievers will be expelled from the planet, the curse will be removed, and God will once again dwell in the midst of His people” (Kelley, SD). (See also our previous chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

“So concludes the series of the periods of human history in which people have been divinely examined under almost every conceivable condition: innocence, conscience, government, promise, law, grace, and the kingdom. In each case they proved (or will prove) that human freedom, left to itself, will always rebel against God. They have also demonstrated that God is always right and that real satisfaction comes only from obeying Him” (Geisler, ST, 3:163).

Chapter 27: The Lake of Fire

Before the ultimate end and goal, the Eternal Order, can be inaugurated, sin and death must first be defeated. While many sinners will already have been purged of sin and raised to eternal life at the beginning of the Millennial Kingdom (see our discussion of the first resurrection in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom), and while much of the curse on creation will have been lifted during the Millennial Kingdom (see our chapter The Millennial Kingdom), at the end of the Millennial Kingdom there will still be some mediatorial work yet to be done before sin will have been entirely defeated and before the last enemy, death, will have been brought to nothing (1 Cor. 15:26).

Events in Preparation for the Eternal Order

Events in preparation for the Eternal Order include the translation of the millennial saints, the resurrection of lost mankind, the passing away of the present heaven and earth, and the Great White Throne judgment.

Translation of the Millennial Saints

If the present heaven and earth are to pass away (see our discussion of the passing away of the present heaven and earth in the section Passing of the Present Heaven and Earth below), in preparation for the new heaven and earth (see our discussion of the creation of the new heaven and earth in the section A New Heaven and a New Earth are Created of our next chapter The Eternal Order), it follows that something must be done with the millennial saints who will be alive at the end of the Millennial Kingdom, such that they will not pass away with the passing away of the old earth. For this reason, while the idea cannot be found explicitly in Scripture, some scholars posit a translation or “rapture” of the millennial saints just prior to the passing away of the present earth. “...our inability to explain satisfactorily or decisively certain details respecting the Mill. Age (as e.g. if the righteous Jews, etc., are translated, or whether they die, and if so, when resurrected, etc.)” (Peters, TTK, 3:31). “Shall not God then during the ‘Renovation of the Earth by Fire,’ in some manner, not as yet revealed, take off righteous representatives of the Millennial nations that He purposes to save” (Larkin, DT, p. 147) “It is assumed, though the Scriptures do not state it, that the millennial saints at the end of the millennium will be translated prior to their entrance into the eternal state and thus will qualify for entrance into the heavenly Jerusalem” (Walvoord, MK, p. 328).

The Second Resurrection

Scripture is explicit, however, that there is to be a second resurrection “after the thousand years have been completed” (Rev. 20:5; the first resurrection having been completed one thousand years prior to this second resurrection). “The last enemy that will be abolished is death” (1 Cor. 15:26). “Truly, truly, I say to you, an hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear shall live. For just as the Father has life in Himself, even so He gave to the Son also to have life in Himself; and He gave Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man. Do not marvel at this; for an hour is coming, in which all who are in the tombs shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; those who did the good deeds to a resurrection of life, those who committed the evil deeds to a resurrection of judgment” (John 5:25-29). “And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the serpent of old, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he should not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be released for a short time. And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:1–6). “...an ultimate resurrection of the wicked... ‘the rest of the dead’... Russell and Barbour endeavor to get rid of the phrase in order to make out their peculiar (Rellyite) restoration of ‘the rest of the dead’ during the Millennial age. As the passage stands, it is utterly and positively antagonistic to their view” (Peters, TTK, 2:278). “Some endeavor to discard this verse as unauthorized, in order to make out (so Russell and Barbour, Three Worlds, etc.) a distinct and separate resurrection of the heathen at the beginning of the Mill. age, so as to give them another probation, etc. This view of a future probation for heathen, etc., is not new, for such men as Tholuck, Stilling, etc., adopted it” (ibid., p. 290). “Whatever truth there may be in Tholuck’s and Stilling’s theory, it is evident that it can only be realized after the thousand years, if realized at all. The same is true of Barbour and Russell's view, for the student will notice that their entire argument is purely inferential, being utterly unable to give a direct passage favoring it" (ibid., p. 291). "And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged from the things which were written in the books, according to their deeds. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and Hades gave up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every one of them according to their deeds. And death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:12-15). "Origen... if any man be saved in the Sec. Resurrection only, it is the sinner that needeth the baptism by fire... (Barbour's system is Origen's revived, viz., future salvation of sinners.)" (Peters, TTK, p. 243) "... 'the rest of the dead' are the wicked or unbelieving, seeing that the reason why they did not obtain the resurrection is because they were unholy, did not witness for Jesus, and did not reject the worship and mark of the beast" (ibid., p. 272). "This is the time, gloriously, yea, sadly suitable, which God has appointed for 'the rest of the dead to live again,' and behold with their own eyes the glory they have lost by not obeying God—a glory shining forth in the land, in the Theocratic government, in the subjects, in the immortal kings and priests, and in the exalted, enthroned Son of Man. Imagine just such a 'return,' under such circumstances, and then tell us, are 'holy men of old' wrong when they depict the shame, degradation, and unhappiness of the wicked at this period? Imagine Voltaire, Paine, Strauss, and a multitude like them to thus 'return' and see what they ridiculed, and what must then memory and conscience say" (ibid., p. 289)? "Whatever difficulties may exist in relation to the ultimate destiny of the wicked, we need not dogmatize on the subject, or advocate any special view, seeing that such a destiny does not affect the establishment of the Theocracy. But, nevertheless, as that destiny is connected with eschatology, it may be said that we cannot possibly receive the Universalist and Restorationist application of this 'restitution.' Barbour, Russell, Paton (in Herald of Kingdom, Three Worlds etc.) make it to include a restoration of all nations (the dead) back to 'their former state' (i.e. a fleshly one), and placing them under a second probation, with the doom of 'the second death' (from which there is no release) before them if unbelieving, etc... Whatever of truth may be in Tholuck's idea of a future probation for heathen, etc., one thing is self-evident, viz., that all such views, dogmatically expressed, are derived from mere inferences, for no one can find a single passage of Scripture that asserts a resurrection of the heathen dead or wicked dead at the beginning of or during the Millennium... the establishment of the covenanted Theocratic Kingdom. When this is done we may safely anticipate clearer light and a full vindication of God's justice and ways" (ibid., p. 468). "If any Righteous die between the First Resurrection and the Resurrection of the 'wicked' or Second Resurrection, they will rise with the wicked dead at that Resurrection. The words—'Whosoever was not found written in the Book of Life' (vs. 15), implies that there will be 'some,' probably very few, Righteous at the Second Resurrection" (Larkin, DT, p. 111). "Looking backward from the ages to come, resurrection must be recognized to be as universal as death has been" (Chafer, ST, 4:84). "Death, the 'last enemy,' shall be destroyed and that, evidently, by the resurrection of all that have ever lived and died (John 5:25-29; Rev 20:12-15)" (ibid., p. 264). "In Revelation 20:11-15 one of the saddest passages of Scripture is found... Though the Scriptures do not state so directly, it is implied that this is a judgment of the wicked dead who have not previously been raised from the grave" (Walvoord, MK, p. 332). "John 5:28-29... 'all who are in their graves will hear [the Son of Man's] voice and come out'... Everyone who has died will be physically resurrected in the future" (Geisler, ST, 4:267). "Death will be reversed for all human beings. Everyone, saved and unsaved, will be restored in their pre-resurrection body and made undying (immortal)" (ibid., p. 272). "John states emphatically (six times) that there will be a thousand years between the 'first resurrection' and the second one when 'the rest of the dead' are raised (cf. Rev. 20:3-6)" (ibid., p. 273). "Since the body is part of God's image (Gen. 1:27), even in unbelievers (Gen. 9:6; James 3:9), were God not to resurrect it forever, He would in effect be conceding victory over it to the devil. However, His Word declares that Christ will reign until He has defeated death (1 Cor. 15:26), and unless physical death is reversed for all people, death will not be completely defeated" (ibid.). "And God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them" (Gen. 1:27). "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed. For in the image of God made he man" (Gen. 9:6). "With it we bless our Lord and Father; and with it we curse men, who have been made in the likeness of God" (James 3:9) "John speaks of the period of both resurrections as an 'hour' (i.e., a long period of time), yet the first resurrection takes only 'the twinkling of an eye' (1 Cor. 15:52). Thus, the remainder of the 'hour' must transpire before the second resurrection" (Geisler, ST, 4:273). "Truly, truly, I say to you, an hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear shall live.

For just as the Father has life in Himself, even so He gave to the Son also to have life in Himself; and He gave Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man. Do not marvel at this; for an hour is coming, in which all who are in the tombs shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; those who did the good deeds to a resurrection of life, those who committed the evil deeds to a resurrection of judgment” (John 5:25–29). “in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed” (1 Cor. 15:52). “...the unilateral defeat of all death (e.g. 1 Cor. 15:26); this is fulfilled in the resurrection of all persons, saved and unsaved” (Geisler, ST, p. 407) “...death will finally be defeated by resurrection. Revelation 20:1-6 places the two resurrections as bookends of Christ’s reign: the first (of the saved) at the beginning, and the second (of the lost) at the end of the Millennium” (ibid., p. 490). “Whereas the first resurrection will be composed of believers only, the second resurrection will be composed of unbelievers only. The two resurrections will be separated by one thousand years. Just as the first resurrection is to be in stages (Jesus the firstfruits, the Church saints, the Old Testament saints, and then the Tribulation saints), so the second resurrection will be in stages. The firstfruits of the second resurrection will be the Antichrist, and his death and resurrection have already been described. One thousand years after the resurrection of the Antichrist, there will be the resurrection of all other unbelievers” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 516). “At the time of the second resurrection, the bodies of the unsaved will be resurrected, and the souls of Hell will be removed to be reunited with the bodies. At that time, the Hell portion of Sheol, or Hades, will also be eliminated, because Hell will not be the eternal abode of the lost: the Lake of Fire will be. Hell is a place of torment for the soul only, but the Lake of Fire will be a place of torment for both soul and body” (ibid., p. 519). We would emphasize again that Scripture intimates nothing concerning any resurrection that is to take place during the Millennial Kingdom itself, as taught by Jehovah’s Witnesses. Scripture does not speak of any “second chance” after death. Rather, “it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment” (Heb. 9:27)

Passing of the Present Heaven and Earth

In preparation for the creation of the new heaven and earth (see the section A New Heaven and a New Earth are Created of our next chapter The Eternal Order), the present heaven and earth will pass away. “For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be remembered, nor come into mind” (Isa. 65:17).

“Heaven and earth will pass away, but My words shall not pass away” (Matt. 24:35). “Heaven and earth will pass away, but My words will not pass away” (Mark 13:31). “And, Thou, Lord, in the beginning didst lay the foundation of the earth, And the heavens are the works of thy hands: They shall perish; but thou continuest: And they all shall wax old as doth a garment; And as a mantle shalt thou roll them up, As a garment, and they shall be changed: But thou art the same, And thy years shall not fail” (Heb. 1:10-12). “knowing this first, that in the last days mockers shall come with mockery, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for, from the day that the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation. For this they willfully forget, that there were heavens from of old, and an earth compacted out of water and amidst water, by the word of God; by which means the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished: but the heavens that now are, and the earth, by the same word have been stored up for fire, being reserved against the day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men. But forget not this one thing, beloved, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some count slackness; but is longsuffering to you-ward, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall be dissolved with fervent heat, and the earth and the works that are therein shall be burned up. Seeing that these things are thus all to be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy living and godliness, looking for and earnestly desiring the coming of the day of God, by reason of which the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat? But, according to his promise, we look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness” (2 Pet. 3:3-13). “The destruction of the earth described, therefore, in 2 Peter 3:10, is at the close of the Day of the Lord, rather than at the second coming, and is properly located at the end of the millennium when all wickedness in the earth will be judged in a final way” (Walvoord, MK, p. 273). “And the world is passing away, and also its lusts; but the one who does the will of God abides forever” (1 John. 2:17). “And I saw a great white throne and Him who sat upon it, from whose presence earth and heaven fled away, and no place was found for them” (Rev. 20:11). “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and there is no longer any sea” (Rev. 21:1). “A passing away of the old order will occur at the time of the Great White Throne Judgment. The present heavens and earth, in existence since Genesis one, will be done away with ([Rev. 20] v. 11b). That which was renovated for the Millennium, but polluted all over again with man's last revolt, will now be done away with forever" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 513).

The Great White Throne Judgment

Those raised in the second resurrection will be judged at the Great White Throne judgment. "And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison; and after many days shall they be visited" (Isa. 24:22). "Truly, truly, I say to you, an hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear shall live. For just as the Father has life in Himself, even so He gave to the Son also to have life in Himself; and He gave Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man. Do not marvel at this; for an hour is coming, in which all who are in the tombs shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; those who did the good deeds to a resurrection of life, those who committed the evil deeds to a resurrection of judgment" (John 5:25-29) "And inasmuch as it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment, so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, will appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him" (Heb. 9:27-28). "And angels who did not keep their own domain, but abandoned their proper abode, He has kept in eternal bonds under darkness for the judgment of the great day" (Jude 1:6). "And I saw a great white throne and Him who sat upon it, from whose presence earth and heaven fled away, and no place was found for them. And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged from the things which were written in the books, according to their deeds. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and Hades gave up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every one of them according to their deeds. And death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:11-15). "The Book of Life will be consulted to see if those who had been in Satan's kingdom were brought into the kingdom of God's beloved Son by faith in Him" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 318). "Although the throne-sitter is not named, in all probability it is Jesus the Messiah, for it is to Him that all judgment has been given (John 5:22)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 513). “For not even the Father judges anyone, but He has given all judgment to the Son” (John 5:22) “And he said to me, ‘Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near. Let the one who does wrong, still do wrong; and let the one who is filthy, still be filthy; and let the one who is righteous, still practice righteousness; and let the one who is holy, still keep himself holy.’ “Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to render to every man according to what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.” Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:10-15). “How inquisitors, executioners, defamers, etc. will face their victims, then exalted and glorified, and especially the magnificent King of kings, is clearly and pointedly represented in the Word” (Peters, TTK, 2:290). “A final judgment awaits those of all the ages who will not have been saved. To this end they must be raised from the dead after the millennial period. They are to be judged according to their works and are then committed to the lake of fire, which is the second death (cf. Rev. 20:12-15; 21:8; 22:10-15)” (Chafer, ST, 4:401). “This, the final judgment which consummates the judgment of the cross and the judgment of all people who are unredeemed, occurs at the close of the millennium. These people will be raised for that judgment and will be judged according to their works. These works are a matter of divine record in books which are open at that judgment. The book of life is also in evidence, but probably with a view to demonstrating that no errors have been made and that those gathered before the great white throne have not the gift of God which is eternal life. The doom that awaits them is terrible beyond comprehension; but it is the last word of a holy God respecting sin and all unrighteousness” (ibid., p. 411). “In view of the general tendency to confuse the judgment of the nations with that of the great white throne, the distinctions between them should be observed. At the judgment of the nations three classes are present— ‘sheep,’ ‘goats,’ and Christ’s ‘brethren,’ while at the judgment of the great white throne there is but one class—the wicked dead. In the former the scene is on earth, while in the latter it is in space. In the former the issue is the treatment of the Jew, while in the latter it is the evil works of those being judged. In the former some enter the kingdom at its inception and some go to the lake of fire, in the latter all go to the lake of fire” (ibid.). “This judgment scene lends no support to the fancy that men who reject Christ in this life will have another chance in realms beyond death. The unsaved remain what they were when death intervened and until they stand thus before God's great white throne to be judged according to their works" (ibid., 5:365). "Read carefully Revelation 20:11-15 and you will find no one who leaves the Great White Throne judgment for eternal life. All without exception go into the lake of fire. The book of life is produced to show they never trusted Christ and hence must be in the judgment of condemnation. Then the books of their deeds are brought forth to determine the degree of their eternal punishment. But no righteous are here whatsoever. The passage gives no justification for introducing them here" (Feinberg, M, p. 360). "The last judgment spoken of in the Word is that called the judgment of the Great White Throne (cf. Rev. 20:11-15). Its features are well-marked and distinct. The subjects of that judgment are all the unregenerate dead. It will take place after the thousand years of the millennial kingdom and will be preceded by the second resurrection. The assize will be held before the Great White Throne after heaven and earth have fled away. The subjects of the judgment will be judged as to the presence of their names in the book of life and according to their works. The outcome is that all, because their names are not written in the book of life, will be cast into the lake of fire to spend the eternal ages apart from the presence of the triune God and His holy saints" (ibid., p. 361). "...in chapter 4 [of Revelation]... Concerning the judgment throne set in heaven, John says, 'there was a rainbow round about the throne' (4:3), a symbol speaking clearly of bright hope for all who turn to God throughout the entire period. Thus, in the judicial dealings of God with men, there is a definite progression which runs through the ages. During the present age, the period of the Church, the throne is a 'throne of grace' with no mixture of penal judgment (Heb. 4:16 [Let us therefore draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy and may find grace to help in time of need.]); God is not today imputing unto men their trespasses in any formal or judicial sense (2 Cor. 5:19 [namely, that God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and He has committed to us the word of reconciliation.]). During the Kingdom age, including the judicial actions by which it will be established on earth, there will be a throne of judgment, but surrounded by a rainbow (Rev. 4:3 [And He who was sitting was like a jasper stone and a sardius in appearance; and there was a rainbow around the throne, like an emerald in appearance.]), thus suggesting grace in the midst of judgment. But when we come to the eternal state, it is prefaced by a throne of pure judgment, a 'great white throne' unrelieved by any color of hope; the subjects here being ‘the dead’ for whom there can be no hope (Rev. 20:11-15)” (McClain, GK, p. 458). “For the saved, on the other hand, there can be no such judgment, because their judgment with reference to sin took place at Calvary. It is a very solemn fact, of course, that the believer’s works must be brought into judgment for reward or loss (1 Cor. 3:12-15), but this will have taken place at some point between the Rapture of the Church and the establishment of the Millennial Kingdom; and it will have nothing to do with salvation. Furthermore, since all those saved before the Millennial Kingdom will have a part in the ‘first resurrection,’ and during the Millennium none of the saved will die, there appears to be no reason for any resurrection for saved people afterwards. If there are any of the saved in this final resurrection, nothing at all is said about their destination, whereas that of the unsaved is specifically stated (Rev. 20:15)” (ibid., p. 509). “Significantly, there is here no book of death, for while men are elected to salvation, none are elected to damnation. It is their own choice, not God’s that brings them at last into the place of doom” (ibid.). “...a ‘great white throne’ (vs. 11). Encircling this judgment throne there is no ‘rainbow’ of bright hope, as in the case of the pre-Kingdom judgment throne (4:3), bringing salvation to an innumerable multitude (7:9-14)” (ibid., p. 510). “The purpose of this judgment is not to determine who is to be lost or saved. This is a matter which must be settled before death. In this respect, all men are always living in a day of judgment, a time when by the grace of God personal destiny is determined by human decision. As our Lord once said, ‘He that believeth on him is not judged: he that believeth not hath been judged already, because he hath not believed on the name of the only begotten Son of God’ (John 3:18, ASV). The purpose of final judgment is to exhibit the character of the judged and award to them ‘according to their works’” (ibid., p. 508). “The wicked are not resurrected until the Great White Throne Judgment (Rev. 20:11-15)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 307). “...the judgment of the resurrected wicked dead at the great white throne which takes place in space after the present heaven and earth have been destroyed” (Walvoord, MK, p. 285). “The purpose of the Great White Throne Judgment is not to determine whether they were saved or unsaved; that is determined forever upon death. The purpose of this Great White Throne Judgment is to determine degree of punishment, because some will suffer more severely than others” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 756). “Ultimately, everyone, unregenerate and regenerate, will be judged by their works” (Geisler, ST, 3:408).

The Lake of Fire

Those judged adversely at the Great White Throne judgment will be cast into the lake of fire. “Then I saw a great white throne and Him who sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away. And there was found no place for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, standing before God, and books were opened. And another book was opened, which is the Book of Life. And the dead were judged according to their works, by the things which were written in the books. The sea gave up the dead who were in it, and Death and Hades delivered up the dead who were in them. And they were judged, each one according to his works. Then Death and Hades were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. And anyone not found written in the Book of Life was cast into the lake of fire” (Rev. 20:11-15). “this phraseology is intensely Jewish... ‘Let Reuben live in life eternal and not die the second death;’... ‘the second death which the wicked die in the world to come’” (Peters, TTK, 2:271) “At the conclusion of the millennial reign, Christ will demonstrate His authority not only by consigning Satan to the lake of fire, but also by judging and consigning to the lake of fire all of those who had been a part of Satan’s false kingdom... This will be done at the Great White Throne (Rev. 20:11-15)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 318). “The second resurrection will soon give way to the second death in the Lake of Fire, which will be the eternal abode of the lost” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 517).

The lake of fire is the same as Gehenna. “but I — I say to you, that every one who is angry at his brother without cause, shall be in danger of the judgment, and whoever may say to his brother, Empty fellow! shall be in danger of the sanhedrim, and whoever may say, Rebel! shall be in danger of the gehenna of the fire” (Matt. 5:22, YNG). “But, if thy right eye doth cause thee to stumble, pluck it out and cast from thee, for it is good to thee that one of thy members may perish, and not thy whole body be cast to gehenna. And, if thy right hand doth cause thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast from thee, for it is good to thee that one of thy members may perish, and not thy whole body be cast to gehenna” (Matt. 5:29–30, YNG). “And be not afraid of those killing the body, and are not able to kill the soul, but fear rather Him who is able both soul and body to destroy in gehenna” (Matt. 10:28, YNG). “And if thine eye doth cause thee to stumble, pluck it out and cast from thee; it is good for thee one-eyed to enter into the life, rather than having two eyes to be cast to the gehenna of the fire” (Matt. 18:9, YNG). “Woe to you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because ye go round the sea and the dry land to make one proselyte, and whenever it may happen — ye make him a son of gehenna twofold more than yourselves” (Matt. 23:15, YNG). “Serpents! brood of vipers! how may ye escape from the judgment of the gehenna” (Matt. 23:33, YNG)? “And if thy hand may cause thee to stumble, cut it off; it is better for thee maimed to enter into the life, than having the two hands, to go away to the gehenna, to the fire — the unquenchable —” (Mark 9:43, YNG) “And if thy foot may cause thee to stumble, cut it off; it is better for thee to enter into the life lame, than having the two feet to be cast to the gehenna, to the fire — the unquenchable —” (Mark 9:45, YNG) “And if thine eye may cause thee to stumble, cast it out; it is better for thee one-eyed to enter into the reign of God, than having two eyes, to be cast to the gehenna of the fire —” (Mark 9:47, YNG) “but I will show to you, whom ye may fear; Fear him who, after the killing, is having authority to cast to the gehenna; yes, I say to you, Fear ye Him” (Luke 12:5, YNG). “and the tongue [is] a fire, the world of the unrighteousness, so the tongue is set in our members, which is spotting our whole body, and is setting on fire the course of nature, and is set on fire by the gehenna” (James 3:6, YNG). “The Lake of Fire is the same as Gehenna. Gehenna is the proper name and the Lake of Fire is a descriptive name” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 745).

The Fact of the Lake of Fire

Concerning the reality and the certainty of the lake of fire, “And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt” (Dan. 12:2). “And they shall go forth, and look upon the dead bodies of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh” (Isa. 66:24). “And if your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it from you; it is better for you to enter life crippled or lame, than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the eternal fire. And if your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out, and throw it from you. It is better for you to enter life with one eye, than having two eyes, to be cast into the fiery hell” (Matt. 18:8-9). “Then He will also say to those on His left, Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels”” (Matt. 25:41) “And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:46). “And if your eye causes you to stumble, cast it out; it is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes, to be cast into hell, where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched” (Mark 9:47-48). “Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them, having in like manner with these given themselves over to fornication and gone after strange flesh, are set forth as an example, suffering the punishment of eternal fire" (Jude 1:7). "And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, 'If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.' Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus" (Rev. 14:9-12). "And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever" (Rev. 20:7-10). "And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged from the things which were written in the books, according to their deeds. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and Hades gave up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every one of them according to their deeds. And death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:12-15). "Outside [Without, ASV] are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying" (Rev. 22:15). "The place without will be the Lake of Fire" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 537). "The Scriptures do not even hint that fallen men who continue impenitent, or that fallen angels, will be rescued from their doom" (Chafer, ST, 2:53). "Jesus had more to say about hell than He did about heaven" (Geisler, 3:400).

The Nature of the Lake of Fire

Regarding the nature of the lake of fire, “And they shall go forth, and look upon the dead bodies of the men that have transgressed against me: for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh” (Isa. 66:24). “Hell is a place where the ‘worm’ never dies (Isa. 66:24; cf. Mark 9:43-48)” (Geisler, ST, 4:396). “And if your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it from you; it is better for you to enter life crippled or lame, than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the eternal fire. And if your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out, and throw it from you. It is better for you to enter life with one eye, than having two eyes, to be cast into the fiery hell” (Matt. 18:8-9). “Then He will also say to those on His left, ‘Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels’” (Matt. 25:41) “And if your hand causes you to stumble, cut it off; it is better for you to enter life crippled, than having your two hands, to go into hell, into the unquenchable fire, [where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.] And if your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off; it is better for you to enter life lame, than having your two feet, to be cast into hell, [where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.] And if your eye causes you to stumble, cast it out; it is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes, to be cast into hell, where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched” (Mark 9:43-48). “and to give relief to you who are afflicted and to us as well when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire, dealing out retribution to those who do not know God and to those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. And these will pay the penalty of eternal destruction, away from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power” (2 Thes. 1:7-9) “If destruction [at 2 Thess. 1:7-9] did mean ‘annihilation’ when used of the unbeliever’s post-death state, it would not be ‘everlasting’ destruction, for annihilation is instantaneous; annihilation does not stretch over a long period of time, let alone forever, but only takes an instant and then is over. If someone undergoes everlasting destruction, then they must have an everlasting existence. (Analogously, just as the cars in a junkyard have been destroyed but are not annihilated—they are beyond repair or irredeemable—so the people in hell are not extinguished but are simply irredeemable and irreparable.)” (Geisler, ST, 3: 396) “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death” (Rev. 2:11). “And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, ‘If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.’ Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus” (Rev. 14:9-12). “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever” (Rev. 20:7-10). “And death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone’s name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire” (Rev. 20:14-15). “The first death was not the separation of the soul from the body, but rather the separation of the soul from God. All who are born into this world have tasted the first death, and physical death is the result of that first death. But both of these are reversible through faith in Jesus Christ. The soul that was separated from the body will be reunited to the body by resurrection. The soul that was separated from God may be reunited to God by faith in Jesus Christ. However, those who have not experienced the new life in Christ will be eternally separated from God in second death. Even so, they will acknowledge that Jesus Christ is Lord (Phil. 2:11). Thus every member of the false kingdom who had been subjected to the authority of the false king will be brought into subjection to the authority of Jesus Christ” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 318). “Just as physical death is separation of the immaterial part of man from his physical body, so the second death is eternal separation of the wicked from God” (Walvoord, MK, p. 332). “...the second death; the first death is physical death and the second death is eternal, spiritual death in the Lake of Fire (Rev. 2:11; 20:14; 21:8)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 757). “But for the cowardly and unbelieving and abominable and murderers and immoral persons and sorcerers and idolaters and all liars, their part will be in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death” (Rev. 21:8). “John’s description of the new heaven and earth (after the lake-of-fire scene) reveals that the unsaved are still conscious; they are depicted as outside the gate of the heavenly city ([Rev.] 22:15)” (Geisler, ST, 4:396). “Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:14-15). “The strange notion that the devil is the king of hell has no basis in divine revelation. God is the King of hell, just as He is the King of everything else in time and space. And because this is so, that everlasting prison-house of the lost will not be the noisy and disorderly place that is sometimes imagined by the popular mind. There is no more orderly place than a well-disciplined prison, even under imperfect human government. There will be no riots in hell. For all those who reject the mercy of God in Christ and recognize no final argument but force, there will be force without stint or limit, the force of a divine government from which there can be no escape, either now or hereafter” (McClain, GK, p. 25). “The Lake of Fire is associated with fire and brimstone as the source of torment” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 746). “Millard Erickson [CT, 1234-35]... ‘If there is one basic characteristic of hell, it is, in contrast to heaven, the absence of God or banishment from his presence. It is an experience of intense anguish, whether it involve physical suffering or mental distress or both. There are other aspects of the situation of the lost individual which contribute to its misery. One is a sense of loneliness, of having seen the glory and greatness of God, of having realized that he is the Lord of all, and then of being cut off. There is the realization that this separation is permanent. Similarly, the condition of one’s moral and spiritual self is permanent. Whatever one is at the end of life will continue for all eternity. There is no basis for expecting change for the better. Thus, hopelessness comes over the individual’” (Geisler, ST, 3:408). “‘The second death,’ which is eternal separation from God ([Rev. 20] vv. 14-15)” (ibid., 4:264). “The first death is the separation of the soul from the body... the second death is the separation of the body and soul from God forever” (ibid., p. 393). “Adam and Eve died spiritually the moment they sinned, yet they still existed” (ibid.) “Annihilation is not torment but the cessation of torment” (ibid., p. 398).

Regarding the eternity of the lake of fire, “And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt” (Dan. 12:2). “Daniel 12:2... Daniel prophesied that some are going to be resurrected to everlasting life, and others resurrected to everlasting contempt. It is inconsistent exegesis or inconsistent interpretation to claim that when it speaks of everlasting life for the believer, it means immortality, but when it speaks about everlasting contempt for the unbeliever, then it is not immortality nor eternal. The same word is used in relation to the believer and the unbeliever in the same verse. One must never interpret the Bible in such a way that the same word in the same verse means two totally different things unless it can be proved by some indication, and there is no such indication in this verse” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 715). “And if your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it from you; it is better for you to enter life crippled or lame, than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the eternal fire. And if your eye causes you to stumble, pluck it out, and throw it from you. It is better for you to enter life with one eye, than having two eyes, to be cast into the fiery hell” (Matt. 18:8-9). “Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels”” (Matt. 25:41) “And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:46). “Matthew 25:46 points out that some go into eternal life while others go into eternal punishment. Again, if the believer receives eternal life and that means immortality for them, since Jesus used the same expression for the unbeliever when he speaks of eternal punishment, it must also mean immortality for them as well. Like Daniel 12:2, Matthew 25:46 uses the same terminology for the unbeliever as for the believer, and therefore it must mean the same thing. Again, it is simply inconsistent exegesis to take the same word and make it mean two opposite things in the same verse” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 715). “And if your eye causes you to stumble, cast it out; it is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes, to be cast into hell, where their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched” (Mark 9:47-48). “of instruction about washings, and laying on of hands, and the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment” (Heb. 6:2). “Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them, having in like manner with these given themselves over to fornication and gone after strange flesh, are set forth as an example, suffering the punishment of eternal fire” (Jude 1:7). “And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, ‘If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.’ Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus” (Rev. 14:9-12). “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever” (Rev. 20:7-10). “Revelation 20:10 points out that even after one thousand years in the Lake of Fire, the Antichrist is still alive in there” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 713). “...the Beast and the False Prophet are still in the Lake of Fire after one thousand years” (ibid., p. 717). “In respect to duration, the penalty continues forever, or as long as the unchangeable guilt endures. As long as the cause for penalty exists, there is reason for it to continue—the same reason which determined its infliction at all” (Chafer, ST, 2:280). “Even in the eternal state when God will rule over all, sinners will continue to exist in the eternal prison-house of the lost” (McClain, GK, p. 246). “William G. T. Shedd [HCC, II.414-19]... ‘The punishment inflicted upon the lost was regarded by the Fathers of the Ancient Church, with very few exceptions, as endless... The denial of the eternity of future punishments, in modern times, has consequently been a characteristic of those parties and individuals who have rejected, either partially or entirely, the dogma of infallible inspiration’” (Geisler, ST, 3:407).

Regarding the occupants of the lake of fire, “...the lake of fire, the final destiny of all unsaved” (Walvoord, MK, p. 332). “Gehenna is the eternal abode of the lost, both angels and men... the punishment in Gehenna includes both soul and body. That is why Gehenna must not be translated as ‘Hell,’ nor should it be equated with Hell” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 745). “The Lake of Fire is the eternal abode of all lost ones, both angels and men” (ibid.). The occupants of the lake of fire will be: The beast and the false prophet, “And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone” (Rev. 19:20). “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever” (Rev. 20:7-10). Satan, “Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels”” (Matt. 25:41) “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever” (Rev. 20:7-10). demons, “Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels”” (Matt. 25:41) “The final judgment of the wicked angels apparently occurs at the same time as Satan’s final judgment when he is cast into the lake of fire and brimstone” (Walvoord, MK, p. 294). lost humans, “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world... Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry, and you gave Me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink... And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46). “And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, ‘If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.’ Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus” (Rev. 14:9-12). “And if anyone’s name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire” (Rev. 20:15). “But for the cowardly and unbelieving and abominable and murderers and immoral persons and sorcerers and idolaters and all liars, their part will be in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death” (Rev. 21:8). “Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:15). and death and Hades. “Then Death and Hades were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death” (Rev. 20:14). “the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death’ 1 Cor. 15:26)... With the end of this ‘last enemy’ there can be no more any intermediate state; therefore ‘hades’ also is abolished” (McClain, GK, p. 512). “Both Death and Hades are cast into the Lake of Fire. Death refers to the material part of man, the body; Hades refers to the immaterial part of man, the soul and spirit. The Lake of Fire is a punishment for both of these” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 745). “...there is no greater or worse death than when death never dies” [quoting Augustine, City of God, 6.12] (Geisler, ST, 4:352).

Purposes of the Lake of Fire

The purposes of the lake of fire are to separate good from evil, to satisfy God’s justice and to glorify God.

Considered individually, the purposes of the lake of fire are:

To separate good from evil. “For just as the old nature of the individual believer will at last be destroyed, even so after the thousand years will the Kingdom be purged of all that needs to be held in restraint by immediate divine control. Thus the future regeneration of society will recapitulate the present regeneration of the individual. Neither grows gradually into a new birth; but each begins and ends with a distinct ‘crisis’ experience supernatural in character” (McClain, GK, p. 500). “What frustrates good people is evil, and what frustrates evil people is good. The final solution demands a separation, where there will be no more evil to frustrate good persons and no more good to frustrate evil persons” (Geisler, ST, 3:174). “In hell the tares are separated from the wheat and the evil from the good. This is both useful and necessary. For what frustrates evil is good. Hence, heaven is a place where there is no evil to frustrate good people, and hell is a place where there is no more good to frustrate evil people. The final separation is needed for the triumph of good over evil so that evil can no longer contaminate good" (ibid., 4:344).

To satisfy God's justice. "All human beings are either actively or passively useful to God. In heaven believers will be actively useful in praising His mercy; in hell unbelievers will be passively useful in bringing majesty to His justice" (Geisler, ST, 4:344).

And, to glorify God. The saved will forever glorify God's grace and mercy; the unsaved will forever glorify His justice. And, the wretchedness of the unsaved in the lake of fire, when compared with the blessedness of the saved in the new Heaven and new Earth, will forever demonstrate the enormity of God's grace (Eph. 2:7).

Why the Lake of Fire is Necessary

The lake of fire is necessary. "Let us receive all that is written, observing the same order laid down by the Spirit. If it be asked, Of what practical use or benefit can such a res. unto condemnation and shame be? the answers are various; such as, to vindicate the justice of God; to prove the truthfulness and reality of His representations and mercy; to apportion 'the few or many stripes' that the guilty merit; to fulfill His declaration that all the wicked shall see and acknowledge the Divine power; to show that death itself, as many fondly hope, is no refuge for the sinner; that a res. unto eternal life is the special gift of God through Jesus Christ; to contrast the condition of the res. saints with their own; to root out in the most effectual manner every remnant of evil; to give to the creatures of God, the universe itself, a sublime and abiding idea of the nature and consequences of sin" (Peters, TTK, 2:289).

It is necessary...

Because it is unavoidable. "Their [angels'] destiny, like that of fallen unregenerate humanity, is but a normal consummation of their wretched career" (Chafer, ST, 2:67). "The second death, being the unavoidable eternal character of spiritual death, is experienced by all who do not come by faith in Christ under the regenerating power of God" (ibid., p. 154).

Because it is just. "It is as certain as the character of God that whatever is imposed will be just and right, and it will be so recognized by all. God will not in this, any more than in any other undertaking, be the author of that which is evil" (Chafer, ST, 2:363). "There is no contradiction in God's desiring the good of even those whom He must justly punish, for it is good to punish evil” (Geisler, p. 352). “As for the justice of exercising wrath, it should be remarked that not to punish sin would be unjust. And, since God is eternal, not to punish sin eternally would be an eternal injustice. The sin of the ultimately unrepentant is sin against the eternal God, and a sin against the Eternal is deserving of eternal punishment” (ibid., p. 404). “...analogically, while it may take only an instant to kill someone, the deserved punishment is life in prison” (ibid., 4:341).

Because wrath proceeds from God’s holiness, righteousness and justice. “Wrath, while rooted in God’s essential nature as just, is not an attribute, but an act that flows from His unchanging righteousness” (Geisler, ST, 2:397). “It is because of His jealous zeal to protect His own supremacy that God executes wrath on evil” (ibid., p. 399). “J. I. Packer [in Knowing God, 154]... ‘As a reaction to sin, God’s wrath is an expression of his justice’” (ibid., p. 404). “He must punish evil or He would not be completely just, and He must punish it eternally, or He would not be eternally just” (ibid., 3:243).

Because of the magnitude of sin against an infinitely holy God. “Sin against the Eternal demands eternal consequence. God is forever just and hence cannot overlook sin forever” (Geisler, ST, 3:173). “Any sin committed against God has a certain infinity when regarded from the side of God, against whom it is committed. For Clearly, the greater the person who is offended, the more grievous is the offense. He who strikes a soldier is held more gravely accountable than if he struck a peasant: and his offense is much more serious if he strikes a prince or a king” [quoting Thomas Aquinas, Compendium of Theology, p. 183] (ibid., 4:354). “Since God is infinitely great, an offense committed against Him is in a certain respect infinite; and so a punishment that is in a certain respect infinite is attached to it. Such a punishment cannot be infinite in intensity, for nothing created can be infinite in this way. Consequently a punishment that is infinite in duration is rightly inflicted for mortal sin” [quoting Thomas Aquinas, Compendium of Theology, p. 183] (ibid.). “The fallacy in this conditionalist argument is akin to the claim that punishing someone forever is overkill for sins he committed in a lifetime. This is not overkill because sin against the Infinite has infinite significance and endless ramification. In the same sense, Christ’s finite suffering has infinite significance because of the suffering’s infinite value” (ibid., p. 403).

Because of the duration of sin against God. “God is absolutely holy, and as such He must punish sin. Therefore, as long as people are living in sin and rebellion against God, He must punish them” (Geisler, ST, 3:403).

“Charles Hodge [in Systematic Theology, III.878]... ‘If the evil of a single sin, and that the smallest, lasts forever, it is in one sense an infinite evil... Relief on this subject is sought from the consideration that as the lost continue to sin forever they may justly be punished forever. To this, however, it is answered that the retributions of eternity are threatened for the sins done in the body. This is true; nevertheless, it is also true, first, that sin in its nature is alienation and separation from God, and as God is the source of all holiness and happiness, separation from Him is of necessity the forfeiture of all good; secondly, this separation is from its nature final and consequently involves endless sinfulness and misery’” (ibid., p. 407). “...since he is in sin for eternity, he is reasonably punished by God for all eternity” [quoting Thomas Aquinas, Compendium of Theology, p. 183] (ibid., 4:354). “While a person is still capable of correction, temporal punishment is imposed for his emendation or cleansing. But if a sinner is incorrigible, so that his will is obstinately fixed in sin... his punishment ought never to come to an end” [quoting Thomas Aquinas, Compendium of Theology, p. 183] (ibid.).

Because God is eternally displeased with sin. “There was no change of view on God’s wrath during the Middle Ages. Like their theological forebears, the medieval Fathers also viewed God as consistently and eternally displeased with sin” (Geisler, ST, 2:400).

Because some people are not reformable. “Hell is not for anyone who is reformable” (Geisler, ST, 4:340)

Because sinners prefer alienation from God. “...in the words of C.S. Lewis [PP, 115-16], ‘I willingly believe that the damned are, in one sense, successful rebels to the end; that the doors of hell are locked on the inside. I do not mean that the ghosts may not wish to come out of hell... but they certainly do not will even the first preliminary stages of that self-abandonment through which alone the soul can reach any good. They enjoy forever the horrible freedom they have demanded, and are therefore self-enslaved’” (Geisler, ST, 3:409). “Unbelievers prefer to be distanced from God in time. Why should we not expect this to be their chosen state in eternity” (ibid., 4:342)? “God still loves even people who are in hell, but they are separated from His love, having refused it in favor of isolation” (ibid., 3:309). “Scripture nowhere describes hell as a torture chamber where people are forced against their will to undergo agonizing pain... a loving God will not torture anyone... unlike torture, which is inflicted from without against one’s will, torment is self-inflicted by one’s own will” (ibid., 4:338). “Torment is living with the consequences of our own bad choices... Everyone in hell will know that the pain he or she suffers is self-induced; hence, the ‘weeping and gnashing of teeth' (Matt. 22:13; Mark 8:12)" (ibid.). "As opposed to softening a hard heart, suffering often has the result of hardening it more" (ibid., p. 341).

Because it is the natural reaction of sinners to God's presence. "The fiery oven is ignited merely by the unbearable appearance of God and endures eternally. For the Day of Judgment will not last for a moment only but will stand throughout eternity and will thereafter never come to an end. Constantly the damned will be judged, constantly they will suffer pain, and constantly they will be a fiery oven, that is, they will be tortured within by supreme distress and tribulation" [quoting Martin Luther, What Luther Says, 2:627] (Geisler, ST, 4:355).

And, because annihilation would be inhumane. "It is not consistent with the character of an all-loving God to snuff out the souls of those who do not do His wishes" (Geisler, ST, 4:339) "It is precisely because we are not animals that God does not treat us like them. Annihilating those who do not carry out His will would be unkind and unmerciful, as would be a father who shot his son because the young man grew up and disagreed with him. It is more merciful for God to allow us to choose our own way—even if it is against His will—than to force His will on us" (ibid., p. 346). "Annihilating a human being would violate what God determined is most precious—the gift of freedom to choose one's destiny. Since free will (as part of God's image) is morally good, taking it away would be a moral evil. This is what annihilation would achieve—the eternal destruction of human freedom. Annihilationism has it backward: What is truly inhumane (anti-human) is to destroy a person's humanness" (ibid., p. 407).

Why We Have Difficulty Accepting the Doctrine

We acknowledge the difficulty of accepting the doctrine of eternal punishment. "But if our unrighteousness demonstrates the righteousness of God, what shall we say? The God who inflicts wrath is not unrighteous, is He? (I am speaking in human terms.) May it never be! For otherwise how will God judge the world" (Rom. 3:5-6)? "Such an annihilation of the incurably Evil would, we readily confess, appear most acceptable to us" (Chafer, ST, 4:425). "There are numerous discomfiting dimensions to the Christian belief in God. God is not only a Father who provides; He is also a Judge who punishes. Christians believe in hell, and yet no one really wishes this to be true" (Geisler, ST, 1:581).

We suggest that we have this difficulty...

Because we don't believe the Bible. "We must deduce our theology from the Scriptures, not interpret Scriptures by our preconceived theology or our emotional preferences" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 718).

Because some of our Bible translations are faulty. "Inadequate, if not insincere, translations are published which no Greek scholar can countenance, with the one purpose in view of expunging from the Word of God the eternal character of these awful sufferings... 'that new Bible that has no hell in it'" (Chafer, ST, 4:431)

Because we can't fully comprehend God's holiness and justice. "If eternal punishment cannot be comprehended, it should be remembered that infinite holiness and the sin by which infinite holiness is outraged are equally unmeasurable by the human mind" (Chafer, MBT, 98%). "Those who resent the idea of eternal retribution are, in fact, resenting divine holiness" (Chafer, ST, 4:433). "Concerning God's justice, it is a matter of human opinion that the justice of God would not allow for eternal punishment. The Bible actually teaches otherwise: that the very justice of God requires eternal punishment for those who have rejected the eternal life He has provided for them" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 710). "Any protest against God's wrath is equally an objection against His holiness and justice, from which it flows" (Geisler, ST, 2:404). "If God is the ultimate standard for what is morally right (just), then we cannot impose our concept of justice upon Him" (ibid., 4:406).

Because we lack the capacity for a proper evaluation of sin. "Is evil worthy of eternal separation from God? Upon this issue the human mind can throw no light. What the true nature of sin is as valued by God who is infinitely holy, must be accepted in the terms of revelation. Being against God, sin assumes the quality of infinity. Naturally, the inquiry arises, Could God not have elected to save all? To the same end, another inquiry arises, Would He not have been justified in reprobating all? To all such questions, though sincere, no reply is possible. God is proved to be worthy of unquestioning trust, and assurance is given that He is doing what is best. That conclusion will be embraced by all when the task is done" (Chafer, ST, 1:247). "Since God is infinite and His goodness unbounded, sin is infinite and its evil character is beyond all human computation. Sin inflicts not only an immeasurable injury upon the one who sins, but is more specifically characterized by the injury it inflicts upon God, the Creator's rights being disregarded, His holy law broken, and His property being damaged through sin" (ibid., 2:249). "No fallen human being can ever attain to an understanding of the holiness of God, and, to the same degree, no fallen human being can attain to the right conception of the sinful nature of sin" (ibid., p.

251). “When the creature knows the evil character of sin as God knows it and the perfection of holiness which sin outrages, then may he sit in judgment on the question of whether eternal retribution of men and angels is consonant with the character of God” (ibid., 4:428). “Charles Hodge [in Systematic Theology, III.878]... ‘We are incompetent judges of the penalty which sin deserves. We have no adequate apprehension of its inherent guilt, of the dignity of the person against whom it is committed, or of the extent of the evil which it is suited to produce’” (Geisler, 3:407). “If we had a true spiritual awareness, we would not be amazed at hell’s severity but at our own depravity” [quoting Jonathan Edwards, The Works of Jonathan Edwards, 1.109] (ibid., 4:356).

Because we misconstrue God’s wrath. “Ye know this, my beloved brethren. But let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath: for the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God” (Jas. 1:19-20). “William G.T. Shedd [in Dogmatic Theology, 176]... ‘There is a kind of wrath in the human soul that resembles the wrath of God, and constitutes its true analogue. It is the wrath of the human conscience, which is wholly different from that of the human heart’” (Geisler, ST, 2:401).

Because we think suffering is incompatible with a loving God. “Wrath and mercy are not incompatible, since they are exercised toward different objects; wrath is on the unrepentant, and mercy is on the repentant... God is consistently and unchangeably angry with sin and consistently and unchangeably delighted with righteousness” (Geisler, ST, 2:404). “God allows plenty of suffering in this world. It is an empirical fact that God and creature-pain are not incompatible” (ibid., 4:346). “God could not possibly have been more merciful” (ibid., p. 347). “If it is inconsistent with God’s love to have man eternally punished, it would also be against God’s love to have man suffer Hell temporarily or to allow man’s misery at the present time” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 710).

Because we think we know better than God does. “For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith Jehovah. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts” (Isa. 55:8-9). “You will say to me then, ‘Why does He still find fault? For who resists His will?’ On the contrary, who are you, O man, who answers back to God? The thing molded will not say to the molder, ‘Why did you make me like this,’ will it” (Rom. 9:19–20)? “It ill becomes the wisest of men to speculate even on what God ought, or ought not, to do. Much that is written on these subjects is distinguished for its shocking irreverence” (Chafer, ST, 1:248). “When it is discovered that divine judgments for sin reach to eternity, as indeed they do, it ill becomes finite, fallen man to call these judgments into question” (ibid., 2:251).

Because we put human sentiment and reason above the word of God. “With all others of this belief, the restitutionist builds on human sentiment and reason more than upon the Word of God” (Chafer, ST, 4:426).

Because we are inclined toward wishful thinking. “Sigmund Freud (1856-1939) taught that any belief based on a mere wish that something be true is an illusion. No loving person would want anyone else to suffer in hell forever; however, strong desire to the contrary seems to be a primary impulse in universalist thinking, setting up an implausible and unbiblical system of belief” (Geisler, ST, 3:404). “Augustine [in E, 99]... ‘It is in vain, then, that some, indeed very many, make moan over the eternal punishment, and perpetual unintermitted torments of the lost, and say they do not believe it shall be so; not, indeed, that they directly oppose themselves to Holy Scripture, but, at the suggestion of their own feelings, they soften down everything that seems hard, and give a milder turn to statements which they think are rather designed to terrify than to be received as literally true’” (ibid., p. 405). “The root of the denial of hell is the wish to avoid suffering—no one wants to suffer, let alone suffer forever. However, this is nothing more than the wish that it be so; the denial of hell, like its cousin universalism, is illusory” (ibid., 4:359). “Anything based on wish-fulfillment is an illusion” (ibid., p. 410).

And, because we think we’ll be burdened by others’ suffering forever. “It will not be a burden. Believers are going to be in a perfect, holy state and will not sustain the same relationship to the unsaved as they do now. At that time, they will not feel this burden. They will have the mind of God and will see it from His perspective, not their own” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 711).

Chapter 28: The Eternal Order

With the resurrection of lost mankind, the passing away of the present heaven and earth and the Great White Throne judgment being completed, as discussed in our previous chapter The Lake of Fire, only a few (but awe-inspiring) final events in the Kingdom program remain to be completed before the ultimate end and goal of the Kingdom program, the Eternal Order²³, can be inaugurated.

Final Events in Preparation for the Eternal Order

Final events in preparation for the Eternal Order include Christ's handing the Kingdom over to the Father, creation of the new heaven and new earth, and the descending of the New Jerusalem out of heaven to the new earth.

Christ Hands the Kingdom Over to His Father

After the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom has accomplished all of its mediatorial work, Jesus will hand all things, including the Kingdom and even His own Person, back to God the Father. “then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that will be abolished is death. For He has put all things in subjection under His feet. But when He says, ‘All things are put in subjection,’ it is evident that He is excepted who put all things in subjection to Him. And when all things are subjected to Him, then the Son Himself also will be subjected to the One who subjected all things to Him, that God may be all in all” (1 Cor. 15:24-28). “Waggoner (Ref. of Age) makes this reign of Christ on the throne of the Universe the one that he resigns, 1 Cor. 15:24. But this cannot be so, seeing that God ruling as a Theocratic King does not necessitate the relinquishment of the other, that Jesus acting as Theocratic King never gives up the oneness with the Father or the fulness of the Godhead” (Peters, TTK, 1:563) “All members of the Trinity are equal in essence, but they do not have the same roles. It is a heresy (called subordinationism) to affirm that there is an ontological subordination of one member of the Trinity to another, since they are identical in essence; nonetheless, it is clear that there is a functional subordination; that is, not only does each member have a different function or role, but some functions are also subordinate to others” (Geisler, ST, 2:290). “...the orthodox belief that the Son (Christ) is functionally subordinate to (i.e. subject to) the Father, though essentially equal with Him” (ibid., p. 297). “The reconciliation of the ‘many days’ with the idea of ‘everlasting’ will be found in the fact that, at the close of human history, the Mediatorial Kingdom of our Lord will be merged into the Universal Kingdom and thus perpetuated forever (1 Cor. 15:24-28)” (McClain, GK, p. 216). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will punish the host of the high ones on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth. And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison; and after many days shall they be visited” (Isa. 24:21-22). “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13-14). “Ultimately, the power and the authority of the Kingdom must be turned over to God the Father. But this can only occur after every enemy of man is abolished and there is no longer any challenge to God’s rule, authority, and power ([1 Cor. 15] v. 24). For this very reason, the Messiah must rule until every single enemy of man has been placed under subjection (vs. 25). The last of the enemies of man is not Satan, but death itself (v. 26)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 512).

A New Heaven and a New Earth are Created

The old heaven and the old earth having passed away (see the section Passing of the Old Heaven and Earth of our previous chapter The Lake of Fire), God will create a new heaven and a new earth wherein will dwell righteousness. “For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be remembered, nor come into mind” (Isa. 65:17). “For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith Jehovah, so shall your seed and your name remain” (Isa. 66:22). “But according to His promise we are looking for new heavens and a new earth, in which righteousness dwells” (2 Pet. 3:13). “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth are passed away; and the sea is no more” (Rev. 21:1). “And He who sits on the throne said, ‘Behold, I am making all things new.’ And He said, ‘Write, for these words are faithful and true’” (Rev. 21:5). “Of all the final works of God, none could surpass the creation of a new heaven and a new earth. Though only the angels may have witnessed the creation of the present order, all living creatures will observe the final act of creation” (Chafer, ST, 4:401). “A new heaven, and a new earth... The ‘heaven’ and ‘earth’ here undoubtedly refer to the physical universe. The ‘first’ or original universe passes away, and is replaced by a ‘new’ universe. This does not necessarily mean the annihilation of our present world of matter; for the Greek kainos may mean new in character rather than in substance. The same term is used of the regenerated believer: he becomes a ‘new creation’ (2 Cor. 5:17, ASV) in a crisis which does not annihilate the personal entity but transforms it” (McClain, GK, p. 510). “Most conservative expositors agree that Revelation 21:1-8 has reference to the eternal state, the new heaven and the new earth which will be created after the millennium, and the holy city, the New Jerusalem as it will exist in eternity” (Walvoord, MK, p. 327). “God will have fulfilled His purpose of restoring the theocracy to the earth through the Kinsman-Redeemer, Jesus Christ. After this purpose has run its full course on earth, God will judge Satan and his forces for eternity, destroy the present heaven and earth, and create new ones for the future eternal state (Rev. 20:7-22:21)” (Showers, M, p. 98). “The New Earth is also the destiny of the Church saint, but the Church will remain distinct from Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 440). “Heaven will not be the eternal abode of the believer, as the last two chapters of the Revelation reveal” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 519).

The New Jerusalem Descends to the New Earth

The New Jerusalem will then descend out of heaven to the new earth. “By faith Abraham, when he was called, obeyed by going out to a place which he was to receive for an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing where he was going. By faith he lived as an alien in the land of promise, as in a foreign land, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, fellow heirs of the same promise; for he was looking for the city which has foundations, whose architect and builder is God” (Heb. 11:8–10). “While the Jerusalem on earth was continually under bondage and subjugated by various forces, the New Jerusalem in Heaven has been eternally free and will always remain so. It was this particular city that Abraham was seeking, according to Hebrews 11:9-10” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 524). “All these died in faith, without receiving the promises, but having seen them and having welcomed them from a distance, and having confessed that they were strangers and exiles on the earth. For those who say such things make it clear that they are seeking a country of their own. And indeed if they had been thinking of that country from which they went out, they would have had opportunity to return. But as it is, they desire a better country, that is a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; for He has prepared a city for them" (Heb. 11:13–16). "Heb. 11:13-16. It is evident from these verses that the hope which was Abraham's in resurrection had to do with a heavenly city rather than an earthly kingdom" (Walvoord, MK, p. 326). "But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to myriads of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first-born who are enrolled in heaven, and to God, the Judge of all, and to the spirits of righteous men made perfect, and to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood, which speaks better than the blood of Abel" (Heb. 12:22–24). "Hebrews 12:22-24... This important passage teaches that saints of all ages will be in the heavenly Jerusalem" (Walvoord, MK, p. 326). "...the spirits of just men made perfect, who are the Old Testament saints. They were just in their day because they were justified by their faith, but they were made perfect at the death of the Messiah" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 525). "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and there is no longer any sea. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne, saying, 'Behold, the tabernacle of God is among men, and He shall dwell among them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be among them'" (Rev. 21:1-3) "And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and spoke with me, saying, 'Come here, I shall show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.' And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. Her brilliance was like a very costly stone, as a stone of crystal-clear jasper. It had a great and high wall, with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels; and names were written on them, which are those of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel. There were three gates on the east and three gates on the north and three gates on the south and three gates on the west. And the wall of the city had twelve foundation stones, and on them were the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. And the one who spoke with me had a gold measuring rod to measure the city, and its gates and its wall. And the city is laid out as a square, and its length is as great as the width; and he measured the city with the rod, fifteen hundred miles; its length and width and height are equal. And he measured its wall, seventy-two yards, according to human measurements, which are also angelic measurements. And the material of the wall was jasper; and the city was pure gold, like clear glass. The foundation stones of the city wall were adorned with every kind of precious stone. The first foundation stone was jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, chalcidony; the fourth, emerald; the fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, topaz; the tenth, chrysoprase; the eleventh, jacinth; the twelfth, amethyst. And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; each one of the gates was a single pearl. And the street of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass. And I saw no temple in it, for the Lord God, the Almighty, and the Lamb, are its temple. And the city has no need of the sun or of the moon to shine upon it, for the glory of God has illumined it, and its lamp is the Lamb. And the nations shall walk by its light, and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory into it. And in the daytime (for there shall be no night there) its gates shall never be closed; and they shall bring the glory and the honor of the nations into it; and nothing unclean and no one who practices abomination and lying, shall ever come into it, but only those whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life" (Rev. 21:9-27). "He is told that he is about to be shown more concerning the Bride of the Messiah (v. 9), namely, the eternal abode of the Bride—the New Jerusalem (v. 10) that will come down to the freshly created new earth from Heaven where it has eternally been" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 527). "...the Shechinah Glory of the Lamb, which will lighten all for the Eternal Order. The Gentiles of the earth will walk by means of this light, as well as those who served as kings in the old order. The mention of Gentiles shows that the Jew and Gentile distinction will be maintained for all eternity, but there is no mention of any functional difference" (ibid., p. 530). "...nothing of unrighteousness will ever be allowed to enter into the eternal city. All unrighteousness will now be confined in the Lake of Fire" (ibid., p. 531). "And he showed me a river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming from the throne of God and of the Lamb, in the middle of its street. And on either side of the river was the tree of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him; and they shall see His face, and His name shall be on their foreheads. And there shall no longer be any night; and they shall not have need of the light of a lamp nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God shall illumine them; and they shall reign forever and ever" (Rev. 22:1-5). "It should be noted that the word month is used, so some kind of dating system will be present in the Eternal Order. Since there will be no sun, moon, or night, it will be a radically different dating system than the one in which we presently live” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 531). “The destiny of all the elect, both under the Old and New, is the same” (Peters, TTK, 1:158) “...the city New Jerusalem... early Church... hold that it represents a literal city” (ibid., 3:40) “...the whole city being become ‘a holy of holies’” (ibid., p. 44) “The partial particularizing, and the ‘like unto,’ are of such a nature that the reality may greatly exceed even the description” (ibid., p. 46). “...1500 miles square... would occupy more than one-half of the United States” (Larkin, DT, p. 146). “...the New Jerusalem, which is not synonymous with heaven” (Feinberg, M, p. 231) “The city is to be inhabited by God, by the church, by the redeemed of Israel, and by the redeemed of all ages, together with the unfallen angels. However, this city seems to take her chief characterization from the bride who dwells there” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 576). “By some interpreters, the New Jerusalem of chapter 21 has been assigned to the Millennial Kingdom of chapter 20. But this view must be rejected for various good reasons: First, it would seriously violate the literary order of the book, by reverting to a description of the Millennium after what is admittedly an account of the last Judgment in 20:11-15, which follows the Millennial Kingdom. Second, in the new condition described by chapter 21 there is neither sin nor death, but in the Millennium both are present. Third, in the language of 20:1-22:5 there is a constantly recurring note of eternal finality which would be entirely inappropriate for the Millennial Kingdom which is transitional in character—‘a thousand years’ in length. As to the order of events, the conclusion of Alford is sound: ‘The whole of the things described in the remaining portion of the book (21:1-22:5) is subsequent to the general judgment, and descriptive of the consummation of the triumph and bliss of Christ’s people with Him in the eternal Kingdom of God’” [quoting Henry Alford, New Testament for English Readers, on Rev. 21:1] (McClain, GK, p. 507). “Both Israel and the Church will share in the New Jerusalem upon the New Earth when ‘God will tabernacle among men’” [quoting Chafer, Dispensationalism, pp. 57-67] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 440). “...the Shechinah Glory, whose final abode will be in the New Jerusalem” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 528). “...about 1,500 miles long, wide, and high” (ibid.). “As for the wall, it will measure 216 feet high” (ibid., p. 529) “The New Jerusalem is synonymous with Heaven; they are one and the same. One could also say that the New Jerusalem is now in Heaven, but either way they are in the same locale and are more or less synonymous... If one distinguishes between Heaven and the New Jerusalem, then one can say that believers now go to the New Jerusalem in Heaven, and eventually the New Jerusalem will be placed on the new earth, when the new earth is created after the Messianic Kingdom” (ibid., p. 750). “...the new Jerusalem descending from heaven gives prominent recognition to 24 descendants of Abraham, ‘the 12 tribes of the sons of Israel’ and ‘the Lamb’s 12 apostles’ (Rev. 21:2, 12, 14)” (Horner, FI, p. 58)!

Description of the Eternal Order

Undoubtedly, many of the realities of the Eternal Order, even if described to us in detail, would be difficult, if not impossible, for our finite minds to grasp. For instance, the very concept of eternity is beyond our comprehension. “The problem as to how time is disposed of in eternity is beyond the penetration of the finite minds” (Chafer, ST, 1:216).

Whether the Eternal Order will include a succession of future ages, and/or whether mankind will continue to procreate in the Eternal Order are two subjects concerning which we can now only speculate. “As various writers (e.g. Lord, Judge Jones, Brookes, Bickersteth, etc.) have intimated, these [future] ‘times’ may include successive eras, economies, ascending stages of glory... it is proper for us to avoid giving, what can only be conjecture, any decisive opinion concerning the phraseology which seems to involve a succession of eras in the continuation of a restored world” (Peters, TTK, 2:468). “We are satisfied to end the discussion where the Bible ends it, viz., with a portion of the race glorified and the race itself redeemed from the curse, passing on to higher stages of blessedness, and entering into the eternal ages in this happy condition. If Adam forfeited never-ending generations—if this was part of God’s original design—then the restitution will restore and carry it out; but if not, then only that wonderful increase commensurate with God’s design will be produced. Here we stop: that the race is perpetuated after the Advent is true; that this will continue on after the thousand years (which only limits Satan’s binding, etc.), is most certain; that it even may continue on forever may, for aught we know, be also correct (seeing that some language can scarcely be interpreted otherwise), but as to the latter, not feeling positive, we stop with ‘the many generations’ of Isa. 60:15” (ibid., p. 538). “Whereas thou hast been forsaken and hated, so that no man passed through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations” (Isa. 60:15).

However, Scripture does reveal a number of things concerning the Eternal Order that give us at least a basic idea of what that new Order will be like. These things include the facts that:

There will be only one throne rather than two. “And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him” (Rev. 22:3) “There are no longer two thrones: one His Messianic throne and the other the Father’s throne, as our Lord indicated in Revelation 3:21. In the final Kingdom there is but one throne, and it is ‘the throne of God and of the Lamb’ (22:3)” (McClain, GK, p. 513).

The Jewish/Gentile distinction will continue forever. “And the nations shall walk amidst the light thereof: and the kings of the earth bring their glory into it. And the gates thereof shall in no wise be shut by day for there shall be no night there: and they shall bring the glory and the honor of the nations into it” (Rev. 21:24-26) “The mention of ‘Gentiles’ shows that the Jewish and Gentile distinction will be maintained for all eternity” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 819). “The Greek word for nations is the term that means ‘Gentiles.’ This again shows that the Jewish-Gentile distinction continues though, there is no functional difference” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 531). “Ryrie [in Dispensationalism Today, pp. 146-147] clarifies the dispensational position and provides a balanced view. He points out that such an ‘apparent dichotomy between heavenly and earthly purposes is not actual.’ When Dispensationalists speak of ‘the earthly purpose of Israel,’ they mean that the national promises made to Israel ‘will be fulfilled by Jews during the millennium as they live on earth in unresurrected bodies.’ However, Jewish believers who died during ‘the Mosaic age’ and Jewish believers who die today do have ‘a heavenly destiny.’ Jewish believers today ‘are members of the Church, His Body, and their destiny is the same as Gentile believers.’ In the Messianic Kingdom, ‘those Jews who will be living on the earth in earthly bodies... and those who will be born with earthly bodies during the period’ will experience ‘the earthly promises’ contained in the Jewish Covenants. This is all that Dispensationalism means by Israel being an ‘earthly people’ with ‘earthly promises.’ This does not mean that there is no ‘heavenly hope and future for Israel.’ Dispensationalists have always affirmed that ‘the spirits of just men made perfect’ of Hebrews 12:22-23 are the Old Testament saints ‘who have their place in the heavenly city along with the Church of the firstborn ones.’ Just as the Church will be on earth co-reigning with Christ in the Messianic Kingdom, so will Israel be in the heavenly Jerusalem in the Eternal State. Even in the Eternal State, Israel and the Church are kept distinct for ‘distinction is maintained even though the destiny is the same.’ Ryrie’s conclusion is that ‘the earthly-heavenly, Israel-Church distinction taught by dispensationalists is true, but it is not everything that dispensationalists teach about the ultimate destiny of the people included in these groups” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 455). “Even in the Eternal State, the Jewish distinctive will be somewhat maintained though there is no clear indication if that will mean a functional difference” (ibid., p. 819). (See also our discussion of heavenly vs. earthly hopes in the section The Identity of the Church: The Church is Not Israel of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

The Davidic Kingdom will continue forever. “If these ordinances depart from before me, saith Jehovah, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever. Thus saith Jehovah: If heaven above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, then will I also cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 31:36-37). “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this” (Isa. 9:6-7). “For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith Jehovah, so shall your seed and your name remain” (Isa. 66:22). “And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:14). “And behold, you will conceive in your womb, and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:31-33). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever” (Rev. 11:15). “And there shall no longer be any night; and they shall not have need of the light of a lamp nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God shall illumine them; and they shall reign forever and ever” (Rev. 22:5). “And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him; and they shall see His face, and His name shall be on their foreheads. And there shall no longer be any night; and they shall not have need of the light of a lamp nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God shall illumine them; and they shall reign forever and ever” (Rev. 22:3-5). “...the covenanted and predicted Messianic Kingdom at the Sec. Coming of Jesus—some correctly extending it beyond the one thousand years” (Peters, TTK, 1:695) “...the thousand years do not limit their reign” (ibid., 2:279) “...the thousand years (which years do not limit the reign, but the binding of Satan and non-resurrection of the wicked)” (ibid., p. 411) “The Kingdom when once established under David’s Son ever exists—His heavens rule and His earth or people are obedient—whatever changes may be introduced after the ending of the Millennial period” (ibid., p. 503). “...the Nicene Constantinopolitan Creed emphatically teaches of the Messiah’s Kingdom: ‘Whose Kingdom shall have no end’” (ibid., p. 632). “There is only one passage in Scripture which is supposed to teach the yielding up or ending of the distinctive Messianic Kingdom, viz., 1 Cor. 15:27, 28... this passage, so difficult of interpretation (universally so acknowledged), ought not to be pressed against the testimony of a multitude of other passages, either to the separation of the Christ, or to the removal of His distinctive kingship as the Christ, or to the diminishing of any honor, etc., conferred upon Him... Surely, we introduce nothing so derogatory to the dignity and honor of Jesus, that He forever yields up His inheritance, purchased by His obedience and death” (ibid., p. 634). “But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, after that those who are Christ’s at His coming, then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that will be abolished is death. For HE HAS PUT ALL THINGS IN SUBJECTION UNDER HIS FEET. But when He says, ‘All things are put in subjection,’ it is evident that He is excepted who put all things in subjection to Him. And when all things are subjected to Him, then the Son Himself also will be subjected to the One who subjected all things to Him, that God may be all in all” (1 Cor. 15:23–28). “This perpetuity the Jews affirmed when they declared of the Messiah that ‘He abideth forever’ (Jno. 12:34)” (Peters, TTK, p. 638) “The multitude therefore answered Him, ‘We have heard out of the Law that the Christ is to remain forever; and how can You say, ‘The Son of Man must be lifted up’? Who is this Son of Man’” (John 12:34)?

God Himself will dwell with mankind. “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and there is no longer any sea. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne, saying, ‘Behold, the tabernacle of God is among men, and He shall dwell among them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be among them, and

He shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and there shall no longer be any death; there shall no longer be any mourning, or crying, or pain; the first things have passed away” (Rev. 21:1-4). “And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him; and they shall see His face, and His name shall be on their foreheads” (Rev. 22:3-5). “Of all these changed conditions, perhaps the greatest is that at last ‘the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God’ (Rev. 21:3). Even during the glorious millennial reign of Christ with His Church on earth, their actual residence will be in heaven. But in the eternal Kingdom heaven comes down to earth; God dwells with men! At last the long history of temporary theophanies will be done. In the face of Jesus Christ men at last will see the face of God with no hindrance of circumstance or interruption of temporality” (McClain, GK, p. 513).

God Himself will provide light. “The sun shall be no more thy light by day; neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee: but Jehovah will be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. Thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for Jehovah will be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended” (Isa. 60:19-20). “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.’ And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. Her brilliance was like a very costly stone, as a stone of crystal-clear jasper” (Rev. 21:9-12) “And the city has no need of the sun or of the moon to shine upon it, for the glory of God has illumined it, and its lamp is the Lamb. And the nations shall walk by its light, and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory into it. And in the daytime (for there shall be no night there) its gates shall never be closed” (Rev. 21:23-26) “And there shall no longer be any night; and they shall not have need of the light of a lamp nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God shall illumine them; and they shall reign forever and ever” (Rev. 22:5). “The sun and moon would give light to the earth until those in the kingdom would no longer need their light because they would walk in the light of God’s glory (Rev. 21:23)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 31). “Certain privileged individuals down through the course of human history have been given a revelation of the essential glory that belongs to our sovereign God, but all who are included in that kingdom will dwell in that very glory itself" (ibid., p. 319). "As it was with the Old Testament, in the Eternal Order the Shechinah Glory will tabernacle with men, although there will be no Tabernacle or Temple, per se" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 619). "Because the Shechinah Glory will be there, there will be no need of the natural light from the sun or the moon, nor the artificial light of the lamp. The Shechinah Glory will provide all the light that will be necessary, and all the inhabitants will be able to walk in that light. So it will be for all eternity" (ibid.).

God's servants will serve and worship Him. "And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him" (Rev. 22:3) "No clue is given as to the nature of the service that will be assigned to the members of this eternal kingdom" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 319). "Individually and corporately, the people who have been satisfied with the riches of His grace will devote themselves individually and corporately to worship, to praise, to thanksgiving, to adoration for the unending ages of eternity. Amen" (ibid., p. 320).

Death will be no more. "He hath swallowed up death for ever; and the Lord Jehovah will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the reproach of his people will he take away from off all the earth: for Jehovah hath spoken it" (Isa. 25:8). "For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that will be abolished is death" (1 Cor. 15:25–26). "but now has been revealed by the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (2 Tim. 1:10) "And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and Hades gave up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every one of them according to their deeds. And death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:13–15). "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and there is no longer any sea. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne, saying, 'Behold, the tabernacle of God is among men, and He shall dwell among them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be among them, and He shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and there shall no longer be any death; there shall no longer be any mourning, or crying, or pain; the first things have passed away.' And He who sits on the throne said, 'Behold, I am making all things new.' And He said, 'Write, for these words are faithful and true'" (Rev. 21:1–5). "in the middle of its street.

And on either side of the river was the tree of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations” (Rev. 22:2). “...death... That which the Bible calls an ‘enemy,’ they designate a friend” (Peters, TTK, 2:171). “...the view of early Christians, Reformers, and eminent men in the Church that death is part of the curse—abundantly sustained by Scripture” (ibid., p. 172) “Whatever gain there is in death to the believer, whatever blessedness may await those who sleep in Jesus, etc., all this comes not because death bestows it, but in spite of him” (ibid., p. 173) “...2 Timothy 1:10 and 1 Corinthians 15:25-26, which speak of death as being abolished. However, these two verses deal only with the effects of natural death upon the body. It is the first death—physical death—that is abolished; the second death—eternal, spiritual death—is not. It is the abolishment of the first death that makes resurrection possible, but the second death is going to be eternal” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 714).

Pain will be no more. “He hath swallowed up death for ever; and the Lord Jehovah will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the reproach of his people will he take away from off all the earth: for Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isa. 25:8). “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and there is no longer any sea. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne, saying, ‘Behold, the tabernacle of God is among men, and He shall dwell among them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be among them, and He shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and there shall no longer be any death; there shall no longer be any mourning, or crying, or pain; the first things have passed away.’ And He who sits on the throne said, ‘Behold, I am making all things new.’ And He said, ‘Write, for these words are faithful and true’” (Rev. 21:1-5). “in the middle of its street. And on either side of the river was the tree of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations” (Rev. 22:2). “The problem of the healing of the nations in Revelation 22:2 is dissolved when it is recalled that the tree of life originally existed in the Garden of Eden before sin came into being and therefore is a normal part of eternity as well. The word translated ‘healing’ can just as well be translated health or benefit which would not necessarily mean more than that the leaves of the tree were beneficial in some way” (Walvoord, MK, p. 328). “The Greek word translated healing is the source of the modern English word ‘therapeutic.’ The purpose of the leaves is not to heal existing sicknesses, for they will not exist in the Eternal Order; rather, they will be for health-giving to the nations. There will be no sickness in the Eternal Order because of the leaves of the Tree of Life” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 531).

Peace will reign. “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this” (Isa. 9:6–7). “How transcendently blessed will be that holy peace which will yet reign throughout the universe of God! More wonderful, it would seem, will it be than the peace which reigned in the eternal past, since to hold the experience and judgment of sin in retrospect is more conducive to peace than to hold them in prospect” (Chafer, ST, 2:371).

Righteousness will dwell. “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this” (Isa. 9:6–7). “But, according to his promise, we look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness” (2 Pet. 3:13). “In the present age, righteousness suffers; in the kingdom age, though some may suffer for righteousness’ sake (cf. Matt 5:10), righteousness shall reign (cf. Isa. 11:4-5); but in the eternal new heaven and new earth righteousness shall dwell” (Chafer, ST, 5:366).

And, the old will never be brought to mind again. “For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be remembered, nor come into mind” (Isa. 65:17). “It is further declared by Isaiah that the new earth and the new heaven shall so surpass the present, that these will never be called to mind again (Isa. 65:17)” (Chafer, ST, 4:427).

Such is the glory of the Kingdom.

Section 3: Summary, Conclusion & Applications

Summary of the Kingdom

In summary:

Summary of Section 1: Introductory Considerations

Views of the Kingdom

A wide range of views currently exists within Christendom regarding the identity and nature of the Kingdom of God.

The most common views of the Kingdom can be divided into two camps, based on the two underlying theologies that support them. These two underlying theologies, both of which are orthodox, are covenant theology and dispensational theology. While dispensational theology is always premillennial in its eschatology, covenant eschatology is divided into three standard eschatological camps: postmillennial, amillennial and premillennial. Therefore, we have a total of four standard eschatologies to compare: covenant postmillennial, covenant amillennial, covenant premillennial and dispensational. Then, there is also a fifth, heretical theology and eschatology that has its own, unique view of the Kingdom, namely, that of Jehovah's Witnesses. Spending some time and effort on this fifth view is worthwhile, too, because Christians are being challenged by it on a daily basis via Jehovah's Witnesses.

But again, the main theological conflict within orthodox Christendom today in relation to the Kingdom is between covenant theology and dispensational theology. We would therefore do well to carefully compare these two systems: covenant theology which includes its three different eschatological divisions, and dispensational theology.

While there are numerous secondary differences between covenant and dispensational theology, the two primary areas of disagreement between them relate to their respective understandings of God's covenants (formal agreements) with mankind, and their understandings of God's future purpose for the nation Israel. Covenant theologians believe that God has made one over-arching "covenant of grace" with mankind that spans all generations, that the church is now the "new Israel," and that the nation Israel has no future purpose in God's Kingdom program, whereas dispensationalists recognize eight separate and distinct covenants that God has made with different groups of people at different times, which correspondingly divide human history up into a number (seven) of different dispensations, that Israel and the church are always separate in Scripture, and that the nation Israel has a major role yet to play in the outworking of God's Kingdom program.

Covenant theology is based on the idea that God has made one eternal, over-arching covenant, or contract, or agreement, with mankind. This covenant is in the form of a decree of God, made beyond or outside of time, for the salvation of fallen men.

In order to allow Old Testament prophecy concerning Israel to have fulfillment in the church, covenant theology uses a spiritualizing hermeneutic. Covenant theology teaches that the nation Israel has been replaced (or “fulfilled”) by the church, and has little if any future purpose in God’s Kingdom program. If national Israel is to be saved and/or restored at all, it is only as it will be incorporated into the church. In covenant theology, the church is the “new Israel,” and the church is comprised of the elect of all periods of human history. Covenant theology teaches that the Law of Moses is still in effect, at least partially. And, rather than expecting a future, literal, earthly Kingdom, covenant theology recognizes only a “spiritual” and heavenly kingdom.

By definition, postmillennialism teaches that Christ will return after the millennium, after the church has herself established the kingdom of God in the world. Postmillennialism was systematized approximately three centuries ago by the heretical theologian Daniel Whitby. Among postmillennialism’s most influential advocates have been Charles Hodge and Lorraine Boettner. Postmillennialism makes liberal use of a “spiritualizing” hermeneutic. Postmillennialism’s signature teaching is the idea that the world is getting better and better. Postmillennialism teaches that the church is the “new Israel,” and that ethnic Israel will be saved only as it is incorporated into the church. Regarding the Mosaic Law, postmillennialists believe that at least some of the Laws are binding on the church. Regarding the conversion of the world, postmillennialists believe that this will occur prior to Christ’s return. Postmillennialists believe that the millennium precedes Christ’s Second Coming.

By definition, amillennialism denies that there will ever be a literal, earthly Millennial Kingdom. Amillennialism currently has more adherents than any other eschatological view. Amillennialism depends on the combining of disparate terms (such as Israel and the church) and on a spiritualizing hermeneutic for its defense. It is telling that there have not been produced any signature eschatological works in defense of amillennialism. As does covenant postmillennialism (and covenant premillennialism), covenant amillennialism assumes the existence of an over-arching “covenant of grace.” Amillennialism envisions no future restoration of national Israel. However, because amillennialism does not require the church to convert the world before Christ returns, as postmillennialism does, it is able to accommodate the doctrine of the imminent return of Christ. Also in contrast with postmillennialists, amillennialists do not expect the conversion of the world prior to Christ's return.

The third eschatological view among covenant theologians is premillennialism. Covenant premillennialists believe that Christ will return prior to a millennial Kingdom on earth. The most well-known proponent of covenant premillennialism in recent years has been George E. Ladd (1911-1982). Covenant premillennialists believe that national Israel will be restored, maybe. Covenant premillennialists believe, as do all covenant theologians, that the church is the "new Israel." While all covenant premillennialists recognize that Christ will return prior to the Millennial Kingdom, there is some disagreement among them as to the timing of His return in relation to the Tribulation period, with the majority position being post-tribulational. Again, covenant premillennialists believe that national Israel will be restored, maybe. However, because they combine Israel and the church, they do not foresee a future literal, earthly, Jewish Kingdom.

The fourth view of the Kingdom is that of dispensationalism. The forerunner of modern-day dispensationalism was chiliasm or millenarianism.

Chiliasm or millenarianism in the Christian church dates from the first century. The modern, fully-developed theology of chiliasm, or millenarianism, is known as dispensationalism. The term dispensation is taken from Ephesians 1:10 in the King James Version of the Bible: "That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him" The term dispensation is also found at 1 Cor. 9:17, Eph. 3:2 and Col. 1:25 in the KJV (and also in the NKJV). A dispensation is a distinguishable economy in the outworking of God's purpose.

Three men commonly credited with having major roles in the development and systematization of modern dispensationalism are John Darby, C. I. Scofield and Lewis Sperry Chafer. Over the past century, leading proponents of dispensational theology have included L. S. Chafer, Charles Ryrie, John Walvoord, Clarence Larkin, Charles Feinberg, J. Dwight Pentecost, Alva McClain, Arnold Fruchtenbaum and Norman Geisler. Today, almost all evangelical Christians are dispensational to some extent.

The primary hermeneutical principle of dispensationalism is that Scripture should always be taken at face value, and understood literally or plainly, unless there is good reason within the text itself for not doing so.

The three basic teachings of dispensationalism are that the plain, obvious meaning of Scripture is the intended and correct meaning, that Israel and the church are two separate and distinct entities with two individual (although complimentary) programs, and that the ultimate purpose of all things, including the history of mankind, is not man's salvation but rather God's glory.

Dispensationalists usually identify seven dispensations in human history. These seven dispensations are the dispensations of 1. Innocence (from creation to the Fall), 2. Conscience (from the Fall to the Flood), 3. Government (from the Flood to Abraham), 4. Promise (from Abraham to Moses), 5. Law (from Moses to Pentecost), 6. Grace (from Pentecost to the Second Coming), and 7. Kingdom (from the Second Coming to the Final Rebellion).

Dispensationalism is distinguished from all other theologies by its understanding of Israel. Dispensationalists are adamant that Israel is not the church. And, dispensationalists understand that Israel is to be restored in the future. Regarding the church, again, dispensationalists keep Israel and the church separate. Regarding salvation, dispensationalists believe that in every generation men are saved by grace through faith, but they also recognize that the content of their faith differs from dispensation to dispensation. Regarding the Mosaic Law, dispensationalists make a clean break from the Law for Christians. Regarding Christian evangelism, dispensationalists do not believe that it is God's purpose for the church to convert and Christianize the entire world, but rather only to "...take out of them [the Gentiles] a people for His name" (Acts 15:14). Regarding the millennium, dispensationalists are consistently premillennial.

Jehovah's Witnesses' view of the Kingdom is an amalgamation of dispensational and covenant premillennial ideas, with a few unique inventions added, all erected upon a foundation of thoroughly heretical doctrine. Jehovah's Witnesses foresee a literal, earthly Millennial Kingdom to come, but one that's devoid of national Israel. Their Israelology is a unique variant of replacement theology, wherein Israel is replaced not by the historic Christian church, as is normally held by replacement theologians, but rather by their own Jehovah's Witness organization.

The Kingdom in Church History

The chiliastic idea of a future earthly Kingdom with Messiah sitting on David's throne in Jerusalem was first revealed, taught and believed in Old Testament times. Then, as per our contention and as we'll outline later in our section Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom below, it was this very same covenanted and promised theocratic, Davidic Kingdom that John the Baptist, Jesus, the twelve and the seventy announced as "at hand" during the early part of Jesus' ministry.

For the first three centuries of her history, the Christian church was almost exclusively chiliastic, or millenarian, or premillennial.

The first ten years of church history were exclusively Jewish.

During Paul's missionary journeys, as he traveled from city to city, he always spoke "to the Jew first." There is no evidence in Scripture (or anywhere else, for that matter) that in Paul's discussions with the Jews, that any controversy ever arose regarding the nature of the Kingdom, something that certainly would have occurred had Paul taught that the Jewish Kingdom hope had been nullified, or that their covenanted and prophesied Jewish Kingdom had now been transformed into a "spiritual" Kingdom. We know of the church's controversies during the biblical period, because they're recorded in the Bible. We know, for instance, about the controversies concerning Gentiles first being allowed into the church at the time of Cornelius (Acts 10) and whether or not Gentile believers were required to be circumcised and observe the Mosaic Law (Acts 15). It is very telling, therefore, that there is actually not a single hint in the entire New Testament of any controversies concerning the eschatological Jewish Kingdom. The only logical explanation for this is that the Jewish eschatological ideas that were current at that time were transferred without controversy from the Jewish expectations of the day, via Jesus and the (Jewish) apostles, into the newborn Christian church.

The majority of theologians and Bible students today would likely agree that of all the eras of the Christian church, the earliest church had the purest doctrine. This is our position, as well. Now, it is indisputable that the first-century church was chiliastic. The Mosaic Law had been abrogated, but not the expectation of the Millennial Kingdom. The first-century church looked forward to the millennial age. She was confirmed in her literal (the first-century church only knew a literal hermeneutic) eschatological expectations by the literal destruction of Jerusalem. Extra-biblical sources indicate that the primitive church was chiliastic. All the evidence from the second century confirms a continuing premillennialism in the church. The eschatologies of the Apostolic Fathers, including those of Justin Martyr, Irenaeus, Lactantius, Barnabas and Tertullian, were chiliastic.

Opposition to chiliasm, while almost entirely absent the first two centuries of the church's history, began to arise toward the middle of the third century. The principle source of this opposition was the "spiritualizing" (and heretical) Alexandrian school of theology centered in Alexandria, Egypt. A "spiritualized" kingdom was subsequently promoted by Augustine and was used to great self-advantage by the medieval church. This is noteworthy in light of the fact that future apostasy in the church had been predicted by the apostles.

Instruments of opposition to chiliasm, or premillennialism include men's hearts, men's minds, eloquence, scholarship, inadequate views of the Kingdom, philosophy, Platonism, science, naturalism/materialism, the theory of evolution, humanism, liberalism, "tolerance," bigotry, nihilism, cultural development, self-sufficiency, religion, spiritualism, Gnosticism, monasticism, popes, church councils, state churches, established churches, state education, replacement theology, amillennialism, Preterism, deceivers, cults, orthodox ministers, antiquity (particularly regarding pretribulationism), and ultimately, the Antichrist.

Opposition to the primitive chiliastic eschatology began in earnest in the third century, with the "spiritualizing" Alexandrian school (i.e. Clement of Alexandria and Origen). The "spiritualized" kingdom was subsequently accepted and promoted by Eusebius, Jerome, Augustine and the Roman Catholic Church. The "spiritualized" kingdom view held sway throughout the dark ages, and even on through the Protestant Reformation.

Opposition to chiliasm led eventually to rejection by the church of all Jewish elements of the Kingdom. This led to disinterest by, and eventually outright persecution of, the Jews.

Chiliasm was suppressed severely in the dark ages, but was not extinguished entirely as evidenced in Ephraim of Syria and Commodianus.

The Protestant Reformers, while reclaiming and championing the biblical doctrines of sola scriptura (by Scripture alone) and sola fide (by faith alone), unfortunately failed to also reclaim the biblical doctrine of the Kingdom. Rather than go back to the first century for their doctrine of the Kingdom, as they had with their doctrines regarding the primacies of Scripture and faith, they went back only as far as Augustine, and never progressed beyond Augustine's allegorized, amillennial system of eschatology. However, Martin Luther held a number of correct (biblical) eschatological ideas. For instance, he denied that the church would transform the world. He also believed correctly that the Abrahamic Covenant was still in effect. He believed the second Psalm's fulfillment was yet future, and he looked forward to having a perfected body. Still, he had a limited understanding of the Kingdom. John Calvin also held a number of correct (biblical) eschatological ideas. For instance, he did not expect the Christian church to convert the world, and he counseled his readers to be prepared for Christ's possible coming at any moment. However, he failed to distinguish between Israel and the church. Consequently, he denied a future, earthly, Jewish kingdom.

Due in large part to the Reformers' revitalization of the exegetical use of the grammatical-historical hermeneutic, the centuries following the Protestant Reformation witnessed a resurgence of interest in and serious study of the Bible in relation to the primitive chiliastic or premillennial eschatology. Well-known premillennialists (or men at least kindly-disposed toward premillennialism) from the post-Reformation period include John Bunyan, Increase Mather, Cotton Mather, John Gill, Jonathan Edwards, John Wesley, Charles Wesley, George Whitefield, John Darby, Dean Alford, John Charles Ryle, George N. H. Peters, Charles Spurgeon and Sir Robert Anderson.

Semi-chiliastic groups in the history of the United States include the settlers of New England, the Puritans, Pietists, Mennonites, Christadelphians and Russellites (the precursors of Jehovah's Witnesses).

Today, chiliasts or premillennialists are found in all the major Protestant denominations. Dispensationalism is subscribed to today and has been subscribed to in recent history by many of the church's finest theologians and ministers, including C.I. Scofield, Charles Feinberg, Lewis Sperry Chafer, Charles Ryrie, J. Dwight Pentecost, Alva McClain, Herman Hoyt, Harry Ironside, John Walvoord, J. Vernon McGee, Arnold Fruchtenbaum, Norman Geisler, John MacArthur, John Ankerberg, Charles Stanley, Chuck Smith, Chuck Missler, Hal Lindsey, Jack Van Impe, Grant Jeffrey, Tim LaHaye, Thomas Ice, Brannon Howse and Andy Woods.

Presuppositions and Premises

This work presupposes that the reader and I (the writer) actually exist and that the world and the things in it are also real. I believe, as conservative Christian theology has taught for centuries, that we human beings exist independently as individuals, not just as figments of some higher being's imagination, or as part of some pantheistic collective consciousness, and that the world around us is also real, and is not an illusion. I believe both we and our world originated in causes outside ourselves, and that we did not and do not "create our own reality." This work also presupposes that God exists. I believe that the God of the Bible, Yahweh or Jehovah, is the only true God. I believe that truth exists, that it is objective and static, is independent of ourselves, and is independent of its manner of presentation. I believe truth is exclusive, that it excludes what is false. I believe that the claim that truth does not exist is self-defeating (as is also the claim that truth cannot be known). I believe that pluralism, which among other things claims that two conflicting truth claims can both be true, is self-defeating because it excludes exclusivism. I believe all truth is divisive and discriminatory, that it always discriminates between truth and error, and that this is a good thing. I believe that all truth is literal truth, that even spiritual truths are literally true. I believe that symbols in Scripture represent literal truths, and that the purpose of both literal and figurative language is to impart literal truth. I believe that all truth is connected, that it is never contradictory, that it is knowable and communicable. I believe that truth is also fearless; it has nothing to fear from exhaustive investigation.

I believe that the Bible, in its original writings, is a supernatural revelation from God, which makes both Judaism and Christianity supernatural revelations from God. I believe Scripture's claim for itself, namely, that it is the inspired word of God, and that it therefore merits our personal faith. Evidences for the inspiration of Scripture that have been convincing to this writer include Scripture's denunciation of sin, its regenerating power, its neutral and/or negative descriptions of its major players, fulfillment of prophecy, its negative prophecy concerning its major players, and Jesus' confirmation. I therefore believe the Bible is true, that all of it is true, that it is literally true, inerrant, unbreakable, unified, universal, eternal and important. I believe that all of the Bible is important, that Bible doctrine is important, and that the Bible is authoritative and without error. I also believe our present-day Bible corresponds faithfully to the original writings, with correspondence exceeding 99%.

Our premises can be divided into two major categories: those regarding the Bible and those regarding the Kingdom.

The first four of our premises regarding the Bible are further evidences for the inspiration of Scripture. They are the evident specified, or ordered complexity of the Bible's overall Kingdom Plan, the scope and internal consistency of this Plan, the fitness of this plan to achieve its stated goals and the time compression of prophecy. (The time compression of prophecy will be discussed in our section Biblical Hermeneutics below.)

Our next set of premises concerns six additional characteristics (in addition to its being inspired) of the Bible. These premises are that the Bible is Jewish (having been written entirely by Jews from within a Jewish context), concrete rather than abstract, exclusive (having only one correct interpretation), progressive (the Kingdom plan having been revealed piece by piece over an extended period of time), sufficient (no new present-day revelation being needed) and perspicuous (its main messages being intelligible and understandable).

Regarding Bible prophecy, we maintain that prophecy is a major component of Scripture, that it is important for us to understand, that it is connected with history, and that it will all be fulfilled, whether we believe it or not.

Regarding our apprehension and understanding of the Bible, we recognize that the Bible is complex, detailed and even intentionally obscure on some points (in order to preserve moral freedom, for the safety of believers, and to set up the nations for destruction). These factors notwithstanding, we suggest that understanding the Bible still is possible, even with certainty. We believe understanding of Scripture will increase as history progresses. In the last days, knowledge will increase and become abundant, and we should expect that study of prophecy will accelerate. And prophecy will surely be most clearly understood as the prophesied events themselves actually unfold. However, our understanding of the Bible will never be entirely complete in this life.

Some things are necessary in order for us to understand the Bible. Some of these necessary things are from God, and some are from us. Necessities from God include spiritual regeneration and the teaching ministry of the Holy Spirit. Necessities from us include faith, effort and deep reflection. There are also some things that will be helps to us in our endeavor to understand the Bible, one of which is the works of others. It's been well said that "we stand on the shoulders of giants." There are also hinderances to our understanding the Bible. These include the piety and charisma of religious leaders, personal "revelations" and cultic arrogance. But the blessings of understanding the Scriptures are well worth the time and effort expended. The diligent Bible student will be blessed with enhanced faith, motivation for ministry, and enhanced ability to honor God and Christ.

Regarding the Biblical Kingdom of God, which is the major subject of this study, we suggest that the primary purpose of the Kingdom is to glorify God. Secondary purposes include the executing of justice, the defeating of evil, the righting of all wrongs, the defeating of Satan and his works, the reconciliation of men to God, the salvation of men from sin and death, the judgment of mankind, the restoration of man's dominion over the earth, the government of the world, the blessing of mankind, and the restoration of all creation.

We suggest that the people of the Kingdom consist of three major groups: Jews, Gentiles and the church of God. Paul divided humanity into these three distinct groups even after the Christian church had been formed (1 Cor. 10:32). The Bible deals at length with two elect peoples, namely, Israel and the church, and one non-elect people, namely, the Gentiles. The two elect peoples, Israel and the church, have two things in common: They both depend on the Jewish Messiah, Jesus Christ, for salvation and for the fulfillment of their eschatological hopes, and both of their ultimate purposes are to glorify God.

A Jew is any descendent of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Israel is the subject of most of the Bible. Israel is an elect nation. The nation of Israel as a whole was elected, not just the elect or believing remnant of Israel. We should be clear, however, that while Israel is an elect nation, not every individual Jew is elected. God revealed Himself in a special way to Israel for a specific purpose. To Israel were given several major privileges including the covenants, the Law, service of God and the Messiah. All the prophets, inspired teachers, Jesus and the apostles were Jews. Indeed, salvation is of the Jews. Israel is not a type, either of the church or of Jehovah's Witnesses, or of any other group. Israel will be the nucleus of the earthly Kingdom. Because the church has a heavenly citizenship, rather than an earthly one, she is immediately differentiated from Israel. While the Bible deals with two elect peoples, Israel and the church, it also deals with one non-elect people, the Gentiles. Gentiles are all non-Israelites. In the Bible, Gentiles, even Gentile converts to Judaism, are never called Jews or Israel. Interestingly, Gentiles are only mentioned in (again, thoroughly Jewish) Scripture as they relate to Israel. Confusing any of these three groups, Israel, the Gentiles and the church, confuses the nature and characteristics of the Kingdom.

Regarding the structure of the Kingdom, we suggest that the structure of the Kingdom is complex, that it has both temporal and spiritual aspects, that it has five major facets, and that it is at its nucleus a Jewish theocracy.

Regarding the Kingdom's relationships to the Bible, the Kingdom of God is the major theme of the Bible, and is the overarching theme of Scripture. We submit that without a correct understanding of the Kingdom, the Bible itself cannot be correctly understood. The Kingdom is the major theme of Old Testament prophecy. The Kingdom is consistent in both the Old and New Testaments. The Kingdom unifies all of Scripture and illuminates all of Scripture. The Kingdom is not missing any of its parts in the Scriptures. However, the entire Kingdom program is not systematized in any one biblical passage. All of the Bible is needed for a complete picture.

Regarding the Kingdom's relationships to theology, first, we must state clearly that we believe that having a correct view of the Kingdom is not a salvation issue. We believe, as do most conservative Christians, in salvation by grace through faith in Jesus alone, plus nothing. Indeed, one can be saved without holding to our doctrine of the Kingdom. In fact, we doubt that many, if any persons have ever had entirely correct, let alone complete views of the Kingdom at the moment of their regeneration (salvation). Neither do we believe that acquiring our view of the Kingdom is necessary for maintaining one's salvation. It is Jesus who keeps us "until that day" (Jude 24, 2 Tim. 1:12). But while we're not saved by or through our understanding of the Kingdom, it is true that our view of the Kingdom does color all our doctrine. We maintain that this doctrine of the Kingdom needs restoration in our theology. And, we are heartened that, at least to some extent, the correct concept of the Kingdom is being revived in our day. This can be seen by the recent popularity of television programs having to do with “last days” issues, on-line prophecy web sites, prophecy conferences, etc.

Regarding the Kingdom’s relationships to God, first, we should recognize that the Kingdom of God belongs to God. God speaks of the future revived Davidic kingdom as “my kingdom” (1 Chron. 17:11-14). Jesus taught His disciples to pray to the Father, “thy Kingdom come” (Matt. 6:10). That being the case, the Kingdom must be defined by God, not by man. The Kingdom is God’s idea, not man’s. If we are to apprehend the Kingdom, then, it must be communicated to us by God. The Kingdom is the responsibility of God, not man. Its program is to be executed by God, not man. It is also to be justified by God, not man. It is not our place to be “...men thus presuming to set themselves up as the judges respecting what it is right and proper for Jesus to do” (Peters, TTK, 3:552). Prophecy concerning the Kingdom will be fulfilled, not naturally, but supernaturally. We can rest assured that Jehovah and His Kingdom will be vindicated in due time. We are thankful that the outworking of this Plan has been graciously foretold to us by God.

In relation to people in general, the Kingdom is universal. We will all find ourselves in relation to the Kingdom one way or another.

In regard to its apprehension, the Kingdom cannot be seen by many. Most people are entirely blind to the future of this world, and it is disheartening to this writer that even so few Christians have caught a clear and vivid vision of the Kingdom. In the main they are either just not interested or are “...blinded to the truth by the generally adopted spiritualizing system of interpretation” (Peters, TTK, 2:205). It is ignored by many including many, if not most, pastors. This is largely due to the fact that “Most theological seminaries view the millennium as an unfruitful area for study and tend to suspend judgment on any detailed exegesis of related Scriptural passages” (Walvoord, MK, p. 14). The Kingdom is also confusing to many, and it is therefore not discussed as much as it otherwise might be. Therefore, the Kingdom is misunderstood by many.

In regard to its reception, however, this doctrine of the Kingdom can be embraced by those with open minds. However, this doctrine of the Kingdom is often met with rejection. It is a tender subject to many. Is willfully ignored and/or rejected by many. It is unpalatable to many, especially to those who would appropriate to themselves the promises given to Israel. It is simply not wanted by many. It is denied by many. And, it is rejected by many. Sometimes this rejection is pronounced. This doctrine of the Kingdom is often ridiculed. The ridiculers sometimes even come from within the church itself. This doctrine is also sometimes scorned. And, at times, it is even persecuted. One reason for people's rejection of this doctrine of the Kingdom is that it dashes human pride. To seekers of truth, the Kingdom should at least be interesting. To these the Kingdom should also be desirable. We point out to these seekers that this Kingdom is also reasonable. Indeed, just such a Kingdom has been envisioned by the world's deepest thinkers. To believers, this doctrine of the Kingdom defines what we should be eagerly anticipating. To believers, it should be appreciated and eagerly anticipated. (We'll discuss in some detail the Christian's proper attitude toward the Rapture of the church in our section The Rapture of the Church below.) Logically, this eager anticipation should become more pronounced as the Kingdom draws near.

In relation to theologians, historically speaking, this doctrine of the Kingdom has captured the minds of some of the church's greatest thinkers. We mentioned this briefly in our summary of The Kingdom in Church History above. Sadly, however, the Kingdom is being ignored by many. It is often considered to be too simple. It is sometimes unfairly linked with heresy. Nonetheless, despite its common rejection, we counsel our fellow believers that this Kingdom should be berated with caution, lest they be found by God berating His stated Plan. To ministers of the gospel, we suggest strongly that the Kingdom should be preached and taught boldly.

By cults and other false religions, the Kingdom is being counterfeited.

In regard to the nations of the world, the Kingdom will be resisted.

Finally, regarding the Kingdom's relationships to history, the Kingdom explains why the Bible is full of history. The Kingdom also explains world history. This can be seen in several different facets. The Kingdom explains that history does have meaning, purposes and goals. The Kingdom explains the design and the divine purposes of history, and it explains how the divine purposes are to be realized. The Kingdom explains that God is the Maker of history via both providence and intervention. The Kingdom explains the origin and progression of evil in the world. The Kingdom explains the need for a cure and the cure for evil in the world. The Kingdom explains why Scripture gives only a brief mention of antediluvian history, and disproportionately great attention to Israel's history. The Kingdom explains the contexts and purposes of Jesus' death, burial and resurrection. The Kingdom explains the purposes of the age in which we currently live. The Kingdom explains the goal of history. And, the Kingdom explains the vindication and glorification of God in history.

Biblical Hermeneutics

“Hermeneutics is the study of the general principles of biblical interpretation” (Geisler, ST, 1:160).

A discussion of hermeneutics is necessary, especially when attempting to accurately define and describe the Kingdom of God. For instance, consider these two key texts: “And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall the sovereignty thereof be left to another people; but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. Forasmuch as thou sawest that a stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure” (Daniel 2:44–45). and, “And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:31–33). How are we to interpret these passages? Are they meant to be taken literally, or figuratively? Is the plain sense the correct sense when interpreting passages like these? If so, how do we know that?

It is our contention that the plain sense is indeed the correct sense when interpreting these passages and hundreds of other similar passages, and that an unbiased reader would naturally interpret these passages this way, if the “spiritualizing” of Bible texts was not so popular and prevalent. Ideally, our discussion of hermeneutics would hardly be necessary if men were content with taking the vast majority of what they read in the Bible literally, or plainly, but alas, many “experts” tell them that in many, many cases, and especially in cases such as these, while the Bible clearly says one thing, it really means something else. Therefore, to peel away these ubiquitous, yet entirely unwarranted layers of “spiritualizing” that have been imposed on texts such as these over the years, by men considered to be experts on the Bible, a discussion of hermeneutics becomes necessary.

Before accurately and confidently determining what the Bible really means in its eschatological passages, we should first familiarize ourselves with several characteristics of Scripture that influence our interpretations of these passages.

Regarding characteristics relating to literal versus non-literal passages, as we’ve already mentioned, it is our position that the vast majority of Scripture, including the vast majority of historical and prophetic passages, are meant to be understood literally. For many people, when reading the Bible for the first time with unbiased and unfiltered vision, it's a major revelation how little of it is actually anything but literal. However, even the staunchest of "literalists" recognizes that the Bible does, on occasion, use figurative, allegorical and/or symbolic language. That being the case, a few things regarding these non-literal genres of Scripture should be kept in mind. Regarding figurative Scripture, it should be recognized that the purpose of both literal and figurative language is always to impart literal truth. Regarding allegorical Scripture, we should be aware that whenever allegory is used in Scripture, it is always plainly presented as such. Regarding symbolic Scripture, it should be pointed out that every symbol in Scripture represents something literal. Again, while the Bible does at times use figurative, allegorical and/or symbolic language, it must be kept in mind that these non-literal passages are almost always readily identifiable as such. Therefore, when reading and studying Scripture, our default disposition should be a willingness to receive and understand what is written literally or plainly, unless we encounter clear indicators within the texts themselves that the authors intended that we do otherwise.

Regarding the symbiotic relationship between the Old and New Testaments, dispensational premillennialists emphasize that both the Old and New Testaments are needed. Both the Old and New Testaments present the same Kingdom. The New Testament assumes familiarity with the Old Testament; the New Testament is built on an Old Testament foundation. Without a good understanding of the Old Testament, understanding the New Testament is impossible. The New Testament confirms the Old Testament. The New Testament does not contradict the Old Testament. The New Testament does not supersede the Old Testament. The New Testament does not reinterpret the Old Testament. As we'll see below, the New Testament quotes the Old Testament in four different ways, one of which is "literal plus application." An application of an Old Testament passage to a New Testament situation does not "reinterpret" the Old Testament passage; the originally intended interpretation of the Old Testament passage remains intact. The New Testament should not be read back into the Old Testament. On some subjects, the Old Testament is more clear and/or more complete than the New Testament.

The New Testament quotes the Old Testament in four different ways. Because writers of the New Testament sometimes quote the Old Testament in unusual and/or unexpected ways, Covenant theologians will point to this as evidence that we cannot simply accept what the Old Testament says at face value, but rather that we must reinterpret the Old Testament through the lens of the New Testament. However, this is not the case, as will be seen when we examine the four different ways that the New Testament quotes the Old Testament. The first of these four different ways is literal plus literal, as exemplified in Matthew 2:5-6 (regarding Messiah's birth in Bethlehem), which quotes Micah 5:2. In the original context of Micah 5:2, the prophet is speaking prophetically and prophesying that when the Messiah is born, He will be born in Bethlehem of Judah. That is the literal meaning of Micah 5:2. When a literal prophecy is fulfilled in the New Testament, it is quoted as a literal fulfillment. Many prophecies fall into this category such as Isaiah 7:14 and 52:13-53:12. The second way is literal plus typical, as exemplified in Matthew 2:15 ("OUT OF EGYPT I CALLED MY SON."), which is a quotation of Hosea 11:1. Matthew does not deny, change, or reinterpret the original meaning of Hosea. He understands it literally, but the literal Old Testament event becomes a type of a New Testament event. The third way is literal plus application, as exemplified in Acts 2:16-21 (regarding the pouring out of the Spirit upon all flesh) which quotes Joel 2:28-32. Acts two does not change or reinterpret Joel two, nor does it deny that Joel two will have a literal fulfillment when the Holy Spirit is poured out on the whole nation of Israel. It is simply applying it to a New Testament event because of one point of similarity (the pouring out of the Spirit). The fourth way is summation, as exemplified in Luke 18:31-33. In this passage Jesus says the Messiah will go to Jerusalem, be turned over to the Gentiles, the Gentiles will mock Him, treat Him shamefully, spit on Him, scourge Him, and kill Him, but that He will rise again the third day, that all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man may be accomplished. Not one prophet said all this, but the prophets together did say all this. Hence, this is a summation. While the New Testament does quote the Old Testament in these four ways, it is important to point out again that the New Testament does not ever quote the Old Testament allegorically, unless it also states explicitly that it is doing so (as Paul does in the story of Sarah and Hagar in Galatians chapter 4).

In regard to the eclectic composition of the synoptic gospels, we suggest that recognition of this eclectic composition of the gospels is essential in order to reconcile apparent contradictions (such as reconciling being saved by grace alone with not being forgiven unless we forgive others, or reconciling Jesus' saying that all who take up the sword will perish by the sword with His saying later that whoever does not have a sword should buy one) and to understand present-day impracticalities according to their proper contexts (such as the impracticality in this dispensation of always turning the other cheek or always giving to them who ask from us). Also the Sermon on the Mount, when read carefully, seems to be more legalistic than even the Mosaic Law, differing greatly from the grace teachings of the New Testament. We suggest that the best solution to these apparent contradictions and/or impracticalities in Scripture is the recognition that within the synoptic gospels is an intersection of three separate and distinct dispensations: Law, Grace and Kingdom. First, Jesus was a Jew, born under the Law (Gal. 4:4), and He preached and taught a Jewish audience who were also under the Mosaic Law covenant. Second, He announced an eschatological Kingdom that was to come in the (potentially near) future (Matt. 6:20). Third, after His official rejection by the Jewish leaders in Matthew chapter 12, He foretold, for the first time in the history of the world, a new entity and a new age, the age of the church or of Grace (Matt. 16:18). So, within the synoptic Gospels, and even within just the one book of Matthew itself, we have the confluence of three different dispensations. Therefore, in order to avoid actual contradictions in Jesus' apparently contradictory statements, we must be careful to first ascertain to which dispensation, and to which people group, each of these statements or commands belongs. The reconciliation comes in the recognition that while all Scripture is written for us, not all Scripture is written to us. The Sermon on the Mount, for example, was spoken by Jesus, not to the church, which was not yet in existence, but rather to first-century Jews who were on the threshold of the restored Davidic Kingdom, should the required condition of national repentance be met.

In regard to some basic but important characteristics of prophetic Scripture:

It should be understood that prophecy often does not contain a precise chronology. Time is generally compressed in Old Testament prophecy. For instance, prophecies concerning Messiah's career sometimes span two thousand years or more, and contain references both to events that took place at Jesus' First Advent and events that will take place at His Second Advent, without ever intimating that there will be such a span of time between these events. There are several purposes for this time compression, including to give us assurance of the eventual fulfillment of the distant aspects of these near-and-distant prophecies, to insure the literalness of the fulfillment of the distant aspects of the prophecies, to preserve moral freedom and to allow for the rejection and postponement of the Kingdom. It will be observed that even Jesus' prophecies did not contain a precise chronology.

It should also be observed that future events are sometimes spoken of in past or present tense, for emphasis.

Also, since God is both the originator and the fulfiller of Bible prophecy, prophecy will be fulfilled whether believed by us (or by anyone) or not.

Concerning rules for the interpretation of Scripture:

When reading and interpreting the Bible, many Bible interpreters feel compelled to reject the plain sense of the written text in favor of a more allegorical or “spiritual” sense. Because this spiritualizing of Scripture is so common, we need to discuss it, and demonstrate that this “spiritualizing” of the text is almost never warranted. Instead, we suggest strongly that the same basic rules of grammar that we use for interpreting every-day language also apply to Scripture interpretation, and that, generally speaking, the further we stray from these basic rules, the further we stray from the true, intended meaning of Scripture.

We suggest the following basic rules of Scripture interpretation: We should interpret Scripture using the normal rules of language, we should allow Scripture to interpret Scripture, simple problems should be solved before complicated ones, clear passages should interpret obscure ones, doctrine should not be derived from types or parables, we must not interpret Scripture to fit current events; rather, vice versa, and we must not go beyond what is written. We suggest that the truly spiritual interpreters are those who neither add to nor subtract from Scripture.

In order for our interpretation to be correct, it must be systematic, objective, exhaustive, contextual and cultural. And again, the vast majority of the time, it must be literal. For the most part, Scripture should be interpreted in its most plain, simple and obvious sense. As much as any other kind of Scripture, prophecy should be interpreted literally. Nowhere do we find in Scripture that God ever suggested that prophecy should be interpreted less literally than any other kind of Scripture. Unwarranted spiritualization of Scripture, including prophetic Scripture, is not “progress;” it’s counterproductive. Our interpretation must be consistent. Finally, if we consistently follow these rules, the result will be harmonious. In theological terms, this “plain sense” way of interpreting the Bible is called the grammatical-historical hermeneutical method.

We offer the following one hundred reasons why the grammatical-historical hermeneutic is the correct hermeneutic, or to say it another way, we offer the following one hundred reasons why the Bible means what it plainly says:

The grammatical-historical hermeneutic (G-HH) is factual, grounding interpretation in fact.

The G-HH is biblical, unlike spiritualization. The G-HH fits biblical history. Is it not true that all biblical history was intended by God to be understood literally? If so, then why not biblical prophecy, which is only history told in advance?

The G-HH fits fulfilled prophecy. Israel's first three dispersions and first two regatherings were literal. With these five precedents, wouldn't we normally expect Israel's third regathering to be literal, as well?

The G-HH fits the prophecies concerning Jesus' First Advent, the fulfillments of which are all readily available for our inspection, enabling us to determine whether they were fulfilled literally or in some other way. Jesus was born of a virgin, He was born in Bethlehem, He was heralded by a messenger, He was rested upon by the Holy Spirit, He performed miracles, He rode into Jerusalem on a donkey, He was hated without a cause, He was rejected by the Jews (particularly the Jewish leaders), He was betrayed by a friend, He was sold for thirty pieces of silver, He was silent before His accusers, the shepherd was struck and the sheep were scattered, He was mocked, and He died a humiliating death. Prophecies concerning the details of His death from Psalm 22 were fulfilled literally. At Jesus' crucifixion, He was numbered with transgressors, and was given gall and vinegar to drink. He was buried in a rich man's tomb. He was resurrected. He ascended. And finally, He sat at God's right hand. From these examples it is evident that Christ's first-advent prophecies were all fulfilled literally. If that be the case, then logically, how could we expect Christ's Second Advent prophecies to be fulfilled any other way than literally?

Next, the G-HH is historical. It was the only interpretive method accepted by the church during the first three centuries of her history, it was championed by the reformers, and it interprets history correctly.

The G-HH is acknowledged by orthodoxy. It is accepted by all orthodox Christians on all foundational doctrines other than eschatology. The G-HH is even used (inconsistently) by anti-millenarians.

The G-HH is self-affirming. It is self-evident; it is self-evident to everyone. It is the only method that results in only one possible interpretation. It is the only method not subject to "interpretation." It is self-interpreting, and it allows Scripture to interpret itself. It is self-affirming. It is the only method that is not self-defeating.

The G-HH is natural. It is simple. It allows God to speak to us as plainly and clearly as possible. The G-HH allows Scripture to speak for itself. It allows Scripture to speak in simplicity, and it allows Scripture to be true as written. It doesn't rely on any extra-biblical presumptions. It eliminates the necessity of grafting another (non-literal) sense onto Scripture. It eliminates the necessity of choosing between multiple possible interpretations. However, it is just this simplicity that often makes it difficult to accept.

The G-HH is efficient. It eliminates the need for wasting time and effort on interpretive dead ends. It is also natural. The G-HH is comprehensible. It conforms to the normal laws of language. It allows Scripture to be interpreted with the same hermeneutic used for non-Scripture.

The G-HH is consistent. It allows all doctrine to use the same hermeneutic. It allows all dispensations to use the same hermeneutic.

The G-HH is comprehensive. It is applicable to all of Scripture, allowing for non-literal renderings as required.

The G-HH is universal. The G-HH is understood by everyone, and it makes the Bible understandable to everyone.

The G-HH is Scripture-honoring. It demands strict adherence to Scripture. It allows Scripture to speak for itself. There is only one way for the Bible to speak for itself, and that's when it's taken literally. It confirms the inspiration of Scripture. It accepts Scripture as inerrant. It allows Scripture to be authoritative. It allows all Scripture to be meaningful. It allows Scripture to mean what it says. The G-HH is covenant-honoring. As we'll mention again below, it allows all of Israel's covenants and prophecies to have (eventual) fulfillment. The G-HH is prophecy-honoring. It allows us to accept most, if not all, prophecy at face value. And, because of these characteristics, the G-HH promotes certainty.

The G-HH is God-honoring. It allows God to say what He meant to whom He said it. It allows God to be ethical in His manner of speech. It allows God, not man, to be the determiner of the proper interpretive method. It conveys God's ideas, rather than man's. It allows us to believe that God will fulfill His word as written. It allows God's originally-stated purposes for mankind to be realized. It allows God to accomplish His original purpose in creating man. It allows God's "very good" creation to be restored (we'll explore this idea in our section A Kingdom Needed below). It enables God-honoring faith, faith that is based on His revelation to us. And, it vindicates God.

The G-HH is God's people-honoring. It is Israel-honoring; it allows all of Israel's covenants and prophecies to have (eventual) fulfillment. It is Hebrew prophet-honoring. It allows the (inspired) prophets to not be mistaken in their predictions. And the G-HH is apostle-honoring. It allows the apostles to have not been mistaken regarding their Messianic Kingdom hopes.

The G-HH is man-deprecating. It makes God, not man, responsible for determining truth. It makes man, not God, responsible for man's unbelief. It is this writer's opinion that the problem is not that the Bible is unintelligible, but rather that so few people are able (i.e. willing) to receive it. The G-HH rebukes man's boasting about his impressive knowledge and interpretive skills. It has no need for man to add to the Scripture. It has no need for man to "improve" the Scripture. It has no need for man to interpret the Scripture. It has no respect for man's piety. It exposes prejudice. It makes allegorization unnecessary. It keeps man's imagination in check. It makes philosophy unnecessary. And, it frees us from slavery to allegorical interpreters.

The G-HH is edifying. It is convicting. It is salvific. When the gospel (of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, 1 Cor. 15:1-4) is interpreted literally and believed, salvation results (Eph. 1:13). It brought this writer out of a pseudo-Christian cult (Jehovah's Witnesses) and into saving faith in Christ. It is marvelous. It is an amazing thing to this writer that all his theological studies have led him to nothing other than an ever-deepening satisfaction with the plain sense of Scripture. It is satisfying. It is an ongoing fact that the more fully this writer understands Scripture, the less he finds that he wants to change any of it. It is spiritual. It is this writer's conclusion that the plain sense of Scripture is the ideal vehicle for conveying spiritual truth, and that unwarranted spiritualizing of Scripture is in fact not spiritual at all. It is practical. It makes Old Testament prophecy's and the Revelation's details useful (i.e. for the Tribulation saints in particular). It is likely that the New Testament, particularly Matthew chapters 24 and 25 and the book of Revelation, will be instrumental in opening Jewish peoples' eyes to Jesus' identity during the Tribulation, as Israel witnesses end-times prophecy being fulfilled in extraordinary precision and detail. During the Tribulation, Matthew 24 and 25 and Revelation will come alive!

The G-HH is unifying. It unifies the Kingdom. It also unifies believers.

The G-HH is protective. It safeguards all doctrine. It protects us from Gnosticism. It protects us from delusion, fanciful thinking, liberalism and apostasy. And, it protects us from cults. Cults often know what the Bible says, but they've developed their own creative lines of reasoning as to why it supposedly doesn't mean what it says. Cults claim that they "know better" than to believe all of the Bible as written; the G-HH demonstrates that theirs is a lethal mistake.

And finally, the G-HH is sufficient. It needs no other, added sense. If the plain sense makes good sense, seek no other sense!

In summary, the grammatical-historical hermeneutic is indeed factual, biblical, in harmony with fulfilled prophecy, historical, acknowledged by orthodoxy, self-affirming, natural, comprehensive, universal, scripture-honoring, God-honoring, God's people-honoring, man-deprecating, edifying, unifying, protective and sufficient. Make no mistake: Scripture means what it says! Israel always means Israel, never the church, and never the Jehovah's Witness organization. If the plain sense makes good sense, seek no other sense. In this way, God is sure to receive the glory, not man. It is His word, inspired and written in such a way that anyone with an open mind and heart can receive and understand it. Regardless of what church magistrates and cultic organizations would tell us, we don't need their "has God really said" (Gen. 3:1)? help to "understand" what God has caused to be plainly written. Though sinful man would twist, allegorize and spiritualize away the obvious meaning of Scripture, the Holy Spirit would have us "believe everything that is written" (Acts 24:14), to self-aggrandizing and manipulative man's rebuke, but to our salvation and entrance into the Kingdom, and to God's eternal glory.

Five Facets of the Kingdom

Who, what, why, when and where is the Kingdom of God? Who, what, why, when and where was the Kingdom of God back in ancient times, and who, what, why, when and where is it today? Who, what, why, when and where will it be in the future? Are there multiple Kingdoms of God, or just one? How are we to reconcile passages of Scripture regarding the Kingdom that seem to be contradictory, i.e., how can the Kingdom be both temporal and eternal, both physical and spiritual? In this section, we'll answer these questions by suggesting that while there is only one Kingdom, this one Kingdom has multiple facets.

The Kingdom of God is the reign or rule of God. The Kingdom of God in the Bible deals with the rule of God in this world; not in other worlds. The Kingdom of God has both spiritual and physical aspects.

Dr. Arnold Fruchtenbaum sees the Kingdom of God has having five primary facets. "In total, there are five facets. Four of these facets were already known in the Old Testament; the fifth facet is the mystery that is only now revealed in the New Testament" (FM, p. 662). These five facets: the Universal Kingdom, the Spiritual Kingdom, the theocratic kingdom, the Millennial Kingdom and the "Mystery" Kingdom, are the subjects of this section.

The first of the five facets of the Kingdom of God is the Universal or Eternal Kingdom. The Universal or Eternal Kingdom can be defined as the universal sovereignty of God. This universal sovereignty applies not only to that of God the Father, but to that of God the Son, as well. God is sovereign over everything, for all time. God is sovereign over nature. His sovereignty affects all people. He is sovereign over nations. He is sovereign over governments. And, He is sovereign over the church.

The second facet of the Kingdom of God is the Spiritual Kingdom. The Spiritual Kingdom can be defined as all the saved people of all dispensations. Time-wise, the Spiritual Kingdom covers all dispensations, including this present dispensation. The Spiritual Kingdom involves individual believers, rather than nations. The Spiritual Kingdom was the focus of Jesus' ministry, and is also the focus of the church's ministry.

The third facet of the Kingdom of God is the Theocratic or Mediatorial/Monarchial Kingdom. The word "theocratic" means "God ruling over men." The Theocratic or Mediatorial/Monarchial Kingdom is the facet of the Kingdom of God that relates to God's ruling over, in and through the nation Israel; it is the theocratic kingdom of Israel. The Theocratic Kingdom is mediatorial because in it God rules men through a mediator. The Theocratic Kingdom is a God-ordained union of church and state. The Theocratic Kingdom will be restored in the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom. The Theocratic Kingdom will be covered in detail in our section The Theocratic Kingdom below.

The fourth facet of the Kingdom of God is the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom. The Messianic or Millennial Kingdom is a future, literal, global government administered by Christ from David's throne in Jerusalem. The Millennial Kingdom is not an obscure subject in the Bible; it is a major component in the overall Kingdom program. It is a re-establishment of the Theocratic Kingdom. It is a literal kingdom. It supersedes all other earthly empires. It is future. It is visible and tangible. It is on Earth. It is Jewish, monarchial and theocratic. It is political. It is a union of legislative, executive and judicial branches of government. It is a union of church and state. It is the central theme of the Bible. It is not carnal, and it is not demeaning to Christ. We'll have more to say about the Millennial Kingdom in our section The Millennial Kingdom below.

The fifth and final facet of the Kingdom of God is the Mystery Kingdom. The Mystery Kingdom is the present "mystery" form of the Kingdom, commonly known as "Christendom." The Mystery Kingdom includes all the hidden aspects of this present Church Age, an age that was itself entirely hidden from the purview of the Old Testament saints and prophets. The Mystery Kingdom includes both believers and unbelievers. The Mystery Kingdom affirms that the Kingdom of God includes the rule of God in the heart of the believer. The Mystery Kingdom is still a mystery to many people, both to people who are passive or neutral toward the church and the gospel, and also to those who actively oppose the church and the gospel, such as Jehovah's Witnesses. We'll have more to say about the Mystery Kingdom in our section The Mystery Kingdom (The Church) below.

So, with a modest amount of effort, we're able to discern five distinct facets of God's overall Kingdom program. While these five facets each have as their basic purpose the accomplishing of the will of God, if we are to understand the Bible correctly, it is essential that we keep these five facets clearly delineated in our minds, lest we mistakenly apply Scripture passages and/or theological concepts to one facet, when they actually belong to another. In this way, we will be greatly aided in "rightly dividing the word of truth" (2 Tim. 2:15, NKJV).

Now while these five facets of the Kingdom are each unique and distinct, we should point out too that they do all work in concert to accomplish the one singular overarching purpose of the Kingdom of God, which is to glorify God. The Universal Kingdom glorifies God everywhere, at all times; the Spiritual Kingdom glorifies God through the salvation of men throughout all human history; the Theocratic Kingdom glorified Jehovah on earth through the nation Israel; the Millennial Kingdom, which is to be a restoration of the Theocratic Kingdom, will glorify God on earth for a thousand years via perfect human government and an ideal environment; and finally, the Mystery Kingdom glorifies God now through the salvation of men, and will glorify Him forever by exhibiting the surpassing riches of His grace toward the church in the ages to come (Eph. 2:7).

Summary of Section 2: The Biblical Kingdom

God and Creation

Before the world was, God was.

"In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth" (Gen. 1:1). In these first words of inspired Scripture the eternal God is differentiated from His temporal creation, and God is stated to be the creative cause of everything that has come into existence. In contrast with their eternal Creator, the present "heaven and earth" had a beginning, and they will also have an end (Matt. 24:35).

Because God is invisible to us, whatever we can know about Him must come from either general (i.e. nature) or special (i.e. the Bible) revelation from Him. Thankfully, He has chosen to reveal to us specific information about Himself via inspired Scripture. By examining His written revelation, then, we are able to learn much about Him, including His nature and His attributes.

Regarding God's nature, the Bible presents us with three eternal Persons: the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. Individually, Scripture teaches that each of these three is eternal. Jesus said the Father was "before the world was." Likewise, the Son was also in existence before anything that came into existence came into existence. (We'll have more to say about the Son's eternality and deity in our section The King of the Kingdom below.) According to inspired Scripture, the Holy Spirit is a Person and is also eternal. Now, we also know from Scripture that there is only one God, not three. Scripture therefore presents us with one God existing eternally in three eternal Persons: the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. We suggest that this is why Jesus commanded Christians to baptize in the name (singular) of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit.

Regarding God's attributes, according to the Bible, God was, is and forever will be holy, righteous, loving, just, omnipresent, omniscient, omnipotent, eternal and immutable.

Knowing God's nature and attributes helps us understand what motivated Him to create anything, and more specifically, what motivated Him to create this particular world.

Why create anything? Is it not true that a holy and loving God, subsisting in three perfect Persons, must have been self-satisfied from all eternity? Yes, this is true. However, because true love is giving love (Acts 20:35), it seems reasonable that a loving God might desire to give to someone or something beyond Himself, if that be possible. But in order to do that, He would have to first create that someone or something else. Then He would be able to give to that someone or something many good things: life, love, joy, goodness, peace, etc.

Because Christians were chosen before the foundation of the world (Eph. 1:4), it is evident that before God actually created anything, He must have first envisioned what He was going to create. It is evident now that His vision included both animate and inanimate things: angels, the cosmos, and man, at least. And if the animate things (angels and man) were to love God in return for His love, they must be given the capability for doing so via free will, true love requiring the ability to freely choose whether to love or not to love.

Since saved persons' names have been "written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb" (Rev. 13:8, 17:8), before anything had even been created, we know that this vision included the salvation of men, which necessitates there being something to be saved from, namely sin and death. So, God's vision must have included sin and death, and sin's accompanying judgments and punishments.

As sin and death were envisioned by God before the foundation of the world, so must He have envisioned His ways of dealing with them. Therefore, it is not surprising that God's Kingdom program, through which He would deal with the issues of sin, death, redemption, judgment and punishment, was also envisioned before anything was actually created. “Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world”” (Matt. 25:34). This would be the same Kingdom program that would in due time sum up all things in Christ, things in the heavens and things upon the earth (Eph. 1:9–10). God’s envisioned Kingdom program also included the saved persons of this (church) age (Eph. 1:4; 3:1–11, 2 Tim. 1:8–9).

Now, the question arises, if God had the ability to create any kind of world that He desired, why then did He create this world? Why create this world, which is now suffering under the burdens of sin, death and deterioration, when He could have created one that would have remained entirely devoid of these things?

Again, if God had desired to have creatures who were genuinely capable of loving Him (and therefore also capable of not loving Him), then He would have had to have created them with free will. And, it may well be that it would have been impossible for God to have created truly free creatures without some of them choosing to rebel. If that be the case, then the rebels may simply be an unavoidable byproduct of free will. In that case, God obviously foresaw that some of His creatures would rebel, and chose to create free creatures anyway, because the net result would still be better than had He chosen not to create free creatures at all.

Also, we know the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control (Gal. 5:22-23). But how could God demonstrate patience without first having wayward creatures with whom He could be patient? Or, in a world without sin, how could God demonstrate grace, mercy, forgiveness, wrath, or justice? May it not be the case that God desires to exercise and demonstrate all these attributes, including those that can only be exercised and demonstrated in a world that contains sin? If that be the case, then our world just might be the ideal world, at least for that purpose. Opportunities for God to be glorified for His patience, grace, mercy, forgiveness, wrath and justice would have been missed had our world never fallen into sin. We’ll have more to say on this subject in our discussion of why evil is allowed by God in the section The Fall below.

God’s creation includes the cosmos (the heavens and the earth), angels and man.

After creating all things, God pronounced His entire creation good.

As part of the creation program, a well-defined dominion was given to man. This dominion was in fact a theocratic Kingdom over all God’s earthly creation. This Kingdom was God's original purpose for mankind, a purpose that has never been rescinded. This Kingdom extended also over the race of men. This concept is known in theological circles as federal or Adamic headship. That Adam's headship had profound implications for all of future mankind, whether for good or for bad, is made evident in several New Testament passages, such as Rom. 5:12–21, 1 Cor. 15:21–22, 1 Cor. 15:45–49 and Heb. 2:5–9.

God's Kingdom covenant or contract with man in the garden of Eden can be appropriately called the Edenic Covenant (Gen. 1:28-30, Gen. 2:15-17). This is the first of eight covenants that God has made with mankind throughout history.

The Fall

As we outlined in the previous section, man was given, via the Edenic Covenant, a Kingdom over all the earth and over all its creatures. However, sin soon entered the world, and the Edenic Covenant was broken.

Before continuing our biblical narrative, we'll take a short detour to explore some foundational ideas related to evil and sin.

First, we'll define and describe evil, and its manifestation, sin.

Evil is the corruption of good. It is a parasite, and has no substance in itself. Without a good host, it cannot exist. Sin is lawlessness, unbelief and pride. Sin is rebellion against and independence from God. Sin is self-centered, and it is self-willed. Sin is irrational, and it is always destructive. Sin is not personally satisfying. And, sin is total, being a total departure from God.

Next, it is important to recognize that evil is not caused by God.

And finally, why is evil allowed by God? We can't completely fathom all the reasons why God allows evil, but we do have hints. We suggest that evil is allowed by God in order to produce the best possible world. Specifically, evil is allowed by God in order to allow truly free will, to manifest divine grace, to enable creation of the church, to demonstrate that sin doesn't work, to prove that man without God is always a failure, to demonstrate God's hatred of sin, and to enable God to defeat sin.

Who or what is Satan? Is he a real person, or merely a personification of evil? What is his origin, and how did he fall? What is his nature, his attitude, his purpose and his works?

The Bible has much to say about Satan. He is a real person; not just a personification of evil. As was Adam, Satan was created perfect; sin was only "found in" him later. Many scholars believe Ezekiel chapter 28 is referring to Satan when it says, "Thou wast the anointed cherub that covereth: and I set thee, so that thou wast upon the holy mountain of God; thou hast walked up and down in the midst of the stones of fire. Thou wast perfect in thy ways from the day that thou wast created, till unrighteousness was found in thee" (Ezek. 28:14-15).

Satan's fall was evidently the result of personal pride (Isa. 14:12-14).

Regarding Satan's nature, he is proud, he is a liar, he is vicious, he is wholly evil, but he is finite and limited in power.

Regarding Satan's attitude, he is arrogant. He is also likely jealous.

Regarding Satan's purpose, his goal is to be like God. He also aims to mar the lives and service of God's people.

Regarding Satan's works, he rules the world. He blinds the minds of the unbelieving. He had the keys of death until the resurrection of Christ.

Satan is not the only angel who fell; there were others who joined him in his enterprise, likely a third of the angels.

What is meant by "the fall of man," and what were its effects?

It is a sad fact of history that our first parents Adam and Eve disobeyed the Edenic Covenant's one prohibitive command, thereby plunging themselves and their progeny into sin and death (Gen. 3:1-24).

It is difficult to overestimate the gravity of man's fall. Man was tested, he was tempted and failed to resist the temptation, so he became a fallen creature. The magnitude of the evil of the first sins was immense. The entire human race was affected.

The results of man's fall are deep and wide. They include:

The Edenic Covenant was broken and came to an end.

We died. The fact that we, the human race, died through Adam's transgression is clear from Scripture. We died spiritually, we died physically, and we died (potentially) eternally.

We became totally depraved.

We became blind, lost and unable to seek God.

We became alienated from God. God became our enemy. We became enemies of God. We became condemned by God.

We lost our stature and inheritance. We lost our stature as the representatives of God on earth. We lost our inheritance of tenant possession of the earth to Satan. We'll have more to say on this in our sections A Kingdom is Needed and The Great Tribulation below.

The earth was cursed.

Fulfillment of God's ultimate purposes for the race was delayed, at least from man's perspective.

A Kingdom Needed

In light of the things we discussed in the previous section, it should be evident that if humanity is ever to recover from the consequences of the fall, it is going to take a major and multi-faceted operation. A comprehensive Kingdom program is needed.

The fall resulted in dire and far-reaching consequences, consequences involving such diverse and intractable things as sin and death, Satan, nature, and government of the world. If God's Kingdom is to comprehensively and effectively deal with all the problems existing in all these areas, it is obviously going to have to be a Kingdom whose goals and abilities are far beyond those of mortal men. It is this writer's conviction that we are, both as individuals and as a race, doomed to failure, as Scripture plainly states (John 6:53, Matt. 24:22), without God's direct and supernatural intervention. For us to ignore and/or reject God's graciously revealed Plan, therefore, in favor of our own grossly inadequate personal, societal and global schemes, would reveal our blindness and foolishness in these matters. Genuine regeneration of ourselves and society is beyond our abilities; a Kingdom is needed to do what only God can do.

The more we correctly identify and understand the purposes of the biblical Kingdom of God, the more apparent it becomes that this Kingdom must of necessity be God's undertaking, not man's. This will be seen as we outline in this section the major objectives of the Kingdom of God as they relate to sin, Satan, individuals, mankind as a group, creation, all created beings, and even God Himself.

In relation to sin, God's Kingdom is needed to execute justice, defeat evil and right all wrongs.

In relation to Satan, God's Kingdom is needed to defeat Satan and to destroy his works.

In relation to individuals, the Kingdom is needed to reconcile men to God, save them from sin and death, and meet the deepest desires of their hearts.

In relation to mankind, the Kingdom is needed to judge, redeem, save (rather than abandon), repair, restore, govern and bless mankind, in short, to accomplish God's original purpose in creating man.

In relation to creation, the Kingdom is needed to restore creation. The Kingdom is needed to restore harmony between God and creation. It is needed to restore God's blessing on creation, this blessing entailing the removal of the curse. The Kingdom is needed to restore the earth and nature. The Kingdom is needed to restore all that Adam forfeited. The Kingdom is needed to make the world worth having been created.

In relation to all created beings, the Kingdom is needed to demonstrate to everyone that sin is always wrong, that man, apart from God, even in a perfect environment is a failure, that God is always right, and that God is the rightful ruler of the world.

In relation to God, the Kingdom will serve to glorify God.

Conscience, Government and Promise

In the section God and Creation above, we pointed out that the very first age or dispensation in mankind's history, the age of Innocence, began with a covenant or agreement between God and man, the Edenic Covenant. In this section we'll see that the next three clearly delineated ages or dispensations in human history, the ages of Conscience, [the institution of human] Government, and Promise were also introduced with dispensation-delineating covenants between God and men: the Adamic, Noahic and Abrahamic Covenants, respectively.

Upon Adam's breaking the Edenic Covenant, God inaugurated a new era in human history, the age of Conscience, via the Adamic Covenant.

The Adamic Covenant (Gen. 3:14-19) is the second of the eight covenants that God made with mankind. It articulated God's immediate curses on Satan, man and the earth, but also promised eventual deliverance from these curses via "the seed of the woman" (vs. 15).

Regarding the Adamic Covenant's provisions concerning Satan, there would be hatred between Satan and the woman culminating in the hatred between Satan's seed (Antichrist) and the woman's seed (Christ), the serpent would bruise the woman's seed's heel, and the woman's seed would crush Satan's head.

Regarding the Adamic Covenant's provisions concerning man, Adam's sin affected the entire human race, the earth was cursed, human diet was to remain vegetarian, work was to be toilsome, and man would die physically.

So, in Genesis 3:15, the very first prophecy in the Bible, the future Mediatorial Kingdom is promised. In the meantime, two kingdoms would now develop side by side on earth: the [Spiritual] Kingdom of God and the rebel kingdom of Satan.

Mankind's history from Eden to the Flood included Jehovah's making garments of skins for Adam and Eve, mankind's expulsion from the garden, increase of wickedness to the point that all of man's thoughts were only evil continually, and the earth becoming filled with violence.

After the age of Conscience was brought to an end by the Flood, God authorized, via the Noahic Covenant (Gen. 9:1-17), the State to punish sin, thereby inaugurating the age of human Government.

At Babel God confused the languages of the people, thereby scattering them throughout the earth.

After the nations were scattered at Babel, God chose one man named Abram, from the land of Ur, and made a covenant with him for the blessing of all mankind. This covenant, the Abrahamic Covenant, ushered in the age of Promise or Patriarchs. It is difficult to overstate the importance of the Abrahamic Covenant in the outworking of God's Kingdom program.

The Abrahamic Covenant (Gen. 12:1-3; 13:14-17; 15:1-7; 17:1-18) is the fourth of the eight covenants that God made with mankind, and is the first of five covenants that He made with Israel. It is a foundational covenant in God's Kingdom program.

The Abrahamic Covenant was first made with Abraham, then confirmed with Abraham's son Isaac, then with Isaac's son Jacob (Israel). The Abrahamic Covenant was promised to have fulfillment in Abraham, Isaac and Jacob personally, not just in their descendants.

The Abrahamic Covenant promised to Abraham and to his descendants the land of Palestine forever, national identity, blessing, a great name and potential blessing and cursing on other peoples (depending on whether they blessed or cursed Abraham).

The Abrahamic Covenant continued through Isaac, Jacob and the twelve tribes of Israel.

The Abrahamic Covenant was confirmed by Moses just prior to Israel's entering the land of Canaan, by Joshua also just prior to Israel's entering the land of Canaan, and by David and Asaph.

The Abrahamic Covenant was developed in the three later unconditional covenants. The land promises were developed in the Palestinian Covenant, the seed promises were developed in the Davidic covenant, and the blessing promises were developed in the New Covenant. We'll have more to say regarding the Palestinian, Davidic and New Covenants in the sections The Theocratic Kingdom and Covenants of the Kingdom below.

The Abrahamic Covenant was confirmed by the Hebrew prophets. It is also confirmed in the New Testament.

The Abrahamic Covenant is unconditional, immutable, irrevocable and eternal.

The Abrahamic Covenant is yet to be fulfilled. It is still in effect, and has not yet been completely fulfilled. It is not to be fulfilled entirely by the Church. It is to be fulfilled literally by Abraham, Isaac and Jacob personally, as well as by Israel nationally. It is to be fulfilled by Christ.

The Abrahamic Covenant is to be received by us by faith, just as it was received by the Patriarchs, the Old Testament saints, the Apostolic Fathers and many others.

In the Bible, the entire history of the world up until Abraham is covered in just eleven chapters, in Genesis chapters one through eleven. Then the pace of the narrative slows dramatically. The story of Abraham alone takes up the next fourteen chapters of Genesis, through chapter twenty-five, then the stories of Isaac and Jacob fill the remaining twenty-five chapters of the book. This God-ordained allocation of textual real estate should give us a hint as to the relative importance of Abraham and his immediate descendants Isaac and Jacob (Israel) to the overall Kingdom program.

Following the frustration of man's first attempt to establish a world state at Babel, and the resultant rise of nationalism through the confusion of language, God turned away from "man" in the collective sense and called out one particular man through whom the divine regal will is to be accomplished on earth.

In Exodus we have the story of the Israelites' exodus from Egypt, in which it is made evident that Israel as a nation was to play a unique and important role in the outworking of Jehovah's Kingdom program.

The Theocratic Kingdom

Upon the Israelites' exodus from Egypt, Jehovah God established the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as the world's first, and one and only theocratic, or God-ruled nation. The legal bases of the Theocratic Kingdom of Israel were the Abrahamic, Mosaic and Palestinian Covenants. Following its establishment at Mt. Sinai, the Kingdom developed via the Israelites' occupation of Palestine and its subsequent theocratic governance by Israel's judges, eventually reaching its heights in the Davidic and Solomonic monarchies.

The Mosaic Covenant was the second covenant that Jehovah made with Israel (the first one being the Abrahamic Covenant). It was made and ratified with the Israelites at Mt. Sinai, immediately after their exodus from Egypt and before their forty-year wilderness wandering.

The primary purposes of the Mosaic Covenant were to sanctify or set Israel apart from all other nations as Jehovah's one and only theocratic nation, and to provide the people of Israel with a rule of life that would be befitting their unique identity.

The Mosaic Covenant is stated in Exodus 20:1-31:18, filling twelve chapters of the Bible. It begins with the Ten Commandments, and consists of a total of six hundred thirteen laws, designed to govern the religious, moral and civil aspects of Jewish life. It also includes seven national feasts or festivals that are described in Leviticus 23:1-44.

The Mosaic Covenant was given to and made with Israel only.

The Mosaic Law was not salvific, but rather was merely a rule of life for the Jewish People, who were already in covenant relationship with God.

The Mosaic Covenant was temporary.

The Mosaic Law was fulfilled by Christ, Who was the individual "Israel."

The Mosaic Law was superseded by the Law of Christ.

The Mosaic Covenant did not supersede the Abrahamic Covenant.

The Palestinian Covenant was the third covenant that Jehovah made with Israel (after the Abrahamic and Mosaic Covenants). It was made by God with the generation of Israelites that were about to enter and possess the Promised Land.

The purpose of the Palestinian Covenant was to answer the question of Israel's ongoing relation to the land promises of the Abrahamic Covenant, in light of the (recently inaugurated) Mosaic Covenant.

The Palestinian Covenant is named as such because the land of Palestine is its major subject.

The Palestinian Covenant is stated in Deuteronomy 30:1-10.

The two main features of the Palestinian Covenant concern Israel's ownership of the land and her world-wide dispersion and regathering.

Regarding Israel's ownership of the land, "And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither Jehovah thy God hath driven thee, and shalt return unto Jehovah thy God, and shalt obey his voice... Jehovah thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers" (Deut. 30:1-5).

Regarding Israel's world-wide dispersion and regathering, "And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither Jehovah thy God hath driven thee, and shalt return unto Jehovah thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul; that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee. If any of thine outcasts be in the uttermost parts of heaven, from thence will Jehovah thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee: and Jehovah thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers” (Deut. 30:1-5).

The Palestinian Covenant was given to and was to be fulfilled literally by Israel.

The Palestinian Covenant is unconditional, still in effect, and eternal.

The Theocratic Kingdom of Israel was established for a number of clearly-defined purposes and with a God-ordained structure. It was established miraculously by God, and it passed through several developmental stages before reaching its zenith of glory in the Davidic/Solomonic monarchy.

A theocracy is a nation ruled by God.

The purposes of the Theocratic Kingdom were to commence God’s earthly rule, to reveal God to all of humanity, to judge Israel, to bless all of humanity and to glorify God.

As to its structure, the Theocratic Kingdom had Jehovah as its invisible King, it was a Jewish nation, it was mediated by Moses, it was the Kingdom of God, and it had the civil and priestly functions separated.

The Theocratic Kingdom of Israel was established by God’s choice, miraculously. The miraculous nature of Israel’s establishment can be seen in Israel’s very existence, in Israel’s deliverance from Egypt, and in Israel’s initiation at Sinai. Israel’s miraculous establishment is proof of Israel’s theocratic nature.

The Theocratic Kingdom developed through Moses’ administration and through Israel’s occupation of Palestine, and it continued to develop through the period of the Judges.

The judges were directly chosen by God. They were invested with regal functions and were given a special enduement of the Spirit. The judges possessed no dynastic rights. They were genuine mediators of the divine rule. Conditions under the judges were not ideal.

Development of the theocracy continued through the Davidic Monarchy. This monarchial form of the Kingdom was foreseen in the plan of God. The errancy of Samuel’s sons encouraged the request by the elders of Israel for a king. The main defect with the monarchial idea was that Israel wanted to be “like all the nations.” The period of greatest monarchial glory was under the kingships of David and his son Solomon.

Looking forward now eschatologically, it is important to realize that the ancient Davidic monarchy was not merely typical of the future Millennial Kingdom, but was the actual Theocratic Kingdom itself. It is this very Davidic throne/Davidic Kingdom that is to be restored in the millennium.

The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom

As we noted in the previous section, the Theocratic Kingdom of Israel attained its greatest monarchical glory under the kingships of David and Solomon. But alas, that glory was not to last.

The decline of the Kingdom began with Solomon's personal failures. Soon, under the leadership of Solomon's son Rehoboam, Israel ruptured into two separate kingdoms. The Kingdom's decline fulfilled Samuel's predictions. The desire to be like the surrounding nations was a major cause of the decline. The Hebrew prophets prophesied during the decline (and also, long before its actual occurrence, the theocracy's downfall had been prophesied).

Ultimately, after the theocracy had declined to the point of no return, the Kingdom fell.

Soon after Ezekiel was shown Israel's apostasy in stark detail and the Shekinah glory departing the temple, the Kingdom fell to the Babylonians.

The departing of the Shekinah glory from the temple was a significant event. The Shekinah glory departed slowly, in four stages, as though reluctant to leave. The departure was permanent; the Shekinah glory was not to be restored in the second temple.

Finally, the theocracy was removed.

The causes of the theocracy's fall were the imperfection of its people and the imperfection of its leaders.

Once the theocracy fell, the world no longer had a theocratic nation. Instead, the world, including Israel, would now be dominated by Gentile (non-Jewish) powers, until a future time at which the Kingdom would again be restored to Israel.

The Hebrew prophets and Jesus Himself spoke of a limited period of time during which Israel would not have a king and the world would be ruled by Gentile nations. Jesus spoke of this period as the "times of the Gentiles."

The times of the Gentiles were seen by the prophet Daniel in considerable detail.

As to definition, the times of the Gentiles is a temporary period of time ordained by God during which Jerusalem, Israel and the world are to be dominated not by a theocratic Jewish Kingdom, but rather by a succession of Gentile powers. The Theocratic Kingdom does not exist during these times. The times of the Gentiles is one of two intercalations in the Kingdom program for Israel, the second intercalation being the Church Age.

One purpose of the times of the Gentiles is to demonstrate the nature of rulership by fallen man and the necessity of rulership by God. A second purpose is to prepare Israel for the Kingdom.

The times of the Gentiles encompass a long period of time (over 2600 years and counting as of this writing), during which a number of significant prophesied events are to take place.

The times of the Gentiles began in 587-586 B.C. with Jerusalem's seventy-year Babylonian captivity (Jeremiah's seventy years).

In Daniel chapters two and seven, the succession of Gentile world powers is portrayed as four sections of a great statue (as seen by man) and as four wild beasts (as seen by God) respectively. These four Gentile powers were Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome, with a revived Rome prophesied for the very end of the times of the Gentiles.

When Jeremiah's seventy years were almost completed, thinking that the Kingdom would soon be restored to Israel, Daniel prayed for understanding regarding the restoration of the theocracy. The answer to Daniel's prayer came in the form of an explanation from the angel Gabriel to the effect that although Jeremiah's seventy years were about to expire, the Kingdom would not be restored to Israel for another seventy sevens of years, or four hundred ninety years.

The seventy weeks (Dan. 9:24-27) were decreed upon the Jews and upon Jerusalem.

The seventy weeks were decreed to complete six things: 1. to finish transgression, 2. to make an end of sins, 3. to make reconciliation for iniquity, 4. to bring in everlasting righteousness, 5. to seal up vision and prophecy, and 6. to anoint the most holy" (Dan. 9:24).

These seventy weeks are weeks of years, not weeks of days.

These seventy weeks began with the decree of Artaxerxes to rebuild Jerusalem in 444 or 445 B.C.

Daniel's seventy weeks are divided up into four sections: Seven weeks, sixty-two weeks, "after" the sixty-two weeks, then the final seventieth week.

The first seven weeks, or forty-nine years, were for the rebuilding of Jerusalem.

The next sixty-two weeks, or sixty-nine weeks (four hundred eighty-three years) total, end with the arrival of Messiah the prince, fulfilled at Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday.

After the sixty-two weeks, which is after the (total) sixty-nine weeks, Messiah was to be cut off, and the city and temple destroyed. This cutting-off of Messiah and destruction of the city were to occur after the sixty-ninth week, but before the seventieth week.

We know that the seventieth week did not immediately follow the sixty-ninth week because the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. occurred at a time beyond such a contiguous seventieth week.

Although we can readily identify in history the event prophesied to occur at the end of the sixty-ninth week (arrival of Messiah), and the two events prophesied to occur after the sixty-ninth week (Messiah cut off and the city and temple destroyed), we cannot identify in history any of the events prophesied for the seventieth week. This strongly suggests that there must be an unspecified gap of time between the sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks.

It is not uncommon for time gaps to occur in Bible prophecy.

The time gap has enabled the creation and building of the church.

The time gap between the sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks was likely not disclosed clearly for the sakes of enabling human freedom regarding the Jews' acceptance or rejection of Jesus as Messiah at His First Advent, and not unnecessarily depressing the Jewish eschatological hopes.

In theory, had the first-century Jews accepted Jesus as Messiah, Daniel's sixty-ninth week could have been followed immediately by the seventieth week.

Even with the time gap, God can still deal with Israel in some ways during this period.

Daniel's seventieth week is packed with prophetic significance. Especially is this seen when it is recognized that most of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Revelation chapters six through nineteen fit within the week.

We'll deal at length with the contents of Daniel's "seventieth week" prophecy in the section The Great Tribulation below. Here, in this section, we will be covering only a few basic points, concerning the the timing of the seventieth week and identification of its two main characters. This will help prepare us for our more detailed summary later.

First, regarding the timing of the fulfillment of Daniel's seventieth week, this writer is convinced that there is an irrefutable line of argument that proves that Daniel's seventieth week has not been fulfilled in the past, and that it therefore must necessarily find fulfillment in the future. This line of argument is as follows: 1. Daniel placed the abomination of desolation in the middle of his seventieth week (Dan. 9:27). 2. Jesus placed the abomination of desolation in the future (admittedly, the future from standpoint of the time at which He gave the prophecy), at the time of the Great Tribulation (Matt. 24:15-21). 3. In the same passage, Jesus said that immediately after the tribulation of those days, the Son of Man would come on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory (Matt. 24:29-30). Now, 4. The Son of Man has not yet come on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory. Therefore, 5. The Great Tribulation, which immediately precedes the Son of Man's coming in glory has not happened yet and, therefore, 6. The abomination of desolation, which immediately precedes the Great Tribulation ("the abomination of desolation... then there will be a Great Tribulation,' Matt. 24:15-21), has not happened yet. Therefore, 7. Daniel's seventieth week, which features the abomination of desolation at its midpoint, has not happened yet. This line of argument also proves that 8. Since all commentators concede that Daniel's sixty-ninth week was fulfilled at Jesus' First Advent, there must therefore be a (almost two thousand-year-long now) time gap between Daniel's sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks.

Next, we identify the "prince that shall come" (Dan. 9:26) as the Antichrist, not the Christ.

And finally, we emphasize that the "covenant with many" (Dan. 9:27) is a covenant, not with the church, but with Israel. As Paul clearly taught, the church is a "mystery" not seen at all in the Old Testament (Eph. 3). We'll examine this "mystery" characteristic of the church in detail in the section The Mystery Kingdom (The Church) below.

The end of the times of the Gentiles was foretold by Jesus. In fact, in the Olivet Discourse in Matthew chapter twenty-four, Jesus gave a detailed composite sign that would be identifiable in world events at the time the times of the Gentiles were about to expire. We'll have more to say on this composite sign of the end of the times of the Gentiles in the section The Great Tribulation below.

Finally, the times of the Gentiles will be terminated by Christ's Second Advent.

The duration of the times of the Gentiles is unknown, because the duration of the intercalary Church Age is unknown. We can say in summary, though, that the times of the Gentiles span from the beginning of Jerusalem's Babylonian captivity in 586 or 587 B.C. to the time of Christ's future (as of this writing) return. This time period encompasses Jeremiah's seventy years of captivity, the period from the end of the captivity to the decree to rebuild Jerusalem in 445 B.C., Daniel's first sixty-nine weeks which ended with Jesus' presentation of Himself to Jerusalem on Palm Sunday, the entire Church Age which ends with the Rapture of the church, the time gap, if there is one, between the Rapture of the church and the beginning of Daniel's seventieth week, and Daniel's seventieth week itself. This will be, at least, a finite period of time.

Now, because of the unknown length of the Church Age, we can be sure that anyone who claims to have calculated the exact duration of the times of the Gentiles (as Jehovah's Witnesses claim to have done through their convoluted, grossly assumptive interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's "seven times" of Daniel chapter four) are badly mistaken. The end of the times of the Gentiles is yet future, and will be evident to all when it transpires, at the unmistakable, visible return of Israel's Messiah (Rev. 1:7). At that blessed time, Jerusalem's trampling by the Gentiles will end (Luke 21:24) and God's restored Davidic, Theocratic Kingdom of Israel will "come" (Matt. 6:10).

Even during the times of the Gentiles, wherein the Theocratic Kingdom of Israel lies dormant, Israel is to be preserved as a people.

Even with the theocracy's fall, its restoration is promised. The same theocratic, Davidic kingdom that was overthrown will be restored. The Shekinah Glory will return to the temple. The Jews will be perfected, and they will have a perfect King. The theocracy will be supernaturally restored. The theocracy will be restored only in Israel; not in any other group. Jehovah's theocratic earthly government has always been and always will be through the nation Israel. All other would-be usurpers of the Kingdom are doomed to failure, whether they be the church, Jehovah's Witnesses or anyone else. The theocracy will be restored in God's due time. Misunderstanding the timing of the Kingdom's reestablishment has led to bad theology, with tragic consequences, both in the church and in groups such as the Jehovah's Witnesses. The church has had its crusades and its dominion theology; Jehovah's Witnesses have only 144,000 "spiritual Israelites" going to heaven, a "great crowd" of unregenerated souls clinging to an unbiblical (for this Church Age) "earthly hope," and severe shunning and ostracism of those few who do manage to find their way out of the Watchtower maze into "the kingdom of His beloved Son" (Col. 1:13). All of these tragedies could have been entirely avoided through a correct understanding of the time and nature of the restoration of the Kingdom.

We'll discuss the details of the restoration of the Kingdom in the sections The Second Coming of the King, Inauguration of the Kingdom and The Millennial Kingdom below.

Covenants of the Kingdom

Essential to our understanding of God's Kingdom program is our understanding of the eight covenants that God has made with mankind. These eight covenants form the legal and prophetic foundations of the biblical Kingdom of God.

The covenants serve to determine the fundamental form and responsibility of life in each dispensation, and also form the foundation of all prophecy, helping us to correctly interpret and understand prophecy.

At least three characteristics are common to all eight of the biblical covenants. First, the covenants are presented and worded such that they are easily understood. Second, the covenants are to be understood literally. Third, the covenants always have an earthly focus.

However, there is one characteristic that is not the same for every covenant, namely, the characteristic of conditionality. Each covenant is either conditional or unconditional, and it is essential that we determine whether each covenant is conditional or unconditional, if we are to correctly understand the relationships between it and the other covenants, and the outworking of the covenants in history. A conditional covenant is a covenant whose fulfillment is conditioned upon man's obedience. Two of the eight covenants of the Bible are conditional: the Edenic Covenant and the Mosaic Covenant. An unconditional covenant is a covenant whose fulfillment is dependent only upon God, and whose fulfillment is independent of man's obedience or disobedience. It should be recognized, however, that unconditional covenants may (and sometimes do) contain conditioned blessings. Six of the eight covenants are unconditional: the Adamic Covenant, the Noahic Covenant, the Abrahamic Covenant, the Palestinian or Land Covenant, the Davidic Covenant and the New Covenant.

God has made a total of eight covenants with mankind.

Three of the eight covenants were made with mankind in general. They are the Edenic, Adamic and Noahic Covenants.

The first of these three covenants made with mankind in general, the Edenic Covenant, was conditional. In the Edenic Covenant Adam and Eve's idyllic life in the garden was conditioned on their obedience to the covenant. They disobeyed the covenant's one prohibitive condition by eating of the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thereby breaking the covenant. Then, as promised in the Edenic Covenant, in the very day that they ate from the forbidden fruit, they died spiritually and also began to die physically. They were then dismissed from the garden and forbidden reentry.

The second of these three covenants made with mankind, the Adamic Covenant, was unconditional. In the Adamic Covenant the serpent was cursed, and a seed was promised that would one day bruise the serpent's head. Also, the earth was cursed, Eve was told that childbearing would now be painful, and Adam was told that he would return to the dust from whence he came. All of these features of the Adamic Covenant were unconditional; they depended upon God alone for fulfillment.

The third of these three covenants made with mankind in general, the Noahic Covenant, was also unconditional. In the Noahic Covenant Noah was promised that the earth would never again be deluged by a global flood, and the State was given authority to punish sin. These features of the Noahic Covenant were unconditional, being parts of the unconditional Noahic Covenant.

The other five of the eight biblical covenants were all made exclusively with Israel. They are the Abrahamic, Mosaic, Palestinian, Davidic and New Covenants. If we are to understand the biblical Kingdom program correctly, it is essential that we keep in mind that these five covenants were made by God with Israel, not with Gentiles.

One of these five covenants with Israel, the Mosaic Covenant, was conditional.

At Mount Sinai, Jehovah made the Mosaic Covenant with Israel. It was comprised of six hundred thirteen laws, designed to govern the religious, moral and civil aspects of Jewish life. The Mosaic Covenant is stated in Exodus 20:1-31:18. As it has been well said elsewhere, the Old Testament is the record of Israel breaking the Mosaic Covenant. Hence the need for its replacement by the promised New Covenant.

The other four covenants made with Israel, the Abrahamic, Palestinian, Davidic and New Covenants, were unconditional. Again, the unconditionality of these four covenants is essential for us to keep in mind if we are to understand the Bible and its overall Kingdom program correctly.

Israel's four unconditional covenants all share several important characteristics: They present us with an outline of God's Kingdom program. They bind God to a specific course of action. Together, they promise seven things to Israel: 1. a nation forever, 2. a land forever, 3. a king forever, 4. a throne forever, 5. a kingdom forever, 6. a new covenant, and 7. abiding blessings. Again, these seven things are unconditional. They were given to and are to be fulfilled literally by Israel. They were given to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob personally, not to their seed only. They are still in effect. They are to be fulfilled by Christ. And, they are eternal.

The first of Israel's four unconditional covenants is the Abrahamic Covenant. In the Abrahamic Covenant God unconditionally promised to Abraham and to his descendants the land of Palestine forever, national identity, blessing, a great name, and potential blessing and cursing on other peoples. We discussed the Abrahamic Covenant in the section Conscience, Government and Promise above.

The second of Israel's four unconditional covenants is the Palestinian Covenant. In the Palestinian Covenant, as the Israelites were poised to enter the promised land, Jehovah unconditionally confirmed eternal ownership of the land of Palestine to Israel, while at the same time conditioning the Israelites' enjoyment of and blessing in the land on their repentance and obedience. We discussed the Palestinian Covenant in the section The Theocratic Kingdom above.

The third of Israel's four unconditional covenants is the Davidic Covenant. It was made by Jehovah with king David for the purpose of securing on earth an eternal Davidic house, throne, king and kingdom.

The Davidic Covenant is stated in Second Samuel (2 Sam. 7:12-19, 24-29) and First Chronicles (1 Chron. 17:11-27), and is reiterated in the Psalms (Ps. 89:1-4, 27-37) and in the Hebrew prophets.

The Davidic throne is also David's son Solomon's throne, but it is not to be occupied by Solomon's seed. In identifying David's throne, we should recognize that David's (earthly, and never equated with God's throne) throne is not God's (heavenly) throne. Since the beginning of the times of the Gentiles in 587 B.C., the Davidic throne has not been occupied. However, it will be occupied again after the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled.

The Davidic Covenant is an amplification of the Abrahamic Covenant. It is to be interpreted literally. David's throne and Kingdom are to be restored, not to be created from scratch.

The Davidic Covenant has not yet been fulfilled. It is to be fulfilled by Christ. It is to be fulfilled in His humanity. It was given to Israel and is to be fulfilled literally by Israel in the Millennial Kingdom. The Davidic Covenant is unconditional and irrevocable. It is confirmed in the New Testament. It is still in effect. And, it is eternal.

The fourth of Israel's four unconditional covenants, and the last of the Bible's eight covenants with mankind is the New Covenant.

The New Covenant is stated in Jeremiah (Jer. 31:31-37; 32:37-42; 33:6-9) and Ezekiel (Ezek. 11:17-21; 16:60-62; 36:25-27; 37:26-28).

The New Covenant will take Israel's sins away. It will also provide for the building of the Millennial Temple.

The New Covenant was made with Israel. It is an amplification of the Abrahamic and Davidic Covenants, not of the Mosaic Covenant. It is unconditional. It is confirmed in the New Testament. It is still in effect. It is now having partial fulfillment in the church, and it is to have future fulfillment in Israel. And, it is eternal.

The Kingdom in Hebrew Prophecy

In Hebrew prophecy God's theocratic Kingdom program is laid out both in broad outline and in remarkably fine detail. To acquire an accurate and awe-inspiring picture of the Bible's eschatological Kingdom, the Bible student has therefore only to read the Hebrew prophets with an open mind, an eye toward the future and a willingness to receive the prophets' messages as written. When the Hebrew prophets are read without preconception and without prejudice, their overall Kingdom program is unmistakable: After being scattered throughout the world for "many days," Israel is to be regathered back to her land, reconstituted as a nation, threatened by her surrounding nations, purged, defended by Messiah, regenerated, ruled by Messiah, and greatly blessed, both spiritually and materially. Concurrently, the Gentile nations are to be dealt with by God on the basis of their treatment of Israel.

The Kingdom is promised in the historical books, in the Psalms and in the prophets. In the corresponding chapter of this book, The Kingdom in Hebrew Prophecy, I present several hundred passages from the Old Testament which I've collected in my own personal Bible reading, in my effort to obtain for myself an accurate and impartial picture of the future Kingdom. It would be my first choice for the reader to make his or her own similar personal collection of Bible verses pertaining to the Kingdom, via his or her own personal Bible reading. This way, from reading all the passages in these books, the reader would, I believe, arrive at his or her own conclusion, as I have, that the verses that I've (and he/she will have) collected are indeed (almost exhaustively) representative of the Old Testament's Kingdom message.

Again, in summary, when taken at face value, Hebrew prophecy clearly and consistently promises a future, theocratic, Davidic, Jewish Kingdom. Major components of this prophesied Kingdom include a global regathering of the scattered Jewish people back to the land of Palestine, all nations of the world gathered for war against Israel, Israel's defeat of these nations (with supernatural and spectacular help from above), the purging and spiritual regeneration of the Jews, judgments of both Jews and Gentiles, resurrection of David, Daniel and "many" others, and Messiah's reign over Israel and the world from David's throne in Jerusalem. Concurrently, the Gentile nations are also to experience purging and blessing. And noteworthy, especially in light of Jesus' (Matt. 13) and Paul's (Eph. 3) "mystery" teachings, the Christian church is not at all identifiable in any of these Hebrew prophecies.

First-Century Expectation of the Kingdom

If we are to make proper sense of the opening chapters of the New Testament, wherein we find John the Baptist and Jesus declaring publicly to the Jewish nation that “the kingdom of heaven is at hand,” it is essential that we first understand the then-prevailing Jewish understanding and expectation of the Kingdom. What was the Jewish mindset at that time? What did the first-century Jews understand the Kingdom of God to be? And therefore, what kind of Kingdom were they expecting?

In contrast with the more abstract and metaphysical spiritualities of much of pagan religion, the Jewish mindset, both ancient and modern, is more concrete than abstract. This is due largely to the simple fact that the spirituality of the Jewish Bible (the Old Testament) is more concrete than abstract. The Bible is a written record of a literal history of a literal people; a history consisting of concrete events in real time such as the Jewish God Jehovah’s creation of the material world, the literal Garden of Eden, the Flood, Abraham and his literal seed, the exodus from Egypt, the tablets of stone, the wilderness wandering, the land of Palestine, Judea, Jerusalem, the temple, the Davidic throne, the Babylonian captivity, etc. Therefore, a spiritual-only kingdom, as exemplified in pagan spiritualities, such as transcendentalism, Platonic dualism and Gnosticism, divorced from the physical world, would not have been expected or even envisioned by a first-century Bible-believing Jew.

The first-century Jews understood the Kingdom exactly as covenanted and promised to them in their Hebrew Scriptures.

They understood the Kingdom as covenanted: literal and earthly.

And they understood the Kingdom as promised: literal and earthly.

The first-century Jews did not understand the Kingdom to be a spiritual-only kingdom.

Now, as we approach our study of the Kingdom in the New Testament, it is important for us to understand that the Theocratic Kingdom, dependent as it was on the Davidic kingship, was not in existence in the first century. As we saw in the section The Fall of the Kingdom above, with the Babylonian captivity of Jerusalem in 587 B.C., which commenced the times of the Gentiles, the theocratic, Davidic Kingdom had gone into remission. Subsequently, Daniel’s first sixty-nine weeks (Dan. 9:25), which commenced at the decree to rebuild Jerusalem in 445 B.C., and which were to run for six hundred eighty-three years, ending with the arrival of “Messiah the prince” (Dan. 9:25, KJV), would be in effect until Messiah’s formal presentation of Himself to Jerusalem on Palm Sunday in the year 32 B.C. Consequently, the restored Theocratic Kingdom had not been offered by God to the Jewish nation prior to the first century.

Regarding Christ's First Advent and the Jewish expectations associated with it, two things should be kept in mind: First, relatively few Old Testament prophets refer to the First Advent of Christ. Second, the first-century Jews did not know that Christ would have two advents.

So then, just what were the first-century Jews expecting? Obviously, they were expecting the Kingdom as they understood it, which was the Kingdom covenanted and promised to them: a literal, earthly, Jewish theocracy.

Even today many religious Jews are still expecting a literal, earthly, Jewish Kingdom.

It is our contention that, contrary to much popular opinion, the first-century Jews were not mistaken in their understanding of the Kingdom and in their Kingdom expectations. On the contrary, we contend that this Jewish understanding of the Kingdom is assumed in the New Testament, and that without acknowledging this assumption, the New Testament, and particularly the message preached in its opening chapters by John the Baptist, Jesus, the twelve and the seventy in the synoptic gospels, namely, that "the kingdom of heaven is at hand," cannot be understood correctly or satisfactorily.

Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom

Early in the first century, at a time when faithful Jewish believers were anticipating a restoration of the Davidic Kingdom, John the Baptist and Jesus arrived on the scene preaching to Israel, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Before getting into the details of the content of the message preached by John the Baptist and Jesus, it will be helpful for us to first review some relevant introductory considerations concerning our written Bible.

Concerning the relationship between the Old and New Testaments, it is important for us to recognize the continuity between the Old Testament and the New Testament, and to notice that the New Testament does not so much define the Kingdom as it does confirm it. We discussed these points in the introductory section Biblical Hermeneutics above.

As we study the Kingdom in the four gospels, it will be helpful for us to keep in mind each book's unique purpose. Matthew's purpose is to confirm Jesus' messianic credentials to a Jewish readership. Mark's purpose is to confirm Jesus as Jehovah's servant, as the One with sufficient power and ability to fulfill His will. Luke presents Jesus as the Son of Man Who is des-ted to fulfill the covenants. John presents Jesus as the Son of God, the rejected, crucified and resurrected Savior of the world.

The New Testament opens with the announcement by John the Baptist that “the kingdom of heaven is at hand.”

Also before getting into the details of John the Baptist’s and Jesus’ announcement and offer of the Kingdom to Israel, it is interesting for us to note first that while John the Baptist was announcing the Kingdom to Israel, and immediately before Jesus also began to announce and offer it to Israel, the kingdom of the world (this world) was offered by Satan to Jesus.

And, it is a deeply meaningful introductory fact that the Kingdom of God was announced and offered only to Israel.

The Kingdom was announced to Israel in a number of different ways by a number of different people:

The Kingdom was announced by Jesus’ First Advent.

The Kingdom was announced by Jesus’ genealogy.

The Kingdom was announced at Jesus’ birth.

The Kingdom was announced by John the Baptist. It is our contention that John the Baptist was not mistaken, but rather had a correct conception of the Kingdom.

The Kingdom was announced by Jesus’ baptism.

The Kingdom was announced by Jesus. We’ll say more about this below.

The Kingdom was announced by others. It was announced by two blind men, by a blind beggar, by Philip and Nathanael, by Peter, by those who wanted to take Jesus by force and make Him King, by another two blind men, and by children in the temple.

The Kingdom was announced by Jesus’ transfiguration.

And, the Kingdom was announced and foreshadowed by Jesus’ miracles.

The Kingdom was not only announced; it was also offered to Israel.

The Kingdom was announced and offered by Jesus.

The Kingdom was announced and offered by Jesus’ Person: Jesus came, not to write theology, but to fulfill Scripture. The Kingdom was offered to Israel in the Person of Jesus. Jesus presented Himself as King of Israel to Jerusalem.

And, the Kingdom was announced and offered by Jesus’ preaching. Again, Jesus preached only to Israel. As to the content of His preaching, Jesus preached the Kingdom: He preached the same Kingdom message that John the Baptist had preached. He preached, “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand,” and that “the time is fulfilled.” He preached the gospel of the Kingdom. He preached the Kingdom of God. He preached that the Kingdom of God (the King Himself) was in their midst. He preached that He came to fulfill the Law and the Prophets. He taught that Jerusalem is the city of the great king. He taught His followers to pray for the Kingdom to come. He taught His followers to seek first the Kingdom. He taught that one must be born spiritually to enter the Kingdom. He taught that Gentiles will participate in the Kingdom. He taught that a nobleman would travel far away to secure a Kingdom, then return. He taught that in the regeneration, His disciples will sit on thrones and judge the twelve tribes of Israel. He taught that there would be a wedding feast. And, He confirmed that the Christ is the son of David.

The Kingdom was also announced and offered by the twelve.

And, the Kingdom was announced and offered by the seventy.

It is an interesting and relevant fact that some caution was exercised in the preaching of the (political) Kingdom, apparently so as not to stir up unnecessary trouble with the governing authorities.

So, exactly what was this Kingdom that was preached first by John the Baptist, then by Jesus, then by the twelve and the seventy? It is a curious fact that the Kingdom preached was never clearly defined by the preachers. We contend that the Kingdom preached, announced and offered, was the previously covenanted and prophesied Jewish Kingdom.

It is revealing that the Kingdom message preached by John the Baptist, Jesus and Jesus' disciples stirred up no controversy with the Jews.

And, it is a noteworthy fact that the prevailing Jewish conception of the Kingdom (see the previous section First-Century Expectation of the Kingdom) was never corrected by John the Baptist, Jesus or the apostles. This Kingdom message was not an accommodation to the Jews. The message was not of a spiritual kingdom only. The message was both soteriological and eschatological. It was a genuine offer of the Kingdom to Israel. However, the offer was subject to acceptance or rejection by the Jews.

Rejection of the King

At Jesus' First Advent, with Jesus on the scene, personally announcing and offering the Kingdom to Israel, a decision was required on the part of the nation. But alas, the first-century Jews were morally unprepared to make the correct decision. Ultimately, the nation chose to reject Jesus as King. The Pharisees ascribed Jesus' powers to Satan; they sinned against the Holy Spirit.

After His rejection, Jesus' ministry changed in several ways. First, His self-identification changed. It changed from Messiah to silence (then later back to Messiah). Second, the purpose of His miracles changed. It changed from authenticating His messiahship to training His apostles. Third, the people for whom He performed His miracles changed. They changed from the masses to those with faith. Fourth, the people whom He invited changed. They changed from the nation Israel to individual tax-gatherers and harlots. Fifth, His message changed. It changed from “The Kingdom is at hand” to silence regarding His Messiahship (then later to “I am the Son of Man”). His message also changed from the announcement and offer of the Messianic Kingdom to the formation of the church (then later to His return and the accompanying fulfillment of Israel’s covenants). Sixth, His style of preaching changed. It changed from blessing to rebuking. And seventh, His method of teaching changed. It changed from plain speech to parables.

Postponement of the Kingdom

It is a generally undisputed fact of history that the first-century Jewish community in Israel rejected Jesus as their Messiah and King (see the previous section, Rejection of the King). That being the case, following Jesus’ rejection, what happened to the covenanted and prophesied (and announced and offered) Kingdom? Did God at that point cancel the entire Kingdom program? Many Christians would answer that no, the Kingdom program was not then cancelled, but that it was instead transformed in some way. Our contention, however, is that the theocratic Kingdom program was neither cancelled nor transformed, but rather only postponed until Jesus’ Second Coming.

Without an understanding of the Kingdom’s postponement, much of Scripture will simply not make sense (for example, Jer. 23:5–8). Without incorporating the postponement of the Davidic Kingdom into our eschatology, Scripture intended for application to the Tribulation period or to the Millennial Kingdom dispensation will likely be incorrectly applied to this Church dispensation (for example, Luke 1:30–33). When we overlook the postponement, and deny the future, literal fulfillment of the Jewish Kingdom prophecies, we are forced to “spiritualize” (alter) Scripture in order to maintain its truthfulness. This destroys the precision of Scripture. As a result, the biblical, Old Testament idea of the covenanted and prophesied Kingdom is lost.

It should be recognized that it was not disclosed in the Old Testament that Christ would have two advents. Instead, the events of both advents were combined in the messianic prophecies. In a similar manner, we suggest that neither was the postponement of the Kingdom, which was to span the same period of time as that transpiring between these two advents, disclosed in the Old Testament.

The idea of postponement of prophetic fulfillment is not foreign to the Bible; there were prior postponements, for instance, the Israelites' forty-year delay in occupying the promised land.

If the Kingdom was postponed at Jesus' First Advent, as we contend, then the Kingdom obviously could not have come prior to the first century. We contend that the Kingdom had not come prior to Jesus' First Advent, during Jesus' First Advent, just prior to Jesus' ascension, just after Jesus' ascension, in the epistles, or even yet today.

The Kingdom was offered to Israel by Jesus at His First Advent, but due to Jewish unbelief, it was postponed until Jesus' Second Advent.

The postponement of the Kingdom is stated and/or indicated in numerous passages of Scripture (for example, Matt. 21:43, Matt. 23:37-39, Mark 13:34-37, Luke 13:34-35; 19:11-28; 21:24, Acts 1:6-7). Considered collectively, these passages, especially when examined in conjunction with all the Old Testament covenants and prophecies, clearly indicate the fact of a postponement of the Kingdom.

The cause of the postponement was, generally speaking, Israel's sinfulness and refusal to repent, and specifically, the nation's rejection of Jesus as Messiah.

Consequences of the Kingdom's postponement include Israel's blindness and trampling, the destruction of Jerusalem, the scattering of the Jews throughout the world, the nation's dormancy, and an extension of the times of the Gentiles.

God's objectives of the postponement include Jesus' vindication (Jesus has been vindicated, is being vindicated even now, and will be further vindicated in the future), Israel's punishment, the introduction of an interim facet of the Kingdom (the church) and the gathering of the members of the church.

All things considered, with all these divine objectives being met, it should be evident that the postponement of the Kingdom was not failure.

Contrary to much popular opinion, the Kingdom was not transformed at Jesus' First Advent. The theocratic Jewish Kingdom was not transformed into a spiritual kingdom, or into the intermediate state (of the dead), or into the church, or into anything else. Any such transformation of the Kingdom would have been loudly protested by the first-century Jews.

Before confirming again what the Kingdom is, we'll first outline what it is not. The Kingdom is not the gospel of the Kingdom. The Kingdom is not repentance, faith, obedience or union with Christ. The Kingdom is not personal, present salvation. The Kingdom is not a spiritual reign of God in the heart. The Kingdom is not only a spiritual kingdom. The Kingdom is not Jesus' present authority. Jesus is not reigning as messianic King now. Jesus is not sitting on David's throne now.

The Kingdom is not the Watchtower Society. Jehovah's Witnesses believe that Jesus (a.k.a. Michael the archangel) returned invisibly in the year 1914, and that he at that time sat on David's throne (in heaven) and began ruling the earth, with the Watchtower Society serving (at least since 1918) as God's visible earthly organization. The facts that Jesus did not return in 1914 (Rev. 1:7) and that the Watchtower Society preaches a false and unbiblical gospel (that of Jehovah's established [since 1914] kingdom) (Gal. 1:8-9) prove their "present kingdom" belief unfounded. Instead, the Watchtower kingdom is no more secure than any of the other Christ-rejecting kingdoms that are in line for crushing by the stone of Dan. 2:44 at the conclusion of the Great Tribulation, in preparation for the genuine messianic, Davidic Kingdom.

The Kingdom is not the intermediate state of the dead; it is not "going to heaven when we die."

And finally, the Kingdom is not the church. Because over the centuries this is idea that the church is the Kingdom of God has been such a common and deeply-seated misconception within Christendom, it is worthwhile examining it in some detail. Our arguments as to why the church is not the Kingdom are: First, the Bible nowhere states that the church is the Kingdom. Second, Jesus' farewell discourse does not mention the Kingdom. Third, Jesus is not King of the church. Fourth, the church does not fulfill Israel's covenants. It is especially evident that the church does not fulfill the Davidic Covenant. Fifth, the church does not fulfill Israel's promises. (First, the church has never been authorized to fulfill the Kingdom promises. Churches can only assume and attempt to usurp Kingdom power in this dispensation by allegorizing the Kingdom promises. And second, the church is not capable of fulfilling Israel's promises.) Sixth, the church lacks an ordered and duly recognized Kingdom government. Seventh, the church was established in a time of peace, not in a time of (as prophesied for the establishment of the Kingdom) upheaval. Eighth, the church is preparatory to the Kingdom. Ninth, church members today are heirs, not possessors or reigning kings of the Kingdom. Tenth, church members today are suffering, not reigning. Eleventh, the church cannot be reigning during these "times of the Gentiles." Twelfth, the church's gospel is not the gospel of the Kingdom. And thirteenth, the church does not establish the Kingdom in the world.

So then, if the Kingdom is not the gospel, repentance, faith, obedience, personal and/or present salvation, union with Christ, the reign of God in the heart, a spiritual kingdom, Jesus' present authority, the Watchtower Society, the intermediate state of the dead, or the church, then what is it? We contend that the Kingdom is today what it has always been, namely, a (future) literal, earthly, theocratic, Jewish Kingdom. Again, the Kingdom has not been transformed, but merely postponed.

Reaffirmation of the Kingdom

Even after Jesus had been rejected by the Jewish leaders in Matthew chapter twelve, He still spoke of an earthly, future theocratic, Davidic, Jewish Kingdom. Jesus still spoke of Jerusalem's future acceptance of Him and the concurrent ending of the times of the Gentiles. He still had a personal zeal for the Jewish temple. He spoke of the age to come which had a specific eschatological meaning in the contemporary Jewish mind. In His Olivet discourse (Matt. 24-25; Luke 21 and Mark 13), Jesus gave numerous indicators that God was not yet finished with Israel. In fact, the entire discourse concerns Israel. In this Olivet discourse, Jesus spoke of the end of the age. He listed the signs that would indicate that the Kingdom is near. He spoke of the abomination of desolation, linking it with Judea and Daniel's prophecy. He spoke of the Great Tribulation, which Jeremiah and Daniel identified with the Jewish nation. He prophesied that the gospel of the Kingdom would be preached to all the nations. He prophesied concerning the coming of the Son of Man, which coincides with Daniel's Kingdom prophecy. He prophesied concerning the gathering of the elect, using the same language used in the Palestinian Covenant and in Zechariah for the prophesied future gathering of the Jews back to the land of Palestine. Jesus confessed to being King of the Jews. He spoke of future drinking of the fruit of the vine in the Kingdom. And, He spoke of future authority in the Kingdom.

Others also spoke of Jesus' future Kingship and/or Kingdom. The soldiers at the time of Jesus' arrest recognized Him as King of the Jews. The Jews at the time of Jesus' trial likewise knew what it would mean Kingship-wise if Jesus were the Messiah. Pilate also, at least mockingly, recognized Jesus' Kingship in relation to the Jews. The chief priests, scribes and elders did likewise. The penitent thief on the cross expected Jesus to come in His future Kingdom. Joseph of Arimathea was waiting for the Kingdom of God. And, the men on the road to Emmaus were hoping that Jesus was going to redeem Israel.

The Kingdom is reaffirmed in the events of the Acts of the Apostles. It was reaffirmed in the reoffer of the Kingdom to Israel. The Kingdom was also reaffirmed by the believers' selling of their property. And, the Kingdom was also reaffirmed by the transitional differences between the early and later chapters of Acts: It was reaffirmed in the transition from Jewish Kingdom expectations to Gentile church life. And, it was reaffirmed in the transition from public miracles to the absence of public miracles.

The Kingdom is also reaffirmed by the testimony of the apostles in the Acts of the Apostles: It was reaffirmed by the apostles just before Christ's ascension. The Kingdom was reaffirmed by Peter: It was reaffirmed by Peter on the day of Pentecost. And, it was reaffirmed by Peter before the Sanhedrin. It was reaffirmed by James at the Jerusalem conference. The Kingdom was reaffirmed by Paul: It was reaffirmed by Paul in Thessalonica. It was also reaffirmed by Paul before Agrippa. And, it was reaffirmed by Paul before the leading Jews in Rome.

The Kingdom is reaffirmed in the New Testament epistles by Paul, James, Peter, John and Jude.

The Kingdom is reaffirmed in all of Paul's epistles except Philemon: in Romans, First Corinthians, Second Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, First Thessalonians, Second Thessalonians, First Timothy, Second Timothy, Titus and Hebrews (if authored by Paul). In Romans Paul lays out an extensive description of Israel's past, present and future, particularly in chapters nine through eleven. In First Corinthians Paul exhorts the Christians at Corinth to eagerly anticipate the future "day of our Lord Jesus Christ," at which their resurrection and translation is to take place, and their subsequent reigning as kings with Jesus. In Second Corinthians Paul again encourages the saints at Corinth to look forward to "the day of our Lord Jesus" and their raising with Him. In Galatians Paul affirms that the Abrahamic Covenant has not been nullified. In Ephesians Paul speaks of this age and of the ages to come (in which God will show the surpassing riches of His grace toward the church in Christ Jesus) and the administration suitable to the fulness of the times, wherein all things in the heavens and upon the earth will be summed up in Christ. In Philippians Paul eagerly anticipates "the day of Christ," when the Savior will come from heaven and transform believers' bodies so they conform to His glorious body. In Colossians Paul says that when Christ is revealed, Christians will also be revealed with Him in glory. In First Thessalonians Paul has much to say about Jesus' future coming, the Rapture of the church and His delivering the church from the wrath to come. In Second Thessalonians Paul describes the last-days apostasy, the removal of the restrainer, relief for those who are afflicted, the gathering of the saints in Jesus and their glorification in Him, the revealing of the man of lawlessness, the day of the Lord with its destruction of the unbelievers, and the slaying of the man of lawlessness. In First Timothy Paul mentioned the future appearing of Jesus. In Second

Timothy Paul referred to Jesus as a descendant of David, referred to His appearing and His Kingdom, and anticipated reigning with Him. In Titus Paul anticipated the “blessed hope” and the appearing of Jesus’ glory. In Hebrews the writer (Paul?) of the book made references to the promises made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the Hebrew prophets, the new covenant with Israel, Jesus’ Second Coming, the world to come in subjection to the Son of Man, the powers of the age to come, and the kingdom that believers are to receive that cannot be shaken.

James exhorted the heirs of the kingdom to be patient until the coming of the Lord.

Peter was highly eschatologically-minded. In First Peter, Peter exhorted his fellow partakers of the glory that is to be revealed to fix their hope completely on the grace to be brought to them at the revelation of Jesus. Similarly, in Second Peter, Peter exhorted believers to be holy in conduct and godliness, looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God.

John, in First John, warned that Antichrist and the day of judgment are coming, and exhorted believers to abide in Jesus, so that when He appears, they may have confidence and not shrink away from Him in shame.

Jude exhorted believers to wait anxiously for the mercy of Jesus, and to look forward to standing in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy.

The Kingdom was reaffirmed by John in the book of Revelation. (For the many Scripture citations, see our corresponding chapter Reaffirmation of the Kingdom.)

The King of the Kingdom

Every kingdom is composed of a throne (authority to rule), a king and subjects. We’ve already covered in some detail, in the section Covenants of the Kingdom above, the throne of the Theocratic Kingdom of God, namely the Davidic throne. We’ve also touched upon the subjects of the Theocratic Kingdom, namely the regenerated nation Israel and the saved Gentiles that survive the Great Tribulation. (We’ll cover these subjects of the Kingdom in greater detail in the sections Inauguration of the Kingdom and The Millennial Kingdom below). Now in this section we’ll turn our attention to the King of the Theocratic Kingdom, the theanthropic Person who is destined to occupy the Davidic Throne, namely, Jesus the Christ. Whereas regenerated Israel is the nucleus of the Theocratic Kingdom, Jesus the Christ, as He reigns from His Davidic throne in Jerusalem, is the very focal point of the Kingdom.

The King of God’s Kingdom has two major responsibilities: to redeem and to reign. If this redeeming and reigning are to be perfectly effectual, the Kingdom's Priestly King Himself must be perfect and capable of accomplishing all that is required of Him. As we outline in this section, Jesus the Christ is uniquely qualified and fully equipped to accomplish every goal and purpose of His Kingship. In His deity and in His humanity, in His submissiveness, incarnation, innocence, obedience, character, perfection, miracles and suffering, Jesus is eminently qualified to be King of the Kingdom. He is the perfect Messiah.

Jesus' qualifications for Kingship are found both in His deity and in His humanity.

As God, Jesus possesses the power and authority requisite for the theocratic Kingship.

There are sufficient evidences in Scripture to prove beyond reasonable doubt that Jesus possesses full deity. In summary: He is the creator and sustainer of all things, He is the Savior and giver of things of God, He has authority to forgive sins, and is the judge of all. He is all-seeing, all-knowing and omnipresent. He was eternally preexistent. He never changes. It is proper to serve Him, pray to Him, give glory to Him and worship Him. He is not an angel; He is Lord, sovereign with His Father, the Son of God, God (as is His Father) and Jehovah.

Jesus is from everlasting (Mic. 5:2). He was in the beginning (John 1:1). He is before all things (Col. 1:17). He had glory with the Father before the world was (John 17:5). He existed in the form of God (Phil. 2:6). He was God (John 1:1). He is the Firstborn of all creation (for all things were made by Him and for Him; Col. 1:15-16). Through Him are all things (Heb 1:2). All things were made by Him (Col. 1:16). God attributes Jehovah's creative works to Him (Heb 1:8, 10). All things were created by Him and for Him (Col. 1:16). He made man in His own image (Gen. 1:26, 27). The Father sent Him (John 6:57). He sought not His own will, but that of His Father who sent Him (John 6:38). The way was prepared for Jehovah, then Christ came (Matt. 3:3). He was Immanuel—God With Us (Matt. 1:23). All the angels of God worship Him (Heb. 1:6). The magi worshiped Him (Matt. 2:11). He is the Son of God (John 10:36). He who has seen Him has seen the Father (John 14:7-9). The Father was greater than He (spoken by Jesus in His humanity; John 14:28). He could do nothing of Himself (John 5:19). He did nothing of Himself (John 8:28). His Father gave Him the words which He spoke (John 12:49). (In His humanity) He knew not the day nor the hour of the end (Matt. 24:36). A cured blind man worshiped Him (John 9:38). He would raise up His body (John 2:19, 21). No one has greater love than Him (John 15:13). He was one with the Father (John 10:28-33). The Jews believed, and the apostle John wrote, that He made Himself equal with God

(John 5:18). He forgives sins against God (Luke 5:24). He gave men power to be born of God (John 1:12-13). Those in the boat worshiped Him (Matt. 14:33). His eleven disciples worshiped Him (Matt. 28:16-17). The Father's name has been given to Him (John 17:11-12). He is heir of all things (Heb. 1:2). God raised Him from the dead (Acts 2:24). He raised His body from the dead (John 2:19-21). He ascended to His God (John 20:17). He appeared in the presence of God (Heb. 9:24). He sat down at the right hand of God (Mark 16:19). God highly exalted Him (Phil. 2:9). God glorified Him (Acts 3:13). He is not an angel (Heb. 1 & 2). He was made better than the angels (Heb. 1:4). God made Him Lord and Christ (John 2:36). All men should honor Him as they do the Father (John 5:22-23). He is the First and the Last, as is Jehovah (Isaiah 44:6, Rev. 1:17-18). In Him dwells all the fullness of the Deity in bodily form (Col. 2:9). He is the exact representation of God's nature (Heb. 1:3). He is above all (John 3:31). He sustains all things (Col. 1:17, Heb. 1:3). He is eternal Father (Isaiah 9:6). He is Mighty God (Isaiah 9:6). All things that are the Father's are His (John 16:15). All authority in Heaven and on Earth has been given to Him (Matt. 28:18). The Father has given Him power over all flesh (John 17:2). He is mediator between God and men (1 Tim. 2:5-6). He is in the bosom of the Father (John 1:18). He is Lord of lords (Rev. 17:14). "Whoever calls upon the name of Jehovah will be saved" applies to calling on Him (Rom. 10:9, 11-13). And, He is the same yesterday and today and forever (Heb. 13:8).

As man, Jesus identifies with humanity and qualifies for the Davidic throne. Jesus is as much fully human as He is fully God. He became human at His incarnation. He was resurrected bodily. He is human today. And, He will be human during His reign as Davidic King.

As both God and man, Jesus possesses deity and humanity combined.

While holding fast to all that we've said above, we readily admit also that our fully fathoming Jesus' Person in our finite and (presently) imperfect state is not possible.

Also requisite for Jesus' Kingship is His submissiveness.

For Jesus to become fully man, thereby acquiring eligibility for the Davidic throne, His incarnation was required. As to the timing of the incarnation, it was prophesied to occur while the temple was still standing. It occurred during the middle age of the world. As to the ethnicity of the incarnation, Messiah is a Jew. Jesus' ethnic connection to the Jewish race ensures the race's preservation and blessing, not only in the Jewish Person of Christ, but also in the believing Jewish remnant. As to the wonder of the incarnation, it is marvelous. Yet as wonderful as Jesus' First Advent was, His Second Advent will be immensely more glorious.

As to the purpose of the incarnation, it is multi-faceted. However, we must be careful to restrict the purposes of the incarnation to those explicitly taught in Scripture, lest we mistakenly attribute purposes of Jesus' Second Advent (such as reigning from David's throne) to His First Advent. One purpose of the incarnation was to reveal God to man. A second purpose was to provide atonement for sin. A third purpose was to reveal the gospel. A fourth purpose was to prepare a suitable King/High Priest for the Kingdom.

Jesus' fitness for the Kingship required His innocence.

His obedience to the Father was also required.

His character is befitting a theocratic King. His character was, in fact, developed and demonstrated to the extent of perfection, thus qualifying Him to be a perfect King.

Also demonstrating His fitness for Kingship were His miracles.

And finally, His suffering qualified Him to be a sympathetic and merciful King/Priest.

The career of Jesus, including His incarnation, life, death, resurrection, ascension, glorification, present session and return perfectly prepares Him for the proper exercise of His Kingship.

Jesus' incarnation provided His identification and solidarity with humanity and prepared the human body that would qualify Him to sit on David's throne.

His life, including His perfect observance of the Mosaic Law, His fulfillment of the Law and the Prophets, His teaching and His miracles also prepared Him for theocratic Kingship. He observed the Mosaic Law perfectly. He fulfilled the Law and the Prophets. He taught regarding the Kingdom and the intervening Church Age. His miracles demonstrated that He had the supernatural ability required to usher in and administer the Kingdom.

Jesus' death fulfilled the legal requirement for justifying sinners. His death was foretold in the Old Testament; it was therefore inevitable. Regarding the timing of Jesus' death, it was determined by Jesus. The purpose of Jesus' death was to render God propitious toward sinners. The accomplishments of Jesus' death are many. First, it confirmed Israel's continuing role in the plan of God (it was Jewish blood that was shed on Calvary). Second, it made atonement for sin. Third, it abrogated the Mosaic Covenant. And fourth, together with His resurrection, it is the basis upon which all Kingdom promises depend. The value of Jesus' death is infinite.

Jesus' burial was prophesied by Him and is an integral component of the gospel.

Jesus' resurrection was foretold in the Old Testament. It became a fact of history in the New Testament. It was a bodily resurrection. Together with His death, Jesus' resurrection is the basis upon which all Kingdom promises depend.

Jesus' ascension translated the Son of Man from earth to heaven. The purpose of the ascension was to exalt the Son of Man, so Jesus could sit with the Father on His throne, so Jesus could prepare a home for His bride, and so Jesus could intercede for His bride.

His career included His glorification.

All power and authority were given to Him.

Regarding His present session, He is Head of the church, High Priest, Mediator and Advocate.

Jesus' career also includes His return. We'll discuss His return in the section The Second Coming of the King below.

And finally, He will exercise His power and authority at His Second Coming. We'll discuss this exercising of His power and authority in the section The Second Coming of the King below.

Throughout His career Jesus holds in turn the three offices of Prophet, Priest and King.

In Scripture Jesus is given a number of unique titles that are descriptive of His Person and His past, present and future work.

He is Immanuel.

He is the Son of God.

He is the Son of Man.

He is the Son of David.

He is the Lamb of God.

He is the Lion of Judah.

He is the Messiah, Christ. By definition, Messiah or Christ means "anointed one," that is, one anointed to be King. "Christ" is a title regarding the office; not the Person. The title was clearly understood in Jesus' day, but has since then lost much of its original meaning. The title is related to the restored Theocracy. Satan's temptation was addressed to Jesus' Christship. The title was understood correctly by Peter. It had political ramifications for Jesus. It was not used publicly until after Christ's death. The title was understood and taught correctly by Paul, and was understood correctly by the early church. The title assisted with the conversion of the Jews. When Jesus returns, He will return as the Christ. Jesus will reign in the Millennial Kingdom as the Christ. The body of Christ will reign with the Christ. Jesus is not yet in possession of the position indicated by the title.

The title should produce in believers reverence and respect for “the Christ.” And, those who use the title correctly now will be criticized.

And, He is the Morning Star.

Jesus exhibits glory at every stage of His theocratic career. He had glory before the world was, He exhibited glory at His incarnation, He has glory now in heaven, and He will exhibit great glory at His Second Coming and in the Millennial Kingdom. While the Kingdom of God is glorious in all its facets and in all its details, the source and focal point of the Theocratic Kingdom’s glory is its actualizing God, Savior, Prophet, Priest and King. We therefore recognize Jesus the Christ Himself as the quintessential Glory of the Kingdom.

The biblical accounts of Jesus’ Person and work (His career including His incarnation, life, death, burial and resurrection) are truthful. Jesus was neither deceived nor a deceiver. He was not an invention of His disciples, and the gospel accounts of His life were not concocted by later writers.

The Mystery Kingdom (the Church)

As we suggested in the section Postponement of the Kingdom above, upon the first-century Jews’ rejection of Jesus as Messiah, the covenanted and prophesied Theocratic Kingdom was neither annulled nor transformed, but rather merely postponed. Now, if the covenanted and prophesied Davidic Kingdom was postponed; if the Kingdom was not inaugurated at Christ’s First Advent and must instead wait for inauguration until His Second Advent (see the section Inauguration of the Kingdom below), then what is to be made of this intervening time period between His two advents, the (so far) nearly two millennia-long age in which we now find ourselves? With the Jews for the most part scattered throughout the world and the Theocratic Kingdom on hold, has God revealed any specific purpose of His for this intervening period? Indeed He has. In fact, the intervening, interim facet of the Kingdom that has taken center stage in this age, the Mystery Kingdom, is in many ways the most gracious and marvelous facet of them all.

In this section we will define the Mystery Kingdom, identify its major player (the church) and explore its mysteries.

As previously defined in the section Five Facets of the Kingdom above, the Mystery Kingdom is the present “mystery” form of the Kingdom, commonly known as “Christendom.”

The primary player within the Mystery Kingdom is the church. Therefore, for a correct understanding of God’s overall Kingdom program, proper identification of the church is essential.

Contrary to much popular opinion, the church is not Israel, nor is the church the Kingdom.

That the church is not Israel should be obvious from a plain, "literal" reading of Scripture. However, because the church is so often confused with Israel, both by many within the church and by many if not most heretical groups (such as Jehovah's Witnesses, who believe their "anointed remnant" is the new Israel), and because this misidentification is such a determining factor in many peoples' conception of the Kingdom, we will discuss the church's non-identification with Israel here.

The church is not "Israel." That the church is not Israel is evident from a number of factors: First, in the Bible, "Israel" always refers to literal Israel. Second, a careful examination of the seventy-three occurrences of the word "Israel" in the New Testament makes it plain that the term always means natural, ethnic Israel. Third, the Bible never identifies the church as "Israel." Fourth, in the Bible, "tribes" always refers to literal tribes of people (there are nine occurrences of "tribes" in the New Testament). Fifth, the primitive church did not identify the church with Israel. Sixth, the church has no genuine nexus with Israel. Seventh, the church does not replace Israel: The church is not "new Israel." The church is not "spiritual Israel." The church is not "the Israel of God." The church is not a race. The church is not a nation. The church is not Mount Zion or Jerusalem. The church does not receive the fulfillments of Israel's promises. The church is not the wife of Jehovah. In the Bible, Israel is "the wife of Jehovah." The church, on the other hand, is the bride of Christ. The church and Israel have differing relationships to Christ. The church and Israel will have differing roles in the Millennial Kingdom.

The Church is not the Kingdom. See our discussion of the fact that the Kingdom is not the church in the section Postponement of the Kingdom above.

So then, if the church is not Israel and the church is not the Kingdom, then what is she? She is an entirely new entity. The church can be defined as an assembly of persons, the "body of Christ," the members of which have each been joined to Christ through Spirit baptism. The church is a spiritual seed of Abraham. She is the bride of Christ. She is an organism, not an organization. Some groups, including the Roman Catholic Church and the Jehovah's Witnesses, claim to be the one and only visible, catholic/universal church (or organization), but these groups are in error. The church is not a visible organization, but rather an invisible organism. She is an exclusively blessed entity. She is the pillar and support of the truth. She is not limited to only those who espouse a particular eschatological view. She is identifiable: She is identifiable by her correct doctrine, by her exhibition of the fruit of the Spirit, and by her non-exhibition of cultic exclusivity. And at this point in time, she is not yet perfect.

In Scripture, the church is said to be a mystery. This mystery was revealed to Paul. The church is called a mystery because it was not foretold in the Old Testament. As is so also with the other Old Testament prophets, the church was not foreseen by Daniel. There are four elements that comprise the mystery of the church: that Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body of Christ, “Christ in you,” the Rapture, and the bride of Christ.

The purposes of the church can be divided into two broad categories: those having to do with the current (Church) age in which we now live and those having to do with the future ages.

The current purposes of the church and of this Church Age, which when understood correctly correspond perfectly with today’s observable realities (these purposes are now being fulfilled), are important to understand. The current purposes of the church in this Church Age are: to give man an opportunity to avail himself of God’s grace, to save men by grace, to gather the elect, to call out from the Gentiles a people for God’s name, to espouse a bride to Christ, to incite the Jews to jealousy, to select and prepare kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom, to develop Christians’ character and to demonstrate that God’s purposes do not fail. It is not the purpose of the church in this Church Age to entertain herself and others, nor is it to Christianize the nations.

The ultimate (and future) purposes of the church are to be Christ’s wife, to exalt redeemed men and to display the infinity of God’s grace.

The career of the church on earth involves the chronology of the Church Age, developmental details of the church and the fact that God is gathering the church now.

While the Bible does not offer a precise or detailed chronology of the Church Age, it does present several overviews of the age, with certain events and circumstances serving as milestones. These events and circumstances include: The members of the church were chosen before the foundation of the world. The church was foreseen by Jesus (it was still future at Jesus’ time). The “keys of the Kingdom” were given to Peter. The church began at Pentecost. The duration of the Church Age is from Pentecost to the Rapture of the church. No detailed chronology of the Church Age is given in the Bible. Rather than resulting in the conversion of the world, the last days of the church are to be days of apostasy, unbelief, wickedness, self-sufficiency, lukewarmness, sleepiness and failure. And, the Church Age concludes with the Rapture of the church.

Many of the developmental details of the church are outlined in the “Mystery Kingdom” parables of Matthew chapter thirteen and in the letters to the seven congregations of Revelation chapters two and three.

In Matthew chapter thirteen, immediately following Jesus’ rejection by the Jewish leaders in chapter twelve, Jesus outlined the new, never-before-disclosed “Mystery” facet of the Kingdom that was now to transpire during the time period between His rejection and His Second Coming. These “Mystery Kingdom” parables are found primarily in Matthew chapter thirteen, with some additions and some duplication in Mark and Luke. The “Mystery Kingdom” parables are those of The Sower, The Seed, The Tares Among the Wheat, The Mustard Seed, The Leaven, The Hidden Treasure, The Costly Pearl, The Dragnet and The Householder.

In Revelation chapters two and three the resurrected and glorified Jesus gave seven individually-tailored messages to the seven churches of Asia Minor. Some dispensational scholars believe that in addition to the messages’ immediate references to the seven named churches in the first century, these seven churches also represent seven various “kinds” of churches found in all periods of church history, and/or seven discernible sequential periods of time in church history. Whether the seven represented “kinds” of churches are chronologically contemporaneous or sequential or both is a matter of debate. This writer tends toward the “both” view, especially with the present-day advantage of hindsight and also with the increasing manifestation of “Laodicean” characteristics in today’s professing church. The seven churches are the churches of Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia and Laodicea.

As of this writing, as we find ourselves within the time period of the “Mystery Kingdom,” and also within the uniquely blessed and gracious Church Age, God is gathering the church now.

This Church Age, unique among all the ages of world history, possesses and exhibits a number of distinct dispensational characteristics: It was planned from eternity. It is disconnected from the previous and the following dispensations. It is characterized by the bodily absence of the King. It is centered in Jesus’ sacrificial death. It is characterized by primarily spiritual (rather than material) blessings. It exhibits spiritual unity among the genuinely regenerated. It features no centralized, authoritative church government. It is marked by suffering. It contains a mixture of good and evil, truth and error. It is free from coercion by God. It is devoid of angelic manifestations. It is devoid of spectacular miracles. In its self-preservation is enjoined. And, it exhibits a conspicuous silence of God.

The Rapture of the Church

The Church Age, which was in Old Testament times a yet-to-be-revealed “mystery” in relation to God’s theocratic Kingdom program with Israel (see the previous section The Mystery Kingdom (the Church)), fittingly concludes with a mystery: the Rapture of the church. The Rapture is the church’s “blessed hope” (Titus 2:13), and should be eagerly anticipated by every member of Christ’s body.

The Rapture can be defined as Christ’s “catching up” into the air of all those in Him, whether dead or alive, at the end of the Church Age. Those alive at that time will be caught up together with all those who had previously died in Christ who will at that time be (bodily) resurrected, so the entire church will be raised up, glorified, and forever be with her Head, Bridegroom and Lord. The Rapture is defined primarily in three passages of Scripture: 1. “Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:1-3) 2. “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality” (1 Cor. 15:51-53). 3. “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18).

In order to correctly identify the Rapture, it is important for us to carefully distinguish what it is from what it is not, especially in relation to Christ’s Second Coming.

If by Christ's Second Coming we mean specifically Jesus' future visible return to earth (see the section The Second Coming of the King below), the Rapture is not Christ's Second Coming. It is instead a separate event which is to occur before and in preparation for the Second Coming. Some scholars identify the Rapture as the first stage of a two-stage Second Coming.

The Rapture and the Second Coming were revealed to the prophets separately. These two events are always spoken of separately in Scripture; never together.

There are numerous distinctions between the Rapture and the Second Coming, including their timing, participants, direction of travel and results (see our corresponding chapter The Rapture of the Church for several scholars' lists of these seventeen or more distinctions).

The participants in the Rapture will be all and only members of the church, both dead and alive.

While the Rapture, as part of the "mystery" church program, is not found in Old Testament prophecy, some scholars do find in the Old Testament some possible types of the Rapture. However, since most these possible types are not confirmed to be such in the New Testament, they should be received as speculative only. Enoch was taken up without seeing death. It's interesting that he was also the first one to prophesy of Christ's Second Coming. Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven. Lot was removed from Sodom before destruction came upon the city. Rebekah, Isaac's bride, appears to be a type of the church in several particulars. Asenath became Joseph's wife before the famine/tribulation. Moses' wife Zipporah was given to him after his rejection and before the Israelites' tribulation in Egypt. Daniel was not on hand during the time of testing when Nebuchadnezzar had set up an image for worship on the plain of Dura (as the church will not be on hand when the false prophet demands universal worship of Antichrist). And, the traditional Jewish wedding appears to be an exceptionally fitting and detailed type of the wedding of the church to Christ.

The Rapture of the church, being one of the most supernatural and momentous events in all of world history, has purposes both for the church and also for those left behind.

The purposes of the Rapture for the church include saving the church, closing the Church Age and preparing the church for the Kingdom.

The first major purpose of the Rapture is to save the church. To this end, the Rapture will transfer the church from earth to where Jesus is, as per Jesus' desire. It will deliver the church from God's wrath. And, it will deliver the church from persecution.

The second major purpose of the Rapture is to close the Church Age.

The third major purpose of the Rapture is to prepare the church for the Kingdom. To this end, the Rapture will transform (glorify) the church. The Rapture will transform the church from flesh and blood to otherwise, from non-spiritual to spiritual, from natural to supernatural, from imperfect to perfect, from unholy to holy, from mortal to immortal, and from lowly to glorious. But even after the transformation, the church will remain finite.

The Rapture will introduce the church to God, face-to-face.

The Rapture will facilitate the judging and rewarding of the church: Soon after the Rapture, the church will stand before the judgment seat of Christ. There believers' works will be judged, and individual believers will consequently suffer loss and/or be rewarded according to their deeds. Faithful believers will be rewarded with: Jesus' confession of his name before His Father and His angels; keeping from the hour of testing; the morning star; entrance into the New Jerusalem; names written upon him: the name of Christ's God, the name of the New Jerusalem, Jesus' new name; crowns (five): 1. the imperishable crown (for those who achieve victory in the spiritual life), 2. the crown of rejoicing (for soul-winners), 3. the crown of righteousness (for those who have kept the faith, doctrinally and morally, and who have loved His appearing), 4. the crown of life (for those who endure trials and for those who suffer martyrdom), 5. the crown of glory (for those who feed the sheep); a dwelling place in the New Jerusalem; being made a permanent pillar in the temple of God; sitting down with Christ on His throne; authority in the Millennial Kingdom; authority to eat from the tree of life in Paradise; keeping of his name in the book of life; immunity from the second death; and ability to glorify God.

The Rapture will prepare rulers for the Kingdom.

And, the Rapture will facilitate the marriage of the Lamb.

The purposes of the Rapture for those left behind include witnessing to those left behind, confirming the literal hermeneutic for the fulfillment of Bible prophecy, unrestraining the Antichrist, and reverting God's earthly program back to Israel.

The Rapture of the church possesses several signature characteristics. It is a mystery, miraculous, awesome, bodily, invisible to unbelievers, instantaneous, as a thief in the night, and unexpected by most people.

The timing of the Rapture is a subject of considerable and lively debate. Even among premillennialists there are differences of opinion concerning the precise timing of the Rapture. Because Scripture does not explicitly state, in unambiguous terms, exactly when the Rapture is to occur in relation to the Tribulation period (for our discussion of the Tribulation period see the next section, The Great Tribulation below), the matter is left to careful inductive study, and ultimately, of course, to actual occurrence. At the time of this writing, the majority of premillennialists, and nearly all dispensationalists, hold the pretribulation (the Rapture occurs before the Tribulation) position. A minority hold the posttribulation position, and an even smaller minority hold the midtribulation (or its variant, “pre-wrath”) position. In this section we will outline some of the many evidences and lines of reasoning that have led this writer to the conviction that the pretribulation position is the correct one.

The Rapture of the church is to occur: After the signs of the end of the age begin to take place, “at the last trumpet,” at the end of the Church Age, before the Millennial Kingdom, before the resurrection of Revelation 20:4, and before Christ’s Second Coming. The Rapture must occur before Christ’s Second Coming because: 1. The church is already in heaven when Christ returns, 2. No translation of living saints is mentioned at Christ’s Second Coming, and 3. At Christ’s Second Coming, Christ returns with the church; not for her.

Posttribulationism, which teaches that the Rapture occurs after the Tribulation, has been the majority view throughout church history and remains the majority view in the church today. Evidential facts contrary to posttribulationism include: 1. The hermeneutics of posttribulationism are highly questionable, 2. Posttribulationism is not an “older” teaching than pretribulationism, 3. Posttribulationists disagree amongst themselves on major details, 4. Posttribulationists often ignore details that are unfavorable to their position, 5. Posttribulationists cannot explain why the church must endure the Tribulation, 6. Posttribulationists are often historicists, rather than futurists, 7. Posttribulationism is not explicitly taught in Scripture, 8. Paul specifically refutes posttribulationism in Second Thessalonians chapter two, 9. Posttribulationism usually mistakenly places all “elect” and “saints” in the church, 10. Posttribulationism usually ignores the distinction between the church and Israel, 11. Posttribulationism has trouble identifying the 144,000, 12. The church is not found on earth in any of the Tribulation passages, 13. Revelation does not describe a triumphant church going through the Tribulation relatively untouched, 14. Many if not most Tribulation saints will be martyred and resurrected; not translated, 15. The Rapture is not mentioned in any of the Second Coming passages, 16. The Rapture does not fit the analogy with those “taken” in Noah’s flood, 17. Tribulation survivors are needed to participate in the post-tribulation judgments on earth, 18. Tribulation survivors are needed to populate the earth after the Tribulation, 19. The posttribulation resurrection of the Old Testament saints does not include the church, and 20. Posttribulationism destroys imminency.

Midtribulationism, which teaches that the Rapture occurs at the midpoint of the Tribulation, while having considerably fewer adherents than either posttribulationism or pretribulationism, still has its adherents. Midtribulationists place the seventh trumpet of Revelation at the midpoint of the Tribulation, and identify this trumpet as the “last trumpet” for the Church Age, resulting in a midtribulation Rapture. However, the seventh trumpet of Revelation is not the last trumpet in Scripture. Also, midtribulationism confuses Israel and the church and overlaps their two programs. And, like posttribulationism, midtribulationism destroys imminency.

The Rapture occurs at the beginning of the Day of the Lord. It occurs before or at the signing of Antichrist’s 7-year covenant with Israel. This is because the signing of the covenant marks the beginning of Daniel’s seventieth week (Dan. 9:27), which in turn marks the beginning of the Tribulation. By definition, a pretribulation Rapture occurs before the beginning of the Tribulation. The Rapture occurs before God reverts primary attention back to Israel.

It is our conviction that the Rapture is pretribulationist.

In his book The Rapture Question, Dr. John Walvoord lists Fifty Arguments for Pretribulationism. For a reproduction of his list, please see our corresponding chapter The Rapture of the Church.

Expanding on Dr. Walvoord’s list, we suggest another thirty evidential facts in favor of pretribulationism. Some of these facts were mentioned in Walvoord’s list; others are new. 1. Pretribulationism is based on a literal hermeneutic, 2. Pretribulationism is held to by the most careful premillennial scholars, 3. Pretribulationism allows a harmony of the Scriptures relating to the Rapture and the Second Advent, 4. Pretribulationism allows for the possibility of a good number of years before the Tribulation, 5. The removal of the church is needed to unrestrain the Antichrist, 6. The removal of the church results in the Tribulation, 7. The Tribulation concerns the Gentile nations and Israel; not the church, 8. The Tribulation is the time of Jacob’s (Israel’s) trouble; not the time of the church’s trouble, 9. The church is not destined for wrath, but for deliverance from the wrath to come, 10. The church is counseled to pray that she might escape “these things” that will come upon all the earth-dwellers, 11. The faithful church is to be kept from the global hour of testing; not through it, 12. The church is frequently and consistently told to look forward to Christ’s coming for her, not to tribulation, 13. The church belongs to the day, not to the night, 14. Paul comforted the Thessalonians with the Rapture hope, a hollow hope if the Tribulation and martyrdom must come first, 15. Paul did not comfort the Thessalonians with the idea that their deceased loved ones had escaped the church's coming Tribulation, 16. The Thessalonians feared that there might be a delay between their Rapture and the resurrection of their loved ones, 17. Paul comforted the Thessalonians with the thought that no, they had not missed the Rapture, nor had the day of the Lord yet come, 18. The Corinthians were encouraged to conduct themselves in view of the Rapture; they were not counseled to prepare for the Tribulation, 19. The Rapture of the church is not found in any of the Tribulation passages, 20. The church is not found on earth in any of the Tribulation passages, 21. The church does not appear within any of Daniel's seventy weeks, 22. The church does not appear in Matthew chapters twenty-four or twenty-five, 23. The church is not part of the "Day of the Lord," 24. The descriptions of the Tribulation saints are not descriptions of the church, 25. The twenty-four elders are seen in heaven just prior to and during the Tribulation, 26. The "tabernacle" of God is seen in heaven during the Tribulation, 27. Time is needed for the judgment seat of Christ and the giving of rewards, the Marriage and the Marriage supper, 28. The Lamb's bride is seen in heaven with Christ before He returns, 29. At His return, Jesus is seen as the bridegroom (already married), and 30. Historically, God has delivered His people from tribulation.

The timing of the Rapture is unknown and imminent.

The duration of the Rapture, i.e., just how much time will elapse during the rapture process, including the Lord's descending from heaven, the dead in Christ rising first, then the living being caught up together with them in the clouds and meeting the Lord in the air, Scripture does not specify. However, Scripture does specify that the bodily "change" from perishable to imperishable, from mortal to immortal, will be instantaneous, "in the twinkling of an eye."

The Rapture of the church is an imminent event; one that could actually occur at any moment. However, as prophesied, the twenty-first century professing church is largely profoundly asleep concerning her imminent "catching up." It is therefore a major purpose of this study to encourage those apparently few believers in the church "with ears to hear" to wakefulness and expectancy concerning our Lord's promised return for us.

Scripture, as exemplified in the forty passages quoted in our corresponding chapter The Rapture of the Church, is exceptionally plain and clear regarding the proper attitude of the Christian toward the Rapture of the church. We should be watching for and eagerly anticipating Jesus' return for us!

The effects on the Christian of the proper attitude toward the Rapture (as connected with the broader Second Coming) are deep and wide. They include sanctification, love for the brethren, encouragement for ministry and zeal for evangelism.

Who today has the proper attitude toward the Rapture? This writer suggests that pretribulational premillennialists' biblical, wakeful and expectant attitude toward Christ's imminent coming for the church identifies them as being among Christ's genuine sheep, and also provides strong circumstantial evidence that their eschatology is correct.

The Great Tribulation

Soon after the Rapture of the church (see the previous section) will follow seven years of tribulation on earth, the last half of which Jesus described as "a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall" (Matt. 24:21).

The fact of the Tribulation is stated in numerous Bible passages, including Deut. 4:30, Jer. 30:4-7, Joel 2:1-11; 3:14-17, Amos 5:18-20, Zeph. 1:7-13, Matt. 24:3-14, Mark 13:19-20, 1 Thes. 5:2-4, Heb. 12:26, and Rev. 6:1-19:6. There are remarkably parallel and confirmatory accounts of the Tribulation period in Matthew chapter twenty-four and Revelation chapter six.

Some historicist theologians believe that many of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen, events which futurists (such as this writer) place in the future, have already been fulfilled in the past, and therefore have no reference to the future. They come to this conclusion by equating the content of Luke chapter twenty-one with that of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen, then demonstrating that several of the events of Luke chapter twenty-one (i.e. the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D.) have already been fulfilled. They conclude then that the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen must also have already been fulfilled in the past, as those of Luke chapter twenty-one have been. Futurists, on the other hand, point out that there are substantive differences between Matthew (and Mark) and Luke, making it possible therefore that while many of the events of Luke twenty-one have indeed already been fulfilled in the past, all of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen still may very well await future fulfillment. Personally, by examining the three "parallel" passages in Matthew, Mark and Luke, this writer has found no substantive differences between Matthew and Mark, but has identified no less than sixteen substantive differences between Matthew (and Mark) and Luke. It is therefore this writer's conclusion that while many of the events of Luke chapter twenty-one have indeed already had fulfillment in the first century, it is entirely possible that all of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen still await future fulfillment (during the Tribulation period).

The purposes of the Tribulation regarding the church are different from the purposes regarding the nations of the world. The purposes of the Tribulation regarding the church are nonexistent. The purposes of the Tribulation regarding the nations of the world are several.

Regarding Israel, as God's first-born, Israel is to receive "a double portion." The purposes of the Tribulation in regard to Israel are to scourge the nation, to purge the nation of evildoers, to end the nation's rebellion, and to bring about Israel's national salvation.

The purposes of the Tribulation in regard to the Gentile nations are to allow evil to have its highest-ever manifestation among them, to test them, to teach them righteousness, to bring them to repentance, and to purge them of their evil rulers and people.

Characteristics of the Tribulation include deception, darkness, sin, absence of love, anti-Semitism, persecution, progressive, extensive and severe wrath, and destruction.

Thankfully, the Tribulation period is to occur only once in human history. The timing of the Tribulation is future, after the end of the Church Age, before the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom, before Christ's Second Coming, after the beginning of the Day of the Lord, and after the Rapture of the church.

The duration of the Tribulation period is exactly seven years, as it is concurrent with and bracketed by Daniel's seventieth week. This seven-year duration is confirmed by identifying two successive three and one half year periods in the book of Revelation. The "beginning of birth pangs" is the first three and one half years of the seven-year Tribulation. The "Great Tribulation" is the final three and one half years of the seven-year Tribulation. The Great Tribulation is to be "cut short." It ends with Christ's return. The chronology will be understood clearly after the Tribulation begins.

Sociologically, the Bible's description of the Tribulation involves a global government, a global economy and a global religion, all centered in "Babylon."

The global government of the Tribulation begins with a ten-nation confederacy, progresses (or rather digresses) to a seven-nation confederacy, then culminates at the Tribulation's midpoint in a world dictatorship under Antichrist.

The economy of the Tribulation will culminate in world socialism.

The religion of the Tribulation will have three consecutive stages. Initially, the “woman Babylon” will head the global religion. At the midpoint of the Tribulation, the “woman Babylon” will be destroyed by Antichrist. Finally, the Antichrist himself will be worshiped as God.

The characters of the Tribulation period can be divided into two broad categories: evil and good.

The evil characters of the Tribulation period include Satan, demons, the Antichrist, the false prophet, the apostate church (Babylon the Great) and lost mankind.

Antichrist is an actual person; not merely an idea or an influence. Some scholars envision for him a miraculous conception. He is imbued with Satanic power.

Events in Antichrist’s career include, in sequence: Antichrist arrives on the scene, he is identified, he is judged by God, he is revealed, he receives his power from Satan, he conquers nations, he confirms a covenant with Israel, beginning the Tribulation, he recovers from a fatal wound, he is accompanied by a false prophet, he performs miracles, he deceives the whole world, he breaks the covenant with Israel at the mid-point of the Tribulation, he presents himself as God in the temple at the mid-point of the Tribulation, he blasphemes God, he is worshiped, he rules absolutely, he persecutes Israel, he is conquered and killed by Christ at His appearing, and finally, he is resurrected and thrown alive into the lake of fire.

The good characters of the Tribulation period include the 144,000, the two witnesses and the Tribulation saints.

It is prophesied and therefore expected that anti-Christian ideologies will increase in popularity and influence as the Tribulation period draws near. These ideologies include humanism, liberalism, “tolerance” and spiritualism.

While the primary focus of the Kingdom during this Church Age has been on gathering the kings and priests for the future Kingdom, other events have been transpiring in preparation for the Tribulation (which is in turn preparation for the Millennial Kingdom). Events in preparation for the Tribulation include the destruction of the second Jewish temple and the dispersion of the Jews, the trampling of Jerusalem by the Gentiles, the preservation of Israel as a people, the regathering of Israel to the land in unbelief, the reestablishment of Israel as a nation, war, widespread godlessness and apostasy in the church.

Events just prior to the Tribulation include the Rapture of the church (which is, as of this writing, the next event on the prophetic calendar), a possible time gap between the Rapture and the Tribulation, removal of Israel's blindness, God's sending a delusion on the unbelievers, the apostasy, Israeli wars, building of the Tribulation temple, arrival on the scene of Antichrist, identification of Antichrist and revealing of Antichrist (removal of the Restrainer).

Regarding a possible time gap between the Rapture of the church and the Tribulation, some scholars see the beginning of the Tribulation immediately following the Rapture of the church (with no time gap in between), while others see a time gap, or interval, of anywhere from a day or two to seventy-five or more years between these two events.

Regarding Israeli wars, it seems evident from Scripture that one or more regional Middle Eastern wars will precede the final global campaign of Armageddon. Some Bible scholars see only one such war (the Ezekiel 38-39 Gog/Magog war), while others see two (the Psalm 83/Isaiah 17 war, then the Ezekiel 38-39 Gog/Magog war). While some scholars place these wars within the period of the Tribulation itself (or at least within the time interval between the Rapture of the church and the Second Coming), others see the possibility of one or possibly even both of these conflicts preceding the Tribulation, and possibly even preceding the Rapture of the church.

The eighty-third Psalm is a prayer to Jehovah on behalf of the Jews who are surrounded by enemies, that He would protect them from these enemies' threats of annihilation. It is of interest that all the countries mentioned in this Psalm are those that immediately surround Israel: Edom, Moab, Gebal and Ammon being in present-day Jordan, the capitol of the Hagarites being Damascus in Syria, Amalek being immediately south of Israel, Philistia being Gaza, and Tyre being in Lebanon. For this reason, some prophecy students understand Jehovah's answer to this Psalm/prayer to be a separate war that precedes the Ezekiel 38/39 Gog/Magog war, setting the stage for that later invasion. Some students see Isaiah chapter 17 as Jehovah's answer to the Psalm 83 prayer. One notable feature of Isaiah 17 is the complete annihilation of the city of Damascus.

In Ezekiel chapters 38 and 39, Ezekiel prophesies the Gog/Magog war. In this war, a coalition of larger and more geographically distant nations including Russia and Iran attacks Israel at a time when the Israelites are dwelling in "unwalled villages," seemingly at relative peace (possibly as a result of the previous Psalm 83/Isaiah 17 war). In this war, Israel is greatly outnumbered by her enemies, and would most certainly have perished but for Jehovah's supernatural intervention.

Regarding the building of the Tribulation temple, it may take place before the Tribulation, or it may take place during the first half of the Tribulation. It must take place before the midpoint of the Tribulation, however, in order to make possible Antichrist's midtribulation desecration of the temple.

As per Daniel 9:27, the events of the first half of the Tribulation begin with Antichrist's confirming a seven-year covenant with Israel and conclude at the Tribulation's midpoint with the "abomination of desolation." These events commence with the seven "seal" judgments of Revelation chapter six (and continue with the first six "trumpet" judgments), which, as we suggested earlier, coincide with the "beginning of birth pangs" which precede the "abomination of desolation" in Matthew chapter twenty-four.

Antichrist confirms a covenant with Israel.

The Lamb takes the title deed of the earth, and prepares to evict the usurpers of His realm.

Elijah prepares Israel.

The two witnesses prophesy for 1260 days (3.5 years), are killed, resurrected and translated.

The 144,000 are sealed. Particularly because the identity of the 144,000 is central to the theology of Jehovah's Witnesses, it is important for us to discuss their proper identification. Specifically, we would emphasize: The 144,000 are sealed at and/or toward the beginning of the Tribulation (Jehovah's Witnesses and many Covenant theologians teach that the 144,000 have been sealed throughout the past two thousand years of church history). They are literal Jews (Jehovah's Witnesses and many Covenant theologians teach that they are "spiritual Jews," i.e. [mostly Gentile] "anointed" Christians). They are "first fruits." Their existence is in harmony with the broader doctrine of the Jewish remnant: 1. The Jewish remnant always exists, 2. The remnant has not always been easily identified, and 3. The remnant will believe in Immanuel. The 144,000 will proclaim the gospel to the nations during the Tribulation period. And, the 144,000 will enter alive the Messianic Kingdom.

With the opening of the seal judgments, the four horsemen of the Apocalypse begin their rides.

Seal 1: Antichrist conquers.

Seal 3: Famine.

Seal 5: Martyrs.

Seal 6: Cosmic disturbances.

Seal 7: Silence in heaven, prayers, thunder, lightning, earthquake.

The seventh seal judgment contains the seven trumpet judgments.

Trumpet 1: Hail, fire, blood, one third of earth burned up.

Trumpet 2: A fiery mountain thrown into the sea; one third of the sea destroyed.

Trumpet 3: A star falls from heaven; one third of fresh water spoiled.

Trumpet 4: One third of the sun, moon and stars darkened, an eagle proclaims woe.

Trumpet 5: Locusts torment men for five months.

Ecclesiastical (“Mystery”) Babylon the Great falls.

The great multitude is saved.

There shall be no more delay.

The middle of the Tribulation is clearly delineated by Daniel’s “abomination of desolation.”

The middle of the Tribulation features a number of pivotal events. Considered individually:

Satan is cast out of heaven to the earth.

Antichrist blasphemes God.

Antichrist seats himself in the temple, claiming to be God.

Antichrist breaks the covenant with Israel.

The “Great Tribulation” begins.

Antichrist rules absolutely.

Israel is persecuted.

Israel is exiled from the land.

Israel is gathered at Bozrah.

The mark of the beast (666) is implemented.

With the seventh trumpet, the mystery of God is finished.

The last half of the Tribulation features a number of events that bring to a climax the time of Jacob’s (and the world’s) trouble.

Considered individually:

“This good news of the Kingdom” is preached.

Angelic proclamations are made. Three angelic proclamations take place in Revelation chapter fourteen: 1. An eternal gospel. 2. The fall of Babylon the Great. 3. A warning against worshiping the Antichrist.

The marriage of the Lamb takes place in heaven.

The seven bowl judgments result in unprecedented destruction on earth:

Bowl 1: Into the earth: Sores are inflicted upon those who have the mark of the beast.

Bowl 4: Upon the sun: Men are scorched with fire.

Bowl 5: Upon the throne of the Antichrist: His kingdom is darkened.

Bowl 6: Upon the Euphrates river: The river dries up, preparing the way for the kings from the east for the campaign of Armageddon.

Israel's blindness is removed.

Israel recognizes Jesus as Messiah.

Israel repents.

Israel receives an outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

Israel pleads for Christ's return.

The campaign of Armageddon commences.

The Second Coming of the King

The Second Coming of the King is the focal point of Bible prophecy. At Christ's Second Coming, Jesus and His bride will be spectacularly revealed to the world, Satan's kingdom will be defeated and the world will be prepared for the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom.

The fact of the Second Coming is evident from Scripture: from the Pentateuch, from the Hebrew prophets, from the gospels, from the Acts of the Apostles, from the epistles of Paul, Peter and John, and from the Revelation.

The Second Coming of the King is a necessary and important event in the overall Kingdom program.

The Person of the Second Coming is the very same Jesus who came the first time.

Certain titles of the King are particularly applicable to Him at His Second Coming. These titles include the bridegroom, the Son of Man and the Son of David. As the (already married) bridegroom, Jesus is husband of the bride (the church). As the Son of Man, Jesus is the “last Adam,” the new head of the human race. As the Son of David (and as the Messiah, the Christ, the Lion of Judah, the King of the Jews and the King of Kings), Jesus is the rightful heir to David’s throne.

The purposes of the Second Coming are numerous, with each purpose being related to the Kingdom in some way. These purposes are: to reveal Christ, the angels and the King’s bride (the church) to humankind, to save Israel, to defend Israel and to end her persecution, to conquer the Antichrist, to conquer Antichrist’s army, to dash the nations to pieces, to bind Satan, to crush iniquity, to regather Israel to her land, to judge Israel, to judge the nations, to purge all unrepentant sinners from the world, to save the world, to end the times of the Gentiles, to rule the world, to restore the Theocratic Kingdom, to inaugurate the Millennial Kingdom, to achieve world peace, to complete the work that Christ initiated at His First Coming, to fulfill the covenants and prophecies, and to fulfill God’s purposes for the earth and for man.

Because the Second Coming is an entirely supernatural event, the characteristics of the Second Coming are those of an event far beyond the scope and capabilities of mortal man. Specifically, the Second Coming of the King is designed by God, possible, necessary, certain, desired, swift, personal, literal, bodily, visible, glorious, supernatural, forceful, efficacious, and unexpected by most people.

As of this writing, the timing of the Second Coming is, in light of our discussion above, yet future. It is to occur in the last days, at the end of the age, before the millennium, and immediately after the Tribulation.

Regarding the possibility of knowing the time of the Second Coming, the day will be known once the Tribulation begins. However, the hour will not be not known until it arrives.

The location of the Second Coming is Bozrah.

The destination of the Second Coming is Israel/Jerusalem.

The events of the Second Coming include: The Father gives the Kingdom to Christ, cataclysmic events occur, all the angels worship the first-born, the sign of the Son of Man appears, Christ appears in the sky, Christ defeats Antichrist and his army (He defeats Antichrist’s army at Bozrah), and Christ sets foot upon the mount of Olives.

The church, the Tribulation saints and lost mankind will have differing attitudes toward the Second Coming. For the church, the (pretribulation) Rapture is her blessed hope (Titus 2:12-13). Therefore, the Scriptures admonish her to be primarily expectant of her imminent Rapture, as distinct from the subsequent Second Coming. For the Tribulation saints the Second Coming will mean the end of tribulation and persecution and the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom. Therefore, the Tribulation saint should be ready and expectantly on the alert for that day. For lost mankind, the Second Coming will be an unexpected day of terror, judgment and defeat.

Inauguration of the Kingdom

Between the Second Coming of the King and the beginning of the Millennial Kingdom, several events will transpire in preparation for the Kingdom. These events include Antichrist's resurrection and casting into the lake of fire, the binding of Satan, Israel's regathering to the land in belief, the gathering and judging of the Tribulation survivors, Israel's possession of the land, the first resurrection and the marriage feast of the Lamb. Since this section deals with the resurrection of the dead (at least the first resurrection, which precedes the Millennial Kingdom; we'll cover the second resurrection, which follows the Millennial Kingdom in the section The Lake of Fire below), we will also cover in this section the intermediate state of the dead: the temporary state that intervenes between death and resurrection.

As the dust settles from the horrific Tribulation period and the glorious Second Coming, earth's new rulers and subjects will be preparing for the Millennial Kingdom.

Regarding the duration of this preparatory period, seventy-five days transpire between Christ's return and the commencement of the Millennial Kingdom.

Events in preparation for the Millennial Kingdom include: Antichrist is resurrected and cast into the lake of fire, Satan is bound, and Israel is regathered to the land in belief.

Before the Millennial Kingdom begins, survivors of the Tribulation must be gathered and judged, to produce the inaugural subjects of the Kingdom and also to ensure that only saved individuals enter the Kingdom.

Jewish survivors of the Tribulation are to be judged prior to the beginning of the Millennial Kingdom. While Dr. Fruchtenbaum sees Israel's judgment being completed during the Tribulation itself, others, including Drs. Chafer, Pentecost, Walvoord and Ryrie, see a judgment for Israel following the Tribulation, as placed in the chronological sequence of this section. But regardless of the timing of the judgment, all of these scholars are in agreement regarding the fact of the judgment.

Gentile survivors of the Tribulation must also be judged as to their fitness for entry into the Millennial Kingdom. The surviving Tribulation believers are rewarded with entry into the Millennial Kingdom. Unrepentant sinners are punished with eternal fire.

At the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom Israel will at long last possess the entire promised land. The basis of the possession of the land is The Abrahamic Covenant. The extent of the possession will be “increased.” The reason for the possession is for God’s sake.

Before discussing the first resurrection, we’ll first take a look at the intermediate state of the dead (the state of existence between death and resurrection).

The intermediate state of believers is one of disembodied yet conscious bliss and rest while awaiting future bodily resurrection. Old Testament saints experienced this bliss and rest in the righteous compartment of Sheol/Hades; New Testament saints experience this bliss and rest in Paradise, in heaven itself.

The intermediate state of unbelievers is one of disembodied yet conscious torment in the unrighteous compartment of Sheol/Hades while awaiting future bodily resurrection.

The first resurrection is the (bodily) resurrection of the righteous. It occurs prior to the Millennial Kingdom, in stages. It includes the resurrections of Christ, the church, Tribulation saints and Old Testament saints.

As is true of all biblical resurrections, the first resurrection is a bodily resurrection. The first resurrection is distinct from glorification. It is distinct from the second resurrection. It is to occur “On the last day.” It is the time of reward. It is for the purpose of raising up kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom. It includes the resurrection of the church, which is accomplished at the Rapture. It includes the resurrection of the Tribulation saints. It includes the resurrection of Israel’s Old Testament saints. And, it may include the resurrection of godly Gentiles.

We should point out, because Jehovah’s Witnesses teach otherwise, that Scripture does not mention any resurrection as occurring during the Millennial Kingdom itself. Neither the Witnesses’ Millennial Kingdom resurrection hope nor their associated millennial “second chance” doctrine have any Scriptural support. Instead, the plain teaching of Scripture is that “it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment” (Heb. 9:27).

The Millennial Kingdom will be inaugurated with the celebratory marriage feast of the Lamb.

The Millennial Kingdom

The Millennial Kingdom is the capstone of God’s theocratic Kingdom program. It is the goal and the end result of the four unconditional Jewish covenants, and the subject of hundreds of Hebrew prophecies. It is the Kingdom for which Jesus taught His disciples to pray. Indeed, the Millennial Kingdom is the foreordained consummation of all biblical and human history.

Belief in the Millennial Kingdom is the inevitable result of acceptance of a literal or “plain sense” understanding of Israel’s covenants, Old Testament prophecy, Jewish tradition and Jesus’ teachings.

The Millennial Kingdom is not the ultimate, desired end in itself (the ultimate, desired end being the Eternal Order), but rather a means to an end.

The timing of the Millennial Kingdom is after Jesus’ Second Coming. Some speculation has been offered that the Millennial Kingdom might possibly coincide with the seventh millennium of man’s existence.

The duration of the Millennial Kingdom is, by definition and by Scripture, one thousand years. However, the Kingdom will extend beyond the one thousand years.

The Millennial Kingdom will be glorious, encompassing the earth, the human race, the government of mankind, nations, culture and life.

The earth will return to a paradisiacal, Edenic state, as originally purposed by God, the earth will be renovated, the curse will be removed, visible light will be increased, and the earth will be productive.

The human race will be rejuvenated. It will be saved, will constitute the subjects of the Kingdom, and will be populous.

In the Millennial Kingdom mankind will enjoy perfect government. The government will be global, it will be pervasive, Israel will be politically supreme, Jehovah will visibly reign as King from Jerusalem in the Person of Messiah, and believers will reign with the Christ.

There will be two branches of government: Jewish and Gentile.

The Jewish people will enjoy perfect government and political supremacy on the world stage. The chain of command in the Jewish government will be: Jesus the Messiah the King -> David -> The Twelve Apostles -> Princes -> Judges and Counselors -> Israel -> Gentiles.

The Gentiles will also enjoy perfect government. The chain of command in the Gentile government will be: Jesus the Messiah the King -> The Church and the Tribulation Saints -> Kings -> Gentile Nations.

Positionally, Israel will be over the Gentiles.

The rulers will be ideal and perfect rulers.

Believers will be priests with Christ.

The government will be a union of church and state. It will be supernatural, lawful, righteous and just, and it will be balanced.

Both Israel and Gentile nations will exist in the Millennial Kingdom. While they will have differing roles in the Kingdom, they will both enjoy God's blessings under idyllic conditions.

Israel, God's chosen nation, will be regenerated and restored. She will be prosperous, with her covenants fulfilled and Jerusalem rebuilt and exalted. Her people will be God's witnesses and ministers to the Gentiles.

Specifically, the mountain of Jehovah's house will be raised up, the millennial temple will be built, a sacrificial system will be instituted, a millennial river will flow from the temple, Jewish feasts will be observed, Israel's borders will be enlarged, the Jews will be in the land forever, and Israel's covenants will be fulfilled.

Israel's life and culture in the Millennial Kingdom will be spiritual. Israel will be regenerated, reconciled to God, restored, united, forgiven, healed, exalted, righteous, sinless (?), holy, spiritual, joyful and peaceful.

Israel will be populous. The land will be productive. Israel will be prosperous and glorious, and Israel will be God's witnesses and ministers to the Gentiles.

In the Millennial Kingdom, along with Israel, Gentile nations and individuals will also be in existence. Some Gentiles will survive the Tribulation and the subsequent "sheep and goats" judgment, thus enabling them to populate the Millennial Kingdom. Gentile nations and individuals will therefore be in existence throughout the Millennial Kingdom. The Gentile nations will recognize and acknowledge Israel's preeminence in the Kingdom. The Gentiles who observe Israel's glory will tell other nations of Israel's blessedness. The Gentiles will serve Israel. Some Gentiles will help build the millennial temple and some will serve in it.

The Gentiles will be populous, and they will be blessed. And, the Gentiles will worship the King; they will observe the Feast of Tabernacles. In the Millennial Kingdom, there will be no war between nations.

Culture in the Millennial Kingdom will be diverse.

Lifestyles in the Millennial Kingdom will likely be largely agrarian. Life will be spiritual, holy and supernatural. Miraculous events and angelic visitations will likely be commonplace.

Life will be good. It will be peaceful, with no war, with peace among people, and peace among the animals. Life will be righteous, healing, free from corruption, fair, efficient, joyful, enjoyed, abundant, long and glorious.

However, in the Millennial Kingdom, even with all this goodness, there will still be some sin and death.

A Final Rebellion

The final rebellion is noted and described in Revelation chapter twenty.

It is puzzling to many how, after a thousand years of idyllic conditions on earth under the righteous and just rulership of Christ and His co-rulers, Satan could manage to deceive the nations again, and why anyone, let alone a large number of people “like the sand of the seashore” would choose to join Satan in this final rebellion. The solution appears to lie in the incorrigible nature of the fallen human heart.

The quelling of the final rebellion brings to a close the Millennial Kingdom, the last of the seven dispensations of human history.

In brief review, the seven dispensations are the dispensations of 1. Innocence, 2. Conscience, 3. Government, 4. Promise, 5. Law, 6. Grace and 7. Kingdom. For summaries of these dispensations, see our corresponding chapter A Final Rebellion.

“So concludes the series of the periods of human history in which people have been divinely examined under almost every conceivable condition: innocence, conscience, government, promise, law, grace, and the kingdom. In each case they proved (or will prove) that human freedom, left to itself, will always rebel against God. They have also demonstrated that God is always right and that real satisfaction comes only from obeying Him” (Geisler, ST, 3:163).

The Lake of Fire

Before the ultimate end and goal, the Eternal Order, can be inaugurated, sin and death must first be defeated. While many sinners will already have been purged of sin and raised to eternal life at the beginning of the Millennial Kingdom, and while much of the curse on creation will have been lifted during the Millennial Kingdom, at the end of the Millennial Kingdom there will still be some mediatorial work yet to be done before sin will have been entirely defeated and before the last enemy, death, will have been brought to nothing (1 Cor. 15:26).

Events in preparation for the Eternal Order include the translation of the millennial saints, the resurrection of lost mankind, the passing away of the present heaven and earth, and the Great White Throne judgment.

If the present heaven and earth are to pass away (see below), in preparation for the new heaven and earth (see our summary of the creation of the new heaven and earth in the next section The Eternal Order), it follows that something must be done with the millennial saints who will be alive at the end of the Millennial Kingdom, such that they will not pass away with the passing away of the old earth. For this reason, while the idea cannot be found explicitly in Scripture, some scholars posit a translation or “rapture” of the millennial saints just prior to the passing away of the present earth.

Scripture is explicit, however, that there is to be a second resurrection “after the thousand years have been completed” (Rev. 20:5; the first resurrection having been completed one thousand years prior to this second one).

In preparation for the creation of the new heaven and earth (see our next section The Eternal Order below), the present heaven and earth will pass away.

Those raised in the second resurrection will be judged at the Great White Throne judgment.

Those judged adversely (and most dispensational scholars believe that all of those participating in the second resurrection will be judged adversely) at the Great White Throne judgment will be cast into the lake of fire.

The lake of fire is the same as Gehenna.

The lake of fire is real and certain.

Regarding the nature of the lake of fire, it is a lake of hot, unquenchable fire and brimstone. It is eternal.

The occupants of the lake of fire are the The Antichrist, the false prophet, the devil and his angels, and lost mankind.

The purposes of the lake of fire are to separate good from evil, to satisfy God’s justice and to glorify God.

The lake of fire is necessary. It is necessary because it is unavoidable, because it is just, because wrath proceeds from God’s holiness, righteousness and justice, because of the magnitude of sin against an infinitely holy God, because of the duration of sin against God, because God is eternally displeased with sin, because some people are not reformable, because sinners prefer alienation from God, because it is the natural reaction of sinners to God’s presence, and because annihilation would be inhumane.

We acknowledge the difficulty of accepting the doctrine of eternal punishment. We suggest that we have this difficulty because we don’t believe the Bible, because some of our Bible translations are faulty, because we can’t fully comprehend God’s holiness and justice, because we lack the capacity for a proper evaluation of sin, because we misconstrue God’s wrath, because we think suffering is incompatible with a loving God, because we think we know better than God does, because we put human sentiment and reason above the word of God, because we are inclined toward wishful thinking, and because we think we'll be burdened by others' suffering forever.

The Eternal Order

With the resurrection of lost mankind, the passing away of the present heaven and earth and the Great White Throne judgment being completed, as summarized in the previous section above, only a few (but awe-inspiring) final events in the Kingdom program remain to be completed before the Eternal Order can be inaugurated.

Final events in preparation for the Eternal Order include Christ's handing the Kingdom over to the Father, creation of the new heaven and new earth, and the descending of the New Jerusalem out of heaven to the new earth.

After the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom has accomplished all of its mediatorial work, Jesus will hand all things, including the Kingdom and even His own Person, back to God the Father.

The old heaven and the old earth having passed away (see the summary of the Passing of the Old Heaven and Earth in the previous section The Lake of Fire), God will create a new heaven and a new earth wherein will dwell righteousness.

The New Jerusalem will then descend out of heaven to the new earth.

Undoubtedly, many of the realities of the Eternal Order, even if described to us in detail, would be difficult, if not impossible, for our finite minds to grasp. For instance, the very concept of eternity is beyond our comprehension.

Whether the Eternal Order will include a succession of future ages, and/or whether mankind will continue to procreate in the Eternal Order are two subjects concerning which we can now only speculate.

However, Scripture does reveal a number of things concerning the Eternal Order that give us at least a basic idea of what that new Order will be like. These things include the facts that there will be only one throne rather than two, the Jewish/Gentile distinction will continue forever, the Davidic Kingdom will continue forever, God Himself will dwell with mankind, God Himself will provide light, God's servants will serve and worship Him, death will be no more, pain will be no more, peace will reign, righteousness will dwell, and the old will never be brought to mind again.

Conclusion

At the end of his work The Theocratic Kingdom George Peters concludes, “Thus, by God’s grace, we have passed over the great, leading Biblical doctrine of the Kingdom of God—a Kingdom covenanted, established, overthrown, predicted, preached, postponed, and finally gloriously re-established under the mighty Theocratic King. We have, logically and consecutively, traced the Kingdom of God, finding it based upon the covenants, instituted in an initiatory form, modified in the Davidic incorporation, overthrown for man’s sinfulness, tendered to the elect nation, but rejected, postponed to the period of the Sec. Advent, and finally re-established with great power and glory by David’s Son and Lord. In it is found an incorporated perfected humanity insuring success, a human society under divine guidance, a civil and religious government under a Theocracy, a satisfactory completion of redemption, a triumphant conclusion of history and of God’s perfected Purpose in ‘the Christ.’ We have honored the Word of God, by our constant appeal to it, as the all-sufficient and infallible rule of faith and practice, and trust that (comp. Luther’s and Augustine’s declarations as given by Dr. Sprecher in Groundwork of Theology, p. 119) our deductions and teaching from the Scriptures may tend to an increased love for and study of the Bible; and that they be measured by the standard of truth, accepting only of that which stands the test. Our argument exalts Jesus ‘the Christ,’ in that it brings Him forth distinctively as the covenanted Messiah, who is yet to fulfill the covenanted mercies promised to the fathers, and who is yet to reveal Himself as the Redeemer of the world in the inauguration of a government such as is pre-eminently adapted to the wants of a burdened creation. It honors the past, present, and future work of the Lord Jesus, and enters heartily into the consideration of the things pertaining to His glory, with the joyful hope of seeing and participating in the same; it reverences the oath-bound covenants, the prophetic utterances, the faith of the ancients, with the pleasing anticipation of realizing in happy experience the blessed things promised, predicted, and believed. The Kingdom embraces all our desire—the King, the Princes, the Angels, the restored Jews, the admiring Gentiles, the released Creation, the Millennial gladness, the Eternal Ages, and God over all, blessed forevermore. Dr. Bonar (Prophet. Landmarks) has so happily expressed our thoughts that we reproduce his remarks as a fitting conclusion: ‘Our doctrine, as Millenarians, pervades the whole Word of God, from Genesis to Revelation. It is not confined to the figurative and poetical books. It declares itself with equal fullness in narrative and epistle, in symbol and in type. Like a thread of gold it runs through the whole web of Revelation, crossing and recrossing it everywhere, and imparting the richest brilliance in the whole texture. It is the burden of all prophecy. It is the summing up as well as the unravelling of all history. It is the final and grand solution of the mystery of God's dealings with this world of ours. It is the germ of Israel's types. It is woven into all their ordinances, and rites, and festivals. It is the theme of many a Psalm, the heart of many a symbol, the subject of many a parable, the end and point of many a promise, the seal set to the Gospel of the grace of God as the "Gospel of the Kingdom." It has been the hope of the Church through many a starless night, when other hopes had gone out one by one, like beacons shattered by the tempest, leaving her disconsolate and helpless. And it is now again, in our day, pressed upon her notice as her strength in "the hour of temptation, which is coming upon all the world," the only light which cannot be quenched, and by which alone she will be able to steer her perilous course through the gloom of the thickening storm. It is no dream of carnal enthusiasts, enamored of materialism, and anticipating a paradise of gross delights. It is the calm belief of spiritual men, resting upon God's sure promise, and looking forward to a Kingdom of "righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." It is no hasty conjecture, no novelty of a feverish period, rashly caught up, without consideration and without evidence. It can produce the testimony of ages in its behalf; and they who have held it in our day have been men who studied their Bible on their knees, and have come to their conclusions after long, deliberate, and most solemn investigation. It is no fable of romance; it is sober, Scriptural reality, though far beyond what fancy ever painted. It is no vision of the politician, yet it shows us how, ere long, shall be exemplified that which earthly governments have been vainly striving to realize—a peaceful and prosperous world.' Whatever of defect or misconception may be in the preceding Propositions, yet the grand outlines, the precious doctrine of the Kingdom is undoubtedly true, because based on the plain grammatical sense of that which 'is written,' 'the word of the Lord.' It is no little gratification, advantage, and privilege to live at this period of time, way down in the feet of Nebuchadnezzar's image, with so many centuries of fulfilled prophecy, past and present, and a solemn and joyful culmination of the remainder imminently before us. The gratification arises from our lengthened view confirming the predictions of the future; the advantage springs from the practical use that we can make of the same, thrilling the heart with hope and joy at the glorious prospects; the privilege is seen in that we still live in a period enabling us to secure the inestimable blessing of 'Kingship and priesthood.' Contemplating the wonderful scheme of redemption and the results of the Christship, culminating in this Theocratic ordering, the heart—realizing ‘the earnest’ preparative—is filled with peace in believing; ‘the Gospel of the Kingdom’ imparting strength and weaning us from the world; the Theocratic King and His glory giving us more ravishing ideas of our own heirship and ‘high calling’ while still ‘pilgrims and strangers;’ appropriating faith beholding Jesus on the cross and the throne makes Him exceedingly precious, and delights itself in the things pertaining to the love, dominion, and excellent glory of One so dear and worthy. The Theocratic promises now make us content to await the time when God’s ways will be vindicated, when His providences will be light, and when our own trials and sufferings will be seen as prerequisites to qualify us for our respective stations in the Kingdom. To those who object to such a vision of the future, to such views of a delightful land of promise, restored Eden, exalted, glorified, and Adamic condition, the Christ’s Theocratic grandeur, etc., we only say in reply: ‘This is the Lord’s doing; it is marvellous in our eyes’ (Ps. 118:23)... It is proper to acknowledge at the close of our labor gratitude to God that He has brought believers to the knowledge of such truth, and that once ‘aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenants of promise’ we ‘are made nigh by the blood of Christ;’ and being ‘Christ’s, then are Abraham’s seed and heirs according to promise.’ We thank God that He has enabled us to lay hold upon His oath-attested covenants, and by faith in a covenanted Christ to have confidence and assurance in the fulfillment of His most gracious Word, so that when brethren forsook and reproached us (a sad trial, to which the Saviour was no exception) we still had great comfort. We thank Him that, unlike some (Erasmus-like) who keep silence, He put it into our heart to present His own rich treasures to others, as a token of gratitude, as a kind of testimony to the Church and the world, as a source of encouragement in the coming trial, although advised to sacrifice the best years of our life by committing this work to the flames, on the ground of the Church’s hostility to its expressed faith. We thank Him that when often sorely tempted, tried, discouraged—when through poverty much of this work was written on leaves of books, old letters, and waste paper (so that Jonathan Edwards’s straits could be appreciated, when reduced to write his Freedom of the Will on backs of letters and blank pages of pamphlets)—when depressed at the prevailing unbelief and the few in number with whom we could ‘take sweet counsel’—when falsely accused of heresy, fanaticism, and held up to odium, and influence sought to be lessened on account of Chiliasm, He was ever the prayer-hearing and answering God, supplying our wants, giving strengthening views of the unity of Divine Purpose, and the fullness of Jesus in redemption; imparting hope that as the work was designed to promote the Father's honor, the Son's glory, and the Spirit's praise, He would provide for its publication; and allowing the sweet privilege of being among that number who entertain, confess, and proclaim "The Blessed Hope,' even 'His Appearing and Kingdom'" (Peters, TTK, 3:603).

Indeed, from our foregoing study of the Kingdom we conclude that:

In the Bible, God has said exactly what He means, and He means exactly what He has said (see our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics).

In the Bible, Israel means Israel. Always! Israel is not the church (see our discussion of the fact that the church is not Israel in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church)). And Israel is not the "anointed remnant" of Jehovah's Witnesses (see our discussion of God's people as they relate to Jehovah's Witnesses in our section Applications and Admonitions below. See also our discussion of the description of Israel in the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

God's Kingdom to come is a literal government, a monarchy, a theocracy, a union of church and state, and a union of legislative, executive and judicial branches of government (see our discussion of the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom in our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom). It is the best possible, all-encompassing hope for mankind (see our discussion of the purpose of the Kingdom in our chapter A Kingdom Needed, and our description of the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom). It is for real and for sure (see our discussions of the truthfulness and inspiration of Scripture in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics).

Regarding earthly vs. heavenly hopes, the church's hope is heavenly then earthly; Israel's hope is earthly then heavenly (see our discussion of heavenly vs. earthly hopes in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church)). The church's immediate hope is the heavenly Rapture; Israel's hope during the Tribulation will be the earthly Millennial Kingdom. (And, incidentally, there is no biblical "earthly hope" for any Christians alive now.) In the end, the church, Israel and saved Gentiles will all share in the New Jerusalem that comes down out of heaven to the new earth (see our discussion of the New Jerusalem in our chapter The Eternal Order). "There is one Savior, one plan of redemption, and one family of all the redeemed people who will worship God in heaven. Spiritually, God's people share a redemptive inheritance, even though there are functional differences between Israel and the church" (Geisler, ST, 4:537).

Mankind is not going to save the world. The world is getting worse, not better. In the near term the world is heading not for a socialistic (or any other kind of) utopia but rather for the Great Tribulation. "We are gravely told that civilization, education, humanity, philosophy, science and art are changing the nations for the better. Are the standing armies less? Are the engines of war, and fortifications, and fleets less? Do establishments that manufacture weapons of destruction languish and die for lack of work? Is taxation less? Are the jealousies and desire for revenge less? Is the spirit between rulers and subjects more harmonious? Is the conflict between the high and low, the rich and poor, the capitalist and laborer diminished? Are the interests of nations and classes reconciled? Such questions need no answer” (Peters, TTK, 2:777). “In His sight the highest moral, educational, and religious ideals that the unregenerate world can comprehend are but a part of the confusion and darkness of this age when coupled with a rejection of His testimony in regard to His Son as their atoning Saviour” (Chafer, S, C4:19/31). “When the doctrine of evil, as to its future, is examined with unprejudiced attention, truth will be discovered which will serve to abolish the Romanist conception of a world-conquering church, or the Protestant ideal of a world transformed by the gospel” (Chafer, ST, 1:xxviii) “No doubt will be raised by any intelligent Christian concerning the truth that it is within the range of divine power to transform society in this age, or at any other time. The question is really one of whether world-transformation is the divine purpose for this age” (ibid., 4:17). “The Reformers did not restore all features of doctrine and along with justification by faith they retained the Romish notion that the church is the kingdom, fulfilling the Davidic covenant, and appointed to conquer the world by bringing it under the authority of the church. This idea has prevailed in spite of the clear, uncomplicated testimony of the New Testament that this age must end in unprecedented wickedness” (ibid., p. 257). “...the present tendency in the church to an unscriptural optimism in spite of the evident apostasy” (Feinberg, M, p. 194) (See also our discussion of the last days of the church in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church) and our discussion of the apostasy that is associated with the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Prophecy is being fulfilled now. Observe! “...a high degree of probability that eschatological fulfillment is in process before our very eyes” (Horner, FI, p. 61).

And, as time rolls on toward the inauguration of the Kingdom, we expect objections to the genuine, biblical Kingdom of God to increase, not decrease. “There is no doubt but in the coming struggle with unbelief, preparing the way for Antichrist’s revelation, all such objections will be more persistently urged against Christ” (Peters, TTK, 3:522). (See our discussion of the apostasy of the last days of the church in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church), and our discussions of the ideologies and apostasy that are associated with the Tribulation, the characteristics of the Tribulation and the fact that all nations will ultimately gather against Israel at the end of the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Applications and Admonitions

The Kingdom of God will affect everyone who's ever lived, for better or for worse. Why not, then, while opportunity now presents itself, make it for the better? It is our contention that we would do well to take this doctrine of the Kingdom to heart, that it might add confidence and joy to our faith and greatly enhance our ability to glorify God. "Any doctrine can be held intellectually or speculatively without producing any effect on heart and life" (Peters, TTK, 3:327) We therefore now offer specific Kingdom-related applications and admonitions to seven different people groups: to the Jews, to the Gentile nations, to the United States, to the unsaved, to Jehovah's Witnesses, to Christians, and to Tribulation saints.

To the Jews

To our Jewish friends, our doctrine honors you (see our discussion of the various ways our doctrine is Israel-honoring in our discussion of the grammatical-historical hermeneutic in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics). The Kingdom is for you first, even in this Church age. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek" (Rom. 1:16). "but glory and honor and peace to every man who does good, to the Jew first and also to the Greek" (Rom. 2:10).

Thank you for the the Scriptures (see our discussion of the Jewishness of Scripture in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics), the covenants (see our discussion of God's five covenants with Israel in our chapter Covenants of the Kingdom), the prophecies (see our chapter The Kingdom in Hebrew Prophecy), the Messiah (see our discussion of the ethnicity of the incarnation in our chapter The King of the Kingdom) and the Kingdom (see our discussion of the Jewishness of the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom in our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom).

God has not cast off your nation forever (see our discussion of the fact that eventual restoration of the Theocracy is promised in our chapter Fall of the Kingdom, and our description of Israel's regeneration, restoration and blessing in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom).

Study the Kingdom. "...influence a Jew... induce an independent and conscientious search of the Scriptures. If such a posture is once assumed, we have no fears respecting the final result" (Peters, TTK, 3:415).

Believe now and be saved. "For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek" (Rom. 1:16). "The Jew is not now urged to recognize his Messiah, but he is urged to believe on a crucified and risen Savior” (Chafer, ST, 2:318).

Reign with Christ in the Kingdom (see our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Church Age is to select and prepare kings and priests for the Kingdom in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church), and our discussion of the fact that believers will reign with Christ in the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom).

Your nation and race will suffer greatly during the Tribulation (see our discussions of the anti-Semitic and persecuting characteristics of the Tribulation, and the fact of Israel’s persecution, especially beginning at the mid-point of the Tribulation, in our chapter The Great Tribulation).

However, your nation and your race have a glorious future (see our discussion of national Israel’s future glory in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom).

To the Gentile Nations

Throughout Scripture, Gentile nations are advised to be respectful toward Israel (for God’s sake, for Israel’s sake and for their own sakes) and to be prepared to cede sovereignty to the Son of God, Jesus the Christ when He comes to claim David’s throne and world possession and leadership. “Now Jehovah said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father’s house, unto the land that I will show thee. And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great. And be thou a blessing. And I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse. And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed” (Gen. 12:1-3). “And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father... So he blessed him. And he said... Cursed be every one that curseth thee, And blessed be every one that blesseth thee” (Gen. 27:22–30) “Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, And the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; Thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter’s vessel. Now therefore be wise, O ye kings: Be instructed, ye judges of the earth. Serve Jehovah with fear, And rejoice with trembling. Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish in the way, For his wrath will soon be kindled. Blessed are all they that take refuge in him” (Ps. 2:8–12). “Kings and rulers are admonished to secure right relations with the Christ before His awful judgments begin” (Chafer, ST, 2:89). “And after the threescore and two weeks shall the anointed one be cut off, and shall have nothing: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and even unto the end shall be war; desolations are determined” (Dan. 9:26). “Unto the end shall be war.’... ‘Desolations are determined’... no permanent peace can come to this sinful world till the Prince of Peace comes down to earth again in glory. ‘Unto the end shall be war.’ We may not like the prophecy; it may humble our rebellious pride; but God hath spoken” (McClain, DP, p. 44). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For I was hungry, and you gave Me something to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and you invited Me in; naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to Me.” Then the righteous will answer Him, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, and feed You, or thirsty, and give You drink? And when did we see You a stranger, and invite You in, or naked, and clothe You? And when did we see You sick, or in prison, and come to You?” And the King will answer and say to them, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did it to one of these brothers of Mine, even the least of them, you did it to Me.” Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry, and you gave Me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink; I was a stranger, and you did not invite Me in; naked, and you did not clothe Me; sick, and in prison, and you did not visit Me.” Then they themselves also will answer, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not take care of You?” Then He will answer them, saying, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.” And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46) “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “This also should serve as a warning to the nations, not to allow themselves by any arguments or inducements to enter into a league against Jerusalem” (Peters, TTK, 2:112). “The United States... she has been uniformly kind and considerate to the Jews. Such... however, will avail nothing, if such nations resist the restoration of the Theocratic Kingdom and its intended sway; all depends upon their future conduct” (ibid., p. 113). “How vain is the boast of statesman or king, that this or that nation and land will become the greatest that earth shall ever behold. If wise, they would see that this is reserved for the now despised people that stand in covenanted Theocratic relationship with Jesus” (ibid., p. 128). “England, Germany, the United States, and others... notwithstanding the professed claim of ‘Christian nation,’ none of these receive the slightest recognition as such in the Word. The reason for such omission is self-evident” (ibid., 3:15). “...that which gave vitality and force to a Theocracy (viz., God’s personally acting as the Ruler of the nation) is lacking in all other governments, and, therefore, no other can possibly hope to be substituted in its place” (ibid., p. 16). “We are not at liberty to eulogize our form of government at the expense of the Theocracy” (ibid., p. 592). “Until the true God breaks supernaturally once more into the stream of history to establish some effective theocratic controls, as He will at the second coming of His Son as the true mediatorial King, the reconciliation of national security and personal liberty must continue to be a matter of political compromise” (McClain, GK, p. 69). “All anti-Semitic prejudice (as well as narrow Semitic pride) arises out of blindness to the benevolent purpose of God” (ibid., p. 212). “One final fact is the re-establishment of Israel as ‘a political state bearing its name and embodying at least a portion of their ancient geographical possession.’ This again illustrates the pro-Zionism so often found among Dispensationalists” [quoting Walvoord, Millennial Kingdom, p. 185] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 523). “Ignorance can cause the Gentiles to ‘draw false conclusions’ because they ‘do not see in perspective all the facts relating to the blindness [of Rom 11:25].’ This ignorance has ‘led Gentiles to believe that they were somehow better than Jews,’ and to blame only the Jews for the crucifixion. Hoyt points out that such a conclusion is ‘utterly false,’ for ‘Christ died because of the sin of all people.’ ‘Representatively Gentiles as well as Jews were implicated in the crucifixion’” [quoting Herman A. Hoyt, First Christian Theology, p. 129] (ibid., p. 550). “Those that bless this nation [Israel] will be blessed and those that curse it will be cursed. This is God’s foreign policy to the Gentiles in their relationship to the Jewish people” (ibid., p. 756). (See also Dr. Fruchtenbaum’s extended treatment of anti-Semitism in his Israelology, pp. 836-839.)

To the United States

In 1884, George Peters penned these strikingly insightful words regarding the future of the United States: “Some present the United States as the great element for 'the regeneration' of the nations, expressing themselves in eulogies which appropriate the promises solely belonging to Jesus, 'the Son of Man.' Wise statesmen (as Webster, etc.), have pointed out the great evils connected with our system of government, such as result from office-seeking, the licentiousness of the press, the abuse and perversion of suffrage, the dangers of emigration, the corruption of officials, the violence of party spirit, the conflicting interests of sections, and the misunderstanding of the rights of the general government and of individual States. But there is a portent of danger before us far greater than all these, which must eventually result disastrously, and that is, the growth of unbelief, socialism and its kindred brood with their demands. The government is in the hands of the people, and just so soon as the majority becomes leavened with socialistic ideas (which will come when the laboring population becomes more dense, wages become low, labor itself becomes difficult to obtain, distress brings discontent, etc.); then its doctrines respecting capital will be enforced (for the rich being in the minority, will be helpless) legally in the Legislative halls, and a series of spoliations ensue. Each blow at capital relieving distress but temporarily, will be succeeded by another and another, until the means of wealth being exhausted and the motives to its being obtained are destroyed, anarchy, engendered by a fearful experience, will evidence the worth of all such predictions. Unbelief will attack the Church, and in every way cause it to suffer. Both capital, because of its former extortion and monopolies, and the Church, because of its unfaithfulness and worldliness, will then suffer. This may be thought to be a gloomy view of the future, but how can we close our eyes to the fearful increase of infidelity, the danger already threatened, the demands already made, the views of disorganization already held by a multitude, the communistic parties already organized, the facilities already provided for joint action, etc. The aim is finally to control legislation, introduce universal co-operation, make the State a universal co-operative corporation, and enforce, under coercion, a universal and equal distribution of property... Emigration is rapidly swelling their numbers; numerous papers and journals, some with a large daily circulation, adopt and circulate their principles. The people have worshipped Mammon, and their god will bring them misery. 'The National Platform and Principles of the Socialistic Labor Party,' adopted by the National Congress at Newark, N. J., Dec., 1877, has for its motto: 'The earth is man's, and the fulness thereof,' which is but a parody on Ps. 24:1, 'The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof.' The abuse poured out upon God, Christ, and Christianity is so virulent and blasphemous as to be exceedingly shocking. While some to gain adherents quote Jesus as a Socialistic Reformer

(but refuse his cross), and the Bible as teaching Socialism, Communism, etc., others denominate Christianity ‘Poison, and an eighteen hundred years’ sickness,’ and declare (as Volkstaat, No. 25, 1876), ‘that Christianity and Socialism are opposed to each other as fire and water.’ We transcribe only one sentence as indicative of the fiery hate, given by a public speaker: ‘We hold God for an Ass of foolishness; we view God as the greatest evil in the world, and, therefore, declare against God the war.’ (He will meet them in ‘the war,’ and their blasphemy, pride, and boasting will have a terrible fall.) It is this mixture of unbelief, socialism, communism, etc., which will bring this country into an endurance of tribulation. By eloquently expressed appeals to humanitarian ideas, and by ravishing pictures of bountiful help from the State, removal of care, the certainty of competency, freedom from all restraint, and the surety of help under all circumstances, a majority will finally accrue to them, and infidelity will rule: There is one feature that may mitigate the severity of God’s judgments on the United States, provided that it is retained to the end, viz., the general and State governments have ever been friendly to the Jews. So Lawrence (‘The Jews and their Persecutors,’ Harper’s Mag., June, 1874, ref. to Jost’s Hist. of the Jews) remarks: ‘A fair Republic sprang up in the New World, that was the first of all the nations to offer a peaceful and happy home to the persecuted people.’ Now God’s threatenings are specially leveled against the nations who in the past or future oppress that people and burden themselves with it; they particularly shall feel His vengeance. Therefore there is propriety in the observation of Wines (Com. on the Laws of the Anc. Hebrews, p. 340), who, after referring to the manner in which the Jews were treated in Europe, Africa, and Asia, and how in this country they have from the first enjoyed freedom, equality, protection of rights, etc., says: ‘May we not hope, that, when Jehovah shall judge the nations, He will in mercy remember the land, which has afforded a refuge and a home to the sons of Jacob’” (Peters, TTK, 2:779).

To the Unsaved

If the reader has not yet experienced regeneration (being “born again”), or is not sure whether he or she is in a “saved” condition before God, we hope he or she will find this section regarding sin, salvation and life subsequent to salvation particularly helpful (and ideally, eternally life-changing).

Regarding Sin

We are all sinners. “for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God” (Rom. 3:23) and our natural inclination, prior to regeneration, is to reject God’s Word. “And this is the judgment, that the light is come into the world, and men loved the darkness rather than the light;

for their deeds were evil. For everyone who does evil hates the light, and does not come to the light, lest his deeds should be exposed” (John 3:19–20). “The world cannot hate you; but it hates Me [Jesus] because I testify of it, that its deeds are evil” (John 7:7). “For not knowing about God’s righteousness, and seeking to establish their own, they did not subject themselves to the righteousness of God” (Rom. 10:3). “For the word of the cross is to those who are perishing foolishness, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God” (1 Cor. 1:18). “But a natural man does not accept the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness to him, and he cannot understand them, because they are spiritually appraised” (1 Cor. 2:14). “Know this first of all, that in the last days mockers will come with their mocking, following after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation’” (2 Pet. 3:3–4). “...the heart inclined to love evil, to cherish selfishness, to seek pleasure and gratification, rejects the denial of self and of evil imposed by the Word, and hence seeks, in order to escape the obligations thus presented, to invalidate the Word itself... ‘this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil, hateth the light, neither cometh to the that light, lest his deeds should be reprov’d,’ John 3:19, 20... The condemnatory nature of both law and Gospel, the requirements of the Bible from the individual, the humbling doctrines associated with Redemption—alas, these form the great stumbling-blocks to the Christian religion” (Peters, TTK, 3:279). “So long as he refuses to place himself in the position favorable to receive faith and experience its power, man is responsible for the lack of faith... faith is the producer of action... the responsibility arises from a deliberate rejection of the evidence from a wilful choosing not to pay attention to it, from an unwillingness to place themselves in the only position favorable to its attainment, because it makes self-sacrifice imperative... claim the right of being the supreme judge in matters of faith and of thus making the Bible submit to their own judgment” (ibid., p. 283)

We must recognize our sin. “And He [the Holy Spirit], when He comes, will convict the world concerning sin, and righteousness, and judgment” (John 16:8) “Johnathan Edwards... ‘That some sinners have a greater conviction of their guilt and misery than others, is because some have more light, or more apprehension of truth, than others. And this light and conviction may be from the Spirit of God.’ (WJE, 2.13)” (Geisler, ST, 2:230)

We must view sin as God does. “He must realize the sinfulness of sin if he is to attain in any degree to the knowledge God possesses” (Chafer, p. 231).

God hates sin! “There are six things which Jehovah hateth; Yea, seven which are an abomination unto him: Haughty eyes, a lying tongue, And hands that shed innocent blood; A heart that deviseth wicked purposes, Feet that are swift in running to mischief, A false witness that uttereth lies, And he that soweth discord among brethren” (Prov. 6:16–19). “It is evidently of measureless importance for God to demonstrate His hatred of evil” (Chafer, ST, p. 232).

God cannot condone sin. “Holiness dictates that there shall be no leniency toward evil on the part of God. It is true that He considers our frame and remembers that we are dust; but God never condones sin” (Chafer, ST, 1:204). “Holiness condemns sin while the love of God seeks to save the sinner” (ibid., p. 206).

Because of our sin, we are condemned. “He who believes in Him is not judged; he who does not believe has been judged already, because he has not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God” (John 3:18). “So then as through one transgression there resulted condemnation to all men, even so through one act of righteousness there resulted justification of life to all men” (Rom. 5:18). “For God has shut up all in disobedience that He might show mercy to all” (Rom. 11:32). “In Romans 11:32 the Apostle states that ‘God hath concluded them all in unbelief,’ which unbelief, as has been seen from John 3:18, is the ground of the present condemnation of all men” (Chafer, ST, 2:320). “And you were dead in your trespasses and sins” (Eph. 2:1)

Regarding Salvation

We can’t possibly do enough good on our own to merit salvation. “because by the works of the Law no flesh will be justified in His sight; for through the Law comes the knowledge of sin” (Rom. 3:20). “Every blessing from God that has ever been experienced came only from the loving mercy of God; yet with that same blasting self-trust, people are now turning to a dependence upon their works. It is far more reasonable and honoring to God to fall helpless into His everlasting arms, and to acknowledge that we rely on His grace alone” (Chafer, G, 35%). “To such as seek to come to Him by the law, God is as unapproachable as flaming Sinai” (ibid.). “It would be folly indeed to contend that a good life is not more beneficial to the state, to society, or the home than a bad life; but this question under discussion does not involve the state, society, or the home directly: it is a matter of getting sinners so perfected that they may enjoy the presence of God in heaven forever” (Chafer, ST, 2:32). “The merit system represents the best that man can do, while the faith system represents the best that God can do” (ibid., 3:81). “Nothing could be so insecure as a righteousness based on human merit” (ibid., p. 84).

We need regeneration, not reformation. “Jesus answered and said to him, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God’” (John 3:3). “The Satanic message for this age will be reformation and self-development, while the message of God is regeneration by the power of the Spirit” (Chafer, S, C6:12/19). “...one feature of the last days will be a form of godliness which carefully denies the power of God in salvation” (ibid., C7:21/31). “The word of God makes no appeal to the unsaved for a betterment of life. There is but one issue in this dispensation between God and the unregenerate man, and that is neither character nor conduct; it is the personal appeal of the Gospel of the grace of God. Until the unsaved receive Christ, who is God’s gift in grace, no other issue can be raised” (Chafer, G, 26%).

Only God can save us. “And Jesus said to His disciples, ‘Truly I say to you, it is hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. And again I say to you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.’ And when the disciples heard this, they were very astonished and said, ‘Then who can be saved?’ And looking upon them Jesus said to them, ‘With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible’” (Matt. 19:23-26). “Even though faith is possible for the unsaved, nonetheless, no one can believe unto salvation without the aid of God’s special grace” (Geisler, ST, 3:136). “...we cannot believe without God’s grace” (ibid., p. 148)

God has only one way of saving us. “Jesus said to him, ‘I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father, but through Me’” (John 14:6). “And there is salvation in no one else; for there is no other name under heaven that has been given among men, by which we must be saved” (Acts 4:12). “He made known to us the mystery of His will, according to His kind intention which He purposed in Him with a view to an administration suitable to the fulness of the times, that is, the summing up of all things in Christ, things in the heavens and things upon the earth. In Him” (Eph. 1:9-10) “The law ‘was added ... till the seed should come’ (Gal. 3:19); but when the Seed did come, the authority of the Mosaic law was no longer required, or even possible, as a principle of divine rule. It was the purpose of God to close every door of access to Himself, but one” (Chafer, G, 62%). “Language is incapable of expressing the hideous dishonor to God which lurks in gospel appeals that offer salvation based upon divine charity and not on the efficacious blood of Christ” (Chafer, ST, 2:256). “The death of Christ was necessary as the only solution of the problem of evil within the range of divine possibilities; and there is, therefore, no substitute for it, no optional choice, nor any salvation apart from it” (ibid., 5:229). “It is not that God ever ceases to be a God of grace; but that it is morally impossible for God to forgive sin outside of Christ, and a hardened resistance to the witness of the Spirit will keep the sinner outside of Christ forever” (McClain, GK, p. 315).

Only Jesus can save us. “Jesus said to him, ‘I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father, but through Me’” (John 14:6). “And there is salvation in no one else; for there is no other name under heaven that has been given among men, by which we must be saved” (Acts 4:12). “The only Saviour from sin and its sad consequences that the intelligent believer can recognize is Jesus—Jesus accepted and appropriated as the Scriptures so plainly teach” (Peters, TTK, 3:203).

God justifies sinners. “for the demonstration, I say, of His righteousness at the present time, that He might be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus” (Rom. 3:26). “But to the one who does not work, but believes in Him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is reckoned as righteousness” (Rom. 4:5) “God is not said to be merciful or kind when he justifies the one who believes on Christ; He is said to be just (Rom. 3:26)” (Chafer, ST, 1:204). “Men are not saved by coaxing mercy out of God; they are saved when they dare to believe God has been merciful enough to provide a Savior and that He is propitious” (ibid., 3:95).

The gospel is the message of the death, burial and resurrection of Christ. “For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life” (John 3:16). “Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures” (1 Cor. 15:1-4)

We are either lost or saved. “It may be concluded, then, that men are either lost, being under sin, which is to be meritless before God in the issues related to their salvation, or they are perfected forever in Christ by the saving grace of God, which salvation is divinely secured to all who believe” (Chafer, ST, 2:320).

You don’t need to settle for things the way they are. “The true David, to whom all belongs in title, is, as it were, in the cave of Adullam, where a few ‘discontented’ ones, those who are not satisfied with such a condition of things—have found their way to Him, and own Him, even in the day of His rejection, as rightful Lord of all” (Chafer, ST, 2:56).

God may be convicting you. “But I tell you the truth, it is to your advantage that I go away; for if I do not go away, the Helper shall not come to you; but if I go, I will send Him to you. And He, when He comes, will convict the world concerning sin, and righteousness, and judgment; concerning sin, because they do not believe in Me; and concerning righteousness, because I go to the Father, and you no longer behold Me; and concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world has been judged” (John 16:7-11).

God may be drawing you. “No one can come to Me [Jesus], unless the Father who sent Me draws him” (John 6:44) “Every truly regenerate person will testify that he would not have turned to God apart from that all-important divine drawing of his heart” (Chafer, ST, 1:242). “...a work of the Spirit in the heart of the individual unregenerate person, which is essential preparation of that person for an intelligent acceptance of Christ as Savior” (ibid., p. 412). “A preliminary work must be wrought in the heart of those who are unsaved before they can enter, by their own choice, into any saving relationship with Christ. That preliminary work is not a part of their salvation, but is rather an indispensable preparation for it” (ibid., 5:153). “It is the peculiar ministry of the Spirit to testify to the Son and thus bring sinners into the only place where sin can be forgiven” (McClain, GK, p. 315).

Faith has always been the basis for entrance into the Kingdom. “For what does the Scripture say? ‘AND ABRAHAM BELIEVED GOD, AND IT WAS RECKONED TO HIM AS RIGHTEOUSNESS’” (Rom. 4:3). “From the inception of the first form of the theocracy in the Garden of Eden, faith was the basis for entrance into the kingdom of the God of heaven on earth” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 83).

We are not saved by Law, or by works. “because by the works of the Law no flesh will be justified in His sight; for through the Law comes the knowledge of sin” (Rom. 3:20). “Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith apart from the deeds of the law” (Rom. 3:28). “Israel alone was delivered from the written commandments of Moses through the death of Christ. However, both Jew and Gentile were delivered by that death from the hopeless principle of human merit, and from the useless struggle of the flesh” (Chafer, G, 69%). “The sanctity of the law is never preserved by those who attempt to keep it. The holy will of God was never wrought by any person other than Christ. The effort of man has universally failed. The supposition that God will be pleased and honored by any fleshly attempt to do His will, is a delusion as old as the race. Those who try to keep the law, or try by their own effort to do the whole will of God, outrage the law at every step by their absolute failure. On the other hand, those who, in recognition of the righteous character of the law, bow before those holy demands, acknowledging their utter failure and inability to fulfill them, and who flee to Christ that they may stand in His redemption and partake of the very righteousness of God in Him and be sheltered under the cross whereon He met every demand of the law for them, are the only ones who really uphold the law, or keep it. ‘Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law’ (Rom. 3:31)” (ibid.).

We are not saved by pleading, but by believing. “In no case are divine blessings to be secured by human merit, or by pleading; they await the faith that will appropriate them” (Chafer, G, 68%). “The unsaved have no access to God in prayer. ‘But,’ it is often asked, ‘how then can they be saved, if they cannot ask God to save them?’ The answer is simple: No person is ever saved because he asks God to do it. He is saved through grace only when he believes. God is offering salvation to men. He does not need to be implored or moved in their behalf. He has been moved to give His Son to die. What more could He do? This marvelous gift of His grace is for all who will believe” (ibid., 90%).

Believe and be saved now! You should be childlike in your believing. “Then some children were brought to Him so that He might lay His hands on them and pray; and the disciples rebuked them. But Jesus said, ‘Let the children alone, and do not hinder them from coming to Me; for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these’” (Matt. 19:13-14). “And they were bringing children to Him so that He might touch them; and the disciples rebuked them. But when Jesus saw this, He was indignant and said to them, ‘Permit the children to come to Me; do not hinder them; for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. Truly I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child shall not enter it at all.’ And He took them in His arms and began blessing them, laying His hands upon them” (Mark 10:13-16). You must believe in order to be saved. “He who believes in Him is not judged; he who does not believe has been judged already, because he has not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God” (John 3:18). Believing is the only thing you need to do. “And when the jailer had been roused out of sleep and had seen the prison doors opened, he drew his sword and was about to kill himself, supposing that the prisoners had escaped. But Paul cried out with a loud voice, saying, ‘Do yourself no harm, for we are all here!’ And he called for lights and rushed in and, trembling with fear, he fell down before Paul and Silas, and after he brought them out, he said, ‘Sirs, what must I do to be saved?’ And they said, ‘Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you shall be saved, you and your household’” (Acts 16:27–32). “For we maintain that a man is justified by faith apart from works of the Law” (Rom. 3:28). “The exercise of faith is the one condition (action) necessary for a person to receive justification before God” (Geisler, ST, 3:133). God is asking you to believe! “What is it that men are thus implored to do? Simply this: God is satisfied with the solution of the sin question as consummated by Christ in His death, and the sinner is petitioned to be satisfied himself with that which satisfies God” (Chafer, p. 92). It’s your choice. “Agnosticism is better expressed by the phrase, ‘I will not believe,’ than by the phrase, ‘I cannot believe’” (ibid., 1:166). It’s the most important thing you could ever do. “The most important choice the human heart can ever make is that of the acceptance of Christ as Savior, and the will of man alone is appealed to in this decision” (ibid., p. 251).

Jesus is all you need. “and through Him everyone who believes is freed from all things, from which you could not be freed through the Law of Moses” (Acts 13:39). “and in Him you have been made complete, and He is the head over all rule and authority” (Col. 2:10) “He who has the Son has the life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have the life” (1 John. 5:12). “The man who has found God in Christ has laid his hand upon the key which explains the riddle of cosmic history” (McClain, GK, p. 33).

After death it will be too late. “He that being often reproveth hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy” (Prov. 29:1). “Now it came about that the poor man died and he was carried away by the angels to Abraham’s bosom; and the rich man also died and was buried. And in Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torment, and saw Abraham far away, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried out and said, ‘Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool off my tongue; for I am in agony in this flame.’” But Abraham said, “Child, remember that during your life you received your good things, and likewise Lazarus bad things; but now he is being comforted here, and you are in agony. And besides all this, between us and you there is a great chasm fixed, in order that those who wish to come over from here to you may not be able, and that none may cross over from there to us” (Luke 16:22–26). “He who believes in the Son has eternal life; but he who does not obey the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides on him” (John 3:36). “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life” (John 5:24). “And inasmuch as it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment” (Heb. 9:27) “Anyone living in this age must be saved now or he will not be saved in a future dispensation” (Feinberg, M, p. 316). “Like humans at the point of physical death (Heb. 9:27), once angels have made their final choice, it is eternally too late” (Geisler, ST, 3:139). “All the mortal sins of men, grave or less grave, are pardonable before death; whereas after death they are without remission, and endure forever” [quoting Thomas Aquinas, Summa Theologica, 1a.64.2] (ibid., p. 142). “The Bible is clear that there is no second chance after death (cf. Heb. 9:27). The Revelation records the Great White Throne Judgment, in which those who are not found in the Book of Life are cast into the lake of fire (20:11-15). Luke records Christ’s teaching that once a person dies, he goes either to heaven or hell (16:19-31), and that there is a great gulf fixed ‘so that those who want to pass’ from one to the other cannot (v. 26 NKJV). The whole urgency of responding to God in this life, before we die, further supports the fact that there is no hope beyond the grave (cf. Prov. 29:1; John 3:36; 5:24)” (ibid., p. 397).

Again, it’s your choice. “...the Gospel... man, owing to the duties enjoined and self-denial required, can reject it” (Peters, TTK, 3:192). “By reason of the precious but perilous gift of freedom, man is able to say No to God” (McClain, GK, p. 359).

Regarding Life Subsequent to Salvation

After salvation, live a godly life. “As you therefore have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in Him” (Col. 2:6) “It should be repeated often that such an exalted position as immutable justification proclaims calls for a heaven-high manner of daily life, not that the sinner can attain to or maintain by any works of merit a position so exalted, but to the end that he may not profane that which God hath wrought in answer to simple faith in Jesus” (Chafer, ST, 5:203). “As to their daily needs, they are called to a life of continual trust and dependence upon God through sincere and believing prayer (Matt. 6:1-7:11)” (McClain, GK, p. 286).

Pray to God the Father, in Jesus' name, regularly. "The scope of prayer under grace is not narrow: it is as infinite as the eternal interests of the One in whose name we are privileged to pray" (Chafer, MBT, 79%). "To pray to Christ is to abandon His mediation by praying to Him, rather than through Him; thereby sacrificing the most vital feature of prayer under grace — prayer in His name. To pray to the Spirit of God is to pray to Him, rather than by Him; and implies that we are, to that degree, depending on our own sufficiency" (ibid., 80%).

Don't be artificially, overly "spiritual." "Experimentally, the believer, when empowered by the Spirit, will be conscious only of the exercise of his own faculties. The Spirit does not disclose His presence directly; His ministry is to reveal and glorify Christ. His presence will be evidenced, however, by the victory that is wrought, which victory could be wrought only by the Spirit" (Chafer, G, 60%). "The presence of the Spirit is not disclosed through human emotions and feelings; it is rather detected by the things which He does" (ibid., 91%).

Life will still not be easy. "If the world hates you, you know that it has hated Me before it hated you. If you were of the world, the world would love its own; but because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you" (John 15:18–19). "And after they had preached the gospel to that city and had made many disciples, they returned to Lystra and to Iconium and to Antioch, strengthening the souls of the disciples, encouraging them to continue in the faith, and saying, Through many tribulations we must enter the kingdom of God" (Acts 14:21–22). "And indeed, all who desire to live godly in Christ Jesus will be persecuted" (2 Tim. 3:12). "The reader is reminded that while many professors are rejected and few are chosen, it is also true that out of those saved some are but barely saved, as by fire, and cannot expect to enjoy that honor of position that others realize in the coming Kingdom. Prosperity, too, is no sign of God's special favor, for Heb. 12:5–12; James 1:12; Rev. 3:19, etc., clearly teach that trial, adversity, etc., are often but tokens of God's love toward His elect. With Paul (Col. 1:24), they fill up the measure of Christ's sufferings, for being designed as co-heirs, co-rulers with Christ, it is essential that they become in all things Christ-like, imitating Him and cultivating His spirit, which can only be done by being tested and tried, as Jesus Himself was afflicted, so that they may partake of His glory. Enduring temptation and trial is indicative of a proper apprehension of Christ, of the Spirit and truth abiding with us, of our being truly the children of God, of our being the elect. But while enduring, under trial, fighting the good fight of faith, it is not for us to sit in judgment over others who may be struggling and tried as we are; it is sufficient to realize in our own experience God's leadings and to enjoy the sweet consciousness of His favor in the fulfillment of promises pertaining to the present life" (Peters, TTK, 1:417). "...the positive assertions of the Spirit that the world shall always hate, etc., the godly" (ibid., 3:117). "The preaching of the Gospel and the acceptance of the same has always more or less been accompanied by the division predicted by Christ, Luke 12:51-53, and the hatred prophesied, John 15:19... comparatively few families are all believers" (ibid., p. 196) "It is true that the people of God in every age have known in their hearts the joy of the Lord; but all their rejoicings have been tempered by a somber note, as they faced the uncertainties and problems inevitably present in human life this side of the Kingdom" (McClain, GK, p. 220). "God is more interested in our holiness than our happiness" (Geisler, ST, 4:634).

To Jehovah's Witnesses

Jehovah's Witnesses, you've been deceived. Deception is common. "It would seem that Satan still exercises some of his original responsibility, as the defender and promoter of righteousness on which the throne of God must ever rest. Satan's ministers pose as 'ministers of righteousness' (2 Cor 11:15); but reference is made in this text to personal or self-promoted righteousness. The redemptive plan proposes to constitute sinners righteous before God through the merit of Christ which He released and provided for the lost in His death. The constituting of sinners to be righteous through the saving work of Christ is easily believed to be a point of satanic opposition against God. There is nothing else about the gospel which Satan would resist, or concerning which he would 'blind the minds' of those who are lost (2 Cor 4:3-4). The one who specializes in self-promoted righteousness has always been the least able to comprehend and the greatest objector to the doctrine of imputed righteousness" (Chafer, ST, 2:59). "His ideal is ever reflected in his ministers who are said to be 'ministers of [personal] righteousness' (2 Cor 11:13-15). It is concerning this gospel of grace by which lost men may be saved, that Satan has cast a veil over the minds of all unregenerate human beings 'lest the light of the glorious gospel... should shine unto them' (2 Cor 4:4). Every observing soul-winner is sooner or later impressed with the more than natural inability of the unsaved to comprehend the offer of salvation apart from human merit by faith alone" (ibid., p. 97). "The value and delusion of a counterfeit are increased by the nearness of its likeness to the real" (ibid., p. 102). "A counterfeit is Satan's most natural method of resisting the purpose of God, since by it he can realize to that extent his desire to be like the Most High” (ibid., p. 105). “Their gospel is one of human reason, and appeals to human resources” (ibid., p. 107). “One is directed only at the reformation of the natural man, while the other aims at regeneration through the power of God” (ibid., p. 108). “Any of the great Scriptural subjects which are of universal interest to humanity, such as physical health, life after death, morality, unfulfilled prophecy, or religious forms, may be substituted in the false systems for that which is vital” (ibid.). “The secondary things are tangible and seen, while the one essential thing is spiritual and unseen; and Satan has blinded their eyes toward that which is of eternal value” (ibid.).

You are difficult to reach. “Since there is so much delusion in a counterfeit, the person most difficult to reach with the gospel of divine grace is the person who is trying to do all that a Christian ought to do, but is doing it as a means of becoming accepted before God. His willing acknowledgement of the value of the Christian life, his unquestioned reception into the fellowship of believers, and his real sincerity in all Christian activities constitute his greatest hindrance. Such a one is more deluded than the person who acknowledges no relationship to God. Both fall short and are lost through their failure to believe on Christ as the all-sufficient Savior; but, naturally, the person who has no false hope is more apt to become conscious of the fact that he is lost than is the person who believes he is a Christian. The law cannot save, and the one who transforms the teachings of grace into a legal system by attempting to do them in order that he may be right with God, and has not believed on Christ, is still unsaved. Turning to meritorious works as a basis of salvation, be those works a precise counterfeit of a true Christian life, is to be under a by-works relation to God, and therefore to be under condemnation; for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified in His sight” (Chafer, ST, 4:231). “...filter... through the... grid” (Horner, FI, p. 78)

This writer has affection for you. This is due in large measure to my prior association with you, I’m sure, and also because of your love of the Bible and your dedication to and zeal for Jehovah, and because you are, as I am, looking forward to the Millennial Kingdom.

There are several things that I believe you should be seeking now, including the complete, unvarnished truth, “Our desire in all this is to elicit the truth, seeing that truth is useful—leading to other truth, avoiding bigotry, giving motives for action, forming character, commending us to God and man, and is eternal, while error is misleading and injurious” (Peters, TTK, 1:465). “...to close our eyes to the truth only indicates lack of faith in God’s own utterances” (ibid., 2:775) God above earthly reward, “Martin Luther... ‘And he who seeks no more than holiness itself, seeks and finds God Himself. But he who seeks reward and flees punishment never finds God but makes reward his god. For that which moves a man to do something is his god.’ (WLS, 655-56)” (Geisler, ST, p. 320) and, of course, the Kingdom. “But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added to you” (Matt. 6:33). As I hope you’ve seen in this study, a tremendous amount of research has been done on the Kingdom over the past one hundred years by evangelical scholars, research that Jehovah’s Witnesses have for the most part missed out on due to their theological and social isolation. Don’t let the Watchtower Society rob you of the real, biblical Kingdom hope!

Regarding Bible study, I urge you to read and study the Bible for yourself. “And the brethren immediately sent Paul and Silas away by night to Berea; and when they arrived, they went into the synagogue of the Jews. Now these were more noble-minded than those in Thessalonica, for they received the word with great eagerness, examining the Scriptures daily, to see whether these things were so” (Acts 17:10–11). “Do not quench the Spirit; do not despise prophetic utterances. But examine everything carefully; hold fast to that which is good” (1 Thes. 5:19–21) “Be diligent to present yourself approved to God as a workman who does not need to be ashamed, handling accurately the word of truth” (2 Tim. 2:15).

The Holy Spirit is our Teacher. “But the Helper, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in My name, He will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all that I said to you” (John 14:26). It has been my experience that the Holy Spirit simply enables us to understand and believe the Bible in its plain, obvious sense.

Be willing to believe the Bible, even if you don’t yet understand every single detail. “It is a characteristic of believers, in opposition to unbelievers, to receive all that God says He will perform, even if not able fully or satisfactorily to explain or reconcile all His words and predictions;—and this is properly based upon the reason (derived from reason apprehending God as described), that the wisdom and power of God will be found equal to any emergency that may arise in the fulfillment (in the order given) of His predictions, no matter how inexplicable they may appear unto us” (Peters, TTK, 2:522). “Simple faith in what God says is the best protection against all such efforts, and in this fortunately unlearned are as well protected as the most learned” (ibid., 3:243). God is honored when we believe what Scripture says, not when we doubt that it means what it says. Believe what the infallible Bible says; not what fallible men say that it “really” means.

Interpret Scripture plainly (see our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics).

Do not spiritualize Kingdom prophecy. “Russell (Our Lord’s Return, p. 55), who was for a time in affiliation with Barbour, remarks in opposition to a visible Kingdom and Christ sitting on David’s throne in Palestine, that ‘fleshly Israel is not, and never again will be “the Kingdom of God.” They were once, but it will be taken from them, and given to another people, children of Abraham by faith, the Church. Under the sounding of the seventh trumpet all the Kingdoms of the world (now under the control of Satan) “become the Kingdoms of our Lord.” They pass into the possession of Christ and under the rule of His Kingdom—the devil being bound, Rev. 20:2. Israel, with their capital at Jerusalem, will doubtless be the chief of these fleshly nations [Note: Jehovah’s Witnesses no longer believe that Israel will be “the chief of these fleshly nations”—ed.], but it will no more be the heavenly Kingdom than they.’ Hence it is spiritual, etc. The inconsistency of making the Kingdom spiritual because ‘heavenly,’ and admitting that as ‘the Kingdom of God’ and as ‘heavenly’ it once existed in a visible form, is certainly very striking, especially when in this future Kingdom God’s will is to be done on earth as in heaven. The simple fact is this: Russell overlooks the elect condition of the nation, the necessity of our being engrafted into it [technically, we (the church) are, rather, grafted into the Abrahamic root of blessing—ed.], the express covenanted relationship of that Kingdom with the nation, the removal of God’s wrath which restores them to their ancient position... All prophecy makes the setting up of this Kingdom contingent with the restoration of that nation, for it is David’s throne and Kingdom (not a type or symbol, but the same Kingdom overthrown) that is the inheritance of David’s Son, the Messiah. As to taking the Kingdom from the nation and giving to others, the general tenor of the Scriptures, as we have shown at length, teaches that to the Jewish nation at the First Advent was tendered, on the condition of repentance, the honor of rulership, kingship, and priesthood in this Kingdom. This tender was refused, and now, lest the purpose of God fail, these rulers are gathered out of other repentant and believing ones that are engrafted. The nation as such, however high its position in the coming Kingdom, cannot, and does, not occupy the noble and exalted stations of honor and glory that these gathered ones—gathered because of their unbelief and rejection—will sustain. But we must refer the reader to our previous statements; given with the scriptural proof, and logically step by step. This we, however, add: these engrafted ones to whom the honor of rulership (inheriting the Kingdom) is given are united with previous ones selected from the nation previously, for they inherit the promises with the ancient worthies. These promises only include the Kingdom advocated by us, and embraced in ‘the sure mercies of David.’ The purely spiritual Kingdom of Barbour, Russell, and others has no existence either in Covenant or in prophecy, and was never heard of until mysticism and spiritualizing exerted their influence upon scriptural interpretation and application” (Peters, TTK, 2:122).

Do not add to nor subtract from Scripture. “I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book; and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life and from the holy city, which are written in this book” (Rev. 22:18–19). “Both those who would add and those who would subtract do so as evidence of their unsaved state” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 539). “These two warnings against additions and subtractions in their context are concerned specifically with the Book of Revelation, and the primary emphasis is not on the Bible as a whole. However, since the Book of the Revelation is the final revelation of God’s Word, the principle behind the warning can be extended to the Bible as a whole, for the Bible as a whole is complete only with the Book of Revelation. Once the last Apostle died, no further inspired books would be written (Eph. 2:11–3:12)” (ibid.). “Examples of those who add are the numerous cults that accept other writings as inspired and authoritative and place them on equal grounds with the Bible (i.e., the Mormons with The Book of Mormon and Christian Science with their Key to the Scriptures). Examples of those who subtract are those who refuse to accept the entire body of Scripture as God’s inspired Word and hold to concepts of partial inspiration or no inspiration. However, both those who add and those who subtract do so because they are not willing to accept the Scriptures as the final authority. This demonstrates their unsaved state. Hence, they will lose out on dwelling in the New Jerusalem, and the Lake of Fire will be their eternal abode” (ibid.).

And, do not presume to tell God what He should and should not be and do (regarding His nature, His people, His exercising of justice and wrath, the propriety of the lake of fire, etc.) “For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith Jehovah. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts” (Isa. 55:8–9). “You will say to me then, ‘Why does He still find fault? For who resists His will?’ On the contrary, who are you, O man, who answers back to God? The thing molded will not say to the molder, ‘Why did you make me like this,’ will it” (Rom. 9:19–20)? “...presuming to point out what is right and proper for Deity to perform” (Peters, TTK, 1:614) “...the same principle adopted by unbelievers, viz., upon what he may regard proper and right for God to say and do in the matter; and then gives the sense which best suits his ideas of God’s character and doings” (ibid., 2:490).

Regarding doctrine, you are right about some things. To the extent that you use a literal hermeneutic, your doctrine is correct. For instance, you are correct that Jehovah is the one true God (see our discussion of the fact that Jehovah, the God of the Bible, is the only true God in our chapter Presuppositions and Premises), regarding the exclusivity of truth (see our discussion of the exclusive characteristic of truth in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics), regarding the inspiration and infallibility of the Bible (see our discussions of the Bible’s inspiration and infallibility in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics), regarding the literalness of historical events in the Bible (see our discussion of the truthfulness of the Bible in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics), Jesus’ perfect life (see our discussion of Jesus’ life in our chapter The King of the Kingdom), that the Kingdom is a literal government (see our discussion of the fact that the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom is a literal government in our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom), that some humans will survive the Great Tribulation (see our discussions of the survival, gathering and judging of the Tribulation survivors in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom), that there will be a literal one-thousand-year-long earthly kingdom (see our discussion of the fact that the Messianic or Millennial Kingdom is an earthly kingdom in our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom, and our discussion of the fact that the duration of the Millennial Kingdom is one thousand years in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom), that the Millennial Kingdom will be populated by humans (see our description of the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom), and that Jehovah’s Kingdom is the sole and complete answer to mankind’s problems. “In view of the testimony of so extended a body of Old Testament Scripture, none can reasonably doubt but that Jehovah is coming to establish a reign of righteousness in all the earth” (Chafer, ST, 1:331). (See our discussion of the purposes of the Kingdom, which include solving mankind’s most pressing problems, in our chapter A Kingdom Needed, and our description of the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

However, you are wrong about many things, and are under many illusions. “Departure from the norm in one realm of truth usually carries with it disastrous results in other areas” (Feinberg, M, p. 353). Basically, to the extent that you allegorize the Scripture, rather than taking it simply for what it says, your doctrine is incorrect.

Regarding Bible translations, your New World Translation is a very poor “translation” of the Bible. For instance, your translators were not at all justified in inserting the name “Jehovah” into the New Testament over two hundred times. “Jehovah is a Hebrew term which is not brought forward into the New Testament. Its equivalent is kyrios, which title is also applied to the Father and the Spirit. It is a justifiable procedure to treat the name Jehovah of the Old Testament as continued in its specific meaning into the New Testament by the name Lord” (Chafer, ST, 1:334). (For many other serious problems with the New World Translation, see Appendix B: The New World Translation of this writer’s book Reasoning with Jehovah’s Witnesses.)

Regarding hermeneutics, I suggest to you that the tried-and-true grammatical-historical hermeneutic (see our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics) is far more scientific and far more reliable than the “faithful and discreet slave’s” allegorical whims.

Regarding the nature of God, you are wrong concerning the deity of Christ, the personality of the Holy Spirit and the trinity.

Concerning the deity of Christ, “No instructed Jew who was present missed the fact that Christ asserted of Himself that He is the ‘I am,’ the Jehovah, of the Old Testament” (Chafer, ST, 1:264). “...the measure of God’s love is reduced to naught if God gave only a creature to man as His love-gift to them” (ibid., p. 279) “Arians... This immeasurable insult to Christ... being motivated by unbelief and being as dark as the natural heart of man” (ibid., p. 320). “May the Spirit, whose work it is to take of the things of Christ and show them unto His own, illuminate the mind of the one who writes and the mind of all those who in patience pursue these pages” (ibid., p. 321)! “The unanimity of belief on the part of all devout scholars that the Angel of Jehovah is the preincarnate second Person of the Trinity” (ibid., p. 327) “...on the divine side, He has a Father and, on the human side, He has a God (John 20:17)” (ibid., p. 336) “As there is no question among professing Christians about the Deity of either the Father or the Spirit, it is reasonable to suppose that there would have been no question raised about the Deity of the Son had He not become incarnate in human form. The Deity of the Son is asserted in the Bible as fully and as clearly in every particular as is the Deity of the Father or the Spirit. On the other hand, the humanity of the Savior is as dogmatically set forth. To those who in their thinking keep these two natures of Christ separate both with respect to substance and manifestation, there is less perplexity about Christ’s Deity. Difficulty arises with those who, assuming that they must blend these natures, attempt to strike an average in which His Deity is lowered and His humanity is exalted to a point of equivalence. To such persons, the resulting error is twofold: the Deity of the Lord is submerged in doubt and the humanity of the Lord is deprived of all its naturalness. Under those conditions, the Scriptures which so clearly present each of these two natures must either be disputed or qualified beyond effectiveness” (ibid., p. 339). “...the subjection of the Son to the Father is wholly within the relationship of the humanity of the incarnate Person to His Father and is not primarily a subjection of the Deity, or Second Person, to the First Person. Between the two divine Persons there is eternal cooperation, but not subjection. It is further to be seen that subjection to the Creator on the part of man is that which is inherent in the very order of things created, and the God-man cannot be the perfect man which the incarnation secures should He not, as man, be wholly subject to the Father” (ibid., p. 363). “The Christian era has seen a reversal of emphasis in its Christology. The early centuries were characterized by discussions calculated to establish the humanity of Christ, while the present requirement seems to be the recognition of, and emphasis upon, His Deity” (ibid., p. 365). “He was self-limited in knowledge” (ibid., p. 369) “He who subsisted immutably as the precise form or reality which God is, assumed that which is human, not in place of the divine, but in conjunction with it. He added to Himself the precise form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men. He was man, but that term was not sufficient to define Him. Because of His theanthropic Person, His manhood, though fully present, was better styled, ‘the likeness of men’” (ibid., p. 378). “Christ emptied Himself of self-interest” (ibid., p. 379) “Christ gave up, as Strong aptly suggests, the ‘independent exercise of the divine attributes’ (Systematic Theology, p. 382)” (ibid., p. 381) “Within the umbrella of Christendom will include all types of groups, such as cultic groups which use Christ’s name, but deny His deity” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 613). (See our main discussion of Christ’s deity in our chapter The King of the Kingdom.)

Concerning the personality of the Holy Spirit, “...the three elements of personality—intellect, sensibility, and will” (Chafer, ST, 1:398) “Every characteristic of Deity belongs as much to the Spirit as to the Father or the Son” (ibid., p. 399). (For a complete discussion of the personality and deity of the Holy Spirit see this writer’s Reasoning with Jehovah’s Witnesses, The Personality of the Holy Spirit.)

Concerning the trinity, “Recognizing that the word trinity is not found in the Sacred Text and that the doctrine which it represents is not directly taught therein, Dr. W. Lindsay Alexander states: ...As a doctrine it is a human induction from the statements of Scripture; —System of Biblical Theology, I, 94, 95” (Chafer, ST, 1:272) “...the greatest mystery of all revealed truth” (ibid., p. 273) “...no finite mind has ever comprehended how three Persons may form but one Essence” (ibid.) “No argument has been advanced against the trinitarian conception other than that it does not conform to the limitations of the mind of man” (ibid., p. 274). “...those who deny the triune existence of the Godhead do not worship the God of the Bible” (ibid., p. 278) “Dr. Robert South (1634-1716) has said of this doctrine: ‘As he that denies it may lose his soul; so he that too much strives to understand it may lose his wits’” (ibid., p. 288) “There is a plurality in the Godhead from all eternity and these in the reciprocity of agent and object have maintained mutual love, glory, knowledge, and communion from everlasting—a relationship so sufficient that infinite demands have been satisfied. To this, creation, coming later in time, could add nothing” (ibid., p. 297). “Distinctiveness in the Godhead does not violate unity, it only violates uniformity” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 759). “One of the difficulties, especially in Western theology, is that mysteries are often treated as if they were problems. At this point, Gabriel Marcel’s distinction is very helpful. He notes that problems call for a solution, but mysteries call for meditation. Problems demand extensive study (like knowing more words to solve a crossword puzzle), whereas mysteries require intensive study. In view of this distinction, the Trinity should be treated as a mystery, not a problem. Once the basic elements are understood, we should not attempt to unscrew the inscrutable. We should not analyze it, but admire it; we should not dissect it, but devote ourselves to it. It is an object of worship, not scholarship. As has been well said, if one tries to understand it completely (as a problem), he may lose his mind, and if he does not believe it sincerely, he may lose his soul! Once we understand God’s attributes and ineffable nature, we need more reverence, not more research. It would appear that there is a place for both the intellectual and the mystical. Rationally, we need to sort out false from true beliefs about God. Also, we need to demonstrate that what we believe about God is not contradictory. However, once the borders of orthodoxy have been established, based on Scripture and good reason, we should be content to enjoy the mystery of God’s ineffability” (Geisler, ST, 2:252). “J.I. Packer [in Knowing God, p. 154]... ‘the triune Jehovah’” (ibid., p. 403) “...within a universality... diversity... The triunity of the only blessed God comprises the personal diversity of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit” (Horner, FI, p. 242). (See also Reasoning with Jehovah’s Witnesses, The Trinity.)

Regarding the nature of man, you are wrong about the spirit of man (see Reasoning with Jehovah’s Witnesses, The Spirit of Man), the soul of man (see ibid., The Soul of Man), the nature of death (see our discussion of the intermediate state of the dead in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom and Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, The Nature of Death), immediate afterlife (see the discussion of the intermediate state of the dead in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom and Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, The Nature of Death), resurrection: the bodily resurrection of Christ (see our discussion of the bodily resurrection of Christ in our chapter King of the Kingdom), the bodily resurrection of all believers and unbelievers, “Barbour (Three Worlds, p. 44)... his Gnostic theory of a spiritual body and spiritual kingdom” (Peters, TTK, 2:615) (see our discussion of the fact that the first resurrection is a bodily resurrection in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom and our discussion of the fact that the second resurrection is also a bodily resurrection in our chapter The Lake of Fire), the timing and nature of the first resurrection (see our discussion of the first resurrection in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom), the timing and nature of the second resurrection (see our discussion of the second resurrection in our chapter The Lake of Fire), and the nature of hell: the nature of Hades (see our discussion of the intermediate state of the dead in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom), and the nature of Gehenna or the lake of fire (see our chapter The Lake of Fire).

Regarding God's people, you are wrong about Israel (see our discussions of the identity of Israel in nearly every chapter of this study), the church (see our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church)), and “God's organization.” “In 2 Peter 2:1-2 we are warned against ‘False Teachers’ who shall privately bring in ‘damnable heresies,’ even denying the Lord that bought them, such as... Russellites” (Larkin, DT, p. 174). The modern-day Jehovah's Witnesses are not found anywhere in prophetic Scripture due to the simple fact that they are not, and never have been, part of God's theocratic Plan. (See Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, God's Organization.) You are also wrong about the “faithful and discreet slave” (see Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, The Faithful and Discreet Slave), the “little flock” and “other sheep:” the “little flock” were of the Jewish “fold;” the “other sheep” are Gentiles. “And I have other sheep, which are not of this fold; I must bring them also, and they shall hear My voice; and they shall become one flock with one shepherd” (John 10:16). “Jesus has other sheep... which are not of this fold (v. 16). The sheep of this fold are the Jewish sheep. The fold is Israel and the believing sheep of this fold are the Remnant of Israel. The other sheep are the Gentile believers. The Good Shepherd will unite together the believing Jewish and Gentile sheep to become one flock under one shepherd. This new one flock is the same as the one new man of Ephesians 2:11-16. It is the Church, the Body of Messiah with the Messiah as its Head” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 827). “Therefore remember, that formerly you, the Gentiles in the flesh, who are called ‘Uncircumcision’ by the so-called ‘Circumcision,’ which is performed in the flesh by human hands — remember that you were at that time separate from Christ, excluded from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world. But now in Christ Jesus you who formerly were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. For He Himself is our peace, who made both groups into one, and broke down the barrier of the dividing wall, by abolishing in His flesh the enmity, which is the Law of commandments contained in ordinances, that in Himself He might make the two into one new man, thus establishing peace, and might reconcile them both in one body to God through the cross, by it having put to death the enmity” (Eph. 2:11-16). “Now this he did not say on his own initiative; but being high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus was going to die for the nation, and not for the nation only, but that He might also gather together into one the children of God who are scattered abroad” (John 11:51-52). You are wrong about the 144,000. “““I know your tribulation and your poverty (but you are rich), and the blasphemy by those who say they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan””” (Rev. 2:9) “““Behold, I will cause those of the synagogue of Satan, who say that they are Jews, and are not, but lie — behold, I will make them to come and bow down at your feet, and to know that I have loved you””” (Rev. 3:9-10) “It is a matter of amazement how coolly and deliberately men can appropriate Scripture to themselves which relates to the future. Sects, at various times, have professed to be those sealed ones of Rev. 14... Error constantly repeats itself; and to-day we have some of the Seventh Day Adventists (as e.g. seen in the writings of a Mrs. White) claiming that the Adventists of their party constitute this number. Others adopt the same view in respect to their own particular sect or organization... the Seventh Day Adventists... the lack of propriety in appropriating such a magnificent portraiture to their present condition... It is simply amazing what self-confidence and credulity can do in the way of Scripture application to sect in order to bring forth claims of professed purity and pre-eminence” (Peters, TTK, 2:323). “...the untold millions of the martyrs” (Anderson, SOG, p. 7) “What then was the purpose of listing the tribes separately if it did not refer to literal Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 57)? (See our discussion of the sealing of the 144,000 in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation.) You are also wrong in your premature identification of the “great crowd” (see the discussion of the salvation of the great multitude in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation), the number of Christians that can validly claim the heavenly hope (see our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church) and our discussion of the sealing of the 144,000 in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation), and the heavenly hope for all Christians alive now (see our chapters The Mystery Kingdom (The Church) and The Rapture of the Church).

Regarding man's salvation, you are wrong about the gospel. You are wrong about the present gospel. "In the light of eternal issues it would be better that a tongue should be stilled in death rather than to voice mis-statements concerning the way of salvation through Christ. Dealing with the destiny of men is a responsibility as limitless as eternity to which they hasten" (Chafer, G, 99%). (See our discussion of the present gospel in our section To the Unsaved above.) You are also wrong about the gospel of the kingdom (see our discussion of "this good news of the Kingdom" being preached in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation), salvation (see Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, Salvation), justification (see ibid., Justification), and the sufficiency of Christ's atonement. "Only God can perform a sacrifice that will meet the demands of infinite holiness" (Chafer, ST, 1:358). "It is, therefore, not the blood of a human victim, but the blood of Christ who is God (cf. Acts 20:28, where the blood is said to be the blood of God)" (ibid.). "God did not merely use the human Jesus as a sacrifice; God was in Christ as a reconciling agent" (ibid., p. 370). "The higher the person of Christ, the greater the glory of God in the gift of His Son" (ibid., 5:11). "Being God's own devised solution of His greatest problem—the sin question—it is, like all His works, efficacious to the point of infinity. Nothing of man's values need be added to it; nor can it be increased in value by any human effort when once it is applied to an individual" (ibid., p. 230). This writer would add that as long as you believe you have something to contribute to your salvation, you have not yet believed on Christ in the biblical sense. (See also Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, Sufficiency of Christ's Redemption.) You are wrong regarding the necessity of being born again to see or enter the Kingdom (see ibid., Being Born Again), a Christian's relationship with Christ, (see ibid., Relationship with Christ), Christian freedom, (see ibid., Christian Freedom), and witnessing (see our discussion of "this good news of the Kingdom" being preached in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation; see also Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses, The Gospel and Witnessing).

Regarding the last days, you are wrong about the desirability of being on earth during the Tribulation. “Woe unto you that desire the day of Jehovah! Wherefore would ye have the day of Jehovah? It is darkness, and not light. As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Shall not the day of Jehovah be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it” (Amos 5:18-20)? (See our chapters The Rapture of the Church and The Great Tribulation.) You are also wrong about the Rapture of the church (see our chapter The Rapture of the Church), the Great Tribulation (see our chapter The Great Tribulation), and the return of Christ. “We cannot possibly receive Russell’s view (Our Lord’s Return, p. 62, etc.), which indorses Barbour’s (Three Worlds) position: (1) that Jesus has already come, is now present and is (mentally) inspecting the guests of the marriage; (2) that we are already in the time of the harvest... The theory evidences a confusion of ideas” (Peters, TTK, 2:334) “Barbour’s theory (Three Worlds) of Christ’s necessary invisibility because He has a spiritual body” (ibid., p. 350). “We reject as utterly untenable the theory of Barbour and others (as seen e.g. in Herald of the Morning, Aug. 1st, 1877), who, basing their view on some unproven chronological positions, declare that “the day of the Lord” commenced in the autumn of 1874” (ibid., p. 413). (See our chapter The Second Coming of the King.) You are wrong about 1914 and the Gentile times. “These times of the Gentiles have been variously estimated to accord with some favorite chronological views, so that the times of Lev. 26 and Dan. 4, have had various endings (depending on the commencement) given to them, even extending to A.D. 1918 (Habershon, Guide, p. 34), and to A.D. 1923 (by Guinness in his recent work, Approaching End)” (ibid., p. 774). (See our discussion of the times of the Gentiles in our chapters The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom, The Great Tribulation and The Second Coming of the King; see also Reasoning with Jehovah’s Witnesses, 1914.) You are wrong about the timing and manner of personal judgment. “...apply (as e.g. Barbour, Three Worlds, pp. 62-88) passages describing a future reward of works at Christ’s Coming, as not descriptive of the resurrected and translated saints, but of those living in ‘the restitution age,’ when the whole tenor and spirit of the New Test. is to make them applicable to all believers, from the First Advent down to the Second. A theory that can misapply such passages is necessarily defective” (ibid., p. 393). (See our discussion of the judgment and rewarding of the church in our chapter The Rapture of the Church, our discussion of the gathering and judgment of Jewish and Gentile Tribulation survivors in our chapter Inauguration of the King- dom, and our discussion of the judgment of the lost at the great white throne judgment in our chapter The Lake of Fire.) You are wrong about many details of the Millennial Kingdom, including Israel's role therein (see our chapters Five Facets of the Kingdom and The Millennial Kingdom), and the new heaven and new earth (see our discussion of the new heaven and new earth in our chapter The Eternal Order).

Regarding Christians, contrary to what your organization's leaders have taught you, Christians don't hate Jehovah "...among Christians there are presently many who fear and love Jehovah, the God of Israel" [quoting W. a Brakel, The Christians' Reasonable Service, IV, pp. 530-531 (Horner, FI, p. 155)].

Regarding the Watchtower Society, you need to know that there are serious problems with its foundation, identity, leaders, motives, activities, message and standing before God.

Regarding its foundation, it was founded on error. C. T. Russell was in unbelief regarding much foundational doctrine (see George Peters' unfavorable critiques of Russell's doctrine throughout this book), and God cannot and did not bless his unbelief.

Regarding its identity, it is a cult, a counterfeit religious system. "Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures" (1 Cor. 15:1-4) "But even though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach to you a gospel contrary to that which we have preached to you, let him be accursed. As we have said before, so I say again now, if any man is preaching to you a gospel contrary to that which you received, let him be accursed" (Gal. 1:8-9). "I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book; and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life and from the holy city, which are written in this book" (Rev. 22:18-19). "Cults are now multiplying and their appearance is restricted to very recent times" (Chafer, ST, 2:111). "[cultic systems]... No one can anticipate the number that will yet appear or the confusion of doctrine they will engender; but for each and all there is but one acid test, namely, What place does it give to the redeeming grace of God made possible only through the death and shed blood of Christ” (ibid.)? “As someone has truly said, ‘the posture of impartiality’ is generally a very deceptive thing” (McClain, GK, p. xi). “It is a sound political and ecclesiastical principle that the people of a church or a nation in the long run get the kind of leaders that they deserve... their selfish interest in the mere physical benefits of the impending Kingdom” (ibid., p. 316) “The idea of men having authority to dispense the Grace of God in saving the soul should be left to the Dark Ages of theology where it belongs” (ibid., p. 330). “...cults—... Jehovah’s Witnesses” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 78) “...cultic groups that claim to believe in Jesus but deny something essential, such as His deity” (ibid., p. 667) “Catholicism has institutionalized salvation and thus corrupted the pure grace of God by placing it under the control of a human hierarchy” (Geisler, ST, 3:277). “How adherents live is, at best, a manifestation of their moral code, which may or may not have anything to do with whether their religion’s central teachings about God and salvation are true... the moral preeminence of Christianity does not rest on the imperfection of Christ’s followers but on the perfection of Jesus Christ Himself” (ibid., p. 419). “Sincerity is not a test of reality” (ibid., p. 421). It is a false prophet: consider its prophetic record concerning 1914, 1915, 1918, 1925, 1941, 1975, etc. “All divine prophecy is based on speaking in the name of Jehovah... the assumption of the prophetic office without being divinely called, was... treason to the State, and hence the severity of the penalty, death” (Peters, TTK, p. 599). The Watchtower Society is a false kingdom (see our discussion of the fact that the Kingdom is not the Watchtower Society in our chapter Postponement of the Kingdom).

Regarding its leaders, they are inept. Reconciling all the prophetic Scriptures without resorting to gross allegorizing is apparently beyond their capabilities. They are theological quacks. Compare Russell, Rutherford, Franz and Knorr with, for instance, Peters, Chafer, Pentecost, Walvoord, Ryrie, Fruchtenbaum and Geisler. They have no valid authority. The apostles were inspired and were therefore authoritative; the governing body of Jehovah’s Witnesses is not inspired. We have the apostles’ writings which are authoritative. From this writer’s viewpoint, the governing body’s grip on control appears to be entirely carnal. And finally, they have usurped and superseded the things of God: they have usurped the authority of God’s Word (they have usurped Scripture’s authority to interpret itself, with the result that Jehovah’s Witnesses’ faith is placed not in Jehovah’s words but rather in their leaders’ words), and by insisting that we cannot have an approved relationship with God without associating with them, they have usurped Jesus' mediation. "For there is one God, and one mediator also between God and men, the man Christ Jesus" (1 Tim. 2:5)

Regarding its motives, it is driven by its leaders to steal, kill and destroy. "The thief comes only to steal, and kill, and destroy; I came that they might have life, and might have it abundantly" (John 10:10). The Watchtower Society is attempting to steal the earthly Kingdom from Israel and betrothal to Christ and rulership in the Kingdom from the church, but it cannot and will not succeed. In the long run it will not be allowed to maintain even the illusion of a successful theft. The Watchtower Society kills those who disagree with it, via its extreme shunning policies, by which Jehovah's Witnesses are taught to treat former Jehovah's Witnesses as though they were dead, and destroys families (for instance, this writer had been shunned by his Jehovah's Witness brother for twenty-six years, up until his death just a few months ago). It also literally kills its members via its prohibition of blood transfusions and through the extreme mental and emotional stresses that its works-based religion places on them (sadly, my brother died from complications [hepatic cirrhosis of the liver] from chronic alcoholism, undoubtedly precipitated and exacerbated by the stresses and unrelieved guilt of life in the Watchtower Society's "spiritual paradise"). It also destroys genuine Christian faith, that is, trust in the biblical Christ to the exclusion of trust in anything and everything else. Other unsavory motives of the Watchtower organization include unashamed self-promotion, self-aggrandizement and self-service. "So little regard have such writers for the interests and feelings of their fellow men, that they only produce the class of evidence which they deem favorable to themselves" (Peters, TTK, 3:357)

Regarding its activities, it misrepresents Christian doctrine, for instance the doctrine of the trinity, misrepresenting it as teaching "three gods," "Jesus is the Father," etc. "A theory, however plausible, that requires bolstering up by misrepresenting others, must have but feeble supports" (Peters, TTK, 2:122). It squelches God, not allowing Him to speak for Himself through His Word without its interposition. It blasphemes God, ascribing the doctrines of the deity of Christ and the personality of the Holy Spirit to Satan, and also ascribing the doctrine of eternal punishment to Satan. "Pinnock [in Clark Pinnock, 'The Destruction of the Finally Impenitent' in Criswell Theological Review, pp. 246-247] wrote... 'endless torment... Surely a God who would do such a thing is more nearly like Satan than like God.' This caution by Millard Erickson [in Evangelical Mind and Heart, p. 152] is to the point: One who makes such claims 'had better be very certain he is correct. For if he is wrong, then he is guilty of blasphemy'" (Geisler, ST, 4:392). And, it is abusive to its people. “That ‘power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely’ is true no matter what kind of church exercises episcopal government” (ibid., p. 94). “When religion is prostituted, it moves from the position of servanthood to the position of lordship, where it begins to rule” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 687).

Regarding its message, it publishes a false gospel (see our identification of the true gospel in our section To the Lost above). The “gospel” of “God’s established (since 1914) kingdom” is a false gospel. The Jehovah’s Witness leadership hates the the genuine, biblical gospel of Jesus Christ because, among other things, it destroys its authority.

Regarding its standing before God, the Watchtower Society is in unbelief. It is in a constant struggle against the plain (and true) understanding of Scripture. It encourages unbelief in the true, fully-God and fully-man Messiah of the Bible. It is also unchristian. The vast majority of its “Christian” membership is happy to have no hope of ever seeing Jesus! It is accursed. “But even though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach to you a gospel contrary to that which we have preached to you, let him be accursed. As we have said before, so I say again now, if any man is preaching to you a gospel contrary to that which you received, let him be accursed” (Gal. 1:8–9). It serves as neither Jehovah’s nor Jesus’ witnesses. The Jews are Jehovah’s witnesses (Isa. 43:10); Christians are Jesus’ witnesses (Acts 1:8); the Watchtower Society serves as nothing but its own self-promoting and self-incriminating witness.

Regarding salvation, we’re now living in the Church Age. The invitation to be with Christ as a member of Jesus’ body and bride is still open to any and all who will come (see our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church)). This is the best possible destiny ever. Please don’t miss it! You shouldn’t want to try to make it through the horrible Great Tribulation (see our chapter The Great Tribulation). You can instead have the biblical hope of escaping it entirely (see our chapter The Rapture of the Church)!

“Dedication to Jehovah” is not salvation. “A pseudo self-dedication to God is a rare bit of religion with which the unsaved may conjure. The tragedy is that out of such a delusion those who embrace it are likely never to be delivered by a true faith in Christ as Savior” (Chafer, ST, 3:385).

Believing a false gospel cannot save you. “If we’re walking on a frozen lake, it isn’t the strength of our faith in the ice that matters but the strength of the ice on which we stand that makes the difference” (Geisler, ST, 3:510).

Paul warns against preaching “another gospel.” “But even though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach to you a gospel contrary to that which we have preached to you, let him be accursed.

As we have said before, so I say again now, if any man is preaching to you a gospel contrary to that which you received, let him be accursed" (Gal 1:8-10)

Paul's gospel is not the "good news of Jehovah's established (since 1914) kingdom." "Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures" (1Cor 15:1-4)

Only Christ's work, apart from yours, can save you. "For we maintain that a man is justified by faith apart from works of the Law" (Rom. 3:28). "The sinner, then in the last analysis, is saved on a meritorious basis, but it is the merit of the One who is made unto him the very righteousness of God" (Chafer, ST, 2:322). "The reckoning of all in unbelief is a necessity if all human beings are to be placed before God as those whose meritorious structure has been torn away and who are now eligible to receive as a gift from God all that enters into the new creation" (ibid.).

Reformation is not enough. Regeneration is needed. "The preacher must ever be on his guard to discourage the tendency of the natural man to move along lines of reformation rather than regeneration" (Chafer, ST, 3:388).

You must be born again! "Jesus answered and said to him [Nicodemus], 'Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.' Nicodemus said to Him, 'How can a man be born when he is old? He cannot enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born, can he?' Jesus answered, 'Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Do not marvel that I said to you, "You must be born again"'" (John 3:3-8). "Peter said to Him, 'Never shall You wash my feet!' Jesus answered him, 'If I do not wash you, you have no part with Me'" (John 13:8). "Noel (Brief Inquiry, p. 124): '...If God the Holy Ghost regenerate not our hearts, He will never regenerate our bodies'" (Peters, TTK, 3:328). "It should be remembered that argument does not create divine enlightenment. Only by the new birth can one 'see the kingdom of God'" (Chafer, ST, 1:162). "There can be no entrance into the Kingdom, except as men are 'born again' (John 3:3)" (McClain, GK, p. 286).

You need to believe and be saved now:

You only need to believe, but you need to believe in a saving way. “For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life” (John 3:16). “He who believes in the Son has eternal life; but he who does not obey the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides on him” (John 3:36). “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life” (John 5:24). “but these have been written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing you may have life in His name” (John 20:31). “The faith which saves does not consist in the adoption of a series of articuli fundamentales primarii, but in an absolute and truthful surrender of one’s self to the personal Saviour; a surrender of which the simplest child is capable” (Peters, TTK, 1:418). “The only attitude that a meritless person under sin could reasonably maintain toward so great and supernatural a salvation is to trust Another who is mighty to save to accomplish it all. This is saving faith; and no more is, nor reasonably could be, required of any unsaved person” (Chafer, ST, 2:323). “Nominal faith in the Atonement will not effect change in the sinner; nominal faith is not saving faith (cf. James 2). Saving faith involves trust, dependence, and repentance—all of which bring change in—and of—one’s life” (Geisler, 3:251). “In John’s entire gospel, only one condition is laid down for obtaining eternal life: belief (3:16, 36; 5:24; 20:31, et al.)” (ibid., p. 266). “If ‘confess[ing] with your mouth, “Jesus is Lord”’ (Rom. 10:9) means acknowledging that Jesus is Deity, it follows logically that belief in His deity is normatively necessary for New Testament salvation” (ibid., p. 543). “that if you confess with your mouth Jesus as Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you shall be saved” (Rom. 10:9) “In summation, for salvation today, it is necessary that a person explicitly believe... God’s unity; Christ’s deity, atoning death, and bodily resurrection; the necessity of God’s grace; and the necessity of our faith... human depravity; Christ’s virgin birth, sinlessness, and humanity; and the Trinity—need only be believed implicitly and not denied explicitly in order for a person to receive salvation” (Geisler, ST, p. 545). “...no one who denies the deity of Christ qualifies for salvation by normative New Testament standards” (ibid., p. 550). “In conclusion, it is possible that God could save someone without explicit faith in Christ’s deity, provided if that one had a correct understanding, he or she would believe. Nevertheless, given the nature of God, heaven, and the need to believe in order to enter, it does not seem possible that God could save anyone today who, with proper understanding and subsequent opportunity, does not have (or would not have come to) explicit faith in Christ's deity" (ibid.).

Be delivered now from the power of darkness. "It is by salvation alone that any deliverance can be had from the power of darkness. Without this salvation Satan can still claim all his own" (Chafer, ST, 2:105).

During the Tribulation it may be too late for you. "and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false, in order that they all may be judged who did not believe the truth, but took pleasure in wickedness" (2 Thes. 2:10-12). (See the description of the Tribulation's characteristic of deception in our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Come to Jesus. "Come to Me, all who are weary and heavy-laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. 11:28). "You search the Scriptures, because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is these that bear witness of Me; and you are unwilling to come to Me, that you may have life" (John 5:39-40).

Be Christ-centered; beware of bibliolatry. "Bibliology is a proper pursuit, but bibliolatry is not. Orthodoxy is right when it insists on being Bible-based but wrong when it becomes Bible-centered rather than Christ-centered" (Geisler, ST, 1:381). "Surely the aim of Scripture is not that we merely know more propositional truth but that we have an encounter with the person who is the Truth (John 14:6)" (ibid., p. 382). "Jesus said to him, 'I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one comes to the Father, but through Me'" (John 14:6).

Do not trust in yourself or in your own "integrity" for salvation. "Christ, through His death, became the end of the reign of law; as He, through His death, is the end of confidence in self-works for all who put their trust in Him" (Chafer, G, 56%).

You're not righteous. "For all of us have become like one who is unclean, And all our righteous deeds are like a filthy garment; And all of us wither like a leaf, And our iniquities, like the wind, take us away" (Isa. 64:6). "Two men went up into the temple to pray, one a Pharisee, and the other a tax-gatherer. The Pharisee stood and was praying thus to himself, "God, I thank Thee that I am not like other people: swindlers, unjust, adulterers, or even like this tax-gatherer. I fast twice a week; I pay tithes of all that I get." But the tax-gatherer, standing some distance away, was even unwilling to lift up his eyes to heaven, but was beating his breast, saying, “God, be merciful to me, the sinner!” I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other; for everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled, but he who humbles himself shall be exalted” (Luke 18:10-14). “For not knowing about God’s righteousness, and seeking to establish their own, they did not subject themselves to the righteousness of God” (Rom. 10:3). “The best human work could but mar and spoil the divine ideal” (Chafer, G, 16%). “Whatever righteousness we have is self-righteousness, which Jesus condemned (Luke 18:10-14)” (Geisler, ST, 3:244). “It is only our righteousness (self-righteousness) that is abhorrent in God’s eyes (cf. Isa. 64:6; Rom. 10:3)” (ibid., p. 268).

You cannot earn salvation. Eternal life is a gift. “even as You gave Him authority over all flesh, that to all whom You have given Him, He may give eternal life” (John 17:2). “Now that no one is justified by the Law before God is evident; for, “The righteous man shall live by faith” (Gal. 3:11). “For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast. For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand, that we should walk in them” (Eph. 2:8-10). “And He said to me, ‘It is done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give to the one who thirsts from the spring of the water of life without cost” (Rev. 21:6). “And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who hears say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost” (Rev. 22:17). “We work from our salvation but never for it (Gal. 3:11; Eph. 2:8-10)” (Geisler, ST, 3:266). “Thomas Aquinas... Eph. 2:10... ‘the reason why God saves man by faith without any preceding merits, that no man may glory.’ (CE, 95-96)” (ibid., p. 293) “Martin Luther... ‘To want to merit Grace by works which precede faith is to want to appease God by sins; which is nothing but adding sins to sins, laughing at God, and provoking His wrath’ (WLS, 604)” (ibid.). “Earl Radmacher... ‘Everyone prefers the feeling of being able to do something to be saved. And once the door is open to his kind of thinking, the whole emphasis shifts from salvation as a gift from God. That kind of thinking accounts for the fact that none of the major religions of the world, with the exception of Christianity, offers salvation as a gift apart from any human effort at all.’ (S, 115)” (ibid., p. 295) “Millard Erickson... ‘Even faith is not some good work which God must reward with salvation. It is God’s gift. It is not the cause of our salvation, but the means by which we receive it. And, contrary to the thinking of some, it has always been the means of salvation.’

(CT, 959)” (ibid.) “John Chrysostom... ‘Not that God has forbidden works, but forbidden us to be justified by works.’ (HE, 4.2.9 (IOEP) 2:140 as cited in Oden, ACCSNT, 8:134)” (ibid.). “Earl Radmacher... ‘Works give evidence of faith and of ongoing salvation from sin’s power.’ (S, 172-73)” (ibid., p. 297) “...the act of receiving a gift by faith is no more meritorious than a beggar receiving a handout” (ibid., p. 488) “Salvation is by grace through faith in the Messiah alone, plus nothing” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 779).

Let God justify you. “But now apart from the Law the righteousness of God has been manifested, being witnessed by the Law and the Prophets, even the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ for all those who believe; for there is no distinction; for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, being justified as a gift by His grace through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus; whom God displayed publicly as a propitiation in His blood through faith. This was to demonstrate His righteousness, because in the forbearance of God He passed over the sins previously committed; for the demonstration, I say, of His righteousness at the present time, that He might be just and the justifier of the one who has faith in Jesus” (Rom. 3:21-26). “There is no forgiveness of those who choose to attempt to pay for their own debt” (Geisler, ST, 3:250).

Christ’s redemption is sufficient for you. “There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus” (Rom. 8:1). “If our iniquities are laid on Him (Jesus), then they are not on Us. Isa. 53:5, 6” (Larkin, DT, p. 108). “But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and Jehovah hath laid on him the iniquity of us all” (Isa. 53:5–6). “By Gospel preaching, sinners are to be told that they may now stand forever pardoned before God: not because God is gracious enough to excuse their sins; but because there is plentiful redemption through the blood that has been shed (Rom. 3:24; Eph. 1:7)” (Chafer, G, 8%). “Christ as the sufficient Saviour” (ibid., 64%) “The moral problem, which is felt to some degree by every human being, is seized upon by almost every unscriptural system. The idea that man will stand on a basis of personal worthiness has been the chief heresy, opposing the central doctrine of grace, from the time of Christ’s death to the present hour” (Chafer, ST, 2:110). “The righteousness which is the basis of His justifying decree is no less than the absolute righteousness of God made available through Christ and is imputed to all who believe” (ibid., p. 276). “Salvation by grace is according to a plan which is wholly within God and therefore cannot incorporate anything, even human merit, into its execution. It is a standardized whole, complete in all its parts, which proceeds from God and, being itself infinitely perfect, leaves no place for any human contribution” (ibid., p. 321). “If one persists in demanding that his own merit shall be credited he cannot be saved by grace, since God is not patching up imperfect structures” (ibid.). “The purpose of grace is ‘to save those who believe in the finished work of Christ’” [quoting Feinberg, Premill or Amill?, pp. 138-145] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 494). “Any attempt, even by Christians, to use the law as a basis for a standing before God led inevitably to the sin of ‘boasting,’ that is, faith in self rather than faith in God” [quoting D.R. de Lacey, The Sabbath/Sunday Question and the Law in the Pauline Corpus, p. 175] (ibid., p. 661). “The death of the infinite has infinite value, which is more than sufficient to atone for finite sins” (Geisler, ST, 3:250). “From God’s perspective, the work of the Cross was an accomplished fact from all eternity (Rev. 13:8; Eph. 1:4). This means that in God’s eyes—in the eyes of Him who sees with infallible foreknowledge—all our sins (past, present, and future) were already covered before we were born” (ibid., p. 315). “And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain” (Rev. 13:8). “just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before Him.” (Eph. 1:4)

Let Jesus keep you. “My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me; and I give eternal life to them, and they shall never perish; and no one shall snatch them out of My hand. My Father, who has given them to Me, is greater than all; and no one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand. I and the Father are one” (John 10:27–30). “Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? Just as it is written, ‘FOR THY SAKE WE ARE BEING PUT TO DEATH ALL DAY LONG; WE WERE CONSIDERED AS SHEEP TO BE SLAUGHTERED.’ But in all these things we overwhelmingly conquer through Him who loved us. For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Rom. 8:34–39). “For this reason I also suffer these things, but I am not ashamed; for I know whom I have believed and I am convinced that He is able to guard what I have entrusted to Him until that day” (2 Tim. 1:12). “Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to make you stand in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy” (Jude 1:24) “According to the Scriptures, God alone can save, and God alone can keep. All that will have been done when God’s saving work is completed, will be seen to be ‘his workmanship” (Chafer, G, 11%).

Let God work in you to carry out His will. “For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast. For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand, that we should walk in them” (Eph. 2:8-10). “So then, my beloved, just as you have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God who is at work in you, both to will and to work for His good pleasure” (Phil. 2:12-13). “God works salvation in us by His justification, and we work out our salvation through sanctification by His grace (Phil. 2:12-13)” (Geisler, ST, 3:267). “Neither initial righteousness (justification) nor progressive righteousness (sanctification) is received by or conditioned on meritorious works. Both are received by grace through faith alone” (ibid., p. 270). “We do not work for God’s grace but from it” (ibid., p. 273).

You can be eternally secure. “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life” (John 5:24). “My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me; and I give eternal life to them, and they shall never perish; and no one shall snatch them out of My hand. My Father, who has given them to Me, is greater than all; and no one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand. I and the Father are one” (John 10:27–30). “Believers are adopted into God’s family before the creation of time. God knew in advance everything that we would do, even after we had been saved, including all of our sins. Nevertheless, there is nothing that can undo an eternal decree of God (cf. Rom. 11:29). Hence, those who are adopted as His children are eternally secure—there is no such scriptural reality as unadoption. He chose us because He wanted us, even though He knew all things from eternity” (Geisler, ST, 3:310). “for the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable” (Rom. 11:29). “God ends what He begins” (Geisler, ST, 3:311). “Since our salvation does not depend on our faithfulness but on God’s (2 Tim. 2:13), our perseverance is assured” (ibid., p. 312). “If we are faithless, He remains faithful; for He cannot deny Himself” (2 Tim. 2:13).

You can have assurance of salvation. “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life” (John 5:24). “For the Law, since it has only a shadow of the good things to come and not the very form of things, can never by the same sacrifices year by year, which they offer continually, make perfect those who draw near. Otherwise, would they not have ceased to be offered, because the worshipers, having once been cleansed, would no longer have had consciousness of sins” (Heb. 10:)? “(Heb 10:1-2). There is no intimation here that the Christian will not be conscious of unconfessed sin in his life; it is rather that the whole record of past sins, having been forgiven as a part of salvation, the purged conscience will not be exercised over them. This specific Scripture presents a vital test which may prove whether one is saved and may be applied to any professed believer” (Chafer, ST, 2:198). “And the one who keeps His commandments abides in Him, and He in him. And we know by this that He abides in us, by the Spirit whom He has given us” (1 John. 3:24). “By this we know that we abide in Him and He in us, because He has given us of His Spirit” (1 John. 4:13). “The one who believes in the Son of God has the witness in himself; the one who does not believe God has made Him a liar, because he has not believed in the witness that God has borne concerning His Son. And the witness is this, that God has given us eternal life, and this life is in His Son. He who has the Son has the life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have the life” (1 John. 5:10-12). “These things I have written to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, in order that you may know that you have eternal life” (1 John. 5:13). “The certainty of being engrafted, and thus becoming of ‘the elect,’ is not found in a process of reasoning, or in a mere connection with the Church, or in observance of religious rites, but is alone found in a Christian consciousness of acceptance, resulting from justification by faith in a personal Saviour, an appropriation of the Messiah which is evidenced by the accompanying fruits of the Spirit. To this self-consciousness, supported by a fruitage, the Scriptures constantly appeal; to this reality, affording a satisfactory assurance of salvation, believers in successive generations have continually referred; and it alone can afford a soul-satisfying proof, inspiring love, hope, joy, and peace. Personal, individual experience on this point is essential to happiness” (Peters, TTK, 1:401). “...assurances respecting the safety and salvation of the believer, the deep self-consciousness of personal religious experience confirmatory of this” (ibid., 2:386) “...the believer is conscious of sins forgiven (a judicial work) through the atoning sacrifice, of a marvellous peace bestowed, of an extraordinary change of heart experienced, of a supreme love inspired, so that he has the assurance that having the Son he hath also life” (ibid.). “The Bible challenges each one to test the truth by an experimental knowledge of it: ‘if any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself,’ John 7:17” (ibid., 3:280). “The Christian consciousness is independent of science, being based upon a personal experience of the truth” (ibid., p. 281) “The results in heart and life are such that the believer possesses in himself a conclusive personal evidence of the truth and divinity of the Scriptures. The attacks of unbelieving science do not effect him, for he realizes the truth in God’s dear Son, and he is content, believing that in the ultimate outcome all things—even those supposed to be antagonistic—will be found to be in harmony with Revelation, either, on the one hand, by science enlarging its views and changing its deductions; or by faith, on the other hand, rightly apprehending the divine teaching and changing its conclusions; or by the Advent and its additional revelations affording us the light needed for a complete reconciliation. The experience derived from God in His Son gives the philosopher and ignorant, the learned and unlearned, the same assurance” (ibid., p. 475). “Christian experience... the consciousness of believers only attests to a moral work wrought in the heart, while the body may be sinking into decay under the curse” (ibid., p. 560). “The security of the believer... is quite independent of human worth or faithfulness” [quoting John F. Walvoord, Millennial Series, Bibliotheca Sacra, 109:40-41] (Pentecost, TTC, p. 79). “Scripture guarantees eternal life as a present possession of those who believe. Jesus said: ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent me has [present tense] eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has [already] passed out of death into life.’ (John 5:24 NASB)” (Geisler, ST, 3:265) “Every confessing believer is well advised to know what genuine saving faith is and whether he has exercised it” (ibid., p. 305). “We do not have to wait until we meet Christ to know that we belong to Him” (ibid., p. 314).

Learn what grace means. Grace destroys the Watchtower system. It makes the uniqueness of Jehovah’s Witnesses of no value. Grace makes anyone (who is willing to believe on Jesus) savable.

Salvation is a gift, but it will be costly for you. You will be hated and shunned, and treated as though you were dead by your Jehovah’s Witness friends and family. But you will be alive to God. “Even so consider yourselves to be dead to sin, but alive to God in Christ Jesus” (Rom. 6:11).

After receiving Christ as Savior:

Separate from the Watchtower organization. “As certainly as the ‘last days’ are now present, so certainly this injunction is now to be heeded, and the Lord’s people are called upon to separate from churches and institutions which deny the gospel of God’s saving grace through the substitutionary blood-redemption of the cross” (Chafer, ST, 2:106). “There is probably no practice of sin which is harder to terminate than that which has drawn people into a partnership. The reason for this is clear. One cannot forsake the enterprise, as he might were he alone, without seeming to incriminate the other, or others, and to seem to be superior to the other, or others” (ibid., p. 268). “‘If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed’ (John 8:36)—this principle is true in every department of human life, whether spiritual or political” (McClain, GK, p. 207).

Identify the true church. “but in case I am delayed, I write so that you may know how one ought to conduct himself in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and support of the truth” (1 Tim. 3:15). (See our discussion of the identity of the church in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

Do not persecute the church of God. “For I am the least of the apostles, who am not fit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God” (1 Cor. 15:9). “But as at that time he who was born according to the flesh persecuted him who was born according to the Spirit, so it is now also” (Gal. 4:29).

Find a Bible-teaching and Bible-believing local church. Many churches do not preach Jesus. “In St. Louis... in all the Protestant places of worship... and in some of those numbered as evangelical, it is to be feared that the preaching does not contain the slightest flavor of the truth as it is in Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 3:201). You won’t find a perfect church. “All organized religious bodies have more or less of error, as is evidenced by the diversity existing—no two exactly agreeing in all things” (ibid., p. 260). “He who sets out to find a perfect Church, in which there are no unworthy elements and no disfigurations, proposes to himself a hopeless search” [quoting J. A. Seiss, The Apocalypse, pp. 178-179] (McClain, GK, p. 448).

Fellowship with believers. You will find it a great privilege to associate with others who have been chosen by God to be members of Christ’s body and bride.

Get baptized in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit. “Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit” (Matt. 28:19)

Don’t be afraid to partake of the emblems at the Lord’s supper. Communion services will have profound meaning for you, as you recognize that all of your righteousness comes from the broken body and shed blood of Jesus.

Rejoice in the grace of God! Few Christians understand and appreciate grace to the extent that you will.

Live by grace. “As you therefore have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in Him” (Col. 2:6)

Serve God. “There will be little need of exhortation for God-honoring service to the one who is filled with the Spirit; for the Spirit will be working in that one both to will and to do of His good pleasure (Phil. 2:13)” (Chafer, MBT, 17%).

Don’t get entangled again in any yoke of bondage! “It was for freedom that Christ set us free; therefore keep standing firm and do not be subject again to a yoke of slavery” (Gal. 5:1).

Look forward to escaping the Great Tribulation. “Woe unto you that desire the day of Jehovah! Wherefore would ye have the day of Jehovah? It is darkness, and not light” (Amos 5:18). “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth” (Rev. 3:10). (See our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

To Christians

My fellow believers, I encourage you to rejoice that you are complete in Christ. “For in Him all the fulness of Deity dwells in bodily form, and in Him you have been made complete, and He is the head over all rule and authority” (Col. 2:9–10) “To be in Christ is to be in the sphere of His own infinite Person, power, and glory. He surrounds, He protects, He separates from all else, and He indwells the one in Him. He also supplies in Himself all that a soul will ever need in time or eternity” (Chafer, G, 86%). “Growing out of this glorious relationship in Christ, is a most natural responsibility to walk worthy of the calling; but the issues of a daily life and the character of the conduct which should enter into it, though important in their place, are lost and forgotten in the blaze of the eternal glory of that unchangeable grace which has brought the believer into the new creation in Christ Jesus” (ibid.). “Who can fathom the depths of the revelation that the believer is related to Christ on the very plane of that oneness which exists between the Father and the Son” (ibid.)? “Being in Christ, the member of His body partakes of all that the Head has ever been, all that He is now, and all that He will ever be. So, also, being in Christ, the member of His body partakes of all that Christ has ever done, of all that He is doing, and all that He will ever do. No human mind is able to grasp this revelation. Its inexhaustible riches will occupy the heart throughout the ages to come” (ibid., 98%).

Read and study the Bible. “Be diligent to present yourself approved to God as a workman who does not need to be ashamed, handling accurately the word of truth” (2 Tim. 2:15). “No amount of attention or painstaking study will be too great for the adequate preparation of a Gospel messenger” (Chafer, G, 99%). “While the major themes of prophecy may be indicated in a textbook, there is nothing, in the matter of the student’s progress, that can take the place of tireless reading and study of the text of the Bible itself” (Chafer, ST, 4:384).

Believe all of the Bible. (It has been this writer’s observation that there are actually very few people, even very few professing Christians that really believe all of the Bible.) “All Scripture is inspired by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for training in righteousness” (2 Tim. 3:16)

Live a godly life. “For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all men, instructing us to deny ungodliness and worldly desires and to live sensibly, righteously and godly in the present age, looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:11–13) “And now, little children, abide in Him, so that when He appears, we may have confidence and not shrink away from Him in shame at His coming” (1 John. 2:28). “Beloved, now we are children of God, and it has not appeared as yet what we shall be. We know that, when He appears, we shall be like Him, because we shall see Him just as He is. And everyone who has this hope fixed on Him purifies himself, just as He is pure” (1 John. 3:2–3). “We become a ‘dual personality,’ composed of the ‘Old’ and ‘New Natures,’ and which shall predominate depends on which we feed and which we starve” (Larkin, DT, p. 108). “Many tasks which Christians undertake would not be assumed if God’s program and its future aspects were better known. He has given no commission to convert the world and enterprises based on that sort of idealism are without His authority. Likewise, the knowledge of prophecy yields poise to the believer in times of crisis, as well as comfort in the time of sorrow. Having declared the truth that Christ will return, the Apostle goes on to say: ‘Wherefore comfort one another with these words’ (1 Thes 4:18)” (Chafer, ST, 4:261).

Live by grace. “But I say, walk by the Spirit, and you will not carry out the desire of the flesh” (Gal. 5:16). “The serious manner in which people apply an Old Testament promise, impossible under grace, to themselves is a revelation of the measure of inattention with which the Scriptures are too often read and quoted” (Chafer, G, 46%). “The law of Moses presents a covenant of works to be wrought in the energy of the flesh; the teachings of grace present a covenant of faith to be wrought in the energy of the Spirit” (ibid.). “In this age, the unsaved are forgiven as a part of the entire accomplishment in salvation on the one condition that they believe (Eph. 4:32), and the saved are forgiven on the one condition that they confess (1 John 1:9). These two words do not represent meritorious works; they represent the simple adjustment of the heart to that which is already provided in the grace of God” (ibid., 51%). “The commandments of Christ are only His grace teachings; this term being not once employed by Christ before He began in the upper room to unfold the believer’s life and walk in grace” (ibid., 95%). “The law could work no change in the heart, nor can the attempt to keep rules; but the Spirit can change the desires” (ibid., 96%). “The grace teachings are not laws; they are suggestions” (ibid.). “To be true to His [God’s] own purposes in grace, He must not only create the motive and choice of the heart but He must provide the sufficient power for its execution” (ibid., 97%). “When God is molding the desires of the heart, there is liberty. When He is empowering the life, there is victory” (ibid.). “The child of God has been delivered from every aspect of the law. The code of rules contained in the law has been superseded by the injunctions and beseechings of grace. The legal necessity of becoming accepted of God by human merit, has been superseded by the divine accomplishment through grace wherein the Christian is already accepted and safe in Christ forever. And possessing the presence of God through the indwelling Spirit, the child of God is saved from that struggle and defeat of the flesh which characterized the law and because of which defeat, the law became a curse and an instrument of death” (ibid., 98%). “GRACE, more than any other single word, is the expression of the sum-total of all that enters into Christianity” (ibid.). “Grace makes all conformity to the will of God to be voluntary” (ibid., 99%).

Be courageous. “And do not fear those who kill the body, but are unable to kill the soul; but rather fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell” (Matt. 10:28). “And when they had brought them, they stood them before the Council. And the high priest questioned them, saying, ‘We gave you strict orders not to continue teaching in this name, and behold, you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and intend to bring this man’s blood upon us.’ But Peter and the apostles answered and said, ‘We must obey God rather than men’” (Acts 5:27–29). “Some by a time-serving, man-fearing, prudential spirit refrain from accepting or proclaiming these things, lest they be designated enthusiasts or fanatics, and thus become unpopular. Such will meet the decision of a Saviour, who urged them not to fear man, not to be influenced by a seeking after their personal popularity, but to receive and present the truth as given” (Peters, TTK, 3:329).

Rejoice! “Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, rejoice” (Phil. 4:4)! “Mourning does not belong to the Bride of Christ” (Chafer, G, 49%).

Be concerned for God’s program, not just for yourself and for your own personal life. “Pray, then, in this way: “Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, On earth as it is in heaven”” (Matt. 6:9–10).

Be no part of the world. “If you were of the world, the world would love its own; but because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you” (John 15:19). “Do not love the world, nor the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the boastful pride of life, is not from the Father, but is from the world. And the world is passing away, and also its lusts; but the one who does the will of God abides forever” (1 John. 2:15–17). “These wonderful accomplishments in grace are what differentiate Christianity from Judaism. One is of the old creation with its earthly purpose and promise; the other is of the new creation with its heavenly glories. The believer could not be under law; he is ‘inlawed to Christ.’ He has been saved out of the world and is no longer a partaker of its past, its present, or its future. Its past is a record of sin and death; its present is a record of confusion under the permitted rule of ‘the god of this world’; and the future will be a record of judgment” (Chafer, G, 98%).

Look forward to the Rapture. “Therefore, gird your minds for action, keep sober in spirit, fix your hope completely on the grace to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ” (1 Pet. 1:13). The Rapture is imminent (see our discussion of the imminence of the Rapture in the section The Timing of the Rapture of our chapter The Rapture of the Church). Have a proper attitude toward the Rapture. “Can the man who holds firmly to such a Kingdom, himself feel so little interest in the coming Bridegroom as to fall asleep, to neglect preparation for His coming, to urge others not to expect His Coming, to tell the world that it is still distant, etc.?... The time will surely come when the neglect of this doctrine will be bitterly regretted” (Peters, TTK, 3:228). (See our discussion of the proper attitude of the Christian toward the Rapture in our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Have a respectful attitude toward Israel. “Now Jehovah said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father’s house, unto the land that I will show thee. And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great. And be thou a blessing. And I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse. And in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed” (Gen. 12:1-3). “The Gentile relationship to the Jews in the blessing and cursing aspects are as true for Messianic Jews as for other Jews. Hebrew Christians who are blessed or cursed because of their Jewishness will find the blessers blessed and the cursers cursed” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 756). Support Jewish Christians materially. “For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek” (Rom. 1:16). “Since most believers and local assemblies participate in the Great Commission mainly through monetary giving, this would require giving to the Jew first” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 853). “The gospel, whenever it goes out and by whatever means it goes out, is to go to the Jew first” (ibid., p. 854). “but now, I am going to Jerusalem serving the saints. For Macedonia and Achaia have been pleased to make a contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem. Yes, they were pleased to do so, and they are indebted to them. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual things, they are indebted to minister to them also in material things” (Rom. 15:25-27). “The way they pay their indebtedness to the Jews, according to this verse [Rom 15:27], is to minister to them, that is, to Jewish believers, in material things” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 637).

Pray for Israel and for Jerusalem. “Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: They shall prosper that love thee” (Ps. 122:6). “Those who are wise have never ceased to ‘Pray for the peace of Jerusalem’ (Ps. 122:6). For all the hopes of a future Kingdom of God on earth are in a certain sense bound up with the future of this city” (McClain, GK, p. 193). “[Horatius] Bonar’s impassioned plea [in ‘The Responsibilities of Christians as Regards the Jews,’ The Quarterly Journal of Prophecy (October, 1855), pp. 351-352]... ‘Israel has been a long time neglected, persecuted, and grievously wronged. Let us go, like Jeremiah, and sit down with them amidst their ruins, and in a sympathetic spirit tell them of the Restorer of Israel—the Almighty Repairer of the great breach—the true Antitype of their own Zerubbabel, who can yet build them up “an holy temple, an habitation of God through the Spirit” (Eph. 2:21-22). While we mourn over their great griefs, their mighty wrongs, and their yet mightier sins, let us gently tell them of “the Man of sorrows,” who is the all-sufficient “consolation of Israel” (Luke 2:25). We carry God’s own message, prepared by the hand of mercy for the heart of the miserable, and which can, by the blessing of the Holy Spirit, win its way through a mountain of stone and a heart of stubbornly resolute hardness. Go, Christian, to thy wandering and fugitive brother, tell him of Blood “which speaks better than the blood of Abel” (Heb. 12:24)—Blood which can cleanse even those who have “gone in the way of Cain” (Jude 11). Go, in the spirit of Paul, “with our hearts desire and prayer to God, that Israel may be saved” (Rom. 10:1). Go, “praying in the Holy Spirit” (Jude 20); and you will give no heed to those who say that “it is of no use preaching the gospel to the Jew.” It is of use; facts abundantly prove it; God has owned his own word, and is still blessing his servants. “Many of the sons of Israel have been turned to the Lord their God” (Luke 1:16); several of them are now the ministers of Christ to the Gentiles or to their own countrymen; and “how welcome are the feet of those who announce the gospel of good things!”... We should pray earnestly for Israel’s final restoration, even for her national glory and spiritual salvation. In so doing we pray for the blessedness of the earth, and the life of the world, which God is pleased to conjointly establish. But believing that God has at the present time “a remnant chosen by grace” (Rom. 11:5), we should give, pray, and labor, if we can “somehow make [the Jew] jealous and save some of them” (Rom. 11:14)” (Horner, FI, p. 328). “Ultimately our hope is in the God of Israel” (ibid., p. 329) “...all of their eventual faith and national glory will be God’s answer to the prayers of those who “find pleasure in the [Zion’s] stones, and favor its dust” (Ps. 102:14)... a people... with whose future blessedness the full salvation of a ruined world is connected” [quoting Horatius Bonar, “The Responsibilities of Christians as Regards the Jews,” The Quarterly Journal of Prophecy (October, 1855), p. 352] (ibid.).

Allow God to give you compassion for the lost. “and hope does not disappoint, because the love of God has been poured out within our hearts through the Holy Spirit who was given to us” (Rom. 5:5). “For WHO HAS KNOWN THE MIND OF THE LORD, THAT HE SHOULD INSTRUCT HIM? But we have the mind of Christ” (1 Cor. 2:16). “Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were entreating through us; we beg you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God” (2 Cor. 5:20). “and may the Lord cause you to increase and abound in love for one another, and for all men, just as we also do for you” (1 Thes. 3:12) “This is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, who desires all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth” (1 Tim. 2:3–4). “True passion for the salvation of men is not a manifestation of love springing out of human nature. It must be imparted from God. Therefore evangelism is neither expected nor required in either the law of Moses, or the law of the kingdom” (Chafer, G, 59%). “The spiritual Christian will experience this divine compassion for a lost cosmos in so far as, by the Spirit, the love of God is shed abroad in his heart” (Chafer, ST, 2:78). “God literally loves the unsaved through the believer (Rom 5:5)” (ibid., p. 102). “Love for lost souls is not a human competency; it is no part of a fallen human being—even for those who are saved it is impossible unaided. It is experienced only as it is inwrought by the Spirit of God” (ibid., 5:211).

Witness to others. “And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who hears say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost” (Rev 22:17). “In the contest going on, no one who is a believer is exempt from witnessing for Christ; and the man who has an earnest of the saving power of Jesus in his own heart and life is fully prepared by a blessed experimental knowledge to vindicate the Christship of the holy Jesus. In this warfare for the honor of our Saviour let every lawful weapon of defence be employed by the believing young and old, learned and unlearned, high and low; for to every one is furnished a sufficiency, an abundant supply, which gratitude, owing to God’s response to our needs, should prompt us not to hide or rest unused” (Peters, TTK, 3:513). Witness to Jews, to Gentiles, and to Jehovah’s Witnesses. “Therefore I testify to you this day, that I am innocent of the blood of all men” (Acts 20:26). “For though I am free from all men, I have made myself a slave to all, that I might win the more” (1 Cor. 9:19). “To the weak I became weak, that I might win the weak; I have become all things to all men, that I may by all means save some” (1 Cor. 9:22). However, know that it will be difficult to change other peoples’ minds. “And no one, after drinking old wine wishes for new; for he says, ‘The old is good enough’” (Luke 5:39). “Men seldom change their preconceived views whether good or bad. Their early training and theological discipline serve as a mold from which the individual will seldom be extricated” (Chafer, ST, p. 314).

Glorify God! “For you have been bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body” (1 Cor. 6:20). “Whether, then, you eat or drink or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God” (1 Cor. 10:31). “Whoever speaks, let him speak, as it were, the utterances of God; whoever serves, let him do so as by the strength which God supplies; so that in all things God may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom belongs the glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen” (1 Pet. 4:11). “By no means let any of you suffer as a murderer, or thief, or evildoer, or a troublesome meddler; but if anyone suffers as a Christian, let him not feel ashamed, but in that name let him glorify God” (1 Pet. 4:15–16).

Enjoy Christ forever. “But God, being rich in mercy, because of His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead in our transgressions, made us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved), and raised us up with Him, and seated us with Him in the heavenly places, in Christ Jesus, in order that in the ages to come He might show the surpassing riches of His grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus” (Eph. 2:4–7). “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:16–17). “Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to make you stand in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy” (Jude 1:24) “For even as the body is one and yet has many members, and all the members of the body, though they are many, are one body, so also is Christ” (1 Cor. 12:12). “So perfect is this unity between the Head and the members of the body, that it is probable that Christ will never be seen in glory apart from His body, and the body will never be seen apart from Him (cf 1 Cor. 12:12)” (Chafer, G, 86%). “To the Christian, Christ has become, in the divine reckoning, the sphere of his being, and this reckoning contemplates all that the Christian is and all that he does” (Chafer, G, 87%).

Amen. Come, Lord Jesus! “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:13) “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus” (Rev 22:20). “To ‘the churches’ on earth, He gives a thrice-repeated reminder of something which must never be forgotten; for it will give courage in the hour of battle, strength in the hour of weakness, and hope in the hour of despair. Let us hear Him as He speaks: ‘Behold, I come quickly’ ([Rev. 22] vs. 7); ‘Behold, I come quickly’ (vs. 12); ‘Surely, I come quickly’ (vs. 20). Thus, in His last historic word from Heaven, our Lord writes once more over the portals of the Church that ‘Blessed Hope’ under which she must live and labor during every moment of her existence upon the earth. And if we are wise in the simplicity of the Word of God, we shall respond in the words of the ‘beloved disciple,’ who heard and recorded the message: ‘Even so, come, Lord Jesus’ (vs. 20)” (McClain, GK, p. 514).

To the Tribulation Saints

If our reader finds himself or herself within the Tribulation period itself, you are undoubtedly enduring some very, if not extremely, difficult living conditions. “Now at that time Michael, the great prince who stands guard over the sons of your people, will arise. And there will be a time of distress such as never occurred since there was a nation until that time; and at that time your people, everyone who is found written in the book, will be rescued” (Dan. 12:1). “for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:21).

Hang in there!

This study of the Kingdom was assembled with you in mind, and I hope you’ve found it helpful. “We constantly feel too, that we are not so much writing for the present time as for the time of tribulation to come” (Peters, TTK, 2:733). “The warning that the Apostle Paul gives to the Gentiles, and his portrayal of the Antichristian power that will arise before, and only to be destroyed at, the Personal Advent; the fearful portraiture of the corruption of mankind just previous to the Advent like in the days of Noah and Lot (Matt. 24:39, ‘knew not until the flood came,’ etc.) making a divine personal interference imperative; the openly hostile attitude of the nations, the exaltation of reason and humanity, the oppressed condition of the pious, the lamentable state of the Jewish nation, the formation of a vast confederation and its merciless acts toward witnesses of the truth; and all this at the closing of this dispensation evinces such a state of unbelief, such a fruitage of the seeds now sown broadcast in a too favorable soil, such a continuation and powerful development of infidelity, such a turning away from God’s Redemptive Purpose in Christ Jesus and trust in humanity, that it is impossible to entertain any other opinion, consistent with faith in the Word, than that, whatever may be said in defence of the truth, men will resist it and gain adherents until the time arrives for a violent outburst engendering a revolution most disastrous to the Church [Tribulation saints—ed.], most ruinous to the moral interests and eternal welfare of the multitude swayed by it, and most fatal to those who shall in that day venture to testify in behalf of the truth. Indeed, so fully persuaded is the writer of the certainty of this—judging simply from past and present fulfillment—that the hope of writing for that very period—of warning the weak in faith not to yield, of encouraging the believing to suffer and endure to the end, of cautioning the doubting how to decide, and of admonishing all, friends and foes, what they must expect—has greatly sustained him in his labor” (ibid., 3:298). (See our discussion of the fact that the grammatical-historical method of biblical interpretation makes Old Testament prophecy’s and the Revelation’s details useful, for the Tribulation saints, etc., in our chapter Biblical Hermeneutics.)

Read and study the Bible. “Then believers, instead of neglecting these prophecies and ridiculing those who engage in their study, will earnestly investigate and compare all that the Spirit has mercifully given, and will acknowledge the wisdom of those who honored God’s Word in accepting of the testimony” (Peters, TTK, 2:745).

Believe the Bible.

Bible prophecy is being fulfilled literally. Observe! The Rapture really was the Rapture! “What causes such a change in the style of the preaching, which will result in the conversion, as parallel passages show, of very many, preparing them to pass through the great tribulation, and to suffer death rather than to worship the Beast and his image? Nothing less than this astonishing removal of certain chosen ones, accounted worthy, owing to their distinctive faith in God’s promises, to escape. Let this event occur just as it is described; let here one and there one of, the believing and watching be taken, and surely those who believe in God’s Word and are left behind will be most wonderfully affected by the event. By one sudden and startling event, coming home to the heart and directly appealing to the warmest affections, the prevailing spiritualizing systems and theories of progressive advancement and perfection will be overthrown, and the Millenarian doctrine, once derided and sneered at as ‘carnal,’ etc., will be most eagerly embraced and proclaimed. (The writer has often, often felt that it is specially for this period that he is laboring, when his work will be appreciated, etc.)” (Peters, TTK, 2:327) Christians are in heaven now with Jesus. They will return to earth with Jesus at the end of the Tribulation. The vanishing of the Christians was not an adverse judgment from God. Those that disappeared were not of “Babylon the Great,” as Jehovah’s Witnesses are likely claiming (“Babylon the Great” only becomes identifiable during the Tribulation; not before it, and she will be judged adversely by God at the midpoint of the Tribulation; not before it). (Assuming that there is no time gap between the Rapture and the beginning of the Tribulation, or that the time gap has passed,) Daniel’s 70th week (Dan. 9:27) is now running its course; the prophetic events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Revelation chapters six through eighteen are now having fulfillment before your eyes (see our chapter The Great Tribulation).

Whatever you do, do not accept the mark of the beast (see our discussion of the mark of the beast in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation)! If you do, you will be lost forever. “It is not hearing the gospel before the Rapture and rejecting it that is the point of no return. It is taking the Mark of the Beast that is the point of no return” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 693).

Trust in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior and become part of the great multitude of Revelation chapter seven (see our discussion of the saving of the great multitude in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation).

You will likely be martyred for your faith. “The very fact that this tribulation has been predicted, that reverent students of the Word insisted upon its fulfillment, etc., will have no little influence in confirming the martyr faith of many. God help them to suffer and to triumph” (Peters, TTK, 2:733). “Before the incoming Antichrist, that mighty enemy who shall so freely and unsparingly shed the blood of the faithful, the differences of confession, worship, government, etc., will sink into insignificance before the great and vital point now alone insisted upon, viz., Have you such faith in, and such love for, Jesus Christ that for His sake you are willing to die? All, all, who have such faith and love, who are determined by grace sustaining them not to worship the beast or his image, are then indeed and in truth brethren, and in their common trial will mutually encourage each other. God help them to triumph” (ibid., p. 745). (See our discussion of persecution as one of the characteristics of the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation and our discussion of the fifth-seal martyrs in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation)

Keep an eye on Israel. Antichrist will confirm a covenant with Israel for seven years (see our discussion of Antichrist’s confirming a seven-year covenant with Israel in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation). He will break the covenant after three and one half years, at the midpoint of the Tribulation (see our discussion of Antichrist’s breaking the covenant with Israel in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation). The 144,000 Jews are likely preaching the true gospel of the Kingdom (see our discussion of the sealing of the 144,000 in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation). The “two witnesses” are likely prophesying in Jerusalem; they will do so for three and one half years, will be killed, then will be raptured after three and one half days (see our discussion of the two witnesses in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation).

Take good care of the Jews in their trials and persecutions. The Jews will be severely persecuted, particularly during the last half of the Tribulation (see our discussion of Israel's persecution in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation). The judgment of the Gentiles will be based largely on how they had treated the Jews during the Tribulation (see our discussion of the gathering and judging of the Gentile Tribulation survivors in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom).

Watch for Jesus' spectacular return at the end of the Tribulation (see our discussion of the proper attitude of the Tribulation saint toward the Second Coming in our chapter The Second Coming of the King).

If you're martyred, you will be resurrected soon and will reign with Christ for one thousand years. "And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years" (Rev. 20:4-6).

If you survive the Tribulation, and if you survive the subsequent Sheep and Goats judgment, you will inherit the Kingdom prepared for you (Matt. 25:34; see our discussion of the gathering and judging of the Gentile Tribulation survivors in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom).

One way or another, by the grace of God, we'll see you in the Kingdom!

To Everyone

The Kingdom is coming, and is near! "For the vision is yet for the appointed time, and it hasteth toward the end, and shall not lie: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not delay" (Hab. 2:3). "FOR YET IN A VERY LITTLE WHILE, HE WHO IS COMING WILL COME, AND WILL NOT DELAY" (Heb. 10:37). "Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of the prophecy, and heed the things which are written in it; for the time is near" (Rev. 1:3).

In preparation for it, let's joyfully submit to God's revealed truth. "No one can heartily accept of the predicted Theocracy in all its aspects who is not willing to make God's Will supreme, or receive the Divine Purpose as covenanted and predicted, unless his mind and heart is submissive to revealed truth" (Peters, TTK, 3:597).

Let's pray particularly for Israel. "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem: They shall prosper that love thee" (Ps. 122:6). "For this "peace of Jerusalem" all creation groans, and all God's people are exhorted to fervently pray. It is the grand climax of the biblical drama of Israel, through whom God will bring the full blessing of Abraham to all the world" [quoting S. A. Ellison, Who Owns the Land? p. 184] (Horner, FI, p. 221).

Let's pray with the saints throughout all the ages that God's Kingdom would come. "Pray, then, in this way: "Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, On earth as it is in heaven"'" (Matt. 6:9-10). "He who testifies to these things says, 'Yes, I am coming quickly.' Amen. Come, Lord Jesus" (Rev 22:20).

And surely it will come, in God's due time, as planned, as covenanted, and as prophesied. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this" (Isa. 9:6-7). "I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed" (Dan. 7:13-14). "And behold, you will conceive in your womb, and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end"" (Luke 1:31-33).

And to the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the God of Israel, and to the Lamb forever be the glory of the Kingdom! “They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, And talk of thy power; To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts, And the glory of the majesty of his kingdom” (Ps. 145:11–12). “Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus EVERY KNEE SHOULD BOW, of those who are in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father” (Phil. 2:9–11). “so that you may walk in a manner worthy of the God who calls you into His own kingdom and glory” (1 Thes. 2:12). “The Lord will deliver me from every evil deed, and will bring me safely to His heavenly kingdom; to Him be the glory forever and ever. Amen” (2 Tim. 4:18). “And I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels around the throne and the living creatures and the elders; and the number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice, ‘Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing.’ And every created thing which is in heaven and on the earth and under the earth and on the sea, and all things in them, I heard saying, ‘To Him who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb, be blessing and honor and glory and dominion forever and ever.’ And the four living creatures kept saying, ‘Amen.’ And the elders fell down and worshiped” (Rev. 5:11–14).

Allegorical Interpretation

The method of interpreting a literary text that gives the text a secondary, more “spiritual” meaning. (IMG*)

Antitype

A type is a model that serves as a preview or pattern of a reality that is yet to come. An antitype is the fulfillment, or the reality that the type was a preview of.

Biblical Theology

A correlation of the data of biblical revelation of a particular book, section, or theme of the Bible. (IMG)

Chiliasm

Premillennialism, especially the premillennialism of the primitive church.

Chiliast

One who holds to chiliasm as his or her eschatological view.

Covenant Amillennialism

A form of Covenant Theology that believes the spiritual kingdom of the church replaces Israel’s Messianic Kingdom and that there will be no Millennial Kingdom. (IMG)

Covenant (Historic) Premillennialism

A form of Covenant Theology that believes Jesus will return in His glory to establish the church as His Kingdom over Earth. (IMG)

Covenant Postmillennialism

A form of Covenant Theology that believes the church constitutes Jesus’ physical kingdom on Earth and that He will return to rule at its conclusion. (IMG)

Covenant Theology

A system of theology built on allegorical interpretation that views human history as God’s redemptive relationship with mankind. It is based on what adherents see as two (or three) major theological covenants that emphasize the continuity between Israel and the church, as the church replaces Israel in God’s program (from Louis Berkhof’s Systematic Theology). (IMG)

Dispensation

Dispensationalism

A system of theology built on consistent, literal interpretation of Scripture. It views the world as a household administered by God for His own glory through a series of progressive but distinct dispensations, emphasizing the discontinuity of Israel and the church (From Ryrie's Dispensationalism). (IMG)

Ecclesiology

Eschatology

Futurism

The position that chapters 4 through 22 of Revelation are yet to have future fulfillment.

Hermeneutic(s)

The art and science of interpreting a literary text; also understood as one's philosophy (method) of interpretation. (IMG)

Historicism

The position that the book of Revelation has already largely, if not completely, had fulfillment in church history.

Literal Interpretation

The method of interpreting a literary text that regards words and phrases in their normal, usual, customary meaning (unless the text itself forces a figurative understanding). (IMG)

Midtribulationism

The position that the Rapture of the church will occur at the midpoint of the Tribulation.

Millennial Kingdom

The earthly, 1,000-year Messianic Kingdom Christ will set up and rule following seven years of unparalleled tribulation on Earth. To premillennialists, this period constitutes the Kingdom Age. (IMG)

Premillennialism

The position that Christ will return before the Kingdom Age and set up His Davidic, Messianic Kingdom. (IMG)

Preterism

The position that most, if not all end-times prophecy was fulfilled by the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. Full preterism teaches that even Jesus' Second Advent occurred in 70 A.D., and therefore it will not occur in the future.

Pretribulationism

The position that the Rapture of the church will occur before the Tribulation.

Posttribulationism

The position that the Rapture of the church will occur after the Tribulation.

Replacement Theology

Various systems of theology, usually built on the foundation of Covenant Theology, that view the church as replacing Israel in God's overall plan for world history. (IMG)

Systematic Theology

A correlation of the data of biblical revelation as a whole in order to exhibit systematically the total picture of God's self-revelation (from Charles Ryrie's Basic Theology). (IMG)

Type

A model that serves as a preview or pattern of a reality that is yet to come. An antitype is the fulfillment, or the reality that the type was a preview of.

Universalism

The position that all people will be saved; that ultimately none will be eternally lost.
