Pontius Pilate also, at least mockingly, recognized Jesus’ Kingship in relation to the Jews. “And Pilate answered them, saying, ‘Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?’ For he was aware that the chief priests had delivered Him up because of envy. But the chief priests stirred up the multitude to ask him to release Barabbas for them instead. And answering again, Pilate was saying to them, ‘Then what shall I do with Him whom you call the King of the Jews?’” (Mark 15:9-12)? “And the inscription of the charge against Him read, ‘THE KING OF THE JEWS’” (Mark 15:26). “Now there was also an inscription above Him, ‘THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS’” (Luke 23:38). “Pilate therefore entered again into the Praetorium, and summoned Jesus, and said to Him, ‘Are You the King of the Jews?’” (John 18:33)? “‘But you have a custom, that I should release someone for you at the Passover; do you wish then that I release for you the King of the Jews?’” (John 18:39) “And Pilate wrote an inscription also, and put it on the cross. And it was written, ‘JESUS THE NAZARENE, THE KING OF THE JEWS’” (John 19:19).

The chief priests, scribes and elders did likewise. “And when they had come to a place called Golgotha, which means Place of a Skull, they gave Him wine to drink mingled with gall; and after tasting it, He was unwilling to drink. And when they had crucified Him, they divided up His garments among themselves, casting lots; and sitting down, they began to keep watch over Him there. And they put up above His head the charge against Him which read, ‘THIS IS JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS.’ At that time two robbers were crucified with Him, one on the right and one on the left.

And those passing by were hurling abuse at Him, wagging their heads, and saying, 'You who are going to destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, save Yourself! If You are the Son of God, come down from the cross.' In the same way the chief priests also, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking Him, and saying, 'He saved others; He cannot save Himself. He is the King of Israel; let Him now come down from the cross, and we shall believe in Him. He trusts in God; let Him deliver Him now, if He takes pleasure in Him; for He said, "I am the Son of God.'" And the robbers also who had been crucified with Him were casting the same insult at Him" (Matt. 27:33-44). "In the same way the chief priests also, along with the scribes, were mocking Him among themselves and saying, 'He saved others; He cannot save Himself. Let this Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross, so that we may see and believe!' And those who were crucified with Him were casting the same insult at Him" (Mark 15:31-32).

The penitent thief on the cross expected Jesus to come in His future Kingdom. "And one of the criminals who were hanged there was hurling abuse at Him, saying, 'Are You not the Christ? Save Yourself and us!' But the other answered, and rebuking him said, 'Do you not even fear God, since you are under the same sentence of condemnation? And we indeed justly, for we are receiving what we deserve for our deeds; but this man has done nothing wrong.' And he was saying, 'Jesus, remember me when You come in Your kingdom!' And He said to him, 'Truly I say to you, today you shall be with Me in Paradise'" (Luke 23:39-43). "...the poor thieves on the cross... 'a noble Chiliast'" (Peters, TTK, 1:464)

Joseph of Arimathea was waiting for the Kingdom of God. "Joseph of Arimathea came, a prominent member of the Council, who himself was waiting for the kingdom of God; and he gathered up courage and went in before Pilate, and asked for the body of Jesus" (Mark 15:43). "And behold, a man named Joseph, who was a member of the Council, a good and righteous man (he had not consented to their plan and action), a man from Arimathea, a city of the Jews, who was waiting for the kingdom of God" (Luke 23:50-51)

And, the men on the road to Emmaus were hoping that Jesus was going to redeem Israel. "And He said to them [the two men on the road to Emmaus], 'What things?' And they said to Him, 'The things about Jesus the Nazarene, who was a prophet mighty in deed and word in the sight of God and all the people, and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered Him up to the sentence of death, and crucified Him. But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, it is the third day since these things happened” (Luke 24:19-22).

Reaffirmation of the Kingdom in the Acts of the Apostles

The future Theocratic Kingdom is reaffirmed in the Acts of the Apostles by the events recorded in the book of Acts and by the testimony of the apostles therein.

Reaffirmation by the Events in Acts

The Kingdom is reaffirmed in the events of the Acts of the Apostles.

It was reaffirmed in the reoffer of the Kingdom to Israel. “And Jesus answered and spoke to them again in parables, saying, “The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king, who gave a wedding feast for his son. And he sent out his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding feast, and they were unwilling to come. Again he sent out other slaves saying, “Tell those who have been invited, ‘Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and my fattened livestock are all butchered and everything is ready; come to the wedding feast” But they paid no attention and went their way, one to his own farm, another to his business, and the rest seized his slaves and mistreated them and killed them. But the king was enraged and sent his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and set their city on fire” (Matt. 22:1-7). “And while he was clinging to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them at the so-called portico of Solomon, full of amazement. But when Peter saw this, he replied to the people, ‘Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this, or why do you gaze at us, as if by our own power or piety we had made him walk? The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified His servant Jesus, the one whom you delivered up, and disowned in the presence of Pilate, when he had decided to release Him. But you disowned the Holy and Righteous One, and asked for a murderer to be granted to you, but put to death the Prince of life, the one whom God raised from the dead, a fact to which we are witnesses. And on the basis of faith in His name, it is the name of Jesus which has strengthened this man whom you see and know; and the faith which comes through Him has given him this perfect health in the presence of you all. And now, brethren, I know that you acted in ignorance, just as your rulers did also. But the things which God announced beforehand by the mouth of all the prophets, that His Christ should suffer, He has thus fulfilled. Repent therefore and return, that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord; and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you, whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time. Moses said, “The Lord God shall raise up for you a prophet like me from your brethren; to Him you shall give heed in everything He says to you. And it shall be that every soul that does not heed that prophet shall be utterly destroyed from among the people.” And likewise, all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel and his successors onward, also announced these days. It is you who are the sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with your fathers, saying to Abraham, “And in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed.” For you first, God raised up His Servant, and sent Him to bless you by turning every one of you from your wicked ways” (Acts 3:11-26). “The same gospel of the Kingdom was preached after the death and ascension of Jesus that was proclaimed before” (Peters, TTK, 1:467). “During His earthly ministry our Lord had specifically foretold of such a reoffer. The prediction is recorded in Matthew 22:1-7, clothed in the form of a parable of ‘the kingdom of heaven,’ in which a certain king makes a marriage feast for his son (vs. 2). Two calls are sent out by the King... The first call of the parable was issued by our Lord through His disciples (Matt. 10:1-15; Luke 10:1-9)... Then there was to be a second call announcing that the dinner is now ‘prepared’ and ‘all things are ready’ (vs. 4)—certainly a reference to our Lord’s finished work of redemption at Calvary... But again the call is rejected, this time by actions which help to identify it in Biblical history: some Jews would turn away with contemptuous indifference, according to the parable, while others would mistreat and kill the messengers (vs. 6). This points to the post-Pentecostal offer, as described in the Book of Acts, when the officials of Israel did exactly that. During the gospel period not an official disciple of Christ was killed by the Jews, but during the period of the Acts the terrible persecution and killing of the messengers began. And there is no third call for this generation of Israel, but judgment falls: the King sends forth his armies, destroys the murderers, and burns their city—a parabolic prediction of the awful destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 (vs. 7)” (McClain, GK, p. 406). “The preaching in Acts proceeded on the basis of the death and resurrection of Messiah which had now become historic facts, thus providing the soteriological foundation without which there could have been no enduring Messianic Kingdom established on earth. And the former problem of a Messiah who dies and yet reigns gloriously had now been cleared up by the resurrection of Jesus. It would have been strange, therefore, if there had been no reoffer of the Kingdom following

Pentecost, such as Luke records in the third chapter of Acts” (ibid., p. 426). “It may be asked how there could have been any genuine option for Israel during this period, since the destruction of Jerusalem had already been clearly predicted by our Lord as a judgment upon Jewish unbelief; and also that the people were to be scattered among all nations and Jerusalem trodden down until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled (Luke 21:24). The answer is that every intelligent Jew understood from the prophets that a terrible time of tribulation would immediately precede the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom. Therefore, the fulfillment of our Lord’s predictions could have ushered in the end, since the time element is always unrevealed. To read 1900 years of time into these predictions is to abandon the historical standpoint in our interpretation. And the early disciples were expecting the shock of tribulation, the imminency of the Church’s separate rapture having not yet been clearly revealed as it would be later in the Pauline epistles” (ibid.). (See also our discussion of Peter’s sermon on the day of Pentecost in the section By the Testimony of the Apostles in Acts below.)

The Kingdom was also reaffirmed by the believers’ selling of their property. “For there was not a needy person among them, for all who were owners of land or houses would sell them and bring the proceeds of the sales, and lay them at the apostles’ feet; and they would be distributed to each, as any had need” (Acts 4:34-35). “The attitude of these early Jewish believers toward property suggests the expectation of an imminent establishment of the Kingdom” (McClain, GK, p. 402).

And, the Kingdom was also reaffirmed by the transitional differences between the early and later chapters of Acts:

It was reaffirmed in the transition from Jewish Kingdom expectations to Gentile church life. “Not the Old testament merely but the Gospels themselves are seemingly separated from the Epistles by a gulf. To bridge over that gulf is the Divine purpose for which the Acts of the Apostles has been given to the Church. The earlier portion of the book is the completion of and sequel to the Gospels; its concluding narrative is introductory to the great revelation of Christianity” (Anderson, SOG, p. 55). “We must needs recognise the intensely Jewish character of the Pentecostal dispensation” (ibid., p. 72). “The apostles were Divinely guided to declare that if, even then, the ‘men of Israel’ repented, their Messiah would return to fulfill to them all that their own prophets had foretold and promised of spiritual and national blessing” (ibid., p. 74). “In a word, if ‘To the Jew first’ is characteristic of the Acts of the Apostles as a whole, ‘To the Jew only’ is plainly stamped upon every part of these early chapters” (ibid., p. 76). “Nothing was further from the thoughts of these men than ‘founding a new religion’”

(ibid., p. 78). “...the open rejection of the long-favoured people... Within that truth lies concealed the key to the mystery of a silent Heaven” (ibid., p. 83). “My contention is that the Acts, as a whole, is the record of a temporary and transitional dispensation in which blessing was again offered to the Jew and again rejected” (ibid., p. 175). “...the Acts of the Apostles—a book which is primarily the record, not, as commonly supposed, of the founding of the Christian Church, but of the apostasy of the favoured nation” (ibid., p. 177). “It would have been premature in them to have turned away from the nation thus favored, until they were clearly taught, both by inspiration and the providence of God, that the nation, as such, had indeed fallen, and that others, even Gentiles, were engrafted. This clinging so tenaciously and persistently to the nation is evidence—the highest—of their faith in this very election, incorporation, adoption, and that salvation is truly identified with the Jewish nation. This very feature which multitudes deem so defective in early Christianity, and which infidels scoffingly deride, is honorable to those believers” (Peters, TTK, 1:407). “Various authors of eminence have unjustly accused the apostles, and especially Peter, of being ‘too Jewish’ in their views respecting the call of the Gentiles. But in the light of the covenants and the election, how, we ask, could they be otherwise” (ibid., p. 409)? “Acts: Book of transition... Positionally, the old order was done away at the death of Christ, as signified by the tearing of the veil of the temple (Matt. 27:51)... Experientially, however, the transition covered nearly four decades... Ethnically, there was a transition from dealing primarily with Jews to dealing with both Jew and Gentile without distinction... from Israel to the church... from Law to grace... from the offer to Israel of an earthly Davidic kingdom to the offer to all men of salvation based on the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 266). “During the days of His flesh Christ was engaged almost wholly in teaching about the Kingdom of Old Testament prophecy and in doing the predicted miraculous works which constituted His regal credentials as its Messianic King... the Church, a new thing which is not identical with the Kingdom... the Book of Acts... The Church is present historically, having begun as a definite body of people on the day of Pentecost. But the Kingdom, although occupying a large place in apostolic preaching and teaching, is present only as an ‘eschatological’ possibility...” (McClain, GK, p. 389) “[in the early chapters of Acts]... the ekklesia... it did not yet occupy the center of the stage, as it came to do later when the apostolic offer of the King and His Kingdom once more was met with violent opposition on the part of the rulers of Israel” (ibid., p. 403). “The thirty years which followed... the destruction of Jerusalem are in truth the most obscure in the history of the Church. When we emerge in the second century we are, to a great extent in a changed world. Apostolic authority lives no longer in the Christian community; apostolic miracles have passed; the Church has fairly begun her pilgrimage through “the waste of Time”” [quoting Samuel G. Green, Handbook of Church History, p. 22] (ibid., p. 409). “The period begins with the Kingdom in first place, the Church having almost no distinguishable separate identity. As the period progresses in time, the Church begins to assume a more prominent place, with a glory of its own, while the established Kingdom becomes more remote” (ibid., p. 423). “In the book of Acts this ‘kingdom of God’ appears as something future, the term being used, as James Orr has observed, ‘in an almost exclusively eschatological sense’” (ibid., p. 425). “...nowhere do the preachers ever assert that the Kingdom has been established” (ibid.). “The record in the early chapters of Acts suggest strongly that the ekklesia was then regarded as the saved Jewish ‘remnant’ of Old Testament prophecy which would constitute the spiritual nucleus of the Messianic Kingdom. Certainly, in those early days, the Church was not in possession of the truth, later revealed, that it was destined to be a unique body as distinguished from all other bodies of the saved in all ages. This observation not only fits the historical situation but also harmonizes with the progress of revelation” (ibid., p. 427). “...the transitional character of the period covered in the Book of Acts. Because of the reoffer of the Kingdom to Israel, the period begins with the Kingdom in the forefront. And while the prophets had made clear that the Gentile nations were to share in its benefits, the nation of Israel always held the place of priority. Therefore, it becomes understandable that the admission of Gentiles to the ekklesia raised the problem of how they were to be received, if at all. Within the Church the problem moved toward a solution in co-ordination with two other movements: first, the growth of Jewish opposition to the offer of the Messianic Kingdom; and second, the progress of revelation as to the unique nature of the ekklesia begun on the day of Pentecost” (ibid., p. 428). “The shift in preaching emphasis, from the Kingdom as an imminent possibility contingent on Israel’s repentance, to the Church as a unique body of believers in which all racial and national distinctions disappear, helps to explain another curious phenomenon in the history of the Acts. Out of the 28 chapters of the book, no less than fifteen are concerned primarily with the work of the apostle Paul. And, as we have noted, the Jewish opposition very quickly centered upon this one man following his conversion. Now the reasons for this attitude were undoubtedly various. But Paul’s distinctive view of the ekklesia must not be overlooked. For it was through this apostle, as an instrument of divine inspiration, that God unveiled the lofty character of the ekklesia begun on Pentecost... no distinction between Jew and Gentile... It was one thing to say that Gentiles might enter the ekklesia; it was something else to declare that within that body the Jew had no advantage or priority over the Gentile! And it is a striking fact that at the very time Paul was nearly torn to pieces by the Jews at Jerusalem, there was in that city a Christian church with James and its elders, all apparently enjoying immunity from Jewish persecution (Acts 21:17-19, 31)" (ibid.). "Historically, therefore, the theological barrier between Jew and Gentile was completely broken down when the opposition of Israel to our Lord's Kingdom was again moving to the crisis of divine judgment, and when contemporaneously the Pentecostal ekklesia was being unveiled in the Pauline epistles as a unique body having a glory all its own. And, we may add, if there had been no reoffer of the Kingdom to Israel in the period of the Acts, the Jewish problem might easily have been clarified at the very beginning by an immediate full revelation of the nature of the Church begun on the day of Pentecost. The fact that it was delayed demands some explanation which is in harmony with both history and revelation" (ibid., p. 429). "A Summary of the Acts Period: In preaching and testimony the Acts period must be regarded as transitional, displaying characteristics which belong to both the Kingdom and the Church. Just as in the period of the Gospels the Kingdom had been offered to the nation of Israel, even so during the history of Acts the Kingdom was again offered to Israel. In both periods the offer was authenticated by the same 'signs and wonders' which, according to the prophets, belonged properly to such an offer. And its establishment, in both periods, was conditioned upon repentance and acceptance of Jesus as the Messiah on the part of the nation. Furthermore, in both periods there was Jewish opposition which moved to a crisis of rejection. But parallel with this movement in Acts there was also the history of the Church which began at Pentecost as the spiritual nucleus of the coming Kingdom; and which, following the crisis of Jewish rejection of their Messianic King, was revealed as a unique body destined among the saved of all ages to occupy the highest place in the Kingdom of God. As the period of Acts ends, we pass from the time area of 'signs and wonders' into an era characterized chiefly by the demand for unquestioning faith in the presence of a silent heaven as far as great public miracles are concerned. The period opened with the triumphant sermon of Peter on Pentecost, followed almost at once by his official offer of the Kingdom made from the temple porch, both addressed to representatives of the nation of Israel assembled from all nations at the city of Jerusalem. The period moved to its close with the day-long appeal of Paul, now a prisoner in chains, addressed to the 'chief of the Jews' assembled in the great Gentile metropolis of Rome. It was followed quickly by the 'prison epistles' in which the unique glory of the ekklesia was fully revealed. The end came in the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple in A.D. 70. The Book of Acts, therefore, presents another one of those probationary periods ordained by divine grace for the nation of Israel. And like a similar period in Old Testament history, when Israel wandered in the wilderness, it lasted approximately one generation. This time, however, the nation failed to enter the promised 'rest' of the Kingdom, not only at the beginning but also at the end of the probationary period. Significantly, both in Old Testament prophecy and in our Lord's eschatological discourse, the last landmark before we enter the uncharted time of the present age, is the destruction of Jerusalem (Dan. 9:26; Luke 21:24). Beyond this now historical landmark looms only the beginning of the end. Between the destruction of Jerusalem and the Rapture of the Church (1 Thess. 4:13-18), divine revelation indeed speaks of general conditions and tendencies, but there is no single event by which the Church may infallibly locate herself in the ocean of time. The period covered by the Book of Acts, therefore, while a genuine segment of the present Church age, has nevertheless a character which differs markedly from that area of time following the destruction of Jerusalem. In this peculiar character we may find at least a partial explanation of the complexities of that Biblical history of the Church which by divine inspiration was recorded by 'the beloved physician'" (ibid.).

And, it was reaffirmed in the transition from public miracles to the absence of public miracles. "The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose. It shall blossom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and singing; the glory of Lebanon shall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon: they shall see the glory of Jehovah, the excellency of our God. Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, with the recompense of God; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing; for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert. And the glowing sand shall become a pool, and the thirsty ground springs of water: in the habitation of jackals, where they lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes" (Isa. 35:1-7). "And it came about that when Jesus had finished giving instructions to His twelve disciples, He departed from there to teach and preach in their cities. Now when John in prison heard of the works of Christ, he sent word by his disciples, and said to Him, ‘Are You the Expected One, or shall we look for someone else?’ And Jesus answered and said to them, ‘Go and report to John what you hear and see: the blind receive sight and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them” (Matt. 11:1-5). “And everyone kept feeling a sense of awe; and many wonders and signs were taking place through the apostles” (Acts 2:43). “and have tasted the good word of God and the powers of the age to come” (Heb. 6:5) “The death of Stephen was the secret crisis of their destiny. Never again was a public miracle witnessed in Jerusalem. The special Pentecostal proclamation was withdrawn” (Anderson, SOG, p. 83). “Although in the early pages of Acts Jerusalem is filled with miracles, after the martyrdom of Stephen there is never again any record of a public miracle in that city” (McClain, GK, p. 409) “In the Scriptures great public exhibitions of miraculous divine power are invariably connected with the Mediatorial Kingdom of God... They are the signs of the Kingdom, given primarily as a testimony to the nation of Israel, to whom in a peculiar sense that Kingdom belonged by divine covenant, and upon whose repentance depended its imminent establishment upon earth. This was the burden of the prophets as they spoke to Israel about the Kingdom (Isa. 35:1-7). The same thing was affirmed by our Lord in His earthly ministry to the chosen nation (Matt. 11:1-5). And it was reaffirmed by the apostles in their testimony to Israel throughout the Book of Acts (2:1-20, 43)” (ibid., p. 411). “Hebrews... the Acts period... reminding the Jewish readers of that generation that they had ‘tasted... the powers of the age to come’ (6:5, ASV)... following the crises of Jewish rejection reached in Acts 28 and the destruction of Jerusalem, the age of great public miracles came to an end” (ibid., p. 412). “In an interesting passage, Geerhardus Vos seems to agree that there was some connection between the miracles during the period of Acts and the contemporary eschatological expectations: ‘The subsequent receding of this acute eschatological state has something to do with the gradual disappearance of the miraculous phenomena of the apostolic age’ (‘Eschatology of the New Testament,’ I.S.B.E., Vol. II, p. 980). But what the connection is he does not attempt to explain” (ibid.). (For further discussion of the absence of public miracles in the Church Age, see the The Silence of God section of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

Reaffirmation by the Testimony of the Apostles in Acts

The Kingdom is also reaffirmed by the testimony of the apostles in the Acts of the Apostles.

It was reaffirmed by the apostles just before Christ's ascension. “The first account I composed, Theophilus, about all that Jesus began to do and teach, until the day when He was taken up, after He had by the Holy Spirit given orders to the apostles whom He had chosen. To these He also presented Himself alive, after His suffering, by many convincing proofs, appearing to them over a period of forty days, and speaking of the things concerning the kingdom of God” (Acts 1:1–3). “And so when they had come together, they [the apostles, vs. 2] were asking Him, saying, ‘Lord, is it at this time You are restoring the kingdom to Israel?’ He said to them, ‘It is not for you to know times or epochs which the Father has fixed by His own authority; but you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you shall be My witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and even to the remotest part of the earth.’ And after He had said these things, He was lifted up while they were looking on, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And as they were gazing intently into the sky while He was departing, behold, two men in white clothing stood beside them; and they also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven’” (Acts 1:6–11). “Now we know that neither a period nor an epoch can be affirmed concerning an event which is only imaginary” [quoting G. V. Lechter, Lange’s Commentary on Acts, on Acts 1:6] (Peters, TTK, 1:367). “He remained after His resurrection with those previously sent-forth preachers of the Kingdom ‘forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God’ (Acts 1:3). It is exceedingly difficult to conceive, when the Kingdom was the principal topic of conversation, that if these apostles were still ignorant of the very nature of the Kingdom and Christ’s death was to be the medium for their enlightenment, some decided information to remove the alleged ‘error’ was not granted to them during these forty days. The tenor of the narrative shows that in all their conversations respecting the Kingdom nothing was said that changed the faith of the apostles. They still held the belief that they had authoritatively preached. The proof is found in the question (v. 6), ‘Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again, the Kingdom to Israel?’ This is admitted by all—very reluctantly indeed by some commentators and writers—to mean that they still believed in a restoration of the Davidic throne and Kingdom under the reign of the Messiah. The reply of Jesus, as we already had occasion to observe, confirms their belief; for instead of rejecting their idea of the nature of the Kingdom, He takes that for granted as substantially correct, and only refers to the time when it should again be restored to Israel as something reserved by the Father, thus meeting the question proposed which related to the time" (ibid., p. 430). "Those who have no sympathy with our views are forced to admit in this place a still believed in national restoration of the Jews. So e.g. 'Govinus the Jesuit, in his comment on Acts 1:6, says that Cyprian, Jerome, Chrysostom, Theophilus, Alexandrinus, Augustine, Bede' understood it. Indeed, an interminable list might be produced..." (ibid., p. 431) "It was just such a question as hearts full of love, faith, and hope would suggest with a resurrected Messiah before them. The question vindicates their deep interest in 'the Christship' of Jesus, and His answer confirms their confidence in Him" (ibid., p. 432). "If the apostles were mistaken in their notions of the Kingdom, how can we trust them as infallible guides in other matters" (ibid., p. 434)? "If... the faith of the apostles was discarded by the church as 'too Jewish,' then it follows of necessity that the very foundations of Christianity are unreliable and the superstructure erected upon them is unsafe" (ibid., p. 435). "Knapp has conceded that the apostles did not know the truth respecting the Kingdom until after the ascension, although they had been previously sent out to preach the Kingdom (hence, they preached error, etc.); why then did they not apologize for their preaching an erroneous Kingdom, and tell us, if Knapp is correct, how and when they were enlightened" (ibid., p. 462)? "By our line of argument, the intelligence, integrity, and authority of the apostles are fully sustained" (ibid., p. 470) "...the apostles... if in error on the leading important subject of the Kingdom, why not also in error on the resurrection, the atonement, and, in brief, all other doctrines" (ibid., p. 622)? "He left His own disciples down to the very last moment (Acts 1:6), in the belief that His Kingdom was truly one connected with the restored nation under the Theocratic-Davidic rule" (ibid., 2:78). "'The times and seasons,' Acts 1:7, has evident reference to Daniel's (the Seventy, as Olshausen notices, applied the same Greek words to Dan. 2:21)" (ibid., p. 189) "And he changeth the times and the seasons; he removeth kings, and setteth up kings; he giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that have understanding" (Dan. 2:21) "Dr. Increase Mather (Pres. of Harvard Univ.), in his Mys. of Israel's Salvation, pointedly says: 'Christ did never actually deny His having such a visible glorious Kingdom upon earth as that which His disciples looked for; only He corrected their error as to the time of this Kingdom's appearing. Christ did not say to them that there should never be any such restoration of the Kingdom to Israel as their thoughts were running upon; only He telleth them that the times and seasons were not for them to know; thereby acknowledging that such a Kingdom should indeed be as they did, from the holy prophets, expect. Herein was their error, not in expecting a glorious appearing of the Kingdom of God, but in that they made amount that this would be immediately” (Peters, TTK, 2:342). “It is true that the disciples, so enamored of the many Old Testament prophecies of the glory of the coming King, had failed to understand adequately and allow for the references to His vicarious death in the Old Testament revelation. But now that those things were fulfilled, what could possibly hinder the speedy establishment of the kingdom by the King at that time” (Feinberg, M, p. 140)? “The verb ‘restore again’ is also full of significance. They did not ask about a kingdom that had never had a beginning, but there was to be a restoration of something that had already existed. In what sense that is meant will presently be seen. The verb (apokathistaneis) literally means ‘to restore to its former state’” (ibid.). “Far from being an inappropriate and foolish question, as some have laboriously sought to prove, the problem occupying the minds of the disciples was legitimate and important” (ibid.). “Following His death and resurrection, Christ spent a period of at least forty days giving instruction to His chosen disciples. The main subjects of this special teaching were two: first, ‘concerning himself’ (Luke 24:27, 44); and second, ‘the things pertaining to the kingdom of God’ (Acts 1:3). The source materials used were the Old Testament Scriptures: ‘all things... which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the psalms’—the customary threefold division of the Old Testament books (Luke 24:44). Thus, in this post-resurrection school of instruction, we have both the King and His Kingdom brought together as the one central theme of Old Testament prophecy” (McClain, GK, p. 281) “The first eleven verses of Acts... Luke only, in the first-named passage, states the length of this ministry as ‘forty days’” (ibid., p. 390). “Luke 24:13-24... two disciples had sadly said, ‘But we hoped that it was he who should redeem Israel’ (vs. 21, ASV)... And, according to Luke’s account in Acts, the forty days of our Lord’s post-resurrection ministry were designed to meet this particular need of the disciples in several ways. (1) During this period of time Christ demonstrated to them the reality of His resurrection from the dead... Thus by sensible signs and Biblical testimony were the disciples convinced of the resurrection of Jesus, and so prepared for further instruction about the Kingdom. (2) Luke says that during the forty days Christ was ‘speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God’ (Acts 1:3). And in his Gospel, where he elaborates somewhat more fully as to the content of our Lord’s teaching on the subject, we learn that it included an exposition of the Old Testament testimony ‘concerning himself,’ with reference especially to His suffering and the subsequent glory (Luke 24:26-27, 46). In this teaching, the fact of His resurrection became the connecting link between the suffering and glory, solving the mystery of a Messiah who must die for His people and yet who also must reign over them gloriously in a coming Kingdom. It was this vital connection that gave to the resurrection so prominent a place in the doctrinal preaching of the early chapters of Acts. (3) We are also told by Luke that before His ascension Christ gave certain 'commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen' (Acts 1:2). This unquestionably is a reference to the so-called 'commissions' recorded in Matthew 28:18-20, Mark 16:15-18, Luke 24:46-49, John 21:15-17, and Acts 1:7-8. Having informed them concerning 'the things pertaining to the kingdom of God,' and also as to His own place in relation to that Kingdom, He now outlines a definite program of action to be followed by His disciples during the interregnum until He returns to establish the Kingdom. In summary, therefore, we may say that the chief subject of our Lord's post-resurrection ministry was the 'kingdom of God'; and the Biblical record contains no mention of the 'Church' as such. This omission does not necessarily mean that the latter was not discussed at all (for doubtless it was); but it does mean that the Church must have occupied a wholly subordinate place in this period of Christ's teaching" (ibid.). "...the forty days of special instruction about the Kingdom were completed. And considering that their Teacher had been the Messianic King Himself, the risen son of God, the disciples by this time should have been fairly well informed about the essential 'things pertaining to the kingdom.' Judged in the light of these facts, their final question on the subject should not be dismissed lightly as evidence of an 'unspiritual' and 'carnal' viewpoint, as some writers assume to do. Such treatment imputes not only inferior intelligence to the apostles but also, worse than that, incompetence to their Teacher. Regarded seriously, a number of important assumptions are latent in the question under discussion. (1) The question assumes the restoration of a divine Kingdom which once existed. (2) The disciples' question also assumes that this Kingdom was not then established on earth. (3) The question also assumes that when the Kingdom is restored, Israel will once more possess the Kingdom in the sense of its meaning in Old Testament history and prophecy. (4) The disciples' question shows clearly that the one point upon which they lacked information was that of time. The emphasis on this point is more striking in the order of the Greek words: Lord, at this time wilt thou restore the kingdom to Israel? Evidently the apostles, schooled in the teaching of the Messianic King Himself, had heard nothing which would absolutely preclude the possibility of the establishment of the Kingdom in the near future of their own times" (ibid., p. 393). "Christ's Reply to the Disciples' Question: (1) In this reply to the disciples

there is no rebuke nor correction for their general assumptions. If their ideas of the Kingdom had been totally wrong, certainly this was the time for Christ to have set them right, not only for their sakes but for ours also who would read the inspired record. If, because of her sins, God was now done forever with the historical nation of Israel; if all her divine covenants were now to be taken away and given to the Church; if the throne of David was now to be transferred from earth to heaven; if the glorious utterances of the prophets are only 'beautiful dreams' never to be realized in the reign of Messiah in a Kingdom on earth where all war and disease and injustice shall have been abolished; if the sickly cast of platonic dualism is now to be thrown over great areas of Old Testament prediction in which the brightest aspirations of humanity are divinely validated—how simple it would have been for our Lord Jesus Christ to have set the apostles right in a single utterance. But there is no record of such an utterance in this crucial point... 'As to the fact itself, the coming of the Kingdom, and as to Israel's privilege with respect to the latter, they entertained no doubt; and the Lord was so far from disapproving of such an expectation, that he rather confirmed it by declaring that the Father had fixed the times. Now we know that neither a period nor an epoch can be affirmed concerning an event which is only imaginary. Those interpreters have altogether mistaken the sense, who maintain that Jesus here entirely rejects the conceptions entertained by his apostles respecting the Messianic Kingdom, for this is by no means the case. He did not deny that either their expectation of the appearance on earth of his glorious Kingdom in its reality, or their hope of the glorious future which that Kingdom opened to the people of Israel, was well founded; he simply subdued their eager curiosity respecting the time...' [quoting G. V. Lechter, Lange's Commentary on Acts, on Acts 1:6] (2) Since the question of the disciples had concerned only the time of the Kingdom's establishment, so our Lord's reply deals pointedly with this matter: 'It is not for you to know the times or the seasons.' (3) During the unrevealed time of the Interregnum, His apostles are to be occupied with a world-wide ministry of witnessing. It is easy to forget that, while the commission of verse 8 has an application to every believer of the present age, it was addressed in the first instance to 'the apostles whom he had chosen' (Acts 1:2). And although He had warned them to expect persecution, or even death (John 16:1-4), there is no intimation in this final commission to them that the task of witnessing might not be interrupted by the coming of the Kingdom within the reach of their own generation. It is completely unhistorical to read into the words of Acts 1:8 nineteen centuries of time. One of the reasons for leaving the time span wholly unrevealed was, as we shall see, because another offer of the King and His Kingdom was to be made to the nation of Israel (Acts 3:19-21). And the silence of God as to the length of the Interregnum left room for a genuine decision on the part of the nation. To have revealed in advance any fixed chronology would have turned the divine offer into a hollow mockery. (4) ...His promise of a similarly visible second coming, given through the 'two men... in white apparel' as He was going up (Acts 1:9-11). Both the ascension and its attendant promise were intended to give reassurance to the disciples regarding Jesus and His relation to the expected future Kingdom. The ascension, on the one hand, demonstrated the truth of His claim to be the Messianic King; and the promise of a second advent, on the other hand, reaffirmed the reality and certainty of the future establishment of His Kingdom... 'Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven' (Matt. 26:63-64). (5) In this final promise of a second coming of the Messianic King (Acts 1:11), the angelic messengers seem almost to exhaust the resources of human language in declaring the reality and visibility of that grand event. The coming One will be 'this same Jesus [houtos, this very one], which is taken up.' He will 'so [houtos, in this way] come in like manner [hon tropon] as ye have seen him go.' This language grows in impressiveness when we recall that the great purpose of His second advent will be to establish the Kingdom on earth. If the coming of the King will be something fully tangible in the realm of sense experience, as affirmed by the angels, there remains no sound reason for denying the same reality to the Kingdom which He will bring. So the apostles understood, and so they taught" (ibid., p. 394). "Dost thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel,' the reference is clearly restricted to the Mediatorial Kingdom, for the ekklesia had not yet begun" (ibid., p. 425). "They were correct in their anticipation that as Messiah Christ will again restore the kingdom to Israel" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 268). "It is extremely important to notice that Jesus did not change their concept of the coming kingdom... timing... the timing was not for them to know (Acts 1:7)" (ibid.). "In Acts 1:6, when the disciples wanted to know when the kingdom was going to be restored to Israel, they were not told that they were in error, that the kingdom would never be restored to Israel, but only that it was not for them to know the 'times or seasons, which the Father hath set within his own authority' (Acts 1:7)" (Walvoord, MK, p. 117). "The last thing the disciples asked Jesus was 'Lord, are you at this time going to restore the kingdom to Israel?' (Acts 1:6; cf. 15:13-16). If there were to be no future literal kingdom, then this was Jesus' last opportunity to correct them, as He had done with their misunderstandings on many other occasions. But He did not; instead, He implied that it would come in the Father's good time, and that meanwhile they were to be witnesses in all the world (1:7-8)" (Geisler, ST, 4:56). "Acts 1:6-11... Considering the Messiah Himself had just spent forty days speaking of things pertaining to 'the kingdom of God' (v. 3), the disciples were not speaking out of ignorance when they asked Him, 'Lord, are you at this time going to restore the kingdom to Israel?' (v. 6)" (ibid., p. 488). "The 'restoration' implies that the one point on which the disciples lacked information was the time of the coming kingdom (not its nature)" (ibid.). "If there were no literal national future for Israel, then Jesus missed His last chance to correct them and say something like 'Do you still not understand' (Matt. 16:9). By contrast, He gave not one word of rebuke and affirmed a future messianic kingdom of which only God knew the timing: 'It is not for you to know the times or dates the Father has set by his own authority [for the restoration of the kingdom to Israel]...' (Acts 1:7-8)" (ibid.) "Even after Jesus' time on earth, the kingdom of Israel, which included its unconditional land-promises (forever), had not yet been fulfilled. Jesus here implied that it was coming but did not say when" (ibid., p. 508).

The Kingdom was reaffirmed by Peter. "Recent Christian writers may, rather sarcastically, remark that Peter thought that 'the Gentiles must be brought, as it were, over the bridge of Judaism into the Kingdom of God.' But Peter had no right to think otherwise until God revealed the matter to him how Gentiles could be engrafted and also become of the elect people without observing the rites and ceremonies of Judaism. In this whole affair, the apostles sustained the very attitude required by our Propositions concerning the covenants and election" (Peters, TTK, 1:409).

It was reaffirmed by Peter on the day of Pentecost. "But Peter, taking his stand with the eleven, raised his voice and declared to them: 'Men of Judea, and all you who live in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and give heed to my words. For these men are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only the third hour of the day; but this is what was spoken of through the prophet Joel: "And it shall be in the last days," God says, "That I will pour forth of My Spirit upon all mankind; And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, And your young men shall see visions, And your old men shall dream dreams; Even upon My bondslaves, both men and women, I will in those days pour forth of My Spirit And they shall prophesy. And I will grant wonders in the sky above, And signs on the earth beneath, Blood, and fire, and vapor of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, And the moon into blood, Before the great and glorious day of the Lord shall come. And it shall be, that everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved'" (Acts 2:14-21). "It were against all probability to suppose that the apostle meant to speak of the prophecy (of Joel) as having found a complete fulfillment in the events of that particular day” (Peters, TTK, 1:439) “Then he pointed to the partial fulfillment—for he did not use the regular clause ‘that it might be fulfilled,’ which is generally found in New Testament fulfillments of Old Testament prophecies—of the prophecy of Joel concerning the gift of the Holy Spirit” (Feinberg, M, p. 141). “Brethren, I may confidently say to you regarding the patriarch David that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. And so, because he was a prophet, and knew that God had sworn to him with an oath to seat one of his descendants upon his throne” (Acts 2:29-30) “And while he was clinging to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them at the so-called portico of Solomon, full of amazement. But when Peter saw this, he replied to the people, ‘Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this, or why do you gaze at us, as if by our own power or piety we had made him walk? The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified His servant Jesus... But the things which God announced beforehand by the mouth of all the prophets, that His Christ should suffer, He has thus fulfilled. Repent therefore and return, that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord; and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you, whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time. Moses said, “The Lord God shall raise up for you a prophet like me from your brethren; to Him you shall give heed in everything He says to you. And it shall be that every soul that does not heed that prophet shall be utterly destroyed from among the people.” And likewise, all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel and his successors onward, also announced these days. It is you who are the sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with your fathers, saying to Abraham, “And in your seed all the families of the earth shall be blessed.” For you first, God raised up His Servant, and sent Him to bless you by turning every one of you from your wicked ways” (Acts 3:11-26). “whom (Acts 3:12-26) the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things’ (keeping in mind the Jewish idea of restitution as always associated with the restored Davidic Kingdom) shall come, and then ‘He (God) shall send Jesus Christ’ through whom this is effected” (Peters, TTK, 1:317). “If the phrases were to be spiritualized, he [Peter] ought to have stated the fact, and assigned the reasons for such a transmutation” (ibid., 2:461). “Peter... the Apostle urges the Jews, as a people, to repentance and conversion, because the times of refreshing, as the prophets abundantly testify, are connected with just such a repentance and conversion... The delay in carrying the Gospel to the Gentiles, the priority given to the Jews, the sparing of the nation for some time, etc., was to still mercifully tender to them—in view of their being nationally entitled to the blessings—the promised times of refreshing on condition of repentance. The continued national unbelief and impenitence prevented—as had been already foreseen and predicted—God’s gracious purposes, and delayed them until the ‘times of the Gentiles’ would be fulfilled” (ibid., p. 463). “Luther (quoted by Dr. Seiss, Last Times, Third Dis.), ‘All things are now disordered and decaying; whence Peter says that the heavens must receive Christ until the time when all things shall be restored again to what they were in Paradise; thus agreeing with Paul, that the whole creatureship has been made subject to vanity, and that it is to be hoped that not man only but the earth and heaven shall again be brought back to their Edenic state’” (ibid., p. 466). “The language of the apostles is eminently calculated to confirm the Jewish belief in the literal fulfillment of the Davidic covenant” (ibid., 1:317). “Let any one read the [Davidic] covenant and prophecies directly bearing on it, and then place himself in the position of a Jewish hearer of Peter, with Jewish faith, expectations, and covenant relationship, and the decided impression will be made that the covenant is not altered but remains unchanged, that the death of Jesus combined with resurrection and exaltation only qualifies him the better to meet the conditions of the covenant, and that through this resurrected Jesus, when the time appointed by the Father arrives, this covenant will be verified” (ibid.). “Acts 2:14-36 and 3:12-26... Peter boldly asserts that Jesus was to sit on David’s throne” (ibid., p. 438) “Let the student place himself in the posture of the Jewish hearers at that preaching, with their Jewish expectations of the Kingdom and ‘the Christ,’ and he will see at once that this sermon was most admirably adapted to confirm the Jews in their faith of the Kingdom. Peter’s argument takes the Jewish view of the Kingdom to be the correct one, and as one well known, and hence, without entering into particulars, endeavors to show that Jesus is that Messiah under whom the covenanted sitting upon David’s throne will yet eventually be realized—His resurrection and present exaltation giving us the needed assurance. The Kingdom is not disputed, but He who is to be the Messiah, the King, is the subject controverted and thus brought forward. This is confirmed by the second discourse, in which it is distinctly announced that this Jesus, thus declared to be the Messiah, shall remain in heaven until the period of restitution spoken of by the prophets, and always linked with the Messianic Kingdom, shall arrive; for this Jesus shall come again to be the Restorer as the prophets announce. Now let the reader consider how the hearers of Peter regarded the times of restitution, comprehending under it the Messianic reign, the restoration of the Davidic throne and Kingdom, etc., and it is utterly impossible to conceive of any other impression made upon their minds than that the Kingdom was still future, and would be established when Jesus would come again. The proof is found in the historical fact, that the first Christians thus understood Peter. The times of restitution and the times of the Kingdom are strictly equivalent phrases to the Jewish mode of thinking and belief; hence the language of Peter, as consistency demanded, is in strict accord with our Proposition. Many of our opponents are forced to give us Acts chs. 2 and 3, as fully sustaining continued ‘Jewish expectations’” (ibid.). “Peter continues to preach to the Jews ‘the Christ,’ which was understood by all to denote the One anointed to be the King on David’s restored throne” (ibid., p. 441). “Our argument shows that Peter, however ignorant of the means and time of accomplishment, consistently held to one continuous proper meaning of ‘Christ,’ corresponding with his preaching as a disciple and an apostle” (ibid.). “Even after the church began, this future literal kingdom was offered to Israel (in Acts 3) by Peter, who referred to the restoration of Israel (vv. 19-21), promised in the Old Testament and to be fulfilled when Messiah returned. In fact, Peter declared that He would not return until they repented and accepted Him as their Messiah” (Geisler, ST, 4:57).

And, it was reaffirmed by Peter before the Sanhedrin. “But the high priest rose up, along with all his associates (that is the sect of the Sadducees), and they were filled with jealousy; and they laid hands on the apostles, and put them in a public jail... But Peter and the apostles answered and said, ‘We must obey God rather than men. The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom you had put to death by hanging Him on a cross. He is the one whom God exalted to His right hand as a Prince and a Savior, to grant repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. And we are witnesses of these things; and so is the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to those who obey Him’” (Acts 5:17–32).

It was reaffirmed by James at the Jerusalem conference. “And after they had stopped speaking, James answered, saying, ‘Brethren, listen to me. Simeon has related how God first concerned Himself about taking from among the Gentiles a people for His name. And with this the words of the Prophets agree, just as it is written, “After these things I will return, And I will rebuild the tabernacle of David which has fallen, And I will rebuild its ruins, And I will restore it”” (Acts 15:13-16) “In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up its ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old; that they may possess the remnant of Edom, and all the nations that are called by my name, saith Jehovah that doeth this” (Amos 9:11-12). “The apostles all agreed to this postponement as presented by James” (Peters, TTK, 1:439). “In its original context, the tabernacle of David cannot ‘be an equivalent of the New Testament church’ for the simple reason that the ‘prophecy concerns the rebuilding of that which was fallen down’ and the Church is hardly that which has already broken down in Amos’ day. The blessings listed by Amos [9:11] ‘are earthly, territorial, and national, and have nothing to do with a spiritual church to which none of these blessings has been promised” [quoting Walvoord, The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 203-206] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 464) “Walvoord [in The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 203-206] interprets James as saying ‘that it was God’s purpose to bless the Gentiles as well as Israel, but in their order.’ He insists that two key words, first and after not be ignored. The program of God ‘was to visit the Gentiles first, “to take out of them a people of his name” and then ‘after the Gentile period’ will come ‘the period of Jewish blessing and triumph.’ Walvoord concludes that this passage does not teach that Christ’s Davidic rule is fulfilled in the Church, but establishes ‘a specific time order.’ God will first ‘conclude His work for the Gentiles in the period of Israel’s dispersion.’ Then, after that purpose is accomplished, He will ‘return,’ which Walvoord identifies with the second coming, ‘to bring in the promised blessings for Israel” (ibid.).

The Kingdom was reaffirmed in Acts by Paul.

It was reaffirmed by Paul in Thessalonica. “Now when they had traveled through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. And according to Paul’s custom, he went to them, and for three Sabbaths reasoned with them from the Scriptures, explaining and giving evidence that the Christ had to suffer and rise again from the dead, and saying, ‘This Jesus whom I am proclaiming to you is the Christ.’ And some of them were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, along with a great multitude of the God-fearing Greeks and a number of the leading women. But the Jews, becoming jealous and taking along some wicked men from the market place, formed a mob and set the city in an uproar; and coming upon the house of Jason, they were seeking to bring them out to the people. And when they did not find them, they began dragging Jason and some brethren before the city authorities, shouting, ‘These men who have upset the world have come here also; and Jason has welcomed them, and they all act contrary to the decrees of Caesar, saying that there is another king, Jesus.’ And they stirred up the crowd and the city authorities who heard these things. And when they had received a pledge from Jason and the others, they released them” (Acts 17:1–9).

It was also reaffirmed by Paul before Agrippa. “And Agrippa said to Paul, ‘You are permitted to speak for yourself.’ Then Paul stretched out his hand and proceeded to make his defense: ‘In regard to all the things of which I am accused by the Jews, I consider myself fortunate, King Agrippa, that I am about to make my defense before you today; especially because you are an expert in all customs and questions among the Jews; therefore I beg you to listen to me patiently. So then, all Jews know my manner of life from my youth up, which from the beginning was spent among my own nation and at Jerusalem; since they have known about me for a long time previously, if they are willing to testify, that I lived as a Pharisee according to the strictest sect of our religion. And now I am standing trial for the hope of the promise made by God to our fathers; the promise to which our twelve tribes hope to attain, as they earnestly serve God night and day. And for this hope, O King, I am being accused by Jews” (Acts 26:1–7).

And, it was reaffirmed by Paul before the leading Jews in Rome. “And when we entered Rome, Paul was allowed to stay by himself, with the soldier who was guarding him. And it happened that after three days he called together those who were the leading men of the Jews, and when they had come together, he began saying to them, ‘Brethren, though I had done nothing against our people, or the customs of our fathers, yet I was delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans. And when they had examined me, they were willing to release me because there was no ground for putting me to death. But when the Jews objected, I was forced to appeal to Caesar; not that I had any accusation against my nation. For this reason therefore, I requested to see you and to speak with you, for I am wearing this chain for the sake of the hope of Israel.’ And they said to him, ‘We have neither received letters from Judea concerning you, nor have any of the brethren come here and reported or spoken anything bad about you. But we desire to hear from you what your views are; for concerning this sect, it is known to us that it is spoken against everywhere.’ And when they had set a day for him, they came to him at his lodging in large numbers; and he was explaining to them by solemnly testifying about the kingdom of God, and trying to persuade them concerning Jesus, from both the Law of Moses and from the Prophets, from morning until evening. And some were being persuaded by the things spoken, but others would not believe. And when they did not agree with one another, they began leaving after Paul had spoken one parting word, ‘The Holy Spirit rightly spoke through Isaiah the prophet to your fathers, saying, “GO TO THIS PEOPLE AND SAY, ‘YOU WILL KEEP ON HEARING, BUT WILL NOT UNDERSTAND; AND YOU WILL KEEP ON SEEING, BUT WILL NOT PERCEIVE; FOR THE HEART OF THIS PEOPLE HAS BECOME DULL, AND WITH THEIR EARS THEY SCARCELY HEAR, AND THEY HAVE CLOSED THEIR EYES; LEST THEY SHOULD SEE WITH THEIR EYES, AND HEAR WITH THEIR EARS, AND UNDERSTAND WITH THEIR HEART AND RETURN, AND I SHOULD HEAL THEM.”’ Let it be known to you therefore, that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will also listen.’ [And when he had spoken these words, the Jews departed, having a great dispute among themselves.] And he stayed two full years in his own rented quarters, and was welcoming all who came to him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with all openness, unhindered” (Acts 28:16–31). “The apostles never were compelled to combat the Jewish idea of the Messiah, or of the Kingdom. We have a noted instance of this in Paul, who disputed with the Jews (e.g. Acts 28:17-29), ‘expounded and testified the Kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets.’ He speaks of ‘the hope of Israel,’ ‘preaching the Kingdom of God,’ and never once intimates that the Jews were mistaken in their views of the Kingdom as derived from the Covenant” (Peters, TTK, 1:469). “‘for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain’ (Acts 28:20). This ‘hope’ was a very specific thing, referred to in Acts four times (cf. 23:6; 24:15; 26:6-7). It involved (a) the hope of the coming of the Messianic Kingdom as set forth in Old Testament prophecy; (b) the hope of a resurrection of those Israelites who had died, to the end that they might participate in the Kingdom (cf. Ezek. 37:11-38)” (McClain, GK, p. 421). “Paul declares that he is chained for the hope of Israel, a reference to the Messianic Hope and not the Church” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 688).

Reaffirmation of the Kingdom in the Epistles

The Kingdom is reaffirmed in the New Testament epistles by Paul, James, Peter, John and Jude.

Reaffirmation by Paul

The Kingdom is reaffirmed in all of Paul’s epistles except Philemon: in Romans, First Corinthians, Second Corinthians, Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, First Thessalonians, Second Thessalonians, First

Timothy, Second Timothy, Titus and Hebrews (if authored by Paul). “This subject of the election and the call of the Gentiles, with the engrafting on the principle of faith, fully accounts why Paul enters so largely into the matter of, and lays so much stress on, the doctrine of justification through faith. The contrast between his writings and that of the other apostles in this particular is so great that some have concluded it—erroneously—to be ‘another Gospel.’ But the key is to be found in his being specially appointed as the apostle of the Gentiles. His very mission made this a very significant and highly important topic, and consequently, in faithfulness to his calling, he enlarges upon it” (Peters, TTK, 1:411). “...the three aspects in which Paul represents Christ... (a) sub-angelic humiliation; (b) heavenly exaltation; (c) earthly dominion” (ibid., 2:195). “In brief, every Epistle that Paul wrote is in perfect agreement with our doctrinal position” (ibid., 3:363). “Paul... a teacher of this identical Kingdom, delayed... until the Second Advent” (ibid., p. 503) “The most frequent reference to the ‘kingdom’ or the ‘kingdom of God’ in the Epistles is a reference to the present form of the kingdom in which individuals by faith in Jesus Christ, and because of His death and resurrection, receive salvation and the gift of eternal life. All these are a part of the kingdom of God” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 284). “The biblical covenants dominated the thinking of the writers of the Old Testament Scripture. And while those covenants play a prominent role in the Gospels, little reference is made to the covenants in the New Testament Epistles. This observation supports the fact that during this present age, in which a new form of the kingdom is being developed, God has temporarily set aside the nation Israel, His covenant people, and is developing a new kingdom program” (ibid., p. 285).

In Romans Paul lays out an extensive description of Israel’s past, present and future, particularly in chapters nine through eleven. “Paul informs us that the nation of Israel will yet be restored to its place of blessing under God. To set the context, Romans 9-11 is about Israel’s past blessings (9), present rejection (10), and future national restoration (11). In 9:3-4, Paul makes it evident he is speaking of literal physical Israel, not any kind of ‘spiritual’ Israel, and in 10:1, he declares: ‘My heart’s desire and prayer to God for the Israelites is that they may be saved.’ They are said to be the ‘nation’ (v. 19) to whom Moses wrote and the ‘Israel’ to whom Isaiah prophesied (v. 21). Further, in Romans 11, Paul calls them ‘His [God’s] people,’ of whom Paul is one (v. 1), that God has not rejected forever (vv. 1-2 NKJV), because ‘God’s gifts and his call are irrevocable’ (v. 29)... The nation as a whole will be converted and restored, just as God promised, when Messiah returns” (Geisler, ST, 4:57). “Chapters 9-11 of Paul’s letter to the Romans form a unit wherein he deals with the question ‘Has God cast away His people?’ (11:1 NKJV); Romans 9 deals with Israel’s past, Romans 10 with Israel’s present, and Romans 11 with Israel’s future, including a description of the process of rejection, retribution, and restoration” (ibid., p. 485). “God has not, will not, and cannot cast them away (11:1-2, 29). God’s unconditional promises will be fulfilled; the nation as a whole will be converted and restored when their Messiah returns (vv. 24-26)” (ibid., p. 536). “...Israel’s election in Romans 9... Israel’s defection in Romans 10... Israel’s salvation in Romans 11” (Horner, FI, p. 255) “concerning His Son, who was born of a descendant of David according to the flesh” (Rom. 1:3) “For the anxious longing of the creation waits eagerly for the revealing of the sons of God. For the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will, but because of Him who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself also will be set free from its slavery to corruption into the freedom of the glory of the children of God” (Rom. 8:19-21). “who are Israelites, to whom belongs the adoption as sons and the glory and the covenants and the giving of the Law and the temple service and the promises” (Rom. 9:4) “...the adoption, by which Israel became the national son of God” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 506). “There are five such promises: first, an ‘eternal national entity’ so that ‘Israel need never fear for her national existence’; second, an ‘eternal land’ so ‘the right and title to it have irrevocably been given to them by God’; third, an ‘eternal King’ so David will ‘never lack for a son to reign upon his throne’; fourth, an ‘eternal kingdom’ so the Messiah’s dominion will be ‘an everlasting one’; and fifth, ‘an eternal throne’ so David’s ‘throne would exist forever’” [quoting Charles Feinberg, Israel, pp. 117-126] (ibid., p. 507). “Paul, when listing Israel’s privileges, puts them in the present tense. It is better to view these privileges as still belonging to Israel, but the enjoyment of these privileges is based upon obedience” (ibid., p. 515). “‘the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the temple service, and the promises’ (Rom. 9:4). This is not the language of superseded Judaism” (Horner, FI, p. 309). “You will say to me then, ‘Why does He still find fault? For who resists His will?’ On the contrary, who are you, O man, who answers back to God? The thing molded will not say to the molder, ‘Why did you make me like this,’ will it? Or does not the potter have a right over the clay, to make from the same lump one vessel for honorable use, and another for common use? What if God, although willing to demonstrate His wrath and to make His power known, endured with much patience vessels of wrath prepared for destruction? And He did so in order that He might make known the riches of His glory upon vessels of mercy, which He prepared beforehand for glory, even us, whom He also called, not from among Jews only, but also from among Gentiles” (Rom. 9:19–24). “Paul’s discussion of the potter and the clay in Romans 9:19-24 is in the context of Israel’s national election and in keeping with the Old Testament motif” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 823). “I say then, God has not rejected His people, has He? May it never be! For I too am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. God has not rejected His people whom He foreknew. Or do you not know what the Scripture says in the passage about Elijah, how he pleads with God against Israel” (Rom. 11:1-2)? “I say then, they did not stumble so as to fall, did they? May it never be! But by their transgression salvation has come to the Gentiles, to make them jealous” (Rom. 11:11). “Samuel Wilkinson [The Israel Promises and their Fulfillment, p. 170]... ‘The whole confusion arises from making partial and temporary deprivation of blessing to mean final and full repudiation.’ Yet the very purpose of Romans 11 is to stress that the fall of Israel is neither full, final, nor fatal” (Feinberg, M, p. 243). “Now if their transgression be riches for the world and their failure be riches for the Gentiles, how much more will their fulfillment be” (Rom. 11:12)! “(a) ‘Now if the fall of them (b) be the riches of the world, and (a) the diminishing of them, (b) the riches of the Gentiles: (c) how much more their fullness.’ Observe of whom the Apostle predicates this ‘fall’ and ‘diminishing,’ and it is of the same party (not another as the believing portion) that this ‘fullness’ is stated” (Peters, TTK, 2:69). “Now, obviously, there can be no fullness of Israel if they have no future” (Walvoord, MK, p. 167). “Commenting on 11:12, Hoyt [in Herman Hoyt, First Christian Theology, pp. 125-126] states that the previous passage points out that Israel’s fall led to Gentile salvation. This leads to a logical inference: if the fall of Israel ‘resulted in God turning to the larger world of mankind with the riches of His grace,’ then logically ‘the fulness of Israel will unfold in benefits to the Gentiles far beyond anything ever dreamed’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 516). “The ‘salvation of the Jews will produce such an amazing response from among Gentiles that there will be a world revival.’ Jews will evangelize the Gentiles both in the Tribulation and in the Millennium, resulting in millions being ‘swept into the kingdom of God’” [quoting Hoyt, First Christian Theology, pp. 125-126] (ibid., p. 517). “But I am speaking to you who are Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle of Gentiles, I magnify my ministry, if somehow I might move to jealousy my fellow countrymen and save some of them. For if their rejection be the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead? And if the first piece of dough be holy, the lump is also; and if the root be holy, the branches are too. But if some of the branches were broken off, and you, being a wild olive, were grafted in among them and became partaker with them of the rich root of the olive tree, do not be arrogant toward the branches; but if you are arrogant, remember that it is not you who supports the root, but the root supports you. You will say then, ‘Branches were broken off so that I might be grafted in.’ Quite right, they were broken off for their unbelief, but you stand by your faith. Do not be conceited, but fear; for if God did not spare the natural branches, neither will He spare you. Behold then the kindness and severity of God; to those who fell, severity, but to you, God’s kindness, if you continue in His kindness; otherwise you also will be cut off. And they also, if they do not continue in their unbelief, will be grafted in; for God is able to graft them in again. For if you were cut off from what is by nature a wild olive tree, and were grafted contrary to nature into a cultivated olive tree, how much more shall these who are the natural branches be grafted into their own olive tree” (Rom. 11:13-24)? “Gentile ‘high-mindedness’... Ignoring the express covenant language, and mistaking the Kingdom itself—two fatal doctrinal mistakes” (Peters, TTK, 1:359) “Well; by their unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by thy faith. Be not highminded, but fear” (Rom. 11:2, ASV) “Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear” (Rom. 11:2, KJV) “...the Gentile ‘high-mindedness,’ against which we are cautioned by Paul (Rom. 11)” (Peters, TTK, 1:426) “High-minded Gentilism will not delay or alter God’s purposes” (ibid., 2:73). “...the ‘Wild’ Olive branches were grafted in ‘among’ them [vs. 17—ed.], not ‘instead of’” (Larkin, DT, p. 62) “They were not broken off that the Gentiles might be grafted in, but they were broken off because of ‘UNBELIEF’” (ibid., p. 158) “The ‘GOOD Olive Tree’ is not rooted up and destroyed and a ‘WILD OLIVE TREE’ planted in its place, but it still remains alive and gives life to both the ‘Good’ and ‘Wild’ Olive branches” (ibid.). “Those Jews who rejected Christ and thus broke away from the religion of Abraham, are the branches, who, through unbelief, are broken off” (ibid.). “Paul knew what he was talking about when he said that the grafting of the ‘Wild’ Olive on the ‘Good’ Olive Tree was ‘CONTRARY TO NATURE.’ From this we see that the injection of Gentilism into Judaism is not beneficial to Judaism. That Judaism is of purer stock than Gentilism, and for the purification of Judaism, Gentilism, or the ‘Wild’ Olive branches, must be removed, or cut off, from the ‘Good’ Olive Tree, and be replaced by the grafting back again of the ‘Natural Branches.’ Rom. 11:24. By Gentilism we mean that part of the Gentile world known as Christendom, or the professing Church, as described in the Kingdom of Heaven parables of Matt. 13. And it is only the Laodicean part of it that God says He will ‘SPUE OUT OF HIS MOUTH’ (Rev. 3:16), that as ‘Wild’ Olive branches God will remove from the ‘Good’ Olive Tree, for all true believers who have been regenerated by the Holy Spirit, and that make up the true Church the ‘Body of Christ’... cannot be displaced” (ibid.). “God has not ‘Cast Away’ His people Israel... He will revive the broken off branches and graft them back again” (ibid.). “This parable teaches us that we are not to look upon the unbelieving Jew as a cast-off and withered branch only fit for fire-wood, but we are to consider that his ‘casting away’ as well as his ‘blindness’ is only temporary, and that he will again take up his position among the nations of the earth” (ibid.). “The ‘Olive Tree’ then is a symbol of Israel’s RELIGIOUS Privileges, and it is worthy of note that while Israel is compared to trees, their oppressors, the Gentile Nations, are spoken of in the Scriptures as WILD BEASTS. Dan. 7:1-28” (ibid.). “The tree represents the root of Abrahamic blessing... all can partake of the blessings of the Abrahamic covenant in salvation through Christ, the Seed of Abraham, yet not necessarily belong to the New Testament church” (Feinberg, M, p. 237). “In the analogy of the olive tree, Paul was viewing the root as the covenant that put Israel in a privileged position” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 286) “Israel’s stumbling was for Gentile salvation, but the purpose of Gentile salvation is Jewish salvation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 682). “Israel is the owner of the Olive Tree, but Israel is not the tree itself. The root of this place of blessing is the Abrahamic Covenant” (ibid., p. 784). “...if Gentiles are to remain in the place of blessing, they must continue in faith... He is not dealing with individual believers and unbelievers, but with nationalities of Jews and Gentiles... Gentiles are warned against boasting over the natural branches, for they are not self-sustained; they are sustained by the root: the Abrahamic Covenant, which is a Jewish covenant” (ibid., p. 785). “This Olive Tree, this place of blessing, belongs to Israel. How so? The place of blessing is based upon the four unconditional covenants God made with Israel. Because these are Jewish covenants, the place of blessing belongs rightfully to the Jews... their own olive tree. The fact that Israel owns the tree shows that Israel is not the tree, for the owner and that which is owned are distinct entities” (ibid., p. 786). “The Olive Tree is neither Israel nor the Church, but it is ‘the place of privilege’ or the place of blessing. [quoting Ryrie, Premillennial Faith, pp. 65-67]. (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 500). “For if you were cut off from what is by nature a wild olive tree, and were grafted contrary to nature into a cultivated olive tree, how much more shall these who are the natural branches be grafted into their own olive tree” (Rom. 11:24)? “As Ryrie [in Premillennial Faith, pp.

65-67] states, ‘the fullness of blessing for Israel will be “much more.” This statement alone is conclusive evidence ‘that Israel will have a future’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 500). “‘...Israel who is of the good tree naturally be grafted back in.’ The point of this passage is that someday they will be.” [quoting Walvoord, The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 172-173] (ibid., p. 502). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “In describing how long this blindness or hardness or casting away is to continue, he emphatically limits it to ‘until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in.’ This may denote either until the filling up of the predetermined elect out of the Gentiles is accomplished, or until, as in Christ’s declaration, the filling up, the complement of ‘the times of the Gentiles’ is finished. In either case the rejection of the nation is not final but bounded by a definite period known to God” (Peters, TTK, 2:70). “The ‘veil’ is still over the nation. However individuals may accept of personal salvation in believing, the nation, as such, bears a strong dislike to Jesus of Nazareth, and regards with disdain the interpretation of prophecies which would link the ultimate forgiveness and glory of the nation with a reception of this same Jesus. It is too humiliating for faith to accept, being at present regarded as a degradation for them to owe their final recovery and restoration to, ‘the crucified One’” (ibid., p. 666). “the Gentiles, in order to participate in the promises covenanted to the Jews, must be grafted in, adopted... becoming the seed of Abraham and thus inherit the promises with Abraham; and that, when this incorporation of Gentiles (produced by Jewish defection) has been sufficiently carried out to raise up a seed unto Abraham (for Theocratic purposes) then will the elect Jewish nation be restored to its covenanted Theocratic-Davidic position, thus vindicating and establishing its election before all nations” (ibid., 3:411). “The calling of the Gentiles, which had begun in earnest (Rom. 9:24-33), is temporary until the time that the full number of Gentiles is completed” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 639). “They were hardened in part until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in. The Greek word translated as fulness means ‘a full number’ or ‘a complete number.’ In other words, God has a set number of Gentiles that He has destined to come into the place of blessing, the Olive Tree of verses 16-24. After the fulness of the Gentiles has come in, after that set number is reached, then all Israel will be saved” (ibid., p. 785). “The mystery of this passage is not that of Israel’s national salvation, for that was revealed in the Old Testament. The mystery is that of a partial, temporary hardening of Israel until a full number of Gentiles is reached. The Israel of this verse must refer to national Israel for that has been its meaning the other ten times Israel has been used since chapter nine (which even Covenant Theologians admit) and there is no reason to make this verse the one exception, especially since it makes perfect sense and is a contrast to the Gentiles in the previous verse” (ibid.). “As Paul brings to a conclusion his lengthy treatment of the place of Israel in the program of God, he points out that the present blindness and hardening of Israel is not a permanent one. It is temporary, until the full number of Gentiles preordained for the Body of the Messiah is reached (vs. 25). It is then that the hardening of Israel will be removed, and all Israel living at that time will be saved (vv. 26-27)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 411). “...until—this is the key word... The mystery is that of a partial, temporary hardening of Israel until a full, set number of Gentiles is reached, and this is something that was not revealed anywhere in the Old Testament. The Greek word for fullness means a ‘set number,’ and Paul’s point is that God has set a number of Gentiles He intends to bring into the Body” (ibid., p. 684). “Acts 15:14 [“Simeon has related how God first concerned Himself about taking from among the Gentiles a people for His name.”]... call out from among the Gentiles a people for His Name. This calling out from among the Gentiles will continue until the fulness, that set number of Gentiles, is reached... Then God will deal with Israel as a nation again, rather than just with Jewish individuals. This national dealing will lead to all Israel’s being saved” (ibid., p. 789). “Of course, not all Jews who ever lived came out of Egypt, but every Jew who lived at that time did come out of Egypt. This verse should be interpreted in the same way: every Jew living at that time will be saved. The mystery of this passage is not that of Israel’s national salvation, for that was revealed in the Old Testament. The mystery is that of a partial, temporary hardening of Israel until the full number of Gentiles is reached” (ibid.). “Through the Messiah’s rejection, God would temporarily set aside His dealings with national Israel and attempt to provoke her to jealousy by centering on the Gentiles’ salvation. Israel would not be restored as a nation until the ‘fulness of the Gentiles’ (Rom. 11:25 NKJV) was complete, for, said Paul, ‘I do not want you to be ignorant of this mystery, brothers, so that you may not be conceited: Israel has experienced a hardening in part until the full number of the Gentiles has come in’ (ibid. NIV)” (Geisler, ST, 4:483). “Paul... ‘leaves no doubt about what he wants his readers to learn from this mystery: to stop thinking so highly of themselves in comparison with Jews (v. 25a). We who are Gentiles should likewise take these verses as a reminder that we are only part of the great salvation-historical plan of God and that that plan has its climax in the salvation of Israel” [quoting D. Moo, The Epistle to the Romans, p. 713]

(Horner, FI, p. 259). “David Stern commented [in Jewish New Testament Commentary, p. 747], ‘Christians are indeed a chosen people set aside for God to possess—not by way of superceding the Jews as God’s people, but by way of being joined to them by faith in the same God and in the Jewish Messiah. A so-called “Christian” who opposes or looks down on the Jews as merely God’s “former” people has missed the point altogether’” (ibid., p. 288). (See also our discussion of the removal of Israel’s blindness in the section Events Just Prior to the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation.) “and thus all Israel will be saved; just as it is written, ‘The Deliverer will come from Zion, He will remove ungodliness from Jacob’” (Rom. 11:26). “And a Redeemer will come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith Jehovah” (Isa. 59:20). “To make the Israel of verse 26 mean anything other than a reference to Israel’s national salvation is ‘exegetical violence’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 112). “Cox [in Biblical Studies, pp. 77-78] does limit the all Israel to be only the remnant, destroying Paul’s own contrast already begun in chapter nine between Israel the whole and Israel the remnant. To keep this contrast intact then, 11:26 does refer to a future national salvation of Israel in contrast to the present partial salvation of Israel. Cox also admits that if ‘taken literally at face value,’ 11:26 teaches that every Israelite is assured salvation; but he is wrong in saying that the verse would require the salvation of every Jew ‘past, present, and future.’ If this were the case, then it would be an ‘unbiblical teaching’ as Cox states. This salvation of all Israel is only after the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, so it only includes all Jews living at that time and not all Jews of all time” (ibid., p. 221). “Throughout Romans 9-11, Israel is consistently used for Jews in contrast to Gentiles” (ibid., p. 222). “...he [William Hendriksen, Israel in Prophecy] misses Paul’s contrast. During the period of Gentile salvation, only part of Israel is being saved; but once the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, thus bringing the period of Gentile salvation to an end, then it will not be a part of Israel that will be saved, but all Israel shall be saved” (ibid., p. 223). “The all Israel is not just the sum total of all remnants, but all Israel is in contrast to partial Israel, and so refers to a national salvation following the fulness of the Gentiles” (ibid., p. 226). “Ladd’s wish that Paul had said much more about Israel’s salvation is not really necessary. All the details are available in the Old Testament, and Paul is simply drawing on some of them. Because of his position that any such belief must be based on the New Testament, Ladd will not use the Old Testament to fill in the gaps” (ibid., p. 305). “While it is true that at the present time the believing remnant is only a small part of Israel the whole, at the time of the eschatological kingdom, all Israel and the remnant of Israel become the same (Mic. 2:12), because all Israel shall be saved (Rom. 11:26)” (ibid., p. 308). “I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather the remnant of Israel; I will put them together as the sheep of Bozrah, as a flock in the midst of their pasture; they shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men” (Mic. 2:12). “Since Paul ‘connects the salvation of Israel with the appearance of the “Deliverer,” this event will occur at the second coming” [quoting McClain, Romans, p. 202] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 549) “Israel... the messianic kingdom, which was delayed (but never annulled) by their rejection. When Messiah returns and is accepted by national Israel, then ‘all Israel will be saved’ (v. 26); this will be at the end of the tribulation before the beginning of the millennium” (Geisler, ST, 4:487). “Romans 11 crucially reveals that even after the church has been established, there is still a future for national Israel—they will one day be re-ingrafted, restored, and ‘saved’ (v. 26). This refers to those of the chosen nation who are left, namely, the remnant who accept Christ as Messiah, after some two-thirds are destroyed in the Tribulation judgments” (ibid., p. 509). “When Messiah returns and is accepted by Israel, ‘all Israel will be saved’ (Rom. 11:26); that is, all who are believers (cf. Rev. 14:3-4 [‘And I saw, and behold, the Lamb standing on the mount Zion, and with him a hundred and forty and four thousand, having his name, and the name of his Father, written on their foreheads...’]) and are left at the end of the Tribulation and the beginning of the Millennium” (ibid., p. 545). “To a plain man, untrammelled by traditional interpretation, the words of this prophecy appear very simple. Israel shall be saved: that means the Jewish nation and people. It cannot possibly mean the Gentiles, because they are mentioned in the verse which directly precedes our text, in direct contrast to the Jews. “Blindness in part is happened to Israel, until; the fullness of the Gentiles be come in” (Rom. 11:25). All Israel: that means the whole people or nation of the Jews. It cannot possibly mean a small elect remnant. In this very chapter the Israelitish nation and the election out of Israel are mentioned in contradistinction to one another. “Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it; and the rest were blinded” (Rom. 11:7)” [quoting J. C. Ryle, Are You Ready For The End Of Time?, pp. 145-146] (Horner, FI, p. 346) “And this is My covenant with them, When I take away their sins.’ From the standpoint of the gospel they are enemies for your sake, but from the standpoint of God’s choice they are beloved for the sake of the fathers” (Rom. 11:27-28) “Therefore by this shall the iniquity of Jacob be forgiven, and this is all the fruit of taking away his sin: that he maketh all the stones of the altar as chalk-stones that are beaten in sunder, so that the Asherim and the sun-images shall rise no more” (Isa. 27:9). “And a Redeemer will come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith Jehovah. And as for me, this is my covenant with them, saith Jehovah: my Spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy seed, nor out of the mouth of thy seed’s seed, saith Jehovah, from henceforth and for ever” (Isa. 59:20–21). “[Rom. 11] Verses 26b-27 give the evidence of Israel’s future salvation from the Old Testament by quoting Isaiah 59:20-21 and 27:9” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 790). “Eventually, God must bring the whole nation to Himself because they are beloved for the fathers sake; He has made covenant promises to them that He must fulfill” (ibid.). “...beloved enemies (Rom. 11:28)” (Horner, FI, p. 68) “As Matt Waymeyer [in ‘The Dual Status of Israel in Romans 11:28,’ MSJ, (Spring 2005), p. 63] points out, ‘It is difficult—if not impossible—to understand these two clauses as describing the church. In what sense can those of the Body of Christ be described as the “enemies” of God?’” (ibid., p. 294)? “In this OT setting... Israel after the Spirit was the true Israel having circumcision of the heart as well as the flesh... It would be totally incorrect to say that Israel after the flesh had no national or territorial identity in the sight of God in that historic setting... ‘You are not going to take possession of their [the Canaanites’] land because of your righteousness or your integrity... in order to keep the promise He swore to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.’ (Deut. 9:5-6). Israel’s possession of the land was to be based, not on obedience but on covenant promise alone... The basis then of entrance into the promised land was solely God’s covenant faithfulness, that is sovereign grace... We are repeatedly told that God’s persistence with national Israel, from the very beginning of its redemption, is for the sake of ‘Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.’... ‘for the sake of the fathers’ (Rom. 11:28)” (ibid., p. 300). (See also our discussion of Israel’s four unconditional covenants in our chapter Covenants of the Kingdom, and our discussion of the forgiveness and regeneration of Israel in the Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation section of our chapter The Great Tribulation.) “for the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable” (Rom. 11:29). “Since the gifts and the calling of God are without repentance, then God never rejected the Jewish nation and the real problem is Jewish unbelief” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 116). “The calling has to do with Israel’s national election and the gifts are the covenantal promises which are the result of that election. Neither are subject to being recalled; they are irrevocable” (ibid., p. 786). “The calling is Israel’s national election; the gifts are the covenantal promises, one of which is the national salvation of Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 685). “For God has shut up all in disobedience that He might show mercy to all” (Rom. 11:32). “God has shut up all that He might have mercy on all, and that is the summary of the gospel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 786). “If anyone is saved at all it is by God’s mercy” (ibid.). “Oh, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are His judgments and unfathomable His ways! For who has known the mind of the Lord, or who became His counselor? Or who has first given to Him that it might be paid back to him again? For from Him and through Him and to Him are all things. To Him be the glory forever. Amen” (Rom. 11:33-36). “Indeed, if we fully understand God’s dealings with the Jewish people, if we clearly understand God’s plan and program for Israel, and if we appreciate it from God’s standpoint we, too, will have to say the doxology that Paul said: O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 787)! “Paul concludes his Israelology with a doxology in verses 33-36” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 791). “For I say that Christ has become a servant to the circumcision on behalf of the truth of God to confirm the promises given to the fathers, and for the Gentiles to glorify God for His mercy; as it is written, ‘Therefore I will give praise to Thee among the Gentiles, And I will sing to Thy name.’ And again he says, ‘Rejoice, O Gentiles, with His people.’ And again, ‘Praise the Lord all you Gentiles, And let all the peoples praise Him.’ And again Isaiah says, There shall come the root of Jesse, And He who arises to rule over the Gentiles, In Him shall the Gentiles hope” (Rom. 15:8-12). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the root of Jesse, that standeth for an ensign of the peoples, unto him shall the nations seek; and his resting-place shall be glorious” (Isa. 11:10). “Rom. 15:8: ‘Now this I say that Jesus Christ was a minister of the circumcision (Israel) for the truth of God, to confirm the promises made unto the fathers.’ He did not come to annul those promises; but He did come to confirm them” (Chafer, KHP, 24%).

In First Corinthians Paul exhorts the Christians at Corinth to eagerly anticipate the future ‘day of our Lord Jesus Christ,’ at which their resurrection and translation is to take place, and their subsequent reigning as kings with Jesus. “so that you are not lacking in any gift, awaiting eagerly the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall also confirm you to the end, blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Cor. 1:7-8). “You are already filled, you have already become rich, you have become kings without us; and I would indeed that you had become kings so that we also might reign with you” (1 Cor. 4:8). “I have decided to deliver such a one to Satan for the destruction of his flesh, that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus" (1 Cor. 5:5). "Or do you not know that the saints will judge the world? And if the world is judged by you, are you not competent to constitute the smallest law courts" (1 Cor. 6:2)? "For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until He comes" (1 Cor. 11:26). "and last of all, as it were to one untimely born, He appeared to me also" (1 Cor. 15:8). "What Paul means is, that he was born before the time, that his was a premature birth, and that his 'New Birth' is a type of the Birth of the Jewish Nation when the Lord returns, and not of the 'New Birth' of a Christian. As Paul saw the glory of the Lord, and heard his voice, so shall it be with the Jewish Nation assembled at Jerusalem when Christ shall reveal Himself on the Mount of Olives at His return" (Larkin, DT, p. 66). "But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, after that those who are Christ's at His coming, then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that will be abolished is death" (1 Cor. 15:23-26). "Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality. But when this perishable will have put on the imperishable, and this mortal will have put on immortality, then will come about the saying that is written, 'Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?' The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law; but thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Cor. 15:51-57). "If anyone does not love the Lord, let him be accursed. Maranatha" (1 Cor. 16:22). "'Maranatha'... Aramaic... 'our Lord come'" (Showers, M, p. 130).

In Second Corinthians Paul again encourages the saints at Corinth to look forward to 'the day of our Lord Jesus' and their raising with Him. "just as you also partially did understand us, that we are your reason to be proud as you also are ours, in the day of our Lord Jesus" (2 Cor. 1:14). "knowing that He who raised the Lord Jesus will raise us also with Jesus and will present us with you" (2 Cor. 4:14).

In Galatians Paul affirms that the Abrahamic Covenant has not been nullified. "Now the promises were spoken to Abraham and to his seed. He does not say, 'And to seeds,' as referring to many, but rather to one, ‘And to your seed,’ that is, Christ. What I am saying is this: the Law, which came four hundred and thirty years later, does not invalidate a covenant previously ratified by God, so as to nullify the promise” (Gal. 3:16-17).

In Ephesians Paul speaks of this age and of the ages to come (in which God will show the surpassing riches of His grace toward the church in Christ Jesus) and the administration suitable to the fulness of the times, wherein all things in the heavens and upon the earth will be summed up in Christ. “He made known to us the mystery of His will, according to His kind intention which He purposed in Him with a view to an administration suitable to the fulness of the times, that is, the summing up of all things in Christ, things in the heavens and things upon the earth. In Him” (Eph. 1:9-10) “which He brought about in Christ, when He raised Him from the dead, and seated Him at His right hand in the heavenly places, far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this age, but also in the one to come” (Eph. 1:20-21). “in order that in the ages to come He might show the surpassing riches of His grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus” (Eph. 2:7).

In Philippians Paul eagerly anticipates “the day of Christ,” when the Savior will come from heaven and transform believers’ bodies so they conform to His glorious body. “so that you may approve the things that are excellent, in order to be sincere and blameless until the day of Christ” (Phil. 1:10) “holding fast the word of life, so that in the day of Christ I may have cause to glory because I did not run in vain nor toil in vain” (Phil. 2:16). “For our citizenship is in heaven, from which also we eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who will transform the body of our humble state into conformity with the body of His glory, by the exertion of the power that He has even to subject all things to Himself” (Phil. 3:20-21).

In Colossians Paul says that when Christ is revealed, Christians will also be revealed with Him in glory. “When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory” (Col. 3:4).

In First Thessalonians Paul had much to say about Jesus’ future coming, the Rapture of the church and His delivering the church from the wrath to come. “and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, that is Jesus, who delivers us from the wrath to come” (1 Thes. 1:10). “For who is our hope or joy or crown of exultation? Is it not even you, in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming” (1 Thes. 2:19)? “so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints" (1 Thes. 3:13). "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord" (1 Thes. 4:14-17). "For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, 'Peace and safety!' then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief" (1 Thes. 5:2-4) "For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Thes. 5:9) "Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved complete, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is He who calls you, and He also will bring it to pass" (1 Thes. 5:23-24). "Why then, seeing that these Thessalonians are charged by Neander and others as holding to 'Jewish forms' of the Kingdom, did not the apostle, when on the subject of the resurrection, refute their Jewish notions of the Kingdom" (Peters, TTK, 2:243)?

In Second Thessalonians Paul describes the last-days apostasy, the removal of the restrainer, relief for those who are afflicted, the gathering of the saints in Jesus and their glorification in Him, the revealing of the man of lawlessness, the day of the Lord with its destruction of the unbelievers, and the slaying of the man of lawlessness. "For after all it is only just for God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, and to give relief to you who are afflicted and to us as well when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire, dealing out retribution to those who do not know God and to those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. And these will pay the penalty of eternal destruction, away from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power, when He comes to be glorified in His saints on that day, and to be marveled at among all who have believed — for our testimony to you was believed" (2 Thes. 1:6-10). "Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false, in order that they all may be judged who did not believe the truth, but took pleasure in wickedness” (2 Thes. 2:1-12). “Paul’s teaching fully corresponds with that of Peter. Thus e.g. in the 1st and 2nd chs. of 2 Thess. he unites the Kingdom with the Advent of the Lord Jesus, and, instead of a present covenanted Kingdom existing, predicts that before the still future ‘day of Christ’ is manifested there will be a falling away, and the Son of perdition, the Antichrist, will be revealed” (Peters, TTK, 1:439).

In First Timothy Paul mentioned the future appearing of Jesus. “that you keep the commandment without stain or reproach until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, which He will bring about at the proper time — He who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords; who alone possesses immortality and dwells in unapproachable light; whom no man has seen or can see. To Him be honor and eternal dominion! Amen” (1 Tim. 6:14-16).

In Second Timothy Paul referred to Jesus as a descendant of David, referred to His appearing and His Kingdom, and anticipated reigning with Him. “Remember Jesus Christ, risen from the dead, descendant of David, according to my gospel, for which I suffer hardship even to imprisonment as a criminal; but the word of God is not imprisoned. For this reason I endure all things for the sake of those who are chosen, that they also may obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus and with it eternal glory. It is a trustworthy statement: For if we died with Him, we shall also live with Him; If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us” (2 Tim. 2:8-12) “I solemnly charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His kingdom” (2 Tim. 4:1) “in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8).

In Titus Paul anticipated the “blessed hope” and the appearing of Jesus’ glory. “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:13)

In Hebrews the writer (Paul?) of the book made references to the promises made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the Hebrew prophets, the new covenant with Israel, Jesus’ Second Coming, the world to come in subjection to the Son of Man, the powers of the age to come, and the kingdom that believers are to receive that cannot be shaken. “the Epistle to the Hebrews... Of course, when men spiritualize God’s promises and survey them only from a modern mystical standpoint there must necessarily be ambiguity, but let any one place himself on covenanted ground and then he will see the clearness of the argument, (1) to show that Jesus is the Messiah, (2) that the promises will be fulfilled in and by Him, (3) that even as Priest He makes provision for their fulfillment, (4) that His very death ensures the fulfillment of the covenant, (5) and that such a realization of covenant promises will be experienced at His Sec. Coming unto Salvation. Thus this epistle falls in fully, clearly, and powerfully with the other portions of Scripture” (Peters, TTK, 1:440). “This Epistle has been attributed to Paul, Barnabas, Clement, Luke, Mark, Aquila, Silas, and Apollos... the author cannot be dogmatically asserted” (ibid., 3:363). “God, after He spoke long ago to the fathers in the prophets in many portions and in many ways” (Heb. 1:1) “For He did not subject to angels the world to come, concerning which we are speaking. But one has testified somewhere, saying, ‘What is man, that Thou rememberest him? Or the son of man, that Thou art concerned about him? Thou hast made him for a little while lower than the angels; Thou hast crowned him with glory and honor, And hast appointed him over the works of Thy hands; Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet.’ For in subjecting all things to him, He left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him” (Heb. 2:5-8). “and have tasted the good word of God and the powers of the age to come” (Heb. 6:5) “For when God made the promise to Abraham, since He could swear by no one greater, He swore by Himself” (Heb. 6:13) “in order that by two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we may have strong encouragement, we who have fled for refuge in laying hold of the hope set before us” (Heb. 6:18). “For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham as he was returning from the slaughter of the kings and blessed him, to whom also Abraham apportioned a tenth part of all the spoils, was first of all, by the translation of his name, king of righteousness, and then also king of Salem, which is king of peace. Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like the Son of God, he abides a priest perpetually” (Heb. 7:1-3). “For it is evident that our Lord was descended from Judah, a tribe with reference to which Moses spoke nothing concerning priests” (Heb. 7:14). “But now He has obtained a more excellent ministry, by as much as He is also the mediator of a better covenant, which has been enacted on better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no occasion sought for a second. For finding fault with them, He says, ‘Behold, days are coming, says the Lord, When I will effect a new covenant With the house of Israel and with the house of Judah; Not like the covenant which I made with their fathers On the day when I took them by the hand To lead them out of the land of Egypt; For they did not continue in My covenant, And I did not care for them, says the Lord. For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel After those days, says the Lord: I will put My laws into their minds, And I will write them upon their hearts. And I will be their God, And they shall be My people. And they shall not teach everyone his fellow citizen, And everyone his brother, saying, “Know the Lord,” For all shall know Me, From the least to the greatest of them. For I will be merciful to their iniquities, And I will remember their sins no more.’ When He said, ‘A new covenant,’ He has made the first obsolete. But whatever is becoming obsolete and growing old is ready to disappear” (Heb. 8:6-13). “since they relate only to food and drink and various washings, regulations for the body imposed until a time of reformation” (Heb. 9:10). “And for this reason He is the mediator of a new covenant, in order that since a death has taken place for the redemption of the transgressions that were committed under the first covenant, those who have been called may receive the promise of the eternal inheritance” (Heb. 9:15). “Otherwise, He would have needed to suffer often since the foundation of the world; but now once at the consummation of the ages He has been manifested to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. And inasmuch as it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment, so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:26-28). “For yet in a very little while, He who is coming will come, and will not delay” (Heb. 10:37). “By faith Abraham, when he was called, obeyed by going out to a place which he was to receive for an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing where he was going. By faith he lived as an alien in the land of promise, as in a foreign land, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, fellow heirs of the same promise; for he was looking for the city which has foundations, whose architect and builder is God. By faith even Sarah herself received ability to conceive, even beyond the proper time of life, since she considered Him faithful who had promised; therefore, also, there was born of one man, and him as good as dead at that, as many descendants as the stars of heaven in number, and innumerable as the sand which is by the seashore. All these died in faith, without receiving the promises, but having seen them and having welcomed them from a distance, and having confessed that they were strangers and exiles on the earth. For those who say such things make it clear that they are seeking a country of their own. And indeed if they had been thinking of that country from which they went out, they would have had opportunity to return. But as it is, they desire a better country, that is a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; for He has prepared a city for them. By faith Abraham, when he was tested, offered up Isaac; and he who had received the promises was offering up his only begotten son; it was he to whom it was said, ‘In Isaac your descendants shall be called.’ He considered that God is able to raise men even from the dead; from which he also received him back as a type. By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, even regarding things to come. By faith Jacob, as he was dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, and worshiped, leaning on the top of his staff. By faith Joseph, when he was dying, made mention of the exodus of the sons of Israel, and gave orders concerning his bones. By faith Moses, when he was born, was hidden for three months by his parents, because they saw he was a beautiful child; and they were not afraid of the king’s edict. By faith Moses, when he had grown up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh’s daughter; choosing rather to endure ill-treatment with the people of God, than to enjoy the passing pleasures of sin; considering the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt; for he was looking to the reward. By faith he left Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king; for he endured, as seeing Him who is unseen. By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of the blood, so that he who destroyed the first-born might not touch them. By faith they passed through the Red Sea as though they were passing through dry land; and the Egyptians, when they attempted it, were drowned. By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they had been encircled for seven days. By faith Rahab the harlot did not perish along with those who were disobedient, after she had welcomed the spies in peace. And what more shall I say? For time will fail me if I tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets, who by faith conquered kingdoms, performed acts of righteousness, obtained promises, shut the mouths of lions, quenched the power of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, from weakness were made strong, became mighty in war, put foreign armies to flight. Women received back their dead by resurrection; and others were tortured, not accepting their release, in order that they might obtain a better resurrection; and others experienced mockings and scourgings, yes, also chains and imprisonment. They were stoned, they were sawn in two, they were tempted, they were put to death with the sword; they went about in sheepskins, in goatskins, being destitute, afflicted, ill-treated (men of whom the world was not worthy), wandering in deserts and mountains and caves and holes in the ground. And all these, having gained approval through their faith, did not receive what was promised, because God had provided something better for us, so that apart from us they should not be made perfect" (Heb. 11:8-40). "Paul (Heb. 11:8, 9 and 11:13-40), who expressly informs us that the Patriarchs sojourned in 'the land of promise,' which they were to receive as 'an inheritance,' 'pilgrims and strangers,' and that 'they died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were pilgrims and strangers on the earth.' How, with such evidence before us, can we attribute to only their posterity what is directly asserted of themselves personally" [quoting Peters, The Theocratic Kingdom, 1:297] (Pentecost, TTC, p. 93)? "Abraham, summoned by God and converted from paganism in Ur of the Chaldeans, entered Canaan via Haran and was confronted with more paganism in the land of promise. He explored his inheritance from north to south as an unsettled nomadic tent-dweller" (Horner, FI, p. 249) "...we nowhere read of the patriarchs, that they expressed a conscious desire for a home in heaven" [quoting F. Delitzsch, Hebrews, 2.246] (ibid.). "...concerning Heb. 11:10... 'Here the heavenly Jerusalem is not contrasted with the earthly city, but with the frail and movable dwellings of the patriarchs in their nomad life'" [quoting F. Delitzsch, Hebrews, 2.238]

(ibid.). “Abraham’s hope was eschatological, but not in the sense of heaven’s superiority to the earth, of the spiritual as superior to the material. Rather, his hope was of the future messianic age, the millennial kingdom in which heaven would be manifest on earth and residence there would be gloriously holy, permanent” (ibid., p. 250). “...a Hebrew, who was accustomed to designate the restored Davidic Kingdom a heavenly Kingdom, and the country enjoying its restoration and Theocratic blessings, a heavenly country” [quoting Peters, The Theocratic Kingdom, 1:295] (ibid.). “The hope of a ‘heavenly Jerusalem’ was not a matter of a superior, exclusively spiritual or extraterrestrial location, but rather a fulfilled, holy, spiritually substantial regeneration of what was formerly polluted and imperfect” (ibid.). “The clearest evidence that this renewed city is the earthly Jerusalem of Palestine is found in the numerous passages in Jewish literature where this renewal demands a great expansion in the city’s territory” [quoting J. C. De Young, Jerusalem in the New Testament, pp. 113-114] (ibid.). “The challenge, then, as stated earlier, is to use a hermeneutical approach to these passages, especially in Hebrews, that relies on Hebrew perception” (ibid.). “The Rabbinic literature in general looks forward to a restored Jerusalem under earthly conditions. The new city is described in detail in terms which are often fantastic, but the welter of imagination bestowed upon the subject does not alter the fact that what the Rabbis hoped for, and described as “the Jerusalem of the age to come,” was essentially the material capital of a material state... The heavenly tabernacle in Hebrews is not the product of Platonic idealism, but the eschatological temple of apocalyptic Judaism, the temple which is in heaven primarily in order that it may be manifested on earth” [quoting C. K. Barrett, The Eschatology of Hebrews, The Background of the New Testament and its Eschatology, pp. 374, 389] (ibid., p. 251). “The heavenly country is not a country in heaven but a country from heaven. The heavenly kingdom is the kingdom from heaven and not the kingdom in heaven... Though heaven is the happy abode of the disembodied righteous during the present age, in the age to come heaven comes to earth” [quoting S. E. Waldron, The End Times Made Simple, pp. 239-40] (ibid.). “In this setting of heaven come to earth, Israel and the Jewish people will be fulfilled (Rom. 11:12), not superseded, and the Gentile nations will happily submit to this divine order as engrafted wild olive branches. To this end was the gospel sent forth (Zech. 14:9, Acts 3:19-21, Rom. 8:18-30)” (ibid., p. 252). “But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to myriads of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first-born who are enrolled in heaven, and to God, the Judge of all, and to the spirits of righteous men made perfect, and to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood, which speaks better than the blood of Abel. See to it that you do not refuse Him who is speaking. For if those did not escape when they refused him who warned them on earth, much less shall we escape who turn away from Him who warns from heaven. And His voice shook the earth then, but now He has promised, saying, ‘Yet once more I will shake not only the earth, but also the heaven.’ And this expression, ‘Yet once more,’ denotes the removing of those things which can be shaken, as of created things, in order that those things which cannot be shaken may remain. Therefore, since we receive a kingdom which cannot be shaken, let us show gratitude, by which we may offer to God an acceptable service with reverence and awe” (Heb. 12:22-28)

Reaffirmation by James

James exhorted the heirs of the kingdom to be patient until the coming of the Lord. “Listen, my beloved brethren: did not God choose the poor of this world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which He promised to those who love Him” (James 2:5)? “Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious produce of the soil, being patient about it, until it gets the early and late rains. You too be patient; strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand. Do not complain, brethren, against one another, that you yourselves may not be judged; behold, the Judge is standing right at the door. As an example, brethren, of suffering and patience, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord” (James 5:7-10).

Reaffirmation by Peter

Peter was highly eschatologically-minded. “What Van Oosterzee so aptly applies to Peter, will be found, to a very great extent, true of all the apostles: ‘as well the discourses as the First Epis. of Peter teach us to recognize this apostle especially as the Apostle of Hope, in this sense, that the return of the Lord equally dominates his whole presentation of Christian truth, his whole conception of the Christian life’” (Peters, TTK, 1:440).

In First Peter, Peter exhorted his fellow partakers of the glory that is to be revealed to fix their hope completely on the grace to be brought to them at the revelation of Jesus. “who are protected by the power of God through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. In this you greatly rejoice, even though now for a little while, if necessary, you have been distressed by various trials, that the proof of your faith, being more precious than gold which is perishable, even though tested by fire, may be found to result in praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ” (1 Pet. 1:5-7) “Therefore, gird your minds for action, keep sober in spirit, fix your hope completely on the grace to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ” (1 Pet. 1:13). “Keep your behavior excellent among the Gentiles, so that in the thing in which they slander you as evildoers, they may on account of your good deeds, as they observe them, glorify God in the day of visitation” (1 Pet. 2:12). “The end of all things is at hand; therefore, be of sound judgment and sober spirit for the purpose of prayer” (1 Pet. 4:7). “but to the degree that you share the sufferings of Christ, keep on rejoicing; so that also at the revelation of His glory, you may rejoice with exultation” (1 Pet. 4:13). “Therefore, I exhort the elders among you, as your fellow elder and witness of the sufferings of Christ, and a partaker also of the glory that is to be revealed” (1 Pet. 5:1) “And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the unfading crown of glory” (1 Pet. 5:4). “And after you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace, who called you to His eternal glory in Christ, will Himself perfect, confirm, strengthen and establish you. To Him be dominion forever and ever. Amen” (1 Pet. 5:10-11).

Similarly, in Second Peter, Peter exhorted believers to be holy in conduct and godliness, looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God. “Therefore, brethren, be all the more diligent to make certain about His calling and choosing you; for as long as you practice these things, you will never stumble; for in this way the entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ will be abundantly supplied to you” (2 Pet. 1:10-11). “For we did not follow cleverly devised tales when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of His majesty. For when He received honor and glory from God the Father, such an utterance as this was made to Him by the Majestic Glory, ‘This is My beloved Son with whom I am well-pleased’ — and we ourselves heard this utterance made from heaven when we were with Him on the holy mountain. And so we have the prophetic word made more sure, to which you do well to pay attention as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star arises in your hearts” (2 Pet. 1:16-19). “But the present heavens and earth by His word are being reserved for fire, kept for the day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men” (2 Pet. 3:7). “But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, in which the heavens will pass away with a roar and the elements will be destroyed with intense heat, and the earth and its works will be burned up. Since all these things are to be destroyed in this way, what sort of people ought you to be in holy conduct and godliness, looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God, on account of which the heavens will be destroyed by burning, and the elements will melt with intense heat! But according to His promise we are looking for new heavens and a new earth, in which righteousness dwells. Therefore, beloved, since you look for these things, be diligent to be found by Him in peace, spotless and blameless” (2 Pet. 3:10-14)

Reaffirmation by John

John, in First John, warned that Antichrist and the day of judgment are coming, and exhorted believers to abide in Jesus, so that when He appears, they may have confidence and not shrink away from Him in shame. “And the world is passing away, and also its lusts; but the one who does the will of God abides forever” (1 John. 2:17). “Children, it is the last hour; and just as you heard that antichrist is coming, even now many antichrists have arisen; from this we know that it is the last hour” (1 John 2:18). “And now, little children, abide in Him, so that when He appears, we may have confidence and not shrink away from Him in shame at His coming” (1 John. 2:28). “Beloved, now we are children of God, and it has not appeared as yet what we shall be. We know that, when He appears, we shall be like Him, because we shall see Him just as He is. And everyone who has this hope fixed on Him purifies himself, just as He is pure” (1 John. 3:2-3). “and every spirit that does not confess Jesus is not from God; and this is the spirit of the antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming, and now it is already in the world” (1 John. 4:3). “By this, love is perfected with us, that we may have confidence in the day of judgment; because as He is, so also are we in this world” (1 John. 4:17).

Reaffirmation by Jude

Jude exhorted believers to wait anxiously for the mercy of Jesus, and to look forward to standing in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy. “keep yourselves in the love of God, waiting anxiously for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ to eternal life” (Jude 1:21). “Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to make you stand in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy, to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen” (Jude 1:24-25).

Reaffirmation of the Kingdom in Revelation

The Kingdom was reaffirmed by John in the book of Revelation. “Oosterzee (Theol. of N. Test., p. 378), says that the Apocalypse sustains a ‘purely Israelitish character’ (see e.g. p. 53 where the Jewish views are stated), and that it indicates ‘that even the most highly developed of the Apostles at the end of his course, had by no means torn himself from the Theocratic national ground in which he had ever been rooted.’ We thank such men for their frank and noble concessions of truth, however adverse it may be to their own theories, especially when it is done not in the spirit of unbelief but for the sake of the truth” (Peters, TTK, 1:435). “Now, is it credible, if the doctrine of the Millennium is an error, that John in the Apoc. should employ the very ideas and language to perpetuate it, as seen in the church” (ibid., p. 453)? “Let the careful reader answer the following question, and he will see how eminently consistent with fact is our doctrinal position. How could John, under Divine guidance, well knowing the Jewish views that were current (which our opponents fully admit as we have shown), pen down the portraiture of a Messianic reign (Rev. 20:1-6 and 11:18), which in its plain grammatical sense corresponds so accurately with the prevailing Jewish opinions, unless such a sense contains the truth? God would not, could not, take the dearest cherished Messianic hopes and parade them in such an expressed sense to deceive believers, when He intended a different sense to be placed upon the words. God does not undertake that which, if perpetrated by a man, we would unhesitatingly denounce as dishonest, disreputable, and cruel” (ibid., p. 466). “Bh. Russel (On Mill.) states: ‘It is worthy of remark that so long as the prophecies regarding the Millennium were interpreted literally the Apocalypse was received as an inspired production, and as the work of the apostle John; but no sooner did theologians find themselves compelled to view its annunciations through the medium of allegory and metaphorical description, than they ventured to call in question its heavenly origin, its genuineness, and its authority’” (ibid., p. 485). “M Clintock & Strong’s Cyclop., Art. ‘Revelation,’ remarks: ‘The interval between the apostolic age and that of Constantine has been called the Chiliasitic period of Apocalyptic interpretation. The visions of John were chiefly regarded as representations of general Christian truths, scarcely yet embodied in actual facts, for the most part to be exemplified or fulfilled in the reign of Antichrist, the Coming of Christ, the Millennium, and the day of judgment. The fresh hopes of the early Christians, and the severe persecutions they endured taught them to live in those future events with intense satisfaction and comfort’” (ibid.). “Chiliasm, based on covenant and prophecy, existed before the Revelation was given” (ibid., p. 490). “...the great vital topic of the Book, viz., the coming of Jesus” (ibid., 2:176) “Some reject the book solely on this ground as teaching a ‘Jewish’ Coming and reign of a personal Messiah. We, however, joyfully accept of this feature as blessed evidence of its inspiration, making it confirmatory of covenanted promises” (ibid.). “...Rev. 20: 1-6 which was so universally held by the early Church to teach a literal resurrection, and to be so thoroughly consonant with Jewish views, that the Apocalypse narrowly escaped proscription by the enemies of Chiliasm... The application of the Origenistic system of interpretation, as many have noticed, saved and gave it canonical authority” (ibid., p. 264). “It is only through this doctrine of the Kingdom that the Apocalypse can or will be understood and consistently interpreted” (ibid., 3:366). “The Theocratic idea, in the very nature of the case, must ever be kept in view, for with it the Apocalypse begins and ends. It begins with announcing His Future Advent, and delineates His Theocratical character as ‘the Prince of the kings of the earth,’ and ‘the Alpha and Omega,’ etc., and ends with the Theocratical rule inaugurated here on earth. The Kingdom being the goal of prophecy, it is reasonable to expect that the very last predictions would largely enter into the subject, and in such a manner as to show how the older prophecies will be ultimately fulfilled. To understand such fulfillment, however, it is requisite to carefully notice the prophecies previously given by the same Spirit, and which, without undue repetition (it being taken for granted that the reader knows them because they embrace ‘the Hope’), may be partially incorporated by quotations, etc. With a knowledge of the covenants and prophecies pertaining to the Kingdom, the student is placed in the only position suitable to the contemplation and study of a book, which largely deals in a restored Theocracy, as is clearly evidenced not only by the Advent of David’s Son, but by the corresponding adoption of older Theocratic predictions, and enforcing them by identifying and linking them with such an Advent” (ibid.). “...the historical fact that some, who could not enter into the spirit and end designed by the Apoc. (viz., too Millenarian and Jewish), doubted its genuineness and authority, but that no book of the New Test. is so fully proven to be genuine as this one” (ibid., p. 367) “A direct amplified description of the restoration of the nation is purposely avoided because it would unnecessarily provoke the jealousy and persecution of the Roman power. A sufficiency for faith and hope is given, provided the believer receives the Bible as a whole” (ibid., p. 369). “All the early Christians had no difficulty in embracing the Apocalypse as a Divine Revelation, seeing that it both accorded with the previously given predictions of God, and that, owing to the postponement of the Kingdom and withdrawal for a time of the King, it filled up a void by detailing His Coming again and the measures that would be taken in effecting the restored Theocracy... A Kingdom awaiting the Coming of David's Son; preceded by a first resurrection; introduced as and containing what, the older prophets declared; incorporating a tribal division; holding forth a glorious reign here on earth, etc. all this corresponds too accurately with 'Jewish conceptions' to suit the taste of those who are anxious to rid themselves of everything distinctively 'Jewish.' Let unbelief take such a position; but faith, supported by the general analogy and unity of Revelation, joyfully seizes upon the book as explanatory of the manner in which the Millennial predictions are to be fulfilled in this Coming One, and in His most blessed Theocratic rule" (ibid., p. 370). "...these several modes of interpretation, only as they severally bring out distinctively the Theocratic relationship that the Apoc. contains in common with previously given prophecies. That system which does this the most effectively is the most worthy of our reception; that which ignores this the most, is the most unreliable" (ibid., p. 371). "No book has ever received such outrageous treatment from the hands of its enemies and professed friends" (ibid., p. 373). "We believe that God will raise up some, who, for the sake of the truth pertaining to 'the Christ,' will be enabled to give in regular order a correct interpretation of the Apoc. As the time approaches for its fulfillment, as the Interval draws nigh in which its most stupendous scenes will be witnessed, as a preparation to those who shall be persecuted under the Antichrist, as a source of comfort and hope to the believing, and even as a warning to the world, such will be the result" (ibid.). "Killen (Ancient Church, p. 183) remarks: 'The Apoc. was acknowledged to be a divine revelation as soon as it appeared; and its credit remained unimpeached until the question of the Millennium began to create discussion'... Kurtz (Ch. His., vol. 1, p. 232) says: 'The Council of Laodicea omitted from the Canon only the Book of Revelation, manifestly from its dislike to, and dread of, Millenarianism.'... the Apoc. is, as many writers have declared, a most fitting conclusion of the Canon, summing up in itself the glorious outcome of Old Test. prophecy and New Test. prediction" (ibid., p. 382). "...that the seals, trumpets, and vials predict such a state of things as only agrees with our teaching, is alone sufficient. Thus e.g. it is only when the seventh and last trumpet sounds that the Kingdom, universal, of Jesus is revealed, and—consider it well—linked with (Rev. 11:15-18) angry nations, a time of wrath, of resurrection, and of reward. When the Millennial age itself is introduced (Rev. 20:1-6) it is preceded by the Personal Advent of Jesus and His saints, and the destruction of a mighty confederation of wicked (Rev. 19:11-21). The great revelation of glory, sovereignty, etc., follows a series of trial and judgments, in which the Church

[Tribulation saints—ed.] and the world are both included. No Millennial period, no Kingdom, no triumph, until the Coming of Jesus” (ibid.). “After the Saviour comes, after the initiation of terrible judgments, after events in which Jesus is personally manifested and employed, then comes, and only then, redemption perfected, and a Kingdom in which dwelleth righteousness” (ibid., p. 383). “This book has for its end the covenanted and predicted Kingdom of the Messiah” (ibid.). “The introduction, continuation, and conclusion of the book is designed to urge upon every believer that the great object of his love and hope is the Sec. Coming of the Lord Jesus. That is made paramount in his faith, hope, and love; and, consequently, if he devotedly loved his Saviour, believed in His revelation of glory, hoped to inherit with Him in His Kingdom, that Coming must assume a corresponding and relative importance and confirmation in his heart and life, in his meditations, prayers, and teaching” (ibid., p. 384). “First, the rapture of the church takes place. Then follows the seventieth week of Daniel or the Tribulation period from chapter four to nineteen. There are parenthetical visions, to be sure, as in chapters 7 and 14, but they can be discerned from the subject matter and the context in which they are found. They in no way hinder the orderly progress of the revelation. The twentieth chapter speaks of the Millennium, and the last two chapters deal with eternity to come. Could anyone expect the last book of the Bible to be more orderly? The book of Revelation rounds out the Word of God in a perfect way” (Feinberg, M, p. 183). “...the Apocalypse which is pre-eminently the New Testament book of the coming Kingdom” (McClain, GK, p. 491). “The naming of the book as the Book of Revelation relates to the fact that at the second coming of Christ, Christ will be revealed. This is introduced early in the book itself: ‘Look, he is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see him, even those who pierced him; and all the peoples of the earth will mourn because of him. So shall it be! Amen’ (1:7)” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 253). “The Book of Revelation, in many respects, is the counterpart of the four Gospels where Christ is presented in His first coming” (ibid.). “Revelation, while subject to all types of scholarly abuse and divergent interpretation, if taken in its plain intent yields a simple outline of premillennial truth—first a time of great tribulation, then the second advent, the binding of Satan, the deliverance and blessing of the saints, a righteous government on earth for 1000 years, followed by the final judgments, and the new heaven and new earth” (Walvoord, MK, p. 118). “The Book of Revelation has no direct quotations from the Old Testament, but it has about 550 references back to the Old Testament [For a nearly exhaustive listing of these references, see Appendix XI of Dr. Fruchtenbaum’s Israelology.—ed.]. The majority of the things found in the first twenty chapters of the Book of Revelation are found elsewhere in the Old Testament. Only the last two chapters deal with things totally new” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 10). “The value of the Book of Revelation is not that it provides a lot of new information, but rather that it takes the scattered Old Testament prophecies and puts them in chronological order so that the sequence of events may be determined” (ibid.). “The material found in the last two chapters is totally new material which describes the Eternal Order. The Old Testament prophets never foresaw anything beyond the Messianic Kingdom” (ibid., p. 11). “Since so much of this book [Revelation] is based on the Old Testament, a proper study of it will require a study of the Old Testament, resulting in a more comprehensive knowledge of the whole Bible” (ibid., p. 13). “The Messiah has all three offices, but He does not function in all three roles simultaneously. He has functioned as a prophet in the past. He is now functioning as a priest. In the future He will function in His office as a king. John’s vision of Jesus is that of a king, but a king has many roles, one of which is to serve as a judge... A sub-theme of this book is judgment; the whole book deals with one judgment after another” (ibid., p. 17). “The Book of Revelation ends the same way it begins: with a promise of a blessing to those who keep (in the sense of watching for) the things prophesied in the book” (ibid., p. 535).

Reaffirmations of the Kingdom in Revelation include:

Chapter 1: “The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show to His bond-servants, the things which must shortly take place; and He sent and communicated it by His angel to His bond-servant John, who bore witness to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, even to all that he saw. Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of the prophecy, and heed the things which are written in it; for the time is near” (Rev. 1:1-3). “John to the seven churches that are in Asia: Grace to you and peace, from Him who is and who was and who is to come; and from the seven Spirits who are before His throne; and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the first-born of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To Him who loves us, and released us from our sins by His blood, and He has made us to be a kingdom, priests to His God and Father; to Him be the glory and the dominion forever and ever. Amen. Behold, He is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see Him, even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev. 1:4-7). “...verse seven [of Rev. chapter 1] gives the theme of the book, which is the Second Coming of the Messiah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 15) “‘I am the Alpha and the Omega,’ says the Lord

God, ‘who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty’ (Rev. 1:8). “I, John, your brother and fellow partaker in the tribulation and kingdom and perseverance which are in Jesus, was on the island called Patmos, because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus” (Rev. 1:9). “and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle” (Rev. 1:13). “and the living One; and I was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of death and of Hades” (Rev. 1:18).

Chapter 2: “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, I will grant to eat of the tree of life, which is in the Paradise of God” (Rev. 2:7). “Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison, that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation ten days. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life” (Rev. 2:10). “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death” (Rev. 2:11). “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, to him I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone, and a new name written on the stone which no one knows but he who receives it” (Rev. 2:17). “And I will kill her children with pestilence; and all the churches will know that I am He who searches the minds and hearts; and I will give to each one of you according to your deeds” (Rev. 2:23). “Nevertheless what you have, hold fast until I come” (Rev. 2:25). “And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, to him I will give authority over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter are broken to pieces, as I also have received authority from My Father; and I will give him the morning star” (Rev. 2:26-28).

Chapter 3: “Remember therefore what you have received and heard; and keep it, and repent. If therefore you will not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you” (Rev. 3:3). “He who overcomes shall thus be clothed in white garments; and I will not erase his name from the book of life, and I will confess his name before My Father, and before His angels” (Rev. 3:5). “And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write: He who is holy, who is true, who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut, and who shuts and no one opens, says this” (Rev. 3:7) “While having this ‘Key of David,’ He does not now exert its power (just as He has also the keys of death and the grave), for He awaits the period of the Sec.

Advent when this bestowed authority will be duly manifested” (Peters, TTK, 2:205). “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth” (Rev. 3:10). “I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown” (Rev. 3:11-12) “He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12-13) “And to the angel of the church in Laodicea [the last of the 7 churches] write: The Amen, the faithful and true Witness, the Beginning of the creation of God, says this: ‘I know your deeds, that you are neither cold nor hot; I would that you were cold or hot. So because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of My mouth. Because you say, “I am rich, and have become wealthy, and have need of nothing,” and you do not know that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked, I advise you to buy from Me gold refined by fire, that you may become rich, and white garments, that you may clothe yourself, and that the shame of your nakedness may not be revealed; and eye salve to anoint your eyes, that you may see” (Rev. 3:14-18). “He who overcomes, I will grant to him to sit down with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne” (Rev. 3:21).

Chapter 4: “After these things I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven, and the first voice which I had heard, like the sound of a trumpet speaking with me, said, ‘Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after these things.’ Immediately I was in the Spirit; and behold, a throne was standing in heaven, and One sitting on the throne. And He who was sitting was like a jasper stone and a sardius in appearance; and there was a rainbow around the throne, like an emerald in appearance. And around the throne were twenty-four thrones; and upon the thrones I saw twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and golden crowns on their heads” (Rev. 4:1-4). “the twenty-four elders will fall down before Him who sits on the throne, and will worship Him who lives forever and ever, and will cast their crowns before the throne, saying” (Rev. 4:10)

Chapter 5: “and one of the elders said to me, ‘Stop weeping; behold, the Lion that is from the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has overcome so as to open the book and its seven seals” (Rev. 5:5). “And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy art Thou to take the book, and to break its seals; for Thou wast slain, and didst purchase for God with Thy blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. And Thou hast made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth’” (Rev. 5:9-10).

Chapter 7: “And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel” (Rev. 7:4) “After these things I looked, and behold, a great multitude, which no one could count, from every nation and all tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and palm branches were in their hands” (Rev. 7:9) “And I said to him, ‘My lord, you know.’ And he said to me, ‘These [the great multitude] are the ones who come out of the great tribulation, and they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb’” (Rev. 7:14).

Chapter 11: “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, ‘The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever.’ And the twenty-four elders, who sit on their thrones before God, fell on their faces and worshiped God, saying, ‘We give Thee thanks, O Lord God, the Almighty, who art and who wast, because Thou hast taken Thy great power and hast begun to reign. And the nations were enraged, and Thy wrath came, and the time came for the dead to be judged, and the time to give their reward to Thy bond-servants the prophets and to the saints and to those who fear Thy name, the small and the great, and to destroy those who destroy the earth’” (Rev. 11:15-18).

Chapter 12: “And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, ‘Now the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of His Christ have come, for the accuser of our brethren has been thrown down, who accuses them before our God day and night. And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb and because of the word of their testimony, and they did not love their life even to death. For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time’” (Rev. 12:10-12).

Chapter 14: “And I saw another angel flying in midheaven, having an eternal gospel to preach to those who live on the earth, and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people; and he said with a loud voice, ‘Fear God, and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made the heaven and the earth and sea and springs of waters’” (Rev. 14:6-7).

Chapter 15: “Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify Thy name? For Thou alone art holy; For all the nations will come and worship before Thee, For Thy righteous acts have been revealed” (Rev. 15:4).

Chapter 17: “And the ten horns which you saw are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but they receive authority as kings with the beast for one hour. These have one purpose and they give their power and authority to the beast. These will wage war against the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, because He is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those who are with Him are the called and chosen and faithful” (Rev. 17:12-14).

Chapter 19: “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, ‘Write, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”’ And he said to me, “These are true words of God”” (Rev. 19:6-9). “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS’” (Rev. 19:11-16). “And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried out with a loud voice, saying to all the birds which fly in midheaven, ‘Come, assemble for the great supper of God; in order that you may eat the flesh of kings and the flesh of commanders and the flesh of mighty men and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them and the flesh of all men, both free men and slaves, and small and great” (Rev. 19:17-18). “And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, assembled to make war against Him who sat upon the horse, and against His army. And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone. And the rest were killed with the sword which came from the mouth of Him who sat upon the horse, and all the birds were filled with their flesh” (Rev. 19:19-21).

Chapter 20: “And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the serpent of old, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he should not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be released for a short time. And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:1-6). “...the often refuted assertion that our whole doctrine is based on ‘one passage,’ viz., Rev. 20:2-6. Now, this is derived from the assumption that our belief is founded on the idea of the duration of the reign of Christ and of His saints, and not, as our argument shows, on the Covenants and a multitude of glorious predictions” (Peters, TTK, 2:173). “And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison, and will come out to deceive the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together for the war; the number of them is like the sand of the seashore. And they came up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and devoured them. And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are also; and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever" (Rev. 20:7-10). "And I saw a great white throne and Him who sat upon it, from whose presence earth and heaven fled away, and no place was found for them. And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne, and books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged from the things which were written in the books, according to their deeds. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and Hades gave up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every one of them according to their deeds. And death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire. And if anyone's name was not found written in the book of life, he was thrown into the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:11-15).

Chapter 21: "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and there is no longer any sea. And I saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, made ready as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne, saying, 'Behold, the tabernacle of God is among men, and He shall dwell among them, and they shall be His people, and God Himself shall be among them, and He shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and there shall no longer be any death; there shall no longer be any mourning, or crying, or pain; the first things have passed away.' And He who sits on the throne said, 'Behold, I am making all things new.' And He said, 'Write, for these words are faithful and true.' And He said to me, 'It is done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give to the one who thirsts from the spring of the water of life without cost. He who overcomes shall inherit these things, and I will be his God and he will be My son. But for the cowardly and unbelieving and abominable and murderers and immoral persons and sorcerers and idolaters and all liars, their part will be in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone, which is the second death'" (Rev. 21:1-8). "And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and spoke with me, saying, 'Come here, I shall show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.' And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. Her brilliance was like a very costly stone, as a stone of crystal-clear jasper" (Rev.

21:9-11). “And the nations shall walk by its light, and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory into it. And in the daytime (for there shall be no night there) its gates shall never be closed; and they shall bring the glory and the honor of the nations into it; and nothing unclean and no one who practices abomination and lying, shall ever come into it, but only those whose names are written in the Lamb’s book of life” (Rev. 21:24-27).

Chapter 22: “And he showed me a river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming from the throne of God and of the Lamb, in the middle of its street. And on either side of the river was the tree of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him; and they shall see His face, and His name shall be on their foreheads. And there shall no longer be any night; and they shall not have need of the light of a lamp nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God shall illumine them; and they shall reign forever and ever” (Rev. 22:1-5). “And he said to me, ‘These words are faithful and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent His angel to show to His bond-servants the things which must shortly take place. And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he who heeds the words of the prophecy of this book’” (Rev. 22:6-7). “And he said to me, ‘Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near. Let the one who does wrong, still do wrong; and let the one who is filthy, still be filthy; and let the one who is righteous, still practice righteousness; and let the one who is holy, still keep himself holy.’ ‘Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to render to every man according to what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.’ Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:10-15). “John, in contrast to Daniel [12:4—ed.], was told not to seal up his book, for all prophecy can now be understood and its fulfillment could begin any time” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 536). “I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star” (Rev. 22:16). “And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who hears say, ‘Come.’”

And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost” (Rev. 22:17). “I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book; and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life and from the holy city, which are written in this book” (Rev. 22:18-19). “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen” (Rev. 22:20-21). “Dr. Craven (Lange’s Com. Rev., p. 400) remarks: ‘...In the prayer “Amen; come, Lord Jesus’... In this prayer is summed up all that the Christian heart can desire—the destruction of the power of Satan; the deliverance of the creature from the bondage of corruption; the banishment of sin and sorrow from the individual heart and from the world; the restoration of all things; the establishment of the Kingdom and righteousness; the beholding by Jesus in fullness of the travail of His soul; the bestowment upon Him in completeness of his promised reward”’ (Peters, TTK, 3:384).

Chapter 19: The King of the Kingdom

Every kingdom is composed of a throne (authority to rule), a king and subjects. We've already covered in some detail, in our chapter Covenants of the Kingdom, the throne of the Theocratic Kingdom of God, namely the Davidic throne. We've also touched upon the subjects of the Theocratic Kingdom, namely the regenerated nation Israel and the saved Gentiles that survive the Great Tribulation. (We'll cover these subjects of the Kingdom in greater detail in our chapters Inauguration of the Kingdom and The Millennial Kingdom). Now in this chapter we'll turn our attention to the King of the Theocratic Kingdom, the theanthropic¹⁹ Person who is destined to occupy the Davidic Throne, namely, Jesus the Christ. Whereas regenerated Israel is the nucleus of the Theocratic Kingdom, Jesus the Christ, as He reigns from His Davidic throne in Jerusalem, is the very focal point of the Kingdom. In this chapter we'll take a close look at Jesus' identity and His qualifications for Kingship, including the steps that He's already taken in preparation for His occupation of the Davidic throne. "We 'Bibliolaters' are accused of 'ignorance,' but our ignorance is founded on a view of the Divine Purpose taken as a whole, which necessitates as a preparatory Theocratic ordering the incarnation, divinity, resurrection, exaltation, and return of Jesus 'the Christ'" (Peters, TTK, 3:516).

The King of God's Kingdom has two major responsibilities: to redeem and to reign. "According to the Old Testament, the Messiah was to have two principal responsibilities: to redeem and to reign. He was to be both Saviour and Sovereign" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 189).

If this redeeming and reigning are to be perfectly effectual, the Kingdom's Priestly King Himself must be perfect and capable of accomplishing all that is required of Him. As we will see below, Jesus the Christ is uniquely qualified and fully equipped to accomplish every goal and purpose of His Kingship. "What the world needs, as the prophets saw clearly, is not primarily a better philosophy of government or a more perfect system of legislation, but a Person who has the character, wisdom, and power needed to rule for God among men. This is the central theme of prophecy from first to last" (McClain, GK, p. 161). "Among sinful men, the rule of a priestly hierarchy has generally resulted in the corruption of both functions, political as well as sacerdotal... It was under the presidency of a high priest that the Great Council of Israel, in an appalling travesty of justice, condemned to death her own Messianic King" (ibid., p. 166).

¹⁹ Both God and man

Qualifications of the King

In His deity and in His humanity, in His submissiveness, incarnation, innocence, obedience, character, perfection, miracles and suffering, Jesus is eminently qualified to be King of God's Kingdom. He is the perfect Messiah. "To make the Covenant available, provision must first be made to meet the sinfulness and results of sin even in believers, which the typical sacrifices could not effect... if the Jew will but consider what this Theocracy demands, if ever realized as prophecy represents it, such as moral purity, the triumph over the grave, the presence of God, the return to an Edenic state, the removal of the curse, etc., he must see that such an important transformation can never take place unless He, through and in whom God again condescends to act in the capacity of an earthly ruler, is both sinless Himself, and has power to act as Mediator and Redeemer of sinful man... Jesus Christ as described in the New Test., meets in every respect the requirements of prophecy, in person, in character, in work already performed, in station, in promise, etc., preparative to the ultimate end" (Peters, TTK, 3:420). "Jesus in every respect is qualified to carry out the remainder of the programme as given by the Divine Purpose. He is David's Son as covenanted; He is Divine (Isa. 9:6; Zech. 13:9; Jer. 23:6; Ps. 2:7; Rom. 9:11; 1 Tim. 3:16; Tit. 1:3; 1 John 4:15; Heb. 1:8; 1 John 5:20, etc.); He is One and equal with the Father, (John 14:7-11; 10:30; 12:45; 17:10, etc.); He is the Image of God, (Phil. 2:6; Col. 1:5; 2:9, etc.); He possesses eternity (Heb. 13:18; Rev. 1:17, 18); He has Omnipresence (Matt. 17:20; 28:20, etc.); He is Omniscient (John 2:24, 25; Rev. 2:23; John 16:30, etc.); He is Creator (John 1:3, 10; Col. 1:16; Heb. 1:2, 10; Rev. 3:14, etc.); He in virtue of His divinity has Pre-Existence (John 8:58; 13:3; etc.); He is the Preserver (Col. 1:17; Heb. 1:3, etc.); He is worthy of worship (John 5:23; Phil. 2:10; Heb. 1:6; Ps. 72:15, 17; Rev. 5:8-13, etc.), etc." (ibid., p. 478) "It is simply impossible for learned men, much less 'ignorant,' to concoct a portraiture so perfect (and so far in advance even of Jewish conceptions) in Theocratic dignity" (ibid., p. 515).

Deity and Humanity of the King

Jesus' qualifications for Kingship are found both in His deity and in His humanity.

Deity of the King

As God, Jesus possesses the power and authority requisite for the theocratic Kingship. George Peters summarizes, "He was a Son of David's, but yet far more than a Son, even David's Lord (being God-man—i.e. having in His own Person the real Theocratic Rulership united)" (TTK, 1:347). "We fully admit the Divinity of Christ" (ibid., p. 559). "...One who is infinitely superior to Joshua, David, and Solomon” (ibid., 2:146) “Zech. 14:5... ‘The Lord, my God shall come and all the saints with Him,’... That which is applied to the Messiah elsewhere is here referred to ‘Jehovah, my God,’ thus indicating the Divine lodged in the Christ” (ibid., p. 187). “Now we come briefly to consider the great stumbling block in the way of all unbelief to the acceptance of the Messianic idea, viz., that of the Divinity of this Son of Man. Unbelief correctly asserts that what the New Test. declares of this Jesus cannot possibly be applied to a mere man; unbelief sees and acknowledges that the attributing to Him the power of forgiving sins, of judging the world, of raising the dead, of assigning rewards and punishments, as well as in the bestowal upon Him of titles, worship, honor, and glory that belong to God, is utterly incompatible with mere humanity. This confession, as far as it goes, is worthy of notice, and is a deserving rebuke to some professed believers who, under the influence of theory, endeavor to lessen the divine in the Master. In the consideration of so fundamental a point, upon which depends so much in the past and future history of the race, and around which cluster the dearest hopes of an evil burdened humanity, we should approach it with the resolve to allow the full force of all the proof given in its behalf to be candidly weighed. Passing by that which has been ably presented by Apologists, we confine ourselves only to that derived from the doctrine of the Kingdom, feeling assured that this is ample enough to stamp Jesus as God-Man. Let the student reflect upon the nature of this Theocratic Kingdom and he will see that, as covenanted and predicted, it necessarily includes as its promised King a God-man. Turn back to the ancient predictions (allowed even by unbelief to be such) respecting this Theocratic King and notice what He is to perform (e.g. to raise the dead, remove the curse, etc.), and reason at once decides that no mere man can be such a mighty King. Consider that the Theocracy in its direct meaning includes as its central conception that of God Himself acting as an earthly Ruler, and that the biblical portrayed purpose is to manifest this through the Davidic line in the Person of Jesus, and it follows that if God rules in and through Jesus, the Son of David, He must be in some way fully and closely identified with Jesus. The Theocratic idea is exhibited in the Person of Jesus, and hence the statements: ‘I and my Father are One; I am in the Father and the Father in Me’ (John 10:30, etc.), ‘He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father,’ etc., which assume definitely that He is the Theocratic King in its highest sense, viz., in the identical one inaugurated at Mt. Sinai, when it was justly believed that God Himself was the King of the instituted Kingdom. This is repeated when He, from the depth of His Theocratic consciousness, declares ‘even as they honor the Father’ (John 5:23) etc. Being thus the Person in whom the Theocracy is to be truly manifested, it is not surprising that Paul should say (Col. 1:19 and 2:9) 'that in Him should all fulness dwell,' that 'in Him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily.' Being thus the contemplated Theocratic personage, He could not refute the charge brought against Him by the Jews (John 5:18; 10:36; 19:7) that by designating Himself the Son of God, he thus 'made Himself equal with God,' without doing violence to His Messiahship. Because Jesus is the Theocratic King, He is 'the brightness of the Father's glory and the express image of His Person' (Heb. 1:8), and the Kingdom itself is designated 'the Kingdom of Christ and of God' (Eph. 5:5), 'the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ' (Rev. 11:15); and He who is to reign forever is named by Isaiah, consistently, 'the Mighty God' (Syriac, the Mighty God of ages), 'The Everlasting Father' (Vulgate, 'the Father of the future age;' Lowth, 'the Father of the everlasting age;' Chaldee, 'the Man abiding forever'). That God should become incarnate, i.e. be united with humanity in the Person of Jesus is not only not incredible, but positively the most reasonable matter that can be presented to us when regarded in its true Theocratic relationship. Let the reader consider how the Theocratic conception as covenanted and predicted demands it; how this was done centuries before Jesus came; how all the prophets unite in giving Him a pure, exalted Theocratic position in the Kingdom; how in His own person He is represented as reigning as David's Son and yet as David's Lord; how the fulfillment of the continued overthrow of the Theocracy and the condition of the covenanted nation is a standing proof of its historical connection; how God is portrayed as made specially accessible and present in the person of the Messiah; and then how Jesus came as predicted, David's Son and also the Son of God; how He claimed and exhibited a sufficiency to insure us that He is indeed the Christ; how He, through the tender of the Kingdom, offered Himself as the Messiah; how His Christship was rejected; how then still retaining His right and privileges, confirmed by the power of God, He postponed the manifestation of the Kingdom and of His Messiahship to the Sec. Advent; how so many things now existent in Jew and Gentile, in Church and world, attest to and establish what He as Messiah declared, and when he has passed over the strictly connected series of events and has seen how requisite all this is to meet the purest and loftiest conception of Rulership that has ever been presented to mind or heart of man, is it possible that he, or any one, can for a moment suppose that a set of fishermen, or 'ignorant' disciples, or the most learned of the ancients, could concoct a Personage so symmetrical, so correspondent with covenant and promise, so perfectly agreeing with the highest form of government, with the World's need, and with a bridging over the dark chasm between God and man, Heaven and Hades, Paradise and groaning Creation. No one who receives the Theocracy in its true Biblical sense can doubt the divinity of Jesus, the Theocratic King, because to do so would involve a contradiction—a fatal antagonism—for it would take out of the future Theocracy what even the past possessed—a God ruling. Hence the deep wisdom of the Apostles, the evidence of inspiration, in adopting the very language so admirably adapted to express the Theocratic-Davidic idea, i.e. in uniting with David's Son, to whom as a descendant the Kingdom is more specifically promised (both for identification and for a purposed union of the Divine), such a Lordship, Godship, etc., that in Him the pure conception of a Theocracy is retained. Consider, too, that this was done by men hostile to all idol or man worship, who were surrounded by those who were jealous of any lessening or misconstruction of the Messianic conception, and that therefore the language used can only be consistently explained on the basis of the Theocratic idea. Reflect also that this was done by persons and among persons who were zealous defenders of the unity of God, and who would have esteemed it sacrilegious to appropriate to man what belonged to God; and that, therefore, the portraiture of Jesus, as given by the Apostles, can only be appropriately reconciled with the Theocratic conception, which instead of destroying the unity of God actually upholds it, since it brings God the Ruler into oneness (as Jesus claimed) with David's Son, causing the majesty of heaven to be reflected and exerted in and through a visible Headship, thus mercifully and wonderfully accommodating itself to the needs, desires, and glory of Humanity. Let the student deeply ponder the original Theocratic idea, retaining its original meaning then associated in external manifestation through David's Son, and he will see the reason why passages which in the Old Test. are applied to God are in the New Test., unhesitatingly applied to Jesus (as e.g. Isa. 45:20; comp. with Rom. 14:10, 11; Isa. 40: 3 with Matt. 3:1, 3; Zech. 12:10 with John 19:34, 37, etc., etc.); why divine worship which belonged to God as the Theocratic Ruler is also claimed for Jesus Christ (as e.g. John 5:3; Matt. 28:19; Phil. 2:11; Rev. 5:13; Luke 24:52, etc.); why perfections which exclusively belong to God are without the least scruple attributed to Jesus (as e.g. John 5:21; Col. 1:17; Heb. 13:8, etc.) so that the declaration is made (John 16:15), 'all things that the Father hath are mine.' It was under the influence of this Theocratic conception viz., that the same Lord God who once acted as earthly Ruler would be inseparably identified with the person of Jesus, David's Son, that even creation (John 1:3, 10; Eph. 3:9; Col. 1:16; Heb. 1:2, etc.) is ascribed to Him; that pre-existence is postulated (John 8:58; John 1:1; Col. 1:17, etc.) of Him; that the love, etc., rendered to Him are at the same time bestowed upon the Father (John 5:23, etc., 1 John 2:23); that no one could know the Father saving the Son and him to whom the Son revealed Him (Matt. 11:27, etc., 1 John 1:18); and all this and more because (John 14:10) 'I am in the Father and the Father in Me.' The least reflection will show, that the Theocratic idea so impenetrates the New Test. portraiture of Jesus bringing forth such a union of the Theocratic God with David's Son—forming the one Theocratic King with one will, power, work, love, etc. (John 5:19-38, etc.)—and yet consistently placing the Son in view of the incorporation of David's line and descendant subordinately to the Father (John 5:19; 14:28, etc.), that it demands unreasonable credulity to imagine that the apostles through their own reason and to subserve their own purposes, created such a matchless Theocratic likeness, which, without a single flaw, combines the original Theocratic Ruler with the promised Theocratic King in David's line; and, without sacrificing the humanity or exalting it above the Fatherhood, blends the two together into an inseparable Oneness, forming the One Person Jesus the Christ; that in this unity, whoever sees the Son beholds also the Father. Such a conception so harmonious in all its details, so forcibly adapted to secure the end contemplated, and so perfectly in accord with God's Theocratic Purpose, is, as the Bible justly claims a divine one. Let the reader test this by contrasting it with those plans originated by man, as e.g. Plato's idea of an ideal government and more recently the notions entertained respecting a 'Universal Republic' or a 'Universal Monarchy.' Our opponents themselves concede (leaving out the moral, and only looking at the results) that if this portraiture is true, if it could be realized as expressed, it would undoubtedly bring forth the effects attributed to it. We know it to be true for the reasons, already assigned, flowing from the doctrine of the Kingdom, and which in every heir of this Kingdom and co-heir of this Theocratic King is confirmed by the experience of faith, and by the constant and continued fulfilling of events foretold by this Messiah" (ibid., 3:529). "It is a gratifying fact that all the early Millenarian Fathers united in Jesus the Divine and Human (comp. Hagenbach's His. Doc., sects. 65 and 66, Neander's Ch. His., and Dog., Dorner's Person of Christ, Uhlman's Sinlessness of Christ, etc.), but it is not generally noticed that such a union is part, yea, the heart, of their Theocratic belief, viz., that Jesus being the destined Theocratic King, the Christ, is the One in and through whom God reigns. Priestley published a work entitled, History of Early Opinions concerning Jesus Christ, compiled from Original Writers, proving that the Christian Church was at first Unitarian (4 vols., 8vo, Birmingham, 1782). Against this assumption of Priestley's it is sufficient to say that the prevailing Millenarian view of the first centuries, which incorporated as its foundation principle the Theocratic ordering, necessarily made Jesus far more than man, even divine, in and through whom God ruled. This fact has very recently been strongly proven by Bev. Cook in his Boston lectures from extracts taken from the fathers, although he might have immensely strengthened these by showing their intimate and necessary relationship to the Millenarianism then held. A firm believer in the Theocratic Kingdom, as covenanted and predicted, cannot possibly be a Unitarian. A mass of Scripture, aside from the nature of the Kingdom, forbids it, as e.g. a single passage, Micah 5:1 (rendering given by Dr. Schaff in The Person of Christ, p. 200), 'But Thou Bethlehem Ephratah, too small to be among the thousands of Judah' (i.e. the central towns where the heads of thousands, or subordinate divisions of tribes resided) 'out of thee shall come forth unto me One who is to be the Ruler in Israel, whose origin is from the first of time, from the days of eternity.' Burton gives a mass of information in his Testimony of the Ante-Nicene Fathers to the Divinity of Christ, Sears's The Fourth Gospel, the Heart of Christ, Reubelt's Scripture Doctrine of the Person of Christ, Lewis's Divine Human of the Scriptures, Young's Christ of History, and others. The testimony of ancients, outside of Christianity, sustains the primitive view, so that e.g. Gibbon (Decl. and Fall, vol. 2, p. 9) does not question the early teaching of the Church on this subject, and refers to 'Libanius (who) praises Porphyry and Julian for confuting the folly of a sect, which styles a dead man of Palestine, God, and the Son of God. Socrates, His. Eccles. 3:23,' etc. (comp. also p. 305 and 315). When Pliny (Epis. Pliny 10, 97) says 'that the Christians were accustomed to sing hymns to Christ as to God;' when the leading objection of the Jews was to this assumption of the divine; when the apologists met such objections with reasons to sustain; when martyrs refused the application of divine to emperors and heathen gods, but joyfully acknowledged it in Jesus, we have sufficient evidence of early belief (comp. Van Oosterzee's art. 'The Son of Man' in Princeton Review, July, 1878). Pressense (The Early Days of Christianity, p. 62) remarks on the martyrdom of Stephen: 'His last prayer is addressed distinctly to Jesus Christ, and by his final homage he renders dying testimony to His divinity. It was fitting that this great truth should be thus proclaimed by the first of martyrs.' The Theocratic idea vindicates this worship, and hence we have John 5:23; Phil. 2:11; Rev. 5:13; 7:9; 15:6; Rom. 9:5, etc." (ibid., p. 534) Dr. Alva McClain adds, "'Everlasting Father' (Is. 9:6)... the Son of God is the 'Father' of this succession of ages" (GK, p. 32). "...the first chapter of Hebrews where we are told that through His Son, God 'made the worlds' (1:2). Now it has often been pointed out that the Greek term here should be rendered 'ages.'... the Son of God, we are told, is the Maker of this world, not only viewed from the standpoint of its vast extension in space, but also from the standpoint of the ages through which the world has passed and is yet to pass” (ibid.). “In the prophecies of Isaiah He is named ‘Immanuel,’ that is, ‘God with us’ (7:14; cf. Matt. 1:23)... Mighty God (9:6, ASV margin)... One who is ‘your God will come... he will come and save you’ (35:4)... ‘the King of Israel, even Jehovah, is in the midst of thee’ (Zeph. 3:15, ASV)... Zechariah... these nations will come up to Jerusalem to ‘worship the King’ whose name is ‘Jehovah of hosts’ (14:16-17, ASV)... ‘Thus saith the LORD the King of Israel, and his redeemer the LORD of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last; and beside me there is no God’ (Isa. 44:6)” (ibid., p. 162). “In the words, ‘How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings,’ Christ reveals Himself as the God of Israel who, through the centuries of Old Testament history and to that present hour, had striven for the good of the nation, and through Israel for the ultimate good of all mankind... The beautiful figure of the sheltering wings is often used in the Old Testament of Jehovah’s care: ‘He shall cover thee with his feathers and under his wings shalt thou trust’ (Ps. 91:4)” (ibid., p. 360). “I will say of Jehovah, He is my refuge and my fortress; My God, in whom I trust. For he will deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, And from the deadly pestilence. He will cover thee with his pinions, And under his wings shalt thou take refuge: His truth is a shield and a buckler” (Ps. 91:2-5). “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were unwilling” (Matt. 23:37). “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, just as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you would not have it” (Luke 13:34)!

As briefly outlined above by George Peters and Alva McClain, there are sufficient evidences in Scripture to prove beyond reasonable doubt that Jesus possesses full deity. In summary: He is the creator and sustainer of all things, He is the Savior and giver of things of God, He has authority to forgive sins, and is the judge of all. He is all-seeing, all-knowing and omnipresent. He was eternally preexistent. He never changes. It is proper to serve Him, pray to Him, give glory to Him and worship Him. He is not an angel; He is Lord, sovereign with His Father, the Son of God, God (as is His Father) and Jehovah. Throughout the remainder of this section Deity of the King we will explore the biblical evidences for Christ’s deity in some detail. Most of the material that follows in this section was compiled by this writer during my six-month period of personal Bible study in 1984, as I was trying to ascertain for myself from Scripture alone just who Jesus is. The conclusions drawn from this study led me out of the Jehovah's Witness cult and into saving faith in the biblical Lord Jesus Christ. For a complete listing of all the passages of Scripture that convinced me that Jehovah's Witnesses are wrong in their identifying Jesus as Michael the archangel and that the historic, fully-God and fully-man view of Christ is correct, see the The Deity of Christ section of my study Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses. Scripture quotations in this section are taken from the ASV, NASB, NIV and RSV, just as I collected and collated them in my original study in 1984.

Jesus is the Creator. "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of the heavens, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. And God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them" (Gen. 1:26–27). "Thus saith Jehovah, thy Redeemer, and he that formed thee from the womb: I am Jehovah, that maketh all things; that stretcheth forth the heavens alone; that spreadeth abroad the earth (who is with me)" (Isa. 44:24)? "All things came into being by Him, and apart from Him nothing came into being that has come into being" (John 1:3). [If Jesus came into being, then according to this passage He must have created Himself.—ed.] "Oh, the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are His judgments and unfathomable His ways! For WHO HAS KNOWN THE MIND OF THE LORD, OR WHO BECAME HIS COUNSELOR? Or WHO HAS FIRST GIVEN TO HIM THAT IT MIGHT BE PAID BACK TO HIM AGAIN? For from Him and through Him and to Him are all things. To Him be the glory forever. Amen" (Rom. 11:33–36). "There was the true light which, coming into the world, enlightens every man. He was in the world, and the world was made through Him, and the world did not know Him" (John 1:9–10). "and to bring to light what is the administration of the mystery which for ages has been hidden in God, who created all things" (Eph. 3:9) "For He delivered us from the domain of darkness, and transferred us to the kingdom of His beloved Son, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins. And He is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of all creation. For by Him all things were created, both in the heavens and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities — all things have been created by Him and for Him" (Col. 1:13–16). "I also will make him my first-born, The highest of the kings of the earth" (Ps. 89:27). "And Joseph called the name of the first-born Manasseh: For, said he, God hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house. And the name of the second called he Ephraim: For God hath made me fruitful in the land of my affliction" (Gen. 41:51–52). "They shall come with weeping; and with supplications will I lead them: I will cause them to walk by rivers of waters, in a straight way wherein they shall not stumble; for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born" (Jer. 31:9). [Being firstborn does not mean the first created, nor even necessarily the first one born.—ed.] "in these last days has spoken to us in His Son, whom He appointed heir of all things, through whom also He made the world" (Heb. 1:2). "But of the Son He says, 'THY THRONE, O GOD, IS FOREVER AND EVER, AND THE RIGHTEOUS SCEPTER IS THE SCEPTER OF HIS KINGDOM. THOU HAST LOVED RIGHTEOUSNESS AND HATED LAWLESSNESS; THEREFORE GOD, THY GOD, HATH ANOINTED THEE WITH THE OIL OF GLADNESS ABOVE THY COMPANIONS.' And, 'THOU, LORD, IN THE BEGINNING DIDST LAY THE FOUNDATION OF THE EARTH, AND THE HEAVENS ARE THE WORKS OF THY HANDS'" (Heb. 1:8–10) "Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever; A scepter of uprightness is the scepter of Thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated wickedness; Therefore God, Thy God, has anointed Thee With the oil of joy above Thy fellows" (Ps. 45:6–7). "When the peoples are gathered together, And the kingdoms, to serve Jehovah. He weakened my strength in the way; He shortened my days. I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days: Thy years are throughout all generations. Of old didst thou lay the foundation of the earth; And the heavens are the work of thy hands. They shall perish, but thou shalt endure; Yea, all of them shall wax old like a garment; As a vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed: But thou art the same, And thy years shall have no end" (Ps. 102:22–27). "Therefore, holy brethren, partakers of a heavenly calling, consider Jesus, the Apostle and High Priest of our confession. He was faithful to Him who appointed Him, as Moses also was in all His house. For He has been counted worthy of more glory than Moses, by just so much as the builder of the house has more honor than the house. For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God" (Heb. 3:1–4).

He is the Sustainer. "And He [Jesus] is before all things, and in Him all things hold together" (Col. 1:17). "And He [Jesus] is the radiance of His glory and the exact representation of His nature, and upholds all things by the word of His power. When He had made purification of sins, He sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high" (Heb. 1:3)

He is the Savior. “I, even I, am Jehovah; and besides me there is no saviour” (Isa. 43:11). “Declare ye, and bring it forth; yea, let them take counsel together: who hath showed this from ancient time? who hath declared it of old? have not I, Jehovah? and there is no God else besides me, a just God and a Saviour; there is none besides me” (Isa. 45:21). “Yet I am Jehovah thy God from the land of Egypt; and thou shalt know no god but me, and besides me there is no saviour” (Hos. 13:4). “but at the proper time manifested, even His word, in the proclamation with which I was entrusted according to the commandment of God our Savior; to Titus, my true child in a common faith: Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior” (Titus 1:3–4). “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:13) “But when the kindness of God our Savior and His love for mankind appeared, He saved us, not on the basis of deeds which we have done in righteousness, but according to His mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewing by the Holy Spirit, whom He poured out upon us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior” (Titus 3:4–6) “Simon Peter, a bond-servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have received a faith of the same kind as ours, by the righteousness of our God and Savior, Jesus Christ” (2 Pet. 1:1)

He is the Giver of things of God. “But as many as received Him [Jesus], to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name, who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God” (John 1:12–13). “My sheep hear My voice, and I know them, and they follow Me; and I [Jesus] give eternal life to them, and they shall never perish; and no one shall snatch them out of My hand” (John 10:27–28). “And I will kill her children with pestilence; and all the churches will know that I am He who searches the minds and hearts; and I [Jesus] will give to each one of you according to your deeds” (Rev. 2:23).

He has authority to forgive sins. “And Jesus seeing their faith said to the paralytic, ‘My son, your sins are forgiven.’ But there were some of the scribes sitting there and reasoning in their hearts, ‘Why does this man speak that way? He is blaspheming; who can forgive sins but God alone?’ And immediately Jesus, aware in His spirit that they were reasoning that way within themselves, said to them, ‘Why are you reasoning about these things in your hearts? Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, “Your sins are forgiven”; or to say, “Arise, and take up your pallet and walk”? But in order that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins’ — He said to the paralytic —” (Mark

2:5–10) “And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, ‘Who is this man who speaks blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone’” (Luke 5:21)? “And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, ‘Who is this man who speaks blasphemies? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?’ But Jesus, aware of their reasonings, answered and said to them, ‘Why are you reasoning in your hearts? Which is easier, to say, “Your sins have been forgiven you,” or to say, “Rise and walk”? But in order that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins,’ — He said to the paralytic — ‘I say to you, rise, and take up your stretcher and go home’” (Luke 5:21–24). “And thus, by sinning against the brethren and wounding their conscience when it is weak, you sin against Christ” (1 Cor. 8:12). “And be kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, just as God in Christ also has forgiven you” (Eph. 4:32).

He has authority to judge men. “For Jehovah is our judge, Jehovah is our lawgiver, Jehovah is our king; he will save us” (Isa. 33:22). ““For not even the Father judges anyone, but He has given all judgment to the Son, in order that all may honor the Son, even as they honor the Father. He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent Him”” (John 5:22–23). “For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that each one may be recompensed for his deeds in the body, according to what he has done, whether good or bad” (2 Cor. 5:10). (See our discussion of the judgment seat of Christ in our chapter The Rapture of the Church, our discussion of Jesus’ judgment of the Gentiles who survive the Great Tribulation in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom, and our discussion of the Great White Throne judgment in our chapter The Lake of Fire.)

He is all-seeing. “then hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place, and forgive, and do, and render unto every man according to all his ways, whose heart thou knowest; for thou, even thou [Jehovah] only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men” (1 Kings. 8:39) ““And I will kill her children with pestilence; and all the churches will know that I [Jesus] am He who searches the minds and hearts; and I will give to each one of you according to your deeds”” (Rev. 2:23). “And I saw between the throne (with the four living creatures) and the elders a Lamb standing, as if slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, sent out into all the earth” (Rev. 5:6).

He is all-knowing (omniscient). “then hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place, and forgive, and do, and render unto every man according to all his ways, whose heart thou knowest; for thou [Jehovah], even thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men” (1 Kings. 8:39) “And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, ‘Why are you thinking evil in your hearts’” (Matt. 9:4) “And knowing their thoughts He said to them, ‘Any kingdom divided against itself is laid waste; and any city or house divided against itself shall not stand’” (Matt. 12:25). “And immediately Jesus, aware in His spirit that they were reasoning that way within themselves, said to them, ‘Why are you reasoning about these things in your hearts’” (Mark 2:8) “But He knew what they were thinking, and He said to the man with the withered hand, ‘Rise and come forward!’ And he rose and came forward” (Luke 6:8). “But Jesus, knowing what they were thinking in their heart, took a child and stood him by His side” (Luke 9:47) “This He said, and after that He said to them, ‘Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep; but I go, that I may awaken him out of sleep’” (John 11:11). “His disciples said, ‘Lo, now You are speaking plainly and are not using a figure of speech. Now we know that You know all things, and have no need for anyone to question You; by this we believe that You came from God’” (John 16:29-30). “He said to him the third time, ‘Simon, son of John, do you love Me?’ Peter was grieved because He said to him the third time, ‘Do you love Me?’ And he said to Him, ‘Lord, You know all things; You know that I love You.’ Jesus said to him, ‘Tend My sheep’” (John 21:17). “that their hearts may be encouraged, having been knit together in love, and attaining to all the wealth that comes from the full assurance of understanding, resulting in a true knowledge of God’s mystery, that is, Christ Himself, in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge” (Col. 2:2-3).

He is omnipresent. “For where two or three have gathered together in My name, there I am in their midst” (Matt. 18:20). “teaching them to observe all that I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age” (Matt. 28:20). “And if Christ is in you, though the body is dead because of sin, yet the spirit is alive because of righteousness” (Rom. 8:10). “Test yourselves to see if you are in the faith; examine yourselves! Or do you not recognize this about yourselves, that Jesus Christ is in you — unless indeed you fail the test” (2 Cor. 13:5)?

He was eternally preexistent. “But thou, Beth-lehem Ephrathah, which art little to be among the thousands of Judah, out of thee shall one come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting” (Mic. 5:2). “In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God [Creation is not mentioned until verse three.—ed.]” (John 1:1). “And He is before all things, and in Him all things hold together” (Col. 1:17). “Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like the Son of God, he abides a priest perpetually” (Heb. 7:3).

He never changes. “For I, Jehovah, change not; therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed” (Mal. 3:6). “But of the Son He says, ‘THY THRONE, O GOD, IS FOREVER AND EVER, AND THE RIGHTEOUS SCEPTER IS THE SCEPTER OF HIS KINGDOM. THOU HAST LOVED RIGHTEOUSNESS AND HATED LAWLESSNESS; THEREFORE GOD, THY GOD, HATH ANOINTED THEE WITH THE OIL OF GLADNESS ABOVE THY COMPANIONS.’ And, ‘THOU, LORD, IN THE BEGINNING DIDST LAY THE FOUNDATION OF THE EARTH, AND THE HEAVENS ARE THE WORKS OF THY HANDS; THEY WILL PERISH, BUT THOU REMAINEST; AND THEY ALL WILL BECOME OLD AS A GARMENT, AND AS A MANTLE THOU WILT ROLL THEM UP; AS A GARMENT THEY WILL ALSO BE CHANGED. BUT THOU ART THE SAME, AND THY YEARS WILL NOT COME TO AN END’” (Heb. 1:8–12). “Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today, yes and forever” (Heb. 13:8).

It is proper to believe on Him. “Jesus said to them, ‘I am the bread of life; he who comes to Me shall not hunger, and he who believes in Me shall never thirst’” (John 6:35). “He who believes in Me, as the Scripture said, “From his innermost being shall flow rivers of living water”” (John 7:38). “Jesus said to her, ‘I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die. Do you believe this’” (John 11:25–26)? “And Jesus cried out and said, ‘He who believes in Me does not believe in Me, but in Him who sent Me’” (John 12:44). “I have come as light into the world, that everyone who believes in Me may not remain in darkness” (John 12:46). “Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me” (John 14:1). “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes in Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go to the Father” (John 14:12). In Scripture, we are never told to believe on or trust in an angel. Believing on an angel would be idolatry.

It is proper to serve Him. “If anyone serves Me, let him follow Me; and where I am, there shall My servant also be; if anyone serves Me, the Father will honor him” (John 12:26). “Paul, a bond-servant of Christ Jesus, called as an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God” (Rom. 1:1) “Let a man regard us in this manner, as servants of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God” (1 Cor. 4:1). “and He died for all, that they who live should no longer live for themselves, but for Him who died and rose again on their behalf (2 Cor. 5:15). “For am I now seeking the favor of men, or of God? Or am I striving to please men? If I were still trying to please men, I would not be a bond-servant of Christ” (Gal. 1:10). “Paul and Timothy, bond-servants of Christ Jesus, to all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, including the overseers and deacons” (Phil. 1:1) “just as you learned it from Epaphras, our beloved fellow bond-servant, who is a faithful servant of Christ on our behalf” (Col. 1:7) “knowing that from the Lord you will receive the reward of the inheritance. It is the Lord Christ whom you serve” (Col. 3:24). “Epaphras, who is one of your number, a bondslave of Jesus Christ, sends you his greetings, always laboring earnestly for you in his prayers, that you may stand perfect and fully assured in all the will of God” (Col. 4:12). “In pointing out these things to the brethren, you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, constantly nourished on the words of the faith and of the sound doctrine which you have been following” (1 Tim. 4:6). “James, a bond-servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes who are dispersed abroad, greetings” (James 1:1). “Jude, a bond-servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to those who are the called, beloved in God the Father, and kept for Jesus Christ” (Jude 1:1) “The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show to His bond-servants, the things which must shortly take place; and He sent and communicated it by His angel to His bond-servant John” (Rev. 1:1)

It is proper to pray to Him. “If you ask Me anything in My name, I will do it” (John 14:14). “And they went on stoning Stephen as he called upon the Lord and said, ‘Lord Jesus, receive my spirit!’ And falling on his knees, he cried out with a loud voice, ‘Lord, do not hold this sin against them!’ And having said this, he fell asleep” (Acts 7:59–60). “and here he has authority from the chief priests to bind all who call upon Thy name.’ But the Lord said to him, ‘Go, for he is a chosen instrument of Mine, to bear My name before the Gentiles and kings and the sons of Israel; for I will show him how much he must suffer for My name’s sake.’ And Ananias departed and entered the house, and after laying his hands on him said, ‘Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road by which you were coming, has sent me so that you may regain your sight, and be filled with the Holy Spirit” (Acts 9:14–17). “and immediately he began to proclaim Jesus in the synagogues, saying, ‘He is the Son of God.’ And all those hearing him continued to be amazed, and were saying, ‘Is this not he who in Jerusalem destroyed those who called on this name, and who had come here for the purpose of bringing them bound before the chief priests” (Acts 9:20–21)? ““And now why do you delay? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on His name.” And it came about when I returned to Jerusalem and was praying in the temple, that I fell into a trance, and I saw Him saying to me, “Make haste, and get out of Jerusalem quickly, because they will not accept your testimony about Me.” And I said, “Lord, they themselves understand that in one synagogue after another I used to imprison and beat those who believed in Thee”” (Acts 22:16–19). “that if you confess with your mouth Jesus as Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you shall be saved; for with the heart man believes, resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth he confesses, resulting in salvation. For the Scripture says, ‘WHOEVER BELIEVES IN HIM WILL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED.’ For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; for the same Lord is Lord of all, abounding in riches for all who call upon Him; for ‘WHOEVER WILL CALL UPON THE NAME OF THE LORD WILL BE SAVED’” (Rom. 10:9–13). “to the church of God which is at Corinth, to those who have been sanctified in Christ Jesus, saints by calling, with all who in every place call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, their Lord and ours” (1 Cor. 1:2) “Concerning this I entreated the Lord three times that it might depart from me. And He has said to me, ‘My grace is sufficient for you, for power is perfected in weakness.’ Most gladly, therefore, I will rather boast about my weaknesses, that the power of Christ may dwell in me” (2 Cor. 12:8–9). “I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because He considered me faithful, putting me into service” (1 Tim. 1:12) “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus” (Rev. 22:20).

It is proper to give glory to Him. “I am Jehovah, that is my name; and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise unto graven images” (Isa. 42:8). “For mine own sake, for mine own sake, will I do it; for how should my name be profaned? and my glory will I [Jehovah] not give to another” (Isa. 48:11). “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13–14). “And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, glory as of the only begotten from the Father, full of grace and truth” (John 1:14). “For not even the Father judges anyone, but He has given all judgment to the Son, in order that all may honor the Son, even as they honor the Father. He who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent Him” (John 5:22–23). “But when Jesus heard it, He said, ‘This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified by it’” (John 11:4). “When therefore he had gone out, Jesus said, ‘Now is the Son of Man glorified, and God is glorified in Him; if God is glorified in Him, God will also glorify Him in Himself, and will glorify Him immediately’” (John 13:31–32). “But when He, the Spirit of truth, comes, He will guide you into all the truth; for He will not speak on His own initiative, but whatever He hears, He will speak; and He will disclose to you what is to come. He shall glorify Me [Jesus]; for He shall take of Mine, and shall disclose it to you. All things that the Father has are Mine; therefore I said, that He takes of Mine, and will disclose it to you” (John 16:13–15). “And now, glorify Thou Me [Jesus] together with Thyself, Father, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was” (John 17:5). “The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified His servant Jesus, the one whom you delivered up, and disowned in the presence of Pilate, when he had decided to release Him” (Acts 3:13). “Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name” (Phil. 2:9) “For by Him all things were created, both in the heavens and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or authorities — all things have been created by Him and for Him” (Col. 1:16). “in order that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in Him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ” (2 Thes. 1:12). “My brethren, do not hold your faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with an attitude of personal favoritism” (James 2:1). “and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the first-born of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To Him who loves us, and released us from our sins by His blood, and He has made us to be a kingdom, priests to His God and Father; to Him be the glory and the dominion forever and ever. Amen” (Rev. 1:5–6). “And I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels around the throne and the living creatures and the elders; and the number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice, ‘Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing.’ And every created thing which is in heaven and on the earth and under the earth and on the sea, and all things in them, I heard saying, ‘To Him who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb, be blessing and honor and glory and dominion forever and ever.’ And the four living creatures kept saying, ‘Amen.’ And the elders fell down and worshiped” (Rev. 5:11–14).

It is proper to worship Him. “Now after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, magi from the east arrived in Jerusalem, saying, ‘Where is He who has been born King of the Jews? For we saw His star in the east, and have come to worship Him” (Matt. 2:1–2). “And he sent them to Bethlehem, and said, ‘Go and make careful search for the Child; and when you have found Him, report to me, that I [Herod] too may come and worship Him” (Matt. 2:8). “And they [the magi] came into the house and saw the Child with Mary His mother; and they fell down and worshiped Him; and opening their treasures they presented to Him gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh” (Matt. 2:11). “Then Jesus said to him, ‘Begone, Satan! For it is written, “YOU SHALL WORSHIP THE LORD YOUR GOD, AND SERVE HIM ONLY”” (Matt. 4:10). “Thou shalt fear Jehovah thy God; and him shalt thou serve, and shalt swear by his name” (Deut. 6:13). “And those who were in the boat worshiped Him, saying, ‘You are certainly God’s Son” (Matt. 14:33)! “And the angel answered and said to the women, ‘Do not be afraid; for I know that you are looking for Jesus who has been crucified. He is not here, for He has risen, just as He said. Come, see the place where He was lying. And go quickly and tell His disciples that He has risen from the dead; and behold, He is going before you into Galilee, there you will see Him; behold, I have told you.’ And they departed quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy and ran to report it to His disciples. And behold, Jesus met them and greeted them. And they came up and took hold of His feet and worshiped Him” (Matt. 28:5–9). “But the eleven disciples proceeded to Galilee, to the mountain which Jesus had designated. And when they saw Him, they worshiped Him; but some were doubtful” (Matt. 28:16–17). “Jesus heard that they had put him out; and finding him, He said, ‘Do you believe in the Son of Man?’ He answered and said, ‘And who is He, Lord, that I may believe in Him?’ Jesus said to him, ‘You have both seen Him, and He is the one who is talking with you.’ And he said, ‘Lord, I believe.’ And he worshiped Him” (John 9:35–38). “Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus EVERY KNEE SHOULD BOW, of those who are in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father” (Phil. 2:9–11). “And when He again brings the first-born into the world, He says, ‘AND LET ALL THE AN-

GELS OF GOD WORSHIP HIM” (Heb. 1:6). “And when He had taken the book, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, having each one a harp, and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints” (Rev. 5:8). “and he said with a loud voice, ‘Fear God, and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made the heaven and the earth and sea and springs of waters” (Rev. 14:7).

He is not an angel. “God, after He spoke long ago to the fathers in the prophets in many portions and in many ways, in these last days has spoken to us in His Son, whom He appointed heir of all things, through whom also He made the world. And He is the radiance of His glory and the exact representation of His nature, and upholds all things by the word of His power. When He had made purification of sins, He sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high; having become as much better than the angels, as He has inherited a more excellent name than they. For to which of the angels did He ever say, ‘THOU ART MY SON, TODAY I HAVE BEGOTTEN THEE’? And again, ‘I WILL BE A FATHER TO HIM AND HE SHALL BE A SON TO ME’? And when He again brings the first-born into the world, He says, ‘AND LET ALL THE ANGELS OF GOD WORSHIP HIM.’ And of the angels He says, ‘WHO MAKES HIS ANGELS WINDS, AND HIS MINISTERS A FLAME OF FIRE.’ But of the Son He says, ‘THY THRONE, O GOD, IS FOREVER AND EVER, AND THE RIGHTEOUS SCEPTER IS THE SCEPTER OF HIS KINGDOM. THOU HAST LOVED RIGHTEOUSNESS AND HATED LAWLESSNESS; THEREFORE GOD, THY GOD, HATH ANOINTED THEE WITH THE OIL OF GLADNESS ABOVE THY COMPANIONS.’ And, ‘THOU, LORD, IN THE BEGINNING DIDST LAY THE FOUNDATION OF THE EARTH, AND THE HEAVENS ARE THE WORKS OF THY HANDS; THEY WILL PERISH, BUT THOU REMAINEST; AND THEY ALL WILL BECOME OLD AS A GARMENT, AND AS A MANTLE THOU WILT ROLL THEM UP; AS A GARMENT THEY WILL ALSO BE CHANGED. BUT THOU ART THE SAME, AND THY YEARS WILL NOT COME TO AN END.’ But to which of the angels has He ever said, ‘SIT AT MY RIGHT HAND, UNTIL I MAKE THINE ENEMIES A FOOTSTOOL FOR THY FEET’? Are they not all ministering spirits, sent out to render service for the sake of those who will inherit salvation” (Heb. 1:1–14)? “For this reason we must pay much closer attention to what we have heard, lest we drift away from it. For if the word spoken through angels proved unalterable, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense, how shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? After it was at the first spoken through the Lord, it was confirmed to us by those who heard, God also bearing witness with them, both by signs and wonders and by various miracles and by gifts of the Holy Spirit according to His own will. For He did not subject to angels the world to come, concerning which we are speaking. But one has testified somewhere, saying, ‘WHAT IS MAN, THAT THOU REMEMBEREST HIM? OR THE SON OF MAN, THAT THOU ART CONCERNED ABOUT HIM? THOU HAST MADE HIM FOR A LITTLE WHILE LOWER THAN THE ANGELS; THOU HAST CROWNED HIM WITH GLORY AND HONOR, AND HAST APPOINTED HIM OVER THE WORKS OF THY HANDS; THOU HAST PUT ALL THINGS IN SUBJECTION UNDER HIS FEET.’ For in subjecting all things to him, He left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him” (Heb. 2:1–8).

He is Lord. “For Jehovah your God, he is God of gods, and Lord of lords, the great God, the mighty, and the terrible, who regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward” (Deut. 10:17). “For the Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath” (Matt. 12:8). “Then He said to Thomas, ‘Reach here your finger, and see My hands; and reach here your hand, and put it into My side; and be not unbelieving, but believing.’ Thomas answered and said to Him, ‘My Lord and my God’” (John 20:27–28)! “that if you confess with your mouth Jesus as Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you shall be saved; for with the heart man believes, resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth he confesses, resulting in salvation. For the Scripture says, ‘WHOEVER BELIEVES IN HIM WILL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED.’ For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; for the same Lord is Lord of all, abounding in riches for all who call upon Him; for ‘WHOEVER WILL CALL UPON THE NAME OF THE LORD WILL BE SAVED’” (Rom. 10:9–13). “And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those that escape, as Jehovah hath said, and among the remnant those whom Jehovah doth call” (Joel 2:32). “Therefore I make known to you, that no one speaking by the Spirit of God says, ‘Jesus is accursed’; and no one can say, ‘Jesus is Lord,’ except by the Holy Spirit” (1 Cor. 12:3). “There is one body and one Spirit, just as also you were called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism” (Eph. 4:4–5) “Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus EVERY KNEE SHOULD BOW, of those who are in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father” (Phil. 2:9–11). “My brethren, do not hold your faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with an attitude of personal favoritism” (James 2:1). “These will wage war against the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, because He is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those who are with Him are the called and chosen and faithful” (Rev. 17:14). “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS’” (Rev. 19:11–16).

He is Sovereign. “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). “And Jesus came up and spoke to them, saying, ‘All authority has been given to Me in heaven and on earth’” (Matt. 28:18). “He who comes from above is above all, he who is of the earth is from the earth and speaks of the earth. He who comes from heaven is above all” (John 3:31). “The Father loves the Son, and has given all things into His hand” (John 3:35). “Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into His hands, and that He had come forth from God, and was going back to God” (John 13:3) “All things that the Father has are Mine; therefore I said, that He takes of Mine, and will disclose it to you” (John 16:15). “and all things that are Mine are Thine, and Thine [the Father’s] are Mine [Jesus’]; and I have been glorified in them” (John 17:10). “Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus EVERY KNEE SHOULD BOW, of those who are in heaven, and on earth, and under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father” (Phil. 2:9–11). “in these last days has spoken to us in His Son, whom He appointed heir of all things, through whom also He made the world” (Heb. 1:2). “THOU HAST PUT ALL THINGS IN SUBJECTION UNDER HIS FEET.’ For in subjecting all things to him, He left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him” (Heb. 2:8). “And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne [singular] of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him” (Rev. 22:3)

He claimed to be God, according to the Jews. “For this cause therefore the Jews were seeking all the more to kill Him, because He not only was breaking the Sabbath, but also was calling God His own Father, making Himself equal with God” (John 5:18). “and I give eternal life to them, and they shall never perish; and no one shall snatch them out of My hand. My Father, who has given them to Me, is greater than all; and no one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand. I and the Father are one.’ The Jews took up stones again to stone Him. Jesus answered them, ‘I showed you many good works from the Father; for which of them are you stoning Me?’ The Jews answered Him, ‘For a good work we do not stone You, but for blasphemy; and because You, being a man, make Yourself out to be God.’ Jesus answered them, ‘Has it not been written in your Law, “I SAID, YOU ARE GODS”? If he called them gods, to whom the word of God came (and the Scripture cannot be broken), do you say of Him, whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world, “You are blaspheming,” because I said, “I am the Son of God”?’” (John 10:28–36)

He is God. “For Jehovah will judge his people, And repent himself for his servants; When he seeth that their power is gone, And there is none remaining, shut up or left at large. And he will say, Where are their gods, The rock in which they took refuge; Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, And drank the wine of their drink-offering? Let them rise up and help you, Let them be your protection. See now that I, even I, am he, And there is no god with me: I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal; And there is none that can deliver out of my hand” (Deut. 32:36–39). “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his [Jesus’] name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace” (Isa. 9:6). “A remnant shall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto the mighty God [Jehovah]” (Isa. 10:21). “Ye are my witnesses, saith Jehovah, and my servant whom I have chosen; that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me” (Isa. 43:10). “Thus saith Jehovah, the King of Israel, and his Redeemer, Jehovah of hosts: I am the first, and I am the last; and besides me there is no God” (Isa. 44:6). “Hearken unto me, O Jacob, and Israel my called: I am he; I [Jehovah] am the first, I also am the last” (Isa. 48:12). “And when I saw Him, I fell at His feet as a dead man. And He laid His right hand upon me, saying, ‘Do not be afraid; I am the first and the last, and the living One; and I was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore, and I have the keys of death and of Hades” (Rev. 1:17–18). “And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write: The first and the last, who was dead, and has come to life, says this” (Rev. 2:8) “And He said to me, ‘It is done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give to the one who thirsts from the spring of the water of life without cost. He who overcomes shall inherit these things, and I will be his God and he will be My son” (Rev. 21:6–7). “Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to render to every man according to what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end. Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying. I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star. And the Spirit and the bride say, “Come.” And let the one who hears say, “Come.” And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost. I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book; and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life and from the holy city, which are written in this book.’ He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus” (Rev. 22:12–20). “BEHOLD, THE VIRGIN SHALL BE WITH CHILD, AND SHALL BEAR A SON, AND THEY SHALL CALL HIS NAME IMMANUEL,’ which translated means, ‘GOD WITH US” (Matt. 1:23). “Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign: behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel” (Isa. 7:14). “The Son of Man will send forth His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all stumbling blocks, and those who commit lawlessness” (Matt. 13:41) “In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God” (John 1:1). “Jesus answered and said to them, ‘Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.’ The Jews therefore said, ‘It took forty-six years to build this temple, and will You raise it up in three days?’ But He was speaking of the temple of His body” (John 2:19–21). “And God raised Him up again, putting an end to the agony of death, since it was impossible for Him to be held in its power” (Acts 2:24). “For this cause therefore the Jews were seeking all the more to kill Him, because He not only was breaking the Sabbath, but also was calling God His own Father, making Himself equal with God” (John 5:18). “And so they were saying to Him, ‘Where is Your Father?’ Jesus answered, ‘You know neither Me, nor My Father; if you knew Me, you would know My Father also’” (John 8:19). “Jesus therefore said, ‘When you lift up the Son of Man, then you will know that I am He, and I do nothing on My own initiative, but I speak these things as the Father taught Me’” (John 8:28). “And God said to Moses, ‘I AM WHO I AM’; and He said, ‘Thus you shall say to the sons of Israel, “I AM has sent me to you”’” (Ex. 3:14). “Jesus said to them, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, before Abraham was born, I am.’ Therefore they picked up stones to throw at Him; but Jesus hid Himself, and went out of the temple” (John 8:58–59). There were five legal cases for stoning: 1) spirit mediums [Lev 20:27], 2) cursing (blasphemy) [Lev 24:10-23], 3) false prophets [Deut 13:5-10], 4) stubborn son [Deut 21:18-21], 5) adultery or rape [Deut 22:21-24, Lev 20:10]. “and I give eternal life to them, and they shall never perish; and no one shall snatch them out of My hand. My Father, who has given them to Me, is greater than all; and no one is able to snatch them out of the Father’s hand. I and the Father are one.’ The Jews took up stones again to stone Him. Jesus answered them, ‘I showed you many good works from the Father; for which of them are you stoning Me?’ The Jews answered Him, ‘For a good work we do not stone You, but for blasphemy; and because You, being a man, make Yourself out to be God’” (John 10:28–33). “And Jesus cried out and said, ‘He who believes in Me does not believe in Me, but in Him who sent Me’” (John 12:44). “From now on I am telling you before it comes to pass, so that when it does occur, you may believe that I am He” (John 13:19). “And God said to Moses, ‘I AM WHO I AM’; and He said, ‘Thus you shall say to the sons of Israel, “I AM has sent me to you”’” (Ex. 3:14). “If you had known Me, you would have known My Father also; from now on you know Him, and have seen Him.’ Philip said to Him, ‘Lord, show us the Father, and it is enough for us.’ Jesus said to him, ‘Have I been so long with you, and yet you have not come to know Me, Philip? He who has seen Me has seen the Father; how do you say, “Show us the Father”?’” (John 14:7–9) “Greater love has no one than this, that one lay down his life for his friends” (John 15:13). “Jesus therefore, knowing all the things that were coming upon Him, went forth, and said to them, ‘Whom do you seek?’ They answered Him, ‘Jesus the Nazarene.’ He said to them, ‘I am He.’ And Judas also who was betraying Him, was standing with them. When therefore He said to them, ‘I am He,’ they drew back, and fell to the ground” (John 18:4–6). “Thomas answered and said to Him, ‘My Lord and my God!’ Jesus said to him, ‘Because you have seen Me, have you believed? Blessed are they who did not see, and yet believed” (John 20:28–29). “Be on guard for yourselves and for all the flock, among which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God which He purchased with His own blood” (Acts 20:28). “and to know the love of Christ which surpasses knowledge, that you may be filled up to all the fulness of God” (Eph. 3:19). “Have this attitude in yourselves which was also in Christ Jesus, who, although He existed in the form of God, did not regard equality with God a thing to be grasped” (Phil. 2:5–6) “For in Him all the fulness of Deity dwells in bodily form” (Col. 2:9) “but in case I am delayed, I write so that you may know how one ought to conduct himself in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and support of the truth. And by common confession great is the mystery of godliness: He who was revealed in the flesh, Was vindicated in the Spirit, Beheld by angels, Proclaimed among the nations, Believed on in the world, Taken up in glory” (1 Tim. 3:15–16). “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:13) “And He is the radiance of His glory and the exact representation of His nature, and upholds all things by the word of His power. When He had made purification of sins, He sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high; having become as much better than the angels, as He has inherited a more excellent name than they” (Heb. 1:3–4). “But of the Son He says, ‘THY THRONE, O GOD, IS FOREVER AND EVER, AND THE RIGHTEOUS SCEPTER IS THE SCEPTER OF HIS KINGDOM’” (Heb. 1:8). “Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever; A scepter of uprightness is the scepter of Thy kingdom” (Ps. 45:6). “Therefore, holy brethren, partakers of a heavenly calling, consider Jesus, the Apostle and High Priest of our confession. He was faithful to Him who appointed Him, as Moses also was in all His house. For He has been counted worthy of more glory than Moses, by just so much as the builder of the house has more honor than the house. For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God” (Heb. 3:1–4). “Simon Peter, a bond-servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have received a faith of the same kind as ours, by the righteousness of our God and Savior, Jesus Christ” (2 Pet. 1:1) “And we know that the Son of God has come, and has given us understanding, in order that we might know Him who is true, and we are in Him who is true, in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life” (1 John. 5:20). “And he showed me a river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming from the throne [singular] of God and of the Lamb, in the middle of its street. And on either side of the river was the tree of life, bearing twelve kinds of fruit, yielding its fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall no longer be any curse; and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His bond-servants shall serve Him; and they shall see His face, and His name shall be on their foreheads” (Rev. 22:1–4).

And, He is Jehovah. “Then shall Jehovah go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south. And ye shall flee by the valley of my mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azel; yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah; and Jehovah my God shall come, and all the holy ones with thee” (Zech. 14:3–5). “For thus saith Jehovah of hosts: After glory hath he sent me unto the nations which plundered you; for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye. For, behold, I will shake my hand over them, and they shall be a spoil to those that served them; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me. Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith Jehovah. And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee” (Zech. 2:8–11). “and they also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven.’ Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day’s journey away” (Acts 1:11–12). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). “so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints” (1 Thes. 3:13). “For this is the one referred to by Isaiah the prophet, saying, THE VOICE OF ONE CRYING IN THE WILDERNESS, ‘MAKE READY THE WAY OF THE LORD, MAKE HIS PATHS STRAIGHT!’” (Matt. 3:3; see also Mark 1:2-3, Luke 3:4, John 1:23) “The voice of one that crieth, Prepare ye in the wilderness the way of Jehovah; make level in the desert a highway for our God” (Isa. 40:3). [The way was prepared for Jehovah; the way was prepared for Jesus.—ed.] “Then one of the twelve, named Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests, and said, ‘What are you willing to give me to deliver Him [Jesus] up to you?’ And they weighed out to him thirty pieces of silver” (Matt. 26:14–15). “And I said unto them, If ye think good, give me my hire; and if not, forbear. So they weighed for my hire thirty pieces of silver. And Jehovah said unto me, Cast it unto the potter, the goodly price that I was prized at by them. And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them unto the potter, in the house of Jehovah” (Zech. 11:12–13). “And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Most High; For you will go on BEFORE THE LORD TO PREPARE HIS WAYS” (Luke 1:76) “The voice of one that crieth, Prepare ye in the wilderness the way of Jehovah; make level in the desert a highway for our God” (Isa. 40:3). “But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the wonderful things that He had done, and the children who were crying out in the temple and saying, ‘Hosanna to the Son of David,’ they became indignant, and said to Him, ‘Do You hear what these are saying?’ And Jesus said to them, ‘Yes; have you never read, “OUT OF THE MOUTH OF INFANTS AND NURSING BABES THOU HAST PREPARED PRAISE FOR THYSELF?”’” (Matt. 21:15–16) “O Jehovah, our Lord, How excellent is thy name in all the earth, Who hast set thy glory upon the heavens! Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast thou established strength, Because of thine adversaries, That thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger” (Ps. 8:1–2). “And I am no more in the world; and yet they themselves are in the world, and I come to Thee. Holy Father, keep them in Thy name, the name which Thou hast given Me, that they may be one, even as We are. While I was with them, I was keeping them in Thy name which Thou hast given Me; and I guarded them, and not one of them perished but the son of perdition, that the Scripture might be fulfilled” (John 17:11–12). “that if you confess with your mouth Jesus as Lord, and believe in your heart that God raised Him from the dead, you shall be saved; for with the heart man believes, resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth he confesses, resulting in salvation. For the Scripture says, ‘WHOEVER BELIEVES IN HIM WILL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED.’ For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; for the same Lord is Lord of all, abounding in riches for all who call upon Him; for ‘WHOEVER WILL CALL UPON THE NAME OF THE LORD WILL BE SAVED’” (Rom. 10:9–13). “And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those that escape, as Jehovah hath said, and among the remnant those whom Jehovah doth call” (Joel 2:32). “Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name” (Phil. 2:9) “having become as much better than the angels, as He has inherited a more excellent name than they” (Heb. 1:4). “But of the Son He says, ‘THY THRONE, O GOD, IS FOREVER AND EVER, AND THE RIGHTEOUS SCEPTER IS THE SCEPTER OF HIS KINGDOM. THOU HAST LOVED RIGHTEOUSNESS AND HATED LAWLESSNESS; THEREFORE GOD, THY GOD, HATH ANOINTED THEE WITH THE OIL OF GLADNESS ABOVE THY COMPANIONS.’ And, ‘THOU, LORD, IN THE BEGINNING DIDST LAY THE FOUNDATION OF THE EARTH, AND THE HEAVENS ARE THE WORKS OF THY HANDS’” (Heb. 1:8–10) “When the peoples are gathered together, And the kingdoms, to serve Jehovah. He weakened my strength in the way; He shortened my days. I said, O my God, take me not away in the midst of my days: Thy years are throughout all generations. Of old didst thou lay the foundation of the earth; And the heavens are the work of thy hands” (Ps. 102:22–25). “BEHOLD, HE IS COMING WITH THE CLOUDS, and every eye will see Him [Jesus], even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev. 1:7). “The burden of the word of Jehovah concerning Israel... they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born” (Zech. 12:1–10). “In various places in the Old Test. where God is spoken of (as e.g. Zech. 14:3, 5; Joel 2:32; Ps. 45:6), it is applied in the New Test. to Jesus... the simple fact that the Theocratic King Himself—which Jesus essentially is—can be no other than Jehovah, itself fully and amply establishes the Divinity of Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 3:483). “Lange (Com. Rev., p. 406) justly observes: ‘In the Coming of Christ God shall perfectly manifest Himself as Jehovah, the Covenant God: faithful to Himself; faithful to His people; faithful to His justice toward all’” (ibid., p. 537).

Summarizing, then, Jesus’ identity, particularly as it relates to His deity, incorporating the above passages together with a few others that include His humanity (so as to demonstrate that His deity and His humanity are not mutually exclusive): Jesus is from everlasting (Mic. 5:2). He was in the beginning (John 1:1). He is before all things (Col. 1:17). He had glory with the Father before the world was (John 17:5). He existed in the form of God (Phil. 2:6). He was God (John 1:1). He is the Firstborn of all creation (for all things were made by Him and for Him; Col. 1:15-16). Through Him are all things (Heb 1:2). All things were made by Him (Col. 1:16). God attributes Jehovah’s creative works to Him (Heb 1:8, 10). All things were created by Him and for Him (Col. 1:16). He made man in His own image (Gen. 1:26-27). The Father sent Him (John 6:57). He sought not His own will, but that of His Father who sent Him (John 6:38). The way was prepared for Jehovah, then Christ came (Matt. 3:3). He was Immanuel—God With Us (Matt. 1:23). All the angels of God worship Him (Heb. 1:6). The magi worshiped Him (Matt. 2:11). He is the Son of God (John 10:36). He who has seen Him has seen the Father (John 14:7-9). The Father was greater than He (spoken by Jesus in His humanity; John 14:28). He could do nothing of Himself (John 5:19). He did nothing of Himself (John 8:28). His Father gave Him the words which He spoke (John 12:49). (In His humanity) He knew not the day nor the hour of the end (Matt. 24:36). A cured blind man worshiped Him (John 9:38). He would raise up His body (John 2:19, 21). No one has greater love than Him (John 15:13). He was one with the Father (John 10:28-33). The Jews believed that He made Himself equal with God (John 5:18). He forgives sins against God (Luke 5:24). He gave men power to be born of God (John 1:12-13). Those in the boat worshiped Him (Matt. 14:33). His eleven disciples worshiped Him (Matt. 28:16-17). The Father's name has been given to Him (John 17:11-12). He is heir of all things (Heb. 1:2). God raised Him from the dead (Acts 2:24). He raised His body from the dead (John 2:19-21). He ascended to His God (John 20:17). He appeared in the presence of God (Heb. 9:24). He sat down at the right hand of God (Mark 16:19). God highly exalted Him (Phil. 2:9). God glorified Him (Acts 3:13). He is not an angel (Heb. 1 & 2). He was made better than the angels (Heb. 1:4). God made Him Lord and Christ (John 2:36). All men should honor Him even as they do the Father (John 5:22-23). He is the First and the Last, as is Jehovah (Isaiah 44:6, Rev. 1:17-18). In Him dwells all the fulness of Deity in bodily form (Col. 2:9). He is the exact representation of God's nature (Heb. 1:3). He is above all (John 3:31). He sustains all things (Col. 1:17, Heb. 1:3). He is eternal Father (Isaiah 9:6). He is Mighty God (Isaiah 9:6). All things that are the Father's are His (John 16:15). All authority in Heaven and on Earth has been given to Him (Matt. 28:18). The Father has given Him power over all flesh (John 17:2). He is mediator between God and men (1 Tim. 2:5-6). He is in the bosom of the Father (John 1:18). He is Lord of lords (Rev. 17:14). "Whoever calls upon the name of Jehovah will be saved" applies to calling on Him (Rom. 10:9, 11-13). And, He is the same yesterday and today and forever (Heb. 13:8).

Humanity of the King

As man, Jesus identifies with humanity and qualifies for the Davidic throne.

Jesus is as much fully human as He is fully God. “It is as heretical to deny Christ’s humanity as it is to deny His deity” (Geisler, ST, 1:253).

He became human at His incarnation. “Since then the children share in flesh and blood, He Himself likewise also partook of the same, that through death He might render powerless him who had the power of death, that is, the devil; and might deliver those who through fear of death were subject to slavery all their lives. For assuredly He does not give help to angels, but He gives help to the descendant of Abraham. Therefore, He had to be made like His brethren in all things, that He might become a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people” (Heb. 2:14-17). “Therefore, when He comes into the world, He says, ‘SACRIFICE AND OFFERING THOU HAST NOT DESIRED, BUT A BODY THOU HAST PREPARED FOR ME’” (Heb. 10:5) “And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, glory as of the only begotten from the Father, full of grace and truth” (John 1:14) “By this you know the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God” (1 John. 4:2) “In the days of His flesh, He offered up both prayers and supplications with loud crying and tears to the One able to save Him from death, and He was heard because of His piety” (Heb. 5:7). “The Christ, properly estimated from the Incarnation, has a history which must comport with the covenants and prophecies” (Peters, TTK, 1:562). “The Incarnation was not the subtraction of deity; it was the addition of humanity” (Geisler, ST, 1:279). “...an unorthodox assumption, namely, that the divine nature became human in the Incarnation. The Eternal did not become temporal, nor did the divine nature become human at the Incarnation any more than the human nature became divine. As a matter of fact, this is the monophysite heresy condemned at the Council of Chalcedon in A.D. 454: It is a confusion of the two natures of Christ. In the Incarnation, the divine nature did not become a human nature or vice versa. Rather, the divine person—the second person of the Trinity—became human; that is, He assumed a human nature in addition to His divine nature... It is as impossible for God to become man as it is for an infinite to become a finite or an uncreated to become created. As Athanasius (c. 293-373) would say, the Incarnation was not the subtraction of Deity, but the addition of humanity. God the Son did not change His divine nature; rather, He added a distinct human nature to it” (ibid., 2:109). “He who suffered was the God-man, yet He did not suffer as God, but as man” (ibid., p. 122). “Christ was infinite and uncreated in His divine nature, but He was finite and created in His human nature” (ibid., p. 178). “The divine nature possessed by Christ did not suffer or die: God is impassible and, hence, incapable of undergoing suffering. Only the Son became incarnated in a human nature; thus, only the Son, not the Father or the Spirit, suffered on the cross” (ibid., p. 296).

He was resurrected bodily. “for just as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the sea monster, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth” (Matt. 12:40). “And he said to them, ‘Do not be amazed; you are looking for Jesus the Nazarene, who has been crucified. He has risen; He is not here; behold, here is the place where they laid Him” (Mark 16:6). “but when they entered, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus” (Luke 24:3). “See My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself; touch Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see that I have” (Luke 24:39). “Jesus answered and said to them, ‘Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.’ The Jews therefore said, ‘It took forty-six years to build this temple, and will You raise it up in three days?’ But He was speaking of the temple of His body” (John 2:19-21). “Then He said to Thomas, ‘Reach here your finger, and see My hands; and reach here your hand, and put it into My side; and be not unbelieving, but believing” (John 20:27). “And as for the fact that He raised Him up from the dead, no more to return to decay, He has spoken in this way: “I will give you the holy and sure blessings of David.” Therefore He also says in another Psalm, “Thou wilt not allow Thy Holy One to undergo decay.” For David, after he had served the purpose of God in his own generation, fell asleep, and was laid among his fathers, and underwent decay; but He whom God raised did not undergo decay” (Acts 13:34-37) “For thou wilt not leave my soul to Sheol; Neither wilt thou suffer thy holy one to see corruption” (Ps. 16:10) “For in Him all the fulness of Deity dwells in bodily form,” (Col. 2:9) “For there is one God, and one mediator also between God and men, the man Christ Jesus” (1 Tim. 2:5) “If Nesbit, Robinson, and Hodge are right, then the body of Jesus might have remained in the sepulchre untouched, and its removal, under the idea of resurrecting power, was simply a deception... a re-creation... God preserves the idea... This is the resurrection of an idea... Strange how far men will proceed with the Scriptures in order to establish a favorite theory, to which the former must bend” (Peters, TTK, 2:230). “The resurrection of Jesus is a stumbling-block to all purely spiritual theories” (ibid., p. 231). “The views of the Gnostics relating to matter, and the consequent rejection of this doctrine, has influenced many to imitate Hymenaeus and Philetus” (ibid.). “If... no particles of the body of Jesus were needed in the resurrection, the empty sepulchre was merely a pious deception, and the proof given to Thomas of a resurrection was a mere pious fraud. No! The Record is too explicit” (ibid., p. 232). “When we see Christ’s body, the body itself, raised up so that it should not experience corruption; when we consider this requisite to prove His resurrecting power over death itself; when we contemplate the assurance that His resurrection is a pledge, the first fruits, of our own, then we are satisfied, and willing to remain in ignorance of its modus operandi, awaiting its glorious power” (ibid., p. 240). “Such a union of natures, as was sustained before His death and continued unimpaired after it, evermore remains. This is a covenanted necessity, for David’s Son, and no other, is the appointed King. Therefore the same union is still so preserved, the vital relationship of the two natures is still so continued, that we have the same Divine-Human Jesus to-day and evermore. The same Jesus that the disciples saw ascend to heaven shall come again in like manner, unchanged. The same Son of David that ascended must also descend, or else the covenant cannot be realized. Indeed the entire tenor of the Word evinces this, that since his ascension there has been no conversion of human nature into the Divine (just as little as the opposite advocated by some, that in the incarnation the divine was converted into the human—a transmutation dogma doing violence to the Infinite), although Augustine rashly says: ‘God became man that man may become God.’ A glorification was indeed experienced, but this did not destroy the human, just as the glorification of the saints does not change the personality and identity of their humanity. This is the more essential to notice, since eminent men overlooking the covenant connection, teach the contrary” (ibid., 3:538). “God’s own oath-bound covenant, in order to be realized, positively demands the perpetuation of David’s descendant. The old opinion of Origen (Hagenbach, vol. 1, p. 177) that ‘the humanity of Jesus ceased to exist after His exaltation;’ inflicts a deadly blow to covenant promise made to David’s Son” (ibid., p. 539). “It is now a ‘glorious body’ in its nature, a body of flesh and bones (but without blood) in its structure” (Chafer, ST, 4:91). “The resurrection body of Christ never becomes omnipresent” (Walvoord, MK, p. 269). “If Jesus’ resurrection body was not really the same material body of flesh and bones in which He died, then He cannot be exonerated from the charge of deception” (Geisler, ST, 2:619). “He [Jesus] could have stepped into another dimension in His physical body” (ibid., 4:278). “Resuscitated corpses die again; Jesus’ resurrection body was immortal... Jesus was the first to be raised in an immortal body... The Resurrection was more than a reanimation of a material corpse, but not less” (ibid., p. 282). “With the exception of scattered unorthodox views (such as Origen’s), the earliest Fathers affirmed that Jesus rose in the same body of flesh in which He was crucified” (ibid., p. 285). “A denial of Christ’s literal reign is, in effect, a denial of His literal resurrection body” (ibid., 4:535). “Jesus was the first to receive a permanent, immortal resurrection body (1 Cor. 15:20)” (ibid., p. 677).

He is human today. “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13–14). “See My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself; touch Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see that I have” (Luke 24:39). “Jesus answered and said to them, ‘Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.’ The Jews therefore said, ‘It took forty-six years to build this temple, and will You raise it up in three days?’ But He was speaking of the temple of His body” (John 2:19–21). “Therefore having overlooked the times of ignorance, God is now declaring to men that all everywhere should repent, because He has fixed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness through a Man whom He has appointed, having furnished proof to all men by raising Him from the dead” (Acts 17:30–31). “For in Him all the fulness of Deity dwells in bodily form” (Col. 2:9) “For there is one God, and one mediator also between God and men, the man Christ Jesus” (1 Tim. 2:5) “and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle” (Rev. 1:13). “The tendency of many Theologians is to exalt the divinity of Jesus to the almost total exclusion of the humanity, just as if the latter had performed its function and was not destined to remain in the future an important and essential factor in Redemption” (Peters, TTK, 1:562). “In the effort to exalt the divine, too little stress has been laid on the human” (ibid., p. 565). “...the early church faith... insists upon the human maintaining its distinctive and enduring relationship in the Christship of Jesus” (ibid.).

And, He will be human during His reign as Davidic King. (See our discussion of the King reigning as the Son of Man in our section Titles of the King below.)

Deity and Humanity Combined

As both God and man, Jesus possesses deity and humanity combined. “And He said to them, ‘How is it that they say the Christ is David’s son? For David himself says in the book of Psalms, “The Lord said to my Lord, ‘Sit at My right hand, Until I make Thine enemies a footstool for Thy feet” David therefore calls Him “Lord,” and how is He his son” (Luke 20:41-44)? “Jehovah saith unto my [David’s] Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thine enemies thy footstool” (Ps. 110:1). “For in Him all the fulness of Deity dwells in bodily form” (Col. 2:9) “For there is one God, and one mediator also between God and men, the man Christ Jesus” (1 Tim. 2:5) “And I turned to see the voice that was speaking with me. And having turned I saw seven golden lampstands; and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle. And His head and His hair were white like white wool, like snow; and His eyes were like a flame of fire; and His feet were like burnished bronze, when it has been caused to glow in a furnace, and His voice was like the sound of many waters. And in His right hand He held seven stars; and out of His mouth came a sharp two-edged sword; and His face was like the sun shining in its strength” (Rev. 1:12–16). “The physical body of Jesus no longer veils the shining brightness of the glory” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 610). “I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star” (Rev. 22:16). “...Jesus Who, in His humanity, is the root and offspring of David, but as to His deity, He is the Shechinah Glory, as seen in the brightness and visibility of the light of the morning star” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 538). “The Theocracy, by incorporating the Davidic kingship, embraces, as the grand instrumentality for its future re-establishment in sublime power and glory, the Divine-Human, now united in Jesus, the Messiah” (Peters, TTK, 1:559). “In His Divine capacity He is represented as [now—ed.] reigning, but this reign is not the reign of promise;—the latter is confined to a special covenanted outward visible manifestation of the human in conjunction with the Divine, in an externally Theocratic ordering” (ibid., p. 560). “When Christ assumes the Kingdom at the time appointed, in view of His being the predicted seed of David, this does not by any means cause Him to lay aside the Sovereignty that He has with the Father over the universe. As Divine He is with the Father evermore, but as the Divine-human, He manifests himself (and the Father through Him) on earth in a specified form of reigning adapted to humanity. Hence the predicted Kingdom is something that pertains not merely to the Divine but to ‘the Christ,’ i.e. the Divine-human united” (ibid.). “Two extremes are to be avoided: on the one hand to lay all stress on the Divine, and making, in this Kingdom, the human too subordinate; and on the other hand pressing the human to the exclusion of the Divine. Both are firmly and eternally united”

(ibid.). “When again present on earth, taking the Kingdom as Son of Man, this does not forbid His being, through the all-pervading attributes ascribed to Him, in heaven or in any part of the universe” (ibid.). “The Divine has elevated the human, held in conjunction for the pre-ordained Theocratic rule, to the Father’s throne, i.e. ‘the Christ,’ the Divine-Human united in one Person is ‘set down with my Father in His throne,’ and that in virtue of His overcoming” (ibid., p. 563). “...the God-Man as Theocratic King, He is represented in the latter capacity as waiting, ‘expecting till His enemies shall be made His footstool,’ etc.” (ibid.) “...the Divine Sovereignty... in the Theocratic form, which in its initiatory form was separated in its Rulership by two persons (i.e. God and David) but is now happily conjoined—making it thus efficacious, irresistible, and ever-enduring—in one, i.e., ‘the Christ’” (ibid., p. 577). “We plainly prove from the Scriptures, that the restored Theocracy, as predicted, demands a God-man, a divine-human person to sit on David’s throne and rule over his kingdom... a Theocracy brought to its perfected state, bringing God and man in union in a plan of government, necessarily implies it, which is distinctly affirmed by the duration, extent, works, power, results, etc. of His reign” (ibid., 3:417). “...Jesus the Christ, the union of the divine with the human, thus restoring the presence of God, bridging over the chasm now existing between the world and God, and bringing to man in all his relations the deliverance that he needs” (ibid., p. 493). “...a yearning of humanity to have the divine to reveal itself in an accessible form to man, joining the Infinite and the Finite in a recognizable manner... (1) the Theocracy embraced the idea of God Himself ruling; and (2) this was co-joined in the covenant and promises to be realized in David’s Son; (3) this led to the production of the fact; and (4) this was acknowledged by the chief priests when they charged Jesus with blasphemy because He claimed to be this Son, ‘the Christ.’ There is a logical and historical connection” (ibid., p. 533). “A Theocracy presided over by a real Theocratic King, manifested in and through a vital union of God with man, imperatively requires a God-man” (ibid.). “Indeed, if Jesus is viewed, as, in justice to Himself and the Record, He ought to be, in the light of this Theocratic position, His Divine-Human appears with an increased intensity and lustre that is overwhelming” (ibid.). “The remarkable and most forcible feature comes forth, that what was once separated in this Theocratic Kingdom is united in the person of this King. When the Theocracy was first established, the earthly Ruler (i.e., God acting as such) was separate (i.e. in personality) from the subordinate human ruler (as e.g. God was separate and distinct from the subordinate ruler David), but in this revived form it is God’s Purpose to have both joined, firmly united in the same person... Inspiration alone could produce such a Theocratic Plan, so glorious, complete, and adapted to a perfect rule” (ibid., p. 537). “This again brings out prominently the doctrine respecting the Person of Christ—a significant one too as the day is approaching. Our view rejects on the one side the old opinion, revamped by modern Rationalism that Christ is a mere man, for the acts that He performs, the new Creation, the Supernatural, the universal judging, the resurrection power exerted, etc., prove Him to be more than man, the Son of God in the highest sense. It rejects on the other hand the Gnostic idea, and its modern philosophical tendency, which either virtually ignores or despises the human in Christ, or else makes it play a very subordinate part in His history and that of Redemption, bringing forward the divine in an exclusive onesided manner. Looking only at the covenants, the work of Redemption proceeds on the ground that Jesus is man, proper man, of the seed of David, thus identified with the race and of the same nature with Adam. Coming necessarily in the elect line, He professes complete humanity, for His birth, growth, expansion of intellectual and moral powers, eating, drinking, temptation, life, sufferings, and death—all indicate this. But looking at the work which is to be performed, the Supernatural connected with Him, the portrayal of His offices, attributes, power, etc., we apprehend one possessing in connection with the human, a divine nature. Both are united to form a Saviour capable of performing in all respects the great work of Redemption, which is so intimately connected with a Theocratic ordering, with the precious principles of moral and civil government, with the purity and glory of God Himself, and with the highest interests of man and the race” (ibid.). “The idea of humanity united with the divine and realized in Christ, is the Key to Protestant theology... It is the goal toward which all things are tending—the culmination of God’s Purpose in government and restitution” (ibid., p. 539). “In this Theocratic representation alone, do we find the chasm between the Infinite and Finite completely and satisfactorily filled. According to ‘the sure mercies of David’ the Finite ever remains with the Infinite, and it is the pleasure of the Infinite to glorify, and manifest itself through, the Finite” (ibid., p. 540). “Jesus... He must indeed be, as has been abundantly proven, David’s Son, and thus Human; but He must also be God, and thus able to rule Theocratically. The prophets insist upon this human nature, and they press it as so essential that all men, Jews and Gentiles, have fully admitted that ‘the Messiah’ must be a descendant of David’s. This Messiah is to be the Head of the restored Theocracy. But see how the same prophets describe this Ruler as ‘God,’ as ‘the Lord God,’ etc., and bestow upon Him—the Coming One—the title, dignity, honor, and glory of God Himself. A multitude of passages which, similar to Zeph. 3:15,

17, declare that when this Kingdom is set up ‘the King of Israel, even the Lord, is in the midst of thee,’ ‘the Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty,’ clearly show that this Messiah is a God-man. The student will find this an exceeding rich vein from which to adduce the divinity of ‘the Christ,’ for the Lord God that cometh in vengeance and for redemption is this self-same appointed Messiah. Now, why do the prophets bring forth this grand conception as if it was a matter so plain that it needs no explanation? Simply because it is rooted and grounded in the Theocratic conception, for no Theocracy can be restored without God being its acknowledged earthly Ruler” (ibid., p. 601). Chafer adds, “The Bible presents many contrasts, but none more striking than that one Person should be at the same time very God and very man. Illustrations from the Scriptures of these contrasts are many: He was weary, yet He called the weary to Himself for rest. He was hungry, yet He was ‘the bread of life.’ He was thirsty, yet He was ‘the water of life.’ He was in an agony, yet He healed all manner of disease and soothed every pain. He ‘grew, and waxed strong in spirit,’ yet He was from all eternity. He was tempted, yet He, as God, could not be tempted. He became self-limited in knowledge, yet He was the wisdom of God. He said (with reference to His humiliation, being made for a little time lower than the angels), ‘My Father is greater than I,’ yet He also said, ‘He that hath seen me hath seen the Father,’ and, ‘I and my Father are one.’ He prayed, yet He answered prayer. He wept at the tomb, yet He called the dead to arise. He asked, ‘Whom do men say that I the Son of man am?’ yet He ‘needed not that any should testify of man: for he knew what was in man.’ He said, ‘My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?’ yet it was the very God to whom He cried who was at that moment ‘in Christ reconciling the world unto himself.’ He died, yet He is eternal life. He was God’s ideal man, and man’s ideal God” (MBT, 12%). “No theological account of the Messianic King, as He is presented in the Old Testament prophets, can be true which fails to give due place to both the human and divine elements in His nature, and also to both the earthly and heavenly aspects of His origination” (McClain, GK, p. 164). “‘...The LORD said unto my Lord...’ God’s Messianic King must be both human and divine: ‘If David then call him Lord, how is he his son?’” (ibid., p. 356)? “Only if one and the same person, who was both God and man, died for our sin, can He truly be mediator between God and man (1 Tim. 2:5)” (Geisler, ST, 2:296). “We must distinguish between what Jesus knew as God (everything) and what He knew as man (not everything)” (ibid., p. 307). “The person of Jesus, then, had infinite knowledge only in His infinite nature. As God, He knew all things; as man, Jesus grew in knowledge (Luke 2:52). The same applies to His other attributes; for example, He was omnipotent as God but limited as man” (ibid., 3:423).

While holding fast to all that we’ve said above, we readily admit also that our fully fathoming Jesus’ Person in our finite and (presently) imperfect state is not possible. “We are not of those who think that the Person of Christ can be fully explained. He portrays Himself as a mystery, connected with the incomprehensible, revealed only to a few, and then only in some of His features. Much pertaining to Christ is still unknown, and has been the subject of controversy and impotent discussion. Hence the author has little sympathy with a class of writers who, in their exactness to define the Person of Christ rush to opposite extremes: the one party, while acknowledging the union of the divine-human, have the human completely absorbed in the divine; the other with equal preciseness making all human. Others receive, justly, all that is recorded, and therefore cleave to Jesus as ‘the Christ,’ being constituted such by a permanent union of the divine-human, both existing in ever-enduring harmony. Man is himself, in some respects, a mystery, and so long as it has been found impracticable to explain man (as e.g. union of soul and body) consistently and satisfactorily, it would be better (as indicative of modesty) to avoid attempting an accurate explanation of ‘the Christ.’ It is painful to read the varied and contradictory statements given in the writings of fallible men concerning Him, who, in the very nature of the case, being man and above man—man united with the Divine Mystery (God, the Incomprehensible)—is in a higher sense beyond our comprehension. We must rest satisfied with the description given of Him in the Word (which some writers portray with force and depth), without attempting to explain what the Bible has left indefinite and unknown” (Peters, TTK, 1:561).

Also requisite for Jesus’ theocratic Kingship is His submissiveness. “and you belong to Christ; and Christ belongs to God” (1 Cor. 3:23). “But I want you to understand that Christ is the head of every man, and the man is the head of a woman, and God is the head of Christ” (1 Cor. 11:3). “then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that will be abolished is death. For He has put all things in subjection under His feet. But when He says, ‘All things are put in subjection,’ it is evident that He is excepted who put all things in subjection to Him. And when all things are subjected to Him, then the Son Himself also will be subjected to the One who subjected all things to Him, that God may be all in all” (1 Cor. 15:24-28). “and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Phil. 2:11). "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His great mercy has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead" (1 Pet. 1:3) "He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name" (Rev. 3:12). "As our argument of the specific Theocratic-Davidic Rulership involves, this sitting at the right hand of the Father embraces the inference, that being the destined Representative Ruler, He is inferior in rank to the Father. This is fully admitted by our opponents (as e.g. Knapp, Ch. Theol., p. 355), who tell us that He does not possess 'full equality in rank or dignity.' The reason underlying this, is because this Kingdom is something separate and distinct from the Divine Sovereignty, being a specific form of Government under the Headship of a Representative, given to David's Son, who acts only in the predicted and covenanted Theocratic capacity, and, therefore, must necessarily ever be subordinate to the Father as Paul teaches, 1 Cor. 15:27" (Peters, TTK, 3:542). "He 'emptied himself, taking the form of a servant' (Phil. 2:7, ASV). During the days of His flesh He was the perfect Servant of Jehovah, doing nothing of Himself but always speaking and acting under the direction and power of the Holy Spirit" (McClain, GK, p. 314). "As Son, He is eternally submissive to the Father" (Geisler, ST, 2:597)

For Jesus to become fully man, thereby acquiring eligibility for the Davidic throne, His incarnation was required. As to the timing of the incarnation, it was prophesied to occur while the temple was still standing. "Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy. Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the anointed one, the prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: it shall be built again, with street and moat, even in troublous times. And after the threescore and two weeks shall the anointed one be cut off, and shall have nothing: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and even unto the end shall be war; desolations are determined. And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate” (Dan. 9:24–27). “Messiah was to come while the temple was still standing within the weeks designated by Daniel (9:24-27)” (Peters, TTK, 3:414) It occurred during the middle age of the world. “the incarnation as taking place in the middle age of the world” (ibid., p. 132) (For a more complete discussion of the timing of the incarnation, see our discussion of Daniel’s seventy weeks in our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom.) As to the ethnicity of the incarnation, Messiah is a Jew. “who are Israelites, to whom belongs the adoption as sons, and the glory and the covenants and the giving of the Law and the temple service and the promises, whose are the fathers, and from whom is the Christ according to the flesh, who is over all, God blessed forever. Amen” (Rom. 9:4-5). (See a detailed discussion of Jesus’ genealogy in our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom.) Jesus’ ethnic connection to the Jewish race ensures the race’s preservation and blessing, not only in the Jewish Person of Christ, but also in the believing Jewish remnant. As to the wonder of the incarnation, it is marvelous. “Well may we ask those faithless ones who will not believe in the personal Advent of Jesus and His reign with His saints on earth, to look at the First Advent. Is our doctrine more astounding or more testing to faith and reason than that God should humble Himself in the child Jesus, that this Messiah should suffer and die? Our doctrine has nothing so amazing, nothing so humiliating, and consequently those who accept of the facts of the First Advent are inexcusable when they refuse credence to the alleged facts of the Second, when all the latter speak of a coming honor, dominion, and glory” (ibid., p. 218). “It is not a marvel that He should come in renovating judgments to the earth: the marvel must ever be that He, the King of Glory, should bow the heavens and come down to this earth as an unresisting Lamb” (Chafer, KHP, 89%). Yet as marvelous as Jesus’ First Advent was, His Second Advent will be immensely more glorious. “Exceedingly precious as the First is, the Second exceeds it in glory, and, therefore, the latter is pre-eminently ‘the blessed hope’” (Peters, TTK, 1:249). (See our discussion of the glory of Jesus’ Second Advent in our chapter The Second Coming of the King.) As to the purpose of the incarnation, it is multifaceted. However, we must be careful to restrict the purposes of the incarnation to those explicitly taught in Scripture, lest we mistakenly attribute purposes of Jesus’ Second Advent (such as reigning from David’s throne) to His First Advent. One purpose of the incarnation was to reveal God to man. “No man has seen God at any time; the only begotten God, who is in the bosom of the Father, He has explained Him” (John 1:18). “God, after He spoke long ago to the fathers in the prophets in many portions and in many ways, in these last days has spoken to us in His Son, whom He appointed heir of all things, through whom also He made the world” (Heb. 1:1–2). “And by common confession great is the mystery of godliness: He who was revealed in the flesh, Was vindicated in the Spirit, Beheld by angels, Proclaimed among the nations, Believed on in the world, Taken up in glory” (1 Tim. 3:16). A second purpose was to provide atonement for sin. “just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many” (Matt. 20:28; also Mark 10:45). “These things took place in Bethany beyond the Jordan, where John was baptizing. The next day he saw Jesus coming to him, and said, ‘Behold, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world’” (John 1:28–29)! “Be on guard for yourselves and for all the flock, among which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God which He purchased with His own blood” (Acts 20:28). “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus; who gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from every lawless deed and purify for Himself a people for His own possession, zealous for good deeds” (Titus 2:13–14). “For Christ also died for sins once for all, the just for the unjust, in order that He might bring us to God, having been put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit” (1 Pet. 3:18) A third purpose was to reveal the gospel. “Come to Me, all who are weary and heavy-laden, and I will give you rest” (Matt. 11:28). “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life” (John 5:24). “Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes has eternal life” (John 6:47). “He who eats My flesh and drinks My blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up on the last day” (John 6:54). “Therefore do not be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord or of me His prisoner, but join with me in suffering for the gospel according to the power of God, who has saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to His own purpose and grace which was granted us in Christ Jesus from all eternity, but now has been revealed by the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel” (2 Tim. 1:8–10) A fourth purpose was to prepare a suitable King/High Priest for the Kingdom. “And behold, you will conceive in your womb, and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:31–33). “In the days of His flesh, He offered up both prayers and supplications with loud crying and tears to the One able to save Him from death, and He was heard because of His piety. Although He was a Son, He learned obedience from the things which He suffered. And having been made perfect, He became to all those who obey Him the source of eternal salvation, being designated by God as a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek” (Heb. 5:7–10). “By this incarnation alone have we the Theocratic relationship, as promised, fully united and sustained in one person. By it God and David’s descendant are inseparably united, giving the Kingdom an unchangeable Head—in brief, bestowing the very characteristics, attributes, etc., so requisite to carry out the proposed Plan” (Peters, TTK, 3:478). “The simple fact is, that the philosophical truth lying at the basis of the Incarnation is found not merely in the provision made for our salvation in the birth, life, death, resurrection, and ascension of this Jesus, but in the bestowal of the covenanted requirements in order that He might be properly constituted Theocratic King, and in what that humanity has yet to perform, in fulfillment of covenanted promises, in the ages to come. To view only what has been done and what is now progressing, is to see one side of the truth; but to look in addition at what shall be done in the future, and to combine these, is to grasp the whole truth” (ibid., p. 561).

Jesus’ fitness for the Kingship required His innocence. “And we indeed justly, for we are receiving what we deserve for our deeds; but this man has done nothing wrong” (Luke 23:41). “Now when the centurion saw what had happened, he began praising God, saying, ‘Certainly this man was innocent’” (Luke 23:47). “And Pilate came out again, and said to them, ‘Behold, I am bringing Him out to you, that you may know that I find no guilt in Him’” (John 19:4). “For we do not have a high priest who cannot sympathize with our weaknesses, but One who has been tempted in all things as we are, yet without sin” (Heb. 4:15). “For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners and exalted above the heavens” (Heb. 7:26) “knowing that you were not redeemed with perishable things like silver or gold from your futile way of life inherited from your forefathers, but with precious blood, as of a lamb unblemished and spotless, the blood of Christ” (1 Pet. 1:18–19). “For you have been called for this purpose, since Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example for you to follow in His steps, WHO COMMITTED NO SIN, NOR WAS ANY DECEIT FOUND IN HIS MOUTH” (1 Pet. 2:21–22) “He was declared innocent six times by both Pilate and Herod” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 260).

His obedience to the Father was also required. “And He went a little beyond them, and fell on His face and prayed, saying, ‘My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from Me; yet not as I will, but as Thou wilt’” (Matt. 26:39). “Jesus therefore answered and was saying to them, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, the Son can do nothing of Himself, unless it is something He sees the Father doing; for whatever the Father does, these things the Son also does in like manner’” (John 5:19). “For as through the one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, even so through the obedience of the One the many will be made righteous” (Rom. 5:19). “Although He was a Son, He learned obedience from the things which He suffered” (Heb. 5:8). “Keeping in view the goal of Theocratic government and its requirements, we find in the honorable obedience of Christ the most ample and satisfactory assurance that in His occupancy of the Davidic throne and Kingdom, He will indeed be a truthful and stable Representative of God” (ibid., p. 584).

His character is befitting a theocratic King. “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war” (Rev. 19:11). “The life of Jesus on earth has been highly eulogized even by unbelief, so that He is represented, by those unwilling to accept of His claims to the Divine and Supernatural, as ‘the ideal of Humanity,’ ‘the Ideal Man,’ ‘the man pre-eminent,’ etc. We accept of this testimony as far as it goes, and add to it, that if we consider the covenanted and predicted claims of Jesus to the Theocratic ordering, we find in that life abundant evidence, cumulative in fact, that in every particular this Son of David acted and lived in the consciousness of His ultimate Theocratic position, so that everything in Him, and coming from Him, was eminently worthy of the Theocratic King. Thus e.g. the contrast between His condition (one of poverty) and the vast extent of His knowledge, the ability exhibited in meeting and confounding the representative and intelligent men of the nation, the high culture and taste manifested in His teaching so that they ever have commended themselves for beauty and force to reason, the exalted sentiments so far in advance of the age proceeding from ‘the carpenter,’ the dignity and nobleness of His character, the remarkable adhesion to His principles and aims irrespective of a threatened death, the conduct at the trial and crucifixion, the high virtue, morality, and piety inculcated compared with the teaching then extant, His public and private life contrasted with that of Reformers and great men, the authority assumed and sustained in connection with an exceeding tenderness of spirit and forgiveness—these are points we love to contemplate as indicative of the high and noble character of the King. The superiority of Jesus as a man, as eminent Apologists have noticed, developed at a time when gross impurity and corruption was prevalent, developed in antagonism to national pride and prejudice, is a stepping-stone to the acknowledgment of the full Theocratic idea—of something allied with Him which elevates and exalts His humanity, which—fortified by the purest life and sealed by the noblest death—establishes His claim to Oneness with the Father, constituting Him the needed perfect Redeemer, and “The Faithful and True” (Peters, TTK, 3:535).

His character was, in fact, developed and demonstrated to the extent of perfection, thus qualifying Him to be a perfect King. “And having been made perfect, He became to all those who obey Him the source of eternal salvation” (Heb. 5:9) “For the Law appoints men as high priests who are weak, but the word of the oath, which came after the Law, appoints a Son, made perfect forever” (Heb. 7:28). “In conversation with Rev. Dr. Rodgers on this point, he suggested that one reason why the sinfulness of the ablest and most highly honored of the Theocratic Kings (as e.g. David and Solomon) is so plainly recorded in Scripture, arises from the fact that thus is shown (1) the failure of mere mortals, through infirmity, to sustain the position perfectly, and (2) to evidence, by way of contrast through trial, the perfection of Jesus as Theocratic King” (Peters, TTK, 1:584). “...gather out a people who, like the Master, shall be made perfect under temptation and trial” (ibid., p. 701). “Cicero once said, in reference to human character, that if perfect excellence could exist in one person, the world would bow down and worship. But, as has been remarked (by Lord, Blessed Hope, p. 16), this was not verified in the Advent of Jesus, when perfect excellence had visible embodiment. The world is not inclined to such worship; human nature finds it too reproachful and self-denying” (ibid., 2:729).

Also demonstrating His fitness for theocratic Kingship were His miracles. “And when the Sabbath had come, He began to teach in the synagogue; and the many listeners were astonished, saying, ‘Where did this man get these things, and what is this wisdom given to Him, and such miracles as these performed by His hands’” (Mark 6:2)? “Men of Israel, listen to these words: Jesus the Nazarene, a man attested to you by God with miracles and wonders and signs which God performed through Him in your midst, just as you yourselves know —” (Acts 2:22) “How can the covenanted promises made to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to inherit the land personally be realized without resurrection, and who so able to perform this as a Messiah that has vindicated His power over the grave, like

Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 3:419)? “If Christ is the One who is to restore or renew all things, as the prophets all testify, then when He comes even in humiliation it is of moment that this miraculous power, alleged to be lodged in Him, should be in some way evidenced to influence faith in Him” (ibid., p. 473). “If He is the Messiah at all, He must exhibit the earnest, at least, of Messianic power so that we may have confidence in Him and in His ability to consummate the predicted Messianic times” (ibid., p. 514). “The conditionality attached to the offer of the Kingdom, its postponement, etc., also explains the refusal of Jesus to perform miraculous signs when solicited in attestation of His being ‘the Messiah’ (Matt. 16:1, etc.), and which some of these writers assume as proof that the Messiahship was in a manner forced upon Jesus reluctantly by a chain of circumstances. The condition of repentance imposed does not require miraculous signs to establish its validity or enforce its obligation (and hence John the Baptist the special preacher of it, performs none), for it is based upon the recorded law of God and the responsive moral nature of man. Jesus having given a sufficiency to indicate His Supernatural endowments—such as necessarily belong to a Messiah—it would, in view of the foreseen rejection, the moral freedom of the nation, and the postponement of the Kingdom, have been premature and ill-timed to have given unrepentant and unbelieving Jews the direct testimonies, as demanded, of Messiahship, for it would have ignored the condition first of all imposed, viz., repent. Had they repented the wonderful signs of Messiahship would have legitimately followed in the mighty work then undertaken, but unrepentant the Kingdom was no longer nigh, and they had no claim upon the Messiah. The refusal is therefore grounded upon the moral relations that the nation sustained to the Messiah. Again: the theory of ‘natural’ explanation (Paulus, etc.), which endeavors to preserve a few fragments of the Gospels by eliminating the miraculous and Supernatural under the plea that we have an exaggerated statement which must be explained by natural causes, is (aside from its outrageous exegetical character) clearly shown to be untenable, because it vitiates the central idea of the Messianic conception a Messiah according to the prophetic and Jewish notion who had the Supernatural closely allied with, and really possessed by, Him. For no one else, it was correctly believed, could possibly introduce the mighty changes and blessings of the Messianic Kingdom. Hence to place any other construction upon the language of the New Test. than it plainly in its grammatical construction requires, in order to emasculate the marvelous, is simply to deny its Messianic belief, its Messianic Kingdom, its Theocratic King. For the veritable Christ of the promised Kingdom must correspond with the covenanted and predicted King, and hence the writers correctly represent the Supernatural as connected with the Person of this Messiah. It follows, therefore, that the most foolish and inconsistent of all attacks upon the Messiahship, is to explain the language intended to convey the notion of the miraculous to denote something else, because the removal of the Supernatural by this means has no affinity with the design of the Gospels, with the ideas then current, with the prophetic word that preceded, and with the Kingdom of God that was then universally believed” (ibid., p. 520). “The efforts made to separate the Christ of the Gospels from the Supernatural and miraculous by a host of past and present writers is simply a historical and illogical outrage, seeing (1) that the latter is so connected and interwoven with all that pertains to Jesus (in birth, life, death, etc.) that it cannot be separated from Him without the greatest violence; (2) that such a separation can only be effected at a lawful sacrifice of Christ’s character, claims, designs etc.; (3) that it virtually makes—no matter what eulogies are given to soften it—Jesus the Christ a deceiver and impostor; (4) that it utterly destroys the veracity and authority of ‘the Christ,’ leaving us simply a man with noble but mistaken aspirations, who by the force of his mind and the things inculcated, aided by circumstances, worked a religious revolution in society; (5) that it leaves us a mere caricature of the scriptural Christ, for whose teaching, actions, and claims we are constantly to apologize, making them either an accommodation to the spirit of the age, or a remnant of superstition, or a misrepresentation of the evangelists, etc.” (ibid., p. 521) “...the miracles... It is nowhere suggested that they were given to accredit the teaching; their evidential purpose was solely and altogether to accredit the Teacher” (Anderson, SOG, p. 41).

And finally, His suffering qualified Him to be a sympathetic and merciful King/Priest. “Who hath believed our message? and to whom hath the arm of Jehovah been revealed? For he grew up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He was despised, and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and as one from whom men hide their face he was despised; and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and Jehovah hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was oppressed, yet when he was afflicted he opened not his mouth; as a lamb that is led to the slaughter, and as a sheep that before its shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth. By oppression and judgment he was taken away; and as for his generation, who among them considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living for the transgression of my people to whom the stroke was due? And they made his grave with the wicked, and with a rich man in his death; although he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth. Yet it pleased Jehovah to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of Jehovah shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by the knowledge of himself shall my righteous servant justify many; and he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he poured out his soul unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors: yet he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors” (Isa. 53:1–12). “For since He Himself was tempted in that which He has suffered, He is able to come to the aid of those who are tempted” (Heb. 2:18). “Although He was a Son, He learned obedience from the things which He suffered” (Heb. 5:8). “Therefore Jesus also, that He might sanctify the people through His own blood, suffered outside the gate” (Heb. 13:12). “For you have been called for this purpose, since Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example for you to follow in His steps” (1 Pet. 2:21) “Therefore, since Christ has suffered in the flesh, arm yourselves also with the same purpose, because he who has suffered in the flesh has ceased from sin” (1 Pet. 4:1) “...Isaiah opening his 53rd chapter with the exclamation, ‘Who hath believed our report?’ i.e., the report of a Messianic King who must suffer and die under the hand of Jehovah” (McClain, GK, p. 168).

Career of the King

The career of Jesus, including His incarnation, life, death, resurrection, ascension, glorification, present session and return perfectly prepares Him for the proper exercise of His Kingship.

Jesus’ incarnation provided His identification and solidarity with humanity and prepared the human body that would qualify Him to sit on David’s throne. (See our discussion of Jesus’ incarnation in our section Qualifications of the King above.)

His life, including His perfect observance of the Mosaic Law, His fulfillment of the Law and the Prophets, His teaching and His miracles also prepared Him for theocratic Kingship. He observed the Mosaic Law perfectly. “For as through the one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, even so through the obedience of the One the many will be made righteous” (Rom. 5:19). “But when the fulness of the time came, God sent forth His Son, born of a woman, born under the Law, in order that He might redeem those who were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption as sons” (Gal. 4:4–5). (See our discussion of Jesus’ innocence in our section Qualifications of the King above.) He fulfilled the Law and the Prophets. “Do not think that I came to abolish the Law or the Prophets; I did not come to abolish, but to fulfill” (Matt. 5:17). “For what the Law could not do, weak as it was through the flesh, God did: sending His own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and as an offering for sin, He condemned sin in the flesh, in order that the requirement of the Law might be fulfilled in us, who do not walk according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit” (Rom. 8:3–4). “having canceled out the certificate of debt consisting of decrees against us and which was hostile to us; and He has taken it out of the way, having nailed it to the cross” (Col. 2:14). He taught regarding the Kingdom and the intervening Church Age. (See our discussion of His announcement and offer of the Kingdom in our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom, and see our discussion of how His teaching changed following His rejection in our chapter Rejection of the King.) His miracles demonstrated that He had the supernatural ability required to usher in and administer the Kingdom. (See our discussion of Jesus’ miracles in our section Qualifications of the King above.)

Jesus’ death, foretold in the Old Testament, fulfilled the legal requirement for justifying sinners:

Regarding the fact of Christ’s death, “And Jesus, crying out with a loud voice, said, ‘Father, INTO THY HANDS I COMMIT MY SPIRIT.’ And having said this, He breathed His last” (Luke 23:46). “For while we were still helpless, at the right time Christ died for the ungodly” (Rom. 5:6). “Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures” (1 Cor. 15:1–4) “For Christ also died for sins once for all, the just for the unjust, in order that He might bring us to God, having been put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit” (1 Pet. 3:18)

His death was foretold in the Old Testament. “Who hath believed our message? and to whom hath the arm of Jehovah been revealed? For he grew up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He was despised, and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and as one from whom men hide their face he was despised; and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and Jehovah hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was oppressed, yet when he was afflicted he opened not his mouth; as a lamb that is led to the slaughter, and as a sheep that before its shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth. By oppression and judgment he was taken away; and as for his generation, who among them considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living for the transgression of my people to whom the stroke was due? And they made his grave with the wicked, and with a rich man in his death; although he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth. Yet it pleased Jehovah to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of Jehovah shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by the knowledge of himself shall my righteous servant justify many; and he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he poured out his soul unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors: yet he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors” (Isa. 53:1–12). “Then after the sixty-two weeks the Messiah will be cut off and have nothing, and the people of the prince who is to come will destroy the city and the sanctuary. And its end will come with a flood; even to the end there will be war; desolations are determined” (Dan. 9:26). “Two major events are said to take place after the sixty-ninth week and before the seventieth week: the cutting off of the Messiah and the destruction of the city and the temple in Jerusalem. These two events did not take place in the seventieth week, for that is not introduced to us until verse twenty-seven, but in an interval between the sixty-ninth and seventieth week” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 248).

His death was therefore inevitable. “The death of the Messiah was inevitable, and even if Israel had accepted the Messiah, He still would have been crucified by the Romans on the same basis: treason against Rome” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 395). “Christ would have died even if Israel had accepted Him. The nation would have proclaimed Jesus as their King, which would have been viewed by Rome as a rebellion against Caesar. Jesus would then have been arrested, tried, and crucified for treason against Rome, as was the case anyway. Three days later, following His resurrection, He would have dispensed with Rome and set up the Messianic Kingdom” (ibid., p. 624).

Regarding the timing of Jesus’ death, it was determined by Jesus. “For this reason the Father loves Me, because I lay down My life that I may take it again. No one has taken it away from Me, but I lay it down on My own initiative. I have authority to lay it down, and I have authority to take it up again. This commandment I received from My Father” (John 10:17–18). “One of the declarations of Jesus previous to His death was, ‘I lay down my life that I might take it again; no one taketh it from me, but I lay it down of Myself. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it again,’ (John 10:17, 18). While His death was desired by Jew and consented to by Roman, while both incurred guilt in engaging in the act and persisting to the end, yet Jesus, according to the record, in virtue of the power lodged within Him, chose for Himself the moment when He should yield up His spirit to the efforts of His executioners. This was done, as we are informed for two reasons: (1) This voluntary yielding of His life is essential to His nature as God-man—nothing being able to occur without the permission of the Divine within Him... Notwithstanding the thirst and pangs endured, the sufferings were not, at the moment of death, sufficient in themselves to cause death as is seen by the surviving of the malefactors, the frequent lingering, long-continued death of crucified persons (the extremities and not the vital parts being first attacked, etc.), the crying out with a loud voice indicative of strength just previous to expiring, and the marveling of Pilate, when His body was requested by Joseph, that He was already dead, it being so remarkable and unexpected... (2) But now appears the Supernatural, the Divine in the very act of dying, in a most intensely interesting form, viz., in fulfilling the type of Himself. Consider when Jesus died, at the ninth Jewish hour or at three o’clock in the afternoon, at the very hour that the sacrifice should be offered at the temple at the very time selected and observed for the slaying of the Paschal Lamb. Was it a mere coincidence that Jesus died at the very time that the Paschal Lamb, the alleged and significant type of Himself, was slain? Was it an artful presentation of the writers of the Gospels to influence belief in the Messiah? If the latter why then do they not point out the relation that the one sustains to the other, and praise the same?... it is wisely and grandly left to speak for itself” (Peters, TTK, 3:480).

The purpose of Jesus' death was to render God propitious toward sinners. "whom God displayed publicly as a propitiation in His blood through faith. This was to demonstrate His righteousness, because in the forbearance of God He passed over the sins previously committed" (Rom. 3:25) "Therefore, He had to be made like His brethren in all things, that He might become a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people" (Heb. 2:17). "and He Himself is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for those of the whole world" (1 John. 2:2). "In this is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins" (1 John. 4:10). "The death of Jesus... Separated from the Divine Purpose which it is to subserve, detached from the Kingdom which it is designed to secure, it necessarily loses much of its meaning and expressiveness" (Peters, TTK, 3:482). "Since no other freedom to act in behalf of sinners has been secured, it is to be concluded that all God has ever done or will do for sinful men is wrought on the sole basis of Christ's death" (Chafer, D, 62%).

The accomplishments of Jesus' death are many. First, it confirmed Israel's continuing role in the plan of God. "It was Jewish blood that was shed on Calvary" [quoting Horatius Bonar, 'The Jew,' The Quarterly Journal of Prophecy, July, 1870, pp. 209-211] (Horner, FI, p. 9) Second, it made atonement for sin. "just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many" (Matt. 20:28). "For the death that He died, He died to sin, once for all; but the life that He lives, He lives to God" (Rom. 6:10). "For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners and exalted above the heavens; who does not need daily, like those high priests, to offer up sacrifices, first for His own sins, and then for the sins of the people, because this He did once for all when He offered up Himself" (Heb. 7:26-27). Third, it abrogated the Mosaic Covenant. "Or do you not know, brethren (for I am speaking to those who know the law), that the law has jurisdiction over a person as long as he lives? For the married woman is bound by law to her husband while he is living; but if her husband dies, she is released from the law concerning the husband. So then if, while her husband is living, she is joined to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband dies, she is free from the law, so that she is not an adulteress, though she is joined to another man. Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die to the Law through the body of Christ, that you might be joined to another, to Him who was raised from the dead, that we might bear fruit for God" (Rom. 7:1-4). “This abrogation by Christ was of the Mosaic economy (Rom. 7:1-4), and not the covenants of promise in which the land is integral” (Horner, FI, p. 242). And fourth, together with His resurrection, it is the basis upon which all Kingdom promises depend. “For the Son of God, Christ Jesus, who was preached among you by us — by me and Silvanus and Timothy — was not yes and no, but is yes in Him. For as many as may be the promises of God, in Him they are yes; wherefore also by Him is our Amen to the glory of God through us” (2 Cor. 1:19–20). “True Judaism looked forward, having the covenants and promises, even to the sacrificial death of the Messiah, and the death of Jesus is no separation from but a confirmation of the Judaic essence, for the Salvation promised through this Messiah is identical with that proclaimed by Judaism” (Peters, TTK, 1:279).

And, the value of Jesus’ death is infinite. “Be on guard for yourselves and for all the flock, among which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God which He purchased with His own blood” (Acts 1:20). “For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of His Son, much more, having been reconciled, we shall be saved by His life” (Rom. 5:10). “For it was the Father’s good pleasure for all the fullness to dwell in Him, and through Him to reconcile all things to Himself, having made peace through the blood of His cross; through Him, I say, whether things on earth or things in heaven” (Col. 1:19-20). “Now the God of peace, who brought up from the dead the great Shepherd of the sheep through the blood of the eternal covenant, even Jesus our Lord, equip you in every good thing to do His will, working in us that which is pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen” (Heb. 13:20-21). “The sacrifice made by Christ on the cross, is more fully and effectively presented in this Kingdom. Instead of confining its efficacy to the present dispensation and making it, after this age ends, something of the past, its efficiency and power is constantly and ever more exerted... so long as inheritance, glorification and rulership lasts, will the procuring cause be esteemed and lauded... The work of Christ in all its fulness, even that relating to the sacrifice already made, cannot be properly estimated unless we notice the end that God purposes in this Theocratic Kingdom... Human depravity is incapable of erecting such a Kingdom, and as history sadly attests, is incapable of sustaining it when erected. Hence before its re-establishment, a sure foundation must be laid against sin; and this is done in the sacrifice made for sin, in the gathering out of those who avail themselves of it and are therefore accounted worthy to enter into and inherit or participate in the Kingdom, as well as in the executive, legislative, and judicial power, that will be exerted by this King when the period arrives for the Kingdom to be revealed. It will not, cannot be exhibited, until it comes with a mighty preponderating, overwhelming, irresistible manifested righteousness which easily crushes all opposition, and insures stability and perpetuity” (Peters, TTK, 3:455). “Since, in that death, His infinite love and power are released from restraint by the accomplishment of every judgment which His righteousness could demand against the sinner, God is more advantaged by the death of Christ than all the world combined” (Chafer, MBT, 14%). “There was no temporizing or partial dealing with sin at the cross. This great issue between God and man was there dealt with in a manner which is satisfying even to the infinite holiness of God, and the only question that remains is whether man is satisfied with the thing which satisfies God. To accept the work of Christ for us is to believe upon the Saviour to the saving of the soul” (ibid., 48%). “As the God-man, His death had infinite value and, therefore, could restore the honor due to an infinitely holy God” (Geisler, ST, 3:206). “Being by nature the infinite God, Christ’s death had infinite value, even though His suffering and death occurred in a finite amount of time” (ibid., 4:403).

Jesus’ burial was prophesied by Him and is an integral component of the gospel. “for just as JONAH WAS THREE DAYS AND THREE NIGHTS IN THE BELLY OF THE SEA MONSTER, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth” (Matt. 12:40). “Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures” (1 Cor. 15:1–4) “Jonah was three days and nights in the fish’s belly, owing to unbelief, so Jesus, for the same period, was in the grave because of Jewish unbelief” (Peters, TTK, 1:380).

Jesus’ resurrection was foretold in the Old Testament. “Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye are come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring the sheaf of the first-fruits of your harvest unto the priest: and he shall wave the sheaf before Jehovah, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the sabbath the priest shall wave it” (Lev. 23:10–11). “For thou wilt not leave my soul to Sheol; Neither wilt thou suffer thy holy one to see corruption” (Ps. 16:10). “Who hath believed our message? and to whom hath the arm of Jehovah been revealed? For he grew up before him as a tender plant... By oppression and judgment he was taken away; and as for his generation, who among them considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living for the transgression of my people to whom the stroke was due? And they made his grave with the wicked, and with a rich man in his death; although he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth. Yet it pleased Jehovah to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of Jehovah shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by the knowledge of himself shall my righteous servant justify many; and he shall bear their iniquities. Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he poured out his soul unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors: yet he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors” (Isa. 53:1–12). “Brethren, I may confidently say to you regarding the patriarch David that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. And so, because he was a prophet, and knew that GOD HAD SWORN TO HIM WITH AN OATH TO SEAT one OF HIS DESCENDANTS UPON HIS THRONE, he looked ahead and spoke of the resurrection of the Christ, that HE WAS NEITHER ABANDONED TO HADES, NOR DID His flesh SUFFER DECAY. This Jesus God raised up again, to which we are all witnesses. Therefore having been exalted to the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, He has poured forth this which you both see and hear. For it was not David who ascended into heaven, but he himself says: “THE LORD SAID TO MY LORD, SIT AT MY RIGHT HAND, UNTIL I MAKE THINE ENEMIES A FOOTSTOOL FOR THY FEET.” Therefore let all the house of Israel know for certain that God has made Him both Lord and Christ — this Jesus whom you crucified” (Acts 2:29-36). “Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures” (1 Cor. 15:1–4) “But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who are asleep” (1 Cor. 15:20). “...in the Old Testament as the ‘EIGHTH DAY,’ or the ‘DAY AFTER THE SABBATH.’ ‘Ye shall bring a sheaf of the “FIRST-FRUITS” of your harvest unto the priest, and he shall wave the sheaf before the Lord, to be accepted for you; on the “MORROW AFTER THE SABBATH” the priest shall wave it.’ Lev. 23:10-11. What did that ‘First Fruits’ typify? Read 1 Cor. 15:20—“Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the “FIRST-FRUITS” of them that slept.’ When did Christ rise from the dead and become the ‘FIRST-FRUITS?’ Not on the ‘Sabbath,’ for He lay dead in the tomb on that day, but on the ‘FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK,’ on the ‘MORROW AFTER THE SABBATH’” (Larkin, DT, p. 31).

His resurrection became a fact of history in the New Testament. “And he said to them, ‘Do not be amazed; you are looking for Jesus the Nazarene, who has been crucified. He has risen; He is not here; behold, here is the place where they laid Him” (Mark 16:6). “Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures” (1 Cor. 15:1-4) “The number of witnesses, if sufficient to establish the fact, is of no moment, seeing that the Word wisely depends—thus acknowledging the force of reason—for its reception to [on—ed.] its undoubted relationship to the Divine Purpose, and to its perfect adaptedness to obtain for us the promised blessings” (Peters, TTK, 3:482). “...the most significant miracle in the New Testament, the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the grave” (Geisler, ST, 2:608). “The very fact that they persecuted the witnesses to the Resurrection, rather than disproving them, is evidence that what the disciples witnessed was real” (ibid., p. 624).

It was a bodily resurrection. (See our discussion of Jesus’ bodily resurrection in our section Humanity of the King above.)

Together with His death, Jesus’ resurrection is the basis upon which all Kingdom promises depend. “One of the doctrinal defects of the Reformation was, that the resurrection of Christ was not made sufficiently prominent as compared with His sacrificial death, while in the apostolic preaching the Crucified and the Risen held equal place. And this feature extended finally in an undue exaltation of the intermediate state, until the resurrection is almost practically ignored as of comparative little consequence to the honor, glory, etc., of the deceased saint. To appreciate the force and pertinency of the resurrection, there must be a return to the scriptural presentation of the matter” (Peters, TTK, 2:228). “Keeping before us the design of the Gospels, it is essential that each one should specify the resurrection of Jesus, for that is the culminating fact which makes the Messianic fulfillment possible” (ibid., 3:358). “The resurrection of Christ, however, proclaimed His victory over Satan and the kingdom of darkness, just as it guaranteed the eventual establishment of His kingdom here on the earth—that realm over which the prince of darkness now rules” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 261). It gives us assurance of future resurrections. “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13–18). “the resurrection... that the deliverance of man from the power of death, if it really took place, is thus secured, and that we have no knowledge of any other Plan given in all the writings possessed by the world that proposes the same” (Peters, TTK, 3:482).

Jesus’ ascension translated the Son of Man from earth to heaven. “Jesus said to her, ‘Stop clinging to Me, for I have not yet ascended to the Father; but go to My brethren, and say to them, “I ascend to My Father and your Father, and My God and your God”’” (John 20:17). “No one has ever gone into heaven [bodily] except the one who came from heaven—the Son of Man’ ([John] 3:13)” (Geisler, ST, 4:295). The purpose of the ascension was to exalt the Son of Man, so Jesus could sit with the Father on His throne, “He who overcomes, I will grant to him to sit down with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne” (Rev. 3:21). “The Word says that He is ‘set down with my Father on His throne,’ indicating great exaltation, but contrasted still with the ‘my throne,’ which in a special manner belongs to Him as Son of Man” (Peters, TTK, 1:614) “He was exalted as Man to sit down ‘on the right hand of the Majesty on high.’ This was not the throne of David transferred somehow from earth to heaven, as some have mistakenly supposed, but God the Father’s own throne in the Universal Kingdom” (McClain, GK, p. 34). so Jesus could prepare a home for His bride, “In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:2-3). “His ascension was necessary to complete the work of salvation by preparing a place for His bride” (Geisler, ST, 3:168). and so Jesus could intercede for His bride. “who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus is He who died, yes, rather who was raised, who is at the right hand of God, who also intercedes for us” (Rom. 8:34). (See our discussion of Jesus’ present session below.)

His career included His glorification. “These things Jesus spoke; and lifting up His eyes to heaven, He said, ‘Father, the hour has come; glorify Thy Son, that the Son may glorify Thee” (John 17:1) “And now, glorify Thou Me together with Thyself, Father, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was” (John 17:5). “And being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross. Therefore also God highly exalted Him, and bestowed on Him the name which is above every name” (Phil. 2:8–9) “And by common confession great is the mystery of godliness: He who was revealed in the flesh, Was vindicated in the Spirit, Beheld by angels, Proclaimed among the nations, Believed on in the world, Taken up in glory” (1 Tim. 3:16). “seeking to know what person or time the Spirit of Christ within them was indicating as He predicted the sufferings of Christ and the glories to follow” (1 Pet. 1:11). “And I turned to see the voice that was speaking with me. And having turned I saw seven golden lampstands; and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle. And His head and His hair were white like white wool, like snow; and His eyes were like a flame of fire; and His feet were like burnished bronze, when it has been caused to glow in a furnace, and His voice was like the sound of many waters. And in His right hand He held seven stars; and out of His mouth came a sharp two-edged sword; and His face was like the sun shining in its strength” (Rev. 1:12–16). “As the Son of Man He had an acquired glory, a name above every name is given unto Him because of His obedience unto death” (Chafer, KHP, 90%). (See also our section Glory of the King below.)

All power and authority were given to Him. “And Jesus came up and spoke to them, saying, ‘All authority has been given to Me in heaven and on earth’” (Matt. 28:18). “And corresponding to that, baptism now saves you — not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience — through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, after angels and authorities and powers had been subjected to Him” (1 Pet. 3:21-22). “Christ, now, in virtue of His divine nature, has absolute control over all nations, over the church, etc., but He only exerts that Sovereignty as God in Providence, etc., not as the Son of Man, David’s Son, in His human nature. That nature is also highly, immeasurably exalted because of its union with the Divine, and of its being intended for the coming visible Theocratic Government to be the Representative Ruler of God. This Rulership now belongs to David’s Son, is His both by right of covenanted birth and obedience, but is not yet realized and will not be until the establishment of the Kingdom. For, we have no distinctive announcement of its actual participation in reigning as covenanted until the Second Advent, at which time it is plainly and specifically stated that He reigns not merely as the Son of God, but really and truly as the Son of Man” (Peters, TTK, 1:596). “Indeed, if we refer to the covenant, this must be the case, for the Kingdom directly covenanted to David’s Son is not a reign over other worlds, over the universe, or over the church as a church—is not even a reign in the third heaven, or some place outside of this earth—but is pointedly stated to be a reign over David’s Kingdom, which is extended to embrace the whole earth. To say then, whatever may be the honored position of Jesus in heaven, that He now is reigning in the covenanted, predicted Kingdom of promise, is directly opposed to God’s oath-bound covenant. This gives us then the proper idea of Christ’s relationship to the church. As Divine, One with the Father, the church is under His care and protection; as Son of Man He sustains a Headship over the church; as the future revealed King, His interest in the church is deep and abiding” (ibid.).

Regarding His present session, He is Head of the church, High Priest, Mediator and Advocate. “It is well too in this discussion to keep constantly in view that ‘the Christ,’ in His exaltation, at present sustains to us the relationship of Mediator, Intercessor, and Advocate. Mercy and forbearance are characteristic of His waiting and expecting position now; mercy and wrath of His Sec. Coming” (Peters, TTK, 1:563). He is Head of the church. “For the husband is the head of the wife, as Christ also is the head of the church, He Himself being the Savior of the body” (Eph. 5:23). “He is also head of the body, the church; and He is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; so that He Himself might come to have first place in everything” (Col. 1:18). He is the church’s High Priest. “Now the main point in what has been said is this: we have such a high priest, who has taken His seat at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, a minister in the sanctuary, and in the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, not man” (Heb. 8:1–2). He is Mediator between God and man. “For there is one God, and one mediator also between God and men, the man Christ Jesus” (1 Tim. 2:5) And, He is the church’s Advocate. “who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus is He who died, yes, rather who was raised, who is at the right hand of God, who also intercedes for us” (Rom. 8:34). “My little children, I am writing these things to you that you may not sin. And if anyone sins, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous” (1 John. 2:1) “The truth concerning the priestly ministry of Christ in Heaven does not make it easy for the Christian to sin. On the contrary, these very things are written that we be not sinning (1 John 2:1); for no one can sin carelessly who considers the necessary pleading which his sin imposes upon the Advocate” (Chafer, MBT, 18%). (See also our discussion of the church in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

His career also includes His return. We’ll discuss His return in detail in our chapter The Second Coming of the King.

And finally, He will exercise His power and authority at His Second Coming. We’ll discuss this exercising of His power and authority in our chapter The Second Coming of the King.

Offices of the King

Throughout His career Jesus holds in turn the three offices of Prophet, Priest and King. “And He said to them, ‘What things?’ And they said to Him, ‘The things about Jesus the Nazarene, who was a prophet mighty in deed and word in the sight of God and all the people’” (Luke 24:19) “And having been made perfect, He became to all those who obey Him the source of eternal salvation, being designated by God as a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek” (Heb. 5:9–10). “Pilate therefore said to Him, ‘So You are a king?’ Jesus answered, ‘You say correctly that I am a king. For this I have been born, and for this I have come into the world, to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears My voice’” (John 18:37). “From the Fall in Eden to the Cross, He was a ‘Prophet.’ He is now a ‘High Priest’ and when He comes again He will be a ‘King’” (Larkin, DT, p. 19). “Christ holds three offices: prophet, priest, and king. However, He does not function in all these offices simultaneously. Rather, the functioning of these three offices is to be carried out in chronological sequence. During His ministry on earth at His first coming, Christ functioned in His office of a prophet. However, this ceased at the time of His death. Since His death and resurrection, and until He returns, Christ is functioning in His office of a priest. This duty will cease at the second coming of Christ. Jesus has never yet functioned in His office of a king. For Him to do so, there must be the re-establishment of the Davidic throne, upon which Christ will sit to rule as king over Israel and king of the world. This duty will begin at the second coming” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 804).

Titles of the King

In Scripture Jesus is given a number of unique titles that are descriptive of His Person and of His past, present and future work. “The titles of Messiah, Christ, Lord, and King, whatever applicability they may have to the present, have reference to this specific appointed work of rebuilding the fallen tabernacle of David and reigning over it, bringing all nations, through it, in willing subjection to His worldwide dominion” (Peters, TTK, 3:454).

He is Immanuel. “Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign: behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel” (Isa. 7:14). “BEHOLD, THE VIRGIN SHALL BE WITH CHILD, AND SHALL BEAR A SON, AND THEY SHALL CALL HIS NAME IMMANUEL, which translated means, ‘GOD WITH US’” (Matt. 1:23). “Hence, too, arises the significance of the name ‘Immanuel,’ given Matt. 1:23, to the Son of Man. Keeping before us the demands of the covenant, and regarding the time of Christ’s Sec. Coming as one of trouble (comp. e.g. Isa. 7:13, 14 and Matt. 1:23 with Zech. 14, and Rev. 19) so that He is the Deliverer, we are assured that the main fulfillment spoken of by Matthew is still future. In this future Theocratic rule, He will pre-eminently be ‘God with us.’ The name is expressive of this covenanted Kingly position by which we obtain in our very midst a powerful, majestic, almighty Ruler, who evidences the same by perfected salvation and government. Some, as Jerome, think the name denotes divine aid and protection; others, as Irenaeus, the assumption of human nature by God, but while these ideas may be derived from it, it certainly has a deeper reference in that it recalls, and compresses into a single word, the covenanted Theocratic Kingdom in which, as its leading characteristic, God shall be truly and really with us. The name is indicative of the fulfillment of covenanted promises in the Person of Christ; and, therefore, in its fulness of meaning is yet to be verified. If significant of (as Jones, Notes, p. 40) ‘the incarnate relation of Jehovah to His people,’ this will appear still more impressively when this same Jesus returns to manifest and exert His royal prerogatives” (Peters, TTK, 3:542).

He is the Son of God. “But Jesus kept silent. And the high priest said to Him, ‘I adjure You by the living God, that You tell us whether You are the Christ, the Son of God.’ Jesus said to him, ‘You have said it yourself; nevertheless I tell you, hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming on the clouds of heaven’” (Matt.

26:63-64). “Matt. 26:63, 64. The High Priest uses the one, asking ‘whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of God?’ Jesus, purposely to identify Himself with the covenants and the prediction of Daniel, employs in His answer the other, the ‘Son of Man.’...Uninspired men could not have kept up such a considerate and wonderful unity” (Peters, TTK, 1:562). “Miraculous, creative, divine power is lodged in Him because He is the Son of God; but Judgeship, the revelation of Kingship—for He judges as King—appertains to Him ‘because He is the Son of Man’” (ibid.). “The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God” (Mark 1:1). “And whenever the unclean spirits beheld Him, they would fall down before Him and cry out, saying, ‘You are the Son of God’” (Mark 3:11)! “And the angel answered and said to her, ‘The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; and for that reason the holy offspring shall be called the Son of God’” (Luke 1:35). “the son of Enosh, the son of Seth, the son of Adam, the son of God” (Luke 3:38). “do you say of Him, whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world, ‘You are blaspheming,’ because I said, ‘I am the Son of God’” (John 10:36)? “But when Jesus heard it, He said, ‘This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified by it’” (John 11:4). “The Jews answered him, ‘We have a law, and by that law He ought to die because He made Himself out to be the Son of God’” (John 19:7). “but these have been written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing you may have life in His name” (John 20:31). “who was declared the Son of God with power by the resurrection from the dead, according to the Spirit of holiness, Jesus Christ our Lord” (Rom. 1:4) “I have been crucified with Christ; and it is no longer I who live, but Christ lives in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me, and delivered Himself up for me” (Gal. 2:20). “until we all attain to the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to a mature man, to the measure of the stature which belongs to the fulness of Christ” (Eph. 4:13). “Since then we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our confession” (Heb. 4:14). “the one who practices sin is of the devil; for the devil has sinned from the beginning. The Son of God appeared for this purpose, that He might destroy the works of the devil” (1 John. 3:8). “Whoever confesses that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God” (1 John. 4:15). “He who has the Son has the life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have the life” (1 John. 5:12). “These things I have written to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, in order that you may know that you have eternal life” (1 John. 5:13). “And we know that the Son of God has come, and has given us understanding, in order that we might know Him who is true, and we are in Him who is true, in His Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life” (1 John. 5:20). “And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: The Son of God, who has eyes like a flame of fire, and His feet are like burnished bronze, says this” (Rev. 2:18) (See also Matt. 4:3, 6; 8:29; 27:40, 43, 54; Mark 15:39; Luke 4:3, 9; 4:41; 22:70; John 1:34, 49; 3:18; 5:25; 11:27; Acts 8:37; 9:20; 2 Cor. 1:19; Heb. 6:6; 7:3; 10:29 and 1 John 5:5, 10.) “As if purposely to guard us against the error which is so largely prevalent, the phrase ‘Son of God’ is not employed in direct connection with the Kingdom of heaven to be set up on earth. Indeed, our argument thus far indicates that such a declaration, as e.g. that the Kingdom is given to Jesus in view of His being the Son of God, would be utterly opposed to the Abrahamic-Davidic covenant, for it would virtually then be saying that God gives the Kingdom to God, phraseology so hostile to propriety that the Spirit avoids it. The correspondence thus happily maintained between the requirements of the covenant (and that which is inherent with God) and the language of the New Test., is one of those indirect, but really powerful, proofs of the inspiration of the Word” (Peters, TTK, p. 561).

He is the Son of Man. Jesus the theocratic King is to reign as the Son of Man. “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13-14). “Daniel, in the passage designated, does not speak of humiliation, but of exaltation, and with the period of Christ’s highest glory the title is associated as various Scriptures testify” (Peters, TTK, 1:567). “But whenever they persecute you in this city, flee to the next; for truly I say to you, you shall not finish going through the cities of Israel, until the Son of Man comes” (Matt. 10:23). “The Son of Man will send forth His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all stumbling blocks, and those who commit lawlessness” (Matt. 13:41) “For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels; and will then recompense every man according to his deeds. Truly I say to you, there are some of those who are standing here who shall not taste death until they see the Son of Man coming in His kingdom” (Matt. 16:27-28). “And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Matt. 19:28). “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:27). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah” (Matt. 24:37). “and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:39). “For this reason you be ready too; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour when you do not think He will” (Matt. 24:44). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). “Jesus said to him, ‘You have said it yourself; nevertheless I tell you, hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming on the clouds of heaven’” (Matt. 26:64). “For whoever is ashamed of Me and My words in this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of Man will also be ashamed of him when He comes in the glory of His Father with the holy angels” (Mark 8:38). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory” (Mark 13:26). “And Jesus said, ‘I am; and you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven’” (Mark 14:62). “For whoever is ashamed of Me and My words, of him will the Son of Man be ashamed when He comes in His glory, and the glory of the Father and of the holy angels” (Luke 9:26). “You too, be ready; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour that you do not expect” (Luke 12:40). “For just as the lightning, when it flashes out of one part of the sky, shines to the other part of the sky, so will the Son of Man be in His day” (Luke 17:24). “And just as it happened in the days of Noah, so it shall be also in the days of the Son of Man” (Luke 17:26) “It will be just the same on the day that the Son of Man is revealed” (Luke 17:30). “I tell you that He will bring about justice for them speedily. However, when the Son of Man comes, will He find faith on the earth” (Luke 18:8)? “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory” (Luke 21:27). “and He gave Him authority to execute judgment, because He is the Son of Man” (John 5:27). “Therefore having overlooked the times of ignorance, God is now declaring to men that all everywhere should repent, because He has fixed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness through a Man whom He has appointed, having furnished proof to all men by raising Him from the dead” (Acts 17:30–31). “For He did not subject to angels the world to come, concerning which we are speaking. But one has testified somewhere, saying, ‘What is man, that Thou rememberest him? Or the son of man, that Thou art concerned about him? Thou hast made him for a little while lower than the angels; Thou hast crowned him with glory and honor, And hast appointed him over the works of Thy hands; Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet.’ For in subjecting all things to him, He left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him” (Heb. 2:5-8). “and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle” (Rev. 1:13). “And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and sitting on the cloud was one like a son of man, having a golden crown on His head, and a sharp sickle in His hand” (Rev. 14:14). “I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star” (Rev. 22:16). “The Kingdom is promised to the Son of Man, and He must first come as man” (Peters, TTK, 1:250). “The Kingdom is never promised to the Son of God, but invariably to the Son of Man, because it is not the Divinity but the Humanity that is brought into covenanted relationship with God. No! The resurrection and the subsequent glorification has not stripped Him of His Humanity or of His earthly relations. They only qualify Him the better to carry out the promises relating to that Humanity. He is to-day David’s Son, the covenanted Seed, who shall fulfill the promises. To-day He glories in the message that He sends us (Rev. 22:16), ‘I am (continues to be) the root and offspring of David’” (ibid., p. 339). “Why do they practically ignore the Humanity of Jesus and lay all stress upon the Divinity, not noticing that this Kingdom is given to David’s Son, the Son of Man by covenant, and that the Divine is superadded to the Human, thus rendering His reign more exalted, glorious, and necessarily Theocratic? Why do they not observe, what all the prophets declare, that the Davidic is used as the leverage or foundation of Christ’s world-wide dominion? Why not see that this Kingdom is one exclusively of promise, and is given to the Man Jesus, and has no reference, as covenanted, whatever to the Divine Sovereignty lodged in the Godhead? Why not notice that this Kingdom is Divine as well as Civil—a perfect, complete Theocracy” (ibid., p. 348)? “Through all the Scriptures, as will be shown hereafter, there is a carefully drawn distinction between what belongs to Jesus Christ

because of His relationship as God, and what pertains to Him by promise, by right, by inheritance, by the redemptive work that He is accomplishing because of His Messiahship as David's Son, the promised Theocratic King" (ibid., p. 349). "The Kingdom is never promised to Him as 'the Son of God' but as (the covenants and predictions demand it) 'the Son of Man' or 'the Son of David'" (ibid., p. 559). "The predicate 'Son of Man' is bestowed to identify Him as truly coming in the covenanted and Theocratic order" (ibid., p. 562). "the true reason for its usage appears to be the following: it is the peculiar, distinctive, predicted name of the Messiah given to Him in virtue of His covenanted relationship to the Kingdom. This is clearly seen, (1) by the covenant designating the Man, pre-eminently, of the seed of David to whom the Kingdom rightfully belongs; (2) by the fact that the Kingdom is promised to such an one in the way of identification and realization by David and others, and hence is, and properly must be, adopted by Jesus; (3) by the invariable linking of the name with the reception of the Kingdom by Jesus Himself, as e.g. Matt. 25:31-34; Matt. 16:27, 28, etc.; (4) by the remarkable—but too much overlooked—scriptural fact, that the Kingdom, when specifically promised, is always promised to the humanity of Jesus, i.e. to Him as 'the Son of Man,' and not to His Divine nature, i.e. to Him as 'the Son of God.' This naturally results from the covenant specifying Him as the Son of David to whom alone the Kingdom is promised. Of course, as the Kingdom is also God's, being a Theocracy, the Divine is united with this inheriting, but for the purpose of identification and consistency with solemn covenant declarations, Jesus selects the very title which accords with both covenant and prophecy, and which, most directly indicates His covenant connection with the Kingdom itself. The reader is only reminded that it is so far sweeping in its range that it also embraces, aside from the distinctive reference to the seedship of Abraham and David (indicative of covenanted relationship to the Kingdom), a second headship of the human family in the person of a Second Adam, made such by the Redemptive process" (ibid., p. 566). "That the name simply denotes the human nature of Christ is not sufficient, because it was not necessary to assume such a title to prove that He had a human body, but it was requisite to identify Him as the specific Man intended by the covenant" (ibid.). "As presented by the prophets, it will be found that the phrase is not used to designate the divine nature of Christ" (ibid., p. 567) "The very assumption of this name... evidences... that 'He was conscious of being originally and essentially different from man, and infinitely more.' This is true, but to it we must add, that Omniscience gave Him this very title in the covenanted line and Theocratic Purpose, seeing that in Him, as David's Son, God—the Divine—would thus draw nigh to man in man” (ibid.). “...the phrase ‘the Son of Man’... the idea of God ruling in and through humanity. Dr. Schaff (The Person of Christ), therefore, correctly makes the title ‘Son of Man’ one of elevation, dignity, instead of one of humiliation” (ibid., p. 568) “...a reign which is to be manifested in and through a Son of Man in a purely Theocratic manner, i.e. God in and through David’s Son condescending to act in the capacity of an earthly Ruler, which is the primary and true meaning of a Theocratic ordering as once witnessed and as covenanted... Let it be repeated: it is not the Divine Sonship that constitutes ‘the Christ’ (although an essential element), and it is not the Davidic Sonship that constitutes Him ‘the Messiah’ (although essentially requisite), but it is the two inseparably united that makes Him ‘the Christ’” (ibid., p. 569). “Just as at the First Advent by the Incarnation the Christ is brought into direct relationship with humanity and from thence sustains His covenanted position in this particular, so also at the Sec. Advent by the Incarnation, as continued in ‘the Son of Man,’ ‘the Christ,’ in the inherited throne and Kingdom, is brought into direct Theocratic relationship with humanity, and from this revealed position exerts His power in behalf of that humanity with which He is identified” (ibid., p. 574). “...the Kingdom being promised to the human nature of Jesus and not merely to the Divine... many... ascribe this Kingdom solely to the Divine nature” (ibid., p. 582). “It is the distinctive Son of David to whom this Kingdom belongs by covenanted Divine right. He only confirms His right and title to it, as the Representative Ruler in such a Theocratic Kingdom, by the life and death which He manifested” (ibid.). “Barbour... his making the present time the period when ‘the Son of Man’ is actually personally present, is a perversion of the phrase ‘Son of Man’ (which is expressive, not of a spiritual presence, but of His humanity)” (ibid., 2:351) “John 5:22, 23, and in verse 27 it is added: ‘and hath given Him authority to execute judgment also, because He is the Son of Man.’ Why the Son of Man? Because to this Son of Man as David’s Son is promised the Kingdom, and Judgeship being included in the promised Theocratic-Davidic government, the Father only judges through this Son” (ibid., p. 352). “Mede’s argument... ‘this expression of the “Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven” so often inculcated in the New Test., is taken from, and hath reference to, the prophecy of Daniel, being nowhere else found in the Old Test.’ (Works, b. 4., epis. 16)” (ibid., p. 365). “Jesus, as the Christ, being covenanted in the Davidic line, requisite stress, for purpose of identification and faith, must also be laid on the human side of Christ” (ibid., 3:512) “He comes and reigns as ‘Son of Man,’ as David’s Son” (ibid., p. 553) “The terms ‘kingdom of heaven’ and ‘Son of man,’ used by Christ in preaching the Kingdom, acquire their significance solely in relation to the Old Testament prophetic concept” (McClain, GK, p. 279). “Daniel... ‘...the God of heaven set up a kingdom...’ (2:44, ASV)... Daniel 7... ‘...with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man’... Read in the light of its evident Old Testament context, the phrase ‘kingdom of heaven’ does not refer to a kingdom located in heaven as opposed to the earth, but rather to the coming to earth of a kingdom which is heavenly as to its origin and character” (ibid.). “Jesus’ Favorite Term for Himself (Son of Man)... Daniel 7 [vs. 13]” (Geisler, ST, 4:472) “The terms Son of Man and kingdom of heaven, used by Jesus regarding the kingdom, are rooted in the Old Testament messianic predictions” (ibid., p. 478).

He is the Son of David. “The book of the genealogy of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham” (Matt. 1:1). “And as Jesus passed on from there, two blind men followed Him, crying out, and saying, ‘Have mercy on us, Son of David’” (Matt. 9:27)! “And all the multitudes were amazed, and began to say, ‘This man cannot be the Son of David, can he?’” (Matt. 12:23)? “And behold, a Canaanite woman came out from that region, and began to cry out, saying, ‘Have mercy on me, O Lord, Son of David; my daughter is cruelly demon-possessed’” (Matt. 15:22). “And behold, two blind men sitting by the road, hearing that Jesus was passing by, cried out, saying, ‘Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David!’ And the multitude sternly told them to be quiet; but they cried out all the more, saying, ‘Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David’” (Matt. 20:30-31)! “And the multitudes going before Him, and those who followed after were crying out, saying, ‘Hosanna to the Son of David; Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest’” (Matt. 21:9)! “But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the wonderful things that He had done, and the children who were crying out in the temple and saying, ‘Hosanna to the Son of David,’ they became indignant” (Matt. 21:15) “saying, ‘What do you think about the Christ, whose son is He?’ They said to Him, ‘The son of David’” (Matt. 22:42). “And when he heard that it was Jesus the Nazarene, he began to cry out and say, ‘Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!’ And many were sternly telling him to be quiet, but he kept crying out all the more, ‘Son of David, have mercy on me’” (Mark 10:47-48)! “And Jesus answering began to say, as He taught in the temple, ‘How is it that the scribes say that the Christ is the son of David’” (Mark 12:35)? “the son of Melea, the son of Menna, the son of Mattatha, the son of Nathan, the son of David” (Luke 3:31) “And he called out, saying, ‘Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!’ And those who led the way were sternly telling him to be quiet; but he kept crying out all the more, ‘Son of David, have mercy on me’” (Luke 18:38-39)! For the significance of this title “Son of David,” see our discussion of the Davidic Covenant in our chapter Covenants of the Kingdom.

He is the Lamb of God. “The next day he saw Jesus coming to him, and said, ‘Behold, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world’” (John 1:29)! “and he looked upon Jesus as He walked, and said, ‘Behold, the Lamb of God’” (John 1:36)! “And I saw between the throne (with the four living creatures) and the elders a Lamb standing, as if slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, sent out into all the earth” (Rev. 5:6-7). “...the seven horns of the Lamb express the divine plentitude of power” [quoting Werner Foerster, ‘keras,’ Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, Vol. III, ed. by Gerhard Kittel, p. 669] (Showers, M, p. 91).

He is the Lion of Judah. “Judah is a lion’s whelp; From the prey, my son, you have gone up. He couches, he lies down as a lion, And as a lion, who dares rouse him up” (Gen. 49:9)? “and one of the elders said to me, ‘Stop weeping; behold, the Lion that is from the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has overcome so as to open the book and its seven seals” (Rev. 5:5). “The Lion of the tribe of Judah; now a Lamb but then a Lion because the executioner of delayed vengeance” (Peters, TTK, 3:402).

He is the Messiah, Christ. “So you are to know and discern that from the issuing of a decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until Messiah the Prince there will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; it will be built again, with plaza and moat, even in times of distress. Then after the sixty-two weeks the Messiah will be cut off and have nothing, and the people of the prince who is to come will destroy the city and the sanctuary. And its end will come with a flood; even to the end there will be war; desolations are determined” (Dan. 9:25-26). “Simon Peter answered, ‘You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.’ And Jesus said to him, ‘Blessed are you, Simon Barjona, because flesh and blood did not reveal this to you, but My Father who is in heaven. I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades will not overpower it. I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatever you bind on earth shall have been bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth shall have been loosed in heaven.’ Then He warned the disciples that they should tell no one that He was the Christ” (Matt. 16:16–20). “He found first his own brother Simon, and said to him, ‘We have found the Messiah’ (which translated means Christ)” (John 1:41). “The woman said to Him, ‘I know that Messiah is coming (He who is called Christ); when that One comes, He will declare all things to us” (John 4:25).

By definition, Messiah or Christ means “anointed one,” that is, one anointed to be King. “So you are to know and discern that from the issuing of a decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until Messiah the Prince there will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; it will be built again, with plaza and moat, even in times of distress” (Dan. 9:25). “So Dan. 9:25 gives us ‘Messiah the Prince,’ in which the latter word may be explanatory of the former” (Peters, TTK, 3:571) “Let this Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross, so that we may see and believe!’ And those who were crucified with Him were casting the same insult at Him” (Mark 15:32). “And they began to accuse Him, saying, ‘We found this man misleading our nation and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar, and saying that He Himself is Christ, a King’” (Luke 23:2). “The meaning of ‘Messiah’ or ‘Christ’ is utterly hostile to a purely spiritual reign in heaven, as we have already shown; it being the express title of the Theocratic King reigning over the restored Davidic throne and Kingdom. Thus the Jews and early Christians understood it, and such continues its meaning” (Peters, TTK, 1:447). “Abbott (Freedom and Fellowship in Relig., p. 237), pertinently asks: ‘Was it an accident that the new faith took its name, not from the individual Jesus, but from His royal office?’ This leads Abbott, by tracing back the name, to declare that ‘Christianity is developed Judaism’” (ibid., p. 468). “It was the very name of ‘Messiah,’ retaining in force its original meaning, that was attractive and inviting to Jews” (ibid.). “...as Knapp (Ch. Theol., p. 325) says: ‘The word Messiah grammatically signifies king’” (ibid., 3:515). “To comprehend the testimony of the New Test. concerning the nature and person of Jesus it is requisite always to retain the biblical conception of the words ‘Christ’ and ‘Messiah.’ This, of course, always brings before us the covenanted relationship of Jesus to the Theocratic Kingdom; He is the Theocratic King, and because He is such He possesses the nature, power, etc., attributed to Him” (ibid.). “There is no proper pre-existence of Jesus as ‘the Christ,’ the promised ‘Messiah.’ Fully admitting the pre-existence of the divine, this itself does not constitute ‘the Christ,’ for it is the union of the divine and human in David’s Son that forms ‘the Messiah’—the historical, covenanted Christ. The notion of a pre-existent Christ, notwithstanding the mystical theories finely wrought of Bohme, Poiret, etc., is contradictory to covenant and prophecy, for before David was born to whom the covenant was given (i.e. the assurance was given that out of his line should the Messiah spring), and before Jesus was born as David’s descendant, ‘the Christ’ as such could not exist. Therefore while the divine is represented as pre-existent, the human nature, and the union of the divine and human in one person, is never thus described. Lutheran as our predilections are, it is but just to say that in this matter the Reformed (comp. Hagenbach's His. Doc., vol. 2, p. 252) were nearer the truth. Our line of argument, relating to the Kingdom, is only concerned in the covenanted Christ, the historical Messiah. Hence while believing e.g. that (John 12:41) Isaiah saw (6:1-10) the divine pertaining to 'the Christ,' we cannot receive the inference of Edwards (His. Redempt., p. 148) that he saw 'the human nature' of the Christ" (ibid., p. 538). "the Meaning of 'Messiah' and 'Christ,'... as able men on all sides admit, they are equivalent to kingship, or highly expressive of Theocratic relationship (for the Theocratic Kings were 'the Lord's Anointed'), and that, in view of the covenanted Theocratic ordering pertaining to Jesus, He pre-eminently bears the title of 'the Anointed,' i.e. the Theocratic King. Keeping in view the plain meaning (as held by the Jews, the disciples, the early Church, etc.), and then noticing what our argument prominently brings forth, viz., the non-realization of the Theocratic order at the First Advent and the postponement of the same to the Sec. Advent, it becomes apparent that the title will only become practically realized when, in 'the day of the Lord Jesus Christ,' this Christ manifests the title in the actual Theocratic position occupied. When the Theocracy is re-established in power and glory, then the Messiah, the Christ, shines forth as the Anointed, the King in Israel, having obtained His appointed inheritance" (ibid., p. 567). "...the Jewish covenanted idea of the Messiahship, viz., that 'the Christ' is the One Person, a descendant of David, who is to reign on the restored Theocratic-Davidic Throne" (ibid., p. 568). "The Kingship of David's Son and of David's Lord are united, constituting the one King, the one Christ" (ibid., p. 573).

"Christ" is a title regarding the office; not the Person. "The English version improperly uses 'Christ' as a proper name instead of an appellative... Knapp (Ch. Theol., p. 378) says that the title 'Christ... According to the true use of the Word in the Bible Messiah signifies only King'" (Peters, TTK, 3:569). "The Person eminently fitted for the office is not to be confounded with the office itself" (ibid., p. 574).

The title was clearly understood in Jesus' day, but has since then lost much of its original meaning. "Let this Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross, so that we may see and believe!' And those who were crucified with Him were casting the same insult at Him" (Mark 15:32). "And they began to accuse Him, saying, 'We found this man misleading our nation and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar, and saying that He Himself is Christ, a King'" (Luke 23:2). "No controversy was raised between the early Christians and the Jews respecting the meaning, etc., of the Christ (for the controverted point between them was whether Jesus was the Messiah or not), and that many Jews, even priests, with their intense devotion to the covenanted and predicted Messiah, cordially received Jesus as the same, fully believing that at His Second Coming the postponed Kingdom and glory would be realized. It is painfully sad to find how this simple scripturally-founded belief was soon overwhelmed by a mass of rubbish, which the wisdom of the world conceived to be better adapted to subserve the truth and God's praise" (Peters, TTK, 3:350). "Alas! With but comparatively few exceptions the modern Christ is not the Christ of the primitive Church, for the meaning has been changed and another substituted" (ibid., p. 567). "The Jews had a correct Messianic conception and knew what it implied, and hence were guilty of the crime of employing it—when designed specially to bless them, etc.—in order to procure the death of Jesus. The Romans were ignorant of its Theocratic meaning, its covenanted and divine right, etc., and therefore did not sustain the same relationship to Him in condemnation and death. This is the reason why the Scriptures single out the Jewish nation as the guilty party in the awful tragedy" (ibid., p. 571). "The early retention of the Messianic idea of the title gave place finally among the Gentiles—not conversant with its covenanted relationship—to a loss of its special significance; the Christ being 'simply the Lord and the Son of God.' The truth is that as century followed century, and the Davidic covenant was more and more set aside, the departure from the primitive idea became so fixed that no reference to the covenant, upon which the Messianic title is unmistakably founded, was deemed necessary... Many of the declarations of modern Christianity on this point would not be recognized by the early Church... Some of the ablest defenses of Christianity are vitiated by an entire misapprehension of 'the Messiah.'... overlooks one class of predictions to lay stress on another, relating to humiliation and death, i.e. to those pertaining to the First Advent... Such a line of reasoning, which persistently rejects fundamental ideas clearly taught, is irrelevant. The fulfilling of one class of predictions at the First Advent is no proof that we are to ignore just as literal a fulfillment of another class at the Second Advent, but the reverse; while the application of the latter class to the past and present (done only by a method of spiritualizing) is, to say the least, a changing of the Word" (ibid., p. 575). "It is passing strange, and yet in full accord with prediction, that professed believers, who lay special stress on the phrase 'No Creed but the Christ,' do not even appreciate the meaning of 'Christ.' The entire grand result of the work of Jesus has for its central idea 'the Christ,' i.e. when its true scriptural meaning is realized" (ibid., p. 578).

The title is related to the restored Theocracy. "When we consider the title of Jesus, 'the Messiah,' 'the Christ' as alone applicable to a restored Theocracy, we certainly would be lacking faith in God and in His promises

if we refused to receive, cordially and hopefully, the belief that, at the time determined by the Father, the Messiah shall come again, and fulfill the covenants and predictions relating to the restoration of a fallen Theocracy in a state of glory such as inspired men describe” (Peters, TTK, 3:588).

Satan’s temptation was addressed to Jesus’ Christship. “Again, the devil took Him to a very high mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world, and their glory; and he said to Him, ‘All these things will I give You, if You fall down and worship me’” (Matt. 4:8-9). “And the devil said to Him, ‘If You are the Son of God, tell this stone to become bread.’ And Jesus answered him, ‘It is written, “Man shall not live on bread alone.”’ And he led Him up and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. And the devil said to Him, ‘I will give You all this domain and its glory; for it has been handed over to me, and I give it to whomever I wish. Therefore if You worship before me, it shall all be Yours’” (Luke 4:3-7). “The temptation of Satan was addressed to ‘the Christship’ of Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 3:571). (See our discussion of Satan’s temptation of Jesus in our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom.)

The title was understood correctly by Peter. “Simon Peter answered, ‘You are the Christ, the Son of the living God’” (Matt. 16:16). “And He continued by questioning them, ‘But who do you say that I am?’ Peter answered and said to Him, ‘You are the Christ’” (Mark 8:29). “And He said to them, ‘But who do you say that I am?’ And Peter answered and said, ‘The Christ of God’” (Luke 9:20). “In Matt. 16:16, Mark 8:29, and Luke 9:20, Peter, in answer to the question, ‘Whom say ye that I am?’ answers: ‘Thou art the Christ.’ Jesus replied that he was ‘blessed’ because the Father had revealed this fact to him. Now, how could he be ‘blessed,’ how could the matter be revealed to him, if he did not understand the meaning of ‘Christ?’ That he comprehended it in the Jewish Theocratic sense is self-evident from e.g. Acts 1:6” (Peters, TTK, 3:572). “And so when they had come together, they were asking Him, saying, ‘Lord, is it at this time You are restoring the kingdom to Israel’” (Acts 1:6)? (See also our discussion of Peter’s reaffirmation of the Kingdom in Acts and in his epistles in our previous chapter Reaffirmation of the Kingdom.)

The title had political ramifications for Jesus. “...the dangerous meaning couched under the title, viz., the overthrow of Gentile rule and restoration of the Davidic throne and Kingdom” (Peters, TTK, 3:571).

The title was not used publicly until after Christ’s death. “And Simon Peter answered and said, ‘Thou art the Christ, the Son of the liv- ing God.' And Jesus answered and said to him, 'Blessed are you, Simon Barjona, because flesh and blood did not reveal this to you, but My Father who is in heaven. And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it. I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatever you shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.' Then He warned the disciples that they should tell no one that He was the Christ" (Matt. 16:16–20). "And He said to them, 'But who do you say that I am?' And Peter answered and said, 'The Christ of God.' But He warned them, and instructed them not to tell this to anyone, saying, 'The Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised up on the third day'" (Luke 9:20–22). "The student will also observe how often (as in connection with Peter's confession, etc.) the disciples were charged not to make Him known as 'the Christ.' If 'Christ' is merely 'a doctrinal word,' no satisfactory reason can be given for this prohibition... the prohibition—in view also of the use made of the Christship to the Roman power—is in accord with discretion and wisdom... this prohibition extended only to the death of Jesus, because afterward it became the favorite title, seeing (1) that in view of His death it became essential to show that He was still 'the Christ;' (2) that notwithstanding His death, faith in 'the Christ' evinced hope in the ultimate fulfillment of covenant and prophecy pertaining to it; and (3) the death of Jesus would, owing to unbelief, enable the Christship to be proclaimed without the fear of being regarded in rebellion against the Roman Empire, for what could earthly Kingdoms fear from a dead, crucified Christ" (Peters, TTK, 3:573). "If it were merely to denote the moral, religious, spiritual ideal, etc., that so many attach to it, what reason, conclusive, can be possibly given to account for all this concealment of 'the Christ'" (ibid.)? (See our discussion of the caution exercised in the preaching of the (political) Kingdom in our chapter Announcement and Offer of the Kingdom.)

The title was understood and taught correctly by Paul. "and immediately he began to proclaim Jesus in the synagogues, saying, 'He is the Son of God.' And all those hearing him continued to be amazed, and were saying, 'Is this not he who in Jerusalem destroyed those who called on this name, and who had come here for the purpose of bringing them bound before the chief priests?' But Saul kept increasing in strength and confounding the Jews who lived at Damascus by proving that this Jesus is the Christ" (Acts 9:20–22). "When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory" (Col. 3:4). "Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved complete, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ" (1 Thes. 5:23). "Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him" (2 Thes. 2:1) "Paul, in view of the manner of his conversion, was satisfied that the crucified Jesus was indeed the Christ, and hence at once (Acts 9:20, 22 [KJV—ed.]) 'he preached Christ in the synagogues,' 'proving that this (Jesus) is the very Christ.' But how did he give this proof?... by representing that this Crucified One (which was the stumbling-block to the Jews and foolishness to the Grecians, 1 Cor. 1:23) should, as his reiterated statements in his epistles show, come again and manifest Himself as the Christ" (Peters, TTK, 3:574). (See also our discussion of Paul's reaffirmation of the Kingdom in Acts and in his epistles in our previous chapter Reaffirmation of the Kingdom.)

The title was understood correctly by the early church. "The fact, too, that the early faith took its name 'Christian,' not from the proper name Jesus, but from His royal title, evidences how highly important and declarative (of coming Kingship) it appeared to those early believers. Its exceeding preciousness was a prominent feature in the Millenarian faith, for believing in 'the Christ' and His future revelation as such, this confession of the Christship of Jesus by its assumption in name was the foundation of their joyful hopes of deliverance and completed salvation" (Peters, TTK, 3:576).

The title assisted with the conversion of the Jews. "Can we explain the sudden conversion of so many Jews who, above all things, tenaciously (urged both by covenant and prophecy) held to the Messianic notion as presented by us, unless it be shown that the reception of Jesus also embraced the retention of the most cherished idea of 'the Christ'" (Peters, TTK, 3:574). "...why the Jewish mind and heart, still retaining its 'day dream,' could receive the crucified Jesus as 'the Christ,' viz. that His life, death, resurrection and exaltation confirmed Him as 'the Messiah,' who had postponed the fulfillment of the covenanted promises to the Sec. Advent" (ibid., p. 577). (See our discussion of the fact that opposition to chiliasm led to disinterest by, then persecution of the Jews in our chapter The Kingdom in Church History.)

When Jesus returns, He will return as the Christ. "When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory" (Col. 3:4). "Our whole argument shows that when He comes again, He comes as 'the Christ,' the Anointed King who is to reign as David's Son and Lord just as covenant and prophecy require... the saints at Christ's appearing shall appear with Him in glory (Col. 3:4)... If there is a truth clearly taught in the Scriptures, it certainly is this one, that ‘the Christ’ shall thus come and exhibit His mighty power and glory as ‘Christ’ in delivering His people, punishing His enemies, and reigning gloriously as ‘the King of kings’” (Peters, TTK, 3:575).

Jesus will reign in the Millennial Kingdom as the Christ. “Some systems make the death of Christ the central idea; others give us the Incarnation as such, but while each of these are indispensable, neither of them are more than provisional in order that the covenant may ultimately be realized under ‘the Christ.’ It is the Theocratic King as manifested, and the glorious Kingdom that He institutes as ‘the Christ,’ that brings us blessed deliverance. The Kingdom is the end—the centre around which all revolves, while ‘the Christ’ (not in one aspect, but in His perfected manifestation) is the heart of that centre” (Peters, TTK, 3:576).

The body of Christ will reign with the Christ. “so we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually members one of another” (Rom. 12:5). “Now you are Christ’s body, and individually members of it” (1 Cor. 12:27). “Now He who establishes us with you in Christ and anointed us is God” (2 Cor. 1:21) “which is His body, the fulness of Him who fills all in all” (Eph. 1:23). “for the equipping of the saints for the work of service, to the building up of the body of Christ” (Eph. 4:12) “If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us” (2 Tim. 2:12) “But you have an anointing from the Holy One, and you all know” (1 John. 2:20). “And as for you, the anointing which you received from Him abides in you, and you have no need for anyone to teach you; but as His anointing teaches you about all things, and is true and is not a lie, and just as it has taught you, you abide in Him” (1 John. 2:27). “The student will notice that the saints who are destined to be ‘kings’ are specially declared to be ‘Christ’s body’ (Rom. 12:5; 1 Cor. 12:27; Eph. 1:23, and 4:12, etc.), and being also ‘anointed’ (2 Cor. 1:21; 1 John 2:20, 27), they are associated in rule and Kingship (Theocratic ordering) with Him” (Peters, TTK, 3:578). (See also our discussion of the fact that believers will reign with Christ in the Government of the Millennial Kingdom section of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

Jesus is not yet in possession of the position indicated by the title. “He is not yet manifested as ‘the Christ’ in the actual possession of the Theocratic position indicated by the title” (Peters, TTK, 3:568).

The title should produce in believers reverence and respect for “the Christ.” “The very official title of Jesus reminds us also that it should prevent a believer to assume that irreverent and undue familiarity—evidenced by some in the past—with Him in representations of His relations to us and ours to Him. While duly appreciating His nearness, friendship and love, the immeasurable superiority and majesty of 'the Christ' should urge us to reverence and respect in address" (Peters, TTK, 3:579).

And, those who use the title correctly now will be criticized. "Surely, he who professes to receive 'the Christ' ought to be willing to bow to the scriptural meaning of the title. To confess 'the Christ' as the primitive Christians did demands at the present day moral courage, seeing that the vast multitude spiritualize its meaning away. To confess 'the Christ,' as it once was done, will inevitably bring reproach from those even who honestly profess to love Him. This is one of the sad features connected with our present lot" (Peters, TTK, 3:568).

Jesus is the King of the Jews. "Where is He who has been born King of the Jews? For we saw His star in the east, and have come to worship Him" (Matt. 2:2). "Now Jesus stood before the governor, and the governor questioned Him, saying, 'Are You the King of the Jews?' And Jesus said to him, 'It is as you say'" (Matt. 27:11). "And after weaving a crown of thorns, they put it on His head, and a reed in His right hand; and they kneeled down before Him and mocked Him, saying, 'Hail, King of the Jews'" (Matt. 27:29)! "And Pilate questioned Him, 'Are You the King of the Jews?' And answering He said to him, 'It is as you say'" (Mark 15:2). "'Thou hast said' (Matt. 26:64). This was not an evasion, as the ordinary English reader might suppose, but definitely 'a Greek affirmative,' as A. T. Robertson has well said. Mark records it simply, 'I am' (14:62 ['But He kept silent, and made no answer. Again the high priest was questioning Him, and saying to Him, "Are You the Christ, the Son of the Blessed One?" And Jesus said, "I am; and you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven." (Mark 14:61-62)])" (McClain, GK, p. 379). "And Pilate answered them, saying, 'Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews'" (Mark 15:9)? "And answering again, Pilate was saying to them, 'Then what shall I do with Him whom you call the King of the Jews'" (Mark 15:12)? "and they began to acclaim Him, 'Hail, King of the Jews'" (Mark 15:18)! "And the inscription of the charge against Him read, 'THE KING OF THE JEWS'" (Mark 15:26). "And Pilate asked Him, saying, 'Are You the King of the Jews?' And He answered him and said, 'It is as you say'" (Luke 23:3). "and saying, 'If You are the King of the Jews, save Yourself!' Now there was also an inscription above Him, 'THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS'" (Luke 23:37-38). "Pilate therefore entered again into the Praetorium, and summoned Jesus, and said to Him, 'Are You the King of the Jews'" (John 18:33)? "But you have a custom, that I should release someone for you at the Passover; do you wish then that I release for you the King of the Jews” (John 18:39)? “and they began to come up to Him, and say, ‘Hail, King of the Jews!’ and to give Him blows in the face” (John 19:3). “And Pilate wrote an inscription also, and put it on the cross. And it was written, ‘JESUS THE NAZARENE, THE KING OF THE JEWS’” (John 19:19). “And so the chief priests of the Jews were saying to Pilate, ‘Do not write, “The King of the Jews”; but that He said, “I am King of the Jews”’” (John 19:21). “The Lord Jesus Christ is to-day as much ‘the King of the Jews’ as He was when the superscription was placed upon the cross” (Peters, TTK, 1:427). “So long as we have such a King of Jewish birth and the legal Heir of the Jewish throne and Kingdom, it is unbecoming to employ the term ‘Jewish’ in any other than a respectful sense” (ibid.). “Their sole accusation against Him was that He was the King of the Jews. So He had been declared by the angel Gabriel before birth; so He claimed for Himself throughout His ministry; and upon that ground was found the desired pretext for ridding themselves of the One who claimed to be their King” (Feinberg, M, p. 139). “...His examination by the Sanhedrin, where the charge was primarily religious in nature... the examination before Pilate, the Roman governor. The charge here was political” (McClain, GK, p. 379) “Art thou the King of the Jews?” ([John 18] vs. 33)... ‘Sayest thou this thing of thyself, or did others tell it thee of me?’ (vs. 34)... If the source of the charge was Pilate, then it would be entirely political and nothing more. In that case the Lord’s answer would be, No, I am not a king in that narrow sense of the term... A charge of regal claims on the part of Jesus, if originated by the Jewish leaders, would carry with it all the implications of the Old Testament Mediatorial Kingdom and would have to be answered correspondingly” (ibid., p. 381). “Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the chief priests have delivered thee unto me; what hast thou done?” ([John 18] vs. 35). Thus Pilate scornfully disclaims any and all responsibility for the charge, and the way is cleared for our Lord’s reply to the original question... ‘My kingdom is not of this world’ (vs. 36). The preposition is ek, indicating source or originating cause. His kingdom does not originate in the present cosmos or world system. As concrete evidence of this negative proposition, our Lord refers Pilate to the actual situation before his eyes: ‘if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight’ (vs. 36). This was something that Pilate could understand: a ‘king’ with no military support, and who actually had to be protected from physical violence on the part of his own subjects, could give no possible concern to the politically realistic Pilate” (ibid.). “Art thou a king then?” (John 18:37)... ‘Thou sayest it because I am a king.’ Marcus Dods [Expositors Greek New Testament, Vol. 1, p. 852] thinks we ‘must’ render it, ‘Thou art right, for a king I am.’ That this is the proper meaning is made certain by the words which follow: ‘To this end have I been born, and to this end am I come into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth’ (vs. 37, ASV). To this, Pilate has no answer, except to drop his cynical ‘What is truth?’ (vs. 38) as he left the hall of judgment, tragically unaware that he had been in the presence of the King, who is the God of all truth” (ibid.). “‘Thou couldst have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above’ (John 19:11, italics added). Is it necessary for us to argue as to the nature of this ‘power’ which our Lord says had been ‘given’ to Pilate ‘from above’? Surely, although divinely spiritual in origin, in its manifestation it was clearly political and nothing else. And the inference is compelling: If this power from above can make itself manifest on earth in the political career of a Pilate, on what ground of either reason or revelation can anyone deny the possibility of its greater exercise through the perfect Mediatorial King and His saints when He comes down to earth again” (ibid., p. 382)?

And, He is the Morning Star. “Come, and let us return unto Jehovah; for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up. After two days will he revive us: on the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live before him. And let us know, let us follow on to know Jehovah: his going forth is sure as the morning; and he will come unto us as the rain, as the latter rain that watereth the earth.” (Hos. 6:1-3) “For we did not follow cleverly devised tales when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of His majesty. For when He received honor and glory from God the Father, such an utterance as this was made to Him by the Majestic Glory, ‘This is My beloved Son with whom I am well-pleased’ — and we ourselves heard this utterance made from heaven when we were with Him on the holy mountain. And so we have the prophetic word made more sure, to which you do well to pay attention as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star arises in your hearts. But know this first of all, that no prophecy of Scripture is a matter of one’s own interpretation, for no prophecy was ever made by an act of human will, but men moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God” (2 Pet. 1:16-21). “And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, to him I will give authority over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter are broken to pieces, as I also have received authority from My Father; and I will give him the morning star. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches” (Rev. 2:26-29). “I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star.’ And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who hears say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost. I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book; and if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life and from the holy city, which are written in this book. He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen” (Rev. 22:16-21). “The Millennial day is introduced by the personal coming of Jesus... the Morning Star or as the Sun ushering in this day... It is therefore with pleasure that we read in ‘the last words of David,’ that (2 Sam. 23:1-4) ‘there shall be a Just One ruling over men, ruling in the fear of God; as the light of the morning shall He arise, the Sun of an unclouded morning, shining after rain upon the tender grass of the earth.’... He is not merely called such owing to the glory of His person or the splendor of His appearing, but because He reveals Himself in the early morning. For, Hos. 6:3, ‘His going forth is prepared as the morning’” (Peters, TTK, 2:414). “We have in ‘the Morning Star’ an implied reference to the first stage of the Advent, the thief-like coming for the saints, and to obtain it indicates that we are worthy of the better res. or (if living) of the translation. The mention of this in such a connection is also exceedingly significant of the exaltation of the saints to coheirship with the Christ when the morning breaks.... Blessed they, who shall experience this bestowal of love” (ibid., p. 418). “[Rev.] 22:5... our Lord Jesus Christ... identifies Himself here as ‘the bright and morning star’; for while during the life of the churches on earth it is night, not day, the morning is always ‘at hand’ (Rom. 13:12)” (McClain, GK, p. 514). “The night is almost gone, and the day is at hand. Let us therefore lay aside the deeds of darkness and put on the armor of light” (Rom. 13:12).

Glory of the King

Jesus exhibits glory at every stage of His theocratic career. He had glory before the world was, He exhibited glory at His incarnation, He has glory now in heaven, and He will exhibit great glory at His Second Coming and in the Millennial Kingdom. While the Kingdom of God is glorious in all its facets and in all its details, the source and focal point of the Theocratic Kingdom's glory is its actualizing God, Savior, Prophet, Priest and King. We therefore recognize Jesus the Christ Himself as the quintessential Glory of the Kingdom. "The deepest, most profound thinkers of the world have bowed in adoration to Jesus Christ, and men of the highest intelligence and talent, impressed by the Divine Plan pertaining to Christ and the Truth in Him, continue to adore Him" (Peters, TTK, 3:513).

Jesus had glory before His incarnation. "And now, glorify Thou Me together with Thyself, Father, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was" (John 17:5).

He displayed glory at His incarnation. "And He was transfigured before them; and His face shone like the sun, and His garments became as white as light. And behold, Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with Him. And Peter answered and said to Jesus, 'Lord, it is good for us to be here; if You wish, I will make three tabernacles here, one for You, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.' While he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed them; and behold, a voice out of the cloud, saying, 'This is My beloved Son, with whom I am well-pleased; listen to Him'" (Matt. 17:2-5)! "And six days later, Jesus took with Him Peter and James and John, and brought them up to a high mountain by themselves. And He was transfigured before them; and His garments became radiant and exceedingly white, as no launderer on earth can whiten them" (Mark 9:2-3). "And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, glory as of the only begotten from the Father, full of grace and truth" (John 1:14). "This beginning of His signs Jesus did in Cana of Galilee, and manifested His glory, and His disciples believed in Him" (John 2:11). "For we did not follow cleverly devised tales when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of His majesty. For when He received honor and glory from God the Father, such an utterance as this was made to Him by the Majestic Glory, 'This is My beloved Son with whom I am well-pleased'" (2 Pet. 1:16-17)

He has glory in heaven now. "These things Jesus spoke; and lifting up His eyes to heaven, He said, 'Father, the hour has come; glorify Thy Son, that the Son may glorify Thee'" (John 17:1) "And now, glorify Thou Me together with Thyself, Father, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was" (John 17:5). "Father, I desire that they also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me where I am, in order that they may behold My glory, which Thou hast given Me; for Thou didst love Me before the foundation of the world" (John 17:24). "My brethren, do not hold your faith in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ with an attitude of personal favoritism” (James 2:1). “And I turned to see the voice that was speaking with me. And having turned I saw seven golden lampstands; and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle. And His head and His hair were white like white wool, like snow; and His eyes were like a flame of fire; and His feet were like burnished bronze, when it has been caused to glow in a furnace, and His voice was like the sound of many waters. And in His right hand He held seven stars; and out of His mouth came a sharp two-edged sword; and His face was like the sun shining in its strength” (Rev. 1:12–16).

He will display great glory at His Second Coming. “and the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isaiah 40:5). “For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels; and will then recompense every man according to his deeds” (Matt. 16:27). “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:27). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). “For just as the lightning, when it flashes out of one part of the sky, shines to the other part of the sky, so will the Son of Man be in His day” (Luke 17:24). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory” (Luke 21:27). (See also our discussion of the glory of Jesus’ Second Coming in the Characteristics of the Second Coming section of our chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

And, He and His throne will be glorious in the Millennial Kingdom. “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the root of Jesse, that standeth for an ensign of the peoples, unto him shall the nations seek; and his resting-place shall be glorious” (Isa. 11:10). “And Jesus said to them, “Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Matt. 19:28). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne”

(Matt. 25:31). "...the former Theocracy... Kurtz (His. Old Cov., vol. 3, p. 107)... forcibly says: 'His intention to become Israel's King... Jehovah was about to stoop to be not merely heavenly but earthly King over Israel'.... The Kings of Israel acted as vicegerents of the Theocracy, and hence the earthly vicegerent, who acted as God's representative in the Kingdom, was specially anointed, consecrated, or set apart for the office by God Himself, and was known by the honorable and significant title of 'God's anointed' and 'the Lord's anointed.' But notice in the Person of Jesus, anointed for this purpose, this Theocratic representation assumes its highest and purest form, for what the former Theocratic King (as David, Solomon, etc.), could only do as vicar, by acting as deputy, Jesus Christ performs as a real Representative of God—God being united personally with Him. Hence the glory and blessedness of this Theocracy" (Peters, TTK, 3:540). (See also our discussion of the glory of the Millennial Kingdom in the Life in the Millennial Kingdom section of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

Not a Deception

The biblical accounts of Jesus' Person and work (His career including His incarnation, life, death, burial and resurrection) are truthful. Jesus was neither deceived nor a deceiver. He was not an invention of His disciples, and the gospel accounts of His life were not concocted by later writers.

Jesus was neither deceived nor a deceiver. "Now on the next day, which is the one after the preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered together with Pilate, and said, 'Sir, we remember that when He was still alive that deceiver said, "After three days I am to rise again." Therefore, give orders for the grave to be made secure until the third day, lest the disciples come and steal Him away and say to the people, "He has risen from the dead," and the last deception will be worse than the first'" (Matt. 27:62–64). "And when His own people heard of this, they went out to take custody of Him; for they were saying, 'He has lost His senses'" (Mark 3:21). "From this standpoint we are prepared to answer various objections urged by the hydra-headed unbelief. Thus e.g. recent writers (Renan, etc.), who profess an admiration for Jesus (which they do not feel), tell us in a circumlocutory manner that Jesus being enthusiastic, etc., became the victim of self-deception, thinking Himself to be the predicted One until death crushed all His visionary hopes. But how could He be deceived, who before His death, when the representative men of the nation secretly conspired to put Him to death, plainly taught the postponement of the Kingdom, His own death, and all the grand outlines pertaining to this dispensation in relation to Jew and Gentile, to the Church and world? How can we believe Him to be such when we behold the Church, Jerusalem, the Jewish nation, Gentile dominion, unbelief, etc., just as He predicted? How can He be such when the tender of the Kingdom was conditional, and as long as this conditionality was imposed He rather kept His Messiahship in the background, but when the restraint, self-adopted, was removed by the secret overt act of the chief rulers of the nation (viz., to put Him to death, thus rejecting the tender made), He in connection with His predicted death also proclaimed His Messiahship to be publicly vindicated at some future Advent? How can He be a deceiver, when raising up, according to promise, co-heirs for the Theocratic Kingdom, He exhibits the faithfulness of His Word by bestowing the earnest of that which is to come? The charge of self-deception springs from utterly ignoring the recorded fact that this Jesus, instead of being deceived at not being able to raise up the predicted Messianic Kingdom, Himself merely offered it conditionally, and when this offer was rejected in His contemplated and premeditated death, He Himself withdrew it, and postponed its establishment—as a punishment to the nation and as a mercy to Gentiles—to His Sec. Advent. This is also a sufficient answer to those who urge the same objection with the proviso that, finding Himself unable to set up the Kingdom originally intended, He then changed His plan, and endeavored to establish a kind of purely spiritual or moral Kingdom. Such objectors are very careful not to allow the testimony of the Record to appear which witnesses that the tender was conditional, that it was withdrawn in a certain contingency, and that instead of changing His plan He postponed its execution until the period of His Sec. Coming, in the meanwhile arranging and ordering things to be ultimately promotive of, and effectual in, the prosecution of the postponed Purpose. This also triumphantly meets the dishonoring explanation given by Bauer that the Messiahship arose from a developing process in His own mind; for this is rebutted at once by the first preaching of the Kingdom by John the Baptist, etc., which shows both the relationship that the Messianic idea sustained to all that preceded, and that the Kingdom, which included of course the Messianic idea realized, was in the very beginning tendered in good faith to the Jewish nation on condition of repentance. There is no growth or gradual development here; and, in addition, when the Kingdom is rejected and with it, of course, the Messiah, the Messianic idea remains unchanged, the realization of it being only postponed to the future Advent. It is passing strange that men, who constantly appeal to fairness and reason, will not allow reason to weigh with candor the testimony of Christ's witnesses" (Peters, TTK, 3:519).

Jesus was not an invention of His disciples. “And he said, “The God of our fathers has appointed you [Paul] to know His will, and to see the Righteous One, and to hear an utterance from His mouth. For you will be a witness for Him to all men of what you have seen and heard”” (Acts 22:14–15). “For we did not follow cleverly devised tales when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of His majesty” (2 Pet. 1:16). “What was from the beginning, what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we beheld and our hands handled, concerning the Word of Life — and the life was manifested, and we have seen and bear witness and proclaim to you the eternal life, which was with the Father and was manifested to us — what we have seen and heard we proclaim to you also, that you also may have fellowship with us; and indeed our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ” (1 John. 1:1–3). “Let the reader exercise patience while we necessarily repeat a few facts which must be noticed in order to form an opinion whether ‘ignorant men’ were able to produce such a portraiture of the Theocratic King. Notice (1) the expressed determination of God to set up a Theocratic Kingdom given by the prophets in the ages preceding the First Advent; (2) this Theocratic Kingdom established in an initiatory form (some of its adjuncts being merely provisional); (3) this Theocracy incorporates the Davidic line, thus more closely in its Headship allying itself with humanity; (4) when this incorporation takes place, it is declared by covenant and promise that this Theocratic Kingdom shall be established in a permanent and most glorious form under a descendant of David; (5) this Theocratic Kingdom under David and his immediate successors never gains a world ascendancy but, on account of the sinfulness of kings and nations, is overthrown; (6) the Jewish nation being the covenanted people and the nucleus, owing to covenant relationship in and through whom the Theocratic Davidic Kingdom can only be manifested, that nation is still preserved; (7) the prophets, notwithstanding the downfall of the Kingdom still continue to predict the fulfillment of covenant and promise in the person of a descendant of David at some time in the future, and these predictions involve the restoration of the identical throne and Kingdom overthrown; (8) this predicted and covenanted Kingdom is preached and tendered to the Jewish nation, when the promised David’s Son comes by the forerunner John, by the Son Himself and by His disciples, but only conditionally, viz., on repentance; (9) this Kingdom, owing to the condition enjoined not being complied with, is then postponed to a future Advent of this Son; (10) during this intercalary period (a) the tabernacle of David continues in ruins, (b) the Jewish nation is to be subjected to continued and fearful rejection and a scattering among the nations, (c) Gentile domination is to remain until a certain time has elapsed, (d) a Christian Church is to be established and perpetuated to raise up a seed unto Abraham and prepare for the manifestation of the Kingdom with a moral power and grandeur perfectly overwhelming; (11) this Kingdom is always spoken of as still future and identified with the period of the Sec. Advent; (12) and in this Kingdom, as realized at the Sec. Advent, the covenant and prophecies are said to be fulfilled, as is seen e.g. in appropriating the descriptions given by these to the Messianic Kingdom which is to be revealed at the Coming again of this same Jesus. Now here is a connected series, an unbroken chain of facts (some fulfilled, others fulfilling, and others are yet to be fulfilled) without a single defect to mar the union. To contemplate Jesus separated from these facts, is to do violence to His highest claim, His Theocratic Kingship. But to consider Him in His relationship to these, immediately enforces His Messiahship. For the Apostles, with strong Jewish prejudices and dealing with the same in others, could not possibly have persuaded themselves and others that a dead Jesus, Son of David, could be the Messiah unless a strictly logical chain—inset with the jewels of the resurrection, ascension, and exaltation—showed them—as it does to us this day—that the Messiahship of Jesus is immeasurably augmented even by the very postponement of the Kingdom. Thus e.g. leaving the foretelling of the postponement of the Kingdom and of His own death, etc., who told them of the punishment to be inflicted upon the city of Jerusalem and Jewish nation (as seen to this day); who informed them of the establishment of the Church and of its trials, mixed nature, etc. (as seen to this time); who gave them various predictions that were verified in their own experience (and continue in that of believers to the present), and having such testimony (1) in the Theocratic Plan, (2) in personal experience and observation, (3) in what transpired around them, (4) in the aim and intent of this intercalary period, they would indeed have been both hopelessly ‘ignorant’ and debased, had they not accepted of the Christship of Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 3:516). “The present time, which multitudes claim makes shipwreck of the Jewish Messianic hopes, is only the strongest possible proof of the correctness of the same, seeing that the power that could postpone the Kingdom, punish the Jewish nation for its denial of repentance and slaying of Jesus, and establish the Church to raise up children to Abraham is already truly manifested as a Messianic power. To refute us, let the unbeliever point out a single prediction of Jesus relating to the present dispensation down to this time that has failed to find its mate. Hence, what this Jesus said and performed, His life, death, and resurrection, His personal withdrawal for a period, and yet His presence with and care over believers, binds Him as the covenanted Theocratic Messiah to all that preceded and to all that is yet to follow. The sacred writers justly reason that the First Advent of Jesus is a great and necessary preparatory measure to insure His exalted Christship. To refute this, let unbelief show us the ignorance of these Apostles in believing that, e.g. the resurrection of Jesus, the gathering out of material for this future Kingdom, etc., would not materially enhance the Theocratic glory that is predicted; yea, let them point out a solitary imperfection which can in any possible way vitiate the exact fulfillment of covenant and promise; yea more, let them say whether any one of the attributes, claims, characteristics, etc., given to Jesus could be omitted without lessening, if not seriously damaging, His Theocratic Kingship. The disciples could not concoct such a Messiah, because the facts that we have arrayed show such a conditional tender of the Kingdom (which was opposed to Jewish prejudice, which looked for it unconditionally in virtue of covenant relationship); such a rebuking, rejection, and dispersion of the nation (which no Jew with the well-known national deep-rooted prepossessions could possibly present, as seen e.g. in the history of false Messiahs); such a postponement of the Kingdom and a turning to the Gentiles (which was highly offensive to Jewish pride and bias), that to credit this to be the work of Jews, unsupported by the aid and light they claimed, is to violate the laws governing nature, making men capable of doing that which is not in his nature to perform, and thus attributing to mere reason what is most unreasonable, viz., that heart, feeling, and affection had nothing to do with this delineation of the Messiah. Can it be that men of intelligence will persist in rejecting a Messiah on the ground that a few Jews foisted upon the world a story of one, when the improbability and impossibility of the same appears in the very outset, in the very nature of humanity, seeing that it is contrary to all experience, all history, to suppose that such Jews, in opposition to their dearest hopes and highest anticipations could portray this Messiah as so hostile to the nation, so opposed to the covenanted people, that He gives them up for a long time to the domination of their enemies. Hence the old view (originated by Celsius, now advocated by many, and one that will ultimately prevail introductory to Antichrist), that Jesus was a deceiver, or that the disciples were intentional deceivers, aside from other considerations, falls before the Divine Plan of the contemplated Kingdom, the purity and perfectness elicited in its development, and the fact that the manner of its ultimate introduction, based upon the temporary rejection of the Jewish nation and the calling of the Gentiles, is opposed to the natural outgrowth of a Jewish training and Jewish sympathies" (ibid., p. 518). "The student will not fail to notice how these writers delineate the qualifications of Jesus for this Theocratic position, such as being David's Son, as covenant demands; the Son of God, imparting the highest and purest Theocratic element; immortal, insuring continued government, etc.; power, dignity, and honor, indicative of His ability and worthiness; righteousness and unchangeableness, presenting His imperial will in accord with the Father's and the welfare of His subjects; the attributes of the Godhead, giving stability, irresistible power, etc., to the Theocracy; the Personal appearance, the grandeur of His throne, the splendor of His court, the riches of His capitol, the homage and praise tendered, etc., all of which not only serve to impress, but in the Theocratic ordering are elements of importance—and who does not see how impossible it is for 'ignorant' men to present such a portraiture. It is not a slight concession made to the merits of this Christ-picture that men who have done much to injure Christ (as Strauss, Renan, Mills, etc.) still acknowledge a peculiar grandeur in the scriptural portrayal. The highest intelligence, whether the heart respond or not, must acknowledge an incomparable portrayal. Fiske (Unseen World, art. 4) in 'the Christ of Dogma' indeed labors to show how the attributing of such characteristics of the divine to Jesus were developed historically, but this is done in the most arbitrary manner by discarding as interpolations, or as subsequent additions, all that refers to the divine. In his one-sidedness he elevates himself to the position of a judge to set aside every statement as non-apostolic which does not suit his theory; and this is called 'criticism'" (ibid., p. 519).

The gospel accounts were not concocted by later writers. "We are told that the Gospel narratives respecting the Christ were concocted in their present form by post-apostolic writers, and that, in view of this, the portraiture of the Messiah must be received with much allowance for interpolation, error, exaggeration, etc. Passing by the important concessions of the later Bauer school, and the numerous testimonies which refute this, it is sufficient to point out the simple fact that, when looking at the connected doctrine of the Kingdom and the exact correspondence of all that pertains to the Messiah with it, the postponement of such a Record to the substituted later age is an impossibility. Because the simple narration of facts leaving the deduction of doctrine from them (grounded upon the notion that the reader has a previous acquaintance with covenant and prophecy), is utterly opposed to the spirit of a succeeding period, which would have interlarded such a production with substitutions, inferences, doctrinal exhibitions, laudatory expressions, etc., which would inevitably have betrayed its later origin. The faithful portraiture of the Messiah, perfectly agreeing with the Old Test. Scriptures and with the views of the Apostolic Church, is an ample refutation of this theory. Even such incidents as Christ's refusal to perform miracles to prove, on demand, His Messianic character, could not have been inserted at a later age, for under the notion of exalting Him the connection which this refusal sustains to the conditionality of the tender of the Kingdom would have been overlooked (as proven by what really occurred in later writings). Again: the resurrection of Jesus is denied on two grounds: (1) that the Kingdom not appearing, a resurrection was added (so Renan, etc.) in order to substitute a spiritual Kingdom and a spiritual Christ; and (2) that if Jesus rose from the dead as recorded 'why (so Schenkel, Sketch of Jesus, etc.) did He not show Himself to His Jewish judges and to the Roman Procurator? Why did He not appear in the streets of Jerusalem before the people who had been so basely deceived as to His Person? Why did He not by His mere appearance inspire courage in His frightened followers everywhere, and utterly defeat His malignant enemies?' Such objections entirely overlook the facts pertaining to the Kingdom. As to the first, the postponement of the Kingdom was proclaimed in connection with the foretold death and resurrection, and no substitution of a spiritual Kingdom, as multitudes dream, was made, as is firmly proven by the universal doctrinal position of the Church for the first three centuries. All believers immediately after the resurrection continued, as the promises positively required, to look for the identical Kingdom which they believed in before His death, only locating its establishment at the Sec. Advent. The spiritual Kingdom that these men talk about is the outgrowth of a later, spiritualistic system of interpretation. Besides this, the resurrection, as we have shown, is an important pre-requisite to secure the reorganization of the Davidic Kingdom upon that unchangeable Messianic basis predicted. The resurrection makes no change in the Kingdom, but pre-eminently qualifies the King to bring it, when re-established, to its promised height of permanency and glory. Indeed, it is an essential factor in its re-establishment in the form covenanted and promised, elevating David's Son into the Immortal Son who can reign as long as the sun and moon endures, and affording unto us the pledge of His Messianic power to fulfill the promises to the Fathers and all believing ones in raising them also from the dead, and causing them to inherit His Theocratic Kingdom when revealed. Any theory which refuses to receive the resurrection just as related in the New Test. (making it a resurrection of mere spirit as Shenkel; or a historical account of no practical importance in the development of Christian faith, as Keim; or an event that is to be explained by apparent death, as Schleiermacher; or a harmless deception, as Renan; or a gross falsehood, as Bardht), fails to see its essential connection with the Kingdom, and its necessary existence in order, at the appointed time, to fulfill the promises of God. Men like Strauss inform us that they want two proofs in confirmation of the resurrection of Jesus, viz., that the reality of it shall be vindicated by observing all the conditions of historical testimonies; and that, unless this resurrection took place, other events now historically certain could not have transpired. The doctrine of the Kingdom affords those evidences, and thus establishes the Messiahship of Jesus, for it shows us that the direct testimony given by the professed witnesses to the fact are sustained by requisite historical connection both with what preceded and what is to follow. The testimony is in perfect correspondence with the requirements of the Kingdom; and, therefore, in the consideration of this subject, it is only just to weigh the credibility of the witnesses (who profess to testify to the filling out of a Divine Plan) in the light of that history which God has produced and contemplates yet to introduce. In other words: the resurrection being part of the Divine Plan in reference to this Kingdom, the fundamental inquiry ought to be whether it is fully adapted to secure the end intended, and whether in the prosecution of such an end it re-confirms past history. The answer to this vindicates the testimony of the disciples, the absolute necessity of the resurrection, and the cordial reception of it as a glorious earnest of the power of the Coming Kingdom. If it be asked what events that certainly took place are developed by, or connected with, the resurrection, the definite response comes again, such as: the continued belief in the Messiahship of Jesus over against the Jewish prejudice immediately suggested by a crucified One; the establishment of the Church in the manner predicted before His death, by making Peter the one who holds the keys of knowledge to show that there is still forgiveness to the Jew, who cruelly rejected the Messiah, and that the Gentile can be engrafted on the principle of faith; the perpetuity of this Church with its belief in the resurrection of Jesus as a cardinal point; the institution of the Lord's Supper before His death and its perpetuation after the death, but celebrated as a memorial of triumph over death; the treading down of Jerusalem, the continued dispersion of the Jewish nation, the Gentile dominion, the rising up of the apostasy, persecution, etc., considered as depending for their fulfillment upon the previously given word of a crucified and resurrected Jesus. Christlieb has well shown (Mod. Doubt) that the conversion and history of St. Paul alone answers Strauss's objection. As to the second explanation asked, why the resurrected Jesus did not appear before the Jewish judges to confound them, etc., the least acquaintance with the doctrine of the Kingdom presents us readily with the reason. The Kingdom having been conditionally offered to the nation and having been rejected because the nation remained unrepentant, it was postponed until the Sec. Advent, and therefore, in view of the Divine Purpose previously plainly announced before His death, and thus embracing also a punishment upon the unbelief of the nation, it would have been incompatible with Messianic dignity and purpose to exhibit Himself to any others than believers in Him. His enemies were to drink the allotted cup; His friends were to be sustained by the earnestness of faith in His resurrection; all were to receive the sufficiency of evidence consistent with moral freedom, with His own honor, with the predicted withdrawal, and with an incorporated repentance and faith. If the objection has any force, then Jesus ought thus to prove His resurrection to every unbeliever in the world, which leaves no ground for the kind of repentance and faith that the New Test. requires of us" (Peters, TTK, 3:523).

Chapter 20: The Mystery Kingdom (the Church)

As we saw in our chapter Postponement of the Kingdom, upon the first-century Jews' rejection of Jesus as Messiah, the covenanted and prophesied Theocratic Kingdom was neither annulled nor transformed, but rather merely postponed. Now, if the covenanted and prophesied Davidic Kingdom was postponed; if the Kingdom was not inaugurated at Christ's First Advent and must instead wait for inauguration until His Second Advent (see our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom), then what is to be made of this intervening time period between His two advents, the (so far) nearly two millennia-long age in which we now find ourselves? With the Jews for the most part scattered throughout the world and the Theocratic Kingdom on hold, has God revealed any specific purpose of His for this intervening period? Indeed He has! As we will see in this chapter, the intervening, interim facet of the Kingdom that has taken center stage in this age, the Mystery Kingdom, is in many ways the most gracious and marvelous facet of them all.

Identity of the Mystery Kingdom

In this section we will define the Mystery Kingdom, identify its major player (the church) and explore its mysteries.

Definition of the Mystery Kingdom

As previously defined in our chapter Five Facets of the Kingdom, the Mystery Kingdom is the present "mystery" form of the Kingdom, commonly known as "Christendom." "And He answered and said to them, To you it has been granted to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been granted" (Matt. 13:11). "so that what was spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled, saying, 'I will open My mouth in parables; I will utter things hidden since the foundation of the world'" (Matt. 13:35). "Now to Him who is able to establish you according to my gospel and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery which has been kept secret for long ages past, but now is manifested, and by the Scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the eternal God, has been made known to all the nations, leading to obedience of faith" (Rom. 16:25–26) "but we speak God's wisdom in a mystery, the hidden wisdom, which God predestined before the ages to our glory" (1 Cor. 2:7) "...unto our glory... the goal of the mystery is our ultimate glory" (Fruchtbaum, FM, p. 652). "And by referring to this, when you read you can understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed to His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit; to be specific, that the Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body, and fellow partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel” (Eph. 3:4–6) “and to bring to light what is the administration of the mystery which for ages has been hidden in God, who created all things” (Eph. 3:9) “that is, the mystery which has been hidden from the past ages and generations; but has now been manifested to His saints” (Col. 1:26) “Various parties have noticed that the very name given (in Greek) to the Church, is significant of a part being taken from the whole. ‘Ekklesia,’ as critics assure us, denotes a calling forth out of, or from among, others, meaning therefore a body separated from others or the mass; these form the company of believers, the assemblage of the faithful” (Peters, TTK, 3:196). “The purpose of the present age is the realization of those features which are styled mysteries, that is, hitherto unrevealed divine purposes. God is now ruling the earth to the extent that He accomplishes all that is embraced in these mysteries. This age thus becomes the kingdom of heaven in its mystery form (cf. Matt 13:11)” (Chafer, ST, 4:327). “The mystery was the fact that when the One in whom this program was to be realized was publicly presented He would be rejected and an age would fall between His rejection and the fulfillment of God’s purpose of sovereignty at His Second Advent. The mystery form of the kingdom, then, has reference to the age between the two advents of Christ. The mysteries of the kingdom of heaven describe the conditions that prevail on the earth in that interim while the king is absent. These mysteries thus relate this present age to the eternal purposes of God in regard to His kingdom” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 143). “This present mystery age intervenes within the program of God for Israel because of Israel’s rejection of the Messiah at His first advent” (ibid., p. 193). “Christ referred to ‘the secrets of the kingdom’ (Matt. 13:11). He was not referring to the covenanted Davidic, or millennial, kingdom. That there would be such a kingdom was no ‘secret’ in the Old Testament! It clearly revealed the essential features or characteristics of the millennial kingdom. But what the Old Testament had not revealed was that an entire age would intervene between the offer of the kingdom by the Messiah and Israel’s reception of the King and enjoyment of full kingdom blessings” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 219). “The Mystery Kingdom must be kept distinct from the other facets. First, the Mystery Kingdom is not the same as the Eternal Kingdom because the Mystery Kingdom is limited in time between the first and second coming or, more specifically, from the Jewish rejection of the Messiah until the Jewish acceptance of the Messiah. Second, it is not the same as the Theocratic Kingdom because it is not limited to one nation, the nation of Israel, but involves both Jews and Gentiles. Third, it is not the same as the Spiritual Kingdom because the Spiritual Kingdom comprises only believers, whereas the Mystery Kingdom includes both believers and and unbelievers. Fourth, it is not the same as the Messianic Kingdom because the Messianic Kingdom was not a mystery; it was the subject of much revelation in the pages of the Old Testament. Furthermore, the Messiah is not ruling this kingdom physically and visibly on earth. Fifth, the Mystery Kingdom is not the same as the Church. The Church is included within the scope of the Mystery Kingdom, but the Mystery Kingdom is much wider than the Church itself. ‘Christendom’ is the best single term to describe what the Mystery Kingdom is. Since the time span of the Mystery Kingdom is from the rejection of the King until the acceptance of the King in the closing days of the Great Tribulation, obviously the Mystery Kingdom includes the Church Age from Acts two until the Rapture. It includes the period of time between Matthew 13 and Acts two. It also includes the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 614). “For something to qualify as a New Testament mystery, it must be something totally unrevealed anywhere in the Old Testament” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 651). “...the biblical mystery was something totally unknown to any man until God revealed it” (ibid., p. 655). “It [the Mystery Kingdom] is not the same as the Church. The Church is within the Mystery Kingdom; it is the believing element, the wheat of God’s Mystery Kingdom, which includes both the treasure and the pearl, but it is not the totality. Replacement Theologians have invariably tried to make the Church and the Kingdom of God one and the same, but they are not. The Church is an aspect of God’s Kingdom Program; it is an aspect of both the Spiritual Kingdom and the Mystery Kingdom, but it is not the totality of the Mystery Kingdom” (ibid., p. 670).

The Identity of the Church

The primary player within the Mystery Kingdom is the church. Therefore, for a correct understanding of God’s overall Kingdom program, proper identification of the church is essential. “Many precious truths are lost in the broad generalizations which characterize the amillennial treatment of ecclesiology” (Walvoord, MK, p. 104).

What the Church is Not

Contrary to much popular opinion, the church is not Israel, nor is the church the Kingdom.

The Church is Not Israel

The church is not Israel. This should be obvious from a plain, “literal” reading of Scripture. However, because the church is so often confused with Israel, both by many within the church and by many if not most heretical groups (such as Jehovah’s Witnesses, who believe their “anointed remnant” is the new Israel), and because this misidentification is such a determining factor in many peoples’ conception of the Kingdom, we will spend a fair amount time and effort on it here. “It is a lamentable fact that prophecies, en masse, which have no relation to the church as organized at present, are appropriated and applied to the church as now existing, that cannot and do not thus apply, and that this has necessarily caused unbelief in many who detect, easily, the utter discrepancy. We only now say, that there must be a sad defect somewhere in human systems, which causes prophecies to promise, plainly too, one thing and yet mean quite another; this, we affirm, is an imperfection existing, not in the language of the prophets, but only in the interpretation of them, and in the limiting of their fulfillment to the past and present, as if God was unable to carry out His purposes in the future. A renewed study, a thorough examination of them, and a return to the grammatical sense, will alone enable us to close the wide gap left open for opposers to enter” (Peters, TTK, 1:168). “Papists and Protestants have appropriated what exclusively belongs to the Jewish nation” (ibid., p. 169) “A mixture of the teachings concerning Israel, as a nation, with the revelations concerning the Church, the body of Christ, is groundless in Scripture. It is hopelessly confusing and grotesque, for under this plan only Israel’s blessings are borrowed; her curses and penalties are, naturally, not wanted. No progress can be made in the kingdom studies unless plain words are taken in their obviously plain meaning. In the Bible ‘Israel’ is not the ‘Church’; ‘Zion’ is not the body of saints of this dispensation; the ‘throne of David’ is not Heaven, nor will it ever be; the ‘land of your fathers’ is not ‘Paradise’ and the ‘house of Jacob’ is not a host of Gentiles ignorantly attempting to force an entrance into Judaism. All such borrowed habits of interpretation must be faithfully judged and abandoned if ever the kingdom portions of God’s Word are to assume any order or meaning” (Chafer, KHP, 7%). “Let no one rob Israel, hoping thereby to enrich the church, but at the same time impoverishing both Israel and the church” [quoting Feinberg, Premill or Amill?, p. 246] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 476). “As an original work of God, the church is not a continuation of Israel in some spiritual sense; even in the New Testament ‘Israel’ and its future are clearly distinguished from the church (Rom. 9-11). Jesus never denied there would be a future kingdom for Israel but said the times were in God’s hands (Acts 1:6-7; cf. Matt.

19:28). At no time have the unconditional land-promises, given to Abraham and his descendants ‘forever,’ been fulfilled. Consistent application of the historical-grammatical hermeneutic demands that they will be” (Geisler, ST, 4:56).

Prefacing our detailed discussion with a summary, Chafer lists twenty-four distinctions between Israel and the church. “There are at least twenty-four far-reaching distinctions yet to be observed between Israel and the Church, while there are about twelve major features common to both; but the obvious similarities do not set aside the differences” (Chafer, ST, 4:30). “Chafer [in Systematic Theology, 4:47-53] has set forth twenty-four contrasts between Israel and the church which show us conclusively that these two groups can not be united into one, but that they must be distinguished as two separate entities with whom God is dealing in a special program. These contrasts may be outlined as follows: (1) The extent of Biblical revelation: Israel—nearly four-fifths of the Bible; Church—about one-fifth. (2) The Divine purpose: Israel—the earthly promises in the covenants; Church—the heavenly promises in the gospel. (3) The seed of Abraham: Israel—the physical seed, of whom some become a spiritual seed; Church—a spiritual seed. (4) Birth: Israel—physical birth that produces a relationship; Church—spiritual birth that brings relationship. (5) Headship: Israel—Abraham; Church—Christ. (6) Covenants: Israel—Abrahamic and all the following covenants; Church—indirectly related to the Abrahamic and new covenants. (7) Nationality: Israel—one nation; Church—from all nations. (8) Divine dealing: Israel—national and individual; Church—individual only. [‘There are two elections—Israel the nation and the Church as individuals.’ (Chafer, ST, 4:320)] (9) Dispensations: Israel—seen in all ages from Abraham; Church—seen only in this present age. (10) Ministry: Israel—no missionary activity and no gospel to preach; Church—a commission to fulfill. (11) The death of Christ: Israel—guilty nationally, to be saved by it; Church—perfectly saved by it now. (12) The Father: Israel—by a peculiar relationship God was Father to the nation; Church—we are related individually to God as Father. (13) Christ: Israel—Messiah, Immanuel, King; Church—Saviour, Lord, Bridegroom, Head. (14) The Holy Spirit: Israel—came upon some temporarily; Church—indwells all. (15) Governing principle: Israel—Mosaic law system; Church—grace system. (16) Divine enablement: Israel—none; Church—the indwelling Holy Spirit. (17) Two farewell discourses: Israel—Olivet discourse; Church—upper room discourse. (18) The promise of Christ’s return: Israel—in power and glory for judgment; Church—to receive us to Himself. (19) Position: Israel—a servant; Church—members of the family. (20) Christ’s earthly reign: Israel—subjects; Church—co-reign-

ers. (21) Priesthood: Israel—had a priesthood; Church—is a priesthood. (22) Marriage: Israel—unfaithful wife; Church—bride. (23) Judgments: Israel—must face judgment; Church—delivered from all judgments. (24) Positions in eternity: Israel—spirits of just men made perfect in the new earth; Church—church of the firstborn in the new heavens [But note: As Dr. Fruchtenbaum points out, after the New Jerusalem descends to the new earth, in the Eternal Order, both groups will access the city, so at that time there may be little if any functional difference between the two.—ed.]” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 201).

Now, individually:

The church is not “Israel.” That the church is not Israel is evident from a number of factors:

First, in the Bible, “Israel” always refers to literal Israel. “The premillennial position on the term Israel is that it always has reference to those who are physical descendants of Jacob” (Walvoord, MK, p. 164). “‘Israel’ is consistently defined in the NT as the nation rooted in Abraham and never as the Gentiles” (Horner, FI, p. 194) “[Linguistically] ‘Israel’ denotes both people and land... Israel’s destiny is that of the land” [quoting B. Maoz, “People, Land and Torah: a Jewish Christian Perspective,” The Land of Promise, pp. 191-192] (ibid., p. 223) “For many centuries there was prevailed in the Churches of Christ a strange, and to my mind, an unwarrantable mode of dealing with this word ‘Israel.’ It has been interpreted in many passages of the Psalms and Prophets, as if it meant nothing more than Christian believers. Have promises been held out to Israel? Men have been told continually that they are addressed to Gentile saints. Have glorious things been described as laid up in store for Israel? Men have been incessantly told that they describe the victories and triumphs of the gospel in Christian churches. The proofs of these things are too many to require quotation. No man can read the immense majority of commentaries and popular hymns without seeing this system of interpretation to which I now refer. Against that system I have long protested, and I hope I shall always protest as long as I live. I do not deny that Israel was a peculiar typical people, and that God’s relations to Israel were meant to be a type of His relations to His believing people all over the world. I would have it most distinctly understood that God’s dealings with individual Jews and Gentiles are precisely one and the same. Without repentance, faith in Christ and holiness of heart, no individual Jew or Gentile shall ever be saved. What I protest against is, the habit of allegorizing plain sayings of the Word of God concerning the future history of the nation of Israel, and explaining away the fullness of their contents in order to accommodate them to the Gentile Church. I believe the habit to be unwarranted by anything in Scripture, and to draw after it a long train of evil consequences. Where, I would venture to ask, in the whole New Testament, shall we find any plain authority for applying the word “Israel” to anyone but the nation of Israel? On the contrary, I observe that when the Apostle Paul quotes Old Testament prophecies about the privileges of the Gentiles in gospel times, he is careful to quote texts which specifically mention the “Gentiles” by name. The fifteenth chapter of the Epistle to the Romans is a striking illustration of what I mean. We are often told in the New Testament that, under the gospel, believing Gentiles are “fellow heirs and partakers of the same hope” with believing Jews (Eph. 3:6). But that believing Gentiles may be called “Israelites,” I cannot see anywhere at all” [quoting J. C. Ryle, Are You Ready For The End Of Time?, pp. 107-108] (ibid., p. 344).

Second, a careful examination of the seventy-three occurrences of the word “Israel” in the New Testament makes it plain that the term always means natural, ethnic Israel. These seventy-three occurrences are: “And you, Bethlehem, land of Judah, Are by no means least among the leaders of Judah; For out of you shall come forth a Ruler, Who will shepherd My people Israel” (Matt. 2:6). “Arise and take the Child and His mother, and go into the land of Israel; for those who sought the Child’s life are dead” (Matt. 2:20). “And he arose and took the Child and His mother, and came into the land of Israel” (Matt. 2:20:2). “Now when Jesus heard this, He marveled, and said to those who were following, ‘Truly I say to you, I have not found such great faith with anyone in Israel’” (Matt. 8:10). “And after the demon was cast out, the dumb man spoke; and the multitudes marveled, saying, ‘Nothing like this was ever seen in Israel’” (Matt. 9:33). “‘but rather go to the lost sheep of the house of Israel’” (Matt. 10:6). “‘But whenever they persecute you in this city, flee to the next; for truly I say to you, you shall not finish going through the cities of Israel, until the Son of Man comes’” (Matt. 10:23). “But He answered and said, ‘I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel’” (Matt. 15:24). “so that the multitude marveled as they saw the dumb speaking, the crippled restored, and the lame walking, and the blind seeing; and they glorified the God of Israel” (Matt. 15:31). “And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel’” (Matt. 19:28). “Then that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet was fulfilled, saying, ‘And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one whose price had been set by the sons of Israel’” (Matt. 27:9) “‘He saved others; He cannot save Himself. He is the King of

Israel; let Him now come down from the cross, and we shall believe in Him” (Matt. 27:42). “Jesus answered, ‘The foremost is, “Hear, O Israel! The Lord our God is one Lord”’” (Mark 12:29). “‘Let this Christ, the King of Israel, now come down from the cross, so that we may see and believe!’ And those who were crucified with Him were casting the same insult at Him” (Mark 15:32). “‘And he will turn back many of the sons of Israel to the Lord their God” (Luke 1:16). “‘He has given help to Israel His servant, In remembrance of His mercy” (Luke 1:54) “‘Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, For He has visited us and accomplished redemption for His people” (Luke 1:68) “‘And the child continued to grow, and to become strong in spirit, and he lived in the deserts until the day of his public appearance to Israel” (Luke 1:80). “‘And behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; and this man was righteous and devout, looking for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Spirit was upon him” (Luke 2:25). “‘A light of revelation to the Gentiles, And the glory of Thy people Israel” (Luke 2:32). “‘And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary His mother, ‘Behold, this Child is appointed for the fall and rise of many in Israel, and for a sign to be opposed —’” (Luke 2:34) “‘But I say to you in truth, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the sky was shut up for three years and six months, when a great famine came over all the land” (Luke 4:25) “‘And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, but only Naaman the Syrian” (Luke 4:27). “‘Now when Jesus heard this, He marveled at him, and turned and said to the multitude that was following Him, ‘I say to you, not even in Israel have I found such great faith” (Luke 7:9). “‘that you may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Luke 22:30). “‘But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, it is the third day since these things happened” (Luke 24:21). “‘And I did not recognize Him, but in order that He might be manifested to Israel, I came baptizing in water” (John 1:31). “‘Nathanael answered Him, ‘Rabbi, You are the Son of God; You are the King of Israel” (John 1:49). “‘Jesus answered and said to him, ‘Are you the teacher of Israel, and do not understand these things” (John 3:10)? “‘took the branches of the palm trees, and went out to meet Him, and began to cry out, ‘Hosanna! Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord, even the King of Israel” (John 12:13). “‘And so when they had come together, they were asking Him, saying, ‘Lord, is it at this time You are restoring the kingdom to Israel” (Acts 1:6)? “‘Men of Israel, listen to these words: Jesus the Nazarene, a man attested to you by God with miracles and wonders and signs which God performed through

Him in your midst, just as you yourselves know —” (Acts 2:22) “Therefore let all the house of Israel know for certain that God has made Him both Lord and Christ — this Jesus whom you crucified” (Acts 2:36). “But when Peter saw this, he replied to the people, ‘Men of Israel, why do you marvel at this, or why do you gaze at us, as if by our own power or piety we had made him walk’” (Acts 3:12)? “let it be known to all of you, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, whom you crucified, whom God raised from the dead — by this name this man stands here before you in good health” (Acts 4:10). “For truly in this city there were gathered together against Thy holy servant Jesus, whom Thou didst anoint, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, along with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel” (Acts 4:27) “And upon hearing this, they entered into the temple about daybreak, and began to teach. Now when the high priest and his associates had come, they called the Council together, even all the Senate of the sons of Israel, and sent orders to the prison house for them to be brought” (Acts 5:21). “He is the one whom God exalted to His right hand as a Prince and a Savior, to grant repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins” (Acts 5:31). “And he said to them, ‘Men of Israel, take care what you propose to do with these men’” (Acts 5:35). “But when he was approaching the age of forty, it entered his mind to visit his brethren, the sons of Israel” (Acts 7:23). “This is the Moses who said to the sons of Israel, ‘God shall raise up for you a prophet like me from your brethren’” (Acts 7:37). “But God turned away and delivered them up to serve the host of heaven; as it is written in the book of the prophets, ‘It was not to Me that you offered victims and sacrifices forty years in the wilderness, was it, O house of Israel’” (Acts 7:42)? “But the Lord said to him, ‘Go, for he is a chosen instrument of Mine, to bear My name before the Gentiles and kings and the sons of Israel’” (Acts 9:15) “The word which He sent to the sons of Israel, preaching peace through Jesus Christ (He is Lord of all) —” (Acts 10:36) “And Paul stood up, and motioning with his hand, he said, ‘Men of Israel, and you who fear God, listen’” (Acts 13:16) “The God of this people Israel chose our fathers, and made the people great during their stay in the land of Egypt, and with an uplifted arm He led them out from it” (Acts 13:17). “From the offspring of this man, according to promise, God has brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus, after John had proclaimed before His coming a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel” (Acts 13:23). “crying out, ‘Men of Israel, come to our aid! This is the man who preaches to all men everywhere against our people, and the Law, and this place; and besides he has even brought Greeks into the temple and has defiled this holy place’” (Acts 21:28). “For this reason therefore, I requested to see you and to speak with you, for I am wearing this chain for the sake of the hope of Israel” (Acts 28:20). “But it is not as though the word of God has failed. For they are not all Israel who are descended from Israel” (Rom. 9:6) “And Isaiah cries out concerning Israel, ‘Though the number of the sons of Israel be as the sand of the sea, it is the remnant that will be saved’” (Rom. 9:27) “but Israel, pursuing a law of righteousness, did not arrive at that law” (Rom. 9:31). “But I say, surely Israel did not know, did they? At the first Moses says, ‘I will make you jealous by that which is not a nation, By a nation without understanding will I anger you’” (Rom. 10:19). “But as for Israel He says, ‘All the day long I have stretched out My hands to a disobedient and obstinate people’” (Rom. 10:21). “God has not rejected His people whom He foreknew. Or do you not know what the Scripture says in the passage about Elijah, how he pleads with God against Israel” (Rom. 11:2)? “What then? That which Israel is seeking for, it has not obtained, but those who were chosen obtained it, and the rest were hardened” (Rom. 11:7) “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “and thus all Israel will be saved; just as it is written, ‘The Deliverer will come from Zion, He will remove ungodliness from Jacob’” (Rom. 11:26). “Look at the nation Israel; are not those who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar” (1 Cor. 10:18)? “But if the ministry of death, in letters engraved on stones, came with glory, so that the sons of Israel could not look intently at the face of Moses because of the glory of his face, fading as it was” (2 Cor. 3:7) “and are not as Moses, who used to put a veil over his face that the sons of Israel might not look intently at the end of what was fading away” (2 Cor. 3:13). “And those who will walk by this rule, peace and mercy be upon them, and upon the Israel of God” (Gal. 6:16). “remember that you were at that time separate from Christ, excluded from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world” (Eph. 2:12). “circumcised the eighth day, of the nation of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; as to the Law, a Pharisee” (Phil. 3:5) “For finding fault with them, He says, ‘Behold, days are coming, says the Lord, When I will effect a new covenant With the house of Israel and with the house of Judah’” (Heb. 8:8) “‘For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel After those days, says the Lord: I will put My laws into their minds, And I will write them upon their hearts. And I will be their God, And they shall be My people’” (Heb. 8:10). “By faith Joseph, when he was dying, made mention of the exodus of the sons of Israel, and gave orders concerning his bones” (Heb. 11:22).

“But I have a few things against you, because you have there some who hold the teaching of Balaam, who kept teaching Balak to put a stumbling block before the sons of Israel, to eat things sacrificed to idols, and to commit acts of immorality” (Rev. 2:14). “And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel” (Rev. 7:4) “It had a great and high wall, with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels; and names were written on them, which are those of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel” (Rev. 21:12). “Covenant Theologians boldly state that the Church is the new Israel and sometimes make it sound as if that claim is an obvious foregone conclusion of the New Testament. Cox even claimed that the two terms are used interchangeably. The truth is that the term Israel is used a total of 73 times in the New Testament. As the following list shows, such a bold claim is unwarranted from the evidence” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 684) “The above list is the total number of times that Israel is mentioned in the New Testament and it is obvious even to Covenant Theologians that the vast majority of the times it refers to national ethnic Israel. In fact, only three passages are used by Covenant Theologians to try to prove their Church-equals-Israel equation. On two of these, Romans 9:6 and 11:26, they are not unanimous, for even some Covenant Theologians see these verses as speaking of national ethnic Israel. The only one verse on which all Covenant Theologians are unanimous is Galatians 6:16. This is the one and only verse that even comes close to saying what Covenant Theologians want it to say. Therefore, it will be given its own separate treatment. [See our paragraph The church is not ‘the Israel of God’ below.—ed.]” (ibid., p. 690). “In the NT, ‘Israel’ is used seventy-three times... Paul... ‘there is, in fact, no instance of his using [Israel], except of the Jewish nation or a part thereof” [quoting E. D. Burton, Galatians, p. 358] (Horner, FI, p. 228).

Third, the Bible never identifies the church as “Israel.” “The Scriptures never use the term Israel to refer to any but the natural descendants of Jacob” (Feinberg, M, p. 230). “It is very important to recognize that in no place in the New Testament is a Gentile ever referred to as Israel, for to be included in the nation of Israel one must be a physical descendant of Abraham” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 80). “The term Israel is not used in the Scriptures to describe anyone but the physical descendants of Abraham” (ibid., p. 173). “Whenever Israel is used in the Scriptures, whether in reference to an individual (Rom. 11:1) or a nation (9:4) without exception it refers to those who are physical descendants of Abraham” (ibid., p. 290). “Cox fails to produce a single clear and obvious example where the Church is called ‘Israel’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 181). “When the term ‘Israel’ is used figuratively, it is a reference to the believing remnant. There is no example of ‘Israel’ being used of the Church, or indicating Gentiles are included in the figurative use of the term” (ibid., p. 183). “Yes, there are two Israels: one comprises all Jews and the other only those Jews who believe; but nowhere does Paul use the term Israel of the Church” (ibid., p. 253). “Ladd has been trying to show that the Remnant of Israel constitutes the Church, which in turn becomes ‘the true Israel’ and ‘the true people of God.’ He even claims that ‘it is difficult to avoid’ this conclusion, but that is not the case. Until Ladd shows a clear statement in Scripture where the Church is called Israel, that conclusion is not difficult to avoid at all” (ibid., p. 277). “The New Testament never actually uses the term ‘Israel’ of the Church, even by application” (ibid., p. 295). “Ryrie [in Premillennial Faith, pp. 67-69] points out ‘...the fact that Gentile Christians are never included in the designation Israel’” (ibid., p. 447). “In the New Testament... every time Israel is used, it speaks of either Israel as a nation still in unbelief or the ‘believing remnant which is incorporated into the church without destroying the national promises to Israel in the least’” [quoting Walvoord, The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 168-170] (ibid., p. 463). “Feinberg [in Premill or Amill?, pp. 230-231] is correct when he states that the Scriptures ‘never use the term Israel to refer to any but the natural descendants of Jacob’” (ibid., p. 475). “...the language of the NT that in reality nowhere declares that the church is Israel renewed. This fictional extrapolation is in reality warmed over Augustinianism” (Horner, FI, p. 90) “There is no use of the term ‘Israel’ in the NT that is an explicit equivalent to the Christian church. Regarding Paul’s usage, Burton declared, ‘There is, in fact, no instance of his using [Israel], except of the Jewish nation or a part thereof’ [quoting E. D. Burton, A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on The Epistle to the Galatians, p. 358] (ibid., p. 265).

Fourth, in the Bible, “tribes” always refers to literal tribes of people. There are nine occurrences of “tribes” in the New Testament: “And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel’” (Matt. 19:28). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “that you may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Luke 22:30). “the promise to which our twelve tribes hope to attain, as they earnestly serve God night and day. And for this hope, O King, I am being accused by Jews” (Acts 26:7). “James, a bond-servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes who are dispersed abroad, greetings” (James 1:1). “Behold, He is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see Him, even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev. 1:7). “After these things I looked, and behold, a great multitude, which no one could count, from every nation and all tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and palm branches were in their hands” (Rev. 7:9) “And those from the peoples and tribes and tongues and nations will look at their dead bodies for three and a half days, and will not permit their dead bodies to be laid in a tomb” (Rev. 11:9). “It had a great and high wall, with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels; and names were written on them, which are those of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel” (Rev. 21:12). “Never is the word tribes as applied to Israel used to mean anything but literal tribes of people” (Geisler, ST, 4:480). Compare also: “And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel: from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed” (Rev. 7:4-8).

Fifth, the primitive church did not identify the church with Israel. “There is no historical evidence that the term Israel was identified with the church before A.D. 160. Further, at that date there was no characterization of the church as ‘the Israel of God.’ In other words, for more than a century after Paul there was no evidence of the identification.” [quoting Toussaint and Dyer, Pentecost Essays, p. 191] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 695). “‘Israel’ was first applied to the Christian Church by Justin Martyr c. 160” (Horner, FI, p. 264) “...Israel being equated with the church, which happened about AD 160 when Justin Martyr’s Dialogue with Trypho was published” (ibid., p. 281).

Sixth, the church has no genuine nexus with Israel. “...another ‘Israel’ having no genuine nexus with the historical nation” (McClain, GK, p. 149) “...the New Testament church, which is functionally distinct from Israel” (Geisler, ST, 4:24).

Seventh, the church does not replace Israel. “It is a fundamental tenet of the Koran that both Israel and the Church failed. Moses was a prophet.

Jesus was a prophet. But Muhammad was the seal of the prophets, the messenger of the final revelation. The Jews are not the people of God—they failed! The Christians are not the people of God—they failed! It is the Muslims who are the people of God. Of course this is preposterous. But, in the event that you are still uncertain about the calling of Israel, consider this simple truth: If God could forsake Israel, in spite of His unconditional, everlasting promises, then He could forsake the Church! If God could replace Israel, in spite of His unconditional, everlasting promises, then He could replace the Church! So, if you hold to a theology that says, “God has forsaken physical Israel,” or “The Church has replaced Israel,” you had better be extremely careful. Maybe the Koran is right” [quoting Michael L. Brown, Our Hands Are Stained with Blood: The Tragic Story of the ‘Church’ and the Jewish People, pp. 125-126] (Horner, FI, p. 362)! “Once replacement theology became a presupposition of theological reflection, it required that much of the Old Testament be interpreted allegorically” [quoting Ronald E. Diprose, Israel and the Church, pp. 171-72] (ibid., p. 364). “Does Gentile inclusion in God’s promises necessitate Jewish exclusion?... For Paul, non-Christian Jews continue to be included within God’s promises simply because of God’s covenant faithfulness to Abraham and other patriarchs... Paul would not affirm the theological doctrine that became entrenched among later generations of Christians, namely, that Gentile inclusion necessitates Jewish exclusion” [quoting Jeffrey S. Siker, Disinheriting the Jews, pp. 195-197] (ibid., p. 375).

The church is not “new Israel.” “It is well known that the [Roman Catholic] Church calls herself the “New Israel”” [quoting Michel Remaud, Israel, Servant of God, p. 5] (Horner, FI, p. 374)

The church is not “spiritual Israel.” “For he is not a Jew who is one outwardly; neither is circumcision that which is outward in the flesh. But he is a Jew who is one inwardly; and circumcision is that which is of the heart, by the Spirit, not by the letter; and his praise is not from men, but from God” (Rom. 2:28-29). “It is true that ‘real Jews are those who have been circumcised inwardly’; but the passage on which this is based, Romans 2:28-29, contextually (Rom. 2:17-3:20) is being addressed to the Jews (Rom. 2:17) and not to Gentiles or the Church. It too deals with the Remnant of Israel which has both a physical and spiritual circumcision in contrast to Israel the whole which only has physical circumcision” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 295). “But it is not as though the word of God has failed. For they are not all Israel who are descended from Israel” (Rom. 9:6) “Shedd refers to this spiritual Israel as ‘spiritual descendants of Jacob,’ something the Bible itself never does. Both Jewish and Gentile believers are referred to as a spiritual seed of Abraham, but not Jacob—an important distinction within Israelology” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 75). “Since Covenant Theology teaches that all believers, both Jews and Gentiles, are spiritual Jews, or spiritual Israel, perhaps for that reason Shedd inserts ‘spiritual seed of Jacob.’ By doing so, he has gone beyond the biblical text” (ibid.). “The second Israel is an Israel ‘within ethnic Israel’; that is, they are Jews who believe” (ibid.). “Murray points out that the purpose of making a distinction between Israel the whole and the true Israel is to show that ‘God’s covenant purpose and promise’ has not failed. While Israel the whole did reject and disbelieve, the true Israel did not” (ibid.). “The disagreement between Dispensationalists and Covenant Theologians is whether the spiritual Israel and the spiritual seed of Abraham are always one and the same. Generally, Dispensationalists would keep the two distinct and Covenant Theologians would not. Hodge’s interpretation is consistent with his Covenant Theology” (ibid., p. 76). “The correct premise is that not all members of Israel the whole are the believing Israel. Not all Jews live up to the name (the praise of God)” (ibid., p. 183). “For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; for the same Lord is Lord of all, abounding in riches for all who call upon Him” (Rom. 10:12) “In this context, the specific area where there is no difference is in the area of salvation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 82). “Not even once in this chapter did Paul say that God has forever ‘cast off’ or ‘rejected’ Israel” (ibid., p. 83). “There are distinctions between Jews and Gentiles even within the Body of Christ in other areas outside of salvation; but as far as salvation is concerned, there are no distinctions” (ibid., p. 709). (See also our discussion of Galatians 3:28 below.) “I say then, they did not stumble so as to fall, did they? May it never be! But by their transgression salvation has come to the Gentiles, to make them jealous” (Rom. 11:11). “So was the stumbling of Israel for the purpose that Israel would irrevocably fall and never rise again? Paul then gave the answer: God forbid” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 742)! “And if the first piece of dough be holy, the lump is also; and if the root be holy, the branches are too. But if some of the branches were broken off, and you, being a wild olive, were grafted in among them and became partaker with them of the rich root of the olive tree, do not be arrogant toward the branches; but if you are arrogant, remember that it is not you who supports the root, but the root supports you. You will say then, ‘Branches were broken off so that I might be grafted in.’ Quite right, they were broken off for their unbelief, but you stand by your faith. Do not be conceited, but fear; for if God did not spare the natural branches, neither will He spare you. Behold then the kindness and severity of God; to those who fell, severity, but to you, God’s kindness, if you continue in His kindness; otherwise you also will be cut off. And they also, if they do not continue in their unbelief, will be grafted in; for God is able to graft them in again. For if you were cut off from what is by nature a wild olive tree, and were grafted contrary to nature into a cultivated olive tree, how much more shall these who are the natural branches be grafted into their own olive tree” (Rom. 11:16-24)? “Nowhere does Paul state that this Olive Tree symbolizes the new or true Israel. Paul’s picture of the Olive Tree is to represent it as the place of spiritual blessings which are rooted in the Abrahamic Covenant, now being enjoyed by Jewish and Gentile believers” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 199). “Obviously, if either Jewish or Gentile branches are cut off, it means they were previously in this tree. If the tree is the Church, the true Israel, the elect, then because of unbelief, they have been cut off from all this. Have they then lost their salvation” (ibid.)? “The natural branches are the Jews (Israel) and the wild olive branches are the Gentiles (v. 17). The Olive Tree in this passage does not represent Israel or the Church, but it represents the place of spiritual blessing. The root of this place of blessing is the Abrahamic Covenant” (ibid., p. 744). “There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free man, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus” (Gal. 3:28). “Paul does not say there is neither Jew nor Greek within the church. He speaks of those who are “in Christ”... But Paul also says there is neither male nor female, nor slave, nor free man in Christ. Would he then deny sexual differences within the church? Or the social differences in Paul’s day? Is it not plain that Paul is not speaking of national or ethnic difference in Christ, but of spiritual status? In that sense there is no difference in Christ” [quoting Toussaint and Dyer, Pentecost Essays, p. 190] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 695). “Therefore remember, that formerly you, the Gentiles in the flesh, who are called ‘Uncircumcision’ by the so-called ‘Circumcision,’ which is performed in the flesh by human hands — remember that you were at that time separate from Christ, excluded from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world. But now in Christ Jesus you who formerly were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. For He Himself is our peace, who made both groups into one, and broke down the barrier of the dividing wall, by abolishing in His flesh the enmity, which is the Law of commandments contained in ordinances, that in Himself He might make the two into one new man, thus establishing peace, and might reconcile them both in one body to God through the cross, by it having put to death the enmity” (Eph. 2:11-16) “We cannot receive the idea advanced by Oosterzee, that Jesus at His First Advent ‘put an end to the wall of separation between Israel and the nations” (Peters, TTK, 1:392). “...the wall of partition... is not removed but only between believers of all nations and the Jewish nation” (ibid.). “...the wall of partition only broken down between believers and not between the Jewish nation and other nations” (ibid., 2:81) “Believing in a future for Israel or even in a distinctive Jewish remnant today is not to ‘rebuild the dividing wall,’ for they in no way limit Gentile access to the spiritual blessings, which was the reason the wall was broken down in the first place. The Gentile believer is still a ‘partaker.’ ‘Israel’ is still Israel whether it is applied to the nation as a whole or to the believing remnant within Israel the whole. Israel can still have a national future without Gentile believers losing any of the things God promised them” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 183). “The Ephesians passage does not say that this ‘one new man’ is ‘neither Jew nor Gentile,’ but it states ‘that he might create of the two one new man.’ In other words, the one new man is to consist of both Jews and Gentiles. This is not merely a semantical difference. Paul’s wording in Ephesians allows for a continuous Jewish and Gentile distinctive” (ibid., p. 250). “It is proper to speak of believing Jews and believing Gentiles as Abraham’s spiritual seed (so Paul designates them in Galatians 3:8, 9), but spiritual Israelites are believing Jews only” (Feinberg, M, p. 230). “And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, ‘ALL THE NATIONS SHALL BE BLESSED IN YOU.’ So then those who are of faith are blessed with Abraham, the believer” (Gal. 3:8–9). “And if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham’s offspring [seed], heirs according to promise” (Gal. 3:29). “The Bible never speaks of a ‘spiritual Israel’” (Feinberg, M, p. 244). “There is a godly or spiritual Israel in the Old Testament who are true believers in God, and there is a godly Israel in the church consisting of Israelites who are believers in Jesus Christ” (Walvoord, MK, p. 164). “...the remnant today being both part of Israel and part of the Church...” (Fruchtenbaum, I, 275) “The Remnant of Israel is always within the nation and not apart from it” (ibid., p. 275). “The Church is never called, and is not, a ‘spiritual Israel’ or a ‘new Israel.’ The term Israel is either used of the nation or the people as a whole, or of the believing remnant within. It is never used of the Church in general or of Gentile believers in particular” (ibid., p. 699). “The first false view is that Gentiles become ‘spiritual Jews’ upon believing in Christ” (ibid.). “Mere physical birth cannot save. Mere physical circumcision does not save either. Circumcision is only outward whereas God demands a circumcision which is of the heart... A true Jew is a ‘completed’ Jew, a ‘full’ Jew, one who has had both types of circumcision, outward and inward” (ibid., p. 707). “A completed Jew is one who has had both circumcisions, the circumcision which is outward in obedience to the Abrahamic Covenant, and an inward circumcision of the heart as an act of obedience to the New Covenant” (ibid., p. 708). “Outward circumcision deals with the issues of the flesh, the letter, and the mind. Inward circumcision deals with the issues of the heart, the spirit, and God” (ibid.). “...the body of Christ is not a spiritual Israel” (Geisler, ST, 4:56). “There is no hint of any alleged spiritual Israel that has replaced national Israel in God’s plan” (ibid., p. 485).

The church is not “the Israel of God.” “For neither is circumcision anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creation. And those who will walk by this rule, peace and mercy be upon them, and upon the Israel of God” (Gal. 6:15–16). “In Galatians 6:16 Paul distinguishes between the Gentiles, ‘who follow this rule’ and the saved Jews, whom he calls ‘the Israel of God’” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 290). “God’s blessing is declared on those who walk according to this rule (among the Galatians who were Gentiles), and also ‘upon the Israel of God.’ The use of and (Greek kai) is difficult to explain apart from the intention of the writer to set off the ‘Israel of God’ from those considered in the first half of the verse” (Walvoord, MK, p. 170). “Peace and mercy from God are available to those who walk according to this rule, that is, according to the message of salvation by grace through faith alone. This blessing is pronounced on believing Galatians and on believing Jews. (The NIV errs in trans. ‘even to the Israel of God’ rather than ‘and upon the Israel of God’ as in the NASB.) While some believe that ‘Israel of God’ is the church, the evidence does not support such a conclusion. First, the repetition of the preposition (‘upon’ or ‘to’) indicates two groups are in view. Second, all the 65 [72?—ed.] other occurrences of the term ‘Israel’ in the New Testament refer to Jews. It would thus be strange for Paul to use ‘Israel’ here to mean Gentile Christians. Third, Paul elsewhere referred to two kinds of Israelites—believing Jews and unbelieving Jews (cf. Rom. 9:6). Lest it be thought that Paul is anti-Semitic, he demonstrated by means of this benediction his deep love and concern for true Israel, that is, Jews who had come to Christ” (Walvoord, BKC, Gal. 6:16). “Galatians 6:16 does not refer to all New Testament believers as the Israel of God, but only to the Jewish believers who are the believing remnant” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 52). “Identifying the Church with Israel or the Israel of God is an assumption all Covenant Theologians make, and they build their Israelology on that assumption. They seldom try to prove that assumption by exegesis” (ibid., p. 178). “Galatians 6:16 obviously mentions two groups: the them and the Israel of God. The two are joined by a Greek connection kai. The primary meaning of kai is ‘and.’ Normally, one resorts to a secondary meaning, such as ‘even,’ only when the primary meaning makes no sense; here, however, the primary meaning of ‘and’ makes perfect sense” (ibid., p. 182). “When Hoekema declares that ‘there is at least one New Testament passage where the term Israel is used as inclusive of Gentiles,’ the implication is that there are others; but Galatians 6:16 is the only example he and others of his persuasion ever provide, and so their claim stands or falls on this one verse alone” (ibid., p. 185). “It should not be missed that this is the only verse that this camp has in trying to prove that the New Testament applies the term ‘Israel’ to the Church. Their entire view stands or falls on the proper interpretation of this one verse” (ibid., p. 186). “Ryrie [in Basic Theology, p. 399] cites Galatians 6:16 which, as has been shown many times, is the one and only passage that all Covenant Theologians cite as proof that the Church is Israel or the New Israel. Ryrie, however, states that this passage ‘provides no clear proof that the church is equated with Israel.’ Covenant Theologians are forced to resort to a secondary meaning of kai to arrive at their conclusion” (ibid., p. 443). “Again, Galatians 6:15-16 is the only passage Covenant Theologians have to try to prove that the Church is Israel and even then they must resort to a secondary meaning when neither the context nor the grammar demands it” (ibid., p. 454). “The them are ‘the Galatians who were Gentiles’ or the uncircumcision of verse 15 and the Israel of God are the Jewish believers who are the circumcision.” [quoting Walvoord, The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 168-170] (ibid., p. 463). “Galatians 6:16, the only passage produced by all Covenant Theologians as evidence that the Church is the spiritual Israel, or that Gentile believers become spiritual Jews. The verse does not prove their case” (ibid., p. 690). “‘the Israel of God’... the words refer simply to believing ethnic Israelites in the Christian church. Does not Paul speak of himself as an Israelite (cf. Rom. 11:1)? And does not the apostle also speak of ‘a remnant according to God’s gracious choice’ (cf. 11:5), words that plainly in the context refer to believing Israelites? What more fitting thing could Paul write, it is said, in a work so strongly attacking Jewish professing believers, the Judaizers, than to make it most plain that he was not attacking the true believing Jews? Judaizers are anathematized, but the remnant according to the election of grace are ‘the Israel of God’” [quoting Toussaint and Dyer, Pentecost Essays, p. 191] (ibid., p. 696). “...the ‘Israel of God’... it should be taken of Israelites (Jews) who are true believers, which fits also with Paul’s usage in other places” (Geisler, ST, 4:443). “Paul says nothing of a spiritual Israel; his reference to ‘Israel of God’ delineates literal Israelites who have accepted the message of God’s grace” (ibid.). “Galatians 6:16... the ‘Israel of God’... it should be taken as referring to Israelites (Jews) who are true believers... Paul says nothing of a spiritual Israel... ‘Israel of God’ and those of the ‘circumcision, who worship God’ (Phil. 3:3 NKJV) are the same group, viz., Jews saved by grace” (ibid., p. 581). “The continuative ‘and’ (kai) is not only contextually but also statistically preferable when compared with the ascensive ‘even.’ Most commonly, the translation is ‘and upon the Israel of God’ (KJV, NKJV, NASB, ESV, NRSV, etc.), which shows Hebrew Christians retaining a distinct identity within the one people of God. The translation, ‘even upon the Israel of God’ (NIV), portrays the church, comprised of all the people of God, with a refined title, the ‘spiritual’ Israel of God. In the NT of the KJV the approximate usage is 97 percent for kai as ‘and’ compared with 3 percent for kai as ‘even.’ The continuative use of kai has a far greater frequency than the ascensive use. Concerning the NIV’s uncommon use of ‘even’ in this regard, a degree of ambiguity remains. The ascensive use of kai could be correct, but the emphatic use is also possible: ‘Peace and mercy to all who follow this rule, even [by way of an adjunctive, emphatic thought] to the Israel of God.’ A. T. Robertson suggested that this may have been the original meaning of kai, so that ‘also’ here would seem to be a preferable translation, as with the HCSB (see above). In this instance the distinctive character of the Jewish Christian is retained. It is difficult not to suspect that the NIV translation was doctrinally driven so that the intention was to identify the church as the new Israel of God” (Horner, FI, p. 265).

The church is not a race. “But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for God’s own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of Him who has called you out of darkness into His marvelous light” (1 Pet. 2:9) “So it is not the Church which is a chosen race, but the Jewish believers. Rather, the Church, which is not a ‘race’ anyway, is comprised of believers from all races” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 187). “The use of the term race shows that Peter is also dealing with their national election. The Church, however, is not a race but composed of believers from all races” (ibid., p. 722). “His [Peter’s] purpose is to show that, while the non Remnant has failed in its calling, the Remnant has not failed. Thus what Peter states here may not necessarily be true of the Church as a whole, but specifically of Jewish believers who now make up the Remnant of Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 770). “...an elect race, based on Isaiah 43:20” (ibid., p. 772) “The beasts of the field shall honor me, the jackals and the ostriches; because I give waters in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, my chosen, the people which I formed for myself, that they might set forth my praise. Yet thou hast not called upon me, O Jacob; but thou hast been weary of me, O Israel” (Isa. 43:20–23)

The church is not a nation. “Therefore I say to you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you, and be given to a nation producing the fruit of it” (Matt. 21:43). “Matthew 21:43... The ‘nation’ of this verse would be identified by Boettner as the Church; but if the Church is the ‘nation,’ then it contradicts Paul’s statement in Romans 10:19 that God would provoke the Jews with a ‘no nation,’ and the Church is just that: a no-nation, an entity comprised of individuals of all nationalities. Matthew 21:43 would be better understood to mean a different generation of Israel. The Jewish generation of Jesus’ day had rejected the kingdom; so it will be offered to a later Jewish generation that will accept it” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 60). “But I say, surely Israel did not know, did they? At the first Moses says, ‘I will make you jealous by that which is not a nation, By a nation without understanding will I anger you” (Rom. 10:19). “Romans 10:19 where the Church is referred to as no nation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 161). “But I say, Did Israel not know? First Moses saith, I will provoke you to jealousy with that which is no nation, With a nation void of understanding will I anger you” (Rom. 10:1, ASV). “who gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from every lawless deed and purify for Himself a people for His own possession, zealous for good deeds” (Titus 2:14). “Titus 2:14 refers to believers as a people for his own possession, but not as a nation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 161). “Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who reside as aliens, scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, who are chosen” (1 Pet. 1:1) “Therefore, putting aside all malice and all guile and hypocrisy and envy and all slander, like newborn babes, long for the pure milk of the word, that by it you may grow in respect to salvation, if you have tasted the kindness of the Lord. And coming to Him as to a living stone, rejected by men, but choice and precious in the sight of God, you also, as living stones, are being built up as a spiritual house for a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. For this is contained in Scripture: ‘Behold I lay in Zion a choice stone, a precious corner stone, And he who believes in Him shall not be disappointed.’ This precious value, then, is for you who believe. But for those who disbelieve, ‘The stone which the builders rejected, This became the very corner stone,’ and, ‘A stone of stumbling and a rock of offense’; for they stumble because they are disobedient to the word, and to this doom they were also appointed. But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for God’s own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of Him who has called you out of darkness into His marvelous light; for you once were not a people, but now you are the people of God; you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy. Beloved, I urge you as aliens and strangers to abstain from fleshly lusts, which wage war against the soul. Keep your behavior excellent among the Gentiles, so that in the thing in which they slander you as evildoers, they may on account of your good deeds, as they observe them, glorify God in the day of visitation” (1 Pet. 2:1-12). “First Peter 2:9 does speak of a holy nation, but the first two verses of this epistle make it clear that Peter was addressing Jewish believers specifically and not the Church as a whole. This makes sense since Peter was the apostle to the circumcision. The Jewish believers constituted the present Remnant of Israel or the Israel of God. They are the holy nation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 161). “Peter is speaking specifically to and of Jewish believers. Cox, like Allis, ignores Peter’s opening words when he spells out to whom he is writing” (ibid., p. 179). “To whom was Peter writing? Peter (1:1) states that he is writing to the sojourners of the Dispersion. In other words, Peter is writing to Jews living outside the land” (ibid., p. 186). “He specifically states that he is writing to the sojourners of the Dispersion. This was and is a very Jewish way of speaking of Jews living outside the land of Israel. Peter is writing as a Jew to Jews. This is not a way a Jew writes if he is addressing an audience of primarily Gentiles” (ibid., p. 187). “It is not true that the word dispersion is ‘often applied to Jews’; rather, it is always applied to Jews when used technically by Jewish writers, which Peter was” (ibid.). “The Church is also not a holy nation, but is comprised of believers from all nations. In fact, when Paul speaks of the Church, he calls it a no nation (Rom 10:19)” (ibid.). “It should be noted that Peter does not even use the word ‘church’ a single time, giving Hoekema’s claim that Peter is addressing the Church even less credence” (ibid., p. 188). “By taking Peter’s words in 1:1-2 literally, it is clear that the epistle was not written to the Church at large, nor to a body of Gentile believers, but to Jewish believers living outside the land within a majority Gentile population. The term Dispersion is a technical Jewish term for Jews who live outside the land. It is used twice elsewhere: John 7:35 and James 1:1, which all commentators agree refers to the Jews of the Diaspora” (ibid., p. 720). “The Jews therefore said to one another, ‘Where does this man intend to go that we shall not find Him? He is not intending to go to the Dispersion among the Greeks, and teach the Greeks, is He?’” (John 7:35)? “James, a bond-servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes who are dispersed abroad, greetings” (James 1:1). “The believing Jewish remnant is a holy nation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 722). “Formerly, in times past, they were part of the non-remnant being not my people and without mercy. Now they are members of the remnant and so are my people and have obtained mercy” (ibid.). “To summarize, Peter is not drawing a distinction between Israel and the Church or between unbelieving Jews and believing Gentiles. The distinction is between Jews who believe and Jews who do not believe. His point is that while Israel as a whole failed, the believing Remnant of Israel has not failed and so the Remnant of Israel is fulfilling the calling of the nation as a whole. Paul will make the same point in his theology of Israel in Romans 9-11” (ibid.). “Theologians who refuse to see the Jewish nature of the epistle and insist on applying what Peter says in 2:1-10 to the Church as a whole either ignore Peter’s usage of the term Gentile [vs. 12] or insist that he means ‘unbeliever.’ There is simply no exegetical grounds to interpret Gentile to mean ‘unbeliever’ and, in fact, the term is often used in the New Testament of those who are believers” (ibid., p. 996). “In verse 10, this section concludes with a reference to Hosea 1:10-2:1, 23... Formerly, they were part of the non-Remnant; spiritually, in time past, they were no people and had not obtained mercy. Now they are members of the Remnant, the people of God, and now have obtained mercy” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 773). “Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass that, in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God” (Hos. 1:10). “And it shall come to pass in that day, I will answer, saith Jehovah, I will answer the heavens, and they shall answer the earth; and the earth shall answer the grain, and the new wine, and the oil; and they shall answer Jezreel. And I will sow her unto me in the earth; and I will have mercy upon her that had not obtained mercy; and I will say to them that were not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art my God” (Hos. 2:21-23). “The Church of Christ is not composed of nations, but of individuals out of the nations” (Peters, TTK, 1:214) “Berkhof totally fails to prove his contention that the Church in the New Testament is ‘represented as a nation’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 162).

The church is not Mount Zion or Jerusalem. “But the Jerusalem above is free; she is our mother” (Gal. 4:26). “Galatians 4:26 only distinguishes the heavenly Jerusalem from the earthly one but does not identify the heavenly Jerusalem as the Church. (Is not the Church also on earth? Yet Paul only speaks of a Jerusalem that is above.) The symbolic use of Jerusalem in this verse is heaven and not the Church” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 205). “But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to myriads of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first-born who are enrolled in heaven, and to God, the Judge of all, and to the spirits of righteous men made perfect, and to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood, which speaks better than the blood of Abel” (Heb. 12:22-24). “Yes, the writer is using ‘mount Zion’ symbolically here [but Walvoord apparently disagrees: ‘Zion... Its use in the Old Testament as in the New is literal in every instance’ (MK, p. 191)—ed.]; however, he does not equate it with the Church but rather with the ‘heavenly Jerusalem.’ Neither is the heavenly Jerusalem equated with the Church. In listing the residents of this heavenly Jerusalem, the Church is mentioned as one of several and not as the total package” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 34). “He claims that the Church is called Israel; but here Hodge is presupposing his theology, for he has failed to prove this contention. According to Hodge, the ‘church is called Jerusalem, and Zion.’ This, too, is an unproven assumption. The few times that these terms are used symbolically, they refer to the New Jerusalem in heaven and not to the Church. In fact, the Church is listed as only one resident of several in the New Jerusalem (Heb. 12:22-24)” (ibid., p. 99). “Hoekema’s fourth line of evidence is the fact that the terms ‘Zion’ and ‘Jerusalem’ are used in a figurative way. Once again, there is a correct premise followed by a wrong conclusion. The correct premise is that the terms ‘Zion’ and ‘Jerusalem’ are used in a figurative way, but the wrong conclusion is that these terms, therefore, refer to the Church. The ‘Zion’ and ‘Jerusalem’ that the passages speak of have several residents: (1) innumerable angels (who can hardly be part of the redeemed Church since these angels never fell and never needed redemption); (2) the Church of the firstborn; (3) God the judge of all men; (4) spirits of just men made perfect; and, (5) Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant. The point is that these passages in Hebrews and Revelation do not equate this ‘heavenly Jerusalem’ with the Church, but make the Church only one of several residents of this Jerusalem. In fact, while ‘Zion’ and ‘Jerusalem’ are used figuratively many times, they are never used of the Church. It would, therefore, be far wiser to make the ‘heavenly Jerusalem’ of this Hebrews passage just that: heavenly. While Hoekema criticizes the ‘dispensationalist contention that when the Bible talks about Israel it never means the church...,’ he has not proved otherwise” (ibid., p. 189). “Berkhof is correct when he denies that ‘Zion’ always refers to a mountain and ‘Jerusalem’ always refers to the literal city. These terms are used symbolically; but when they are, it is never the Church. When used symbolically it speaks of Israel as a nation or the Jewish people” (ibid., p. 205). “Hebrews 12:22... It identifies the symbolic ‘Mount Zion’ with ‘the heavenly Jerusalem.’ In verse 23, the Church is among the residents of the heavenly Jerusalem along with God the Father, Jesus, and the angels, but it is not the same as ‘Mount Zion’ or the ‘heavenly Jerusalem’” (ibid.). “‘He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12). “Revelation 3:12 promises that those of the Church who overcome will have the name of the new Jerusalem written upon them, but that is far from saying that the Church is the ‘New Jerusalem.’ The absurdity of this interpretation becomes evident if one reads what else is in the same verse. The same verse promises that the overcomer will also have the name of my God written upon him. Does this mean that the Church is God? Berkhof would shrink from such an identification. The verse also states that the overcomers will have mine own new name written upon him. Does this mean that the Church is Jesus? Again, Berkhof would deny any such identification. By the same token, because the overcomer has the new name of Jerusalem written upon him, it cannot mean that the Church is the New Jerusalem” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 205). “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb” (Rev. 21:9). “As for Revelation 21:9, it mentions that John sees the Bride of Christ, but it does not make her the New Jerusalem. What John describes beginning in verse ten is the eternal abode of the Bride or the Church which will be the New Jerusalem. This passage (21:10-22:5) is an expansion of Hebrews 12:22-23 in which the Church is one of several residents of the New Jerusalem” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 205). “Some churches lay special claim to these titles, delighting to designate themselves as ‘Jerusalem’ or ‘Zion,’ esteeming themselves thus particularly favored. This sad, sad perversion of covenant and prediction extensively prevails, and the wildest extravagances of scriptural interpretation springs from it” (Peters, TTK, 3:38). “Abraham, etc., who ‘looked for a city,’ evidently, as a comparison shows, not supported by the conception that mysticism or symbolism suggests” (ibid., p. 47)

The church does not receive the fulfillments of Israel’s promises. “The names Israel, Judah, and Jerusalem are regarded by a host of writers as synonymous with the Church, without any regard to the connection of the prophecy that the same Israel, Judah and Jerusalem acted and overthrown for its sinfulness, is to be restored to favor, and is thus meant. The curses pronounced are all carefully heaped upon them severally and shown in their case to be sadly realized, while the blessings promised to the identically same nation and city are taken from them and carefully bestowed upon the Gentile churches. Is this honest to the Record” (Peters, TTK, 1:615)? “...the curses which logically and grammatically (if language has any meaning) belong to the same people that are restored... the Church—now arrogant—by claiming these Jewish blessings” (ibid., 2:55) “That the Christian now inherits the distinctive Jewish promises is not taught in Scripture. The Christian is of the heavenly seed of Abraham (Gen 15:5, 6; Gal. 3:29), and partakes of the spiritual blessings of the Abrahamic Covenant (Gen. 15:18); but Israel as a nation always has its own place, and is yet to have its greatest exaltation as the earthly people of God” (Chafer, ST, 4:316). “The church is never promised inheritance in a land, material blessings on the earth, or rest from oppression, all of which are parts of the promise to Israel” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 173). “If God says something positive about Israel or the Jews, this is often applied to the Church; but if it is a negative statement, it is too often applied to physical Israel and literal Jews” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 55). “Hendricksen sees nothing unethical or immoral on God’s part if He makes a promise to one people but then keeps it by transferring it to another people” (ibid., p. 184). “If a father makes a promise to one child and then keeps that promise to a different child, the father will never convince the first child, or any other observer, that the action was moral or ethical. The father will not be able to absolve or justify himself until the promise is kept with the first child to whom it was made, regardless of whether he will or will not do the same for the second child. Regardless of how much of the promise is being kept with the Church, God must still fulfill His promise to Israel” (ibid., p. 185). “It is sufficient for now to point out that the Church is merely partaking of the spiritual blessings of the Abrahamic Covenant. This much was already promised to the Gentiles in the Old Testament. This does not mean that the Church ‘is fulfilling Israel’s promises.’ Some promises were to be shared by the Gentiles and the Church is doing so. Other promises, however, promised exclusively to Israel, will be fulfilled to Israel alone” (ibid., p. 359). “In the case of the Church, there was no promise of a land, nor of ‘earthly things beyond his personal need.’ The believer’s hope is ‘the imminent coming of Christ to take away His church from the earth’” [quoting Chafer, Dispensationalism, pp. 57-67] (ibid., p. 439). “It does not mean that Gentile believers become Jews in a mystical way, but rather that they become partakers in the spiritual blessings of the Jewish covenants and receive this privilege by faith. This act does not make them spiritual Jews but spiritual Gentiles. Even by being partakers, they do not share in all the facets of the covenants, but only in the spiritual blessings contained in them. Things such as inheritance of the land and circumcision, among others, are not appropriated by believing Gentiles. These elements are exclusively for the Jew” (ibid., p. 701).

The church is not the wife of Jehovah. In the Bible, Israel is called “the wife of Jehovah.” “For thy Maker is thy husband; Jehovah of hosts is his name: and the Holy One of Israel is thy Redeemer; the God of the whole earth shall he be called. For Jehovah hath called thee as a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit, even a wife of youth, when she is cast off, saith thy God. For a small moment have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I gather thee” (Isa. 54:5-7). “For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee; and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee. I have set watchmen upon thy walls, O Jerusalem; they shall never hold their peace day nor night: ye that are Jehovah’s remembrancers, take ye no rest” (Isa. 62:5-6) “Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her. And I will give her her vineyards from thence, and the valley of Achor for a door of hope; and she shall make answer there, as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be at that day, saith Jehovah, that thou shalt call me Ishi [my husband], and shalt call me no more Baali [my owner]. For I will take away the names of the Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be mentioned by their name. And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the heavens, and with the creeping things of the ground: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the land, and will make them to lie down safely. And I will betroth thee unto me for ever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in justice, and in lovingkindness, and in mercies. I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness; and thou shalt know Jehovah” (Hos. 2:14-20). “...Hosea. To the nation of Israel, cast off because of unfaithfulness, Jehovah speaks in tender love: ‘I will betroth thee unto me for ever; ...and thou shalt know the LORD’ (2:19-20)” (McClain, GK, p. 284). “Israel is pictured as the Wife of Jehovah which may refer to the Triune God as a whole or, more specifically, to God the Father. The Church is pictured as the Bride and Wife of Christ and is only related this way to one person of the Trinity, God the Son. Since Cox is a trinitarian and believes in three distinct persons in the Godhead, then there can be two wives, each married to a different member of the Godhead without there being bigamy” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 215). “The distinction that Dispensationalists make is not between the terms ‘wife’ and ‘Bride,’ but between the concepts of ‘the Wife of Jehovah’ and ‘the Bride of Christ,’ with Israel being the former and the Church the latter” (ibid., p. 296). “The marriage of the church to Christ is still future.

Israel's marriage to Jehovah is history" (ibid.). "This contrast is one virtually all Dispensationalists have recognized: that Israel is the Wife of Jehovah while the Church is the Bride of Christ" (ibid., p. 428) "In the Bible, Israel is represented as the Wife of Jehovah, whereas the Church is represented as the Bride of Christ" (ibid., p. 829). "What Moses did in Deuteronomy was to take all the various facets of the three earlier books and present them in the form of an ancient marriage contract" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 570). "Because of His love for Israel, He entered into a covenant relationship with her. This covenant relationship is the marriage contract of Deuteronomy. But now Israel has an obligation ([Deut. 7] vv. 9-11). God implored Israel to faithfulness, to be a faithful wife to God by being obedient and subject to Him" (ibid., p. 571). "For thou art a holy people unto Jehovah thy God: Jehovah thy God hath chosen thee to be a people for his own possession, above all peoples that are upon the face of the earth... Thou shalt therefore keep the commandment, and the statutes, and the ordinances, which I command thee this day, to do them" (Deut. 7:6-11).

Tracing Israel's marital status throughout history: "...men may argue that God will utterly forget His marriage vows most solemnly given when He took to wife this nation, but, however unfaithful she has been, God, as the prophets testify, is faithful to His own... 'call me Ishi,' i.e. My Husband... God cannot, will not forsake this woman, but intends, such is His purpose, to restore her to favor. A thousand predictions proclaim it" (Peters, TTK, 2:133). "These, then, are the six stages of Israel's relationship as the Wife of Jehovah, a wife whom God married but who committed adultery. Eventually, a separation took place, followed by a divorcement, and today Israel is in her period of punishment. However, there will yet come the time when Israel will be remarried, at her national regeneration, and be reunited to her God with all of her blessings restored" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 585). 1. She was married. "Now when I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, behold, thy time was the time of love; and I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness: yea, I swear unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee, saith the Lord Jehovah, and thou becamest mine" (Ezek. 16:8). "God did not choose Israel as His wife due to her size, because Israel was small. He had only one basic reason and that was His love for Israel. Because of His love for Israel, He entered into a covenant relationship with her. This covenant relationship is the marriage contract of Deuteronomy" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 829). "The words used by Ezekiel are words of the wedding night" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 572) 2. She became an adulteress; her marriage covenant was broken.

“They say, If a man put away his wife, and she go from him, and become another man’s, will he return unto her again? Will not that land be greatly polluted? But thou hast played the harlot with many lovers; yet return again to me, saith Jehovah. Lift up thine eyes unto the bare heights, and see; where hast thou not been lain with? By the ways hast thou sat for them, as an Arabian in the wilderness; and thou hast polluted the land with thy whoredoms and with thy wickedness. Therefore the showers have been withholden, and there hath been no latter rain; yet thou hast a harlot’s forehead, thou refusedst to be ashamed. Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, My Father, thou art the guide of my youth? Will he retain his anger for ever? Will he keep it to the end? Behold, thou hast spoken and hast done evil things, and hast had thy way” (Jer. 3:1-5). “not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 31:32). “But thou didst trust in thy beauty, and playedst the harlot because of thy renown, and pouredst out thy whoredoms on every one that passed by; his it was. And thou didst take of thy garments, and madest for thee high places decked with divers colors, and playedst the harlot upon them: the like things shall not come, neither shall it be so. Thou didst also take thy fair jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee, and madest for thee images of men, and didst play the harlot with them; and thou tookest thy brodered garments, and coveredst them, and didst set mine oil and mine incense before them. My bread also which I gave thee, fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee, thou didst even set it before them for a sweet savor; and thus it was, saith the Lord Jehovah. Moreover thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters, whom thou hast borne unto me, and these hast thou sacrificed unto them to be devoured. Were thy whoredoms a small matter, that thou hast slain my children, and delivered them up, in causing them to pass through the fire unto them? And in all thine abominations and thy whoredoms thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, when thou wast naked and bare, and wast weltering in thy blood. And it is come to pass after all thy wickedness, woe, woe unto thee! saith the Lord Jehovah, that thou hast built unto thee a vaulted place, and hast made thee a lofty place in every street. Thou hast built thy lofty place at the head of every way, and hast made thy beauty an abomination, and hast opened thy feet to every one that passed by, and multiplied thy whoredom. Thou hast also committed fornication with the Egyptians, thy neighbors, great of flesh; and hast multiplied thy whoredom, to provoke me to anger. Behold therefore, I have stretched out my hand over thee, and have diminished thine ordinary food, and delivered thee unto the will of them that hate thee, the daughters of the Philistines, that are ashamed of thy lewd way. Thou hast played the harlot also with the Assyrians, because thou wast insatiable; yea, thou hast played the harlot with them, and yet thou wast not satisfied. Thou hast moreover multiplied thy whoredom unto the land of traffic, unto Chaldea; and yet thou wast not satisfied herewith. How weak is thy heart, saith the Lord Jehovah, seeing thou doest all these things, the work of an impudent harlot; in that thou buildest thy vaulted place at the head of every way, and makest thy lofty place in every street, and hast not been as a harlot, in that thou scornest hire. A wife that committeth adultery! that taketh strangers instead of her husband! They give gifts to all harlots; but thou givest thy gifts to all thy lovers, and bribest them, that they may come unto thee on every side for thy whoredoms. And thou art different from other women in thy whoredoms, in that none followeth thee to play the harlot; and whereas thou givest hire, and no hire is given unto thee, therefore thou art different” (Ezek. 16:15–34). “Adultery meant that the marriage contract was null and void” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 830). “Israel indeed forgot the love of her youth when God first entered into the covenant relationship with her ([Ezek. 16] v. 22)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 574). 3. She was separated. “Thus saith Jehovah, Where is the bill of your mother’s divorcement, wherewith I have put her away? Or which of my creditors is it to whom I have sold you? Behold, for your iniquities were ye sold, and for your transgressions was your mother put away” (Isa. 50:1). “God spoke to Isaiah the prophet stating that He had not yet divorced His wife... In the days of Isaiah, God and Israel were not divorced, but they were separated” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 832). “According to Deuteronomy 24:1, if a husband wished to divorce his wife, he had to write out a decree, or what is better known as a bill of divorcement. After having written it out in long-hand, he would give it to his wife and then the divorce was final” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 576). “In the days of Isaiah, God and Israel were not divorced, but they were separated. This separation was due to Israel’s adultery and lasted approximately one hundred years” (ibid.). 4. She was divorced. “Moreover Jehovah said unto me in the days of Josiah the king, Hast thou seen that which backsliding Israel hath done? She is gone up upon every high mountain and under every green tree, and there hath played the harlot. And I said after she had done all these things, She will return unto me; but she returned not: and her treacherous sister Judah saw it. And I saw, when, for this very cause that backsliding Israel had committed adultery, I had put her away and given her a bill of divorce-

ment, yet treacherous Judah her sister feared not; but she also went and played the harlot. And it came to pass through the lightness of her whoredom, that the land was polluted, and she committed adultery with stones and with stocks. And yet for all this her treacherous sister Judah hath not returned unto me with her whole heart, but feignedly, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 3:6-10). “To a great extent, almost all of Jeremiah can be called God’s bill of divorcement of Israel, but especially the passage now under consideration [3:6-10]” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 832). “The Book of Hosea was God’s bill of divorcement of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, and the Book of Jeremiah is the bill of divorcement of the Southern Kingdom of Judah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 577). 5. She was punished. “Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of Jehovah: Thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Because thy filthiness was poured out, and thy nakedness uncovered through thy whoredoms with thy lovers; and because of all the idols of thy abominations, and for the blood of thy children, that thou didst give unto them; therefore behold, I will gather all thy lovers, with whom thou hast taken pleasure, and all them that thou hast loved, with all them that thou hast hated; I will even gather them against thee on every side, and will uncover thy nakedness unto them, that they may see all thy nakedness. And I will judge thee, as women that break wedlock and shed blood are judged; and I will bring upon thee the blood of wrath and jealousy. I will also give thee into their hand, and they shall throw down thy vaulted place, and break down thy lofty places; and they shall strip thee of thy clothes, and take thy fair jewels; and they shall leave thee naked and bare. They shall also bring up a company against thee, and they shall stone thee with stones, and thrust thee through with their swords. And they shall burn thy houses with fire, and execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women; and I will cause thee to cease from playing the harlot, and thou shalt also give no hire any more. So will I cause my wrath toward thee to rest, and my jealousy shall depart from thee, and I will be quiet, and will be no more angry. Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, but hast raged against me in all these things; therefore, behold, I also will bring thy way upon thy head, saith the Lord Jehovah: and thou shalt not commit this lewdness with all thine abominations” (Ezek. 16:35-43). “Thou hast borne thy lewdness and thine abominations, saith Jehovah. For thus saith the Lord Jehovah: I will also deal with thee as thou hast done, who hast despised the oath in breaking the covenant” (Ezek. 16:58-59). “Therefore, behold, I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and I will build a wall against her, that she shall not find her paths. And she shall follow after her lovers, but she shall not overtake them; and she shall seek them, but shall not find them: then shall she say, I will go and return to my first husband; for then was it better with me than now. For she did not know that I gave her the grain, and the new wine, and the oil, and multiplied unto her silver and gold, which they used for Baal. Therefore will I take back my grain in the time thereof, and my new wine in the season thereof, and will pluck away my wool and my flax which should have covered her nakedness. And now will I uncover her lewdness in the sight of her lovers, and none shall deliver her out of my hand. I will also cause all her mirth to cease, her feasts, her new moons, and her sabbaths, and all her solemn assemblies. And I will lay waste her vines and her fig-trees, whereof she hath said, These are my hire that my lovers have given me; and I will make them a forest, and the beasts of the field shall eat them. And I will visit upon her the days of the Baalim, unto which she burned incense, when she decked herself with her earrings and her jewels, and went after her lovers, and forgot me, saith Jehovah” (Hos. 2:6–13). “All this punishment has a specific aim. The aim of this punishment is not so God can be vengeful and get His revenge upon Israel, but rather to cause her to stop sinning and to stop her adulteries ([Ezek. 16] v. 43)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 578). “God’s providential dealings with Israel ([Hos. 2] v. 6)” (ibid., p. 579) “To this day, Israel is still in the fifth stage of her historical and prophetic relationship with Jehovah, her God. Israel is still in the period of punishment. This is evidenced by the persecutions of the Jews around the world and by the present worldwide dispersion. But there is one stage yet to come” (ibid., p. 580). and 6. She will be remarried. “And Jehovah said unto me, Backsliding Israel hath showed herself more righteous than treacherous Judah. Go, and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith Jehovah; I will not look in anger upon you; for I am merciful, saith Jehovah, I will not keep anger for ever. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against Jehovah thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith Jehovah. Return, O backsliding children, saith Jehovah; for I am a husband unto you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion: and I will give you shepherds according to my heart, who shall feed you with knowledge and understanding. And it shall come to pass, when ye are multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, saith Jehovah, they shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of Jehovah; neither shall it come to mind; neither shall they remember it; neither shall they miss it; neither shall it be made any more. At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of Jehovah; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of Jehovah, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the stubbornness of their evil heart. In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I gave for an inheritance unto your fathers” (Jer. 3:11–18). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah. But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people: and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith Jehovah: for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more” (Jer. 31:31-34). “The Jewish prophets did not leave things hopeless. They spoke of a coming day when Israel will again become the restored Wife of Jehovah. Of course, this will require a new marriage contract, and this marriage contract is found in Jeremiah 31:31-34. What is often known as the New Covenant is in many respects a new marriage contract that God will make with the two Houses of Israel and Judah (v. 31)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 834). “This new covenant of marriage ([Jer. 31] v. 31) will be necessary because the old marriage covenant was broken (v. 32)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 581). “Sing, O barren, thou that didst not bear; break forth into singing, and cry aloud, thou that didst not travail with child: for more are the children of the desolate than the children of the married wife, saith Jehovah. Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thy habitations; spare not: lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes. For thou shalt spread abroad on the right hand and on the left; and thy seed shall possess the nations, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited. Fear not; for thou shalt not be ashamed: neither be thou confounded; for thou shalt not be put to shame: for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth; and the reproach of thy widowhood shalt thou remember no more. For thy Maker is thy husband; Jehovah of hosts is his name: and the Holy One of Israel is thy Redeemer; the God of the whole earth shall he be called. For Jehovah hath called thee as a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit, even a wife of youth, when she is cast off, saith thy God. For a small moment have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I gath- er thee. In overflowing wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment; but with everlasting lovingkindness will I have mercy on thee, saith Jehovah thy Redeemer" (Isa. 54:1-8). "Like a new husband rejoices over his virgin bride, in this same way God will rejoice over His restored wife (v. 5)" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 835). "Thou shalt no more be termed Forsaken; neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate: but thou shalt be called Hephzi-bah, and thy land Beulah; for Jehovah delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married. For as a young man marrieth a virgin, so shall thy sons marry thee; and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, so shall thy God rejoice over thee" (Isa. 62:4-5). "Nevertheless I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish unto thee an everlasting covenant. Then shalt thou remember thy ways, and be ashamed, when thou shalt receive thy sisters, thine elder sisters and thy younger; and I will give them unto thee for daughters, but not by thy covenant. And I will establish my covenant with thee; and thou shalt know that I am Jehovah; that thou mayest remember, and be confounded, and never open thy mouth any more, because of thy shame, when I have forgiven thee all that thou hast done, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 16:60-63). "This everlasting covenant is the same as the New Covenant in Jeremiah 31:31-34" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 582). "Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her. And I will give her her vineyards from thence, and the valley of Achor for a door of hope; and she shall make answer there, as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be at that day, saith Jehovah, that thou shalt call me Ishi, and shalt call me no more Baali. For I will take away the names of the Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be mentioned by their name. And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the heavens, and with the creeping things of the ground: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the land, and will make them to lie down safely. And I will betroth thee unto me for ever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in justice, and in lovingkindness, and in mercies. I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness; and thou shalt know Jehovah. And it shall come to pass in that day, I will answer, saith Jehovah, I will answer the heavens, and they shall answer the earth; and the earth shall answer the grain, and the new wine, and the oil; and they shall answer Jezreel. And I will sow her unto me in the earth; and I will have mercy upon her that had not obtained mercy; and I will say to them that were not my people, Thou art my people; and they shall say, Thou art my God” (Hos. 2:14–23). “Israel will again be allured into the wilderness (in the land of Edom and the city of Bozrah) where God will speak to her heart in courtship” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 584) “The Jewish prophets did not leave things in a state of hopelessness” (ibid., p. 581).

The church, on the other hand, is the bride of Christ. “For the married woman is bound by law to her husband while he is living; but if her husband dies, she is released from the law concerning the husband. So then, if while her husband is living she is joined to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband dies, she is free from the law, so that she is not an adulteress though she is joined to another man. Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die to the Law through the body of Christ, so that you might be joined to another, to Him who was raised from the dead, in order that we might bear fruit for God” (Rom. 7:2-4). “For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, that to Christ I might present you as a pure virgin” (2 Cor. 11:2). “Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself up for her; that He might sanctify her, having cleansed her by the washing of water with the word, that He might present to Himself the church in all her glory, having no spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that she should be holy and blameless” (Eph. 5:25–27). “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints” (Rev. 19:6–8). “There is a totally different picture in the Scriptures regarding the Church... a betrothed bride that is not yet joined to her husband” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 585). “2 Corinthians 11:2... they were espoused to one husband for the purpose of eventually being presented as a pure virgin to the Messiah. The means by which this will be accomplished is the process of sanctification” (ibid., p. 586). “Unlike Israel, who was guilty of adultery, when the union comes between the Messiah and the Church, the Church will be presented as a pure virgin” (ibid.). “Ephesians 5:25–27... When this process is finally complete, the Church will be presented without spot (no visible defilement), without wrinkle (no evidence of age or corruption), and holy, without blemish (no evidence of sin)” (ibid.).

The church and Israel have differing relationships to Christ. “To Israel, Christ is Messiah, Immanuel, and King with all that those appellations imply. To the Church, Christ is Savior, Lord, Bridegroom and Head” [quoting Chafer, ST, 4:50] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 426). “Only when one sees two separate entities, Israel as the Wife of Jehovah and the Church as the Bride of Messiah, do all such contradictions vanish” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 590).

The church and Israel will have differing roles in the Millennial Kingdom. “Not only is there a distinction between Israel and the Church today, that distinction will also be true in the future kingdom. Israel as a nation will be in her Promised Land and ‘in her kingdom glory,’ while the Church will have a world-wide position as she will ‘be coreigning with Christ’” [quoting Chafer, Systematic Theology, 4:33] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 420).

Dr. Fruchtenbaum sums up his Israelology (in contradistinction to his theology of the church): “Dispensationalist writers simply integrate their Israelology into their Ecclesiology and their Eschatology. However, the subject of Israel and the key role it plays in Scripture is worthy of its own distinct place in Systematic Theology” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 559). “...Paul’s Israelology in Romans 9-11” (ibid., p. 711) “Of the twenty-one epistles, five were specifically written to Jewish believers and are, therefore, most relevant to Israelology: Hebrews, James, 1 and II Peter, and Jude” (ibid., p. 765).

Regarding Israel past, “Israel as a nation was the object of a national election which put them in a place of privilege and blessing. This did not guarantee the salvation of every Jew, since salvation is a result of individual election. Those individually elected become believers and make up the Remnant of Israel. While the national election did not guarantee salvation, it did guarantee Israel’s survival as a people” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 560). “Because of this national election, God entered into five covenants with Israel, four of which were unconditional and eternal, while one was conditional and temporary. The first covenant was the Abrahamic Covenant, which contained three key elements: a seed or a nation, a land, and blessings. The nation is the Jewish nation; the land is Canaan, or Palestine, or the Land of Israel; and the blessings were spiritual blessings which were also destined to extend to the Gentiles. The second covenant was the Mosaic Covenant, the only one which was conditional and temporary. It contained the Law of Moses, which was a rule of life for Israel, for the Old Testament saint, but it never was a way or means of salvation. It promised blessings for obedience and curses for disobedience. The third covenant is the Palestinian Covenant which amplified the land aspect of the Abrahamic Covenant, promising a world-wide scattering and dispersion, followed by a world-wide regathering into the land. The fourth covenant is the Davidic Covenant, which amplified the seed aspect of the Abrahamic Covenant. When used as a collective singular, the seed refers to the Jewish nation. When it is used as an absolute singular, it refers to the Messiah. This covenant assures the continuance of the House of David, for the Messiah will come from him. Furthermore, it promised three eternal things: a house, a kingdom, and a throne. The eternity of the house, kingdom, and throne is guaranteed because the seed of David culminates in a descendant Who is Himself eternal. The fifth covenant is the New Covenant, which amplifies the blessing aspect of the Abrahamic Covenant, especially spiritual blessings. This covenant promised a national salvation of Israel. The covenant contained both physical and spiritual promises” (ibid.). “As for the Kingdom of God, Dispensationalists see two major facets of God’s kingdom program. The first facet is the Universal Kingdom or the Eternal Kingdom, which is God’s rule over His creation by means of His sovereignty and providence. As the names imply, it is both universal (over all creation) and eternal (God’s rule has no beginning or end). The second facet is known as the Theocratic Kingdom or Mediatorial Kingdom, which is God’s rule through human mediators. While a form of theocracy existed since Adam, it had a unique display with God’s rule over Israel. The Theocratic Kingdom over Israel began with Moses and continued in its purely mediatorial form from Moses to Joshua, through the Judges, until Samuel. It then took a monarchical form from Saul to Zedekiah. The Theocratic Kingdom ended with the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem. At that time, the Theocratic Kingdom in history ended and the Times of the Gentiles began. As the quality of the Theocratic Kingdom declined, the prophets spoke of a future facet of the kingdom program, the Messianic Kingdom, when God will exercise His rule through the Messiah” (ibid., p. 561).

Regarding Israel present, “When Jesus came, He offered to Israel the very kingdom which the prophets spoke of, the Messianic Kingdom, the earthly kingdom. In fulfillment of prophecy and the plan of God, Israel rejected the Messiah. As a result, the offer of the millennial form of the kingdom was rescinded, destined to be reoffered to a future Jewish generation, while the present generation was placed under a divine judgment that came in A.D. 70. In place of setting up the Messianic Kingdom following His death and resurrection, He instead returned to the Father. In place of the Messianic Kingdom, a different facet of God’s kingdom program was inaugurated, which is the Mystery Kingdom. This is the way God’s rule is manifested between the Jewish rejection of the Messiah and the Jewish acceptance of the Messiah. The Mystery Kingdom is not the Church, though the Church is included in that kingdom. The Mystery Kingdom is basically defined as ‘Christendom’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 561). “Christ also announced the formation of a new entity, distinct from Israel, through which the message of salvation is to go forth: the Church. The Church began in Acts two when the Holy Spirit began the work of Spirit baptism, and it is composed of all believers, Jews and Gentiles, from Acts two until the Rapture of the Church. The Church is not the new Israel or the spiritual Israel, but the one new man. She has not taken over Israel’s covenants, blessings or promises, nor are God’s promises to Israel being fulfilled in or through the Church. However, the Church is a partaker of Jewish spiritual blessings. The Jewish covenants contained both physical and spiritual promises. The physical promises were limited to the Jews, but the spiritual promises were to extend to the Gentiles. When the Church became a partaker, this was fulfilled and is still being fulfilled, but this does not make the Church Israel or the Kingdom of God” (ibid.). “As for Romans 9-11, the two Israels are not physical Israel and the Church, but physical Israel and spiritual Israel. Both Israels are composed of Jews only. Physical Israel includes all Jews, but spiritual Israel is only those Jews who believe. This is the same as the Israel of God of Galatians 6:16 and the Remnant of Israel. While the majority of the Jews have not believed, this does not mean that God has cast away His people. The truth is, the majority have always disbelieved while a minority, the remnant, believed. Today, also, there is a remnant according to the election of grace. Some believe that this remnant ceases to be part of the Commonwealth of Israel and becomes a member of the Church only, while others see Jewish believers to be in both groups. As for the Olive Tree, this is not the Church or Israel, but it is the place of blessing, rooted in the patriarchs and the Jewish covenants. The natural branches are Jews, and the wild olive branches are the Gentiles. Both groups have believers in the place of blessing. Today, Israel suffers under a judicial blindness, but this blindness is partial so that there is still a remnant. It is temporary until the fullness of the Gentiles comes in. Today, God is taking out from among the Gentiles a people for His name” (ibid., p. 562).

Regarding Israel future, “The fullness of the Gentiles comes when the set number of Gentiles God has ordained for the Church is complete, and then she is raptured. Because of the distinction that is maintained between Israel and the Church, Dispensationalists are pretribulationists” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 562). “Israel will undergo the seven years of Tribulation and is to be identified with the Woman of Revelation 12. Israel will suffer persecution during this period, and many will die; but one-third of the nation will survive. The 144,000 are a special class within Israel who will be used to proclaim the gospel world-wide, resulting in the salvation of myriads of Gentiles” (ibid.). “At some point in relationship to the second coming, Israel will experience a national salvation; for the blindness will be removed, and all Israel will be saved. Israel will also experience a national regathering and restoration back into the land and will have a prominent place above the Gentile nations in the Messianic Kingdom. Some, but not all, believe that Israel will undergo a special judgment in conjunction with the second coming to determine who will or who will not enter this kingdom. Others feel the tribulation itself is the judgment upon Israel and so a separate judgment is not necessary” (ibid.). “In the Messianic Kingdom, which is to last a literal one thousand years, Israel will enjoy, receive, and fulfill all the promises and blessings of the four unconditional covenants. The saved nation will have her own distinct identity and will not be amalgamated into the Church. As for the Church, she will have a separate role in the kingdom as co-reigners with Christ” (ibid., p. 563).

Regarding heavenly vs. earthly hopes, “Chafer’s [Systematic Theology, 1:xiv-xv] distinctions are several, many of which are still accepted by most Dispensationalists today, but not all. For example, Chafer makes a sharp distinction between ‘earthly’ and ‘heavenly,’ with Israel’s program being ‘earthly’ and the Church’s being ‘heavenly.’ This need not be true, nor is it germane to Dispensationalism. Certainly in the Eternal State Israel will have a ‘heavenly’ future, while in the Millennium the Church will have an ‘earthly’ future. It would be better to view the roles of Israel and the Church as being different while sharing both an earthly and heavenly future. What is germane to Dispensationalism is that in this age, humanity is divided into three divisions: Jews, Gentiles and the Church” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 420). “Not all Dispensationalists will agree with Chafer here. While it may be true that the primary divine purpose for Israel is earthly, it is not exclusively so, for Israel is also destined to be in the heavenly Jerusalem in the Eternal State. It may also be true that the primary divine purpose for the Church is heavenly, but it is not exclusively so since the Church is to have a major role on earth during the Millennium” (ibid., p. 422). “Both Israel and the Church will live eternally in the New Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 429). (See our discussion of the ongoing Jew/Gentile distinction in the Eternal Order in our chapter The Eternal Order.)

The Church is Not the Kingdom

The Church is not the Kingdom. See our discussion of the fact that the Kingdom is not the church in our chapter Postponement of the Kingdom.

What the Church Is

So then, if the church is not Israel and the church is not the Kingdom, then what is she? “Next to the field of eschatology itself, ecclesiology offers the greatest contrast between the amillennial and premillennial views” (Walvoord, MK, p. 80).

The church is an entirely new entity. “The church simply didn’t exist in the Old Testament” (Geisler, ST, 4:22). “...the parables of Matthew 13... Christ... He announced the introduction of a new form of the kingdom, one that would span the period from Israel’s rejection of Christ until Israel’s future reception of Christ at the Second Advent. This present age...” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 225) “And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it” (Matt. 16:18). “[Matt. 16:18]... the church... He did not say that He had been building it, but that He was yet to do so” (Feinberg, M, p. 139). “This revelation of the new form through which the theocracy would be administered in this present age was followed by a specific prophecy: ‘I will build My church’ ([Matt.] 16:18). The nature and function of the church is not explained here, but will be revealed in its historical development in the Book of Acts, with its doctrines explained in the Epistles” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 226). “The Church is first mentioned in Matthew 16:18” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 40). “for John baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now” (Acts 1:5). “And when the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. And suddenly there came from heaven a noise like a violent, rushing wind, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting. And there appeared to them tongues as of fire distributing themselves, and they rested on each one of them” (Acts 2:1–3). “...the church did not begin before the baptism of the Spirit occurred (Pentecost—Acts 1:5; 2:1-3)” (Geisler, ST, 4:23). “This is a new entity in two ways. First, it did not exist before Pentecost and, second, it was not something prophetically revealed in the Old Testament” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 432). “Be on guard for yourselves and for all the flock, among which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God which He purchased with His own blood” (Acts 20:28). “‘the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood’ (Acts 20:28)... Paul therefore was declaring that Jesus acquired or obtained the church through his death, implying that Jesus did not have the church before He shed His blood” (Showers, M, p. 236). “Therefore remember, that formerly you, the Gentiles in the flesh, who are called ‘Uncircumcision’ by the so-called ‘Circumcision,’ which is performed in the flesh by human hands — remember that you were at that time separate from Christ, excluded from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world. But now in Christ Jesus you who formerly were far off have been brought near by the blood of Christ. For He Himself is our peace, who made both groups into one, and broke down the barrier of the dividing wall, by abolishing in His flesh the enmity, which is the Law of commandments contained in ordinances, that in Himself He might make the two into one new man, thus establishing peace, and might reconcile them both in one body to God through the cross, by it having put to death the enmity. AND HE CAME AND PREACHED PEACE TO YOU WHO WERE FAR AWAY, AND PEACE TO THOSE WHO WERE NEAR; for through Him we both have our access in one Spirit to the Father. So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are fellow citizens with the saints, and are of God's household, having been built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus Himself being the corner stone, in whom the whole building, being fitted together is growing into a holy temple in the Lord; in whom you also are being built together into a dwelling of God in the Spirit" (Eph. 2:11-22). "The church could not exist until after the death of Christ... Ephesians 2:13-16... Gentiles, who used to be far off, now had been brought near 'by the blood of Christ' (v. 13)" (Showers, M, p. 235). "Since a building cannot be built without a foundation, and since the church's foundation consists of the apostles and New Testament prophets, the church could not have been built before the time of the apostles and New Testament prophets" (Showers, M, p. 237). "The Church is called the one new man in Ephesians 2:15... Paul mentioned three groups in this context (2:11-3:6): Israel, the Gentiles, and the one new man" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 683). "The same three groups are distinguished from each other in I Corinthians 10:32... This is a contrast made well after the Church has been established" (ibid.). "Give no offense either to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God" (1 Cor. 10:32) "Therefore it says, 'When He ascended on high, He led captive a host of captives, And He gave gifts to men.' (Now this expression, 'He ascended,' what does it mean except that He also had descended into the lower parts of the earth? He who descended is Himself also He who ascended far above all the heavens, that He might fill all things.) And He gave some as apostles, and some as prophets, and some as evangelists, and some as pastors and teachers, for the equipping of the saints for the work of service, to the building up of the body of Christ" (Eph. 4:8-12) "The church could not exist until after Christ's ascension" (Showers, M, p. 238). "In Ephesians 4:8, 11-12, Paul indicated that in conjunction with His ascension to heaven, Christ gave spiritual gifts to people so that the body of Christ, the church, could be built" (ibid., p. 239).

The church can be defined as an assembly of persons, the "body of Christ," the members of which have each been joined to Christ through Spirit baptism. "For by one Spirit we were all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, and we were all made to drink of one Spirit" (1 Cor. 12:13). "He is also head of the body, the church; and He is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; so that He Himself might come to have first place in everything" (Col. 1:18). "The Christian Church is an association of believers in Christ, who, led by the same consciousness of God, truth and spirit, accept of the terms of salvation, repentance and faith, and continue in the use of the means of grace appointed by the Redeemer. It is an association exclusively for religious purposes, separate and distinct from civil or secular interests. It is different from the Kingdom once established in that State and religion are separated, hence involving no civil or State relationship, for members of all nations and States, without absolving their allegiance due as citizens to their respective civil powers, can become members of this exclusive religious organization. It is different from the Jewish [remnant], before and after the Theocratic rule, in that it embraces new ordinances, discarding the Mosaic, and is open to both Jew and Gentile by an expression and experience of faith in Jesus Christ. It was formed solely on account of the rejection of the Kingdom by the Jews, in order that through it a body of believers might be raised, through whom finally, when all gathered, the Kingdom might be reorganized in the most effective and triumphant manner. Originated for this special purpose it was designed, as its commencement proves, to be separate and distinct not only from the Jewish State but all other States. Union with secular powers was not contemplated, because it was not in accordance with the design of its establishment, viz.: to call and gather out of the nations and kingdoms a believing people. If the object had been to organize a Kingdom, we then undoubtedly would have had a specific form of government given to us, and direct declarations concerning the union of State and Church, and the exercise of civil and political power. The absence of such directions abundantly confirms our argument. It is necessarily outward so far as the persons, ordinances, assemblies, expansion, form of worship, etc., is concerned; and inward, so far as individual experience, adoption, union with Christ, etc., relates. It is a community of saints, who, while occupying various positions in life, are not deprived by it of civil, social, or family relations, but rather by the formation of such a community find their conduct in all these relations regulated and controlled. Having no ecclesiastical constitution for government (such as were afterward produced by human invention), given by divine authority, it rests in a few indispensable commands respecting its organization and perpetuity, acknowledging in these the Sovereignty of God and the Headship of Christ, and constantly realizing by obedience to the religious and moral precepts, of which it is the guardian, that it is under Divine guidance, and in reality the product of Divine power and grace” (Peters, TTK, 1:609). “This interpretation of the Church... is substantially that adopted by many of our opponents, who, however, are forced by their theories to add to it the notion of an existing predicted Kingdom” (ibid., p. 610). “The unsaved members of Israel were as much the Mosaic Covenant people of God as were the saved members... By contrast, the church (not organized Christendom, but the true body of Christ formed by Spirit baptism) consists only of saved or regenerated members” (Showers, M, p. 231). “The Church is composed of all true believers from Pentecost in Acts two until the Rapture of the Church. The Rapture excludes the Old Testament saints. It also excludes the Tribulation saints. The only saints who will be raptured are the Church saints. The Rapture passages clearly state that only those who are in Christ will partake of the Rapture. Throughout his writings, Paul uses terms such as in Christ, in Jesus, in Jesus Christ, in Christ Jesus, in Him, in Whom, in the Lord, in a very technical way, referring to those who were baptized by the Spirit into the Body of the Messiah, which only began in Acts two” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 142). “The Church... The primary use of the word is ‘of the born-again ones of all generations since Pentecost’” [quoting Chafer, The Kingdom in History and Prophecy, pp. 15-16] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 442). “The New Testament Greek word for ‘church,’ ekklesia, from which we get the word ecclesiastical, means ‘an assembly of persons’” (Geisler, ST, 4:43). “Not only are all saved persons in the universal church, but only saved people are in it. Unlike the local church which, unfortunately, contains both wheat and tares (Matt. 13:24-30), the universal church has a totally and completely regenerate membership, made up only of sheep. The local church has ‘wolves’ (Acts 20:28-29), ‘false brethren’ (Gal. 2:4 NKJV), ‘unbelievers’ (1 Cor. 14:23), and ‘certain men [who] crept in from the outside’ (Jude 4 NKJV)” (ibid., p. 55). “Other than the early post-Pentecost church in Jerusalem, there never has been and never will be a truly catholic (universal) church on earth. Neither the Roman nor the Greek branch of Christendom is truly catholic; the only truly catholic church today is the spiritual body of Christ, which is all true believers in whatever local church or denomination. Never does the bible use the word church to denote one visible ecclesiastical union that is the sole organization representing Christ on earth; the repeated use of the word churches reveals that only in a general, collective sense can we speak of the many self-governing, independent churches that are based on New Testament teaching as the ‘church’ on earth. Only the invisible church is truly universal” (ibid.). “The Reformers placed even more emphasis on the universal church’s invisible nature, in opposition to the Catholic stress on one visible organization” (ibid., p. 61). “...the invisible church is Christ’s spiritual body, which is His exclusive work, while the local visible church(es) are a work of Christ’s disciples on earth” (ibid., p. 65). “There is no one visible church: There are many visible churches—with one invisible Head, Christ—that are to be based on the teachings of His infallible Word (the Bible). These doctrines are best expressed in the helpful but not infallible ecumenical confessions, creeds, and councils of the churches in the first five hundred years after the earthly life of Jesus. Accordingly, the root basis for historic orthodoxy is found in one Bible, two testaments (Old and New), three creeds (Apostles” [c. 150], Nicene [325], Athanasian [428]), four councils (Nicea [325], First Constantinople [381], Ephesus [431], Chalcedon [451]), and five centuries. After this there was increasingly no catholicity, little unity, and progressive unorthodoxy, which culminated in the Roman Catholic Council of Trent’s (1545-1563) ‘infallible’ decisions, including the rejection of crucial Protestant teachings, such as salvation being (1) by faith alone; (2) based on the Bible alone; (3) accomplished by the work of Christ alone; and (4) for the glory of God alone (1 Cor. 10:31)” (ibid., p. 101). “Whether, then, you eat or drink or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God” (1 Cor. 10:31).

The church is a spiritual seed of Abraham. “and do not suppose that you can say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham for our father’; for I say to you, that God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham” (Matt. 3:9). “For this reason it is by faith, that it might be in accordance with grace, in order that the promise may be certain to all the descendants, not only to those who are of the Law, but also to those who are of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all” (Rom. 4:16) “Even so Abraham BELIEVED GOD, AND IT WAS RECKONED TO HIM AS RIGHTEOUSNESS. Therefore, be sure that it is those who are of faith who are sons of Abraham. And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, preached the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, ‘ALL THE NATIONS SHALL BE BLESSED IN YOU.’ So then those who are of faith are blessed with Abraham, the believer” (Gal. 3:6–9). “in order that in Christ Jesus the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles, so that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

Brethren, I speak in terms of human relations: even though it is only a man's covenant, yet when it has been ratified, no one sets it aside or adds conditions to it. Now the promises were spoken to Abraham and to his seed. He does not say, 'And to seeds,' as referring to many, but rather to one, 'And to your seed,' that is, Christ. What I am saying is this: the Law, which came four hundred and thirty years later, does not invalidate a covenant previously ratified by God, so as to nullify the promise. For if the inheritance is based on law, it is no longer based on a promise; but God has granted it to Abraham by means of a promise" (Gal. 3:14-18). "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free man, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus. And if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham's offspring [seed], heirs according to promise" (Gal. 3:28-29). "in order that He might redeem those who were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption as sons" (Gal. 4:5). "Abraham's seed, however produced, natural or engrafted, receive the Kingdom" (Peters, TTK, 1:230). "...adopted as the seed of Abraham. Precisely here was the mystery, which baffled even the apostles until specially enlightened" (ibid., p. 233). "The Kingdom of God is expressly covenanted to the seed of Abraham (but to the faithful, obedient seed); now how can the covenanted promises respecting the Kingdom in this line be carried out into realization when the nation embracing that seed is rejected? Is this rejection final and perpetual, or is it removable and temporary? Can the nation or people who are to specially receive what the Jewish nation then lost by its non-repentance, obtain it without any reference to the Abrahamic and Davidic covenants, i.e. without, in some way, becoming, by adoption, or engrafting, or incorporation, the seed of Abraham? Remember that God confirmed his promises by oath, and that He is faithful—not given to variableness or change—and, therefore, unless these questions can be satisfactorily and consistently answered, so that the promise still runs in the covenanted Abrahamic line, there would be a sad and unwarranted deficiency somewhere" (ibid., p. 387). "They cannot be gathered out or selected, as multitudes now vainly imagine and foolishly boast, without any regard whatever to the old covenanted line. They must be, if God is sincere and mindful of His oath, adopted as Abraham's seed" (ibid.). "God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham.'... God would perform so miraculous a creative act rather than leave His covenant promises unfulfilled" (ibid.). "Hence the apostle in Gal. 3 tells us (v. 7) 'Know ye therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.' But why become the children of Abraham? Because, as he shows, verses 14-18, the promises and inheritance are given through him, and we must be related to Abraham in order to receive and inherit the same. Therefore he goes on and insists that this very essential relationship is established in and through Jesus Christ, and adds: ‘for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ’s, then are ye Abraham’s seed, and heirs according to promise.’ Thus then (ch. 4:5) receiving ‘the adoption of sons,’ because united and identified with Christ, who is the chief inheritor under the Abrahamic covenant, we become co-heirs with Him. This marvelously simple arrangement, introducing mercy and grace to us Gentiles, preserves the covenanted promises intact and confirms them” (ibid., p. 396). “...necessity for our becoming the seed of Abraham in order to inherit” (ibid., p. 397). “We cannot too strongly insist upon this necessary engrafting of Gentile believers, so that by virtue of a real relationship, they, being regarded by God Himself as of the seed of Abraham, may inherit” (ibid.). “In treatises on Justification by Faith (by which we become engrafted) we find, from beginning to end, no allusion whatever to the Patriarchs and the covenants, just as if the present dispensation was separate, unconnected, and independent of all others. This is a serious, fundamental blunder, violating unity, and making the election and covenants of little value” (ibid.). “These chosen ones, becoming such through adoption, ‘shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob (to whom the covenant was given) in the Kingdom of heaven,’ etc.” (ibid., p. 402). “The establishment of the Ch. Church is explained in the New Test, to be a positive necessity in order, while the elect Jewish nation is for a determined time held in abeyance, that a seed may be gathered out to Abraham, and an unbroken line of election be continued” (ibid., 3:526). “Two distinct lines of seed were promised to Abraham. One, an earthly seed, to be like the dust of the earth, without number (Gen. 13:16), centered wholly in the earth by a relationship of physical generation: the other seed were likened to the stars of heaven, without number (Gen. 15:5), centered wholly in the heavenlies by a relationship of Spirit regeneration, which is the present answer of God to all true Abrahamic faith (Rom. 4:1-5)” (Chafer, S, C2:16/37). “And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth. So that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then may thy seed also be numbered” (Gen. 13:16). “And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and number the stars, if thou be able to number them. And he said unto him, So shall thy seed be” (Gen. 15:5). “What then shall we say that Abraham, our forefather according to the flesh, has found? For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about; but not before God. For what does the Scripture say? AND ABRAHAM BELIEVED GOD, AND IT WAS RECKONED TO HIM

AS RIGHTEOUSNESS. Now to the one who works, his wage is not reckoned as a favor, but as what is due. But to the one who does not work, but believes in Him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is reckoned as righteousness” (Rom. 4:1–5) “There are, then, three different senses in which one can be a child of Abraham. First, there is the natural lineage, or natural seed. This is limited largely to the descendants of Jacob in the twelve tribes. To them God promises to be their God. To them was given the law. To them was given the land of Israel in the Old Testament. With them God dealt in a special way. Second, there are the Israelites who believed in God, who kept the law, and who met the conditions of present enjoyment of the blessings of the covenant. Those who ultimately possess the land in the future millennium will also be of spiritual Israel. Third, there is the spiritual seed of Abraham who are not natural Israelites. Here is where the promise to “all the families of the earth” comes in. This is the express application of this phrase in Galatians 3:6-9... in other words, the children of Abraham (spiritually) who come from the heathen or Gentiles fulfill that aspect of the Abrahamic Covenant which dealt with Gentiles in the first place, not the promises pertaining to Israel. The only sense in which Gentiles can be Abraham’s seed in the Galatians context is to be “in Christ Jesus” (Gal. 3:28). It follows: “And if ye be Christ’s, then are ye Abraham’s seed, and heirs according to the promise” (Gal. 3:29). They are Abraham’s seed in the spiritual sense only and heirs of the promise given “to all the families of the earth”” [quoting John F. Walvoord, Millennial Series, Bibliotheca Sacra, 108:420] (Pentecost, TTC, p. 87) “Gentiles, by faith in Christ and by virtue of their relationship to Christ, who is a descendant of Abraham, are called the seed of Abraham (Gal. 3:29)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 290). “The saved in every age, in a sense, are Abraham’s seed (Gal. 3:29)” (McClain, GK, p. 508). “All believers are the spiritual seed of Abraham, but that does not make them all ‘spiritual Jews’ or ‘spiritual Israel,’ any more than all physical members of the physical seed of Abraham are physical Jews or physical Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 100). “When the New Testament speaks of the relationship of the Gentiles to the spiritual blessing of the Jewish covenants, it speaks in terms of the Gentiles being ‘grafted’ into a Jewish olive tree, and of becoming ‘partakers’ with the Jews of these Jewish spiritual blessings, but not taker-overs of these blessings” (ibid., p. 177). “In fact, the New Testament never equates the spiritual seed of Abraham with either Israel or ‘spiritual Israel’” (ibid., p. 188). “What he [Hoekema] has proved is that all believers are of the spiritual seed of Abraham. Dispensationalists believe the same thing. What he has not proved is that the seed of Abraham equals Israel or spiritual Israel” (ibid.). “While all believers are said to be of the seed of Abraham, they are never said to be of the seed of Jacob” (ibid., p. 295). “What the Church is now enjoying are the spiritual blessings of the Abrahamic and New Covenants” (ibid., p. 355). “Ryrie [in Dispensationalism Today, pp. 148-150] responds by showing that ‘the Church is a seed of Abraham, but this does not mean that the Church is Israel.’ The reason is ‘that the Scriptures speak of more than one kind of seed born to Abraham,’ and he lists three such seeds: ‘the natural seed, the physical descendants of Abraham,’ by which Ryrie means the Jews, but he could also have included the Arabs; the Messiah, who is the unique individual Seed of Abraham; and, ‘Christians are Abraham’s seed,’ meaning, the Church” (ibid., p. 456). “Ryrie [in Dispensationalism Today, pp. 148-150] further points out that ‘it is correct to call some of the spiritual seed of Abraham spiritual Israel, but not all,’ by which he means that only Jewish believers could legitimately be called spiritual Israel” (ibid.). “Scripturally, ‘the spiritual seed of Abraham does not mean Israel for Abraham is related to Israel as a national father, and he is related to believing individuals of all nations (including the Jewish) who believe, as a spiritual father.’ The obvious fact is that ‘believers as a group are not called spiritual Israel” [quoting Ryrie, Dispensationalism Today, pp. 148-150] (ibid.). “What is true of the physical is also true of the spiritual realm: being children of Abraham by faith is not enough to make one a Jew” (ibid., p. 701). “Being a child of Abraham alone is not enough to make one a Jew... one must be a child of Jacob to be a Jew” (ibid.). “It should be noted that the term seed of Abraham is used in four different senses in the Scriptures. First, it refers to the physical seed of Abraham. This is the natural seed who are physical descendants of Abraham. While primarily it would be a reference to Jews, it would also include the Arabs. The point is that not all physical descendants of Abraham are Jews. In fact, most of them are Arabs. In the Old Testament, however, the term always refers to the physical descendants of Abraham who are Jews. However, the seed of Abraham is not equal to Israel; the seed of Abraham by itself does not mean that the seed is Israel. Second, it refers to the Messiah who is the unique individual Seed of Abraham (Heb. 2:16-17). Third, the believers today, the Church is the spiritual seed of Abraham (Gal. 3:29). This seed includes the Jews who are physical descendants of Abraham and Gentiles who are not physical descendants of Abraham who have Abraham’s faith. The question is: is the spiritual seed of Abraham ever called Israel? The answer is: No! The spiritual seed are partakers of Jewish spiritual blessings, but are never said to become partakers of the physical, material, or national promises. Fourth, the term seed of Abraham is sometimes synonymous with the Remnant of Israel and is a reference to Jewish believers (Isa. 41:8;

Rom. 9:6; Heb. 2:16). Only some of the spiritual seed then are truly Israel: the Jewish believers who are also part of ethnic Israel and the Israel of God. But the spiritual seed of Abraham as a unit is never referred to as Israel” (ibid., p. 702). “But thou, [ethnic] Israel, my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend” (Isa. 41:8) “But it is not as though the word of God has failed. For they are not all [spiritual] Israel who are descended from [ethnic] Israel” (Rom. 9:6) “And if you belong to Christ, then you [the church] are Abraham’s offspring, heirs according to promise” (Gal. 3:29). “For assuredly He does not give help to angels, but He gives help to the descendant of Abraham [Jesus]. Therefore, He had to be made like His brethren in all things, that He might become a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the people” (Heb. 2:16–17). “What Covenant Theologians need to prove their case once and for all is a statement that all believers are of ‘the seed of Jacob’; this would go a long way to prove that the Church is spiritual Israel or that Gentile Christians are spiritual Jews. This is exactly what they do not have” (ibid.). “...we, the church, are Abraham’s spiritual seed” (Geisler, ST, 4:19). “That Abraham has two ‘seeds,’ one physical and one spiritual, does not mean the latter replaces the former; the spiritual seed is parallel, not a replacement. There is a future for Abraham’s physical descendants; indeed, as will be shown, all outstanding land- and kingdom-promises to Israel will be fulfilled at the Second Coming” (ibid., p. 443). “Paul makes it clear that Abraham has both physical and spiritual descendants (Rom. 4:16)” (ibid., p. 447) “Abraham has two ‘seeds,’ physical and spiritual; the spiritual seed is a parallel (not a replacement) seed” (ibid., p. 540). “Abraham having two sets of offspring does not mean one replaces the other; once again, the spiritual seed is a parallel seed, not a replacement seed” (ibid., p. 581).

She is the bride of Christ. “For the married woman is bound by law to her husband while he is living; but if her husband dies, she is released from the law concerning the husband. So then, if while her husband is living she is joined to another man, she shall be called an adulteress; but if her husband dies, she is free from the law, so that she is not an adulteress though she is joined to another man. Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die to the Law through the body of Christ, so that you might be joined to another, to Him who was raised from the dead, in order that we might bear fruit for God” (Rom. 7:2-4). “Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ also loved the church and gave Himself up for her, so that He might sanctify her, having cleansed her by the washing of water with the word, that He might present to Himself the church in all her glory, having no spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that she would be holy and blameless. So husbands ought also to love their own wives as their own bodies. He who loves his own wife loves himself; for no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, just as Christ also does the church, because we are members of His body. For this reason A man shall leave his father and mother and shall be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh. This mystery is great; but I am speaking with reference to Christ and the church” (Eph. 5:25-32). “For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, that to Christ I might present you as a pure virgin” (2 Cor. 11:2). “Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready” (Rev. 19:7). “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb’” (Rev. 21:9). (See our discussion of the fact that one of the current purposes of this Church Age is to espouse a bride to Christ in our section The Current Purpose of the Church Age below, our discussion of the fact that one of the ultimate purposes of the church is to be Christ’s wife in our section The Ultimate (Future) Purpose of the Church below, and our discussion of the bridegroom’s fetching of the bride in our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

She is an organism, not an organization. Some groups, including the Roman Catholic Church and the Jehovah’s Witnesses, claim to be the one and only visible, catholic/universal church (or organization), but these groups are in error. The church is not a visible organization, but rather an invisible organism. “Therefore, laying aside falsehood, SPEAK TRUTH, EACH ONE of you, WITH HIS NEIGHBOR, for we are members of one another” (Eph. 4:25). “For just as we have many members in one body and all the members do not have the same function, so we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually members one of another” (Rom. 12:4–5). “For even as the body is one and yet has many members, and all the members of the body, though they are many, are one body, so also is Christ. For by one Spirit we were all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, and we were all made to drink of one Spirit” (1 Cor. 12:12–13). “But now there are many members, but one body” (1 Cor. 12:20). “There is one body and one Spirit, just as also you were called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all who is over all and through all and in all” (Eph. 4:4-5). “And let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to which indeed you were called in one body; and be thankful” (Col. 3:15). “The fact that the Church is a ‘Body’ made up of ‘living members’ shows that it is not an ‘Organization,’ but an ‘ORGANISM.’ An ‘Organization’ is made up of distinct units like the doors, windows, roof, floors, etc., of a building, that may be removed and replaced by new parts without destroying the integrity of the building; but a human body is an organism. You cannot remove an eye, or ear, or arm, or foot, or even a finger nail or tooth, without destroying the integrity of the body and causing a mutilation. So we see from this for Christ to lose One Member of His Body (the Church) is to MUTILATE it” (Larkin, DT, p. 75). “The ‘Kingdom’ is an outward, visible and earthly ‘POLITICAL ORGANIZATION,’ and is to be ‘set up’ on the earth (Dan. 2:44); while the ‘Church’ is an invisible and heavenly ‘SPIRITUAL ORGANISM’ that is to be ‘caught out’” (ibid., p. 87). “In contrast to Israel, which nation was an organization or commonwealth (Eph 2:12), and in contrast to the visible church, which is merely a human systemization, the true Church is an organism. The term organism indicates that the thing specified is permeated throughout all its parts with one common life” (Chafer, ST, 4:68). “The Church, like the human body, is self-developing” (ibid., p. 70). “There is, however, no record of an enrollment of church members, nor is there any example in the New Testament of a person joining a church” (ibid., p. 145). “Organization is wisdom’s first step for a people associated together in a common cause; but organization is for a purpose and therefore is not the purpose itself” (ibid., p. 150). “In no passage is there an intimation that these churches were federated or under the authority of a super-government. On the other hand, nothing is said against the federation of churches provided it does not hinder the direct and immediate leadership of the Holy Spirit in the local church. That divine leadership is a priceless reality, if the church is willing to avail itself of it; yet unspiritual authorities too often dominate the church to the exclusion of all experience in the matter of the Spirit’s guidance. As details in the believer’s life under grace are left for the leading of the Spirit (Gal 5:18 [‘But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the Law.’]), in like manner details in church life are accorded the same gracious latitude” (ibid., p. 152). “Israel is always regarded as a nation, a theocracy, and a people among whom God dwells, while the church is regarded as a living organism in whom Christ dwells, united by vital life and growing by inner spiritual supply” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 33). “Premillennial treatments of ecclesiology tend to enlarge the concept of the church as the body of Christ—an organism rather than an organization—and give extended treatment to the spiritual life of the believer” (Walvoord, MK, p. 81). “While it has a visible manifestation in the local church, the universal church as such is not a visible organization (like the Roman Catholic Church); rather, it is an invisible organism, a living body that grows daily” (Geisler, ST, 4:51). “The Holy Spirit, who indwells the church, is an all-sufficient guide. Because of the omnipotent Spirit, the church has no need for a visible head or a super-organization imposing its will on the local congregations. Seven times in Revelation 2-3 we read: ‘He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches’ (2:7, 11, 17, 29; 3:6, 13, 22 NIV). The Spirit of God speaking through the Word of God is sufficient to guide the church of God” (ibid., p. 125). “The universal church is an organism; a local church is an organization” (ibid., p. 126). “There are no denominations in heaven” (ibid.) “God foreknew what human history has revealed to us about the correlation of power to corruption, and He apparently deemed that His visible church would be best off with authority distributed throughout many churches rather than localized in one top-heavy organization. For example, poisoning one well doesn’t affect other disconnected wells, but poisoning a city’s central water supply will affect everything and everyone tapped into it. Similarly, one individual congregation diseased by false teaching doesn’t directly pollute others the way that false teaching in a hierarchical organization, coming from the top down, will pervade all the churches under its domain. Human depravity calls for the existence of independent, self-governing churches. God’s wisdom as to our depravity is also manifest inside the local church; congregational government contains a check-and-balance structure not found in elder-rule or bishop-rule models. In the multitude of counsel there is wisdom: The majority of the congregation is less likely to deviate from the truth than one or a few leaders” (ibid., p. 127). “Christ has no vicar over earth; He Himself heads His church universal” (ibid., p. 133). “In the New Testament the visible church had no hierarchy; each church was independent and congregational in form” (ibid., p. 138). “As time has passed, the church presided over by the bishop of Rome (as Peter’s successor) has assumed authority to coerce people to accept its truth” (ibid., p. 139). “Where, then, is the true visible church? Organizationally, there is none, and in fact, there never was one except for a short time in Jerusalem after Pentecost. Rather, as shown earlier, from the earliest times there was not one church but many independent, autonomous New Testament churches (Acts 14:23), each built on the authority of apostolic teaching (Eph. 2:20; Acts 2:42) as inscripturated in the New Testament. Other than the one invisible universal church known as the ‘body of Christ,’ the only real sense in which there ever was one universal visible church on earth was the first one in Jerusalem before anyone died. The apostles themselves started many churches that were not unified under one organizational structure. The only other way it is proper to speak of a universal visible church is as a generic generalization of the many individual self-governing churches that follow apostolic doctrine and practice. The true visible church of Christ on earth is not in any single denomination or organization of churches, but in the collective body of believers who confess the basic saving truths of the Christian faith. This spiritual brotherhood is composed of all true believers, whether Roman Catholic or Eastern Orthodox, whether Protestant or Anabaptist; in Christ there is neither ethnic nor denominational difference, and rather than any organizational banner or denominational structure, Christ alone is the invisible Head of all visible churches. While they have unity in doctrine and practice, they have no uniformity in ritual or governmental form. The visible unity of believers is the result of their manifestation in the doctrine and deeds of their invisible Head (Christ), regardless of what label is on the local assembly to which they belong” (ibid., p. 718).

She is an exclusively blessed entity. “I ask on their behalf; I do not ask on behalf of the world, but of those whom You have given Me; for they are Yours” (John 17:9) “The glory which You have given Me I have given to them, that they may be one, just as We are one” (John 17:22) “Father, I desire that they also, whom You have given Me, be with Me where I am, so that they may see My glory which You have given Me, for You loved Me before the foundation of the world” (John 17:24). “There is clearly an exclusive aspect to the intercessory prayer of Christ: ‘I pray not for the world,’ He says, ‘but for them which thou hast given me’ ([John 17] vs. 9). The prayer is striking for its omissions. Beyond the ‘world’ in general which He specifically shuts out, there is no mention of the nation of Israel, nor of the Gentile nations, nor of the poor and afflicted, nor of the thousand and one heartbreaking problems of humanity with which the Messianic Kingdom of our Lord will be concerned. The prayer is wholly concerned with the preparation of a body which is to reign with Him in that future blessed Kingdom. For its members He prays: that they may behold the glory of the Son (vs. 24); that they may share in this glory (vs. 22); and that they may be with Him where He is (vs. 24)” (McClain, GK, p. 379). “...four closely allied concepts: Unanimity, uniformity, union, and unity... nor does uniformity of ritual presuppose organic union; nor does organic union involve unity of spirit... Unity prevails wherever there is a deep and genuine experience of Christ; for the fellowship of the new birth transcends all historical denominational boundaries...” [quoting Merrill Tenney, The Gospel of John, pp. 248-249] (Geisler, ST, 4:52) “There are no racial, national, or political distinctions; Christ's body transcends all of these as a spiritual union of all believers since Pentecost" (ibid., p. 54).

She is the pillar and support of the truth. "Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures" (1 Cor. 15:1–4) "but in case I am delayed, I write so that you may know how one ought to conduct himself in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and support of the truth" (1 Tim. 3:15). "fundamental truths, essential to the vitality of the Christian religion, as e.g. those relating to the person and work of Jesus, the Supernatural, the inspiration of the Scriptures, the conditions of salvation, the sacraments, etc." (Peters, TTK, 3:140)

She is not limited to only those who espouse a particular eschatological view. "We... disclaim all fellowship with that exclusive narrow spirit characteristic of some professing small bodies of believers, which condemn as unchristian and lost all who do not in all things conform to their doctrinal belief. Aside from Christ only being the Judge to decide in reference to the final status of professions, all, who cordially receive, believe and trust in Christ, exhibiting their faith by producing the enumerated graces of the Spirit, are to be recognized by us as Christians, no matter whether, on various points, they differ from us" (Peters, TTK, 2:226).

She is identifiable. She is identifiable by her correct doctrine, "but in case I am delayed, I write so that you may know how one ought to conduct himself in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and support of the truth" (1 Tim. 3:15). The evangelical church's doctrinal unity is remarkable, especially considering that its churches are independent, with no overarching hierarchical and/or coercive ecclesiastical structure. She is also identifiable by her exhibition of the fruit of the Spirit, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control; against such things there is no law" (Gal. 5:22–23). "The Spirit of God in the heart and the fruits of that Spirit in life, alone can attest the fact of a Christian, and the reality of his Christianity" (Peters, TTK, 3:139). And, she is identifiable by her non-exhibition of cultic exclusivity. "God's work is progressing, and when we see men and women converted, and exemplifying the fruits of the Spirit and the mind of Christ in their lives, no matter in what denomination, or sect, or organization, we see the sign of the approaching end, since the gathering out is advancing toward completion. Hence we have no sympathy for that class of men, who, under misguided zeal and bigotry, take the phrase 'Babylon and her daughters,' and, while giving in the main a correct exposition of its meaning, press it to an injurious extreme, as if it embraced without exception everything relating to Roman Catholicism, Protestantism, State and confederated churches, Confessional churches, in brief, all outside of their own limited little sect. This spirit is exemplified e.g. in Christadelphianism, Seventh-Day Adventism, Believers, Shakerism, Mormons, etc., etc. These men overlook several things: that while there has been evil in all these churches, there have also been godly men in them who were keenly alive to them, deplored, and resisted them; that to sit in wholesale and indiscriminate judgment upon all is to do gross injustice to that 'small flock' which was gathered out before such sects saw the light; that the call 'to come out of her' (which means to come into their own sect) addressed to men and women who are devoted to Jesus and willing to give up all for Him, if obeyed would only result in infusing the same narrow contracted view of 'charity' exhibited by those callers; that if this wholesale denunciation is to be received, no Christian Church can possibly be traced; that those who employ this language, call upon us to come into their distinctive faith, without being in agreement as to that faith (i.e. various sects use it, and each one claims to be the pure Church alone); that while the ultimate overthrow of the churches under Antichristian persecution is clearly taught, we are also taught that faithful men and women are in them, seeing that the true Church for many centuries has only been perpetuated through them, amid apostasy, contention for the truth, and persecution; that we must discriminate between piety, reverence for God's Word, love to Jesus, etc., and error, ignorance, etc., that may be allied with the same; that in the sight of heaven a condemnatory, uncharitable, and self-exalting spirit is even worse than the entertainment of error with a heart full of love to God and man. Hence such writings as Dr. Thomas's, Lincoln's, Barbour's, White's, etc. (however valuable in interesting matter), are vitiated by a species of denunciation, which claim, for their respective sects or organizations, per se to be the only true Church, and denounce all others as false and Babylonish. These are simply one-sided, and judge everything by their own humanly-devised standard, speaking evil of men, whose nobleness, usefulness, imitation of Christ, etc., is immensely above their belittling vision" (ibid., p. 142).

And at this point in time, she is not yet perfect. "Allow both to grow together until the harvest; and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, First gather up the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them up; but gather the wheat into my barn” (Matt. 13:30). “Now I exhort you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you all agree, and there be no divisions among you, but you be made complete in the same mind and in the same judgment. For I have been informed concerning you, my brethren, by Chloe’s people, that there are quarrels among you” (1 Cor. 1:10–11). “for you are still fleshly. For since there is jealousy and strife among you, are you not fleshly, and are you not walking like mere men” (1 Cor. 3:3)? “For, in the first place, when you come together as a church, I hear that divisions exist among you; and in part, I believe it. For there must also be factions among you, in order that those who are approved may have become evident among you” (1 Cor. 11:18–19). “What is the source of quarrels and conflicts among you? Is not the source your pleasures that wage war in your members” (James 4:1)? “But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will also be false teachers among you, who will secretly introduce destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, bringing swift destruction upon themselves” (2 Pet. 2:1). “We do not concede that the ‘Variations of Protestantism,’ or the disagreements of churches or the ‘denudation’ or retrogressive periods, can be urged against the claims of Christianity (for such a state is foretold and is a consequent of human freedom)” (Peters, TTK, 3:184).

The Mystery of the Church

In Scripture, the church is said to be a mystery. “the mystery, as I wrote before in brief. And by referring to this, when you read you can understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed to His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit; to be specific, that the Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body, and fellow partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel, of which I was made a minister, according to the gift of God’s grace which was given to me according to the working of His power” (Eph. 3:3-7).

This mystery was revealed to Paul. “But arise, and stand on your feet; for this purpose I have appeared to you, to appoint you a minister and a witness not only to the things which you have seen, but also to the things in which I will appear to you; delivering you from the Jewish people and from the Gentiles, to whom I am sending you, to open their eyes so that they may turn from darkness to light and from the dominion of Satan to God, in order that they may receive forgiveness of sins and an inheritance among those who have been sanctified by faith in Me” (Acts 26:16–18). “Now to Him who is able to establish you according to my gospel and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery which has been kept secret for long ages past, but now is manifested, and by the Scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the eternal God, has been made known to all the nations, leading to obedience of faith” (Rom. 16:25–26) “For this reason I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles — if indeed you have heard of the stewardship of God’s grace which was given to me for you; that by revelation there was made known to me the mystery, as I wrote before in brief. And by referring to this, when you read you can understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed to His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit; to be specific, that the Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body, and fellow partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel, of which I was made a minister, according to the gift of God’s grace which was given to me according to the working of His power. To me, the very least of all saints, this grace was given, to preach to the Gentiles the unfathomable riches of Christ, and to bring to light what is the administration of the mystery which for ages has been hidden in God, who created all things; in order that the manifold wisdom of God might now be made known through the church to the rulers and the authorities in the heavenly places. This was in accordance with the eternal purpose which He carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord, in whom we have boldness and confident access through faith in Him” (Eph. 3:1–12). “In Rom. 16:25, 26 Paul speaks of what he calls ‘My Gospel’... It was the ‘revelation’ that was promised to Paul at his conversion (Acts 26:16-18), and which comprises the ‘Mysteries of God” (Larkin, DT, p. 151).

The church is called a mystery because it was not foretold in the Old Testament. “Now to Him who is able to establish you according to my gospel and the preaching of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery which has been kept secret for long ages past, but now is manifested, and by the Scriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the eternal God, has been made known to all the nations, leading to obedience of faith; to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, be the glory forever. Amen” (Rom. 16:25-27). “Yet we do speak wisdom among those who are mature; a wisdom, however, not of this age nor of the rulers of this age, who are passing away; but we speak God’s wisdom in a mystery, the hidden wisdom which God predestined before the ages to our glory; the wisdom which none of the rulers of this age has understood; for if they had understood it they would not have crucified the Lord of glory” (1 Cor. 2:6-8) “just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we would be holy and blameless before Him” (Eph. 1:4). “the mystery, as I wrote before in brief. And by referring to this, when you read you can understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed to His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit; to be specific, that the Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body, and fellow partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel, of which I was made a minister, according to the gift of God’s grace which was given to me according to the working of His power. To me, the very least of all saints, this grace was given, to preach to the Gentiles the unfathomable riches of Christ, and to bring to light what is the administration of the mystery which for ages has been hidden in God, who created all things; in order that the manifold wisdom of God might now be made known through the church to the rulers and the authorities in the heavenly places. This was in accordance with the eternal purpose which He carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord, in whom we have boldness and confident access through faith in Him” (Eph. 3:3-12). “that is, the mystery which has been hidden from the past ages and generations; but has now been manifested to His saints, to whom God willed to make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory” (Col. 1:26-27). “...‘the reconciling of the world’—a radical change in God’s attitude toward men, such as the Old Testament Scriptures gave no indication of, and even the Gospels foreshadowed but vaguely” (Anderson, SOG, p. 86). “Now all these things are from God, who reconciled us to Himself through Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation, namely, that God was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, not counting their trespasses against them, and He has committed to us the word of reconciliation” (2 Cor. 5:18-19). “The prophecy of Isaiah is the fullest of all the prophecies, covering a time period from his own day to the creation of the new heavens and new earth, the present age excepted” (Feinberg, M, p. 113). “The kingdom now takes a form in which its administration is in the hands of men while the King is rejected and absent from the kingdom, a period not described in the Old Testament” (ibid., p. 136). “There is no mention or prophecy of the church in the Old Testament Scriptures” (ibid., p. 153). “The Holy Spirit had not revealed to the Old Testament prophets the events which should transpire between the two advents” (ibid., p. 258). “There is no hint of a possible position in Christ in any teaching of the law or of the kingdom. The believer’s present position in Christ was not seen even in type or prophecy. In the ages past it was a secret hid in the mind and heart of God” (Chafer, G, 85%). “It pleased God to keep this period of time and its purpose as a sacred secret, or mystery, until the time of its realization” (Chafer, KHP, 59%). “There was no secret regarding the ‘times of the Gentiles,’ with the attending present position of Israel in the world; but hidden within that era is a briefer period, ‘the fullness of the Gentiles’ (Rom. 11:25) about which nothing had been revealed. It is the church that is the ‘fullness of him that filleth all in all,’ and that body completed is the ‘perfect stature of the fullness of Christ’ (Eph. 1:23; 4:13; Acts 15:13, 14; 1 Cor. 12:12, 13). It is clear, therefore, that a mystery age has been thrust, as a parenthesis, into that which had been previously revealed for the fulfillment of the purpose of God” (ibid., 67%). “The believer’s present position in Christ was not seen even in type or prophecy” (Chafer, ST, 4:98). “The Old Testament story runs directly into the kingdom age without the slightest recognition of the present age or its purpose, and the present age is, therefore, wholly dissociated from, and contributes nothing to, the Old Testament program” (ibid., p. 168). “But for the Church intercalation—which was wholly unforeseen and is wholly unrelated to any divine purpose which precedes it or which follows it—Israel would be expected to pass directly from the crucifixion to her kingdom; for it was not the death of Christ and His resurrection which demanded the postponement, but rather an unforeseen age. It should require no great effort to note that the recognition of this age—wholly unforeseen, wholly unrelated, and itself a strict intercalation—is the key to the understanding of the entire program of God in the ages, and without that key only confusion can result” (ibid., 5:349). “Mankind knew nothing about the church until the time of the apostles and New Testament prophets” (Showers, M, p. 235). “The Old Testament contained no revelation concerning the church” (ibid.). “Ladd affirms that ‘there are no clear prophecies of the Christian church as such in the Old Testament’” [quoting George Eldon Ladd, The Last Things: An Eschatology for Laymen, pp. 7-9] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 235). “The term mystery, as used in the New Testament, always refers to something totally unknown in the Old Testament but revealed for the first time in the New (Matt. 13:11, 35; Rom. 16:25-26; 1 Cor. 2:7; Eph. 3:4-5, 9; Col. 1:26)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 18). “...the church, a mystery unknown in the Old Testament but now revealed to the apostles” (Geisler, ST, 4:482). “...the church age that intervened was not a divine afterthought; it was a ‘mystery’ (Rom. 11:25), known and planned by God from all eternity (Eph. 1:4), unknown to humans until the coming of the apostles and New Testament prophets (2:20; cf. 3:3-6)" (ibid., p. 487). "The Old Testament foretold a time of Gentile blessing but did not foresee the mystery of the church" (ibid., p. 529). "Old Testament believers did not understand the mystery of how Jews and Gentiles share the same footing in Christ's body (see Eph. 3:3-6; Col. 1:25-27)" (ibid., p. 545).

As is so also with the other Old Testament prophets, the church was not foreseen by Daniel. "The Theocracy, the Kingdom of God, being withdrawn is the reason why Daniel's prophecies, which give an epitome of the world's history down to the re-establishment of this Theocracy under the Messiah, make no mention (as they consistently could not) of a Kingdom of God on earth running contemporaneously (as many would have us to believe against fact) with the Gentile empires delineated by the Prophet" (Peters, TTK, 1:238). "However, it cannot be emphasized too strongly that Daniel did not see the intercalation period of the Church which would intervene between the two advents of Christ—a period which, as has been indicated, is an intrusion into Gentile times, but which is not emphasized as an extension of Gentile times; rather it is seen to be an added delay in the realization of the major divine purpose for Israel" (Chafer, ST, 4:331). "This age of the Church, it must be restated, is so perfectly isolated from the rest of human history that it draws nothing into itself of that gone before, nor does it contribute anything to that which follows. If this detached, disassociated, segregated character of this age is not granted, there can be no tracing of God's time-periods as they are revealed... the divine reckoning makes no place for this unforeseen and unpredicted age of grace, as it is manifested in the Church" (ibid., p. 339). "Only the blindest form of Covenant Theology would ignore the overwhelming evidence in the Scriptures that the Church is not in Daniel's 483 years, or in any period of the Old Testament history" (ibid., p. 364).

The are four elements that comprise the mystery of the church. "The fact that the Church is a mystery—with regard to the age of her outcalling, the truth that she is the Body of Christ, the truth that she will be the Bride of Christ, and the manner of her departure from this world—indicates her distinctive character as separate from all that has gone before or that will follow" (Chafer, ST, 4:251). "While the church is never expressly called a mystery in the New Testament, the term is used of the distinctive elements of truth that concern the church" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 28). "The various mystery aspects of the church combine to form a united testimony. The features therein revealed are foreign to divine revelation given in the Old Testament. They are related to the church as a distinct entity in the present age. They mark out the church as a separate purpose of God to be consummated before the resumption of the divine program for Israel” (Walvoord, MK, p. 247). “While the Church itself is not called a mystery, a number of features relevant to the Church are. There are four such features” (Frucht-enbaum, I, p. 683).

The first element of the mystery of the church is that Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body of Christ. “the mystery, as I wrote before in brief. And by referring to this, when you read you can understand my insight into the mystery of Christ, which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men, as it has now been revealed to His holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit; to be specific, that the Gentiles are fellow heirs and fellow members of the body, and fellow partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel, of which I was made a minister, according to the gift of God’s grace which was given to me according to the working of His power” (Eph. 3:3-7). “...the mystery that in the present dispensation believers are united to Christ in a special relationship as members of a body of which He Himself is the head” (Anderson, SOG, p. 110). “...the body of Christ. It did not exist before Pentecost, as there was no work of the baptism of the Spirit to form it. The concept of the body is foreign to the Old Testament and to Israel’s promises” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 24). “Living Israelites saved under the old economy were apparently placed into the body of Christ at Pentecost (cf. Ga. 3:28; Eph. 2:14-15)” (ibid.). “There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free man, there is neither male nor female; for you are all one in Christ Jesus” (Gal. 3:28). “For He Himself is our peace, who made both groups into one, and broke down the barrier of the dividing wall, by abolishing in His flesh the enmity, which is the Law of commandments contained in ordinances, that in Himself He might make the two into one new man, thus establishing peace” (Eph. 2:14-15) “The Old Testament strictly maintains the distinction between Jew and Gentile, distinguishes their hope, their promises, and God’s dealing with them. That is the main point of the Old Testament. The idea that Jews and Gentiles might be united in one entity without any distinction whatever, with equal privileges, rights, and fellowship is foreign to the Old Testament” (Walvoord, MK, p. 237). “...the Ephesians 3 ‘mystery’... there would be a period of time when believing Jews and Gentiles would be united together as equals in one body” (Showers, M, p. 233). “What was not revealed is that Jewish and Gentile believers would be united into one body, the Church, and so the Gentiles would become ‘fellow heirs with the Jews in one body’ and become ‘partakers’ of Jewish spiritual blessings.” [quoting Chafer, The Kingdom in History and Prophecy, pp. 15-16] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 442). “The first such mystery that Walvoord [in The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 232-237] discusses is the ‘Mystery of the One Body.’ The content of this mystery is ‘that Gentiles have an absolute equality with the Jews in the body of Christ’” (ibid., p. 467). “The body concept of Jewish and Gentile believers united into one body is designated as a mystery in Ephesians 3:1-12” (ibid., p. 683). “But what exactly is this mystery? ...the one new man of [Eph.] 2:15... The mystery which was previously unrevealed was the fact that Jewish and Gentile believers will make up the one new entity, the Body of Messiah, the Church... fellow-heirs, set to share with Israel in the inheritance of the Kingdom... fellow partakers of the promise. The promise is the covenantal promise of spiritual blessings” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 672) “The mystery here is a union of Jews and Gentiles in one Body, unrevealed in the Old Testament” (ibid., p. 673). “The mystery of how Jew and Gentile would be united as coheirs in the one spiritual body of Christ was kept secret in times past but was revealed to His New Testament ‘apostles and prophets’ (Eph. 3:3-5; cf. Col. 1:26-27)” (Geisler, ST, 4:40). “This mystery of how God could provide for Gentile blessings promised through Abraham (Gen. 12:3)—without breaking His land and throne promises to Israel—was made possible by Christ and revealed in the New Testament age” (ibid., p. 41).

The second element of the mystery is “Christ in you.” “Now I rejoice in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I do my share on behalf of His body (which is the church) in filling up that which is lacking in Christ’s afflictions. Of this church I was made a minister according to the stewardship from God bestowed on me for your benefit, that I might fully carry out the preaching of the word of God, that is, the mystery which has been hidden from the past ages and generations; but has now been manifested to His saints, to whom God willed to make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory” (Col. 1:24-27). “For you have died and your life is hidden with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory” (Col. 3:3-4). “that their hearts may be encouraged, having been knit together in love, and attaining to all the wealth that comes from the full assurance of understanding, resulting in a true knowledge of God’s mystery, that is, Christ Himself, in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge” (Col. 2:2-3). “— a renewal in which there is no distinction between Greek and Jew, circumcised and uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave and freeman, but Christ is all, and in all” (Col. 3:11). “The truth is that the Old Testament, while speaking of the coming Messiah both in suffering and in glory, never once anticipates such a situation as 'Christ in you.' While some passages picture the Holy Spirit as indwelling the believer in the coming kingdom, the Second Person is never so presented" (Walvoord, MK, p. 238). "The second mystery is that of the 'Church as an Organism.' This mystery emphasizes the Church as an organism and the content of this mystery is 'Christ in you;' it is the mystery 'of the indwelling Christ'" [quoting Walvoord, The Millennial Kingdom, pp. 232-237] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 467). "The doctrine of Christ indwelling every believer, the Christ in you concept, is called a mystery in Colossians 1:24-27; 2:10-19; 3:4, 11" (ibid., p. 683).

The third element of the mystery of the church is the Rapture. "Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:51-53). "1 Cor. 15:51-55... 'a "Mystery"; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed'... This is the greatest of all mysteries, because it reveals something that reason never dreamed of" (Larkin, DT, p. 152). "This call of the Bridegroom for His bride is an event that should never have been considered even as an aspect of the second coming of Christ. It is a mystery, or sacred secret, and, as such, is but a part of the whole mystery of the body and bride of Christ. It is only one item in the program of the out-calling and final gathering of the church. No revelation had been given to the Old Testament prophets of that great age purpose, and certainly no hint had been made as to the manner in which she would be taken out of the earth into her heavenly bliss. On the other hand, the return of Christ to the earth in power and glory was seen by all the prophets from Moses to Christ" (Chafer, KHP, 77%). "a mystery... We all shall not sleep, but we shall all be changed... 1 Cor. 15:51-52... This passage reveals that there are two possible ways by which a corruptible body can be transformed into an incorruptible: one way is by resurrection; the other is by translation. This latter truth is introduced as a 'mystery.' It should be clear to all careful students of the Word of God that it is not a mystery that saints who die will be raised again. The doctrine of resurrection is taught in both the Old and New Testaments and is not a hidden truth. Nor is it a mystery that there will be living saints on the earth at the time of the coming of the Lord. All passages dealing with the second advent as well as passages which speak of Christ coming for His church assume or state that saints will be on earth awaiting His coming. The precise mystery is the added revelation of the fact of translation without dying in connection with the coming of the Lord” (Walvoord, MK, p. 241). “...the significant fact that none of the Old Testament passages dealing with the second advent teach anything on the subject of the translation of the saints. In fact, the idea of a general translation is foreign to the Old Testament. The viewpoint of Old Testament prophecies is that saints on earth at the time of the second advent will enter the millennial kingdom in the flesh, an obvious contradiction of the idea of translation” (ibid., p. 242). “It is surprising that the tremendous significance of the 1 Corinthians passage has been overlooked by so many scholars... Never in Scripture are the Old Testament saints or the saints of the future tribulation promised translation. The thought of translation is in fact a pure mystery, a truth not revealed at all in the Old Testament. It is peculiarly the hope of saints in the present age and is not extended anywhere in the Scripture to the saints who will live in the tribulation period” (ibid.). “the Old Testament never mentions the rapture of the church” (ibid., p. 265) “The third mystery is that of the Rapture. It is not the resurrection of the dead that is the mystery, but the translation of the living” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 468). “The Rapture with its corollary events of the resurrection of the dead and the translation of the living is called a mystery in I Corinthians 15:50-58” (ibid., p. 683). “In [1 Cor. 15] verse 51, Paul declares: Behold, I tell you a mystery. The Second Coming of the Messiah is not a mystery, for it was something well revealed in the Old Testament. In fact, there are more details about the Second Coming in the Old than the New Testament... we all shall not sleep... but we shall all be changed” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 677) “The Second Coming is not a mystery; the Rapture with its translation is a mystery unrevealed in the Old Testament, and is one of the many reasons for Pretribulationism” (ibid.). “‘I tell you a mystery:’... (1 Cor. 15:51-53)... Like the church, a mystery once concealed but now revealed (Eph. 3:3-5; Col. 1:17), so the church’s rapture was unknown. The fact of a future resurrection was known to Old Testament Jews, but nowhere was it revealed that a large body of believers who were neither Jew nor Gentile (Gal. 3:28) but a ‘new creation’ (2 Cor. 5:17) and ‘one new man’ (Eph. 2:15) would be raptured to heaven without either dying or being resurrected from graves” (Geisler, ST, 4:622). (See our full discussion of the Rapture in our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

And the fourth element of the mystery is the bride of Christ. “For this cause a man shall leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife; and the two shall become one flesh. This mystery is great; but I am speaking with reference to Christ and the church” (Eph. 5:31-33) “man and wife becoming ‘one flesh’ (Eph. 5:31)... ‘...mystery... in regard of Christ and of the church' (Eph. 5:32)" (Walvoord, MK, p. 245) "The fourth mystery is the Church as the Bride of Christ" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 468). "The Church as the Bride of Christ is called a mystery in Ephesians 5:22-32" (ibid., p. 683).

Purposes of the Church

The purposes of the church can be divided into two broad categories: those having to do with the current (church) age in which we now live and those having to do with the future ages.

The Current Purposes of the Church Age

The current purposes of the church and of this Church Age, which when understood correctly correspond perfectly with today's observable realities, are important to understand. "A simple statement of the design of the Church and this dispensation has far more weight with infidelity than all the high-flown and exaggerated eulogies so lavishly employed; for the former is seen to be actually in progress and realized, while the latter exists only in the imagination of the eulogizers, being opposed both by Scriptures and history" (Peters, TTK, 1:688). "Froude, in the International Review, 1878... the general tenor of his articles concluding that Christianity is a failure shows that he has no idea whatever of the design of the present dispensation" (ibid., 3:137)

The current purposes of the church in this Church Age are:

To give man an opportunity to avail himself of God's grace. "Therefore having overlooked the times of ignorance, God is now declaring to men that all everywhere should repent, because He has fixed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness through a Man whom He has appointed, having furnished proof to all men by raising Him from the dead" (Acts 17:30-31). "For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast" (Eph. 2:8-9). "And the Spirit and the bride say, 'Come.' And let the one who hears say, 'Come.' And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost" (Rev. 22:17) "The present issue between God and man is one of whether man will accept God's estimate of him, abandon his hopeless self-struggle, and cast himself only on God who alone is sufficient to accomplish his needed transformation. All Divine love, wisdom, and power have wrought to make these conditions open to man; and when this last and supreme effort of God has been rejected, the final pleading with man must be forever past, and the long delayed judgment upon sin be executed in righteousness” (Chafer, S, C4:2/31).

To save men by grace; to gather the elect. “But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name” (John 1:12) “And when the Gentiles heard this, they began rejoicing and glorifying the word of the Lord; and as many as had been appointed to eternal life believed” (Acts 13:48). “For since in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom did not come to know God, God was well-pleased through the foolishness of the message preached to save those who believe” (1 Cor. 1:21). “The design of this dispensation is distinctively referred to, it is to save them that believe, to proclaim the terms of salvation by which, if observed, men may become inheritors of Christ’s Kingdom, to gather out such a body of elect ones” (Peters, TTK, 1:587). “Amidst all this diversity, error, hostility, etc., the one great, grand design has never been lost sight of, i.e. to save them that believe” (ibid., p. 636). “‘The Gospel is inadequate’... we never say so; it accomplishes all that was intended by it... if a man preached it with the hope of converting the world, which the preaching of eighteen centuries has not accomplished, it would be a vain hope, but if he preaches it with the expectation of ‘saving some,’ ‘them that believe,’ etc., he will be reasonable and scriptural” (ibid., 3:140). “...the faithfulness, activity, and piety of those who were Millenarian in doctrine, and labored earnestly to call the elect, and hasten the day of the Lord Jesus Christ” (ibid., p. 200).

To call out from the Gentiles a people for God’s name. “Simeon has related how God first concerned Himself about taking from among the Gentiles a people for His name” (Acts 15:14). “The design of the establishment of the Christian Church, viz.: to raise up a seed unto Abraham by gathering out of the nations a people for His name, until the throne and Kingdom, now desolate, shall be restored to its covenanted position” (Peters, TTK, 1:598) “...the design to be accomplished by the church, which is, as James asserted in the Apostle’s Council, to gather out a people for His name” (ibid., p. 636). “The constant gathering going on through the Gospel reminds us of the continued existence of the Divine Purpose and its ultimate certain result” (ibid., 2:225). “God instead of contemplating the conversion of nations, or of the world, is taking out, here and there, from among the nations, a people for His name” (ibid., 3:188). “...the foretold (even already by Moses) anger of God abiding upon the Jewish nation influencing Him to call out from among the nations a people for His name” (ibid., p. 526) “...(Acts 15:13-18), where he declares that God has visited the Gentiles to ‘Take Out of Them a “PEOPLE” for His Name.’ The purpose of this Dispensation then is not the Conversion of the World, but the ‘Gathering Out’ of the Church” (Larkin, DT, p. 75).

To espouse a bride to Christ. “For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, that to Christ I might present you as a pure virgin” (2 Cor. 11:2) “In Christ’s day an espousal was as sacred as a marriage” (Larkin, DT, p. 76). “The First Adam had his Bride, and the Second or Last Adam must have His Bride” (ibid.). “Now Jesus during His life on the earth as a man, abode alone, but a deep sleep—the sleep of death—fell on Him, and out of His wounded side, as the result of the Atonement He made on the Cross, there came that from which the Church was formed, and to which the Holy Spirit gave life on the Day of Pentecost; so that, as Adam said of Eve—‘This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh,’ so we can say of the Church—‘We are members of His Body, of his Flesh, and of his bones.’ Eph. 5:29-33” (ibid.). “for no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, just as Christ also does the church, because we are members of His body. FOR THIS CAUSE A MAN SHALL LEAVE HIS FATHER AND MOTHER, AND SHALL CLEAVE TO HIS WIFE; AND THE TWO SHALL BECOME ONE FLESH. This mystery is great; but I am speaking with reference to Christ and the church. Nevertheless let each individual among you also love his own wife even as himself; and let the wife see to it that she respect her husband” (Eph. 5:29–33). “Rebekah consented to become the wife of a man she had never seen solely on the representations of Eliezer, and she departed with him, leaving her kinsfolk behind... So God has sent the Holy Spirit into this world in this Dispensation to get a wife for His Son Jesus, and when the full number of the Church is complete, the Holy Spirit will take her back with him to the Father’s home, and Jesus, whose Bride she is to be, will come out into the midair at the ‘Eventide’ of this Dispensation to meet her. 1 Thess. 4:15-17... Rebekah was not an Israelite, but a Gentile, so the type holds good... Israel, the Bride of Jehovah; the Church, the Bride of Christ... The ‘Wife’ (Israel) is to reside in the earthly Jerusalem during the Millennium, while the ‘Bride’ (the Church) will reside in the New Jerusalem” (Larkin, DT). “As to the Church being both the ‘Body’ and ‘Bride’ of Christ, we have the type of Eve who was of the ‘body’ of Adam before she was his ‘bride’” (ibid.). (See our discussion of the identity of the church as the bride of Christ in our section The Identity of the Church above, our discussion of the fact that one of the ultimate purposes of the church is to be Christ’s wife in our section The Ultimate (Future) Purpose of the Church below, and our discussion of the bridegroom’s fetching of the bride in our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

To incite the Jews to jealousy. “But I say, surely Israel did not know, did they? At the first Moses says, ‘I WILL MAKE YOU JEALOUS BY THAT WHICH IS NOT A NATION, BY A NATION WITHOUT UNDERSTANDING WILL I ANGER YOU’” (Rom. 10:19). “I say then, they did not stumble so as to fall, did they? May it never be! But by their transgression salvation has come to the Gentiles, to make them jealous” (Rom. 11:11). “But I am speaking to you who are Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle of Gentiles, I magnify my ministry, if somehow I might move to jealousy my fellow countrymen and save some of them” (Rom. 11:13–14).

To select and prepare kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom. “And Jesus said to them, “Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Matt. 19:28). “He said therefore, ‘A certain nobleman went to a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then return. And he called ten of his slaves, and gave them ten minas, and said to them, “Do business with this until I come back.” But his citizens hated him, and sent a delegation after him, saying, “We do not want this man to reign over us.” And it came about that when he returned, after receiving the kingdom, he ordered that these slaves, to whom he had given the money, be called to him in order that he might know what business they had done. And the first appeared, saying, “Master, your mina has made ten minas more.” And he said to him, “Well done, good slave, because you have been faithful in a very little thing, be in authority over ten cities.” And the second came, saying, “Your mina, master, has made five minas.” And he said to him also, “And you are to be over five cities.” And another came, saying, “Master, behold your mina, which I kept put away in a handkerchief; for I was afraid of you, because you are an exacting man; you take up what you did not lay down, and reap what you did not sow.” He said to him, “By your own words I will judge you, you worthless slave. Did you know that I am an exacting man, taking up what I did not lay down, and reaping what I did not sow? Then why did you not put the money in the bank, and having come, I would have collected it with interest?” And he said to the bystanders, “Take the mina away from him, and give it to the one who has the ten minas.” And they said to him, “Master, he has ten minas already.” I tell you, that to everyone who has shall more be given, but from the one who does not have, even what he does have shall be taken away. But these enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence” (Luke 19:12–27).

“that you may eat and drink at My table in My kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Luke 22:30). “and if children, heirs also, heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ, if indeed we suffer with Him in order that we may also be glorified with Him” (Rom. 8:17). “You are already filled, you have already become rich, you have become kings without us; and I would indeed that you had become kings so that we also might reign with you” (1 Cor. 4:8). “For momentary, light affliction is producing for us an eternal weight of glory far beyond all comparison” (2 Cor. 4:17) “If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us” (2 Tim. 2:12) “and He has made us to be a kingdom, priests to His God and Father; to Him be the glory and the dominion forever and ever. Amen” (Rev. 1:6). “And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy art Thou to take the book, and to break its seals; for Thou wast slain, and didst purchase for God with Thy blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. And Thou hast made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth’” (Rev. 5:9-10). “Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:6). “The proclamation of nighness was involved in the fact that, as a certain number of elect are contemplated as requisite to the establishment of the Theocratic Kingdom (former experience teaching that otherwise it could not be sustained), that number, in case of national repentance, would have been speedily obtained. But owing to the rejection of Christ, the number of inheritors must now be obtained in a different and more gradual way” (Peters, TTK, 1:362). “Before God took the Israelites to Canaan He first provided a sufficient number of people, even under great trial and sorrow, who should be able to occupy the land, drive out their adversaries, and enjoy their imparted possession. So now God has promised a rich inheritance, even the whole earth, to the saints under a Theocratic ordering, which they are to realize in a peculiar, exalted way; but before this inheritance is given God is engaged in gathering out this people, even under trial, temptation, and tribulation; and when the chosen, elected number is complete (known only to Him), then the possession will be received, the adversaries will be judged and overthrown by them as associated in Rulership with the Lord Christ” (ibid., p. 401). “The introduction of the faith principle, by which Abraham was justified before circumcision took place, to raise up children to Abraham, merely produces ‘the heirs,’ who inherit the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 412). “...the design for which the election is made, viz.: to qualify men for the future divine administration of the restored Theocratic Kingdom” (ibid.) “The object or design of this dispensation is to gather out these elect, to whom, as heirs with Abraham and his seed, Christ, this Kingdom is to be given” (ibid., p. 587). “This dispensation, as its progressive work indicates, can do no more than prepare the heirs for the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 588). “The Head is preparing the members, by the bestowal of blessed privileges, sacred ordinances, rich experience, and His own ever-abiding Presence, for the coming exaltation of the Kingdom. Communion with Christ and with each other necessitates a churchly arrangement, so that the requisite elect may be taken out from among the nations to place the future Theocratic Kingdom on an immovable basis” (ibid., p. 597). “Oosterzee (Ch. Dogmatics, vol. 1, p. 67, and vol. 2, p. 696) introduces a division, ‘Of the Church, or the Training School of the Kingdom.’ The idea of a training school is excellent, suggested both by Scripture and experience, but to make the notion still more distinctive and Scriptural, we suggest ‘the Training School for the Kingdom,’ which is one of the objects intended by the Church” (ibid., p. 600). “...the design of this dispensation in gathering out a people for a future divinely constituted Church and State” (ibid., p. 639) “Just as there was a preparatory growth and development of Abraham’s seed before the Theocratic government was instituted, so now there is designed and carried out by the Divine Will a preparatory gathering of Abraham’s seed until a sufficient, predetermined number is obtained” (ibid., 2:224). “God’s purpose is delayed for a time—which to finite man appears long, but to God is ‘as a day’—until the Saviour is provided, and the proper material has been gathered even out of the fallen race, for the leverage requisite to lift the race out of its sunken condition” (ibid., p. 536). “The Kingdom itself is purposely delayed for thousands of years (long to man, but brief to God), in order to raise up this body of rulers to sustain it when manifested with a purity, dignity, power, stability, and glory worthy of a Theocracy. If the question be asked, why did not God establish the Theocracy in such a form in the time of Moses, or of David, or at the First Advent, the answer, as testified to by history, is apparent, viz., that man was not prepared for it. The essential element to sustain and give it its immortal, enduring characteristics had not yet been prepared and gathered” (ibid., p. 589). “...until this number (known only to God) is completed, the Kingdom itself will not be revealed” (ibid.). “But when the last elected one is gathered, when the preparatory measures are all completed, then comes the sudden revelation of the Majestic King and His associated kings upon an awe-struck world” (ibid., p. 590). “For such extraordinary glory these saints must be trained in obedience and suffering, in temptation and trial, just as the King Himself has been. The subjects of this restored Theocracy, owing to the binding of Satan and the unspeakable blessings of the Messianic reign, will not be subjected to the same privations, temptations, and crosses that those now are who are schooled for their future appointments... This future Kingship is really the secret cause of that chastening that oftentimes is now so grievous. God designs that by our trials we may become fitted and prepared for the position in the Coming Kingdom... The physical and moral evil encountered, the valuable experience obtained, the relative change realized, the characteristics developed and confirmed, these, with the abundant additions of the Spirit, qualify them for the honor of kingship and priesthood, making them intelligent and wise kings, sympathetic and loving priests” (ibid.). “This comforting and delightful subject can readily be extended... Salvation is indeed of grace, but the proportionment of stations is dependent upon the faith and obedience of the individual... devoted themselves to God with ever-increasing fidelity... be careful ‘that no man take thy crown’ (for they are limited in number). Graff (‘Greybeard’) in his ‘Lay Sermons,’ No. 6, truly observes that ‘the present or ecclesiastical dispensation may therefore be said to be allotted to the development of Christ’s aristocracy, the nobility of His Kingdom, the ruling class in the world to come.’ After urging that humility precedes exaltation, he says: ‘If Christians were not forgetful of the distinguished honors which await them in the future, they would be less concerned about the honors and emoluments of the present.’ Pregnant words; but, alas, how few heed the lesson imparted. In No. 13 he has some thoughtful words on ‘the Reward of Good Works that is superadded to Salvation,’ in which occurs the following sentence: ‘And although the literature of the Church abounds in “crowns for the departed,” it is not improbable that there will be many crownless heads on the day when the Lord shall appear to receive them, inasmuch as the three crowns [five?—ed.] (whatever they may typify) designated in the Scriptures, are mentioned in each case as the reward of some special service or merit. (The “crown of righteousness” to those that “love His appearing;” the “crown of glory” to those who feed the flock of Christ willingly, etc.; the “crown of life” to those who endure temptation and persecution.)’... The unspeakable honor thus conferred explains why the demands of God in reference to supreme love to Him, unreserved surrender to His Will, etc., are, as required in this dispensation, not fanatical requirements (as unbelief suggests), but essential in view of qualifying the saints for this rulership. Hence the Scriptures inform us that we should receive our trials and even tribulation joyfully, because if we endure the testing, these things shall give us a fitness for the special honor of kingship and priesthood” (ibid., p. 591). “He may be despised and overlooked by the rich, or by his neighbors, and yet he is destined to a position far higher and more honorable than that occupied by the proudest, richest, greatest monarch that ever lived... From the testimony of the Word we learn that God will gather these princes and kings more from the ranks of the poor and the ignorant than from those of the rich, mighty, and worldly wise, simply because the former are more disposed to receive and obey the truth than the latter” (ibid., p. 594). “Auberlen (Lange’s Com. 1 Thess, p. 25) remarks: ‘...the sufferings and afflictions, which are the divinely appointed way to the future glory, 2 Cor. 4:17 sq., Rom. 8:17’” (ibid., 3:327) “The relationship that saints now sustain to Jesus as intended co-rulers in the Coming Kingdom insures from Him a deep and abiding interest in their welfare (even trial and suffering being intended to bring in additional rank and honor), because His own glory and that of His kingdom is connected with it” (ibid., p. 342). “A distinguishing peculiarity of this restored Theocracy is that the rulers are all chosen by God Himself; no one can ever be a king or priest in it without God’s direct appointment” (ibid., p. 593). “God is today saving and preparing in the ekklesia the members of the royal family who are destined to rule with Christ in the future established Kingdom... born into the royal family” [quoting McClain, The Greatness of the Kingdom, pp. 439-40] (Feinberg, M, p. 146) “...the Church, begun on Pentecost, as the spiritual and royal nucleus of the coming Kingdom” (McClain, GK, p. 423). “There is an interesting parallel in the career of King David, great ancestor of our Lord Jesus Christ. When David was chosen of God and anointed as king of Israel (1 Sam. 16:1, 13), he did not immediately occupy the throne... During this period several hundred men, in distress and debt, ‘gathered themselves’ unto David and became his loyal followers (1 Sam. 22:2)... Similarly, at His first coming our Lord was exalted to be both Lord and Messianic King (Acts 2:36); but not until His second coming will He establish His Kingdom on earth as the rightful successor to the throne of His father David. In the interim He is gathering to Himself a body of people, distressed and debtors because of sin, who are destined to be associated with Him in the coming Kingdom” (ibid., p. 440). (See our discussion of the fact that faithful believers will be rewarded with authority in the Millennial Kingdom in our chapter The Rapture of the Church and our discussions of the facts that believers will reign with Christ and will be priests with Him in the Millennial Kingdom in the Government section of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.) By the way, nowhere in Scripture is the number of those who are to reign with Christ limited to 144,000, as is erroneously taught by Jehovah’s Witnesses. The 144,000 of Revelation chapters seven and fourteen are never identified in Scripture as kings, priests, or the body or bride of Christ. They are instead 144,000 literal Jews who are sealed for God's purposes during the Tribulation period. (For detailed identification of the 144,000, see our discussion of the sealing of the 144,000 in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

To develop Christians' character. “For momentary, light affliction is producing for us an eternal weight of glory far beyond all comparison” (2 Cor. 4:17) “Consider it all joy, my brethren, when you encounter various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces endurance. And let endurance have its perfect result, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing” (James 1:2–4). “...the ordinary operations of the Spirit given to form and develop Christian character” (Peters, TTK, 3:68)

To demonstrate that God's purposes do not fail. “And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it” (Matt. 16:18). “Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age” (Matt. 28:19–20). “Woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days; for there will be great distress upon the land, and wrath to this people, and they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led captive into all the nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled under foot by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled” (Luke 21:23–24). “...this dispensation... as one which, in the establishment and perpetuation of the Christian Church, stands forth as a constant sign or witness that God's purposes do not fail; and hence, as a standing proof that, however long delayed, the oath-bound Davidic covenant will be most amply realized” (Peters, TTK, 1:588).

Not to entertain the church and others. “...the Church... is not a ‘Social Club,’ organized and supported solely for the benefit of its members. It is not a ‘Place of Amusement’ to pander to the carnal nature of man” (Larkin, DT, p. 77).

Not to Christianize the nations. “And it will come about in that day that I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the peoples; all who lift it will be severely injured. And all the nations of the earth will be gathered against it” (Zech. 12:3). “But when we are judged, we are disciplined by the Lord in order that we may not be condemned along with the world” (1 Cor. 11:32). “For after all it is only just for God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, and to give relief to you who are afflicted and to us as well when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire, dealing out retribution to those who do not know God and to those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus” (2 Thes. 1:6–8). “Know this first of all, that in the last days mockers will come with their mocking, following after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation.’ For when they maintain this, it escapes their notice that by the word of God the heavens existed long ago and the earth was formed out of water and by water, through which the world at that time was destroyed, being flooded with water. But the present heavens and earth by His word are being reserved for fire, kept for the day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men” (2 Pet. 3:3–7). “God does not recognize, either in Daniel or Rev., the alleged and professed conversion of the Roman Empire, for down to the Sec. Advent it retains its bestial character. God looks at nations from a standpoint very different from that assumed by their eulogizers” (Peters, TTK, 1:395). “...open rebellion against the existing powers, etc., a principle utterly at variance with ancient and modern Chiliasm” (ibid., p. 533). “Noticing the design of this dispensation and not overloading it with things that belong to a coming one, Christianity itself, as it exists, is susceptible of a more easy defence against the attacks of infidelity. Thus e.g. we can more readily account for its want of success in some ages, its retrogressions where once predominant, its declines and revivals, its union with much that must be discarded, etc., for these and other events do not affect its object, or prevent the carrying out of the design originally intended. Humanly speaking, these may cause a delay, but the delay itself is an experience of continued mercy and forbearance so that the design may be completed. On the other hand, bind upon this dispensation ideas and notions which really belong to the future coming age, and at once—in view of the Church’s mixed character, the comparative meagre extension of real piety after eighteen centuries of preaching, the losses Christianity has sustained in countries where once it existed in all its vigor, the corruption of doctrine and practice, the virulent controversies and spirit often exhibited, etc.—a resort must be had to apologetic shifts, mystical subterfuges, and philosophical glosses utterly unworthy of a candid and noble defence. Is there a student who has not been saddened by the apologies of eminent believers in behalf of the gospel, who, hampered by a Church-Kingdom theory, feel themselves compelled to excuse and justify a want of success, etc., when no such special pleading is demanded by the design God has in view, or by the real facts in the case? God's plan, and the time employed by Him, in gathering the elect, requires on our part no abject vindication" (ibid., p. 589). "Pressense (The Early Years of Christianity, p. 25) makes the 'vocation' of the Church to be that of 'illuminating and vivifying the world'— 'to purify itself within, and to extend itself without, such is the twofold task of the Church, and the ages are given for its fulfillment.' Here the preconceived idea of the conversion of the world through the Church suggests the vocation. Now in contrast, we give Dr. Fausset's (Com. Dan. 7:11) brief comment: 'The New Test. views the present aeon or age of the world as essentially heathenish, which we cannot love without forsaking Christ (Rom. 12:2; 1 Cor. 1:20, and 2:6, 8, and 3:18, and 7:31; 2 Cor. 4:4; Gal. 1:4; Eph. 2:2; 2 Tim. 4:10; cf. 1 John 2:15, 17). The object of Christianity is not so much to Christianize the present world as to save souls out of it, so as not to be condemned with the world (1 Cor. 11:32), but to rule with Him in His Millennium (Matt. 5:5; Luke 12:32, and 22:28-30; Rom. 5:17; 1 Cor. 6:2; Rev. 1:6, and 2:26-28, and 3:21 and 20:4). This is our hope; not to reign in the present world course (1 Cor. 4:8; 2 Cor. 4:18; Phil. 3:20; Heb. 13:14).' Pressense's view is inferential; Fausset's is directly Scriptural" (ibid.). "It is a significant fact, fully attested by history, past and present, that no Christian nation has ever existed among the Gentiles. No matter how largely the laws of Moses and the precepts of Christ have been incorporated, and no matter how men of a Christian spirit have endeavored at times to legislate and execute laws in a proper spirit, it still remains true that the design of this dispensation has never been to convert nations" (ibid., 2:778) "We deprecate the fulsome and unscriptural eulogies heaped upon earthly governments by various writers" (ibid.). "...the positive declarations that no nations are on the Lord's side when He comes for vengeance and redemption" (ibid.) "What the Church itself cannot perform no outside influence can possibly accomplish. Hence good, pious, honest, sincere, and able men are doomed to meet disappointment. So it is also with those conventions, etc., that draw together great talent, novelties, sensational things, etc.—whatever good is accomplished is clouded by the insidious notion of prosperity, the conversion of the world, etc. The proof is found in this: that a scriptural representation of the nearness of the Advent, of coming persecution, etc., would be regarded as entirely out of place in them... all those great conventions, assemblies and organizations which—whatever truth may be presented or good done—eagerly anticipate, and with loud praises predict, the conversion of the world, the unlimited advancement of the Church, and the ushering in of

Millennial glory through their instrumentality, are predicting falsely and misleading the multitude. A Pre-Millenarian would be condemned, if he ventured to call attention to the biblical statements; and, indeed, there is little danger of any one ever doing so, since particular care is taken to exclude such, lest a strain of discord mar the smooth prophesyings so fashionable and palatable at such gatherings. Men on the brink of fearful times encourage each other by scriptural but pleasing pictures of reform and progress” (ibid., 3:143). “...the Davidic throne and Kingdom... The conversion even of all nations could not restore the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 181). “Those to whom the commission was given never stated that its intention was to convert the world by preaching the Gospel” (ibid., p. 192). “Dr. Marsh, after many years of prophetic study, declared (Mem. by his daughter): ‘The complete victory of truth I do not expect until the Second Advent of our blessed Lord. I have no hope of a general or universal spread of Christian knowledge till He comes.’ ‘When He has taken out of the Gentiles a people for His name and called a remnant of the Jews according to the election of grace, then He will return and convert the Jewish nation, put down all rule and all authority and power opposed to His Gospel, and cause the knowledge of Himself to cover the earth. So I read in every passage of Holy Writ, and long for the day; for then Satan will be bound and Creation will cease to groan” (ibid., p. 194). “We are not surprised that some advocating the Whitbyan opinion, express themselves (misconceiving the design of the dispensation), as Dr. Lyman Beecher (Taylor’s Voice of the Church, p. 9.), ‘It would take to all eternity to bring the Millennium at the rate that modern revivals progress” (ibid., p. 196). “... the false assumption that Christianity, if divine, must rescue and reunite the race, when the design of this dispensation is the reverse. Those who indorse this presumption, instead of adopting God’s declared Divine Purpose in reference to this dispensation, virtually undertake to decide for themselves what is, and what is not, worthy of divine procedure, thus giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the truth. This, too, is done under an honest and sincere misapplication of the facts of history and the predictions of God’s Word. Thus e.g. Rev. Dr. Helwig, in a temperance lecture reported in the Springfield Republic, Dec. 24th, 1877, indorses the statement of multitudes, that the triumph of truth is always certain, saying that ‘although the wrong may at times seem triumphant, it is but for a day. Right has might and power for its allies, and will triumph, for it is the truth.’ All history, as well as the Bible, contradicts this as illustrated in the antediluvian world, the overthrow of the Theocracy, the closing of the Mosaic economy, the continued unbelief and punishment of the Jewish nation, the dark ages, the gigantic proportions of error

even in organized forms, the future coming conflict with the culminated Antichrist, the predicted ending of this age, etc. No! The Word assures us, that while God will see to it that truth, the light, shall always, more or less, exist as a testimony and to accomplish the Divine Purpose intended by this dispensation, its triumph will only be secured by the personal Coming of Him, who is the Truth" (ibid., p. 209). "Van Oosterzee (Ch. Dog., vol. 2, p. 795), speaking of 'the consummation of all things' as presented by Scripture, remarks: 'The prospect here opened up is well adapted to put to shame every optimistic-humanistic dream, as though in this best of worlds things should grow better, the nearer the stream of time rolls to the ocean of eternity'" (ibid., p. 211). "One of the indirect, but most powerful, evidences of the divine inspiration of the Scripture is found in the fact that nowhere do we find those eulogistic descriptions of 'the triumph of the Gospel in subduing the world' which now so largely adorn the eloquence of Whitbyan missionary discourses. Nothing of the kind is exhibited even when reference is made to the rapid extension of the preached Word over the then known world, for the Spirit evidently foresaw, what history testifies to, the ultimate overthrow and fallen condition of the churches, then so widely extended" (ibid., p. 215). "The world was just as full, if not fuller, of the evils that afflict society today, in the days of Christ, but He never, nor did the Apostles, organize any reform agencies. He knew that the source of all the evils in the world is SIN, and the only way to eradicate sin is to Regenerate the Human Heart, and so He gave to the world The Gospel, and the Mission of the Church is to carry that Gospel to the Whole World" (Larkin, DT, p. 77). "The great mistake the Church has made is in appropriating to herself, in this Dispensation, the promises of earthly conquest and glory which belong exclusively to Israel in the Millennial, or 'Kingdom Age.' As soon as the Church enters into an 'Alliance With the World,' and seeks the help of Parliaments, Congresses, Legislatures, Federations and Reform Societies, largely made up of ungodly men and women, she loses her spiritual power and becomes helpless as a redeeming force" (ibid., p. 78). "The setting up of the earthly kingdom is never described as the result of a process" (Chafer, S, C2:24/37). "Well may believers study their own motives in service in view of these vastly differing programs; and question whether there is in them a humble willingness to co-operate in the present purpose of God in preparing the Bride for the returning King: or whether they have carelessly fallen in with the Satanic ideal, which rejects the coming Kingdom of Christ by an unholy attempt to establish the present kingdom of Satan" (ibid., C6:18/19). "No doubt will be raised by any intelligent Christian concerning the truth that it is within the range of divine power to transform society in this age, or at any other time” (Chafer, D, 41%). “...the present age... Relatively few are saved. The world becomes, in fact, increasingly wicked as the age progresses... The apostles are notably silent on any program of political, social, moral, or physical improvement of the unsaved world. Paul made no effort to correct social abuses or to influence the political government for good. The program of the early church was one of evangelism and Bible teaching. It was a matter of saving souls out of the world rather than saving the world. It was neither possible nor in the program of God for the present age to become the kingdom of God on earth” (Walvoord, MK, p. 134).

These purposes are now being fulfilled. “And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it” (Matt. 16:18). “Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all that I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age” (Matt. 28:19–20). “Simeon has related how God first concerned Himself about taking from among the Gentiles a people for His name” (Acts 15:14). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “God’s purpose, no matter how adverse at times the Church’s circumstances, how hostile the world, how corrupt her mixed condition, etc., will and must be inevitably carried out” (Peters, TTK, 1:592). “No age, no century, no year, with its encompassing infirmities, but has brought forth, through the church, the called and adopted” (ibid., p. 636). “Christianity also, no matter what apostasy and evil exists, is constantly fulfilling the design of this dispensation... viz., to gather out a people for His name” (ibid., 3:141). “Missionaries, ministers, and others, engaged in proclaiming the Gospel have no reason to be discouraged at the apparent want of success; for whether men accept or reject the truth, the appointed work of procuring these elect ones is going on, and also that of making the Gospel a witness” (ibid., p. 197).

The Ultimate (Future) Purposes of the Church

The ultimate (and future) purposes of the church are to be Christ’s wife, to exalt redeemed men and to display the infinity of God’s grace.

The church is to be Christ’s wife. “For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, that to Christ I might present you as a pure virgin” (2 Cor. 11:2). “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues, came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb’ (Rev. 21:9). “One Eve was thus specially made for Adam, and according to the uniform testimony of Scripture there is one woman or people peculiarly chosen and formed and specially designed for the most intimate union with the Second Adam in the age to come, viz., the married wife... this woman is ‘an help as before him’ (i.e. one corresponding to him, one adapted to him, a counterpart of himself, etc.), which finds its counterpart in the association, companionship, coheirship, joint rulership, etc., of the saints with the Second Adam in His Kingdom” (Peters, TTK, 3:431) (See our discussion of the identity of the church as the bride of Christ in our section The Identity of the Church above, our discussion of the fact that one of the current purposes of the church is to espouse a wife to Christ in our section The Current Purpose of the Church above, and our discussion of the bridegroom’s fetching of the bride in our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

The church will exalt redeemed men. “And whoever exalts himself shall be humbled; and whoever humbles himself shall be exalted” (Matt. 23:12). “Do you not know that we shall judge angels? How much more, matters of this life?” (1 Cor. 6:3). “But God, being rich in mercy, because of His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead in our transgressions, made us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved), and raised us up with Him, and seated us with Him in the heavenly places, in Christ Jesus” (Eph. 2:4–6) “He who overcomes, I will grant to him to sit down with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne” (Rev. 3:21). “In Old Testament terminology, sometimes angels are called sons of God while men are called servants of God. In the New Testament, this is reversed. Angels are servants, and Christians are sons of God. This peculiar order may be due to the fact that, in the Old Testament, men are seen as related to this sphere over which angels are superior; while, in the New Testament, saints are seen as related to their final exaltation into the likeness of Christ, compared to which estate the angels are inferior” (Chafer, ST, 2:23).

And, the church will display the infinity of God’s grace. “He predestined us to adoption as sons through Jesus Christ to Himself, according to the kind intention of His will, to the praise of the glory of His grace, which He freely bestowed on us in the Beloved. In Him we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of His grace, which He lavished upon us. In all wisdom and insight He made known to us the mystery of His will,

according to His kind intention which He purposed in Him” (Eph. 1:5-9) “But God, being rich in mercy, because of His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead in our transgressions, made us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved), and raised us up with Him, and seated us with Him in the heavenly places, in Christ Jesus, in order that in the ages to come He might show the surpassing riches of His grace in kindness toward us in Christ Jesus. For by grace you have been saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not as a result of works, that no one should boast” (Eph. 2:4-9). “To me, the very least of all saints, this grace was given, to preach to the Gentiles the unfathomable riches of Christ” (Eph. 3:8) “Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to make you stand in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy, to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen” (Jude 24). “The final and supreme motive of God in the salvation of men is declared in Eph. 2:7: ‘That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus’” (Chafer, G, 12%). “All intelligences will know the depth of sin and the hopeless estate of the lost. They will, in turn, behold men redeemed and saved from that estate appearing in the highest glory, — like Christ. This transformation will measure and demonstrate the ‘exceeding riches of his grace’” (ibid.). “And, again, the purpose of God, which is to shew the exceeding riches of His grace, reaches beyond the boundaries of this age and is the supreme divine purpose in the whole creation, preservation, and consummation of the universe” (ibid.). “The complete manifestation of divine grace which is to be revealed in the glory will be by means of all that combines in Christ — the Glorious Head, together with His redeemed Body, every member of which will have been transformed into His very image. What a spectacle for angels and archangels, principalities and powers, mankind and demons! Yea, what a spectacle for God Himself; for He will then gaze on that surpassing manifestation of His grace to His own ‘exceeding joy’ (Jude 24)” (ibid., 13%)! “Whether there have been greater motives which have actuated God in permitting sin to enter the world than He has revealed, none can say. It is certain, however, that the greatest motive that He has been pleased to reveal is to be inferred from the fact that grace cannot be exercised where there is no demerit, and that He designs above all else that His saving grace shall have an actual and adequate demonstration in all the ages to come” (Chafer, G, 13%) “Heaven’s glory will not be a display of human character; it is to be the unveiling of the riches of grace in Christ Jesus” (ibid., 95%).

“The divine purpose in the outcalling of the church is to display the infinity of His grace. Chafer [in Systematic Theology, 3:228-29] writes: ‘There was that in God which no created being had ever seen. They had seen His glory, His majesty, His wisdom, and His power; but no angel or man had ever seen His grace. Other attributes might be subject to a variety of demonstrations; but the manifestation of grace is restricted to what God may do for those among men who, in spite of the fact that they deserve His judgments, are objects of His grace. As every other attribute or capacity of God must have its perfect exercise and exhibition—even for His own satisfaction—in like manner His grace must also have its infinitely perfect revealing within the restricted undertaking by which He saves the lost. To say that a sinner is saved by grace is to declare that, on the ground of a Substitute’s death and in response to faith in that Savior, God has wrought a work so perfect in its entirety and so free from the cooperation of other beings that it is a complete all-satisfying-to-God demonstration of His grace. A statement of this kind may be made as easily as words form a sentence; but who on earth or in heaven is able to comprehend the infinity of such a salvation? This demonstration, it should be added, will by the very nature of the case, have its outshining in the life of each individual thus saved. It may be assumed that, had but one of all the human family been selected for the supreme honor of exhibiting eternally before all created beings the infinity of sovereign grace, the salvation of that one would be no different than the salvation of any one of the unnumbered throng from every kindred, tribe, and people who are saved by grace.’ It would seem, then, that God, in this present age, is pursuing a program through which His infinite grace shall be perfectly displayed throughout all eternity” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 133). (See also our discussion of the manifestation of divine grace as one of the reasons why evil was allowed by God in our chapter A Kingdom Needed.)

The Career of the Church on Earth

The career of the church on earth involves the chronology of the Church Age, developmental details of the church and the fact that God is gathering the church now.

Chronology of the Church Age

While the Bible does not offer a precise or detailed chronology of the Church Age, it does present several overviews of the age, with certain events and circumstances serving as milestones.

The members of the church were chosen before the foundation of the world. “just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before Him. In love He predestined us to adoption as sons through Jesus Christ to Himself, according to the kind intention of His will, to the praise of the glory of His grace, which He freely bestowed on us in the Beloved” (Eph. 1:4–6). “The ‘election’ of the Church antedates the ‘election’ of Israel, for Israel was chosen in Abraham from the foundation of the world (Matt. 25:34), while the Church was chosen in HIM (Jesus) BEFORE the Foundation of the World. (Eph. 1:4-6)” (Larkin, DT, p. 75) “Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world”” (Matt. 25:34).

The church was foreseen by Jesus (it was still future at Jesus’ time). “And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it” (Matt. 16:18). “The church is not directly seen as present in Matthew’s Gospel, excepting as her presence is implied in chapter 13, and is anticipated in 16:18” (Chafer, ST, 5:115). “Chafer [in Kingdom in History and Prophecy, pp. 15-16] identifies these ‘called out ones’ as the Church which was founded at Pentecost in Acts two. That it did not exist even in the gospel period is evident from the fact that when Christ first mentioned the Church it was still future” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 442).

The “keys of the Kingdom” were given to Peter. “And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it. I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatever you shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven” (Matt. 16:18–19). “But Peter, taking his stand with the eleven, raised his voice and declared to them: ‘Men of Judea, and all you who live in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and give heed to my words... Men of Israel, listen to these words: Jesus the Nazarene, a man attested to you by God with miracles and wonders and signs which God performed through Him in your midst, just as you yourselves know — this Man, delivered up by the predetermined plan and foreknowledge of God, you nailed to a cross by the hands of godless men and put Him to death. And God raised Him up again, putting an end to the agony of death, since it was impossible for Him to be held in its power... Brethren, I may confidently say to you regarding the patriarch David that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. And so, because he was a prophet, and knew that GOD HAD SWORN TO HIM WITH AN OATH TO SEAT one OF HIS DESCENDANTS UPON HIS THRONE, he looked ahead and spoke of the resurrection of the Christ, that HE WAS NEITHER ABANDONED TO HADES, NOR DID His flesh SUFFER DECAY. This Jesus God raised up again, to which we are all witnesses. Therefore having been exalted to the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, He has poured forth this which you both see and hear. For it was not David who ascended into heaven, but he himself says: "THE LORD SAID TO MY LORD, 'SIT AT MY RIGHT HAND, UNTIL I MAKE THINE ENEMIES A FOOTSTOOL FOR THY FEET'" Therefore let all the house of Israel know for certain that God has made Him both Lord and Christ — this Jesus whom you crucified.' Now when they heard this, they were pierced to the heart, and said to Peter and the rest of the apostles, 'Brethren, what shall we do?' And Peter said to them, 'Repent, and let each of you be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins; and you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise is for you and your children, and for all who are far off, as many as the Lord our God shall call to Himself.' And with many other words he solemnly testified and kept on exhorting them, saying, 'Be saved from this perverse generation'" (Acts 2:14-40)! "And opening his mouth, Peter said: 'I most certainly understand now that God is not one to show partiality, but in every nation the man who fears Him and does what is right, is welcome to Him. The word which He sent to the sons of Israel, preaching peace through Jesus Christ (He is Lord of all) — you yourselves know the thing which took place throughout all Judea, starting from Galilee, after the baptism which John proclaimed. You know of Jesus of Nazareth, how God anointed Him with the Holy Spirit and with power, and how He went about doing good, and healing all who were oppressed by the devil; for God was with Him. And we are witnesses of all the things He did both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem. And they also put Him to death by hanging Him on a cross. God raised Him up on the third day, and granted that He should become visible, not to all the people, but to witnesses who were chosen beforehand by God, that is, to us, who ate and drank with Him after He arose from the dead. And He ordered us to preach to the people, and solemnly to testify that this is the One who has been appointed by God as Judge of the living and the dead. Of Him all the prophets bear witness that through His name everyone who believes in Him receives forgiveness of sins.' While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit fell upon all those who were listening to the message. And all the circumcised believers who had come with Peter were amazed, because the gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out upon the Gentiles also. For they were hearing them speaking with tongues and exalting God. Then Peter answered, ‘Surely no one can refuse the water for these to be baptized who have received the Holy Spirit just as we did, can he?’ And he ordered them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. Then they asked him to stay on for a few days” (Acts 10:34–48). “The Keys of the ‘Kingdom of Heaven’ that were given to Peter were the ‘Keys’ by which he opened the way into the ‘Kingdom of Heaven’ to the Jews at Pentecost, Acts 2:14-40, and later to the Gentiles in the house of Cornelius at Caesarea. Acts 10:34-48” (Larkin, DT, p. 77).

The church began at Pentecost. “And I also say to you that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it” (Matt. 16:18). “And gathering them together, He commanded them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait for what the Father had promised, ‘Which,’ He said, ‘you heard of from Me; for John baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now” (Acts 1:4-5). “And when the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. And suddenly there came from heaven a noise like a violent, rushing wind, and it filled the whole house where they were sitting. And there appeared to them tongues as of fire distributing themselves, and they rested on each one of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit was giving them utterance” (Acts 2:1–4). “And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell on them, even as on us at the beginning. And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he said, John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized in the Holy Spirit” (Acts 11:15-16). “For by one Spirit we were all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether slaves or free, and we were all made to drink of one Spirit” (1 Cor. 12:13). “Nevertheless I tell you the truth, it is good for you that I go away; for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you,’ etc. (John 16:7)... why the Holy Spirit... could not come unless Jesus went away... because the sinfulness of the nation had postponed the predicted promised Coming of the Spirit with the Kingdom” (Peters, TTK, 1:624) “The Church, therefore, could not have been in existence before there was a Head, for God does not make headless things... 1 Cor. 12:12, 13... ‘by one Spirit are we baptized into One Body’... it is the ‘Baptism of the Spirit’ that incorporates us into the ‘BODY OF CHRIST.’ Therefore there could be no Church until the ‘Day of Pentecost.’ Acts 1:4, 5; 2:1-4” (Larkin, DT, p. 75) “Amillenarians usually hold that the Spirit indwelt saints in the Old Testament, regenerated them, and empowered them in much the same manner as in the New Testament. By contrast, premillenarians normally view the present work of the Holy Spirit in the church as distinct from all other ages, and the baptism of the Holy Spirit as unique” (Walvoord, MK, p. 75). “The dispensationalist insists that the Church was born at Pentecost and not with Adam or Abraham” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 421). “There is no biblical evidence that the Church began either with Adam or Abraham or that it existed in the Old Testament. The use of the future tense in Matthew 16:18 shows it did not exist in the gospel history either” (ibid., p. 681).

The duration of the Church Age is from Pentecost to the Rapture of the church. “Dispensationalism limits the invisible Church to the elect of the period between Pentecost and the Rapture” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 176). “...the Mystery Kingdom is limited in time, from the rejection of the Messiahship of Jesus until the acceptance of the Messiahship of Jesus” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 670)

No detailed chronology of the Church Age is given in the Bible. “Since to the Church, from the day of its birth on Pentecost, the coming of the Lord is always imminent, obviously there could be no chronological chart of ecclesiastical history given in advance” (McClain, GK, p. 449). “If in the seven churches [of Revelation chapters 2 and 3] there was prophetically revealed the entire history of the Church in seven successive eras, and if these eras could be identified with certainty in advance of the history, then it is obvious that the coming of the Lord could not occur at any point short of the seventh era” (ibid.). “The true explanation may be that in the seven churches of the Apocalypse the Holy Spirit did give a latent revelation of the Church’s career on earth, but so obscure that it could not be clearly discerned until the last or Laodicean era had been reached... Such a method of revelation is not novel in Scripture; for the Second Advent of our Lord could not be certainly identified in Old Testament prophecy until the First Advent had been realized in history” (ibid.).

Rather than resulting in the conversion of the world, the last days of the church are to be days of apostasy, unbelief, wickedness, self-sufficiency, lukewarmness, sleepiness and failure. “There are last days for Israel and last days for the church, a distinction which the amillennialists do not make” (Feinberg, M, p. 317). There will be apostasy, “Many will say to Me on that day, ‘Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in Your name, and in Your name cast out demons, and in Your name perform many miracles?’ And then I will declare to them, ‘I never knew you; depart from Me, you who practice lawlessness’” (Matt. 7:22–23). “For if one comes and preaches another Jesus whom we have not preached, or you receive a different spirit which you have not received, or a different gospel which you have not accepted, you bear this beautifully” (2 Cor. 11:4). “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction” (2 Thes. 2:1-3) “The term Day of the Lord is always a reference to the Tribulation period” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 67). “But the Spirit explicitly says that in later times some will fall away from the faith, paying attention to deceitful spirits and doctrines of demons, by means of the hypocrisy of liars seared in their own conscience as with a branding iron, men who forbid marriage and advocate abstaining from foods, which God has created to be gratefully shared in by those who believe and know the truth” (1 Tim. 4:1-3). “But realize this, that in the last days difficult times will come. For men will be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, arrogant, revilers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, unholy, unloving, irreconcilable, malicious gossips, without self-control, brutal, haters of good, treacherous, reckless, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God; holding to a form of godliness, although they have denied its power; and avoid such men as these. For among them are those who enter into households and captivate weak women weighed down with sins, led on by various impulses, always learning and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth. And just as Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses, so these men also oppose the truth, men of depraved mind, rejected as regards the faith. But they will not make further progress; for their folly will be obvious to all, as also that of those two came to be. But you followed my teaching, conduct, purpose, faith, patience, love, perseverance, persecutions, and sufferings, such as happened to me at Antioch, at Iconium and at Lystra; what persecutions I endured, and out of them all the Lord delivered me! And indeed, all who desire to live godly in Christ Jesus will be persecuted. But evil men and impostors will proceed from bad to worse, deceiving and being deceived” (2 Tim. 3:1-13). “For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but wanting to have their ears tickled, they will accumulate for themselves teachers in accordance to their own desires; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and will turn aside to myths” (2 Tim. 4:3-4). “But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will also be false teachers among you, who will secretly introduce destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, bringing swift destruction upon themselves. And many will follow their sensuality, and because of them the way of the truth will be maligned; and in their greed they will exploit you with false words; their judgment from long ago is not idle, and their destruction is not asleep” (2 Pet. 2:1-3). “Know this first of all, that in the last days mockers will come with their mocking, following after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation’” (2 Pet. 3:3-4). “and every spirit that does not confess Jesus is not from God; and this is the spirit of the antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming, and now it is already in the world” (1 John. 4:3). “But you, beloved, ought to remember the words that were spoken beforehand by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, that they were saying to you, ‘In the last time there shall be mockers, following after their own ungodly lusts.’ These are the ones who cause divisions, worldly-minded, devoid of the Spirit” (Jude 1:17-20). “If men have erred, if even the multitude have gone astray, it is only what the Bible has predicted, has threatened, has warned us against, and has pointed out as the natural result of human wisdom, weakness, and depravity. Hence, as in the present case, when but few really entertain the truth on a given subject, instead of feeling that this is antagonistic to the truth, we ought rather to say that it precisely corresponds with what God Himself asserts respecting it” (Peters, TTK, 1:329). “The reader will observe that if our doctrine had always remained the generally received doctrine of the church it would not meet the requirements of prediction respecting the lack of faith in Christ’s coming, the attitude of professed servants who say that He delayeth His coming, the abounding of unbelief and apostasy, etc.” (ibid., p. 520) “...this dispensation... as one that will end in unbelief and Apostasy, just like previous dispensations, proving both the continued inherent depravity of man and the non-erection of the covenanted Kingdom” (ibid., p. 588) “...the predicted blindness and lack of faith in Christ’s coming and Kingdom, characteristic of the world and the Church before the Sec. Advent... This is the position of the multitude—just as the Word predicts” (ibid., p. 667). “Churches, counting their thousands upon thousands, utterly reject a personal Sec. Advent, and the leaven is penetrating far and wide” (ibid., 2:184). “We hold to this Pre-Mill. Coming as personal, because we are plainly told that as the Millennial age draws nigh, the world, and even the professed Church, will be disinclined to believe in a personal Coming. The world shall reject the doctrine and ridicule it; the Church as a body shall slumber and sleep; professed servants shall say, ‘My Lord delayeth His Coming;’ and many shall declare, ‘Where is the promise of His

Coming?’ ‘When the Son of Man cometh shall He find faith on the earth?’ Surely He would find such, if the earth just emerged from Millennial glory, but in the darkness, etc., preceding that age, faith is almost extinct in His Coming” (ibid., p. 186). “...it would require time, and probably a long time, for such an apostasy to develop itself into the giant form of wickedness predicted” (ibid., p. 210). “...the assault against the Bible and Christianity with a boldness and a success (because acceptable to human nature), that is astonishing” (ibid., 3:115). “...the treatment of prophecy by unbelief in and without the Church. Its neglect, scornful allusions, contempt, etc., evidence that we are nearing the end” (ibid., p. 131). “Much that men eloquently describe as ‘light’ is ‘darkness’ with God, and this holds good both in and out of the professing Church” (ibid., p. 137). “Truth did not gain the victory from creation to the deluge, nor from the deluge to the First Advent, nor from the First Advent to the present... the three great eras in the history of the race... The primitive Christianity did not obtain the alleged victory, for the history of the Church conclusively proves that the Alexandrian philosophy, the hierarchical tendencies, etc. prevailed, and that colossal error gained the day, as witnessed in the fearful usurpations and the dark ages that followed” (ibid., p. 258). “The general character of these days—always to be dissociated from the last days for Israel (cf. Acts 2:17 [“AND IT SHALL BE IN THE LAST DAYS, God says, THAT I WILL POUR FORTH OF MY SPIRIT ON ALL MANKIND; AND YOUR SONS AND YOUR DAUGHTERS SHALL PROPHECY, AND YOUR YOUNG MEN SHALL SEE VISIONS, AND YOUR OLD MEN SHALL DREAM DREAMS;”])—is described in a well-defined body of Scripture (cf. 1 Tim. 4:1-3; 2 Tim. 3:1-5; James 5:1-10; 2 Pet 2:1ff.; Jude 1:1-25; Rev 3:14-22)” (Chafer, ST, 4:395). “Before the Tribulation is to begin, the apostasy must come first. Thus, it was inevitable that the church would become apostate in the closing days of its history” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 67). “1 Timothy 4:1-3... This passage declares that the source of apostasy is demons, for apostates have essentially given in to seducing spirits and are preaching a system of doctrine which is a doctrine of demons... their conscience has become insensitive” (ibid., p. 68). “2 Peter 2:1-22... Reading through the passage, one does not see Peter displaying any attitude of love or tolerance toward the apostates. The Bible is not tolerant toward apostasy and it castigates it very severely, as these verses clearly show” (ibid., p. 70). “What, after all, is the mark of the apostate? In 2 Peter 2:1, their teachings are portrayed as destructive denials: ‘...denying even the Master that bought them’... the content of apostate teaching involves the denial of the Person (the Master) and work (bought them) of the Messiah... 1 John 2:22-23:

‘...Whosoever denies the Son, the same has not the Father’... Thus, the teachings of apostasy involve the destructive denials of the Person and work of the Messiah, especially with regard to His place in the Trinity, His deity, His incarnation as the God-Man by means of the Virgin Birth, and the fact that He is coming back physically” (ibid.). “Jude 17-19... ‘...mockers...’ One type of deed that will be performed by apostates is mockery (vv. 17-18). They will mock the fundamentals of the faith such as the verbal inspiration of the Scriptures, the Virgin Birth, the substitutionary death of the Messiah, and His physical resurrection from the dead” (ibid., p. 71). “So throughout the first two decades of the twentieth century, apostasy took over the schools and trained ministers for the denominational churches. In an effort to stem the tide, in 1910 the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church issued the Five Fundamentals of the Faith, which included: first, the inspiration of Scriptures; second, the Virgin Birth; third, the substitutionary atonement; fourth, the resurrection of Jesus; and fifth, the miracles of Jesus. Those who subscribed to these five points were labeled ‘Fundamentalists,’ and so a new word was coined. Those who denied these fundamentals were called Modernists or Liberals. The General Assembly issued these in 1910 and reaffirmed them in 1916 and 1923” (ibid., p. 73). “...the visible church is primarily apostate today” (ibid., p. 74). “...experience... of God... The most common evidence is that it makes them feel happy and joyful, though this does not take into account that any kind of emotional release of this nature will make one feel better. Even unbelievers can have this same experience. Furthermore, Satan would not be a very good deceiver if he made one feel badly, would he? Satan can give people joyful and happy experiences, and doing so would be in his best interest if that—rather than the Word of God—becomes the final authority for determining spiritual truth” (ibid.). “...verbal pronouncements, such as ‘Praise the Lord’ or ‘Praise Jesus,’ or some similar-sounding phrase that is consistently repeated. What the Bible-based observer must realize is that this is merely a formula, much like those who recite a mantra in eastern religions... they have learned to fear God on the basis of man-made and man-induced experiences, rather than on the basis of the Word of God... More and more, as people seek deeper and deeper experiences, they spend less and less time actually in the discipline of studying the Word of God, and they reach a point where they begin to totally lack understanding of the Word of God. While they can regularly do ‘God-talk’ and ‘Jesus-speak,’ when they begin to deal with the concrete details of the Word of God, they are at a total loss. The more experiential they become, the less they understand of the Word of God” (ibid., p. 77). “Matthew 7:22–23... No doubt, it was their frequent use of Jesus’ name that deceived so many... prophesy... cast out demons... many mighty works... Here one has all the ingredients of some of the things that are happening in the new wave of apostasy. The name of Jesus is heavily used in almost ritual-mantra style, all kinds of signs and wonders are claimed to occur, and yet, by themselves these things do not prove anything because Satan can duplicate these” (ibid., p. 81). “Because the Corinthian Church based so much about its life on experience and the supernatural, that is what opened it up for deception by false teachers” (ibid.). “2 Corinthians 11:4... ‘...preaches another Jesus of the same kind, whom we did not preach...’... It should be noted that the name being used to foster the work of deception is the name of Jesus... But the mere usage of the name ‘Jesus,’ even in the context of words like ‘praise,’ ‘glory,’ etc., does not and should not authenticate anyone’s ministry” (ibid., p. 82). “What will attract an audience is people who can do things to make one feel good, even if the feeling is nothing more than an emotional release; but if the feeling can be ascribed to a supernatural work of God, the recipient has been deceived” (ibid., p. 83). “First Corinthians 4:6 states: ‘...not to go beyond the things which are written;...’ The focus on the experiential only showed that they were not spiritual, but carnal (1 Cor. 3:1-3). Paul must especially admonish a church of this nature not to go beyond the things which are written” (ibid.). “And I, brethren, could not speak to you as to spiritual men, but as to men of flesh, as to babes in Christ. I gave you milk to drink, not solid food; for you were not yet able to receive it. Indeed, even now you are not yet able, for you are still fleshly. For since there is jealousy and strife among you, are you not fleshly, and are you not walking like mere men” (1 Cor. 3:1-3)? “2 Timothy 3:12-4:4: ‘...all that would live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution... abide in the things which you have learned... that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work...’ Paul gives a simple message that is largely ignored by much of the modern movements today: those who seek to live godly lives will suffer persecution (v. 12). The truth is that health and wealth are not signs of divine favor or spirituality. Rather, it is being persecuted for the faith that is a sign of a truly godly person... The word abide has the basic meaning, ‘to make your home.’ He is to make his home in the sacred writings... furnished completely unto every good work... One can become spiritual and mature in the faith through the Scriptures alone. However, this will take the discipline of studying the Word of God, spending hours, days, weeks, and years of a lifetime to comprehend more and more of the Word of God. But in this technological age, people have become lazy and, therefore, seek the ‘instant breakfast’ approach to spirituality, sometimes even feeling they have become a god themselves” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 84). “2 Timothy 4:3... ‘...endure sound doctrine...’ We are living in a day when the majority of believers in our churches simply cannot endure sound doctrine. In place of expository teaching of the Word, there are, instead, ‘Christian amusement parks’ and Christian talk shows that carry little, if any, doctrinal substance. A speaker who causes people to become hysterical or act like animals or fall down, can fill up entire stadiums with thousands upon thousands of people who will eventually be asked to empty their pockets for the offering. But one who comes to expound the Word of God, to impart an understanding of the Scriptures and sound doctrine, will draw a relatively tiny audience. Indeed, the time and day have arrived when men cannot endure sound doctrine” (ibid., p. 86). “Most mega-churches today were not built up through expository teaching, but through entertainment. Church programs are based on what people want, not what they need” (ibid.). “The reason Timothy will not be swept aside to follow fables is because he is basing his entire life, teaching, and ministry on the sacred writings” (ibid.). “and that from childhood you have known the sacred writings which are able to give you the wisdom that leads to salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus” (2 Tim. 3:15). “Satan... he tries to keep believers from growing in the faith by overwhelming them with circumstances or by keeping them away from the Word of God through shallow teaching and focusing on experiences” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 658). “...the carnal man ([1 Cor.] 3:1-3)... he seeks to fill his spiritual needs through worldly things and experiences” (ibid., p. 659) “([2 Tim.] 4:3-4)... For the time will come when they [believers] will not endure the sound doctrine; therefore, they will run to teachers who scratch their itching ears” (ibid., p. 660). unbelief, “Even the very condition of unbelief assumed by the Church and the world respecting the means to inaugurate the Kingdom and the Kingdom itself, confirms our faith, seeing that such a state of unbelief in God’s predictions, and promises, and mode of procedure, is to be characteristic of the last times. Unbelief in the covenanted and predicted restored Theocratic Kingdom is pre-eminently characteristic of the Church and world today” (Peters, TTK, 3:588). wickedness, “Wickedness is always proportionate to the amount of light enjoyed, and if the advantages, privileges, testimony, etc., of the present day are regarded, the wickedness is far greater than at any other time, being the more inexcusable” (Peters, TTK, 3:123). self-sufficiency, “Come now, you rich, weep and howl for your miseries which are coming upon you. Your riches have rotted and your garments have become moth-eaten. Your gold and your silver have rusted; and their rust will be a witness against you and will consume your flesh like fire. It is in the last days that you have stored up your treasure! Behold, the pay of the laborers who mowed your fields, and which has been withheld by you, cries out against you; and the outcry of those who did the harvesting has reached the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. You have lived luxuriously on the earth and led a life of wanton pleasure; you have fattened your hearts in a day of slaughter. You have condemned and put to death the righteous man; he does not resist you. Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious produce of the soil, being patient about it, until it gets the early and late rains. You too be patient; strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand. Do not complain, brethren, against one another, that you yourselves may not be judged; behold, the Judge is standing right at the door. As an example, brethren, of suffering and patience, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord” (James 5:1–10). “Because you say, “I am rich, and have become wealthy, and have need of nothing,” and you do not know that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked” (Rev. 3:17) “we ‘have need of nothing,’ i.e., we are indeed rich, having enough of everything. Having wealth, with a spirit of self-complacency, they deem themselves elevated to a high and favored condition” (Peters, TTK, p. 129). “the churches... are largely leavened with unbelief and pleased with their prosperity” (ibid., p. 133) “Ch. Sabine (a layman) in his letter to Dr. Raffles, author of the Jubilee Hymn (a hymn illustrative of this sign), says: ‘We find that some ministers are preaching that the world is ripening into glory; others, that it is ripening for judgment. We know that both cannot be true. We take the standard of truth in our hands at home, in our closets, and we find that one class is teaching a Bible truth, the other a Popish fable. Ought these things so to be? “If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself for the battle?” If one pulpit proclaims: “Peace and safety The Lord delayeth His Coming,” and another, “Watch, for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh,” who can be surprised if the joyous world looks on, listens and laughs? And listen and laugh it does—such a laugh of merry mockery! And Satan listens and laughs too—oh, such a laugh of malicious joy. And the harlot laughs as she hands round the gilded cup, and sings for very wantonness, “I sit a queen forever; I shall see no sorrow. The Lord delayeth His Coming. Thou hast much goods laid up for many years. Eat, drink and be merry.” ... In this connection the student will not forget that the Church itself is represented as esteeming itself rich and on the road to prosperity, when really on the broad road to a terrible ordeal. Alas the blindness of men” (ibid., p. 136). “The richer the endowments, the more extended the investments, the less inclination is there to return to the early belief of the Church” (ibid., p. 249). lukewarmness, “And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: The Amen, the faithful and true Witness, the Beginning of the creation of God, says this: “I know your deeds, that you are neither cold nor hot; I would that you were cold or hot. So because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of My mouth. Because you say, “I am rich, and have become wealthy, and have need of nothing,” and you do not know that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked, I advise you to buy from Me gold refined by fire, that you may become rich, and white garments, that you may clothe yourself, and that the shame of your nakedness may not be revealed; and eye salve to anoint your eyes, that you may see. Those whom I love, I reprove and discipline; be zealous therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him, and will dine with him, and he with Me. He who overcomes, I will grant to him to sit down with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches” (Rev. 3:14-22). sleepiness, “And what I say to you I say to all, “Be on the alert”” (Mark 13:37)! “The contrast between the two views is great. The one prophesies ‘smooth things,’ administering to the Church, what Mather called ‘the sleeping medicine’” (Peters, TTK, p. 198) and failure. “And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write:... “I know your deeds... because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of My mouth. Because you say, “I am rich, and have become wealthy, and have need of nothing,” and you do not know that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked, I advise you to buy from Me gold refined by fire, that you may become rich, and white garments, that you may clothe yourself, and that the shame of your nakedness may not be revealed; and eye salve to anoint your eyes, that you may see” (Rev. 3:14-18). “The Bible does not tell us that down to the Sec. Advent the Gospel will be accepted by the masses, but exactly the reverse” (Peters, TTK, 2:732). “The visible church, too, is a failure in her testimony for Christ. See Revelation 2 and 3, as well as the epistles of Paul” (Feinberg, M, p. 246). “...pretribulationists assign Matthew 24:14 and Revelation 7:1-8 to the Jewish remnant at the end of Israel’s age... the church... fail to do in two thousand years what a Jewish remnant will accomplish in seven years... Sadly enough, is not the final record of the church on earth one of failure (cf. the church of Laodicea in Rev. 3 and Paul’s epistles with Peter’s and John’s), just as Israel was a failure in her mission before the beginning of the times of the Gentiles?”

Why cavil at whomever it pleases God to use in any age to accomplish His glorious purpose among men? Let God be praised that it is done” (ibid., p. 301)! However, even in the darkest of the last days, God will retain some, if but few, faithful believers. “It is reasonable to expect from the past dealings of God, that, in His providence, He will raise up men, who, amid sarcasm, ridicule, charges of error, heresy, folly, enthusiasm, fanaticism, etc., will, Noah-like, faithfully point to this personal Coming, and warn the Church and world of its approach by direct appeals” (Peters, TTK, 2:186). “Thus we have the Spirit, in the most various and accommodating forms, shaping His revelations to sustain our weakness and preserve us from forsaking ‘the old paths’ of belief” (ibid.). “2 Tim. 4:3, 4... No matter how great the apostasy, how mighty the defection, yet as the design of this dispensation is to gather out them that believe, to call and save some in order to form a chosen body in the Theocratic ordering, there always must, and will be, a true and faithful people of God; not indeed, as some foolishly and arrogantly claim, all belonging to this or that body of professing believers, but found in the various denominations, God-obeying and fearing men and women who have heartily embraced the Saviour provided for them” (ibid., 3:120). “As the end approaches it is reasonable to expect that a clearer conception of the nature of the Kingdom and its cognate doctrines will be presented, but this very exhibition will meet with continued unbelief and opposition” (ibid., p. 259).

And, the Church Age concludes with the Rapture of the church. (See our discussion of the fact that the Rapture of the church closes the Church Age in the Purposes of the Rapture section of our next chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Developmental Details of the Church

Many of the developmental details of the church are outlined in the “Mystery Kingdom” parables of Matthew chapter thirteen and in the letters to the seven congregations of Revelation chapters two and three. “The age from the rejection of the Messiah by Israel unto His reception by Israel at the second advent is outlined in two portions of the Word: Matthew thirteen and Revelation two and three; the former from the viewpoint of God’s kingdom program, and the latter from the viewpoint of the church program” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 138).

Matthew Chapter Thirteen

In Matthew chapter thirteen, immediately following Jesus’ rejection by the Jewish leaders in chapter twelve (see our chapter Rejection of the King), Jesus outlined the new, never-before-disclosed “Mystery” facet of the Kingdom that was now to transpire during the time period between His rejection and His Second Coming. “Jesus answered them, ‘To you it has been granted to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been granted’” (Matt. 13:11). “And He was saying to them, ‘To you has been given the mystery of the kingdom of God, but those who are outside get everything in parables’” (Mark 4:11) “And He said, ‘To you it has been granted to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to the rest it is in parables, so that SEEING THEY MAY NOT SEE, AND HEARING THEY MAY NOT UNDERSTAND’” (Luke 8:10). “Let any man with unprejudiced mind consider the opinions that the Disciples, Apostles and early Church entertained, and then compare them with those now so prevalent, and he will see abundant reason for a most careful re-examination of the whole subject, for between the two there is a most decided conflict... the parables were designed, as some assert (Lange Com., Matt., vol. 1, p. 237), to show the difference between the true Kingdom of Christ and ‘the carnal’ expectations of the Jews... In this discussion, the vital difference that exists between our view and that of others is, that we hold that the parables teach what is preparatory or introductory to the Kingdom, whilst they maintain that the parables refer directly to a Kingdom already in existence, and describe its condition, etc.” (Peters, TTK, 2:17) “The parables cannot be opposed to the oath-bound Covenant” (ibid., p. 19). “We assert, in view of what has already been proven respecting the Kingdom, that no mere human intellect could have devised such a skilfully arranged mode of conveying the most unpalatable (i.e. to Jews) truths” (ibid.). “Acts 1:6... the parables and the expounding of them privately by Jesus did not remove the Jewish conception of the Kingdom out of the minds of the disciples... the Apostles (accusing them of gross misconception and of having preached a Kingdom never to be realized)” (ibid.) “And so when they had come together, they were asking Him, saying, ‘Lord, is it at this time You are restoring the kingdom to Israel’” (Acts 1:6)? “The Kingdom is one thing and the mysteries pertaining to it quite another. Neither Covenant nor prophecy present us a hidden Kingdom” (Peters, TTK, 2:17). “and when they were alone He expounded all things to His disciples.’... Either the expounding of Jesus amounted to nothing or availed nothing, or else it confirmed the disciples in the covenanted Kingdom as believed in by them. The latter is the truth, honorable both to Jesus and Apostles” (ibid., p. 22). “The parables of Jesus... teach... what are the preparations for the Theocratic Kingdom” (ibid., p. 25). “The end of the mystery parables does not coincide, however, with the end of the church age, because the tares and bad fish are disposed of after the end of the church age. The tares of the mystery kingdom, a part of professing Christendom, continue on and are absorbed in mystery Babylon, which is destroyed during the Tribulation period” (Feinberg, M, p. 152). “This particular series of parables is not only concerned with ‘the kingdom of heaven,’ or ‘of God,’ but more specifically with the ‘mysteries’ of that Kingdom (Matt. 13:11; Mark 4:11; Luke 8:10)” (McClain, GK, p. 324). “Among the mysteries of the Kingdom revealed here privately to the disciples by the Lord, the most important has to do with the mystery of an interregnum which is to follow the arrival of the King and continue until His second coming. Though implicit there, this is something not revealed in Old Testament prophecy, and it could not be made known clearly until the King’s rejection had become historically certain. But now, in the progress of events, the time has come for its revelation to the disciples, and this is done in the Lord’s explanation of the parable of the ‘tares of the field’ (Matt. 13:36-43)” (ibid., p. 325). “What is certain in the teaching of these difficult parables is that the present age, viewed from the standpoint of the Kingdom, is a time of preparation. During this period the Son of man is sowing seed (vs. 37), generating and developing a spiritual nucleus for the future Kingdom, a group called ‘sons of the kingdom’ (vs. 38, ASV). At the same time He is permitting a parallel development of evil in the world under the leadership of Satan (vss. 38-39). It is the purpose of God to bring both to a ‘harvest,’ when the good and bad will be separated, and then to establish the Kingdom in power and righteousness (vss. 41-43, 49)” (ibid., p. 441). “The absence in Matthew 13 of any mention of the ekklesia, or of its pretribulation Rapture, is not strange; for such mention at this point would be completely unhistorical in the progress of divine revelation” (ibid.). “In approaching Matthew 13, one should observe first that the truth about the church as the body of Christ has not yet been introduced, as this is not mentioned until Matthew 16:18. Further, the doctrine of the Rapture has not been introduced either, and the disciples were unaware of the truth of the translation of the saints at the end of the church age. Accordingly, the truth presented in Matthew 13 deals with the whole period between the First and the Second Advents” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 182). “...the time period covered by the parables in Matthew 13 extends from Israel’s rejection until its future reception of the Messiah. Thus this new program began while Christ was still on the earth, and it will extend until His return to the earth in power and great glory... This period includes within it the period from Pentecost in Acts 2 to the Rapture, that is, the age of grace (which we can also call the age of the Holy Spirit, or the age of the church). Although this period includes the Church Age, it extends beyond it, for the parables of Matthew 13 precede Pentecost and extend beyond the Rapture. Thus these parables do not primarily concern the nature, function, and influence of the church. Rather, they show the previously unrevealed form in which God's theocratic rule would be exerted in a previously unrevealed age, made necessary by Israel's rejection of Christ" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 220). "Following the rejection of Christ's offer of Himself as the Messiah by the leaders in the nation, Christ revealed a new form in which the theocratic kingdom would be administered in the age falling between Israel's rejection of Christ as Messiah, the Son of God, and the nation's future acceptance of Him as Messiah at His second advent. Christ revealed the essential features of the new form of the kingdom in the parables which He taught, recorded mainly in Matthew 13" (ibid., p. 228).

These "Mystery Kingdom" parables are found primarily in Matthew chapter thirteen, with some additions and some duplication in Mark and Luke.

The first "Mystery Kingdom" parable is that of The Sower. "And He spoke many things to them in parables, saying, 'Behold, the sower went out to sow; and as he sowed, some seeds fell beside the road, and the birds came and ate them up. And others fell upon the rocky places, where they did not have much soil; and immediately they sprang up, because they had no depth of soil. But when the sun had risen, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they withered away. And others fell among the thorns, and the thorns came up and choked them out. And others fell on the good soil, and yielded a crop, some a hundredfold, some sixty, and some thirty. He who has ears, let him hear'" (Matt. 13:3-9). "Hear then the parable of the sower. When anyone hears the word of the kingdom, and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what has been sown in his heart. This is the one on whom seed was sown beside the road. And the one on whom seed was sown on the rocky places, this is the man who hears the word, and immediately receives it with joy; yet he has no firm root in himself, but is only temporary, and when affliction or persecution arises because of the word, immediately he falls away. And the one on whom seed was sown among the thorns, this is the man who hears the word, and the worry of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful. And the one on whom seed was sown on the good soil, this is the man who hears the word and understands it; who indeed bears fruit, and brings forth, some a hundredfold, some sixty, and some thirty" (Matt. 13:18-23). (See also Mark 4:2-9, 13-19 and Luke 8:4-8, 11-15.) "in the parable of the Sower 'the seed' is 'the word of the Kingdom,' i.e. a word which tells of and prepares for the Kingdom" (Peters, TTK, 2:27) "It is to be understood, then, from that parable that during the time the kingdom is not established on earth as prophesied, there will be only a partial success for the Word that is preached. In the parable of the sower and the one following, the emphasis of truth seems to be placed upon the beginning of the kingdom in mystery form” (Feinberg, M, p. 136). “During the course of the age there will be a decreasing response to the sowing of the seed, from ‘a hundredfold’ to ‘sixty’ to ‘thirty.’ Such is the course of the age” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 146). “While this parable is commonly called ‘The Parable of the Sower’ (i.e., the NIV heading), it might perhaps better be entitled ‘The Parable of the Soils’” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 221).

The second is the parable of The Seed. “And He was saying, ‘The kingdom of God is like a man who casts seed upon the soil; and goes to bed at night and gets up by day, and the seed sprouts up and grows — how, he himself does not know. The soil produces crops by itself; first the blade, then the head, then the mature grain in the head. But when the crop permits, he immediately puts in the sickle, because the harvest has come’” (Mark 4:26-29). “...the fruit depends not on the sower but on the life that is in the seed itself” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 221).

The third is the parable of The Tares Among the Wheat. “He presented another parable to them, saying, ‘The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a man who sowed good seed in his field. But while men were sleeping, his enemy came and sowed tares also among the wheat, and went away. But when the wheat sprang up and bore grain, then the tares became evident also. And the slaves of the landowner came and said to him, ‘Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? How then does it have tares?’” And he said to them, “An enemy has done this!” And the slaves said to him, “Do you want us, then, to go and gather them up?” But he said, “No; lest while you are gathering up the tares, you may root up the wheat with them. Allow both to grow together until the harvest; and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, ‘First gather up the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them up; but gather the wheat into my barn’”” (Matt. 13:24-30). “Then He left the multitudes, and went into the house. And His disciples came to Him, saying, ‘Explain to us the parable of the tares of the field.’ And He answered and said, ‘The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man, and the field is the world; and as for the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom; and the tares are the sons of the evil one; and the enemy who sowed them is the devil, and the harvest is the end of the age; and the reapers are angels. Therefore just as the tares are gathered up and burned with fire, so shall it be at the end of the age. The Son of Man will send forth His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all stumbling blocks, and those who commit lawlessness, and will cast them into the furnace of fire; in that place there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then the righteous will shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He who has ears, let him hear” (Matt. 13:36-43). “...‘to establish His (Christ’s) Kingdom as a real one, more and more widely among men, and subdue the world to his dominion.’... flatly contradicted by the parable of the tares and wheat” (Peters, TTK, 1:649) “The parable of the Tares and Wheat... above all things His hearers desire to know when it will be established... this parable locates the establishment of the Kingdom at the period of the harvest... ‘the end of the age,’ when the righteous, the gathered wheat, shall ‘shine forth as the Sun’ in the Kingdom” (ibid., 2:21). “The ‘Tares,’ or ‘Darnel,’ so closely resembles Wheat that its true nature cannot be seen until it has matured” (Larkin, DT, p. 89). “This gathering together of the ‘Tares’ into bundles is going on now in the formation of false religious systems such as ‘Christian Science,’ ‘New Thought,’ ‘Millennial Dawnism,’ ‘Spiritualism,’ ‘Mormonism,’ ‘Theosophy,’ etc.” (ibid.) “The ‘Kingdom of Heaven’ is not the Church, but Christendom” (ibid.). “The parable reveals that professing Christendom will be the sphere of activity, not only for the Son of Man and His servants, but also for the devil and his emissaries. Good and bad will be found in the kingdom in its mystery form from the beginning to the end. Only the harvest in a coming day will reveal who are the good and who are the bad” (Feinberg, M, p. 137). “Christendom has a portion within it that is only profession and not possession” (ibid., p. 270). “This parable speaks of a seed-sowing, a period of growth, and a harvest. The harvest is definitely set at the ‘end of the age’ (vs. 39, lit.), or ‘the end of this age’ (vs. 40, lit.)... the interregnum caused by Israel’s rejection of her King... The length of the interregnum is not revealed in the parable, whether long or short” (McClain, GK, p. 325). “Through this parable Jesus prepared these men to be on guard for Satan’s work of sowing false seed, or false doctrine, while they were sowing the good seed. Satan’s false kingdom would continue to exist alongside the new form of God’s kingdom” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 222). “The future harvest through the ministry of God’s children will see many taken into the Lord’s earthly millennial kingdom, which will be established at His second advent... The ‘barn’ into which the wheat will be gathered is Messiah’s millennial kingdom that has been promised to Israel” (ibid.). “Since Satan is an imitator, the weeds he sows bear a striking resemblance to the real thing; and it is not possible until the harvest to distinguish between the wheat and the weeds” (ibid., p. 235). “Jesus described Christendom between His two comings as having both wheat and tares, believers and unbelievers (Matt. 13:24-30)” (Geisler, ST, 4:119).

The fourth is the parable of The Mustard Seed. “He presented another parable to them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field; and this is smaller than all other seeds; but when it is full grown, it is larger than the garden plants, and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and nest in its branches” (Matt. 13:31-32). “And He said, ‘How shall we picture the kingdom of God, or by what parable shall we present it? It is like a mustard seed, which, when sown upon the soil, though it is smaller than all the seeds that are upon the soil, yet when it is sown, grows up and becomes larger than all the garden plants and forms large branches; so that the birds of the air can nest under its shade” (Mark 4:30-32). “Therefore He was saying, ‘What is the kingdom of God like, and to what shall I compare it? It is like a mustard seed, which a man took and threw into his own garden; and it grew and became a tree; and the birds of the air nested in its branches” (Luke 13:18-19). “These present enemies, however, like the unclean birds in the mustard tree, have taken shelter under her branches” (Chafer, ST, 2:104). “The kingdom in mystery comprises the church invisible, but it also has many who, like the birds of the air who seek lodging in the mustard tree, are mere professors and not really children of the kingdom” (Feinberg, M, p. 137). “The parable of the Mustard Seed teaches that the Mystery Kingdom will assume huge outer proportions; it will have an abnormal external growth until it becomes a monstrosity which in turn becomes a resting place for birds. According to the first parable, the birds represent agents of Satan and, therefore, a negative element. Within the umbrella of Christendom will include all types of groups, such as cultic groups which use Christ’s name but deny His deity” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 613). “In the parable of the mustard seed (Mark 4; Luke 13), ‘the kingdom of God’ represents the tree of Christendom that shelters many creatures (Mark 4:32)” (Geisler, ST, 4:462).

The fifth is the parable of The Leaven. “He spoke another parable to them, The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three pecks of meal, until it was all leavened” (Matt. 13:33). “And Jesus said to them, ‘Watch out and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees’” (Matt. 16:6). “How is it that you do not understand that I did not speak to you concerning bread? But beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees.’ Then they understood that He did not say to beware of the leaven of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees” (Matt. 16:11-12). “And He was giving orders to them, saying, ‘Watch out! Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the leaven of Herod’” (Mark 8:15). “Under these circumstances, after so many thousands of the multitude had gathered together that they were stepping on one another, He began saying to His disciples first of all, ‘Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy’” (Luke 12:1). “And again He said, ‘To what shall I compare the kingdom of God? It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three pecks of meal, until it was all leavened’” (Luke 13:20-21). “Your boasting is not good. Do you not know that a little leaven leavens the whole lump of dough? Clean out the old leaven, that you may be a new lump, just as you are in fact unleavened. For Christ our Passover also has been sacrificed. Let us therefore celebrate the feast, not with old leaven, nor with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth” (1 Cor. 5:6-8). “You were running well; who hindered you from obeying the truth? This persuasion did not come from Him who calls you. A little leaven leavens the whole lump of dough” (Gal. 5:6-10) “The ‘Mustard Tree’ represents the ‘external’ growth and condition of the visible Church and the ‘Leaven’ the ‘internal’ development” (Larkin, DT, p. 89). “‘Leaven’ in this Parable is false or corrupting doctrine” (ibid.). “...fire alone can arrest the work of leaven” (ibid., p. 90). “The Parable of the Leaven teaches that the Mystery Kingdom will be marked by inward doctrinal corruption. Frequently, a woman used symbolically is a symbol of a false religious system resulting in spiritual fornication (Rev. 2:20; 17:1-18). Whenever the word leaven is used symbolically, it is always a symbol of sin (1 Cor. 5:6-8) and frequently the specific sin of false doctrine (Matt. 16:6, 11-12). The three measures of meal in which the leaven is hidden points to the fact that Christendom develops into three main divisions: Roman Catholicism, Eastern Orthodoxy, and Protestantism. All three, to a greater or lesser degree, will have false doctrine” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 613).

The sixth is the parable of The Hidden Treasure. “The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hidden in the field, which a man found and hid; and from joy over it he goes and sells all that he has, and buys that field” (Matt. 13:44). “The ‘Treasure’ still remains ‘hid’ in the ‘Field.’ Christ purchased the ‘Field’ on the Cross, but He has not taken possession as yet, and will not until the time comes for the ‘Redemption of the PURCHASED POSSESSION.’ Eph. 1:14. Until that time Israel must remain hid among the Nations. This is one of the ‘Mysteries’ of the ‘Kingdom of Heaven.’ ...Rom. 11:25” (Larkin, DT, p. 91). “In Him we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of His grace, which He lavished upon us. In all wisdom and insight He made known to us the mystery of His will, according to His kind intention which He purposed in Him with a view to an administration suitable to the fulness of the times, that is, the summing up of all things in Christ, things in the heavens and things upon the earth. In Him also we have obtained an inheritance, having been predestined according to His purpose who works all things after the counsel of His will, to the end that we who were the first to hope in Christ should be to the praise of His glory. In Him, you also, after listening to the message of truth, the gospel of your salvation — having also believed, you were sealed in Him with the Holy Spirit of promise, who is given as a pledge of our inheritance, with a view to the redemption of God’s own possession, to the praise of His glory” (Eph. 1:7–14). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “The King was here speaking of the nation Israel, the peculiar treasure of the Lord, hidden as it now [in 1936—ed.] is throughout the world, but yet to be brought forth for blessing attendant upon the establishment of the kingdom in the earth” (Feinberg, M, p. 138). “Throughout the Old Testament, Israel was called God’s ‘treasured possession’ (Ex. 19:5; Deut. 14:2; Ps. 135:4). In the parables of Matthew 13, Christ had already interpreted the field to mean the world (v. 38). Therefore, this parable clearly pictures Israel, God’s peculiar treasure, being taken out of their land because of discipline and scattered throughout the world. This condition became a reality when Titus invaded Jerusalem and expelled the people from the land. Now, in order for the man in the parable to regain the treasure of which he was deprived, it was necessary for him to purchase the field where the treasure was hidden. This Christ did by His death: ‘He is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not only for ours but also for the sins of the whole world’ (1 John 2:2). And it will not be until the Second Advent that this treasure will become the possession of its rightful Owner (Matt. 24:31)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 224). “And He will send forth His angels with A GREAT TRUMPET and THEY WILL GATHER TOGETHER His elect from the four winds, from one end of the sky to the other” (Matt. 24:31). “The Parable of a Treasure Hidden in a Field may emphasize that God will receive to Himself some from among Israel during this present age (Rom. 11:5)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 236). “In the same way then, there has also come to be at the present time a remnant according to God’s gracious choice” (Rom. 11:5). “Treasure is an Old Testament symbol of Israel (Exod. 19:5; Deut. 14:2; Psalm 135:4). This teaches that in spite of the two previous problems [agents of Satan and sin or false doctrine], the Lord will gain a remnant from Israel and there will be Jews who will come to saving faith” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 613). “Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be mine own possession from among all peoples: for all the earth is mine” (Ex. 19:5) “For thou art a holy people unto Jehovah thy God, and Jehovah hath chosen thee to be a people for his own possession, above all peoples that are upon the face of the earth” (Deut. 14:2). “For Jehovah hath chosen Jacob unto himself, And Israel for his own possession” (Ps. 135:4). “In Matthew 13:44, the Mystery Kingdom is compared to a treasure hidden in the field; the point of this parable is that during the period of the Mystery Kingdom, God will gain a remnant from Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 820). “...the hidden treasure... Christ came to purchase His treasured possession (Israel)” (Geisler, ST, 4:483).

The seventh is the parable of The Costly Pearl. “Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking fine pearls, and upon finding one pearl of great value, he went and sold all that he had, and bought it” (Matt. 13:45-46). “We see from this Parable that the purpose of this Dispensation is not the conversion of the World, but the securing (formation) of the Church” (Larkin, DT, p. 91). “The... parable of the pearl of great price has reference to the church, for which the King gave himself” (Feinberg, M, p. 138). “...a pearl comes out of the sea, and quite frequently in Scripture the sea represents Gentile nations” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 224). “...the pearl comes from the sea, and the sea symbolizes the Gentile world (Dan. 7:2-3; Rev. 17:1, 15). Finally, the pearl comes from the oyster, which itself was unclean in the Law of Moses but made clean by the Law of Messiah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 668). “Daniel said, ‘I was looking in my vision by night, and behold, the four winds of heaven were stirring up the great sea. And four great beasts were coming up from the sea, different from one another” (Dan. 7:2-3). “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the judgment of the great harlot who sits on many waters” (Rev. 17:1) “And he said to me, ‘The waters which you saw where the harlot sits, are peoples and multitudes and nations and tongues” (Rev. 17:15). “...the pearl... Christ gave His life to provide redemption for the church” (Geisler, ST, 4:483).

The eighth is the parable of The Dragnet. “Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a dragnet cast into the sea, and gathering fish of every kind; and when it was filled, they drew it up on the beach; and they sat down, and gathered the good fish into containers, but the bad they threw away. So it will be at the end of the age; the angels shall come forth, and take out the wicked from among the righteous, and will cast them into the furnace of fire; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth” (Matt. 13:47-50). “...this new form of the kingdom will conclude in a judgment separating the righteous from the unrighteous... Matthew 25:1-30 [parables of the ten virgins and of the talents—ed.], where Christ predicted judgment on the nation Israel, and in verses 31-46 [the sheep and goats judgment—ed.] where He described judgment on living Gentiles” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 224). (See our discussions of the judgments that immediately precede the inauguration of the Kingdom in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

And the ninth is the parable of The Householder. “And He said to them, “Therefore every scribe who has become a disciple of the kingdom of heaven is like a head of a household, who brings forth out of his treasure things new and old” (Matt. 13:52). “...the householder ([Matt. 13] v. 52), which teaches that some features of the new form of the kingdom are identical to features previously revealed about the millennial kingdom. It also teaches that other features are entirely new and have no correspondence to what had been revealed about the millennial form of the kingdom... Christ has presented some previously revealed truths that could be called ‘old’; He has presented other truths not previously revealed, and therefore ‘new’” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 225).

Revelation Chapters Two and Three

In Revelation chapters two and three the resurrected and glorified Jesus gave seven individually-tailored messages to the seven churches of Asia Minor. Some dispensational scholars believe that in addition to the messages’ immediate references to the seven named churches in the first century, these seven churches also represent seven various “kinds” of churches found in all periods of church history, and/or seven discernible sequential periods of time in church history. Whether the seven represented “kinds” of churches are chronologically contemporaneous or sequential or both is a matter of debate. This writer tends toward the “both” view, especially with the present-day advantage of hindsight and also with the increasing manifestation of “Laodicean” characteristics in today’s professing church. George Peters disagrees with the sequential idea, but others agree with it. “We cannot accept of the opinion (so Vitranga, etc.) that these seven churches are typical or representative of seven successive periods of Church history” (Peters, TTK, 3:377). “We prefer the simple idea that the seven churches, as they contemporaneously existed, are typical, representative, prophetical of seven prominent phases or conditions of the Church, contemporaneously present, but becoming more and more intensive as we near the Second Advent” (ibid., p. 379). “Far more was intended than seven addresses to seven literal, obscure, individual churches” (ibid.). “Lange (Com. Rev., p. 139)... ‘Were there no Philadelphia in the very last time, where would the Lord find His Bride’” (ibid.)? “Every professor of Christianity is either an Ephesian in his religious qualities, a Smyrnaote, a Pergamite, a Thyatiran, a Sardian, a Philadelphian, or a Laodicean... Every age, every denomination, and nearly every congregation contains specimens of each” (ibid.). “Dr. Schaff (His. Apost. Church, p. 604) presents the most simple and consistent explanation, when he makes these churches to ‘represent the whole Church in its various forms and tendencies’” (ibid.). “...this representative character of the seven churches, almost universally conceded by able writers” (ibid., p. 381) “A conversion of the world, as multitudes advocate, is entirely removed from the description” (ibid.). “The special promises to incite to faithfulness are not made dependent upon death, but upon this Sec. Coming” (ibid.). “Indeed, these epistles if in agreement with the general analogy of the Word, must, of necessity, make the Church a probationary and preparatory stage, and must designate with special prominence the Second Advent, because then the glorious promises of God, covenanted and predicted, will be amply realized” (ibid.). “A ‘Candlestick’ requires a light which is self-consuming, while a ‘Lampstand’ is simply the ‘Holder’ of a lamp whose light is fed from a reservoir of oil, thus typifying the oil of the Holy Spirit. Thus Christ looks upon the churches as not the Light, but simply the ‘Light Holder.’ The use of the figures ‘Lampstands’ and ‘Stars,’ which are only for service in the night, indicates that we are living in the ‘Night’ of this Age” (Larkin, DT, p. 128). “It is worthy of note that the ‘Messages to the Seven Churches’ are inserted between Two Visions, the ‘Vision of Christ’ in the midst of the ‘Seven Lampstands’ in chapter one, and the ‘Vision of the Four and Twenty Elders’ round about the Throne, in chapter four” (ibid.). “If it had been clearly revealed that the Seven Churches stood for ‘Seven Church Periods’ that would have to elapse before Christ could come back, the incentive to watch would have been absent” (ibid.). Feinberg suggests, “In Revelation 2 and 3 there is given to us a marvelously accurate outline of the spiritual course of the church age, so much so that some church historians have taken it for the outline of their works. The letter to the church at Ephesus shows the condition of the church at the end of the apostolic age; she had lost her first love and was growing colder in her orthodoxy. The Smyrna church represents the time of the Roman persecutions in the church. The letter to Pergamum reveals the condition in the church when it unites with the state. Some believe that condition goes on to the end, as in the Church of England and the state church of Scandinavia. Thyatira is a church illustrative of the corruption and degeneration that came into the church when Rome held unrivaled sway during the Middle Ages. The letter to Sardis discloses the course of the church during the Reformation period, which was lacking in emphasis on the Holy Spirit and the subjective side of salvation. Philadelphia represents the presence in the professing Church of the true church. Laodicea speaks to us of the low spiritual state of the church in the last days of the present age. This is supported by the prophecies in 2 Thessalonians, 2 Timothy, and 2 Peter. The church age is not one in which the good finally triumphs over the evil and all along the way things get better and better in the world. Exactly the opposite is true of the course of the church age” (M, p. 153). “...‘seven’ here speaks of a totality of characteristics. In the seven churches we have both every kind of church and also every kind of member, which not only existed on earth in John’s generation but also will exist throughout all ecclesiastical history” (McClain, GK, p. 446). “So universal and persistent is this mixture of good and bad in the churches that in each case the final exhortation to hear and the promise of reward are addressed to individual members. In every one of the seven epistles the call is, ‘He that hath an ear, let him hear’; and the promise in every case is, ‘To him that overcometh’ (italics supplied). Among the churches on earth to which the Revelation was addressed, there is not even one which the Lord could present as an ekklesia ‘that overcometh’” (ibid., p. 448).

The first of the seven churches is the church of Ephesus. “To the angel of the church in Ephesus write: The One who holds the seven stars in His right hand, the One who walks among the seven golden lampstands, says this: “I know your deeds and your toil and perseverance, and that you cannot endure evil men, and you put to the test those who call themselves apostles, and they are not, and you found them to be false; and you have perseverance and have endured for My name’s sake, and have not grown weary. But I have this against you, that you have left your first love. Remember therefore from where you have fallen, and repent and do the deeds you did at first; or else I am coming to you, and will remove your lampstand out of its place — unless you repent. Yet this you do have, that you hate the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, I will grant to eat of the tree of life, which is in the Paradise of God”” (Rev. 2:1-7). “Name: Ephesus; Meaning of the name: Desired (beloved); Approximate dates: Pentecost to

The second church is the church of Smyrna. “And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write: The first and the last, who was dead, and has come to life, says this: “I know your tribulation and your poverty (but you are rich), and the blasphemy by those who say they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison, that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation ten days. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death”” (Rev. 2:8-12) “Name: Smyrna; Meaning of the name: Myrrh (bitterness); Approximate dates: Nero to 300 A.D.; Characteristic: Persecution. Enemy revealed” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 153). “Smyrna is one of the two churches that Jesus had nothing against” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 53)

The third is the church of Pergamum. “And to the angel of the church in Pergamum write: The One who has the sharp two-edged sword says this: “I know where you dwell, where Satan’s throne is; and you hold fast My name, and did not deny My faith, even in the days of Antipas, My witness, My faithful one, who was killed among you, where Satan dwells. But I have a few things against you, because you have there some who hold the teaching of Balaam, who kept teaching Balak to put a stumbling block before the sons of Israel, to eat things sacrificed to idols, and to commit acts of immorality. Thus you also have some who in the same way hold the teaching of the Nicolaitans. Repent therefore; or else I am coming to you quickly, and I will make war against them with the sword of My mouth. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, to him I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone, and a new name written on the stone which no one knows but he who receives it”” (Rev. 2:12-17). “Name: Pergamos; Meaning of the name: Thoroughly married; Approximate dates: 300 to 800 A.D.; Characteristic: Worldly alliance. Great external growth” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 153).

The fourth is the church of Thyatira. “And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: The Son of God, who has eyes like a flame of fire, and His feet are like burnished bronze, says this: “I know your deeds, and your love and faith and service and perseverance, and that your deeds of late are greater than at first. But I have this against you, that you tolerate the woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, and she teaches and leads My bond-servants astray, so that they commit acts of immorality and eat things sacrificed to idols. And I gave her time to repent; and she does not want to repent of her immorality. Behold, I will cast her upon a bed of sickness, and those who commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they repent of her deeds. And I will kill her children with pestilence; and all the churches will know that I am He who searches the minds and hearts; and I will give to each one of you according to your deeds. But I say to you, the rest who are in Thyatira, who do not hold this teaching, who have not known the deep things of Satan, as they call them — I place no other burden on you. Nevertheless what you have, hold fast until I come. And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, to him I will give authority over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter are broken to pieces, as I also have received authority from My Father; and I will give him the morning star. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches”” (Rev. 2:18-29). “Name: Thyatira; Meaning of the name: Continual sacrifice; Approximate dates: 800 to 1517 A.D.; Characteristic: Papal domination. Doctrinal corruption” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 153).

The fifth is the church of Sardis. “And to the angel of the church in Sardis write: He who has the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars, says this: “I know your deeds, that you have a name that you are alive, but you are dead. Wake up, and strengthen the things that remain, which were about to die; for I have not found your deeds completed in the sight of My God. Remember therefore what you have received and heard; and keep it, and repent. If therefore you will not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you. But you have a few people in Sardis who have not soiled their garments; and they will walk with Me in white; for they are worthy. He who overcomes shall thus be clothed in white garments; and I will not erase his name from the book of life, and I will confess his name before My Father, and before His angels. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches”” (Rev. 3:1-7). “Name: Sardis; Meaning of the name: Those escaping; Approximate dates: Reformation; Characteristic: Empty profession. Rise of the state church” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 153).

The sixth is the church of Philadelphia. “And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write: “He who is holy, who is true, who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut, and who shuts and no one opens, says this: I know your deeds. Behold, I have put before you an open door which no one can shut, because you have a little power, and have kept My word, and have not denied My name. Behold, I will cause those of the synagogue of Satan, who say that they are Jews, and are not, but lie — behold, I will make them to come and bow down at your feet, and to know that I have loved you. Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth. I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown. He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches”” (Rev. 3:7-13). “...the Church at Philadelphia... It was to be kept from the ‘hour of temptation’ (Tribulation), that shall come upon all the world. As the Church at Philadelphia is still in existence... while it suffered more or less under the ‘Ten Persecutions’ of the ‘Smyrna Period,’ it has never yet suffered in a persecution that was world-wide. This ‘hour of temptation’ then must be still future and refers doubtless to the ‘Great Tribulation’... as the promise is that the ‘Philadelphia Church’ shall not pass through the Tribulation, is not this additional proof that the Church shall be ‘caught out’ before the Tribulation” (Larkin, DT, p. 131)? “We must not forget that the characteristics of all these Periods continue on in the Church down to the end. This is true of the Evangelistic and Missionary movements of the ‘Philadelphia Period,’ but they are now more mechanical and based on business methods, and there is less spiritual power, and this will continue until Christ returns” (ibid.). “Name: Philadelphia; Meaning of the name: Brotherly love; Approximate dates: The last days; Characteristic: True church of the last days” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 153). “Philadelphia... This is the second church for which there is no condemnation. Like Smyrna, Jesus finds nothing against this church and is satisfied with it” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 64). “...by 1900 some 250,000 Jews became believers... This is also the period that saw the rise of cults, such as Mormonism, Jehovah’s Witnesses, Christian Science, and others. One common element among cults is to claim to be the ‘real’ Jews by declaring themselves to be the 144,000 Jews or the ten lost Tribes of Israel. Nevertheless, the Philadelphia Church will win converts among these as well” (ibid.). “The Jezebel element in the Thyatira Church will go through the Tribulation, but the Church of Philadelphia will not” (ibid., p. 65). “The exhortation is in verse 11. It is for them to continue to do as they are doing, for they are doing well” (ibid.).

And the seventh and last church is the church of Laodicea. “And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: The Amen, the faithful and true Witness, the Beginning of the creation of God, says this: “I know your deeds, that you are neither cold nor hot; I would that you were cold or hot. So because you are lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spit you out of My mouth. Because you say, “I am rich, and have become wealthy, and have need of nothing,” and you do not know that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked, I advise you to buy from Me gold refined by fire, that you may become rich, and white garments, that you may clothe yourself, and that the shame of your nakedness may not be revealed; and eye salve to anoint your eyes, that you may see. Those whom I love, I reprove and discipline; be zealous therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him, and will dine with him, and he with Me. He who overcomes, I will grant to him to sit down with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches”” (Rev. 3:14-22). “The trouble with the church today is that it thinks that nothing can be done without money, and that if we only had the money the world would be converted in this generation. The world is not to be converted by money, but by the Spirit of God” (Larkin, DT, p. 132). “The Church of Laodicea was not only poor, though rich, it was blind. Or to put it more accurately— ‘Near-Sighted.’ They could see their worldly prosperity, but were ‘Short-Sighted’ as to heavenly things” (ibid.). “This is the most startling thing recorded in the New Testament, that it is possible for a church to be outwardly prosperous and yet have no Christ in its midst, and be unconscious of the fact” (ibid.). “He had withdrawn. Why? The reason is summed up in one word—Worldliness” (ibid.). “If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to Him, and will sup with him, and he with Me.’ That is, the way to revive a lukewarm church is for the individual members to open their hearts and let Christ re-enter, and thus open the door for His reappearance” (ibid.). “The character of the Church today is Laodicean, and as the Laodicean Period is to continue until the Church of the ‘New-Born’ is taken out, we cannot hope for any great change until the Lord comes back” (ibid.). “Name: Laodicea; Meaning of the name: People ruling; Approximate dates: Last days; Characteristic: Apostasy” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 153). “All six of the previous churches had at least one word of commendation, but this church has none. There is nothing commendable in this church, as it is entirely an unsaved church” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 66). “The hot are the truly saved believers. The cold are those who are not believers and do not claim to be believers. The lukewarm are those who do claim to believe in Jesus, but are not truly regenerate believers” (ibid.).

God is Gathering the Church Now

As of this writing, as we find ourselves within the time period of the “Mystery Kingdom,” and also within the uniquely blessed and gracious Church Age, God is gathering the church now.

Regarding the fact of the gathering, “Simeon has related how God first concerned Himself about taking from among the Gentiles a people for His name” (Acts 15:14). “Christ has always maintained a true Church in this evil world” (Peters, TTK, 3:188) “The Church as an elect company is being gathered. This achievement, it will yet be seen, is the supreme divine intent in this age” (Chafer, ST, 4:39). “The outcalling of the Church is the primary divine objective in this dispensation” (ibid., p. 44).

Regarding the method of the gathering, “Come to Me [Jesus], all who are weary and heavy-laden, and I will give you rest” (Matt. 11:28). “But as many as received Him [Jesus], to them He gave the right to become children of God, even to those who believe in His name” (John 1:12) “Jesus answered and said to him, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.’ Nicodemus said to Him, ‘How can a man be born when he is old? He cannot enter a second time into his mother’s womb and be born, can he?’ Jesus answered, ‘Truly, truly, I say to you, unless one is born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Do not marvel that I said to you, “You must be born again.” The wind blows where it wishes and you hear the sound of it, but do not know where it comes from and where it is going; so is everyone who is born of the Spirit” (John 3:3-8). “For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life” (John 3:16). “You search the Scriptures, because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is these that bear witness of Me [Jesus]; and you are unwilling to come to Me, that you may have life” (John 5:39-40). “No one can come to Me, unless the Father who sent Me draws him; and I will raise him up on the last day” (John 6:44). “and whom He predestined, these He also called; and whom He called, these He also justified; and whom He justified, these He also glorified” (Rom. 8:30). “For He delivered us from the domain of darkness, and transferred us to the kingdom of His beloved Son” (Col. 1:13) “By divine calling, which is efficacious (Rom 8:30), the Church as an elect company is being gathered” (Chafer, ST, 4:39). “Believers have been brought into ‘the kingdom of his dear Son’ (Col. 1:13) through the new birth.” [quoting Pentecost, Things to Come, p. 466] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 397). “It is impossible to save people against their will... God cannot save all He desires to save—He can only save those willing to be saved” (Geisler, ST, 2:168).

Regarding the visible results of the gathering, “These elect, now gathered out, are in the various denominations of Christians. The diversity, even of doctrine and practice, does not interfere with the possession of the living engrafting principle of faith. The former arises incidentally from the liberty allowed to humanity, which, through infirmity, results in doubt and even error being, more or less, mixed with apprehensions of the truth; the latter, however, in the eyes of a just and merciful God, compensates, if followed by corresponding fruit in evidence of its sincerity, for the weakness exhibited in the former. The one could not have been obviated without largely infringing man’s moral agency; the other cannot be negated without interfering with the Divine Will itself” (Peters, TTK, 1:417).

Characteristics of the Church Age

This Church Age, unique among all the ages of world history, possesses and exhibits a number of distinct dispensational characteristics.

It was planned from eternity. “just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before Him” (Eph. 1:4). “Is the church extraneous to God’s plan? It is parenthetical from the standpoint of Israel’s national history, since God’s time-clock for Israel stopped at Messiah’s rejection; hence, there is a break between the sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks of Daniel in which the church fits. However, from the standpoint of God’s plan, there is not a break; as we have seen, God’s purpose was to provoke the Jews and provide salvation for the Gentiles (Rom. 11:13-15 [But I am speaking to you who are Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle of Gentiles, I magnify my ministry, if somehow I might move to jealousy my fellow countrymen and save some of them. For if their rejection be the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead?]). No wonder Paul concludes this section as he does: ‘Oh, the depth of the riches of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable his judgments, and his paths beyond tracing out!’ (v. 33)” (Geisler, ST, 4:487).

It is disconnected from the previous and the following dispensations. “The world situation that will obtain in the coming tribulation is not a concatenation, or sequence, or development growing out of the present age; it rather is joined directly to the Mosaic age which closed with the death of Christ. This, apparently, is why the Roman empire—the iron kingdom—must be revived and complete that predicted of it (cf. Dan 2:40-45; 7:7-14). Whatever the history of the Christian era may record for the benefit of a future age, from a religious, political, or racial viewpoint, it will be as though the present age had never existed. When this age is completely written out of the order of earthly history, it is seen that the tribulation follows directly upon the death of Christ. Israel receives at once their request, ‘His blood be on us, and on our children,’ the King returns, Gentiles are judged, and the wrath of God falls upon a Christ-rejecting world. Certainly, under this consideration of world history in its continuity there is no Church to enter the tribulation. She is as foreign to that which follows her history on the earth as she was to that which preceded” (Chafer, ST, 4:321). “There are a number of ways in which this previous age differs from all the ages that preceded. (1) In all previous ages Christ was anticipated, but in this present age He has not only come, but has died, been resurrected and is looked to now in His position at the right hand of the Father. (2) The Holy Spirit, who in previous ages came upon certain men to empower them to a given task, has taken up His residence in every believer. (3) In previous ages the good news announced was anticipatory, but in this present age the declaration of the good news announces an accomplished salvation through Christ. (4) The revelation in previous ages was incomplete, but in this present age, since Christ came to reveal the Father, revelation is completed. (5) Since this present age is marked by antagonism to God and His anointed, it bears a distinct characterization as an evil age, which was not applied to any previous age. (6) This age is, consequently under the domination of Satan, its god, in a unique and unprecedented way. (7) The nation Israel has been set aside as the particular object of God’s dealing and can not expect the fulfillment of her promises during this age” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 132). “The ultimate proof of the teaching that the present age is a parenthesis is in the positive revelation concerning the church as the body of Christ and the related truths that reveal the church to be an organism, a body of believers subject to translation and being caught away to heaven. The church is regarded as a bride being prepared for the bridegroom. These distinctive truths establish the concept that the church is to be in this dispensation only. As such, the church is distinguished clearly from the saints who appear on earth during the time of the Tribulation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 28). (See also our discussion of the mystery aspects of the Church Age in our section The Mystery of the Church above.)

It is characterized by the bodily absence of the King. “And He said to the disciples, The days shall come when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, and you will not see it” (Luke 17:22). “And while they were listening to these things, He went on to tell a parable, because He was near Jerusalem, and they supposed that the kingdom of God was going to appear immediately. He said therefore, ‘A certain nobleman went to a distant country to receive a kingdom for himself, and then return’” (Luke 19:11–12). “Little children, I am with you a little while longer. You shall seek Me; and as I said to the Jews, I now say to you also, “Where I am going, you cannot come”” (John 13:33). “In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you.’ And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:2-3). “Luke 17:22... one of the days of the Son of Man... 1 Cor. 4:3, 4, 5... ‘man’s day’... This, then, is ‘man’s day’—a day in which the absence of the Lord is self-evident, and in which man’s attachment to the world and disregard of God and His dear Son makes it a time peculiar in accord with his views, feelings, passions, etc... the bridegroom is absent and the marriage postponed to His Coming... All days previous to the day of the Lord are man’s days” (Peters, TTK, 2:412). “But to me it is a very small thing that I should be examined by you, or by any human court; in fact, I do not even examine myself. For I am conscious of nothing against myself, yet I am not by this acquitted; but the one who examines me is the Lord. Therefore do not go on passing judgment before the time, but wait until the Lord comes who will both bring to light the things hidden in the darkness and disclose the motives of men’s hearts; and then each man’s praise will come to him from God” (1 Cor. 4:3–5). “But for me it is the very smallest matter that I be examined of you or of man’s day. Nor do I even examine myself” (1 Cor. 4:3, DRBY). “and to me it is for a very little thing that by you I may be judged, or by man’s day, but not even myself do I judge” (1 Cor. 4:3, YNG) “But to me it is a very small thing to be judged by you or by man’s day. But neither do I judge my own self” (1 Cor. 4:3, DOUAY). “In general, it will be a period of time characterized by the bodily absence of the Messianic King, a prospect which already was troubling the hearts of the disciples. The period therefore will begin with His departure: ‘Little children, yet a little while I am with you,’ He said to them, and ‘I go to prepare a place for you’ (John 13:33; 14:2). And the period will end with His return: ‘I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also’ (John 14:3)” (McClain, GK, p. 374).

It is centered in Jesus’ sacrificial death. “Now I make known to you, brethren, the gospel which I preached to you, which also you received, in which also you stand, by which also you are saved, if you hold fast the word which I preached to you, unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that He was buried, and that He was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures” (1 Cor. 15:1-4) “This new age of the Gentiles was also to have its hope centered in Jesus Christ, but in His sacrificial death rather than His kingly reign” (Chafer, S, C2:14/37).

It is characterized by primarily spiritual blessings. “teaching them to observe all that I commanded you; and lo, I [Jesus] am with you always, even to the end of the age” (Matt. 28:20). “And I will ask the Father, and He will give you another Helper, that He may be with you forever; that is the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it does not behold Him or know Him, but you know Him because He abides with you, and will be in you” (John 14:16-17). “I will not leave you as orphans; I will come to you. After a little while the world will behold Me no more; but you will behold Me; because I live, you shall live also. In that day you shall know that I am in My Father, and you in Me, and I in you. He who has My commandments and keeps them, he it is who loves Me; and he who loves Me shall be loved by My Father, and I will love him, and will disclose Myself to him.’ Judas (not Iscariot) said to Him, ‘Lord, what then has happened that You are going to disclose Yourself to us, and not to the world?’ Jesus answered and said to him, ‘If anyone loves Me, he will keep My word; and My Father will love him, and We will come to him, and make Our abode with him” (John 14:18-23). “He saved us, not on the basis of deeds which we have done in righteousness, but according to His mercy, by the washing of regeneration and renewing by the Holy Spirit, whom He poured out upon us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior” (Titus 3:5-6) “Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him, and will dine with him, and he with Me” (Rev. 3:20). “It is true that the church in this age is enjoying many of the spiritual blessings that the Old Testament connects with the future Messianic kingdom, such as pardon for sin (Isa. 55:4-7), justification by faith and imputed righteousness (Jer. 23:6), regeneration (Ezek. 36:24-28), and the coming of the Holy Spirit on men (Joel 2:27-28). Some of those blessings were possible to believers in the time of Abel (Heb. 11:4) and Abraham (Rom. 4:3), long before Moses and David” (Feinberg, M, p. 147). “Behold, I have given him for a witness to the peoples, a leader and commander to the peoples. Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not; and a nation that knew not thee shall run unto thee, because of Jehovah thy God, and for the

Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee. Seek ye Jehovah while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto Jehovah, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon" (Isa. 55:4-7). "In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely; and this is his name whereby he shall be called: Jehovah our righteousness" (Jer. 23:6). "For I will take you from among the nations, and gather you out of all the countries, and will bring you into your own land. And I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep mine ordinances, and do them. And ye shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be my people, and I will be your God" (Ezek. 36:24-28). "And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am Jehovah your God, and there is none else; and my people shall never be put to shame. And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions" (Joel 2:27-28) "By faith Abel offered to God a better sacrifice than Cain, through which he obtained the testimony that he was righteous, God testifying about his gifts, and through faith, though he is dead, he still speaks" (Heb. 11:4). "For what does the Scripture say? 'AND ABRAHAM BELIEVED GOD, AND IT WAS RECKONED TO HIM AS RIGHTEOUSNESS'" (Rom. 4:3). "The interval of His bodily absence will be a period when He will manifest Himself to His own in a spiritual way: 'I will not leave you comfortless,' He promises, 'I will come to you' (John 14:18)... this coming is wholly spiritual in nature" (McClain, GK, p. 375) "During the entire age of His bodily absence, for those who obey His words, the promise holds good: 'lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the age' (Matt. 28:20, lit.)" (ibid.). "The period of Christ's bodily absence will be a time of special ministry by the Holy Spirit. The large place given the Holy Spirit in Christ's farewell discourse has often been noted by students of the Word of God. In answer to our Lord's prayer, He will come to the disciples and abide forever with and in them (John 14:16-17). He will be their teacher, bringing to their remembrance the words of the absent Christ (vs. 26). He will testify of Christ (15:26), convicting the world of sin, righteousness, and judgment (16:8-11). He will speak to the eleven disciples of things which, before Christ's departure, they were not yet ready to hear; and also reveal 'things to come' (vss. 12-14). The primary application of these promises was certainly fulfilled in the Spirit's guidance of those who would write the Scriptures of the New Testament, but the promise of His ministry is applicable to all believers of the present age during the absence of Christ. This does not mean, as some have wrongly assumed, that there could be no such ministry of the Spirit while Christ is once again bodily present on earth. This false notion has been wrongly based on the words, 'If I go not away, the Comforter will not come' (John 16:7). But the first clause here refers to the whole of Christ's path back to the Father—His death, resurrection, and ascension. Without all this, the present special ministry of the Spirit in the Church would have been impossible. On the basis of Christ's finished work, the Spirit's ministry becomes possible, not only in the age of Christ's absence, but also during His bodily presence in the coming age of the Kingdom" (ibid.).

It exhibits spiritual unity among the genuinely regenerated. "By this all men will know that you are My disciples, if you have love for one another" (John 13:35). "We know that we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brethren. He who does not love abides in death" (1 John. 3:14). "Whoever believes that Jesus is the Christ is born of God; and whoever loves the Father loves the child born of Him" (1 John. 5:1). "Had an external unity been the aim of God, then undoubtedly the apostles would have presented us with a regular ecclesiastical government (something, perhaps, like the Papacy developed), Canon laws, a Synoptical Confession of Faith, etc. But we are told that, for wise purposes (as e.g. to test character, faith, life), diversity and antagonism were permitted, so that through trial and suffering, fighting and struggling, the faithful members may be perfected... Unity now, however, exists (not outwardly but) between Christ, the Head, and all faithful, believing members (inasmuch as all receive from Him the same blessings, spiritual life, etc.), and even between such believers when the inward religious experience is permitted to testify (for all having the same faith, the same graces of the Spirit, same experience in spite of denominational ties, the likeness in one will respond to the same in another)... The union between Christ and His members is necessarily spiritual, invisible, until the day that He appears with them, and such union is openly revealed" (Peters, TTK, 3:335). "...the Romish idea of external unity... the only true Church, possessing the only true faith and practice. We may safely lay it down as a rule, that the louder this claim is urged and the more pretentious it is made, the less credence should be given to it, seeing that in its intense bigotry and intolerance it violates at every step the greatest of Christian graces, love” (ibid., p. 339).

It features no centralized, authoritative church government. “The church at its commencement lacked one of the essentials of a Kingdom, viz.: a regularly constituted form of government” (Peters, TTK, 1:638). “A Kingdom, to be such, must, of necessity, have some form of government allied with it” (ibid.) “To allow special and specific claims to eldership or rulership, etc., under the specious plea of being directed by the Holy Spirit, is the visionary notion of a mystical enthusiasm, and tends to bring us under the subjection of false claims and pretenses” (ibid., p. 640). “The church was simply a community of believers... without basing unity in a complete outward uniformity” (ibid., p. 1;665)

It is marked by suffering. (See our discussion of the fact that church members today are suffering, not reigning, in our chapter Postponement of the Kingdom.)

It contains a mixture of good and evil, truth and error. “He presented another parable to them, saying, The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a man who sowed good seed in his field. But while men were sleeping, his enemy came and sowed tares also among the wheat, and went away. But when the wheat sprang up and bore grain, then the tares became evident also. And the slaves of the landowner came and said to him, “Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? How then does it have tares?” And he said to them, “An enemy has done this!” And the slaves said to him, “Do you want us, then, to go and gather them up?” But he said, “No; lest while you are gathering up the tares, you may root up the wheat with them. Allow both to grow together until the harvest; and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, ‘First gather up the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them up; but gather the wheat into my barn’”” (Matt. 13:24-30). “Protestantism, overlooking the design intended by the Church meets the charge by endeavoring to make out an invisible unity, which is truly so ‘invisible’ that no one has yet been able to discern it” (Peters, TTK, 1:635). “The Church cannot be utterly condemned or unduly exalted without doing violence to it. Neither blackening nor whitewashing, neither defaming nor extravagantly praising, meets the divine portraiture as given in the Scriptures” (ibid.). “Lord Bacon... ‘Our Saviour Christ delivered it for an ill-note to have outward peace. And reason teacheth us that in ignorance and implied belief it is easy to agree, as colors agree in the dark; or if any country decline into Atheism, the controversies wax dainty, because men do not think religion scarce worth falling out for; so as it is weak divinity to account controversies an ill sign in the Church.’ So long as tares and wheat continue mixed—which is down to the Sec. Advent—so long will this state continue” (ibid., p. 637). “To carry out the design of the church does not necessarily require unity... ‘Them that believe’ are found in all denominations; those that are savingly united to Christ are found in Roman Catholic and Protestant churches; admixture of error, difference in Ch. government, etc., has not prevented, in the opposing camps, persons to become justified by faith, adopted by grace, and engrafted as the elect... Many contend that union now is essential, or at least necessary. Keeping in view the object intended by this dispensation, we may concede its desirableness to expedite the gathering of the elect, but it is not absolutely requisite for this purpose. At the very commencement of the Christian Church, as every historian concedes, even in the Apostolic age, there was a tendency (even among the Apostles), to diversity, which has continued down to our day, and we are assured by the Word will continue until Christ ushers in the Mill. Kingdom” (ibid.). “Even with the greatest care and utmost watchfulness, unqualified and uncalled men have been foisted on the Church” (ibid., p. 640). “It is eminently true to-day, that while ‘many’ profess and loudly too, the real followers of Christ are ‘few’” (ibid., 3:119). “The immense majority of the professing Church is only nominally Christian” (ibid.).

It is free from coercion by God. “And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who hears say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost” (Rev. 22:17). “...the probationary and not kingly condition of the church which could not be avoided without destroying man’s free moral agency” (Peters, TTK, 1:636)

It is devoid of angelic manifestations. “In the plan of God, the present age is evidently void of angelic manifestations. This could easily be due to the fact that, as in no other age, the saints of God are indwelt by the Holy Spirit and are subject to His leading, which leading is more constant, vital, and exalting than angelic visitations could possibly be” (Chafer, ST, 2:23).

It is devoid of spectacular miracles. “But the constant repetition of such ‘signs’ would weaken if not defeat, their significancy. Habitual and commonplace, they would altogether lose their representative character. To sustain even this position consistently and honorably it must be shown that the truths they attest, the doctrines they authenticate, the Divine Plan they substantiate, are worthy of the Supernatural” (Peters, TTK, 3:78). “The First and Second Advents, owing to their instrumentality in Redemption, etc., are co-joined, this dispensation being intercalary, and nothing is expressed to indicate its long continuance for the reasons previously given

In it self-preservation is enjoined. "And He said to them, 'When I sent you out without purse and bag and sandals, you did not lack anything, did you?' And they said, 'No, nothing.' And He said to them, 'But now, let him who has a purse take it along, likewise also a bag, and let him who has no sword sell his robe and buy one'" (Luke 22:35-36). "It was during the last supper that the Lord, in a striking passage recorded by Luke alone (22:35-36), sought to prepare His disciples for the changed conditions which would obtain between His departure and His return to establish the Kingdom. He begins by reminding them of the special care bestowed on them during their earlier ministry of proclaiming the Kingdom of heaven as at hand. 'When I sent you without purse, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye anything? And they said, Nothing' (vs. 35). Indeed, they told the truth! During the presence of the Messianic King, the disciples had surely tasted the 'powers of the age to come' (Heb. 6:5, lit.), so far as physical blessing had been concerned. There is no record of any illness among them. For friends and relatives, healing was available without reserve (Matt. 8:14-16). Even death itself was no longer irreversible (Mark 5:35-43; John 11:1-47). If food and drink were lacking, the miracle-working power of the King was sufficient for the emergency (John 2:1-11; 6:1-15). For His disciples and Himself there was a supernatural immunity to the ordinary hazards of life (Matt. 14:24-33; Luke 4:28-30). Even such mundane things, as a need for tax money and the means of daily livelihood, were not beyond His interest and power (Matt. 17:24-27; Luke 5:2-9). By no process of 'spiritualization' can these things be robbed of their physical reality. So much for the past. 'But now,' Christ warns, things will be different: 'he that hath a purse, let him take it, and likewise a wallet; and he that hath none, let him sell his cloak, and buy a sword' (Luke 22:36, ASV). These are radical words from the lips of Christ, suggesting a radical change of conditions just at hand, and too little attention has been paid to their signification. What He had formerly commanded them not to take (Matt. 10:9-10), He now commands them to take! With an accurate sense of what was about to take place, Van Oosterzee has described the change between the past and the future: 'Then they had in no respect had want, no care had oppressed them; but now it was another time. So unacquainted are they as yet with that which tonight impends, that the Savior can bring to them in no other way a presentiment of it than by holding up to them the sharp contrast of then and now. He enjoins on them the direct opposite of that which He had then commanded them. Once the least care was superfluous, now the most anxious care was not too much.’ [quoting Lange’s Commentary, on Luke 22:36] What our Lord here enjoins upon His disciples is simply the duty of self-preservation as the need may arise under the new conditions. They must now give thought to two things: first, the physical requirements of life, as indicated by a ‘purse’ for money, and the ‘wallet’ for provisions; and, second, some measure of defense against external physical dangers, as indicated by the ‘sword.’ This certainly is no warrant for any disciple to devote his life exclusively to the accumulation of physical wealth, any more than to devote his life thus to military pursuits. As a matter of fact, where government exists, as Paul reminds us, the State takes charge of the ‘sword’ (Rom. 13:4), so that the Christian is not left to defend himself. But where such protection does not exist the disciple is not to throw away his life recklessly and uselessly” (McClain, GK, p. 371).

And, it exhibits a conspicuous silence of God. “But unto the wicked God saith, What hast thou to do to declare my statutes, And that thou hast taken my covenant in thy mouth? Seeing thou hatest instruction, And castest my words behind thee? When thou sawest a thief, thou consentedst with him, And hast been partaker with adulterers. Thou givest thy mouth to evil, And thy tongue frameth deceit. Thou sittest and speakest against thy brother; Thou slanderest thine own mother’s son. These things hast thou done, and I kept silence; Thou thoughtest that I was altogether such a one as thyself: But I will reprove thee, and set them in order before thine eyes. Now consider this, ye that forget God, Lest I tear you in pieces, and there be none to deliver: Whoso offereth the sacrifice of thanksgiving glorifieth me; And to him that ordereth his way aright Will I show the salvation of God” (Ps. 50:16-23). “And they say, How doth God know? And is there knowledge in the Most High? Behold, these are the wicked; And, being always at ease, they increase in riches. Surely in vain have I cleansed my heart, And washed my hands in innocency; For all the day long have I been plagued, And chastened every morning. If I had said, I will speak thus; Behold, I had dealt treacherously with the generation of thy children. When I thought how I might know this, It was too painful for me; Until I went into the sanctuary of God, And considered their latter end” (Ps. 73:11-17). “And I will wait for Jehovah, that hideth his face from the house of Jacob, and I will look for him. Behold, I and the children whom Jehovah hath given me are for signs and for wonders in Israel from Jehovah of hosts, who dwelleth in mount Zion. And when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits and unto the wizards, that chirp and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? on behalf of the living should they seek unto the dead? To the law and to the testimony! if they speak not according to this word, surely there is no morning for them” (Isa. 8:17-20). “Jehovah will go forth as a mighty man; he will stir up his zeal like a man of war: he will cry, yea, he will shout aloud; he will do mightily against his enemies. I have long time holden my peace; I have been still, and refrained myself: now will I cry out like a travailing woman; I will gasp and pant together. I will lay waste mountains and hills, and dry up all their herbs; and I will make the rivers islands, and will dry up the pools” (Isa. 42:13-15). “He was oppressed, yet when he was afflicted he opened not his mouth; as a lamb that is led to the slaughter, and as a sheep that before its shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth. By oppression and judgment he was taken away; and as for his generation, who among them considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living for the transgression of my people to whom the stroke was due” (Isa. 53:7-8)? “And of whom hast thou been afraid and in fear, that thou liest, and hast not remembered me, nor laid it to thy heart? have not I held my peace even of long time, and thou fearest me not” (Isa. 57:11)? “Wilt thou refrain thyself for these things, O Jehovah? wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us very sore” (Isa. 64:12)? “I will go and return to my place, till they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me earnestly” (Hos. 5:15). “He returned to heaven at the ascension from the Mount of Olives. He will not come back to the earth until the offense that caused Him to return to heaven is acknowledged or confessed. The national Jewish offense committed against the person of Jesus is not, as so many people think, in killing Him. The actual killing of Christ was done by Gentile, not Jewish, hands. He was condemned and sentenced by a Gentile judge. He was crucified by Gentile soldiers. All this is ultimately irrelevant, for regardless of Jewish acceptance or Jewish rejection, Jesus would have had to die anyway to become the sacrifice for sin. The national offense of Israel was in the rejection of His messiahship. According to this verse, only when this offense is acknowledged or confessed will Christ come back to the earth” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 782). “For thus saith Jehovah of hosts: After glory hath he sent me unto the nations which plundered you; for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye. For, behold, I will shake my hand over them, and they shall be a spoil to those that served them; and ye shall know that Jehovah of hosts hath sent me. Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith Jehovah. And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee. And Jehovah shall inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and shall yet choose Jerusalem. Be silent, all flesh, before Jehovah; for he is waked up out of his holy habitation" (Zech. 2:8-13). "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were unwilling. Behold, your house is being left to you desolate! For I say to you, from now on you shall not see Me until you say, 'BLESSED IS HE WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD'" (Matt. 23:37-39)! "And He said to the disciples, 'The days shall come when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, and you will not see it'" (Luke 17:22). "Jesus said to him, 'Because you have seen Me, have you believed? Blessed are they who did not see, and yet believed'" (John 20:29). "for we walk by faith, not by sight —" (2 Cor. 5:7) "and though you have not seen Him, you love Him, and though you do not see Him now, but believe in Him, you greatly rejoice with joy inexpressible and full of glory" (1 Pet. 1:8) "The Lord is not slow about His promise, as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing for any to perish but for all to come to repentance" (2 Pet. 3:9). "...answer the question proposed by unbelief, why Jesus Christ does not personally manifest Himself, at least now and then, to remove the unbelief of the world. The reply is, that having been rejected by the covenanted elect nation, and that nation suffering the consequences of such rejection, the Kingdom itself being postponed until the time arrives for the removal of the inflictions imposed, the withdrawal of the Messiah is part of that punishment entailed. Until 'the times of the Gentiles' are ended, an open, visible manifestation cannot be reasonably expected. Besides this, the engrafting of Gentiles is, as we have shown, done on the principle of faith and not of sight. It ill becomes the dignity of the King to appear before the time fixed for the cessation of punishment and the gathering out of an incorporated people by faith" (Peters, TTK, 1:624). "The taunt so long used by scientists and others, that if such a God as the Bible describes does exist, He should then manifest Himself by direct Divine interference, will then be effectually removed. For, then God, so long withdrawn, will again, as He has promised, reveal Himself to man and exert His marvellous power in his behalf, but, mark it, only in the one direction always observed by Him, viz., in that of the only nation under heaven favored with a covenanted Theocratic relationship. This relationship, for a time held practically in abeyance, He cannot restore until the time comes of His return. The Divine Sovereignty now exercised in a way only susceptible to faith and to reason under the influence of grace, will again give place to that direct manifestation of power, etc., under the restored Theocratic rule. Hence it is important in regarding this repentance to notice (what, alas! so many overlook) that it is controlled by the principles of the incoming dispensation. ‘The times of the Gentiles’ having ended, Jewish times are again in the ascendancy, so that in reference to the manner of this repentance, the order laid down, the miraculous influences connected with it, the time in which the work is to be effected, etc., we are to be governed solely by what is predicted; and no attempt should be made to prescribe how it must be done, or to force it within the limits assigned to present times. It is sufficient for us to know, that God’s mode of procedure has always been at variance with that which man in his wisdom vainly proposes; and that when a new era has arrived, it has been inaugurated strictly in accord with His own Word but never in accord with popular expectations. The views so universally prevalent on this subject, so opposite to the simple language of the Bible and the child-like faith of the early Church, are, on this ground alone, open to suspicion. It is enough for us to receive predictions, and, actuated by the past literal fulfillment, by faith in God, to believe in them as recorded without the addition of another and differing sense, and of apologies for ancient weakness and credulity” (ibid., 2:80). “In the very nature of the case these scientists demand an exhibition of powers, etc., which the Bible shows, owing to sinfulness, has been withdrawn until a certain period of time has expired and a certain number of believers are obtained, when it shall again be restored. Presuming the Bible to be true, the demand is presumptuous; if it be false, how then are we to explain some facts, (1) that such power, just as the prophets have predicted, has been withdrawn; (2) that God does not now, just as predicted, condescend to act as an earthly Ruler as He once did; (3) that this nation, just as predicted, is preserved notwithstanding its dispersion, thus indicating the restoration of this rule, as also predicted; (4) the gathering of believers going on, as predicted, during this period of withdrawal, etc. Now, if there are so many particulars verified, why may not the rest be? This line of argument is only briefly given—as suggestive of the true method of dealing with the prophets, etc., as fairness and honesty require. The Theocratic Rulership being withdrawn, it is not reasonable to expect God’s direct intervention, until the time comes when it shall be restored; then it comes again with great power” (ibid.). “The question is sometimes asked why God does not reveal Himself to a nation as He did to Israel; why He does not personally communicate with man as He once did. The answer, from our position, is plain and decisive. Because no nation occupies a Theocratic relationship; when this is restored then He will again be present and accessible. Until a people is prepared for a Theocratic ordering, the dignity and honor of the Mighty One refuses such a personal communication. Preparatively He only reveals Himself in and through faith, training a people for the coming revelation of Himself. But the time is near when God will again reveal Himself and dwell with man in the Person of Jesus the Christ” (ibid., 3:438). “Thus unbelief asks, why does not God come now, in this dispensation, and manifest Himself as He once did under the Theocracy and in behalf of the Jews? The answer is plainly given in the Word. The withdrawal of the Theocracy and, as a consequence, of God, is a punishment inflicted for an allotted period. We are now in ‘the times of the Gentiles.’ Respect for His own official position as Theocratic King and a due regard for the fulfillment of His threatened punishment, causes this hiatus of direct Personal Supernatural guidance and intervention. It is only when the time has arrived for the restoration of the Theocracy that God’s special presence is again restored; this is clearly revealed” (ibid., p. 503). “...why the withdrawal of God personally from the world continues” (ibid., p. 504) “For eighteen centuries the world has never witnessed a public manifestation of His presence or His power” (Anderson, SOG, p. 10). “With all who believe the Bible the great difficulty respecting miracles is not their occurrence but their absence” (ibid., p. 24). “...so long as the kingdom was being preached to the Jews, miracles abounded, but that when the gospel appealed to the heathen world, miracles lost their prominence, and soon entirely ceased” (ibid., p. 49). “...the contrast between the earlier and the later chapters of the Acts of the Apostles” (ibid.) “But miracle there was none; for, the special testimony to the Jew having ceased, the purpose for which miracles were given was accomplished” (ibid., p. 58). “In this Christian dispensation God is not imputing their sins to men. Were it otherwise the silence of Heaven would give place to the thunders of His judgments. Every question of judgment was either settled for ever at the Cross, or has been postponed to the day that is still to come... the day of judgment is not yet” (ibid., p. 141). “When faith murmurs, and unbelief revolts, and men challenge the Supreme to break that silence and declare Himself, how little do they realise what the challenge means! It means the withdrawal of the amnesty; it means the end of the reign of grace; it means the closing of the day of mercy and the dawning of the day of wrath” (ibid., p. 146). “If God is silent now it is because Heaven has come down to earth, the climax of Divine revelation has been reached, there is no reserve of mercy yet to be unfolded” (ibid., p. 147). “‘our God shall come and shall not keep silence.’ (Ps. 1:3)” (ibid., p. 148) “God’s own ‘apology’ for His inaction is that He is ‘longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.’ (2 Pet 3:9)” (ibid., p. 149) “God points to that Cross as the unreserved manifestation of love so inconceivably infinite as to answer every challenge and silence all doubt for ever” (ibid., p. 150). “The dispensation of law and covenant and promise—the distinctive privileges of the favoured people—was marked by the public display of Divine power upon earth. But the reign of grace has its correlative in the life of faith. Ours is the higher privilege, the greater blessedness of those ‘who have not seen and yet have believed.’ And walking by faith is the antithesis of walking by sight. If ‘signs and wonders’ were vouchsafed to us, as in Pentecostal days, faith would sink to a lower level” (ibid., p. 153). “...miracles... Greatest of them all is the miracle of the new birth by the Spirit of God, with its outward side of conversion from a life of selfishness or sin to a life of consecrated service... Christian men have carried it [the gospel] to some of the most degraded races of the heathen world, with results that surpass all previous records, giving overwhelming proof of its Divine character and mission. To men like these there is a sense in which Heaven is not silent” (ibid., p. 157). “The purpose of the miracles, moreover, was to accredit the Messiah to Israel, and not, as generally supposed, to accredit Christianity to the heathen. And therefore, as Scripture plainly indicates, they continued so long as the testimony was addressed to the Jew, but ceased when, the Jew being set aside, the gospel went out to the Gentile world” (ibid., p. 162). “The era of the reign of grace is precisely the era of the silence of God. To grace, therefore, we look to explain the silence. Christianity is the supreme and final revelation of the Divine ‘kindness and love-toward-man.’ Therefore when God again declares Himself it can only be in wrath, and wrath must await ‘the day of wrath’” (ibid., p. 164). “And now a silent Heaven gives continuing proof that this great amnesty is still in force, and that the guiltiest of men may turn to God and find forgiveness of sins and eternal life. God is silent because He has spoken His last word of mercy and love, and judgment must await the ‘day of judgment’—there can be no place for it in this ‘day of grace’” (ibid., p. 165). “In proportion to our appreciation of the Christian revelation will be our appreciation of the argument that God cannot now intervene, or declare Himself, directly and openly” (ibid.). “...miracles... the later Epistles are wholly silent respecting them” (ibid., p. 177). “Even the people of God have been deeply perplexed at times about the long silence of God, so far as any apparent supernatural intrusions of power on earth are concerned (cf. Ps. 73:11-17)” (McClain, GK, p. 175). “‘I will wait upon the LORD, that hideth his face from the house of Jacob, and I will look for him.’ In the meantime the people of God are enjoined not to seek spurious signs of supernatural power, but to rest in the written word of God (Isa. 8:17-20)”

(ibid.). “The long period of God’s judicial silence, which men have perversely construed as an evidence of moral indifference instead of long-suffering mercy on the part of God, will come to an end (Ps. 50:21)” (ibid., p. 209). “...physical miracles of any sort would eventually become the exception rather than the rule... What needs to be emphasized, however, is that these conditions are not descriptive of the final age of human history, but belong only to the interim before the coming of the Kingdom age” (ibid., p. 372). “When miracles take place during the present era of the Church, as I am sure they do, they are generally veiled by the providential devices of God, thus permitting the willful sceptic to attribute the miracle to causes which are secondary, and often making it difficult, if not impossible, for the believer to ‘prove’ its supernatural character. This is in harmony with the chief characteristic of the life of the Church, which is faith in Christ in the sense of unlimited willingness to trust Him in all things. In the face of the inexplicable problems of human life, the mysteries of the divine will, the apparent inequalities of divine justice, and human perplexity under the sombre shadows of a silent heaven, the Church must ‘walk by faith, not by sight’ (2 Cor. 5:7). There is nothing inherently sinful about believing on the evidence of sense experience; but there is a special blessing for those who have believed without seeing (John 20:29), who, against the often adverse testimony of human experience, continue to believe and trust without reserve in Him who today is not visible, ‘Whom having not seen, ye love’ (1 Pet. 1:8). In the Church, God is preparing a special people, called out and tested in the crucible of adversity, who are destined to occupy the highest place of responsibility in the future Kingdom of Christ” (ibid., p. 412).

Chapter 21: The Rapture of the Church

The Church Age, which was in Old Testament times a yet-to-be-revealed “mystery” in relation to God’s theocratic Kingdom program with Israel (see our previous chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church)), fittingly concludes with a mystery: the Rapture of the church (see our discussion of the four elements of the mystery of the church, one of which is the Rapture, in the The Mystery of the Church section of our previous chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church)). The Rapture is the church’s “blessed hope” (Titus 2:13) and should be eagerly anticipated by every member of Christ’s body.

Definition of the Rapture

The Rapture can be defined as Christ’s “catching up” into the air of all those in Him, whether dead or alive, at the end of the Church Age. Those alive at that time will be caught up together with all those who had previously died in Christ who will at that time be (bodily) resurrected, so the entire church will be raised up, glorified, and forever be with her Bridegroom, Head and Lord. The Rapture is defined primarily in three passages of Scripture: 1. “Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:1-3). 2. “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality” (1 Cor. 15:51-53). 3. “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “Some writers (as Rev. Wilson in Proph. Times, vol. 12, p. 131) make the language (John 11:25, 28) of Jesus to Martha applicable to this period: ‘I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth on me, though he were dead, yet shall he live’ (i.e. by the power of the resurrection); ‘and whoever liveth and believeth on me’ (i.e. at the time of resurrection) ‘shall never die’ (i.e. he shall experience a translation)” (Peters, TTK, 2:314). “...the translation of living saints at the Advent of Jesus... while it was a special object of hope and desire to the early believers and to succeeding ones, it is only more recently, since eschatology has received remarkable study and investigation, that important additions (resulting from comparing Scripture with Scripture) have been made to our knowledge respecting it” (ibid.). “If His return is said to be fulfilled in the death of a believer, because of the fact that he then goes to be with Christ, there is a sad ignoring of every predicted event accompanying that return and a hopeless confusion of what the Scriptures call the ‘last enemy’ and ‘the blessed hope’” (Chafer, KHP, 75%). “The Lord’s return for His Bride (only mentioned in the New Testament) should technically be designated the rapture, resting on the wording of 1 Thessalonians 4:17 (‘caught up’ answers to the Latin rapio, whence rapture, the verb being so employed in the Latin Vulgate)” (Feinberg, M, p. 297). “The word rapture is from rapere, found in the expression ‘caught up’ in the Latin translation of 1 Thessalonians 4:17” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 12). “...the principal rapture passages (John 14:3; 1 Cor. 15:51-52; 1 Thess. 4:13-18)” (ibid., p. 177) “Pretribulationists hold that at the Rapture we have a reversal of what occurs on the day of Pentecost—namely, that every believer was indwelt and baptized by the Spirit into the body of Christ. Certainly before Pentecost people were empowered by the Spirit and born again, even if they were not necessarily all indwelt or baptized by the Spirit” (ibid., p. 243). “...the rapture of the church, including both resurrection and translation” (ibid., p. 247) “While the words rapture and translation are not quite identical, they refer to the same event. By the term rapture, reference is made to the fact that the church is ‘caught up’ from the earth and taken to heaven. By the term translation the thought is conveyed that those who are thus raptured are transformed in their physical bodies from natural and corruptible bodies to spiritual, incorruptible, and immortal bodies. Strictly speaking, the dead are raised while the living are translated. In common usage, however, this distinction is not normally maintained” (ibid., p. 269). “The word translated ‘caught up’ in 1 Thessalonians 4:17 is the same word translated ‘caught up’ for Jesus’ ascension or rapture to heaven (Rev. 12:5) and for the rapture of the man who was transported to the third heaven (2 Cor. 12:2-4)” (Showers, M, p. 163). “And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God and to His throne” (Rev. 12:5). “I know a man in Christ who fourteen years ago — whether in the body I do not know, or out of the body I do not know, God knows — such a man was caught up to the third heaven. And I know how such a man — whether in the body or apart from the body I do not know, God knows — was caught up into Paradise, and heard inexpressible words, which a man is not permitted to speak” (2 Cor. 12:2-4). “It is important to note that John 14:2-3 presents a coming of Christ that does not bring Him to the earth. Instead, the combined concepts of John 14 and 1 Thessalonians 4 indicate that in this coming Christ will descend from heaven to the air above the earth, receive believers unto Himself by catching them up from the earth to meet Him in the air, and then return with them to heaven to dwell together there” (Showers, M, p. 164). “The Greek word used here, harpazo, means ‘to be caught up.’ The English term rapture comes from a Latin source which is the Latin equivalent to the Greek term meaning the same thing: ‘to be caught up’” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 145). “Pretribulationism holds that the Rapture of the church occurs before the Tribulation, during which the church, Christ’s bride, will be in heaven, standing before His judgment seat (2 Cor. 5:10) and preparing for His return to earth. Pretribulationism holds that Christ’s coming for His saints will be in the air and before the Tribulation; after the Tribulation, Christ will come with His saints and to earth to reign for a thousand years. Charles Ryrie, John Walvoord, and Dwight Pentecost expound this view” (Geisler, ST, 4:612). “‘caught up’... (1 Thess. 4:16-17)... The Greek word for ‘rapture,’ translated caught up, is arpadzo, which is translated in the Latin Bible (the Vulgate) as rapturo, from which we get the word rapture” (ibid., p. 621).

The Fact of the Rapture

The fact of a future (as of this writing) Rapture for the church is evident from several passages of Scripture, and is either implied or alluded to in a number of others. “Jesus said to her, I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die. Do you believe this?” (John 11:25-26)? “When Jesus comes back He will be the ‘Resurrection’ to the ‘Dead in Christ,’ and the ‘Life’ to those who are ‘Living’ and Believe In Him” (Larkin, DT, p. 78). “Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:1-3). “Peter therefore seeing him said to Jesus, ‘Lord, and what about this man?’ Jesus said to him, ‘If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you? You follow Me!’ This saying therefore went out among the brethren that that disciple would not die; yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but only, ‘If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you” (John 21:21-23)? “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality” (1 Cor. 15:51-53). “‘We’ shall not all sleep... ‘WE’ a certain class of person, the saints that shall be alive when that event occurs, whether in his day or at some later time” (Larkin, DT, p. 15). “In 1 Thessalonians 4, the question was whether those who had died in Christ would have the same benefits and experience as those who were translated. In 1 Corinthians 15, the question is whether those who are translated will have the same experience and benefits as those who have died and who are resurrected. The two passages together give a complete answer to the basic questions concerning the Rapture as an important prophetic event” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 246). “This discussion of the Rapture comes at the close of a great theological passage dealing first with the death and resurrection of Christ, then the resurrection of believers and the necessity of it. Having established the doctrine of resurrection, the discussion in 1 Corinthians 15:51-58 is, in large measure, a presentation of the fact that the Rapture is the major exception to the normal rule of death followed by resurrection. It is Paul’s revelation that a whole generation of Christians will not die but will be raptured and given bodies that will last forever, exactly like the bodies of those who were resurrected from the grave” (ibid.). “knowing that He who raised the Lord Jesus will raise us also with Jesus and will present us with you” (2 Cor. 4:14). “For our citizenship is in heaven, from which also we eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who will transform the body of our humble state into conformity with the body of His glory, by the exertion of the power that He has even to subject all things to Himself” (Phil. 3:20-21). “and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, that is Jesus, who delivers us from the wrath to come” (1 Thes. 1:10). “1 Thessalonians, probably the first epistle that Paul wrote, contributes more to the doctrine of the Rapture than any other book of the New Testament. It is most significant that this truth is given such prominence in teaching a young church that is being introduced to basic truth. The Rapture is mentioned in one way or another in every chapter of this book (1:10; 2:19; 3:13; 4:13-18; 5:1-11, 23)” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 197) “1 Thessalonians... Obviously, if the Great Tribulation is going to precede the Rapture, it would be natural to state this in a book dedicated to the exposition of the doctrine of the Rapture” (ibid.). “1 Thessalonians 1:10... Here the hope of the Lord is seen as... an event that preceded the coming wrath” (ibid., p. 198). “For who is our hope or joy or crown of exultation? Is it not even you, in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming? For you are our glory and joy” (1 Thes. 2:19–20). “1 Thess. 2:19-20... No preceding events are mentioned” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 199). “so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints” (1 Thes. 3:13). “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “Their expectations of the rapture of the church were as certain as the historical fact that Jesus had died and risen again (1 Thess. 4:14)” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 201). “Paul pointed out [in 1 Thess. 4:14] that when Jesus came, He would bring those with Him who were asleep in Christ. By this He was referring to Christians who had died and whose souls had gone to heaven. When He returned from heaven to the air above the earth, He would bring the souls with Him. This would make possible the reentry of souls into the resurrected bodies of the saints who had died; and together with those translated, they would meet the Lord in the air” (ibid.). “First Thessalonians 4:13-18 is the most extensive New Testament passage dealing with the Rapture of the church” (Showers, M, p. 198). “Now as to the times and the epochs, brethren, you have no need of anything to be written to you. For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, ‘Peace and safety!’ then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief; for you are all sons of light and sons of day. We are not of night nor of darkness; so then let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and sober. For those who sleep do their sleeping at night, and those who get drunk get drunk at night. But since we are of the day, let us be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and as a helmet, the hope of salvation. For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we are awake or asleep, we may live together with Him. Therefore encourage one another, and build up one another, just as you also are doing” (1 Thes. 5:1–11). “Taken as a whole, the pretribulation point of view gives sense and meaning to 1 Thessalonians 5 and explains why this is introduced after the Rapture. In effect, Paul was saying that the time of the Rapture cannot be determined any more than the time of the beginning of the day of the Lord; but this is of no concern to believers because our appointment is not the wrath of the day of the Lord but rather the salvation that is ours in Christ” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 222). “Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved complete, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Thes. 5:23). “Beloved, now we are children of God, and it has not appeared as yet what we shall be. We know that, when He appears, we shall be like Him, because we shall see Him just as He is” (1 John. 3:2). “so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:28). “keep yourselves in the love of God, waiting anxiously for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ to eternal life” (Jude 1:21). “Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to make you stand in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy, to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen” (Jude 1:24-25). “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth. I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown” (Rev. 3:10–11). “The phrase, ‘He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches’—with which each letter ends [e.g. 3:13]—is proof of the universal application of these postascension messages from Christ” (Chafer, ST, 4:56). “A clear reference to the Rapture is found in Revelation 3:10-11” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 255). “After these things I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven, and the first voice which I had heard, like the sound of a trumpet speaking with me, said, ‘Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after these things.’ Immediately I was in the Spirit; and behold, a throne was standing in heaven, and One sitting on the throne. And He who was sitting was like a jasper stone and a sardius in appearance; and there was a rainbow around the throne, like an emerald in appearance. And around the throne were twenty-four thrones; and upon the thrones I saw twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and golden crowns on their heads” (Rev. 4:1-4). “...the first stage of the Advent (which introduces a resurrection and translation of living ones)” (Peters, TTK, 2:88) “At the coming of the Lord some of His people will pass to heaven, as Elijah did, ‘with death untasted and the grave unknown’” (Anderson, SOG, p. 110). “The parousia of our Lord will cover a period of time and include a whole series of events. The first of His acts will be the removal of the Church of the present age from the earth, an event which Paul will later describe in detail (1 Thess. 4:13-18)” (McClain, GK, p. 374). “Taken as a whole, the evidence for the Rapture in Matthew’s Gospel does not stand careful examination. The only [gospel] passage clearly indicating a rapture is in John 14:1-3” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 193). “When the church is completed, Christ will return and rapture her to heaven (1 Thess. 4:16-18). Then will come the marriage and supper of the Lamb, when the bride will be united with her Bridegroom forever” (Geisler, ST, 4:96).

Identity of the Rapture

In order to correctly identify the Rapture, it is important for us to carefully distinguish what it is from what it is not, especially in relation to Christ’s Second Coming.

The Rapture is Not the Second Coming

If by Christ’s Second Coming we mean specifically Jesus’ future visible return to earth (see our chapter The Second Coming of the King), the Rapture is not Christ’s Second Coming. It is instead a separate event which is to occur before and in preparation for the Second Coming. Some scholars, such as George Peters, identify the Rapture as the first stage of a two-stage Second Coming. “In reference to the First Advent, the reader will observe that it is predicted that the Messiah comes as the Babe of Bethlehem, as entering the temple, as riding on an ass, as coming to Jerusalem, as appearing in Galilee, etc., and the history of Jesus embraces their respective fulfillment in separated stages of the same Advent. So careful comparison evidences a similar succession of acts in the Second Advent—two of which are held up—owing to their significance and results—with great prominence, viz., the thief-like Coming or presence, and the open, visible Coming or presence” (Peters, TTK, 2:319). “For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night” (1 Thes. 5:2). “But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief;” “Remember therefore what you have received and heard; and keep it, and repent. If therefore you will not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you” (Rev. 3:3). “(Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who stays awake and keeps his garments, lest he walk about naked and men see his shame.)” (Rev. 16:15) “...distinguish His visible Coming with the saints... from that of His Coming for them, preparatory to the former. Several stages of the same Advent, leaving a sufficient interval for the development of those things between them, is, as the ablest prophetic writers have asserted and proven, the only possible way in which to reconcile the condition attached to the Sec. Advent (as e.g. coming in a time of peace and coming in a time of war, etc.), and places it at the same time in the position given to it by the Spirit, viz., as something that may occur at any moment, and for which we are constantly to watch without looking first for the fulfillment of intervening things” (Peters, TTK, 2:331). “the Advent (in the sense we use it, viz., as embracing dif. stages)... His visible open Coming with His saints. But this is very different from His previous Coming for those saints, who participate with Him in the destruction of Antichrist, and thus leads us to allow an interval (short or long, as the case may be) before such a Coming in ‘vengeance.’... even before this last Confederation is formed... and the great tribulation is entered... saints are removed... this Advent—concealed to the world and known only by experience to the favored ones—precedes for a time—not given by such dates—the visible world manifestation and destruction of Antichrist” (ibid., 3:96). “Numerous writers of marked ability contend for the suddenness of the Advent, its impending imminency, but weaken their language (and even raise an antagonism) by not observing the difference between the first and last stage of the Sec. Advent... the last stage of the Advent (the open Parousia of Jesus with His saints)... the first stage (the thief-like Parousia of Jesus for His saints)” (ibid., p. 159) “...the Second Advent, like the First, is expressive of a period of years; that its beginning is characterized by a thief-like, concealed Coming and its end by an open Advent” (ibid., p. 302). “The Day of the Lord (of which the Tribulation is a part) is definitely not the day of the rapture, which precedes it” (Feinberg, M, p. 289). “Christ will not only be glorified in his saints when He comes for them (1 Thess. 4), but when He comes with them as well (2 Thess. 1)” (ibid.). “Undoubtedly after the church is translated, tribulation saints will be able to see the distinction of the coming for translation and the coming to establish the kingdom in a similar clarity” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 94). “John 14:2-3... none of the phenomenal features accompanying the Second Coming are mentioned here” (ibid., p. 195). “...the church will be raptured from the earth more than seven years before Christ’s coming with his angels” (Showers, M, p. 189) “Parousia means ‘arrival’ or ‘presence,’ and it is biblically used of the arrival of human beings (see 1 Cor. 16:17) as well as of Christ. He will arrive and be present at the Rapture as well as at the Second Coming; nothing about the term limits it to one or the other... The same is true of the word revelation (Gk: apokalypsis), which is used of both aspects of Christ’s return (cf. 1 Cor. 1:7; 2 Thess. 1:7)” (Geisler, ST, 4:628) “Jesus’ discourse in Matthew 24-25 does make sense in context, since the disciples were asking him about ‘signs’ and ‘the end of the age,’ which refer to His Second Coming, not the Rapture” (ibid., p. 655).

The Rapture and the Second Coming were revealed to the prophets separately. “Paul had stated that the revelation of the Rapture was by ‘the Lord’s own word’ (1 Thess. 4:15)... From a pretribulational point of view, it is most significant that Paul did not quote any of the Old Testament passages on the second coming of Christ, but rather he claimed that the Rapture was a direct revelation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 202).

These two events are spoken of separately in Scripture; never together. “It must be stressed that ‘the precise teaching of the translation of the Church is never found in passages dealing with the return of Christ to establish His kingdom on earth’” [quoting J. F. Walvoord, The Rapture Question, p. 169-70, 199] (Feinberg, M, p. 179). “Where does the Scripture join the rapture and the revelation in one passage” (ibid., p. 296)? “It is doubtful whether there is any specific reference at all to the Rapture or translation in the entire context of Matthew 24-25” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 101). (See also our discussion of the fact that the Rapture is not mentioned in any of the Second Coming passages in our discussion of the “Not Post-Tribulation” Rapture in our section The Timing of the Rapture below.)

There are numerous distinctions between the Rapture and the Second Coming, including their timing, participants, direction of travel and results. George Peters summarizes, “The Scriptures describe a Coming of Je-

for or in behalf of His saints (as e.g. 1 Thess. 4:14-17; 1 Cor. 15:51, 52), and then again another with all His saints (as e.g. Zech. 14:5; Rev. 19:14; 1 Thess. 3:13; Jude 14, 15), and these two, differing thus in an important particular, indicate separate stages or manifestations pertaining to the same Second Advent. Without allowing something of this kind, several acts pertaining to the one great Coming to this earth, it is impossible to reconcile such passages. For they are sustained in their difference not only by the simple act of coming for and with the saints, but in the design of such a Coming, viz., as to the former, for the purpose of salvation and glorification, and as to the latter, for the direct overthrow of the enemies of God, the restoration of the Jewish nation, and the glory (thereby promoted) of the saints" (TTK, 2:318). "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord" (1 Thes. 4:14-17). "Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed" (1 Cor. 15:51-52). "And ye shall flee by the valley of my mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azel; yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah; and Jehovah my God shall come, and all the holy ones with thee" (Zech. 14:5). "And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses" (Rev. 19:14). "so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints" (1 Thes. 3:13). "And about these also Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, 'Behold, the Lord came with many thousands of His holy ones, to execute judgment upon all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their ungodly deeds which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him'" (Jude 1:14-15). Dr. Feinberg itemizes fourteen distinctions between the Rapture and the Second Coming: "There are some fourteen distinctions discernible between the coming of the Lord for His own and the return with His saints. (1) The rapture is spoken of in the Scriptures as a mystery. In the two extended passages on that truth in 1 Corinthians 15 and 1 Thessalonians 4, the coming of Christ for His saints is treated as that which was never known by or revealed to Old Testament prophets. But the visible and glorious coming of the Messiah to earth is a subject upon which much is to be found both in the Old Testament and the New. It is certainly a vital distinction that definitely separates the two events. [‘Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality.’ (1 Cor. 15:51-53) ‘But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words.’ (1 Thes. 4:13-18)] (2) The coming of the Lord Jesus for His own will not be seen by the world, whereas His visible appearing will be seen by all when He comes in power and great glory with His holy angels. (3) At the first event believers will be judged at the judgment seat of Christ for rewards for satisfactory service, whereas at the second advent the nations will be judged as to their fitness to enter into the millennial kingdom of the Son of David. (4) Christ will appear to the church as Bridegroom, Lord, and Head; to Israel in the revelation He will come as King, Messiah, and Immanuel. (5) The rapture hope is centered in the fact that the Lord is at hand; with regard to the visible return of the Lord, the central thought is that the kingdom is at hand. (6) When the church is caught up to be with Christ, creation will remain unchanged; when the revelation takes place all creation will be delivered from the bondage of corruption. (7) The first event has no relation whatever to the nations; the second event sees their judgment. The remaining distinctions are just as clear. (8) In the rapture the church will be removed from the earth; in the revelation she will be returning with Christ. (9) At the first event Israel will be unaffected; in the second she will have all her covenants fulfilled. (10) Evil will not come into view when Christ takes

His own to Himself; when He comes with them, evil will be ended, Satan will be judged, and the beast and the false prophet will be destroyed. (11 & 12) In the first event there will be no signs to mark its approach, and it is a timeless event; in the second event there will be signs that precede its approach, and it will have a specific time and place in the prophetic scheme of the Scriptures. (13) One is spoken of as the 'Day of Christ' and the other is referred to as the 'Day of the Lord.' In the former, Christ will come as the 'Morning Star'; in the latter, He will appear as the 'Sun of Righteousness' who brings healing in His wings. (14) Finally, at the rapture Christ will come into the air and will not set foot on earth; at the revelation His feet will stand once again on the Mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east. Surely, then, premillennialists are warranted in distinguishing between the rapture, which is solely church truth, and the revelation, which concerns all the earth also" (M, p. 287). Dr. Pentecost identifies seventeen distinctions: "There are a number of contrasts to be drawn between the rapture and the second advent which will show that they are not viewed as synonymous in Scripture. The fact of two separate programs is best seen by a number of contrasts drawn in Scripture between the two events. (1) The translation entails the removal of all believers, while the second advent entails the appearing or manifestation of the Son. (2) The translation sees the saints caught up into the air, and in the second advent He returns to the earth. (3) In the translation Christ comes to claim a bride, but in the second advent He returns with the bride. (4) The translation results in the removal of the church and the inception of the tribulation, and the second advent results in the establishment of the millennial kingdom. (5) The translation is imminent, while the second advent is preceded by a multitude of signs. (6) The translation brings a message of comfort, while the second advent is accompanied by a message of judgment. (7) The translation is related to the program for the church, while the second advent is related to the program for Israel and the world. (8) The translation is a mystery, while the second advent is predicted in both Testaments. (9) At the translation believers are judged, but at the second advent the Gentiles and Israel are judged. (10) The translation leaves creation unchanged, while the second advent entails the change in creation. (11) At the translation Gentiles are unaffected, while at the second advent Gentiles are judged. (12) At the translation Israel's covenants are unfulfilled, but at the second advent all her covenants are fulfilled. (13) The translation has no particular relation to the program of God in relation to evil [but will not evil become unrestrained at the removal of the restrainer?—ed.], while at the second advent evil is judged. (14) The translation is said to take place before the day of wrath, but the second advent follows it. (15) The translation is for believers only, but the second advent has its effect on all men. (16) The expectation of the church in regard to the translation is ‘the Lord is at hand’ (Phil. 4:5), while the expectation of Israel in regard to the second advent is ‘the kingdom is at hand’ (Matt. 24:14). (17) The expectation of the church at the translation is to be taken into the Lord’s presence, while the expectation of Israel at the second advent is to be taken into the kingdom” (TTC, p. 206). “These, and other contrasts which might be presented, support the contention that these are two different programs and can not be unified into one event” (ibid., p. 207). Dr. Walvoord lists nine distinctions and makes several related observations: “These contrasts can be stated by comparison of details of the translation designated (A) and details of the Second Coming designated (B). (A) At the time of the translation, the saints will meet the Lord in the air. (B) At the time of the Second Coming, Christ will return to the Mount of Olives, which on that occasion will undergo a great transformation, a valley being formed to the east of Jerusalem where the Mount of Olives was formerly located (Zech. 14:4-5). (A) At the coming of Christ for the church, the living saints are translated. (B) At the coming of Christ to establish His kingdom, there is no translation whatever. (A) At the translation of the church, Christ returns with the saints to heaven. (B) At the Second Coming, Christ remains on the earth and reigns as King. (A) At the time of the translation, the earth is not judged and sin continues. (B) At the time of the Second Coming, sin is judged and righteousness fills the earth. (A) The translation is before the day of wrath from which the church is promised deliverance. (B) The Second Coming follows the Great Tribulation and outpoured judgment and brings them to climax and culmination in the establishment of the millennial kingdom. (A) The translation is described as an imminent event. (B) The Second Coming will follow definite prophesied signs. (A) The translation of the church is revealed only in the New Testament. (B) The second coming of Christ is the subject of prophecy in both Testaments. (A) The translation concerns only the saved of this age. (B) The second coming of Christ deals with saved and unsaved. (A) At the translation, only those in Christ are affected. (B) At the Second Coming, not only men are affected but Satan and his hosts are defeated and Satan is bound” (TRQ, p. 93). “1 Thess. 4:13-18... Another tremendous truth is implicit in the passage: the translation and resurrection take place before Christ actually returns to the earth. From a doctrinal standpoint both the order of these events and the time they occur distinguish them from the second coming. In passages concerning the second coming to the earth the separation of saints from the unsaved takes place uniformly after the the return of Christ. Matthew gathering fish of every kind; and when it was filled, they drew it up on the beach; and they sat down, and gathered the good fish into containers, but the bad they threw away. So it will be at the end of the age; the angels shall come forth, and take out the wicked from among the righteous, and will cast them into the furnace of fire; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”]... In His interpretation of this parable, Jesus indicated... The angels will ‘sever the wicked from among the righteous, And shall cast them into the furnace of fire’ (vv. 49-50)... We should note three things from Jesus’ interpretation. First, when the holy angels come forth at the end of the age, the wicked, not the just will be taken out or removed. Second, when the wicked are taken out, they will be removed ‘from among’ the just. These two things indicate that the just will be left when the wicked are removed. Third, when the wicked are taken out, they will be cast into a horrible place of torment. Thus, their taking out will result in judgment” (ibid., p. 178). “This reverse order prompts the following conclusions: The Rapture of the church and the coming of Christ with His angels must be two separate events, and they must take place at two different times” (ibid., p. 186).

Concerning these two separate (but related) events, the Rapture of the church and the Second Coming, we should point out that two “comings” of Christ is not a problem. “While posttribulationists often ridicule the teaching that there should be more than one ‘coming’ of Christ, there is no more reason why there should not be more than one future coming than there is against their own doctrine of a past coming and a future coming. To the Old Testament saint the division into one coming for suffering and another for glory and judgment was equally difficult to comprehend” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 174).

Participants in the Rapture

The participants in the Rapture will be all and only members of the church, both dead and alive. “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed” (1 Cor. 15:51–52). “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “To insure a first res. (or a translation) there must be a corresponding fitness, and therefore this res. itself is evidence of the Divine acceptance of the person experiencing its power. An antecedent estimate of character and worthiness must, of necessity, exist. This is based on justifying faith which releases from condemnation and insures eternal life through Jesus; while the position and honor of the saint after resurrection is graduated by the works done in his life of faith” (Peters, TTK, 2:306). “There is a distinction between the true church and the professing church. The true church is composed of all those in this age who have received Christ as Saviour. Over against this we have the professing church composed of those who make a profession of receiving Christ without actually receiving Him. Only the true church will be raptured” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 199). “‘we all’ in 1 Corinthians 15:51. The partial-rapture theory is probably the least popular of all the rapture viewpoints” (Walvoord, MK, p. 251). “It is inconceivable if the church is formed by grace that it should be divided by works” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 99). “The works principle immediately breaks down when the question is asked: How much works” (ibid., p. 110)? “The issue of reward is properly settled at the judgment seat of Christ, not before, and not in a partial translation” (ibid., p. 112) “A division such as partial rapturists teach is unthinkable in view of the doctrine of the one body” (ibid., p. 113). “The partial rapture view has been embraced by only a small fragment of evangelical Christians and has not been recognized by any evangelical Protestant group. It is an interpretation limited to a few and cannot be regarded as within the bounds of normal biblical premillennialism” (ibid.). “The completion of the Church comes with the Rapture, which concerns the resurrection of only those who died in Christ, which excludes those saints who died before the first coming” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 453). “...all believers will be raptured, both the living and the ‘dead in Christ’ (1 Thess. 4:16-17)” (Geisler, ST, 4:648).

Types of the Rapture

While the Rapture, as part of the “mystery” church program, is not found in Old Testament prophecy, some scholars do find in the Old Testament some possible types of the Rapture. However, since most these possible types are not confirmed to be such in the New Testament, they should be received as speculative only.

Enoch was taken up without seeing death. It's interesting that he was also the first one to prophesy of Christ's Second Coming. "And Enoch walked with God; and he was not, for God took him [before the Flood—ed.]" (Gen. 5:24). "By faith Enoch was taken up so that he should not see death; and he was not found because God took him up; for he obtained the witness that before his being taken up he was pleasing to God" (Heb. 11:5). "And about these also Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, 'Behold, the Lord came with many thousands of His holy ones'" (Jude 1:14) "Enoch, a type of the 'Translation Saints,' was caught out 'before' the Flood, and the Flood is a type of the Tribulation, and Noah and his family of the 'Jewish Remnant' or 144,000 sealed ones of Rev. 7:1-8, who will be preserved through the Tribulation" (Larkin, DT, p. 79).

Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven. "And it came to pass, as they still went on, and talked, that, behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, which parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven" (2 Kings. 2:11).

Lot was removed from Sodom before destruction came upon the city. "And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons-in-law, who married his daughters, and said, Up, get you out of this place. For Jehovah will destroy the city. But he seemed unto his sons-in-law as one that mocked. And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters that are here, lest thou be consumed in the iniquity of the city" (Gen. 19:14–15). "Likewise even as it came to pass in the days of Lot; they ate, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded; but in the day that Lot went out from Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all" (Luke 17:28–29) "and if He condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction by reducing them to ashes, having made them an example to those who would live ungodly thereafter; and if He rescued righteous Lot, oppressed by the sensual conduct of unprincipled men (for by what he saw and heard that righteous man, while living among them, felt his righteous soul tormented day after day with their lawless deeds), then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from temptation, and to keep the unrighteous under punishment for the day of judgment, and especially those who indulge the flesh in its corrupt desires and despise authority. Daring, self-willed, they do not tremble when they revile angelic majesties" (2 Pet. 2:6–10)

Rebekah, Isaac's bride, appears to be a type of the church in several particulars. "REBEKAH A TYPE OF THE 'BRIDE OF CHRIST.' 1. As Rebekah believed and yielded to the pleadings of Eliezer, so the Church believes and yields to the pleadings of the Holy Spirit. 2. As Rebekah was willing to separate herself from her kinsfolk for Isaac's sake, so the Believer is willing to separate himself from his kinsfolk for Jesus' sake. 3. As Eliezer on the way to Isaac told Rebekah all about his Master Isaac, and what was in store for her, so the Holy Spirit as we journey on our earthly pilgrimage tells us what is in store for us when we shall meet our Isaac—Jesus. 4. As Rebekah was a Gentile bride, so the Church of Christ is a Gentile Bride. 5. As Rebekah did not have to pass through any tribulation before she left her home to go to Isaac, so the Church will not have to pass through the Tribulation before meeting Jesus. 6. As Isaac left his home and went out into the field to meet Rebekah, so Jesus will descend from heaven to meet His Bride, the Church, in the air. 7. As it was 'eventide' when Isaac met Rebekah, so it will be the eventide of this dispensation when Jesus meets His church" (Larkin, DT, p. 154).

Asenath became Joseph's wife before the famine/tribulation. "And Pharaoh called Joseph's name Zaphenath-paneah; and he gave him to wife Asenath, the daughter of Poti-phaera priest of On. And Joseph went out over the land of Egypt" (Gen. 41:45). "Joseph was a type of Christ and he was espoused to, and married Asenath, A Gentile bride, during the time of his 'rejection by his brethren,' and 'before the famine,' which typified the Tribulation, because it was the time of 'Judgment of his Brethren.' This is the time of Christ's rejection by 'His Brethren'—the Jews, and to complete the type He must get His bride—the church, 'before' the Tribulation" (Larkin, DT, p. 79).

Moses' wife Zipporah was given to him after his rejection and before the Israelites' tribulation in Egypt. "And when they came to Reuel their father, he said, How is it that ye are come so soon to-day? And they said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and moreover he drew water for us, and watered the flock. And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? Why is it that ye have left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread. And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter" (Ex. 2:18–21). "Moses, who is also a type of Christ, got his bride, and she a Gentile, 'after' his rejection by his brethren, and 'before' they passed through the Tribulation under Pharaoh. Ex. 2:23-25" (Larkin, DT, p. 79). "And it came to pass in the course of those many days, that the king of Egypt died: and the children of Israel sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried, and their cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage. And God heard their groaning, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. And God saw the children of Israel, and God took knowledge of them” (Ex. 2:23–25).

Daniel was not on hand during the time of testing when Nebuchadnezzar had set up an image for worship on the plain of Dura (as the church will not be on hand when the false prophet demands universal worship of Antichrist). “The Apoc. Expounded (vol. 1, p. 207, given by Seiss in The Apoc., p. 230) makes Daniel ‘a type of those kept out of the hour of temptation. When all nations, kindreds, and people are required to worship the image of the plain of Dura, he is not there’” (Peters, TTK, 2:325).

The Jewish Wedding Analogy

The traditional Jewish wedding appears to be an exceptionally fitting and detailed type of the wedding of the church to Christ. Since this type has at least some confirmation in the New Testament, it seems more plausible in this writer’s mind than most of the other, more speculative types. “Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, And rejoiceth as a strong man to run his course” (Ps. 19:5) “Now the birth of Jesus Christ was as follows. When His mother Mary had been betrothed to Joseph, before they came together she was found to be with child by the Holy Spirit. And Joseph her husband, being a righteous man, and not wanting to disgrace her, desired to put her away secretly” (Matt. 1:18–19). “Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, “Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.” Then all those virgins rose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the prudent, “Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.” But the prudent answered, saying, “No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.” And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. And later the other virgins also came, saying, “Lord, lord, open up for us.” But he answered and said, “Truly I say to you, I do not know you.” Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour” (Matt. 25:1–13). “Be dressed in readiness, and keep your lamps alight. And be like men who are waiting for their master when he returns from the wedding feast, so that they may immediately open the door to him when he comes and knocks. Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them. Whether he comes in the second watch, or even in the third, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves” (Luke 12:35–38). “He who has the bride is the bridegroom; but the friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices greatly because of the bridegroom’s voice. And so this joy of mine has been made full” (John 3:29). “In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:2–3). “In the same way He took the cup also, after supper, saying, ‘This cup is the new covenant in My blood; do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of Me.’ For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord’s death until He comes” (1 Cor. 11:25–26). “For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, that to Christ I might present you as a pure virgin” (2 Cor. 11:2). “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:16–17). “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, ‘Write, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”’ And he said to me, ‘These are true words of God’” (Rev. 19:6–9). George Peters comments, “[the parable of the ten virgins]... the bridegroom comes after the wedding to his own house, and his friends await him there to receive the procession and participate in the proposed marriage feast, finds its precise fulfillment in Jesus... taking His course to His own inheritance, to Jerusalem, where He meets a body of His ‘own’ people... this remnant of Jews... those who wait expect the coming of a bridegroom (not themselves to be the bride) and a participation in the marriage feast in the bridegroom’s inheritance... the terrible persecution endured, the proclamation of the truth... during the interval, the precise realization of the prophetic announcements in their own experience, the culmination of their tribulation as foreshown by the Spirit in connection with Jesus of Nazareth, has at length caused this remnant at Jerusalem to decide favorably to Jesus of Nazareth, and to await His Coming as the promised One, even as the bridegroom... the reception of some and the rejection of others, owing to that of preparation and attitude occupied, finds its exact parallel in the verifications of the predictions that a portion of the Jews will be accepted and another portion be rejected—that a sifting and separation will ensue... the posture occupied by the virgins is indicative of a belief in a Coming, expected Messiah, and this is in accord with the Jewish position then occupied, for seeing the accurate fulfillment in the distress accumulated upon them by the last Antichrist, they will also believe in the promised deliverance (as e.g. shown in Zech. 14), and some will be suitably prepared (morally) while others will neglect preparation... the prophecy preceding (comp. Mark 13 and Luke 21) had a special mention of the Jewish nation, of its long-continued tribulation, etc., and it is reasonable that in the final result Jesus should illustrate the condition of the Jews, addressing Himself to them... the Second Advent of the Messiah has a twofold specific relationship... viz., first, to the Church which is associated with Him in the highest Theocratic relationship, in rulership, etc.; and second, to the Jewish nation which occupies a subordinate, but as to other nations a supreme, Theocratic position; in view of this, it is reasonable to suppose that the duty of watching and being prepared would be enjoined upon both; (1) the virgins are invited guests, specially called to participate in the marriage feast ushering in the Millennial era, and so numerous predictions call and invite the Jews to that ‘feast of fat things,’ and we are assured of a response” (TTK, 3:303) “Besides this, the parable [of the ten virgins] shows that when the cry was raised, both wise and foolish were aroused by it and acknowledged that Coming, etc., which is not true of any warnings uttered by Pre-Millenarianism... Indeed, before the first stage of the Advent it could not possibly be applied, as the Church is represented as faithless, etc., on the subject. It pertains to the interval between the two stages, when these virgins recognize this marriage, acknowledge their relationship to the bridegroom and bride (as predicted), and then, just when the bridal procession is to be awaited, anticipate its coming... The cry itself does not, as claimed, come from the wise virgins; they themselves are aroused by it. It proceeds either from heralds preceding the procession, or from the procession itself, or else from Gentiles. The most probable opinion, however, is that it proceeds from Elijah, who (as we show elsewhere in detail) is specially sent to the Jews during this interval to prepare them for the open Parousia” (ibid., p. 307). “A Hebrew marriage has three stages: (1) the legal marriage consummated by the parents of the bride and groom; (2) the groom goes to take his bride from her parents’ home; (3) the wedding supper or feast... Romans 7:4 indicates that legally the church is already the wife of Christ. At the Rapture, Christ will come for His bride. At the return to the earth, the wedding feast will be held” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 163). “Therefore, my brethren, you also were made to die to the Law through the body of Christ, that you might be joined to another, to Him who was raised from the dead, that we might bear fruit for God” (Rom. 7:4). Dr. Showers explains in some detail, “Jewish Marriage Customs in Bible Times: The first major step in a Jewish marriage in Bible times was betrothal, the establishment of a marriage covenant. By Jesus’ time, such a covenant was usually established when the prospective bridegroom took the initiative. He would travel from his father’s house to the home of the prospective bride, where he would negotiate with the father of the young woman to determine the price (Mohar) he must pay to purchase her. Once the bridegroom paid the purchase price, the marriage covenant was established, and the young man and woman were regarded as husband and wife (cp. Mal. 2:14; Mt. 1:18-19). From that moment on, the bride was declared to be consecrated or sanctified, set apart exclusively for her bridegroom. As a symbol of the covenant relationship that had been established, the groom and bride drank from a cup of wine over which a betrothal benediction had been pronounced. After the marriage covenant was established, the groom left his bride at her home and returned to his father’s house, where he remained separated from his bride for approximately 12 months. This afforded the bride time to gather her trousseau and prepare for married life. During this period of separation, the groom prepared a dwelling place in his father’s house to which he could bring his bride later. At the end of the period of separation, the groom came usually at night to take his bride to live with him. The groom, best man, and other male escorts left the groom’s father’s house and conducted a torch-light procession to the home of the bride. Although the bride was expecting her groom to come for her, she did not know the time of his coming. As a result, the groom’s arrival was preceded by a shout, which forewarned the bride to be prepared for his coming. After the groom received his bride, together with her female attendants, the enlarged wedding party returned from the bride’s home to the groom’s father’s house, where the wedding guests had assembled. Shortly after their arrival, the bride and groom were escorted by the other members of the wedding party to the bridal chamber (huppah). Prior to entering the chamber, the bride remained veiled so that no one could see her face. While the groomsmen and the bridesmaids waited outside, the bride and groom entered the bridal chamber alone. There, in the privacy of that place, they entered into physical union for the first time, thereby consummating the marriage that had been covenanted approximately one year earlier. After the marriage was consummated, the groom came out of the bridal chamber and announced the consummation of the marriage to the members of the wedding party waiting outside (Ps. 19:5; Jn. 3:29). Then, as the groom went back to his bride in the chamber, the members of the wedding party returned to the wedding guests and announced the consummation of the marriage. Upon receiving this good news, the wedding guests remained in the groom's father's house for the next seven days, celebrating with a great wedding feast. During the seven days of the wedding feast, the bride and groom remained hidden in the bridal chamber (Gen. 29:21-23, 27-28) for 'the seven days of the huppah.' Afterwards, the groom came out of hiding, bringing his bride with him, but with her veil removed so that everyone could see who she was. This is the way that the Jews normally conducted marriages in Jesus' time" (M, p. 164). "In the same way that the Jewish groom and bride drank from a cup of wine as a symbol of the marriage covenant that united them as husband and wife, so Christ has given the cup of communion to the church to drink from periodically as a recurring symbol of the new covenant that has united Him and the church spiritually as husband and wife (1 Cor. 11:25-26)" (ibid., p. 167). "Just as a procession of the groom and male escorts from the groom's father's house came to fetch the bride from her home, so a procession of Christ and the angelic escort descending from Christ's Father's house in heaven will fetch the church from the earth (1 Th. 4:16-17)" (ibid.). "In the same manner as the Jewish wedding party found wedding guests assembled in the groom's father's house when they arrived, so Christ and the church will find the souls of Old Testament saints (those who were saved in Old Testament times before the church began and who, therefore, are not part of the church) assembled in His Father's house in heaven when they arrive. These souls will serve as the wedding guests for Christ and the church" (ibid., p. 168). "Just as the Jewish bride and groom remained hidden for a period of seven days after they arrived at the groom's father's house, so Christ and the church will remain hidden for a period of seven years after they arrive in heaven. While the seven years of the 70th week of Daniel 9 are taking place on the earth, Christ and the church will be in heaven, totally hidden from the view of those living on the earth" (ibid.). "In the same way that the Jewish bride and groom came out of hiding after seven days, now with the bride's veil removed so that all could see who she was, so Christ and the church will come out of hiding from heaven after the seven years of the 70th week, in full view of all who are still alive on the earth, so that everyone can see who the true church is. Paul wrote to members of the church, ‘When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory’ (Col. 3:4)” (ibid.). “The only view of the John 14:3 coming of Christ that fits the Jewish marriage analogy implied by Christ in that passage is the future-coming view. As a result, the Jewish marriage analogy is a significant evidence for that view” (ibid., p. 169). Dr. Fruchtenbaum suggests, “The Rapture is the fetching of the Bride” (FM, p. 161). “In order to fully comprehend what is happening in Revelation 19:6-9, it is first necessary to understand the Jewish wedding system that was common in Jesus’ day and was still used among Jews until the beginning of the twentieth century. The Jewish marriage system had four distinct stages, all of which are to be found in the relationship of the Church as the Bride of the Messiah. In the first stage, the father of the groom made the arrangement for the bride and paid the bride price. This first stage might happen when the children are very young, or one year prior to the marriage. Thus, a long period of time could transpire between the first and second stage. The minimum was one year. Often the bride and groom did not meet each other until their wedding day. Eventually came the second stage, known as the fetching of the bride. In this second stage, the groom would go to the home of the bride in order to fetch her and bring her to his home. This was often done in accompaniment with a wedding procession. However, the father of the groom determined when the fetching would occur. Furthermore, it had to wait until the groom had a place prepared for her. Then came the third stage, which was the marriage ceremony to which only a few would be invited. This was preceded by a ritual immersion for ritual cleansing. Finally came the fourth stage, the marriage supper or feast, which would last for as long as seven days. Many others not invited to the ceremony were invited to the feast” (ibid., p. 587). “While the first stage has already been completed, the other three stages are still future” (ibid.). “The second stage was the fetching of the bride... This fetching of the Bride is referred to today as the Rapture of the Church and is described in 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18” (ibid., p. 588) “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13–18). “The third stage, the marriage ceremony, will take place in Heaven just prior to the Second Coming at the end of the Tribulation. This is described in Revelation 19:6–8” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p.588) “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints” (Rev. 19:6–8). “The reason the Bride will now be fully ready for the marriage ceremony is because she will have her entire bridal gown on ([Rev. 19] v. 8)... this also shows that the marriage ceremony takes place after the Judgment Seat of the Messiah, when the saints are rewarded for their deeds on earth (1 Cor. 3:10–15). All the wood, hay, and stubble has been burned away and all the gold, silver, and precious stones have been purified. This corresponds to the ritual cleansing of the Jewish wedding system. The ones present at the marriage ceremony are the ‘few,’ that is, only those in Heaven at the time” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 589). “After the marriage ceremony will come the fourth stage, the marriage feast, as described in Revelation 19:9” (ibid.) “And he said to me, ‘Write, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”’” And he said to me, ‘These are true words of God’” (Rev. 19:9). “Since many are bidden and invited to come to the marriage feast, this passage indicates that the marriage supper or feast will be at a different place than the marriage ceremony. According to the Word of God, the Old Testament saints are resurrected not with the Church before the Tribulation, but after the Tribulation (Dan. 12:2). John the Baptist, who was the last of the Old Testament prophets, called himself a friend of the bridegroom and did not consider himself to be a member of the Bride, the Church (Jn. 3:27–30). Hence, the ‘many’ who are bidden to attend the marriage feast on earth are all the Old Testament saints and the Tribulation saints resurrected after the Second Coming. While the marriage ceremony will take place in Heaven just before the Second Coming, the marriage feast will take place on earth after the Second Coming. In fact, it would seem that the marriage feast is what begins the Millennium or the Messianic Kingdom; the Church’s co-reigning with the Messiah will start with a tremendous marriage feast. Hence, the Kingdom parables are at times connected with the wedding feast (Matt. 22:1-14; 25:1-13). With the marriage feast, all four stages will be complete” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, 589). Purposes of the Rapture

The Rapture of the church, being one of the most supernatural and momentous events in all of world history, has purposes both for the church and also for those left behind.

Purposes for the Church

The purposes of the Rapture for the church include saving the church, closing the Church Age and preparing the church for the Kingdom.

The first major purpose (which in turn is made up of several component purposes, which we’ll itemize immediately below) of the Rapture is to save the church. “so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:28). “Salvation is to be completed through His Sec. Advent” (Peters, TTK, 3:554). “The Rapture is part of salvation, which is begun and completed by God (Phil. 1:7), not by our works (Titus 3:5-7; Eph. 2:8-9)” (Geisler, ST, 4:647). “Believers work only for rewards (1 Cor. 3:11; Rev. 22:12), not to participate in the Rapture, which is part of their salvation—the third and final part, called glorification” (ibid., p. 648).

The Rapture will transfer the church from earth to where Jesus is, as per Jesus’ desire. “But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man” (Luke 21:36). “Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in Me. In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:1-3). “Father, I desire that they also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me where I am, in order that they may behold My glory, which Thou hast given Me; for Thou didst love Me before the foundation of the world” (John 17:24). “to be caught up in the clouds (or as some, in clouds) to meet the Lord in the air,’ from which it is wrongfully assumed that the Lord and the saints remain in the air” (Peters, TTK, 2:533) “In John 14:1-3, it is disclosed that Christ will receive His own unto Himself: not into the mansions, but into the place which He has gone to prepare” (Chafer, MBT, 20%). “When its membership is complete, the Church will be taken up from the earth by rapture and resurrection to be personally ‘with’ her divine Head. And this conjugal relationship will be everlasting, never to be broken by divorce, nor marred by any separation” (McClain, GK, p. 478). “...these ‘saints’ shall be with Him when He comes to reign (1 Thess. 3:13). It would be inconceivable that the Lamb’s ‘wife,’ after the blessed consummation of the marriage in heaven should ever again be separated from her glorious Bridegroom” (ibid.). “so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints” (1 Thes. 3:13). “In His promise, Jesus made it clear that He, not someone else, would come and receive His believers and that He would receive them unto Himself. This implies that this coming to receive believers is so significant to Him personally that He will not entrust this activity to another. In light of this, Pink wrote, ‘The Lord will not send for us, but come in person to conduct us into the Father’s House. How precious we must be to Him!... To have us with Himself is His heart’s desire” [quoting Arthur W. Pink, Exposition of the Gospel of John, p. 352] (Showers, M, p. 157). “Here in John xiv the Lord gives a new and unique revelation; He speaks of something which no prophet had promised, or even could promise. Where is it written that this Messiah would come and instead of gathering His saints into an earthly Jerusalem, would take them to the Father’s house, to the very place where He is? It is something new... He speaks then of a coming which is not for the deliverance of the Jewish remnant, not of a coming to establish His kingdom over the earth, not of a coming to judge the nations, but a coming which concerns only His own” [quoting Arno Clemens Gaebelein, The Gospel of John, p. 268] (ibid., p. 159). “The adverb translated ‘ever’ in 1 Thessalonians 4:17 means ‘always, at all times.’ Once the church meets the Lord in the air at the Rapture, it will never be separated physically from Him again. From that time, wherever Christ goes, the church will go with Him” (ibid., p. 164). “Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:17). “then we that are alive, that are left, shall together with them be caught up in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:1, ASV).

It will deliver the church from God’s wrath. “But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man” (Luke 21:36). “Much more then, having now been justified by His blood, we shall be saved from the wrath of God through Him” (Rom. 5:9). “There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus” (Rom. 8:1). “and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, that is Jesus, who delivers us from the wrath to come” (1 Thes. 1:10). “For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Thes. 5:9) “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth” (Rev. 3:10). “Rev. 3:10... Dr. Craven (Lange’s Com. loci) points out that ‘It is also to be observed that the promise is not of preservation in trial (or testing), as was the promise to Peter, Luke 22:32; but of preservation from (ek) the hour or period of trial’ (comp. 2 Pet. 2:9)” (Peters, TTK, 2:324). “Analogy favors the removal of the righteous in a time of severe and terrible judgment intended for the wicked, as in the case of Noah, Lot, the early believers at Jerusalem, etc., while previous translations are not lacking, as in the case of Enoch and Elijah” (ibid., p. 315). “Dr. Brookes (Maranatha) saying of the judgments still future: ‘We might argue from analogy that a heavenly people, the Church, would be preserved from it, like Enoch; and that an earthly people, the faithful remnant among the Israelites, would be preserved through it, like Noah; while the ungodly who have despised His love would be overwhelmed by it, like the antediluvian world’” (ibid., p. 546). “To demand that believers must experience the terrible judgment and destruction which must fall on unbelievers is to do violence to every feature of the saving grace of God” (Chafer, ST, 4:365). “It was fitting that Paul referred to Him as Jesus, because that name means ‘Savior’ (Mt. 1:21), and in 1 Thessalonians 1:10 Paul indicated that He is the one who delivers or saves church saints from wrath” (Showers, M, p. 193). “Paul indicated that Christ delivers church saints from future wrath by separating them from it, not by sheltering or protecting them from the wrath while they are in its midst” (ibid., p. 194). “1 Thessalonians 5:9... God has not appointed them to wrath.

The context of Paul's declaration indicates that he was referring to the future Day of the Lord wrath (5:2-3)" (ibid., p. 196). "For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, 'Peace and safety!' then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape" (1 Thes. 5:2-3). "Paul, the Thessalonian believers, and Christians today will escape all aspects of God's wrath, general and specific, including the Tribulation period. The clear implication of this verse is that Paul hoped in the Lord's imminent return. Otherwise Paul would have told his readers to prepare for the Tribulation" [quoting Constable, 1 Thessalonians, p. 693] (Showers, M, p. 198). "God's intention for them is not the wrath that will come on the earth in the Day of the Lord, but the full salvation that will be theirs when the Lord returns for them in the clouds. The wrath of God referred to here clearly refers to the Tribulation; the context makes this apparent. Deliverance from that wrath is God's appointment for believers. That temporal salvation comes through the Lord Jesus Christ just as does eternal salvation" [quoting Constable, 1 Thessalonians, p. 706] (ibid., p. 206). "There is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus' (Rom. 8:1). Because Christ bore God's wrath for us, we do not have to endure it. The Tribulation will be an unprecedented time of God's wrath, which there is no reason for the church to experience (1 Thess. 5:9)" (Geisler, ST, 4:634).

And, it will deliver the church from persecution. "Jesus removes saints from a coming persecution, hence in this dispensation" (Peters, TTK, 3:104) (See our discussion of the persecution associated with the Tribulation period in the section Characteristics of the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

The second major purpose of the Rapture is to close the Church Age. "After these things [the seven churches of Rev. 2-3] I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven, and the first voice which I had heard, like the sound of a trumpet speaking with me, said, 'Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after these things.' Immediately I was in the Spirit; and behold, a throne was standing in heaven, and One sitting on the throne. And He who was sitting was like a jasper stone and a sardius in appearance; and there was a rainbow around the throne, like an emerald in appearance. And around the throne were twenty-four thrones; and upon the thrones I saw twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and golden crowns on their heads" (Rev. 4:1-4). "Grace in its fullest aspects began to be manifested when the Law was done away... that grace, I say, will terminate at the catching away of the Body of Christ to be ever with the Lord” (Feinberg, M, p. 214). “...the reinstatement of the Law for Israel after the age of grace in the Tribulation period and subsequent to it, as held by premillennialists” (ibid., p. 219). “This age is in a particular sense the ‘dispensation of the Spirit,’ for He works in a way uncommon to other ages as an abiding Presence within the children of God... The church age commenced with the advent of the Spirit at Pentecost, and will close with a reversal of Pentecost, the removal of the Spirit. This does not mean that He will not be operative—only that He will no longer be resident” [quoting Gerald Stanton, Kept from the Hour, p. 110] (Pentecost, TTC, p. 262).

The third major purpose (which again, in turn, is made up of several component purposes, which we’ll itemize immediately below) of the Rapture is to prepare the church for the Kingdom. “...for specific purposes (viz., to raise, translate, and glorify His saints, to inaugurate the preliminaries of his Kingdom, etc.)” (Peters, TTK, 2:319).

The Rapture will transform (glorify) the church. “Paul’s reasoning includes the outcome or the result, and not the mode of operation; but this embraces so much, viz., that the future body sustains some relation to the dead body in the grave, although when raised and glorified it is very different from this mortal body, having other powers, qualities, attributes, etc., to fit it for its intended glorified use” (Peters, TTK, 2:233). “As the regeneration of the Lord Jesus (Col. 1:18; Rev. 1:5; 1 Cor. 15:20) is separate from, precedes, and yet is connected, with the ultimate renewal of creation itself, so the regeneration of the believers, accounted worthy to obtain this Kingdom, is separate from, precedes, and yet stands related to, the mighty changes which shall transform nature into the Edenic state so rapturously delineated by the prophets” (ibid., p. 477). “He is also head of the body, the church; and He is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; so that He Himself might come to have first place in everything” (Col. 1:18). “and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the first-born of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To Him who loves us, and released us from our sins by His blood” (Rev. 1:5) “But now Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who are asleep” (1 Cor. 15:20). “Every believer is now in the chrysalis state of grace, but then in the perfected state” (Peters, TTK, 3:66).

The Rapture will transform the church from flesh and blood to otherwise. “Now I say this, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable. Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed" (1 Cor. 15:50–52). "...a conversion by which flesh and blood is excluded" (Peters, TTK, p. 232) "If this is the Kingdom of heaven, how can the flesh and blood of fallen man inherit it?... a confounding of those who inherit (i.e. the glorified saints, who actually receive a rulership in the Kingdom) with the subjects of the Kingdom" (ibid., 2:552). "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.' To this we reply: most certainly, because this pertains alone to the inheritors of a Kingdom (not to the subjects), fitting and qualifying them for their immortal, Christ-like ridership... Any other Kingdom, however derived from a few disconnected passages, is mythical, and destroys the unity that God's Spirit places in this one Kingdom. All difficulties vanish when the student observes that in this Kingdom there are higher and lower orders to carry out its end" (ibid., 3:464).

It will transform the church from non-spiritual to spiritual. "it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body" (1 Cor. 15:44). "A great deal of nonsense is written respecting 'the spiritual body,' and because the word 'spiritual' is used, many jump to the conclusion that the body is 'spirit.' No one mistakes concerning 'the natural body' as one under the influence and control of nature, and no one should misapprehend (after the usage of 'spiritual') 'the spiritual body' as one under the influence and control of the spirit" (Peters, TTK, 2:234). "...being transformed, made like unto the body of Christ, glorified, it becomes 'a spiritual body,' i.e. a body perfectly controlled by Spirit and not dependent any longer on nature for its support (although like angels, because of future supping with Jesus, etc., food and drink may be partaken of—not as a matter of necessity, but rather of pleasure)" (ibid., p. 238). "Being glorified, fashioned after Christ, made 'equal unto the angels,' neither space nor physical obstructions can prevent their ministrations. Having 'spiritual bodies' (i.e. bodies subject to the will of the Spirit) they can assume visibility or invisibility, they can visit with ease and celerity through great distances, at pleasure. Thus endowed, they can (as Peter, etc.) discern the very heart, the requirements, the necessities of their subjects. Thus pressing want can never be concealed from them, worth can never remain unrecognized by them, and deception can never be practised upon them" (ibid., p. 614). "This future Baptism, with glorification, gives them the power of transporting themselves at will like Christ and the angels, of assuming different appearances at pleasure, of appearing in glory or veiling it, of performing wonderfully, having the elements under control, of opening doors or entering without opening as angels and Jesus, of eating and drinking with men, of supplying and multiplying food, of healing the sick, of supplying food, of protecting from evil, of delivering out of trouble, etc., etc.” (ibid.) “The Baptism of Pentecost is a pledge of fulfillment in the future, evidencing what the Holy Ghost will yet perform in the coming age” (ibid., 3:66). “The apostle in 2 Cor. 1:22; ch. 5:5; Eph. 1:14, tells believers that they have ‘the earnest of the Spirit,’ which implies that what they now realize through the Spirit is only a kind of firstfruits or pledge of what this same Spirit will perform in ‘the day of the Lord Jesus.’ For in that day both body and soul shall experience this remarkable baptism of the Spirit; the body in the Spirit’s resurrecting, quickening, glorifying power (comp. Rom. 8:11; 2 Cor. 5:15; John 6:63; Eph. 1:13, and 4:20; 1 Pet. 3:18, etc.), and the soul in the Spirit’s conferring wisdom, knowledge, utterance, prophecy, miraculous gifts, etc.” (ibid., p. 67) “the one, natural, refers to a body under the control and laws of nature, the other, ‘spiritual,’ to a body under the control and laws of Spirit” (ibid., p. 464)

It will transform the church from natural to supernatural. “This does not, of course, forbid the power—like angels—of rendering themselves, at pleasure, invisible to mortal eyes, etc. The latter feature is designed to facilitate the power, discrimination, etc., of the glorified ones” (Peters, TTK, 2:576). “Jesus and His saints can and will come transported in the aerial by supernatural power” (ibid., 3:25)

It will transform the church from imperfect to perfect. “but when the perfect comes, the partial will be done away” (1 Cor. 13:10). “because God had provided something better for us, so that apart from us they should not be made perfect” (Heb. 11:40). “To affirm that mortal and sinful men are already admitted to have part in His functions of universal rule, and are empowered by Him to govern the nations, is a proud and presumptuous ante-dating of the Kingdom. His kings must first be made like Him, immortal and incorruptible... then can they exercise His heavenly authority” [quoting S. J. Andrews, God’s Revelations of Himself to Men, p. 293] (McClain, GK, p. 338). “Knowledge of God is knowledge of an infinite good; once one directly sees infinite good, it will no longer be possible for him to do evil, for to be directly informed in one’s mind by absolute good is to become completely conformed to it. Hence, the Beatific Vision makes sin impossible. Just as seeing absolute beauty will spoil one forever from longing for anything ugly, likewise, beholding the absolutely holy will overpower any attraction to or desire for the unholy” (Geisler, ST, 4:306). “Though heaven makes sin impossible, it does not destroy but instead fulfills our freedom” (ibid., p. 307). “God is both free and unable to sin; it will be likewise for us... the perfection of our freedom is the freedom from sinning, not the freedom of sinning. The best freedom is the freedom to do the best; beholding and loving the absolute best (which makes sin impossible) is the best thing we can ever do" (ibid.).

It will transform the church from unholy to holy. "What bliss is in store for true ones! The body glorified, the soul sanctified, love perfected, then no sin will grieve the soul and no yielding to temptation will bring remorse to the heart and tears to the eyes, for a sweet self-consciousness of purity and nobleness of character will ever be present to the saint" (Peters, TTK, 2:613).

It will transform the church from mortal to immortal. "Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality" (1 Cor. 15:51-53). "It is the present body that is raised, but in the sense that its identity is utterly merged into, and deposited within, the new body" (Chafer, ST, 2:151). "Mortality is wholly a physical term and its opposite, immortality, is no less so. The phrase, 'the immortality of the soul,' cannot but mislead and is without the slightest Biblical warrant" (ibid., p. 153).

And, it will transform the church from lowly to glorious. "For our citizenship is in heaven, from which also we eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who will transform the body of our humble state into conformity with the body of His glory, by the exertion of the power that He has even to subject all things to Himself" (Phil. 3:20-21). "When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory" (Col. 3:4). "Beloved, now we are children of God, and it has not appeared as yet what we shall be. We know that, when He appears, we shall be like Him, because we shall see Him just as He is" (1 John. 3:2). "These not only see His glory, but partake of the same, 1 Jno. 3:2; Phil. 3:21, etc., for of them it is said: 'When Christ' (notice, as 'Christ'), 'who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory', Col. 3:4" (Peters, TTK, 2:560). "The exaltation of the Redeemed to such nearness and association with Him in His offices and authority, evinces the highest position to which humanity can attain, and when the honors and dignities of kingship and priesthood are once enjoyed this will be witnessed and acknowledged" (ibid., p. 613). "It follows that if 'The Christ,' having all power and majesty, promises such exaltation at His appearing, it will be exceedingly great" (ibid.). "As Jesus the Messiah is represented in His glorified condition, so His associated priests will likewise appear, even to the raiment” (ibid., p. 616). “...the associated Rulers, for they are represented as partaking of the divine both in soul and body—in soul specially baptized by the Spirit, thus imparting of the fulness given to Jesus, and in body made like unto Christ by the power of resurrection and glorification” (ibid., 3:447) “There is a part of the work of Christ exclusively confined to the elect, first-born saints who inherit the Kingdom, which so far exceeds all our powers, that it can only be stated, leaving the future, by blessed experience, to determine its nature and glory. ‘Flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God,’ i.e. one who is accounted worthy of being a King and Priest in this Kingdom must be such in a different form from the present. To be qualified for rulership he must not only be holy, etc., in reference to soul but must have an immortal, indestructible, mighty, heavenly body as Paul describes in 1 Cor. 15. Hence it is distinctly stated that saints shall be made (1 John 3:2) like unto Christ, and Phil. 3:21, Christ at His appearing ‘shall change this vile body that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body,’ etc. The body itself undergoes a transformation, resulting in glorification. Just as Christ assumed human nature to bring Himself in covenanted relationship to man, and to obtain the covenanted Theocratic order as David’s Son and Lord, and, by virtue of the sacrifice offered by Himself, took upon Himself human nature in its glorified form to be qualified for His reign, so we, if united with Christ in salvation and the higher Theocratic relationship, must, by His aid, take upon ourselves the same transformed nature to receive the proper qualifications. This future identity with Christ and actual assumption of His (i.e. like unto His) transformed human nature, is in some theologies too much abstracted from the glorified state (still future), and applied to the present age or intermediate state. Scripture, however, specifically locates its reception at the Sec. Advent. As there are things connected with Christ in His person and aims, in His divinity and glorified humanity, which transcend the grasp of our present knowledge, so in virtue of this union with Christ and the consequent transformation into His likeness, there are things which, owing to our limited understanding, we see but imperfectly, and others which are now beyond our comprehension” (ibid., p. 457). “The final consequence is identical in either case, being, as it will be, a body like unto the glorious body of Christ (Phil 3:20-21)” (Chafer, ST, 2:153). “The resurrection body also has characteristics such as glory, mobility, and agility. It is called a ‘glorious body’ (Phil. 3:21), which assumes that a kind of radiance comes from it, perhaps like with Jesus’ body on the Mount of Transfiguration (cf. Matt. 17). It will have supernatural powers enabling it to move through space (Acts 1:10-11) and perhaps through other material things (cf. John 20:19).

Since Jesus could eat in His resurrection body, assumably we will be able to do so as well. However, since the resurrection body is supernaturally powered (1 Cor. 15:44), we will eat not for nourishment but for pleasure and celebration (cf. Matt. 26:29)” (Geisler, 4:271). “And as they were gazing intently into the sky while He was departing, behold, two men in white clothing stood beside them; and they also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven” (Acts 1:10–11). “When therefore it was evening, on that day, the first day of the week, and when the doors were shut where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in their midst, and said to them, ‘Peace be with you” (John 20:19). “it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body” (1 Cor. 15:44). ““But I say to you, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it new with you in My Father’s kingdom” (Matt. 26:29).

But even after the transformation, the church will remain finite. “...the saints... who, we must never forget, still remain finite beings. What God can and may do in the perfecting of His Church, we must admit, passes beyond present human imagination (1 Cor. 2:9); but we shall never become gods” (McClain, GK, p. 485).

The Rapture will introduce the church to God, face-to-face. “For now we see in a mirror dimly, but then face to face; now I know in part, but then I shall know fully just as I also have been fully known” (1 Cor. 13:12). “...after our resurrection, immortal man, in his glorified body, will see God face-to-face... the Beatific (blessed) Vision. At this point the believer will be glorified” (Geisler, ST, 2:240). “When we see Him as He is, we will behold beauty—ultimate, infinite, and unadulterated beauty—as it truly is” (ibid., p. 245). “We will not be God’s frozen chosen... our action will not be that of striving but of enjoying, not of seeking but of treasuring what was found. Our minds will be active, not in searching for truth but in rejoicing over the infinite truth discovered (1 Cor. 13:12). Our intellectual and spiritual action in heaven will not be that of desiring God but of delighting in Him” (ibid., 4:308).

The Rapture will facilitate the judging and rewarding of the church:

Soon after the Rapture, the church will stand before the judgment seat of Christ. There believers’ works will be judged, and individual believers will consequently suffer loss and/or be rewarded according to their deeds. “Be on guard, that your hearts may not be weighted down with dissipation and drunkenness and the worries of life, and that day come on you suddenly like a trap; for it will come upon all those who dwell on the face of all the earth. But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man” (Luke 21:34-36). “But you, why do you judge your brother? Or you again, why do you regard your brother with contempt? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God. For it is written, ‘As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to Me, And every tongue shall give praise to God.’ So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God” (Rom. 14:10-12). “So then neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but God who causes the growth. Now he who plants and he who waters are one; but each will receive his own reward according to his own labor. For we are God’s fellow workers; you are God’s field, God’s building” (1 Cor. 3:7-9). “Now if any man builds upon the foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw, each man’s work will become evident; for the day will show it, because it is to be revealed with fire; and the fire itself will test the quality of each man’s work. If any man’s work which he has built upon it remains, he shall receive a reward. If any man’s work is burned up, he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved, yet so as through fire” (1 Cor. 3:12–15). “Let a man regard us in this manner, as servants of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God. In this case, moreover, it is required of stewards that one be found trustworthy. But to me it is a very small thing that I should be examined by you, or by any human court; in fact, I do not even examine myself. For I am conscious of nothing against myself, yet I am not by this acquitted; but the one who examines me is the Lord. Therefore do not go on passing judgment before the time, but wait until the Lord comes who will both bring to light the things hidden in the darkness and disclose the motives of men’s hearts; and then each man’s praise will come to him from God” (1 Cor. 4:1–5). “Do you not know that those who run in a race all run, but only one receives the prize? Run in such a way that you may win. And everyone who competes in the games exercises self-control in all things. They then do it to receive a perishable wreath, but we an imperishable. Therefore I run in such a way, as not without aim; I box in such a way, as not beating the air; but I buffet my body and make it my slave, lest possibly, after I have preached to others, I myself should be disqualified” (1 Cor. 9:24–27). “For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that each one may be recompensed for his deeds in the body, according to what he has done, whether good or bad” (2 Cor. 5:10). “in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8). “For God is not unjust so as to forget your work and the love which you have shown toward His name, in having ministered and in still ministering to the saints” (Heb. 6:10). “And I will kill her children with pestilence; and all the churches will know that I am He who searches the minds and hearts; and I will give to each one of you according to your deeds” (Rev. 2:23). “I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown” (Rev. 3:11). “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints” (Rev. 19:6-8). “And he said to me, ‘Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near. Let the one who does wrong, still do wrong; and let the one who is filthy, still be filthy; and let the one who is righteous, still practice righteousness; and let the one who is holy, still keep himself holy.’ ‘Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to render to every man according to what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.’ Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:10-15). “There is a difference between mere salvation and the special honor, station, dignity, etc., that God in addition may be pleased to bestow upon certain ones” (Peters, TTK, 2:332). “The simple scriptural truth presented is this, that for everything done (even for every word spoken) we shall receive our reward, however forgetful of the fact we may be, and however unconscious at the time of its possessing any special merit” (ibid., p. 380). “...in the final award... it will be found that many a layman comparatively unknown will stand as high, if not higher, as ministers of extended reputation and eloquence, simply because to the latter much was committed and much required, while of the former less was given and hence less demanded” (ibid., p. 388). “How guarded we should be in building, choosing the proper material, lest we suffer loss... the best of us may have cause to regret that with precious things we have mingled inferior things... if such is the criterion respecting the believer, surely then the un- believer who rejects the foundation itself can have no hope... This gain or this loss is eternal; although all are happy in salvation, yet the superiority gained or lost will evermore remain" (ibid., p. 390). "No one can plead inability to perform them, since 'God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that ye always, having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work' 2 Cor. 9:8" (ibid.). "The essential point is to be 'saved by faith'—but it is also of the highest moment to be 'saved by works'—for while the one secures admittance into the Kingdom, the other determines the lot, the reward in that Kingdom. To secure the highest salvation, both must be kept in view, and both must be in unison... A living faith will inevitably produce works, and proportionate to that faith will be the product" (ibid., p. 391). "Whether the secret acts, etc. will be publicly revealed (as some hold, like the failings of Abraham, Moses, David, and Peter) or be privately taken cognizance of by the Lord (as others think), one thing is self-evident, that the lot or position assigned to the believer evidences to all others his past faithfulness in God's service... one thing is certain, that the consciousness of a time departed, in which the greatest honor was within their reach but unattained, will be vividly impressed... such the fulness, joy, and blessedness of a soul in perfected redemption, that neither jealousy, nor envy, nor unhappiness can flow from such differences of degree in glory... and although of different degrees and ranks, every one justified through Christ and being fully redeemed is presented 'faultless before the presence of the Father with exceeding joy'" (ibid.). "The judgment unto life is one thing; the judgment unto reward is another thing; the former is decided at death, the other at the Coming of the Lord" (ibid., p. 392). "Men may through lack of proper understanding build imperfectly on the foundation and suffer great loss and yet be saved" (ibid., 3:262) "Though delivered from all judgment due to sin and because of the fact that Christ has borne their sins, the redeemed of this age do, nevertheless, all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, there to receive His approval or disapproval concerning their service for Him (2 Cor. 5:10)" (Chafer, ST, 1:343). "It is declared, however, that the believer who suffers loss in respect to his reward for service will himself be saved, though passing through that fire which destroys his unworthy service" (ibid., 3:248). "As for his service, or that which man may do for God, he must yet appear before the judgment seat of Christ, where rewards are to be bestowed and failure in service will be burned (cf. 2 Cor. 5:9-10; 1 Cor 3:15)" (ibid., p. 308). "The basis of the judgment will be solely the works performed after the individual has been brought to God. All those works that have been accomplished through the empowering Spirit of God and through the motivation of the constraining love of Christ with the purpose of the glory of God will receive reward. The rest will be burned up” (Feinberg, M, p. 361). “...which of them should be the greatest (Luke 22:24)... He rebukes them for not seeing that distinctions of rank will be based on willingness to serve and suffer. In the aristocracy of the coming Kingdom there will be no place for self-seeking; but its pattern will be the King Himself who was among them as one who served (vss. 25-28)” (McClain, GK, p. 371). “Always the regal rewards for the faithful and the Messianic throne of Christ are future, never present during the era of the churches on earth” (ibid., p. 448). “...rewards are distributed on the basis of effective testimony for Christ” (Walvoord, MK, p. 278). “As already indicated by Luke 21:34-36, the result of the Rapture is to stand before the Son of Man” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 156). “It is not the believer’s sins which will be judged since this has been settled forever at the cross, and there is now no condemnation for them that are in Christ Jesus (Rom. 8:1)” (ibid.). “In [1 Cor. 3] verse 12, this judgment of works will not be based upon quantity, but upon quality. It will not be a question as to how much gold, silver, costly stones or wood, hay, stubble; but was it gold, silver, or precious stone, or was it wood, hay, or stubble” (ibid., p. 157)? “If a believer is doing the will of the Lord, obeys His commandments, and fulfills the ministry for which he received his spiritual gifts, then he is building on the foundation with gold, silver, and precious stones” (ibid.). “He will not be punished for his sins any more than a runner in a race is punished for not coming in first” (ibid.). “Of course, not all Christians will receive rewards in heaven (1 Cor. 3:12-14); some will be saved ‘as through fire’ (v. 15 NKJV)” (Geisler, ST, 3:281). “In brief, no believer gets away with sin: ‘We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that each one may receive what is due to him for the things done while in the body, whether good or bad’ (2 Cor. 5:10)” (ibid., p. 282). “1 Corinthians 9:27... ‘I beat my body and make it my slave so that after I have preached to others, I myself will not be disqualified for the prize.’ Again, Paul is speaking about loss of reward, not of salvation... he speaks of a ‘prize’ to be won rather than a ‘gift’ to be received” (ibid., p. 329). “Every believer’s cup will be full and running over, but not everyone’s cup will be the same size” (ibid., 4:310). “Christ’s Followers Will Be Positionally Rewarded in His Reign... Christ’s disciples will reign with Him, each being rewarded according to his works (2 Cor. 5:10; 1 Cor. 3:11-15); in a parable of a king entrusting servants with resources, those who were faithful and industrious were congratulated and promoted (Luke 19:16-19). Jesus said, ‘Behold, I am coming soon! My reward is with me, and I will give to everyone according to what he has done’ (Rev. 22:12)” (ibid., p. 562). “With the Rapture preceding the Tribulation, believers will receive their rewards in heaven while the Tribulation is occurring on earth” (ibid., p. 618).

Faithful believers will be rewarded with: Jesus’ confession of his name before His Father and His angels, “He who overcomes shall thus be clothed in white garments; and I will not erase his name from the book of life, and I will confess his name before My Father, and before His angels” (Rev. 3:5). keeping from the hour of testing, “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth” (Rev. 3:10). the morning star, “And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, to him I will give authority over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter are broken to pieces, as I also have received authority from My Father; and I will give him the morning star” (Rev. 2:26-28). entrance into the New Jerusalem, “Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:14-15). white garments, “He who overcomes shall thus be clothed in white garments; and I will not erase his name from the book of life, and I will confess his name before My Father, and before His angels” (Rev. 3:5). names written upon him: the name of Christ’s God, “He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12-13). the name of the New Jerusalem, “He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12-13). and Jesus’ new name, “He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12-13). a white stone with a new name, “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, to him I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone, and a new name written on the stone which no one knows but he who receives it” (Rev. 2:17). crowns, “...‘crowns’ awarded for faithfulness (Rev. 2:10)” (Geisler, ST, 3:331) “Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison, that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation ten days. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life” (Rev. 2:10). “1 Corinthians 3:10-15... This passage says nothing about the nature of the reward, but other passages do. They speak of these rewards as being crowns. The Greek language has two words meaning ‘crown.’ One is the word diadem, which is a king’s crown. It is the crown of a sovereign and of a person who is royal by his nature and by his position—a king. This is the kind of crown that Jesus wears. The second Greek word is stephanos, which is a crown given to an overcomer, a victor, one who has won a race. These are the kinds of crowns available to believers because they overcame in the spiritual warfare and are now crowned at the Judgment Seat of the Messiah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 156). These five crowns are: 1. the imperishable crown (for those who achieve victory in the spiritual life), “Do you not know that those who run in a race all run, but only one receives the prize? Run in such a way that you may win. And everyone who competes in the games exercises self-control in all things. They then do it to receive a perishable wreath, but we an imperishable” (1 Cor. 9:24-25). 2. the crown of rejoicing (for soul-winners), “For who is our hope or joy or crown of exultation? Is it not even you, in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming” (1 Thes. 2:19)? 3. the crown of righteousness (for those who have kept the faith, doctrinally and morally, and who have loved His appearing), “I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:7-8). “Studying prophecy gives one a love and longing for the return of the Messiah. Those believers who love and look for His return are promised a special crown...” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 13) “Looking for His return is the result of sound doctrine and keeping the faith. A life lived in conformity with the New Testament will include the expectation of the soon return of the Lord. For such, there is a crown of righteousness” (ibid., p. 159). 4. the crown of life (for those who endure trials and for those who suffer martyrdom), “Blessed is a man who perseveres under trial; for once he has been approved, he will receive the crown of life, which the Lord has promised to those who love Him” (James 1:12). “Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison, that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation ten days. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life” (Rev. 2:10). and 5. the crown of glory (for those who feed the sheep). “shepherd the flock of God among you, exercising oversight not under compulsion, but voluntarily, according to the will of God; and not for sordid gain, but with eagerness; nor yet as lording it over those allotted to your charge, but proving to be examples to the flock. And when the Chief Shepherd appears, you will receive the unfading crown of glory” (1 Pet. 5:2-4). a dwelling place in the New Jerusalem, “In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:2-3). “If believers, let us be careful lest some other man take the mansion that we can attain unto; for it is just as true of the mansion as it is of the crown (the latter being equivalent to or including the former), Rev. 3:11, ‘to hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.’ No crown, no mansion. How terrible, how remorseful, if another man take the position, the dwelling-place, so happy, exalted and glorious, once offered to me and within my reach” (Peters, TTK, 3:58). “I go to prepare a place for you.’... the New Jerusalem, the special home of the ransomed... The stations, places, or mansions, determined previously, are bestowed upon those who are worthy of them” (ibid.). being made a permanent pillar in the temple of God, “Do you not know that you are a temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? If any man destroys the temple of God, God will destroy him, for the temple of God is holy, and that is what you are” (1 Cor. 3:16-17). “Or what agreement has the temple of God with idols? For we are the temple of the living God; just as God said, ‘I WILL DWELL IN THEM AND WALK AMONG THEM; AND I WILL BE THEIR GOD, AND THEY SHALL BE MY PEOPLE’” (2 Cor. 6:16). “So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are fellow citizens with the saints, and are of God’s household, having been built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus Himself being the corner stone, in whom the whole building, being fitted together is growing into a holy temple in the Lord” (Eph. 2:19-21) “He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12). “And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven” (Rev. 13:6). sitting down with Christ on His throne, “He who overcomes, I will grant to him to sit down with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne” (Rev. 3:21). authority in the Millennial Kingdom, “And Jesus said to them, “Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Matt. 19:28). “If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us” (2 Tim. 2:12) “And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, to him I will give authority over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter are broken to pieces, as I also have received authority from My Father; and I will give him the morning star” (Rev. 2:26-28). “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4–6). “The judgment spoken of is that of the Judgment Seat of the Messiah, the judgment of the believer’s works. In fact, it is the outcome of this judgment that will determine the position of each Church saint in the Kingdom. A second group of saints who are to co-reign with Him are those who had been beheaded for the testimony of Jesus. These are the believers who will be martyred during the first half of the Great Tribulation and were mentioned under the fifth Seal (Rev. 6:9-11). A third group are those who did not worship the Antichrist or his image, nor received the mark of 666 on their forehead or on their right hand. Since these things were initiated only at the middle of the Tribulation, this third group of saints are those of the second half of the Great Tribulation. So then, both Church and Tribulation saints will co-reign with the King for one thousand years. The Old Testament saints will have a different destiny” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 394) “...this reign during the thousand years (whatever may be the result afterward) to be given as a reward to those who have been faithful” (Peters, TTK, 2:271) “...the saints are manifested before that throne to be assigned their position as rulers in the Kingdom, which apportionment is only done at the manifestation of the Kingdom itself, and is proportioned to the deeds done in the body” (ibid., p. 364). “The judgment then of saints in the future is not one unto eternal life, but one pertaining to the position to be occupied in the Theocratic Kingdom... future greatness in the Kingdom will be proportionate to present labor and suffering for the truth” (ibid., p. 388). “To reign and to be saved are not necessarily synonymous” (ibid., p. 585). “The Father gives the Kingdom to the Son and the position of the co-heirs is also bestowed by Him, and the stations of these heirs are dependent upon the character formed” (ibid., p. 587). “...it is reasonable to anticipate that under the leadership of the great High-Priest there will be gradations of rank and order in this priesthood. Not all believers will be kings or priests, but only those specially counted worthy of the honor... A diversity in unity, a variety of gifts and ministrations, a distribution of rank and office, enriches the communion and intercourse of the saints with each other and with the nations; it serves as the basis of a mutual impartation of benefit and blessing” (ibid., p. 610). “Resurrected saints are to have positions of responsibility in the millennium as a reward (Matt. 19:28; Luke 19:12-27)” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 500). “These rewards of crowns are for the purpose of determining degree of authority in the Messianic Kingdom and not for the Eternal Order. In eternity, all believers will be equal [?—ed.], but not so in the Kingdom where believers may have different positions of authority. In parabolic form, this truth is found in Luke 19:11-27” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 160). “...works do determine the believer’s rewards, and that, in turn, determines the believer’s degree of authority in the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 725). “...the Judgment Seat of the Messiah, the judgment of the believer’s works, which determines their position in the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 755). “Reigning is part of a believer’s reward (cf. Rev. 20:6, 22:21)” (Geisler, ST, 3:330). “...saints who will reign with Christ (cf. 2 Tim. 2:12), some even on their own thrones (cf. Matt. 19:28; Luke 19:17-19)” (ibid., p. 394). “...our reign with Him—which again is a matter of reward, not salvation” (ibid., p. 496). (See our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Church Age is to select and prepare kings and priests for the Millennial Kingdom in the Purposes of the Church section of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church). Also see our discussion of the fact that believers will reign with Christ in the Description of the Millennial Kingdom section of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

hidden manna, “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, to him I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give him a white stone, and a new name written on the stone which no one knows but he who receives it” (Rev. 2:17). authority to eat from the tree of life in Paradise, “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To him who overcomes, I will grant to eat of the tree of life, which is in the Paradise of God” (Rev. 2:7). “Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city” (Rev. 22:14). keeping of his name in the book of life, “He who overcomes shall thus be clothed in white garments; and I will not erase his name from the book of life, and I will confess his name before My Father, and before His angels” (Rev. 3:5). immunity from the second death, “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death” (Rev. 2:11). and ability to glorify God. “And they that are wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever” (Dan. 12:3). “Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears, let him hear” (Matt. 13:43). “And six days later Jesus took with Him Peter and James and John his brother, and brought them up to a high mountain by themselves. And He was transfigured before them; and His face shone like the sun, and His garments became as white as light” (Matt. 17:1-3). “There are also heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the glory of the heavenly is one, and the glory of the earthly is another. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for star differs from star in glory” (1 Cor. 15:40-41). “And just as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly” (1 Cor. 15:49). “But you are A CHOSEN RACE, A royal PRIESTHOOD, A HOLY NATION, A PEOPLE FOR God’s OWN POSSESSION, that you may proclaim the excellencies of Him who has called you out of darkness into His marvelous light” (1 Pet. 2:9) “and in the middle of the lampstands one like a son of man, clothed in a robe reaching to the feet, and girded across His breast with a golden girdle. And His head and His hair were white like white wool, like snow; and His eyes were like a flame of fire; and His feet were like burnished bronze, when it has been caused to glow in a furnace, and His voice was like the sound of many waters” (Rev. 1:13-16) “Inasmuch as reward is associated with brightness and shining in many passages of Scripture (Dan. 12:3; Matt. 13:43; 1 Cor. 15:40-41, 49), it may be that the reward given to the believer is a capacity to manifest the glory of Christ throughout eternity. The greater the reward, the greater the bestowed capacity to bring glory to God. Thus in the exercise of the reward of the believer, it will be Christ and not the believer that is glorified by the reward. Capacities to radiate the glory will differ, but there will be no personal sense of lack in that each believer will be filled to the limit of his capacity to ‘show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into His marvelous light’ (1 Pet 2:9)” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 226).

The Rapture will prepare rulers for the Kingdom. “This Kingdom—this rulership with Jesus—cannot be inherited by mortal men, it requiring immortal beings who resemble the mighty Theocratic King; for the heirship with Jesus, the identity of associated rule, the unspeakable honor, etc., which can only safely be confided to persons previously prepared for it; the duration, the perfection, design, and results of the reign—all demand this previous resurrection and glorification” (Peters, TTK, 2:573). “Tyng (He Will Come, p. 159) correctly observes: ‘It is a very false representation of Scripture which pictures the Church as subjects of the coming Kingdom. They shall indeed acknowledge a submission to their Lord, but toward the inhabitants of the earth they will assert a majesty. For this they will have been qualified by their glorification, and to this they have even now been assigned by prophecy and promise’” (ibid., p. 574). “The translation of the saints, as a preparatory measure, is only in agreement with a proposed Theocratic ordering, seeing that such a translation is intended to prepare them for a rulership in it” (ibid., 3:588).

And, the Rapture will facilitate the marriage of the Lamb. (See our discussion of the marriage of the Lamb in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Purposes for Those Left Behind

The purposes of the Rapture for those left behind include witnessing to those left behind, confirming the literal hermeneutic for the fulfillment of Bible prophecy, unrestraining the Antichrist and reverting God’s earthly program back to Israel.

The first purpose of the Rapture for those left behind is to witness to those who have been left behind. “If such an event is to occur it is most reasonable to anticipate that believers in the Word just previous to its occurrence, will proclaim it, so that when it has taken place others may recognize it at once as a part of God’s own divine and gracious ordering. This, then, will alleviate the grief of believers when a beloved one is thus suddenly taken away, because they will rejoice in their having been thus favored, and will strive to prepare themselves and others for the coming struggle, that they too may be accounted worthy of a glorious reunion with resurrected and translated ones” (Peters, TTK, 2:334). “In reference to the mighty increase of knowledge predicted of this period, it is sufficient to say that the gigantic events then taking place, owing to the first stage of the Advent, the resurrection and translation of the saints will give the believer such a dear and decisive understanding of the prophecies, its chronology and the events to be anticipated, that then students of prophecy will see eye to eye, and encourage each other out of the fully comprehended Word of God” (ibid., p. 338).

The second purpose of the Rapture for those left behind is to confirm the literal hermeneutic for the fulfillment of Bible prophecy. “Present the scriptural reasons for the early faith, and many, many will absolutely refuse even to consider them. Nothing but the terrible persecution of the future following the translation of the first-fruits, awakening the [false—ed.] Church from its false exegesis and application and dreams of prosperity, will cause a revulsion and a return to the scriptural ground, because the modern idea is too extensively advocated by eloquent, talented, pious men to be rooted out by other means” (Peters, TTK, p. 304).

The third purpose of the Rapture for those left behind is to unrestrain the Antichrist. “And Jehovah said, My spirit shall not strive with man for ever, for that he also is flesh: yet shall his days be a hundred and twenty years” (Gen. 6:3). “And I will ask the Father, and He will give you another Helper, that He may be with you forever” (John 14:16) “But I tell you the truth, it is to your advantage that I go away; for if I do not go away, the Helper shall not come to you; but if I go, I will send Him to you. And He, when He comes, will convict the world concerning sin, and righteousness, and judgment” (John 16:7-8) “If any man destroys the temple of God, God will destroy him, for the temple of God is holy, and that is what you are” (1 Cor. 3:17). “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way” (2 Thes. 2:3-7). “Doubtless His restraint operates both directly and through the Church in which He dwells” (Chafer, ST, 4:373). “He who was always omnipresent became resident on the Day of Pentecost; He who is now resident will become merely omnipresent on the completion of that which He came on the Day of Pentecost to achieve” (ibid.). “The Spirit is omnipresent (Ps. 139:7-12) and cannot be eliminated from anywhere; His special presence in believers, individually or collectively, is a work that ends on earth at the Rapture” (Geisler, ST, 4:630). “Whither shall I go from thy Spirit? Or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: If I make my bed in Sheol, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, And dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; Even there shall thy hand lead me, And thy right hand shall hold me. If I say, Surely the darkness shall overwhelm me, And the light about me shall be night; Even the darkness hideth not from thee, But the night shineth as the day: The darkness and the light are both alike to thee” (Ps. 139:7-12). “Old Testament believers were not permanently indwelt by the Spirit (Ps. 51:11; 1 Sam. 16:14), yet everyone who enters God’s kingdom must be born again by the Spirit (John 3:3-7), and Old Testament saints are in God’s kingdom (Matt. 8:11). The Spirit’s regeneration is not identical to the Spirit’s indwelling. Even though His restraining influence through indwelling believers will no longer be in the world, He will be present in the Tribulation to regenerate those who believe” (Geisler, ST, 4:630). (See also our discussion of the fact that the removal of the church is needed to unrestrain the Antichrist in our section The Timing of the Rapture below.)

The fourth purpose of the Rapture for those left behind is to revert God’s earthly program back to Israel. “And after they had stopped speaking, James answered, saying, ‘Brethren, listen to me. Simeon has related how God first concerned Himself about taking from among the Gentiles a people for His name. And with this the words of the Prophets agree, just as it is written, “After these things I will return, And I will rebuild the tabernacle of David which has fallen, And I will rebuild its ruins, And I will restore it, In order that the rest of mankind may seek the Lord, And all the Gentiles who are called by My name,” Says the Lord, who makes these things known from of old” (Acts 15:13–18). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “Just as God took Enoch to heaven while allowing Noah to endure the Flood, even so God will deliver the church before the Tribulation and allow Israel to endure it. It is Israel’s time of trouble and purification (cf. Zech. 12:6), the era that will prepare Israel to receive her Messiah (v. 10; cf. Rom. 11:25). This is a time of God’s wrath on unbelievers, not on believers; Christ has already borne God’s wrath for us” (Geisler, ST, 4:617). “In that day will I make the chieftains of Judah like a pan of fire among wood, and like a flaming torch among sheaves; and they shall devour all the peoples round about, on the right hand and on the left; and they of Jerusalem shall yet again dwell in their own place, even in Jerusalem” (Zech. 12:6). “And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born” (Zech. 12:10). “For I would not, brethren, have you ignorant of this mystery, lest ye be wise in your own conceits, that a hardening in part hath befallen Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in” (Rom. 11:25) (See our discussion of the Great Tribulation’s purposes in relation to Israel in the Purposes of the Tribulation section of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

Characteristics of the Rapture

The Rapture of the church possesses several signature characteristics. It is a mystery (see our discussion of the mystery of the Rapture in the The Mystery of the Church section of our previous chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church)), miraculous (as are all the spectacular acts of God), awesome (just picture it in your mind’s eye!), bodily (see our discussion of the bodily nature of the first resurrection in the section The First Resurrection in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom), invisible to unbelievers, “Leading prophetic writers justly have no hesitancy in asserting that no mortal eye of unbelief shall behold the resurrection” (Peters, TTK, 2:315). “...the first aspect of this Coming refers to a concealed, hidden Coming” (ibid., p. 319) “The Coming ‘as a thief in the night’ is certainly not the Coming with His angels and saints in great glory and power—so that all shall, ‘every eye,’ see Him—for vengeance, for the former is a secret, and the latter an open Coming” (ibid., p. 322). instantaneous, “in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed” (1 Cor. 15:52). (See our discussion of the duration of the Rapture in our section Chronology of the Rapture below.), as a thief in the night, “And to the angel of the church in Sardis write: He who has the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars, says this: “I know your deeds, that you have a name that you are alive, but you are dead. Wake up, and strengthen the things that remain, which were about to die; for I have not found your deeds completed in the sight of My God. Remember therefore what you have received and heard; and keep it, and repent. If therefore you will not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you”” (Rev. 3:1–3). “...when we are not expecting Him... as a thief comes... He takes only the precious things... He does not come to stay. As soon as he secures what he is after he departs... The thief leaves much more than he takes” (Larkin, DT, p. 12). and unexpected by most people (see our discussion of the fact that not even most Christians have the proper (expectant) attitude toward the Rapture in our section Attitudes Toward the Rapture below).

Chronology of the Rapture

The chronology of the Rapture involves the timing of the Rapture and its duration. We will explore these two subjects in this section.

Timing of the Rapture

The timing of the Rapture is a subject of considerable and lively debate. Even among premillennialists there are differences of opinion concerning the precise timing of the Rapture. Because Scripture does not explicitly state, in unambiguous terms, exactly when the Rapture is to occur in relation to the Tribulation period (for a full discussion of the Tribulation period see our next chapter, The Great Tribulation), the matter is left to careful inductive study, and ultimately, of course, to actual occurrence. At the time of this writing, the majority of premillennialists, and nearly all dispensationalists, hold the pretribulation (the Rapture occurs before the Tribulation) position. A minority hold the posttribulation position, and an even smaller minority hold the midtribulation (or its variant, “pre-wrath”) position. In this section we will explore the many Scriptural evidences and lines of reasoning that have led this writer to the conviction that the pretribulation position is the correct one. Indeed, “the subject is complex and involves many details” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 95) However, “pretribulationism and posttribulationism cannot both be right” (ibid.) And, “The differences between pretribulationists and posttribulationists are doctrinal and exegetical, not spiritual, and that worthy and... godly men are bound on both sides of this question” (ibid., p. 149). “One of the problems that face both pretribulationism and posttribulationism is the fact that their point of view is an induction based on scriptural facts rather than an explicit statement of the Bible” (ibid., p. 181).

The Rapture of the church is to occur:

After the signs of the end of the age begin to take place. “And while some were talking about the temple, that it was adorned with beautiful stones and votive gifts, He said, ‘As for these things which you are looking at, the days will come in which there will not be left one stone upon another which will not be torn down.’ And they questioned Him, saying, ‘Teacher, when therefore will these things be? And what will be the sign when these things are about to take place?’ And He said, ‘See to it that you be not misled; for many will come in My name, saying, “I am He,” and, “The time is at hand”; do not go after them. And when you hear of wars and disturbances, do not be terrified; for these things must take place first, but the end does not follow immediately.’ Then He continued by saying to them, ‘Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there will be great earthquakes, and in various places plagues and famines; and there will be terrors and great signs from heaven. But before all these things, they will lay their hands on you and will persecute you, delivering you to the synagogues and prisons, bringing you before kings and governors for My name’s sake. It will lead to an opportunity for your testimony. So make up your minds not to prepare beforehand to defend yourselves; for I will give you utterance and wisdom which none of your opponents will be able to resist or refute. But you will be delivered up even by parents and brothers and relatives and friends, and they will put some of you to death, and you will be hated by all on account of My name. Yet not a hair of your head will perish. By your endurance you will gain your lives. But when you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then recognize that her desolation is at hand. Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains, and let those who are in the midst of the city depart, and let not those who are in the country enter the city; because these are days of vengeance, in order that all things which are written may be fulfilled. Woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days; for there will be great distress upon the land, and wrath to this people, and they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led captive into all the nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled under foot by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. And there will be signs in sun and moon and stars, and upon the earth dismay among nations, in perplexity at the roaring of the sea and the waves, men fainting from fear and the expectation of the things which are coming upon the world; for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. And then they will see THE SON OF MAN COMING IN A CLOUD with power and great glory. But when these things begin to take place, straighten up and lift up your heads, because your redemption is drawing near.’ And He told them a parable: ‘Behold the fig tree and all the trees; as soon as they put forth leaves, you see it and know for yourselves that summer is now near. Even so you, too, when you see these things happening, recognize that the kingdom of God is near. Truly I say to you, this generation will not pass away until all things take place. Heaven and earth will pass away, but My words will not pass away. Be on guard, that your hearts may not be weighted down with dissipation and drunkenness and the worries of life, and that day come on you suddenly like a trap; for it will come upon all those who dwell on the face of all the earth. But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man” (Luke 21:5–36). “The signs preceding the first stage of the Advent are all of such a nature, that they appear, more or less, in every generation; and hence in view of their continued existence, have caused men in the various succeeding centuries to hold (as e.g. Gregory the Great, Luther, and many others), that the end was very near, because the signs indicative of the same were really present... it is reasonable to suppose that such will assume a greater magnitude as the time of the end draws nigh, or, at least, that they appear in such proportions that the believing (for whom alone they are intended) cannot mistake in their presence and import” (Peters, TTK, 3:114). “...the signs which precede the first stage of Christ’s Advent. Not one of them (just as there was none before the First Advent) shall be of a strictly Supernatural nature; all of them are connected with the natural, or are regularly produced in an onward course of development. If men look for other signs, they will woefully deceive themselves” (ibid., p. 132) “Our position in reference to the signs vindicates the attitude of the Primitive Church. Now men sneeringly point to the early Church, and scoffingly tell us that that Church, under the teaching of inspired apostles and their immediate successors, was utterly mistaken and too credulous, evincing an erroneous belief. But we hold, that simple consistency demanded the faith expressed by them, because the Advent (as we have shown) is not limited by any chronological period; the signs predicted to precede such an Advent were witnessed even in their day, and the culminated Antichrist is only revealed between the two stages of the Sec. Advent. Hence their attitude was scriptural and demanded by the times” (ibid., p. 169). “These signs, so saddening because of the evil unfolding, should not unduly depress the believer. They should rather confirm his faith, urge to increased watching and prayer, influence to a firm and vigilant occupying until He comes, and fill him with renewed hope and love at the speedy Coming of the Beloved One. Yea, as the Master declared (Luke 21:28) we should ‘look up and lift up our heads, for our redemption draweth nigh.’ For these purposes they are given, and hence a practical application of them to heart and life is designed, and not a mere theoretical acquiescence without a corresponding influence” (ibid., p. 170). “Dr. Seiss (Last Times, p. 299), beautifully and forcibly says: ‘God’s method of progress is to make darkness the way to light, death the prelude to life, despair the introduction to salvation, and corruption and confusion the road to order and glory. It is not in what seems hopeful, but in what seems gloomy and untoward, that we are to look for the signs of the speedy forthcoming of God's wonder-working goodness. It is the stirring upon the face of the dark waters that gives prognostic of the breaking forth of light, life, and beauty. The bursting glories of spring come directly out of the bleak winter. It is from the corrupting seed that we obtain the harvest. The darkest hour is said to be that which immediately precedes the day. The period most hopeful is that when the apparent motives for despondency are most overwhelming. The stress of the controversy between hope and fear always falls upon the eve of triumph. Those dim hours of dismay to the scattered followers of Christ at His Crucifixion, were but the preludes to the bringing in of light and immortality for man. The bloody persecutions under the Roman Emperors which threatened the extinction of Christianity, were the immediate precursors of its victory over even the throne of the Caesars. And so the Scriptures teach that it will be in the ushering in of the great consummation. The sun must darken, and the moon withhold her light, and then shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in His wings.' So Brookes (Lects. during Lent, p. 152) remarks: "Though I distinguished only some few signs as in themselves cheering, yet when considered as the tokens of our Lord's approach, all are cheering: therefore He bids us, as in the text, "when we shall see these things only begin to come to pass, to lift up our heads because our redemption draweth nigh." And if the beginnings of these things are calculated to inspire us with hope and Joy, how much more their fulness! Yes those things which are dark and appalling to the world—like the pillar and the cloud—will be as light and brightness to the saints; who, when all is roaring and raging and upheaving round about them, shall be ardently waiting for, but most surely expecting, and in the midst of it obtaining, deliverance from corruption, into the glorious—glorious liberty of the children of God.' We are sometimes censured as taking too gloomy a view of the world existing, and that we entertain 'no love for the world.' Our apology is, that we receive, embrace, and defend the view that the Spirit gives of the present and future, and that it is true, that we strive to set 'our affections on things above and not on things of the world,' well knowing that 'if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him,' 1 John 2:15" (ibid.). "There is a difference in the events signified: when the signs 'begin,' the disciples are to 'look up' because their 'redemption draweth nigh' (Luke 21:28). But when 'all' the signs have been seen, they are to understand that 'the kingdom of God is nigh' (Luke 21:31; cf. Matt. 24:33)"

(McClain, GK, p. 367). “The foregoing facts lead to certain highly important conclusions in the field of New Testament eschatology. First, the Kingdom will not arrive until men have witnessed all the signs described by our Lord. But, second, true believers may legitimately look for the ‘redemption’ of their bodies at any time after the beginning of these things. Thus in Luke’s account of our Lord’s final prophetic discourse we have an intimation of the later Pauline eschatological order of events: first, a rapture of believers; second, a period of world-wide tribulation and judgment; third, the glorious appearing of Messiah; and finally, the arrival of the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 368). “To summarize the chief points in the above discussion: the Kingdom will not come until all the things predicted by our Lord have come to pass; but the members of the Church, the royal family in the future Kingdom, could look for the ‘redemption’ of their bodies at any moment after these things began to come to pass” (ibid., p. 369). “The Church may see some more pretribulational events just as it has already seen some. But it may not see any more, depending on exactly at what point the Rapture will occur” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 155).

“At the last trumpet.” “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed” (1 Cor. 15:51–52). “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first” (1 Thes. 4:16). “After these things I looked, and behold, a door standing open in heaven, and the first voice which I had heard, like the sound of a trumpet speaking with me, said, ‘Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after these things.’ Immediately I was in the Spirit; and behold, a throne was standing in heaven, and One sitting on the throne. And He who was sitting was like a jasper stone and a sardius in appearance; and there was a rainbow around the throne, like an emerald in appearance. And around the throne were twenty-four thrones; and upon the thrones I saw twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and golden crowns on their heads” (Rev. 4:1-4). “The Trumpet is a military instrument. It was used in the Camp of Israel to call the Assembly together. The First Trumpet called them to arise and be ready to depart, the Second (last) Trumpet was the signal to march. When God descended upon Mt. Sinai the people were assembled at the sound of the ‘Trumpet of God.’ Ex. 19:9-11, 16-20. And when God was ready to speak to the people it sounded the second time (verse 19). It has been suggested that the descent of God to Mt.

Sinai is a type of the 'Descent of the Lord' into the Air to meet His Church, and that at the sounding of the First Trumpet, the 'dead in Christ' will be raised, and at the sounding of the Second (last) Trumpet, the 'living Saints' will be changed and together with the risen dead ascend to meet the Lord" (Larkin, DT, p. 80). "And Jehovah said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee in a thick cloud, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and may also believe thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto Jehovah. And Jehovah said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and sanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them wash their garments, and be ready against the third day; for the third day Jehovah will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai" (Ex. 19:9–11). "And it came to pass on the third day, when it was morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of a trumpet exceeding loud; and all the people that were in the camp trembled. And Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet God; and they stood at the nether part of the mount. And mount Sinai, the whole of it, smoked, because Jehovah descended upon it in fire; and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly. And when the voice of the trumpet waxed louder and louder, Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice. And Jehovah came down upon mount Sinai, to the top of the mount: and Jehovah called Moses to the top of the mount; and Moses went up" (Ex. 19:16–20). "We know that the 'Elect of Israel' are to be gathered back to their own land with a 'great sound of a trumpet.' Matt. 24:30-31 ["and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory. And He will send forth His angels with A GREAT TRUMPET and THEY WILL GATHER TOGETHER His elect from the four winds, from one end of the sky to the other."]. This will occur at the 'Feast of Trumpets' (the Jewish New Year) at the close of the Tribulation Period. The 'Feast of Trumpets' was associated with the 'Feast of Tabernacles' and occurred in the fall of the year, and as Jesus was crucified at the time of the 'Passover Feast,' and the Holy Spirit was given at the time of the 'Feast of Pentecost,' it has been suggested, that as Jesus will reveal Himself to His brethren, the Jews, at the 'Feast of Tabernacles,' a type of Israel's rest in the Millennial Land, that He will call out His Church with the 'sound of a Trumpet' at the 'Feast of Trumpets' seven years before the 'Elect of Israel' are called out. This however is mere speculation" (Larkin, DT, p. 80). "Inasmuch as the program for the church differs from that for Israel, each may be terminated by the blowing of a trumpet, properly called the last trumpet, without making the two last trumpets identical and synchronous as to time” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 189). “There seem to be a number of observations which make it impossible for one to identify these two trumps. (1) The trumpet of 1 Corinthians 15:52, even the midtribulationist agrees, sounds before the wrath of God descends, while, as it has been shown, the chronology of Revelation indicates that the trumpet in Revelation 11:15 sounds at the end of the time of wrath, just prior to the second advent. (2) The trumpet that summons the church is called the trump of God, while the seventh trump is an angel’s trumpet” (ibid.). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, ‘The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever’” (Rev. 11:15). “the seventh trumpet is near the end of the great tribulation rather than at its beginning” (Walvoord, MK, p. 250) “The seventh trumpet of Revelation is an announcement of the coming reign of Christ, but there is no indication in the text that the second coming of Christ actually occurs. Many interpreters, including Ladd, a posttribulationist, view the seventh trumpet as only an announcement, not the actual coming of Christ, and place the events of the seven bowls of the wrath of God in Revelation 16 as following the seventh trumpet” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 249). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, ‘The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever’” (Rev. 11:15). “In Revelation, the trumpets relate to the judgments and events of the end time and are declared to be trumpets of angels. For the most part, they relate to the unsaved world. The great trumpet of Matthew 24:31 deals with the saints of all ages who are assembled at the time of the second coming of Christ, but it says nothing of either resurrection or translation, though for some resurrection may be involved” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 249). “And He will send forth His angels with A GREAT TRUMPET and THEY WILL GATHER TOGETHER His elect from the four winds, from one end of the sky to the other” (Matt. 24:31). “In 1 Corinthians 15, the ‘last trumpet’ relates to believers only and is a trumpet of God that the context says results immediately and instantaneously in the resurrection and translation of the church. Inasmuch as the trumpet is used in the Old Testament in so many different situations as a signal of an impending event and was also used by the Roman army to signal its maneuvers, to make the term ‘last trumpet’ a technical term, including all the end-time trumpets, has to be based on an assumption rather than on solid evidence. Details of the trumpet in 1 Corinthians 15 and its results are entirely different from the other trumpets with which some post-tribulationists attempt to equate it” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 250). Dr. Showers suggests four possible meanings of the “last trumpet” of 1 Cor. 15:52: Possible meaning #1: “Just as the sounding of ‘the Emperor’s trumpet-call’ summoned citizens together for an assembly where the emperor was present, so the sounding of ‘the trump of God’ or ‘the last trump’ will summon church saints together by rapture for an assembly where Christ will be present in the air (1 Th. 4:16-17)” (Showers, M, p. 262). “Since the first trump of God called the people of Israel together to meet with God and be placed under the law, and since the law was the strength of death-causing sin and was a ministry of death, we can conclude that the purpose of the first trump of God was to call people together to God at Mount Sinai and thereby begin that ministry of death (cp. Heb. 12:18-21). By contrast, 1 Corinthians 15 and 1 Thessalonians 4 indicate that the purpose of the last trump of God will be to call people together to Christ in the air and thereby begin incorruptible, immortal, bodily resurrection and change. Thus, it will call people together for the opposite purpose of that to which the first trump of God called people. It thereby will signal the beginning of the end for death, the last enemy of mankind to be destroyed or abolished, and will fulfill another use of the trumpet in ancient times—that of terrifying an enemy or issuing a warning of coming danger or judgment. Since the first trump of God called people to the beginning of the ministry of death, Paul called the trump of God that will call people to the beginning of incorruptible, immortal, physical life ‘the last trump.’ He did so, not because no other trumpets will be sounded after it, but because, just as ‘last’ is the opposite of ‘first,’ so this trump of God, which will be sounded in conjunction with the Rapture of the church, will call people together to the opposite of that to which the first trump of God called people” (ibid., p. 263). “The first trump sounded “cursed”—as its awful tones, prolonged and loud, caused Israel to quake and fear. The last trump sounds only blessing as it summons the dead to life and the living to immortality” [quoting J. R. Caldwell, The Charter of the Church, Vol. 2, pp. 256-57] (ibid., p. 264). Possible meaning #2: “Arnold G. Fruchtenbaum... He wrote... ‘...the longest blast of all, called the tekiah edgolah: the great, or “last trump.” Judaism connected this last trump with the resurrection of the dead, and so does Paul. So, Paul’s point here is that the Rapture will be the fulfillment of the Feast of Trumpets.’ [quoting Fruchtenbaum, ‘A Review of The Pre-Wrath Rapture of the Church,’ p. 58]... He claimed that the Day of Atonement will ‘be fulfilled by the seven years of tribulation, during which Israel will suffer affliction leading to her national repentance and restoration.’ [Ibid.] In light of this Tribulation fulfillment of the Day of Atonement, Fruchtenbaum concluded that since the Feast of Trumpets occurs before the Day of Atonement, and since the Feast of Trumpets will be fulfilled by the Rapture of the church, the Rapture of the church will occur before the seven-year Tribulation period. [Ibid., pp. 58-59] (ibid.) Possible meaning #3: “...for the Jews... The last trumpet sounded was the trumpet of reassembly or return from battle... the Israelite army ‘was dismissed and sent home by the trumpet’” [quoting Gerhard Friedrich, Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, Vol. VII, p. 79] (ibid., p. 265). “...concerning this last trumpet of war, The War of the Sons of Light with the Sons of Darkness declared, ‘they shall write on the trumpets of return “The Gathering of God.”’” [quoting Millar Burrows, Burrows on the Dead Sea Scrolls, p. 392] The fact that the Jews designated their last trumpet of warfare ‘The Gathering of God’ is significant in light of Paul’s calling ‘the last trump’ of 1 Corinthians 15:52 ‘the trump of God’ in the 1 Thessalonians 4:16-17 Rapture passage” (ibid.). “...it appears that the people of the ancient world consistently had a last battle trumpet. In contrast with the first battle trumpet, which summoned soldiers together to go forth to fight, the last trumpet signaled them to end the battle and reassemble to return to camp or home” (ibid., p. 266). “...1 Corinthians 14:8... military trumpet... ‘If the trumpet does not give a definite signal the troops will not prepare for battle.’ This indicates that Paul had the first trumpet of battle in mind when he wrote 1 Corinthians 14... ‘The term “the last trump,” in 1 Cor. 15:52, is a military expression, denoting the trumpet which is sounded... to call the soldiers home’” [quoting Cornelius R. Stam, Commentary on the First Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, p. 273] (ibid.). “...the biblical teaching concerning the warfare of the church against Satan and his forces” (ibid., p. 267). “Just as the last trumpet of battle signaled the soldiers to end the battle and reassemble to return to camp or home, so the trump of God will signal the end of the church saints’ warfare against Satan and his forces and their assembly with Christ in the air to go with Him to their heavenly home. The trump of God associated with the Rapture of the church will have the same kind of function or purpose as the last trumpet of battle in the ancient world. For this reason, Paul called it ‘the last trump’” (ibid.). Possible meaning #4: “Just as there was a last trumpet to signal the end of a Roman guard’s watch, so the trump of God will signal the end of the church saints’ watch in the world. The trump of God associated with the Rapture of the church will have the same kind of function or purpose as the last trumpet of a Roman guard’s watch. For this reason, Paul called it ‘the last trump’” (ibid.). Possible combination of meanings: “It could very well be that Paul had a combination of both military uses of a last trumpet (the third and fourth possible meanings presented in this chapter) in mind when he called the trump of God associated with the Rapture ‘the last trump’” (ibid.).

At the end of the Church Age. (See our discussion of the fact that a major purpose of the Rapture is to close the Church Age in the section Purposes of the Rapture above.)

Before the Millennial Kingdom. “Our doctrine... the Millennial age being contingent on the Advent of Jesus and the resurrection of the saints” (Peters, TTK, 3:178) (See our discussion of the fact that the (resurrected and translated) church is to reign with Christ in the Millennial Kingdom in the Description of the Millennial Kingdom section of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

Before the resurrection of Revelation 20:4. “Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready. And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, ‘Write, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”’ And he said to me, “These are true words of God” (Rev. 19:7-9). “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4). “...before the seventieth week begins. If the church is not resurrected and translated here [in Rev. chapters 4 and 5], as some insist, and not until Revelation 20:4, how could the church be in heaven in Revelation 19:7-11” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 209)? “The resurrections related to the second coming of Christ never include anything specific about the church” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 206). “Even if the Rapture were posttribulational, the resurrection of Revelation 20:4 comes later in the sequence of events, as the context demonstrates” (ibid.). “What John saw was not all the souls in heaven but a particular generation of martyred dead who had been contemporaneous with the world ruler, the beast out of the sea (13:1). If the church were raptured prior to this event, as premillenarians teach, it would make sense to single out these martyred dead for resurrection. But if the church were not raptured, it would be most unusual to ignore all the martyrs of preceding generations, the church as a whole, and to specify this relatively small group” (Walvoord, BKC, p. Rev 20:4).

Before Christ's Second Coming. This must be true because:

1. The church is already in heaven when Christ returns. “And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:3). “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:16-17). “And about these also Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, ‘Behold, the Lord came with many thousands of His holy ones’” (Jude 1:14) “And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses” (Rev. 19:14). “Revelation 19, verses 1-10 describe events in Heaven prior to the Second Coming, while verses 11-21 describe the Second Coming and subsequent events... the Church is already in Heaven before the Second Coming” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 162).

2. No translation of living saints is mentioned at Christ's Second Coming. (See our discussion of the fact that the Rapture is not mentioned in any of the Second Coming passages in our section Not Post-Tribulation below.)

3. At Christ's Second Coming, Christ returns with the church, not for her. “And about these also Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, ‘Behold, the Lord came with many thousands of His holy ones’” (Jude 1:14) “And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses” (Rev. 19:14). “The Difference Between Christ Coming For His Saints and Then Later Coming With Them Fits a Pretribulation Rapture... He cannot come with them until He has first come for them” (Geisler, ST, 4:618). (See also our discussion of the distinctions between the Rapture and the Second Coming in our section Identity of the Rapture above.)

Not Post-Tribulation

Posttribulationism, which teaches that the Rapture occurs after the Tribulation period, has been the majority view throughout church history and remains the majority view in the church today. “Posttribulationism has long been a common doctrine held by the majority of the church. Most premillenarians today, however, hold to the pretribulation translation of the church. As ordinarily defined, posttribulationism is the teaching that the church will be translated after the predicted Tribulation, and therefore its adherents believe that the church must pass through this prophesied time of trouble. Posttribulationism is the ordinary view of practically all amil-lenarians and postmillenarians. It is embraced by Roman Catholic and Greek Catholic; it is followed by many Protestant conservatives as well as modern liberals. Posttribulationism, as far as the church as a whole is concerned, is the majority view” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 131). However, careful Scripture study reveals that the Rapture of the church is most likely not posttribulational. “...another mistake is made when the translation is placed after the ending of the Jewish tribulation” (Peters, TTK, 2:335). We will discuss twenty evidential facts contrary to posttribulationism in this section.

Evidential facts contrary to posttribulationism include:

1. The hermeneutics of posttribulationism are highly questionable. “It is generally characteristic of posttribulationism that it takes a less literal interpretation of tribulation passages than the pretribulational view” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 39). (See our discussion of the fact that posttribulationism usually ignores the distinction between the church and Israel below.)

2. Posttribulationism is not an “older” teaching than pretribulationism. “What posttribulationists do not seem to realize is that the detailed arguments for posttribulationism as they are now advanced are even more recent than Darby; and if recency is an argument against pretribulationism, it is also an argument against posttribulationism. The fact is that the development of most important doctrines took centuries, and it is not surprising that even in the twentieth century new light should be cast on our understanding of Scripture” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 50). (See also the evidence for the antiquity of premillennialism (and pretribulationism) in our discussions of chiliasm in the primitive and early church as well as in the dark ages in our chapter The Kingdom in Church History.)

3. Posttribulationists disagree amongst themselves on major details. “...the wide diversity of arguments among the posttribulationists themselves and their disagreement on major factors in posttribulational teaching” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 56). “There is obvious confusion among posttribulationists on the interpretation of some of the major aspects of their point of view, quite in contrast to pretribulationists who generally differ only on minor details” (ibid., p. 139). “The fact that posttribulationism divides into at least four schools of interpretation that are inherently contradictory on important arguments for their view is a major problem of posttribulational interpretation” (ibid., p. 144).

4. Posttribulationists often ignore details that are unfavorable to their position. “posttribulationists... their common practice of avoiding details in any passage that contradict their explanation of it” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 195).

5. Posttribulationists cannot explain why the church must endure the Tribulation. “It is strange that posttribulationists never assign a reason why believers must experience the Tribulation” (Feinberg, M, p. 302).

6. Posttribulationists are often historicists, rather than futurists. “Very popular among posttribulationists is the historical interpretation of Revelation in which its prophecies of the Tribulation are relegated to the past trials of the saints” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 57).

7. Posttribulationism is not explicitly taught in Scripture. “Ladd... conceded that a posttribulational Rapture is an inference rather than an explicit revelation of Scripture in the following statement: ‘Nor does the Word explicitly place the Rapture at the end of the Tribulation’” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 164). “There is not a single Scripture in either the Old or New Testament that relates the translation of the church to a posttribulational coming of Christ” (ibid., p. 171). “The reason that posttribulationists attempt to throw the burden of proof for a pretribulational Rapture on their opponents is that they themselves have no proof to the contrary” (ibid.). “Even posttribulationists like Ladd agree that there is no explicit statement of a posttribulational Rapture” (ibid., p. 177).

8. Paul specifically refutes posttribulationism in Second Thessalonians chapter two. “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God” (2 Thes. 2:1–4). “The situation described in 2 Thessalonians 2 indicates that the teaching that the church would go through the Tribulation was already being advanced by certain teachers whom Paul opposed in this passage” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 238). “It is sometimes assumed that in the early apostolic period only pure and accurate doctrine was taught. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Paul had to write his Epistle to the Galatians to correct the error of legalism. He wrote most of 1 Corinthians to correct doctrinal and moral errors in the Corinthian church. It seems quite clear that most of the heresies that later emerged in the second and third centuries had their small beginnings in the apostolic church” (ibid.). “Here in 2 Thessalonians 2... Paul here was refuting this early form of posttribulationism” (ibid.). “At the outset, posttribulationists have a real problem here. If the Thessalonians had been taught posttribulationism, the beginning of the day of the Lord would have been to them evidence that the Rapture was drawing near and should have caused rejoicing. Instead of this, the beginning of the day of the Lord apparently created a panic in their midst, with the implication that before the false teachers had come they had understood that they would not enter this period” (ibid.). “It seems... that their alarm was that the new teaching they had heard contradicted what Paul had taught them before, that is, that they would not enter this period” (ibid., p. 240). “Obviously their error was that they thought they were in the day of the Lord and the Tribulation, and because this had been contradicted by Paul’s earlier teaching, they were confused and filled with fear” (ibid., p. 241). “The truths revealed in 2 Thessalonians 2 are a devastating blow to posttribulationism, labeling it as an early error in the church that later mushroomed and became more evident in the second century of the Christian era” (ibid., p. 245).

9. Posttribulationism usually mistakenly places all “elect” and “saints” in the church. “It is characteristic of posttribulationism to assume, usually without any proof whatever, that the word church is an all-inclusive term that is synonymous with the terms elect and saints. In brief, they hold that saints of all past, present, and future ages are included in the church. This definition makes impossible any other view than the posttribulational concept. All parties agree that there are saints in the Tribulation and that even during this time of unprecedented trouble many will turn to Christ for salvation. If these believers in the Tribulation are properly described as members of the church, it leads inevitably to the conclusion that the church will go through the Tribulation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 19). “Posttribulationists tend to include the saints of all ages in the church” (ibid., p. 161).

10. Posttribulationism usually ignores the distinction between the church and Israel. “A proper distinction between the church and Israel naturally leads to pretribulationism, as practically all posttribulationists admit” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 20). “Posttribulationists usually ignore the distinction between Israel and the church much in the fashion of the amilenarian school” (ibid., p. 55). “The proof that the church is in the Tribulation requires a theological system that spiritualizes many of its terms, and posttribulationists brush off a more literal interpretation as too trivial to answer” (ibid.). “Usually those who sharply distinguish Israel and the church are both premillennial and pretribulational, while those who consider Israel and the church more or less the same concept, even if premillennial, tend to be posttribulational” (ibid., p. 63). “Agreement must be reached first on the pertinence of ecclesiology to eschatology before any

11. Posttribulationism has trouble identifying the 144,000. “After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth, so that no wind should blow on the earth or on the sea or on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God; and he cried out with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it was granted to harm the earth and the sea, saying, ‘Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the bond-servants of our God on their foreheads.’ And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel: from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed” (Rev. 7:1-8). “And I looked, and behold, the Lamb was standing on Mount Zion, and with Him one hundred and forty-four thousand, having His name and the name of His Father written on their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, like the sound of many waters and like the sound of loud thunder, and the voice which I heard was like the sound of harpists playing on their harps. And they sang a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and the elders; and no one could learn the song except the one hundred and forty-four thousand who had been purchased from the earth. These are the ones who have not been defiled with women, for they have kept themselves chaste. These are the ones who follow the Lamb wherever He goes. These have been purchased from among men as first fruits to God and to the Lamb. And no lie was found in their mouth; they are blameless” (Rev. 14:1-5). “Taken as a whole, the question of the identity and significance of the 144,000 is a lost cause for posttribulationism. They either have to spiritualize their identity and avoid the point of the revelation, or they have to face the fact that those who are saved in Israel are designated as saved Israelites, not designated as the church in the time of the Great Tribulation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 264). (See our identification of the 144,000 in the Events of the First Half of the Tribulation section of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

12. The church is not found on earth in any of the Tribulation passages. “While an argument from silence is never final in itself, the whole point of posttribulationism would be conclusively won by just one reference placing the church in the Tribulation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 162). (See our discussion of the fact that the church is not found on earth in any of the Tribulation passages in our section Pre-Tribulation below.)

13. Revelation does not describe a triumphant church going through the Tribulation relatively untouched. “The prospect of a church’s going triumphantly through the Great Tribulation relatively untouched is not supported in the prophecies of the Book of Revelation, as indicated by the martyrs in chapters 6 and 7” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 230). (See our discussion of the fifth-seal martyrs in the Events of the First Half of the Tribulation section of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

14. Many if not most Tribulation saints will be martyred and resurrected; not translated. “If the posttribulationists are right, the hope of the Lord’s return is reduced to the hope of resurrection, as few of the saints who would enter the Tribulation would escape martyrdom” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 167). (See our discussion of the fifth-seal martyrs in the Events of the First Half of the Tribulation section of our chapter The Great Tribulation, and our discussion of the resurrection of the Tribulation saints in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

15. The Rapture is not mentioned in any of the Second Coming passages. “And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses” (Rev. 19:14). “a rapture... the omission of any specific reference to it in detailed passages dealing with the Second Advent constitute an impressive argument that posttribulationists have not answered” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 141). “The precise teaching of the translation of the church is never found in passages dealing with the return of Christ to establish His kingdom on earth” (ibid., p. 179). “In view of the many detailed prophecies that relate events leading up to and climaxing in the second coming of Christ to the earth, it is most strange that there should be no mention whatever of a Rapture or translation of living saints if, as a matter of fact, this is a major feature of end-time events. Accordingly, the problem of posttribulationists is much more serious than that of pretribulationists” (ibid., p. 182). “The facts are that there seems to be no translation of any living saints at the time of the second coming of Christ” (ibid., p. 207). “All posttribulationists seek to avoid the main point, that is, that the resurrection and translation of the church is declared to be a mystery and, as such, is not included in any passage in the Old Testament dealing with the second coming of Christ. What posttribulationists also want to avoid is the fact that the translation of the church is not mentioned anywhere in the New Testament in a passage that clearly speaks of the coming of Christ after the Great Tribulation” (ibid., p. 248). “One of the major weaknesses of posttribulationists is their handling of the doctrine of the Rapture in relationship to the Book of Revelation. Their problem is that the Rapture is not mentioned in relation to the Second Coming. If the Rapture occurs at the second coming of Christ, it would be a major feature of end-time events; and the fact that it is not related to the Second Coming is most strange if posttribulationism is correct. In the description of the second coming of Christ in Revelation 19, neither translation or resurrection as related to the process of Christ’s coming from heaven to the earth is indicated” (ibid., p. 254). “Posttribulationists, if they follow 1 Thessalonians 4, must place the rapture of the church in the sequence of events as Christ is coming from heaven to the earth. Instead, the only mention of resurrection is found in Revelation 20:4, long after the Second Coming is an accomplished fact, and the specification of the passage limits the resurrection to those who died in the Great Tribulation. There is absolutely nothing in Revelation 19-20 to support the idea that there is a rapture of the church involved in the second-coming process” (ibid.). “Posttribulationists attempt to turn the argument against the pretribulationists by saying that if there were a pretribulation Rapture, it ought to be stated in the Book of Revelation. The opposite, rather, is the truth. If, as a matter of fact, the Rapture has taken place earlier before the Great Tribulation ever comes upon the earth, then there would be no need to discuss the Rapture in the sequence of later events. If, on the other hand, the Rapture is part of the events of the Second Coming, the strange absence of any mention of it certainly is a devastating blow to posttribulationists” (ibid.). “Premillenarians find in the revelation of the second coming of Christ, beginning in Revelation 19:11, an ordered sequence of events describing the major aspects of the second coming of Christ and its results. First, the descent from heaven of Christ accompanied by the saints and angels is pictured in Revelation 19:11-16. It is noteworthy that there is not a word about translation or resurrection in connection with this event” (ibid., p. 267). “The posttribulation Rapture, which should have been a prominent feature of the Book of Revelation if it were indeed a part of the great climax of the second coming of Christ, is totally missing in the narrative. If details like the casting of the beast and the false prophet into the lake of fire are mentioned and the specific resurrection of the tribulation saints is described, how much more the Rapture and translation of the church as a whole should have been included if, as a matter of fact, it is a part of this great event. Revelation 19-20 constitutes the major problem of posttribulationists. They have no scriptural proof for a posttribulational Rapture in the very passages that ought to include it" (ibid., p. 268). "Actually, there is not a single verse in the entire Book of Revelation that teaches a posttribulational Rapture. If the book designed to describe the Second Coming in detail offers no supporting evidence, it should be clear that posttribulationism is without scriptural support" (ibid.). "When Christ returns in Revelation 19, there is no reference to the Rapture" (Geisler, ST, 4:618). (See also our discussion of the fact that the Rapture and the Second Coming are spoken of separately in Scripture; never together, in our section Identity of the Rapture above.)

16. The Rapture does not fit the analogy with those "taken" in Noah's Flood. "And as were the days of Noah, so shall be the coming of the Son of man. For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and they knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall be the coming of the Son of man. Then shall two man be in the field; one is taken, and one is left: two women shall be grinding at the mill; one is taken, and one is left" (Matt. 24:37-41). "In the illustration from 'the days of Noah,' those who are taken away by the flood are the ones who are drowned, and the ones who are left are ones who are left in safety in the ark. It would be strange to have a clear illustration like this be completely reversed in the application of [Matthew] verses 40-41" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 188).

17. Tribulation survivors are needed to participate in the post-tribulation judgments on earth. "In the judgment of the Gentiles and the judgment of Israel, the mass of detail points to the fact that separation of saved from unsaved is accomplished by a series of judgments occurring chronologically after the Second Advent. These judgments deal only with those living on the earth at the time of the Second Advent. None of those involved are translated or resurrected. Their reward is entrance into the millennial kingdom. At every point of comparison the evidence points to the translation of the church as a prior event utterly different in character and one that requires an interval of some years between it and the judgments of Israel and the Gentiles. It may be therefore concluded that the interval between the translation and the Second Coming is absolutely necessary for the creation of a new generation of believers in Christ, composed of both Jews and Gentiles who retain their national identification and who will await the second advent of Christ and the millennial kingdom to follow" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 90). Regarding the Jewish judgment, “As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. As for you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Go ye, serve every one his idols, and hereafter also, if ye will not hearken unto me; but my holy name shall ye no more profane with your gifts, and with your idols. For in my holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them, serve me in the land: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things. As a sweet savor will I accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country which I swear to give unto your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have polluted yourselves; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have dealt with you for my name’s sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 20:33-44). “If the translation of the church took place simultaneously with the Second Advent to establish the kingdom, the Ezekiel [20:34-38] judgment would be both impossible and unnecessary as the separation of believers from unbelievers would have already taken place. It may therefore be concluded from the nature of the judgment of Israel that an interval is required between the translation of the church and the judgment of Israel during which a new generation of Israelites who believe in Christ as Savior and Messiah comes into being and is waiting for His second advent to the earth to establish the millennial kingdom” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 89). (See also our discussion of the Jewish judgment in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.) Regarding the Gentile judgment, “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For I was hungry, and you gave Me something to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and you invited Me in; naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to Me.” Then the righteous will answer Him, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, and feed You, or thirsty, and give You drink? And when did we see You a stranger, and invite You in, or naked, and clothe You? And when did we see You sick, or in prison, and come to You?” And the King will answer and say to them, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did it to one of these brothers of Mine, even the least of them, you did it to Me.” Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry, and you gave Me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink; I was a stranger, and you did not invite Me in; naked, and you did not clothe Me; sick, and in prison, and you did not visit Me.” Then they themselves also will answer, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not take care of You?” Then He will answer them, saying, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.” And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46). “Matthew 25:31-46... In the Matthew passage, like that of Ezekiel 20, no mention is made of either resurrection or translation, although both are often read into the passage by posttribulationists desiring to combine all the passages” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 89). “A study of this judgment of Gentiles again confirms the fact that this is an entirely different event from the translation of the church. This is, first of all, demonstrated by the time of the judgment. It occurs after the Second Advent and after a throne is set up in the earth. The translation of the church, according to pretribulationists, takes place before Christ actually arrives on earth. The judgment of the Gentiles results in the purging of unbelievers out from among believers and leaves believers untouched. This judgment also distinguishes the individuals involved on a racial basis. The 'brethren' refers to Israel. The 'nations' refers to non-Israelites. At the translation of the church, by contrast, there are no racial distinctions whatever. The judgment of the Gentiles deals primarily with unbelievers who are cast into everlasting fire. The reward given to believers at the judgment of the Gentiles is entrance into the millennial kingdom. Christians in this present age enter a spiritual kingdom when born again and are never brought into judgment relative to entrance into the Millennium. Believers at the judgment of the Gentiles enter a millennial kingdom at the time of their judgment, following the Second Advent" (ibid.). "If a rapture takes place in the sequence of the second coming of Christ, it would be the first event and would automatically separate all the saved from the unsaved before Christ's feet ever touched the Mount of Olives and before His kingdom was instituted. In Matthew 25:31-46, however, the sheep and the goats representing the saved and the lost are intermingled and require separation by a special judgment that follows the second coming of Christ. Such a judgment would be unnecessary if a posttribulational Rapture had occurred, although it can be easily harmonized with a pretribulational rapture" (ibid., p. 192). "The judgment of the nations in Matthew 25 refers to those who have survived the Tribulation and are still in their natural bodies. It is noteworthy that there is no mention of either Rapture or resurrection" (ibid., p. 193) "This judgment contradicts a posttribulational Rapture and almost makes it an impossibility" (ibid.). (See also our discussion of the Gentile judgment in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

18. Tribulation survivors are needed to populate the earth after the Tribulation. "If the translation takes place after the tribulation, the question facing the posttribulationists is a very obvious one: Who is going to populate the earth during the millennium?" [quoting Walvoord, The Rapture Question, p. 93] (Feinberg, M, p. 170)? "Pretribulationists have often pointed out that if every living saint is raptured at the time of the second coming this would, in itself, separate all the saints from unsaved people and would leave none to populate the millennial earth" [quoting Walvoord, The Blessed Hope and the Tribulation, pp. 25, 52-53] (ibid., p. 306). "It is absolutely necessary for the saints who are on the earth at the time of the Second Advent to enter the millennial kingdom in the flesh, in order to fulfill the many promises that picture their normal life on the earth" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 20). "It is obviously impossible to incorporate a translation of all saints at the end of the tribulation and the beginning of the millennium as it would result in all saints receiving a spiritual body, leaving none to populate the earth in the millennium" (Walvoord, MK, p. 243). "Premillennial-ism demands an interval between the translation and the Second Coming to make possible a generation of believers who will enter the Millennium” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 87). “...if this posttribulation belief were correct, all the saved would enter the Millennium in a sinlessly perfect state with immortal resurrection type bodies that will not participate in marriage or die” (Showers, M, p. 188). “If all those who enter the Millennium are sinlessly perfect, and if there are no births during the Millennium, where would the wicked of the Millennium come from, and where would the large host of earthly unsaved rebels who follow Satan after the Millennium come from” (ibid.)?

19. The posttribulational resurrection of the Old Testament saints does not include the church. “Most of the Old Testament passages of which Daniel 12:1-2 is an example do indeed seem to set up a chronology of Tribulation first, then resurrection of the Old Testament saints. On the other hand, the passages dealing with the resurrection of the church in the New Testament seem to include only the church. The expression ‘the dead in Christ will rise first’ (1 Thess. 4:16) seems to include only the church” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 170). “The fact that Old Testament saints and tribulational saints are resurrected after the Tribulation according to explicit Scriptures (Dan. 12:1-2; Rev. 20:4) raises the question why neither the translation nor the resurrection of the church is mentioned in this event” (ibid., p. 171). “In none of the accounts of resurrection related to the second coming of Christ is any translation of living saints mentioned” (ibid., p. 206). (See also our discussion of the first resurrection in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

20. Posttribulationism destroys imminency. “A fair statement of the problem is that posttribulationism as presented by Gundry and Ladd involving clearly defined events covering a period of years makes real imminency impossible” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 169). “‘Therefore encourage each other with these words’ (1 Thess. 4:18)... Most important is the fact that this event, as described, is presented as an imminent event with no preceding order of events that had to be enacted... The implicit imminence of the Rapture is an important facet in the pretribulational interpretation and is a principal source of embarrassment to the posttribulational explanation. It is probably for this reason that most posttribulationists do not give a detailed explanation of this passage and tend to gloss over the details” (ibid., p. 202). (See our discussion of the imminency of the Rapture in our section Unknown and Imminent below.)

Not Mid-Tribulation

Midtribulationism, which teaches that the Rapture occurs at the midpoint of the Tribulation period, while having considerably fewer adherents than either posttribulationism or pretribulationism, still has its followers. Midtribulationists place the seventh trumpet of Revelation at the midpoint of the Tribulation, and identify this trumpet as the “last trumpet” for the Church Age, resulting in a midtribulation Rapture. However, “The seventh trumpet of Revelation is, after all, not the last trumpet of Scripture. According to Matthew 24:31, the elect will be gathered at the coming of Christ to establish His earthly kingdom ‘with a loud trumpet call.’ While posttribulationists hold that this is identical with the seventh trumpet, midtribulationists cannot do so. In fact, it is not too much to say that this one reference alone spells the doom of midtribulationism” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 125). “H. A. Ironside [in Address on the First Epistle to the Corinthians, p. 529]... ‘When a Roman camp was about to be broken up, whether in the middle of the night or in the day, a trumpet was sounded. The first blast meant, “Strike tents and prepare to depart.” The second meant, “Fall into line,” and when what was called “the last trump” sounded it meant, “March away”’” (ibid.). “Any child in school knows that the last bell for one hour may be followed by a first bell for the next hour” (ibid., p. 126). “Another objection to the midtribulational interpretation is that it confuses Israel and the church and requires an overlap of their two programs” (ibid.). “One of the important reasons pretribulationists believe the refutation of midtribulationism is necessary is that it directly attacks the imminency of the Lord’s return for the church much in the same way as posttribulationism does... The events of the first three and one-half years of Daniel’s prophecy are specific. They begin with a covenant between a Gentile ruler and Israel... Such a covenant would, on the one hand, make the coming of Christ impossible for three and one-half years, according to the midtribulationist, and on the other hand, make an imminent coming impossible at any time prior to the covenant” (ibid., p. 128). “Midtribulationism has a significant disadvantage: It loses the sense of imminence, for it has signs of the Rapture coming before it occurs” (Geisler, ST, 4:649) “The division of the Tribulation into two periods is not because the church’s rapture occurs there but because Antichrist is fully revealed there” (ibid.). (See our discussion of the imminency of the Rapture in our section Unknown and Imminent below.)

Continuing now our general discussion of the timing of the Rapture, the Rapture occurs at the beginning of the Day of the Lord. “Now as to the times and the epochs, brethren, you have no need of anything to be written to you. For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, ‘Peace and safety!’ then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief; for you are all sons of light and sons of day. We are not of night nor of darkness; so then let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and sober. For those who sleep do their sleeping at night, and those who get drunk get drunk at night. But since we are of the day, let us be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and as a helmet, the hope of salvation. For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Thes. 5:1–9) “There seems some evidence that the day of the Lord begins at once at the time of the translation of the church (cf. 1 Thess. 5:1-9). The same event that translates the church begins the day of the Lord” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 175). (See also our discussion of the fact that the Tribulation begins (at or) after the beginning of the Day of the Lord in the section Timing of the Tribulation in our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

It occurs before or at the confirming of Antichrist’s 7-year covenant with Israel. This is because the confirming of the covenant marks the beginning of Daniel’s seventieth week (Dan. 9:27), which in turn marks the beginning of the Tribulation. By definition, a pretribulation Rapture occurs before the beginning of the Tribulation. “Since the Tribulation begins with the signing of the seven-year covenant, the very latest point at which the Rapture can occur would be at the time of the signing of the seven-year covenant. The Rapture will not occur beyond that point” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 155). “...the Rapture will occur some time between this very moment and the signing of the seven-year covenant” (ibid.). (See our discussion of Antichrist’s confirming the covenant with Israel in the Events of the First Half of the Tribulation section of our chapter The Great Tribulation.)

It occurs before God reverts primary attention back to Israel. (See our discussion of the fact that a major purpose of the Rapture is to revert God’s earthly program back to Israel in our section Purposes of the Rapture above.)

Pre-Tribulation

It is our conviction that the Rapture is pretribulation. “...the two stages, resulting in a translation previous to the tribulation” (Peters, TTK, 2:317) “If the church does go through the Tribulation, the hope of the believer is bedimmed, the church age is confused with the law age, and the book of Revelation is lost in unrelieved confusion. Those points are pivotal and not peripheral” (Feinberg, M, p. 290). “The Scripture order of events is simple and demonstrable: (1) Christ raptures His Bride (not at the end of the Tribulation but before it, as already demonstrated in this volume more than once); (2) the Tribulation as the wrath of God is poured out on earth’s unbelievers; (3) Christ returns to earth with His already resurrected and translated saints” (ibid., p. 297). “Regardless of the chronological arrangements which may be made of these judgments, whether some recapitulation or overlapping scheme be adopted, the opening action of [Revelation] chapters 4 and 5 simply cannot be pushed into the picture which follows in 6 to 19. There is a definite sequence here: No judgment falls until the first seal is broken; the first seal is not broken until the Lamb receives the sealed book; the Lamb does not take the book until the twenty-four elders are in heaven, enthroned and crowned. If the action in heaven described in chapters 4 and 5 does not precede the judgments of chapters 6 to 19, then no one can make any sense whatever out of the order of the events set forth in the last book of the Bible; and we may as well complain with Luther, ‘Even if it were a blessed thing to believe what is in it, no man knows what that is.’ But the very intensity of the labors of Christian scholars down through the centuries is the strongest witness to their rejection of such a verdict” (McClain, GK, p. 472). “Until the nature of the Tribulation is established, it is impossible to discuss intelligently the question of whether the church will endure it” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 15). “Generally speaking, the pretribulation view is followed by those who consider premillenarianism a system of Bible interpretation, while the posttribulation and midtribulation positions characterize those who limit the area of premillennialism to eschatology” (ibid., p. 19). “Generally speaking, pretribulationism is an outgrowth of premillennial interpretation of the Scriptures and is properly considered a teaching within this point of view. Very rarely is it encountered outside premillennialism” (ibid., p. 131). “If major doctrines like the Trinity and the procession of the Spirit took centuries to find acceptable statement, it is hardly to be expected that the problems of eschatology would be all settled in the early centuries. The inroads of the spiritualizing principles of Origen, which caused the downfall of premillennialism in the third and fourth centuries and the departure from the Scriptures and which characterized the organized church until the Protestant Reformation, were hardly a climate in which an intricate problem such as pretribulationism versus posttribulationism could be solved” (ibid., p. 156). “Many arguments have been advanced in support of the pretribulation rapture viewpoint and as many as fifty can be itemized [See our next paragraph for Walvoord’s fifty itemized arguments.—ed.]” (Walvoord, MK, p. 251). “Church saints will have no relationship with the broad Day of the Lord wrath. Christ will remove them from the earth by rapture before the broad Day of the Lord begins” (Showers, M, p. 218). “The Rapture is before the Tribulation period” (Geisler, ST, 4:623).

Beginning on page 269 his book The Rapture Question, Dr. Walvoord lists Fifty Arguments for Pretribulationism. Because his list so concisely categorizes and articulates the main arguments for pretribulationism, we're reproducing his exact list here: "Historical Argument: 1. While posttribulationism appeared as early as 2 Thessalonians 2, many in the early church believed in the imminency of the Lord's return, which is an essential doctrine of pretribulationism. 2. The detailed development of the pretribulationist truth during the past few centuries does not prove that the doctrine is new or novel. Its development is similar to that of other major doctrines in the history of the church. Hermeneutics: 3. Pretribulationism is the only view that allows literal interpretation of all Old and New Testament passages on the Great Tribulation. 4. Pretribulationism distinguishes clearly between Israel and the church and their respective programs. Nature of the Tribulation: 5. Pretribulationism maintains the scriptural distinction between the Great Tribulation and tribulation in general that precedes it. 6. The Great Tribulation is properly interpreted by pretribulationists as a time of preparation for Israel's restoration (Deu. 4:29-30; Jer. 30:4-11). It is not the purpose of the Tribulation to prepare the church for glory. 7. None of the Old Testament passages on the Tribulation mention the church (Deu. 4:29-30; Jer. 30:4-11; Dan. 8:24-27; 12:1-2). 8. None of the New Testament passages on the Tribulation mention the church (Matt. 13:30; 39-42, 48-50; 24:15-31; 1 Thess. 1:9-10; 5:4-9; 2 Thess. 2:1-11; Rev. 4-18). 9. In contrast to midtribulationism, the pretribulationist view provides an adequate explanation for the beginning of the Great Tribulation in Revelation 6. Midtribulationism is refuted by the plain teaching of Scripture that the Great Tribulation begins long before the seventh trumpet of Revelation 11. 10. The proper distinction is maintained between the prophetic trumpets of Scripture by pretribulationism. There is no proper ground for the pivotal argument of midtribulationism that the seventh trumpet of Revelation is the last trumpet in that there is no established connection between the seventh trumpet of Revelation 11, the last trumpet of 1 Corinthians 15:52, and the trumpet of Matthew 24:31. They are three distinct events. 11. The unity of Daniel's seventieth week is maintained by pretribulationists. By contrast, posttribulationism and midtribulationists destroy the unity of Daniel's seventieth week and confuse Israel's program with that of the church. Nature of the Church: 12. The translation of the church is never mentioned in any passage dealing with the second coming of Christ after the Tribulation. 13. The church is not appointed to wrath (Rom. 5:9; 1 Thess. 1:9-10; 5:9). The church therefore cannot enter 'the great day of their wrath' (Rev. 6:17). 14. The church will not be overtaken by the day of the Lord (1 Thess. 5:1-9, which includes the Tribulation. 15. The possibility of a believer escaping the Tribulation is mentioned in Luke 21:36. 16. The church of Philadelphia was promised deliverance from 'the hour of trial that is going to come upon the whole world to test those who live on the earth' (Rev. 3:10). 17. It is characteristic of divine dealing to deliver believers before a divine judgment is inflicted on the world as illustrated in the deliverance of Noah, Lot, Rahab, etc. (2 Peter 2:5-9). 18. At the time of the translation of the church, all believers go to the Father's house in heaven (John 14:3) and do not immediately return to the earth after meeting Christ in the air as posttribulationists teach. 19. Pretribulationism does not divide the body of Christ at the Rapture on a works principle. The teaching of a partial rapture is based on the false doctrine that the translation of the church is a reward for good works. It is rather a climactic aspect of salvation by grace. 20. The Scriptures clearly teach that all, not part, of the church will be raptured at the coming of Christ for the church (1 Cor. 15:51-52; 1 Thess. 4:17). 21. As opposed to a view of a partial rapture, pretribulationism is founded on the definite teaching of Scripture that the death of Christ frees from all condemnation. 22. The godly remnant of the Tribulation are pictured as Israelites, not members of the church as maintained by the posttribulationists. 23. The pretribulational view, as opposed to posttribulationism, does not confuse general terms like elect and saints, which apply to the saved of all ages, with specific terms like church and those in Christ, which refer to believers of this age only. Doctrine of Imminency: 24. The pretribulational interpretation teaches that the coming of Christ is actually imminent. 25. The exhortation to be comforted by the coming of the Lord (1 Thess. 4:18) is very significant in the pretribulational view and is especially contradicted by most posttribulationists. 26. The exhortation to look for 'the glorious appearing' of Christ to His own (Titus 2:13) loses its significance if the Tribulation must intervene first. Believers in that case should look for signs. 27. The exhortation to purify ourselves in view of the Lord's return has most significance if His coming is imminent (1 John 3:2-3). 28. The church is uniformly exhorted to look for the coming of the Lord, while believers in the Tribulation are directed to look for signs. The Work of the Holy Spirit: 29. The Holy Spirit as the restrainer of evil cannot be taken out of the world unless the church, which the Spirit indwells, is translated at the same time. The Tribulation cannot begin until this restraint is lifted. 30. The Holy Spirit as the restrainer must be taken out of the world before 'the lawless one,' who dominates the tribulation period, can be revealed (2 Thess. 2:6-8). 31. If the expression 'except there come a falling away first' (KJV) is translated literally, 'except the "departure" come first,' it would plainly show the necessity of the Rapture taking place before the beginning of the Tribulation. Necessity of an Interval Between the Rapture and the Second Coming: 32. According to 2 Corinthians 5:10, all believers of this age must appear before the judgment seat of Christ in heaven, an event never mentioned in the detailed accounts connected with the second coming of Christ to the earth. 33. If the twenty-four elders of Revelation 4:1-5:14 are representative of the church as many expositors believe, it would necessitate the rapture and reward of the church before the Tribulation. 34. The coming of Christ for His bride must take place before the Second Coming to the earth for the wedding feast (Rev. 19:7-10). 35. Tribulation saints are not translated at the second coming of Christ but carry on ordinary occupations such as farming and building houses, and they will bear children (Isa. 65:20-25). This would be impossible if the translation had taken place at the Second Coming to the earth, as posttribulationists teach. 36. The judgment of the Gentiles following the Second Coming (Matt. 25:31-46) indicates that both saved and unsaved are still in their natural bodies. This would be impossible if the translation had taken place at the Second Coming. 37. If the translation took place in connection with the Second Coming to the earth, there would be no need of separating the sheep from the goats at a subsequent judgment, but the separation would have taken place in the very act of the translation of the believers before Christ actually sets up His throne on earth (Matt. 25:31). 38. The judgment of Israel (Ezek. 20:34-38), which occurs subsequent to the Second Coming, indicates the necessity of regathering Israel. The separation of the saved from the unsaved in this judgment obviously takes place sometime after the Second Coming and would be unnecessary if the saved had previously been separated from the unsaved by translation. Contrast Between the Rapture and the Second Coming: 39. At the time of the Rapture the saints meet Christ in the air, while at the Second Coming Christ returns to the Mount of Olives to meet the saints on earth. 40. At the time of the Rapture the Mount of Olives is unchanged, while at the Second Coming it divides and a valley is formed to the east of Jerusalem (Zech. 14:4-5). 41. At the Rapture living saints are translated, while no saints are translated in connection with the second coming of Christ to the earth. 42. At the Rapture the saints go to heaven, while at the Second Coming to the earth the saints remain in the earth without translation. 43. At the time of the Rapture the world is unjudged and continues in sin, while at the Second Coming the world is judged and righteousness is established on the earth. 44. The translation of the church is pictured as a deliverance before the day of wrath, while the Second Coming is followed by the deliverance of those who have believed in Christ during the Tribulation. 45. The Rapture is described as imminent, while the Second Coming is preceded by definite signs. 46. The translation of living believers is a truth revealed only in the New Testament, while the Second Coming with its attendant events is a prominent doctrine of both Testaments. 47. The Rapture concerns only the saved, while the Second Coming deals with both saved and unsaved. 48. At the Rapture Satan is not bound, while at the Second Coming Satan is bound and cast into the abyss. 49. No unfulfilled prophecy stands between the church and the Rapture, while many signs must be fulfilled before the Second Coming. 50. No passage dealing with the resurrection of saints at the Second Coming ever mentions translation of living saints at the same time.”

Expanding on Dr. Walvoord’s list, we suggest another thirty evidential facts in favor of pretribulationism. Some of these facts were mentioned in Walvoord’s list and will be expanded here; others are new to our discussion.

1. Pretribulationism is based on a literal hermeneutic. “Pretribulation rapturism rests essentially on one major premise—the literal method of interpretation of the Scriptures” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 193). “The literal method of interpretation, consistently employed, can lead to no other conclusion than that the church will be raptured before the seventieth week” (ibid., p. 194).

2. Pretribulationism is held to by the most careful premillennial scholars. “It is rather significant that premillennarians who are specialists in the field of prophecy and who characteristically have labored over a period of years in this field are predominately pretribulationists... The logical alternatives which face a reverent scholar seem to be on the one hand the pretribulational and premillennial position resulting from a literal interpretation of prophecy or the amillennial and posttribulational position built upon a spiritualization or figurative interpretation of prophecy on the other hand. Those who attempt to establish a mediate position by borrowing arguments from both conflicting millennial positions are to that extent in an untenable compromise between two opposing principles of interpretation” (Walvoord, MK, p. 254).

3. Pretribulationism allows a harmony of the Scriptures relating to the Rapture and the Second Advent. “Pretribulationism is based on the fact that it allows a harmony of the Scriptures relating to the Second Advent. The separation of the translation from the return of Christ to earth permits each of the two events, so different in character, to have its own place” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 164). (See our discussion of the differences between the Rapture and the Second Coming in our section Identity of the Rapture above.)

4. Pretribulationism allows for the possibility of a good number of years before the Tribulation. “There is not a word in Scripture that says that Jesus cannot come and take away His Church, until Babylon is rebuilt. The Church may be taken out of the world 25 or even 50 years before that” (Larkin, DT, p. 143). “The Rapture... may very well precede the Tribulation by a good number of years” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 155). “The Rapture will come some time before the Tribulation starts. It may come just before or it may come ten, twenty, thirty years or more before the Tribulation starts” (ibid., p. 196). “...it may not necessarily occur just before the Tribulation. It might easily occur ten or twenty years before that time. As to the question of when the Rapture will occur, the answer is simple: no one knows” (ibid., p. 641).

5. The removal of the church is needed to unrestrain the Antichrist. “And Jehovah said, My spirit shall not strive with man for ever, for that he also is flesh: yet shall his days be a hundred and twenty years” (Gen. 6:3). “And I will ask the Father, and He will give you another Helper, that He may be with you forever” (John 14:16) “But I tell you the truth, it is to your advantage that I go away; for if I do not go away, the Helper shall not come to you; but if I go, I will send Him to you. And He, when He comes, will convict the world concerning sin, and righteousness, and judgment” (John 16:7-8) “If any man destroys the temple of God, God will destroy him, for the temple of God is holy, and that is what you are” (1 Cor. 3:17). “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way” (2 Thes. 2:3-7). “...the relation of the Holy Spirit to the mystery of lawlessness. In 2 Thessalonians 2, it is stated that one of the ministries of the Spirit of God is to restrain evil. He will do so until He leaves the earth in the Body of Christ. The man of sin, who is a most important factor in the Tribulation period, is not revealed until the Holy Spirit is ‘taken out of the way’ in the church (2 Thess. 2:1-12). Therefore, it follows that the Tribulation begins after the rapture of the church” (Feinberg, M, p. 160). “Another indication that the Rapture occurs before the Tribulation is that it best explains the sudden apostasy by the removal of the restrainer (2 Thess. 2:3-7). The ultimate lawlessness of Antichrist (empowered by Satan himself) cannot be restrained by anyone short of God Himself. Thus, the restrainer of all sin is the Holy Spirit of God (Gen. 6:3; John 16:7-8). It cannot be even Michael the archangel, for he could not in his power restrain the devil (Jude 9 [‘But Michael the archangel, when he disputed with the devil and argued about the body of Moses, did not dare pronounce against him a railing judgment, but said, ‘The Lord rebuke you.’”]). Nor can the restrainer be the Roman emperor (cf. Rom. 13:4), for Antichrist will himself be the world’s political leader. The only restraint for Antichrist is the Spirit of Christ, ultimate holiness overpowering the ultimately unholy” (Geisler, ST, 4:616). “Accordingly, it again makes sense to posit the Rapture at the beginning of the Tribulation. The Spirit is the indweller of all believers (John 14:16) and of the church (1 Cor. 3:17); when He and all believers are taken away, evil will naturally run rampant. The removal of salt and light will leave this world a very unsavory and dark place, one the lawless one will utilize to work against God” (ibid.). (See our discussion of the fact that a major purpose of the Rapture of the church is to unrestrain the Antichrist in our section The Purposes of the Rapture (for those left behind) above.)

6. The removal of the church results in the Tribulation. “A few tremble in the face of the social and industrial problems of the day; while the vast majority are confident that the sagacity of man is not only controlling iniquity, but is gradually developing an improved social order. Thus, man, in his vanity, assigns to himself that which is of God alone, for all the elements of corruption and tribulation are latent in the world to-day, and the mighty effort of God is required to stay its bursting into flame until the appointed time. Tribulation will, therefore, instantly begin when the hand of God is removed from the unregenerate and Satan-ruled humanity” (Chafer, S, C4:6/31).

7. The Tribulation concerns the Gentile nations and Israel, not the church. “There is a twofold purpose in the time of Great Tribulation: (1) to bring to conclusion ‘the times of the Gentiles’ (Luke 21:24); (2) to prepare for the restoration and the regathering of Israel in the millennial reign of Christ following the Second Advent. The purpose of the Tribulation, therefore, is not to purge the church; nor is it primarily a discipline of believers. Rather, it deals in broad terms with both Gentiles and Israel in anticipation of the collapse of Gentile power and the restoration of Israel as the nation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 41). “The purpose of the Tribulation is to purge and judge Israel and to punish and destroy Gentile power” (ibid., p. 68).

8. The Tribulation is the time of Jacob’s (Israel’s) trouble, not the time of the church’s trouble. “Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble; but he shall be saved out of it" (Jer. 30:7). "For the day is near, even the day of Jehovah is near; it shall be a day of clouds, a time of the nations" (Ezek. 30:3). "Give no offense either to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God" (1 Cor. 10:32) "The nature of the seventieth week of Daniel (9:24-27) would cause one to believe that the church will not be found in it. The Body of Christ was not found in the sixty-nine weeks, and it is highly improbable on that account that she will be found in the seventieth week. God does not have two mutually exclusive governing principles as law and grace operative in one period" (Feinberg, M, p. 160). "The nature and purpose of the Tribulation militate against the church's being found in it. That period is a time of judgment and chastisement for the ungodly world. God never punishes His own children with the world. The Tribulation period is expressly spoken of as the 'time of Jacob's trouble' and the 'time of the heathen (lit. Gentiles),' but it is never spoken of as the 'time of the church' (Jer. 30:7; Ezek. 30:3). Why have the two other divisions of the human race been designated in that connection and not the church, if there is not meant to be left the impression that the church is to be delivered from the time of trial" (ibid.)? "Once an interpreter keeps clear the distinctive terminology in the Scripture for Israel and the church, he is well on the way to a valid solution of the problems connected with the Tribulation period" (ibid., p. 169). "The church will be raptured before Daniel's last week, the Tribulation period, begins" (ibid., p. 288). "The church is not in Matthew 24 because the church is not in the Tribulation period described there (Matt. 24:21)" (ibid., p. 289). "Matthew 24... deals with Daniel's seventieth week, where the church is not found. One cannot treat the first sixty-nine weeks of Daniel 9 literally and the last week spiritually" (ibid., p. 292). "Since it had no part in the first sixty-nine weeks, which are related only to God's program for Israel, it can have no part in the seventieth week, which is again related to God's program for Israel after the mystery program for the church has been concluded" (Pentecost, TTC, p. 196). "It must be concluded... since every passage dealing with the tribulation relates it to God's program for Israel, that the scope of the tribulation prevents the church from participating in it" (ibid.).

9. The church is not destined for wrath, but for deliverance from the wrath to come. "Truly, truly, I say to you, he who hears My word, and believes Him who sent Me, has eternal life, and does not come into judgment, but has passed out of death into life" (John 5:24). "Much more then, having now been justified by His blood, we shall be saved from the wrath of God through Him" (Rom. 5:9) "and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, that is Jesus, who deliv- ers us from the wrath to come" (1 Thes. 1:10). "Now as to the times and the epochs, brethren, you have no need of anything to be written to you. For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, 'Peace and safety!' then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief; for you are all sons of light and sons of day. We are not of night nor of darkness; so then let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and sober. For those who sleep do their sleeping at night, and those who get drunk get drunk at night. But since we are of the day, let us be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and as a helmet, the hope of salvation. For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we are awake or asleep, we may live together with Him" (1 Thes. 5:1–10). "Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth" (Rev. 3:10). "and they said to the mountains and to the rocks, 'Fall on us and hide us from the presence of Him who sits on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of their wrath has come; and who is able to stand'" (Rev. 6:16–17)? "For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time" (Rev. 12:12). "And it was given to him [the beast, vs. 4] to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him" (Rev. 13:7). "And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God, who lives forever and ever" (Rev. 15:7). "The promise of Revelation 3:10 is supported by other promises to the Church: 'We shall be saved from wrath through him' (Rom. 5:9). 'And to wait from his Son from heaven,... which delivered us from the wrath to come' (1 Thess. 1:10). 'For God hath not appointed us to wrath' (1 Thess 5:9). There is also the great promise of our Lord Himself, 'He that heareth my word, and believeth him that sent me, hath eternal life, and cometh not into judgment, but hath passed out of death into life' (John 5:24, ASV); a passage which, according to Alford, expressly negatives the notion that the Church can be made subject to the judgments associated with the Millennial Kingdom" (McClain, GK, p. 465). "According to 1 Thessalonians 5:9, Christians are promised: 'God did not appoint us to suffer wrath, but to receive salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ.”... Revelation 6:17... ‘the great day of their wrath has come’... The only way one could be kept from that day of wrath would be to be delivered beforehand” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 65). “...the question as to why saints of the present age who are perfectly justified by faith, given a perfect position of sanctification, and declared to be in Christ, should have to suffer the ‘great day of his wrath’ in the Tribulation. While Christians can be disciplined and chastened, they cannot justly be exposed to the wrath of God” (ibid., p. 159). “First Thessalonians 1:9-10... ‘Jesus, who rescues us from the coming wrath’” (ibid., p. 66). “The Great Tribulation is a time of both divine wrath and satanic wrath” (ibid., p. 225). “It should be clear to any reader that saints in the Great Tribulation suffer severely as the objects of satanic wrath and that the world as a whole suffers severely because of divine wrath” (ibid., p. 226). “That the Great Tribulation is a time of divine wrath, however, is expressly stated in Scripture, and Gundry is wrong when he denies it. The sixth seal introduces, according to Revelation 6:16, ‘the wrath of the Lamb’ but the preceding seals record devastating divine judgments” (ibid., p. 227). “If pretribulationists are right that the Great Tribulation is a time of divine wrath, and 1 Thessalonians 5 promises that Christians will not enter the time of divine wrath, it is an express refutation of posttribulationism” (ibid., p. 231). “How any expositor taking the Book of Revelation with any seriousness can read from chapter 6 through chapter 16 and declare that this is not the wrath of God on a world that has rebelled against Him is hard to believe” (ibid., p. 264). “According to Revelation 15:7, all seven bowls are ‘filled with the wrath of God.’ How, then can the wrath of God begin in the sixth bowl” (ibid., p. 265)? “Jesus is not returning for the purpose of delivering the Church from Hell or the Lake of Fire, for this has already been done at the cross. Thus, the wrath that the Church is being delivered from is the wrath of the Great Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 151). “1 Thessalonians 5:1–10... In verse nine, Paul tells the Church in Thessalonica that they have not been appointed to wrath. The antecedent to the word wrath is to be found in verse two, which is the Day of the Lord, a term that always refers to the Tribulation. Thus, concerning the wrath of God, or the Day of the Lord, or the Tribulation, to that day the Church was not appointed” (ibid., p. 152). “Just after speaking of the Rapture (1 Thess. 4:16-17), Paul encourages the Thessalonians with these words: ‘God did not appoint us to suffer wrath but to receive salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ’ (5:9), and ‘to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead—Jesus, who rescues us from the coming wrath’ (1:10)” (Geisler, ST, 4:615). “Salvation (deliverance) from God’s wrath in 1 Thessalonians 5:9 means deliverance from the whole Tribulation period” (ibid., p. 616). (See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Rapture of the church is to deliver the church from God's wrath in our section The Purposes of the Rapture above.)

10. The church is counseled to pray that she might escape "these things" that will come upon all the earth-dwellers. "Be on guard, that your hearts may not be weighted down with dissipation and drunkenness and the worries of life, and that day come on you suddenly like a trap; for it will come upon all those who dwell on the face of all the earth. But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man" (Luke 21:34–37). "Luke 21:34-37... The means of escaping is to stand before the Son of Man, a standing that must happen at a place off the earth, for there is no escape on the earth" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 150).

11. The faithful church is to be kept from the global hour of testing, not through it. "As for the mystery of the seven stars which you saw in My right hand, and the seven golden lampstands: the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches" (Rev. 1:20). "Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth. I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown. He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name. He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches" (Rev. 3:10–13). "And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed" (Rev. 13:15). "and he said with a loud voice, 'Fear God, and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made the heaven and the earth and sea and springs of waters" (Rev. 14:7). "Strange to say, interpreters who in one breath explain Revelation 3:10 as teaching that the Church will pass unscathed through the Tribulation, in the next breath explain the persecutions and martyrdoms in the Revelation as suffered by the Church! Consistency would demand that they seek some other solution of the problem" [quoting "Dr. Henry C. Thiessen's article in Bibliotheca Sacra"] (Chafer, ST, 4:370). "The first fact of importance in a consideration of the Tribulation period is that the church will not be in that period. Several factors support that position. First, all believers have the promise of God through John that they will be kept from the hour of the trial (the definite article is in the original), pointing to a definite and specific time of trial that will come upon the world to try those that dwell (lit., are fully settled down, as the church is not because of its pilgrim nature) upon the earth (Rev. 3:10)” (Feinberg, M, p. 159). “The saints of the church will not be kept through the Tribulation, but removed from it. Only the 144,000 of Israel are sealed to be protected from the ultimate horrors of that time; even the two witnesses of Revelation 11 will be martyred once their ministry is accomplished” (ibid., p. 307). “These two purposes, the testing of earth dwellers, and the preparation of Israel for the King, have no relation to the church whatsoever. This is supporting evidence that the church will not be in the seventieth week” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 198). “...the specific promise of Revelation 3:10— ‘Because thou didst keep the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of trial, that hour which is to come upon the whole world [lit., “inhabited earth”], to try them that dwell upon the earth’ (ASV). While this promise was addressed initially to the ekklesia at Philadelphia (vs. 7), it is also intended for the whole Church as symbolized by ‘the seven churches’ (1:20), for the letter closes with a general call to ‘hear what the Spirit saith to the churches’ (3:13)” (McClain, GK, p. 464). “...the ‘hour of his [God’s] judgment,’ as the period of Revelation 6-19 is designated in 14:7... Of all the temporal judgments of the period, the worst will be the suffering involved in the test of decision between Christ and the antichrist; and this will fall exclusively upon the saved, not upon the unsaved (13:15)” (ibid., p. 465). “Rev. 3:10... As the translators have made clear, the thought of the Greek is to ‘keep from,’ not to ‘keep in.’ The promise was to be kept from ‘the hour’ of trial, not just the trials in the hour... Historically, it meant just that. The church at Philadelphia was not to enter the tribulation period” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 66). “The purpose of the promise is deliverance from ‘the hour of trial,’ a period of time, not simply preservation through the trials in that period” (ibid., p. 257). “The implication may be that they held tenaciously to this belief and expectancy in spite of all the ridicule, opposition, and persecution heaped on them by the unsaved world because of that belief (cp. 3:8)... One thing in favor of this view is Christ’s exclamation in 3:11, ‘Behold, I come quickly; hold that fast which thou hast’” (Showers, M, p. 210). “I know your deeds. Behold, I have put before you an open door which no one can shut, because you have a little power, and have kept My word, and have not denied My name. Behold, I will cause those of the synagogue of Satan, who say that they are Jews, and are not, but lie — behold, I will make them to come and bow down at your feet, and to know that I have loved you. Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth. I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown” (Rev. 3:8-11). “He promised to keep the Philadelphia church saints from the hour of testing that would determine, demonstrate, or expose the kind of people being tested” (Showers, M, p. 211). “If the Lord had meant that He would keep them from just the testing itself, He could have made that very clear by omitting the words ‘the hour’ and simply saying, ‘I will keep you from the testing’” (ibid.). “In the Greek text the next part of Christ’s statement, ‘which shall come upon all the world,’ modifies the word translated ‘hour’ rather than the word meaning ‘testing.’ This indicates that in His promise Christ emphasized the ‘hour’ or time period instead of the testing” (ibid.). “Christ based His promise on the fact that the church saints had already passed their test... Robert Cook [in W. Robert Cook, The Theology of John, p. 168] wrote, ‘Thus the period of testing for church saints is fulfilled (Rom. 5:1-5; James 1:2-4, 12; 1 Pet. 1:3-9; 4:12-13) and the hour of testing for the world is about to come’” (ibid., p. 212). “Therefore having been justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom also we have obtained our introduction by faith into this grace in which we stand; and we exult in hope of the glory of God. And not only this, but we also exult in our tribulations, knowing that tribulation brings about perseverance; and perseverance, proven character; and proven character, hope; and hope does not disappoint, because the love of God has been poured out within our hearts through the Holy Spirit who was given to us” (Rom. 5:1-5). “Consider it all joy, my brethren, when you encounter various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces endurance. And let endurance have its perfect result, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing” (James 1:2-4). “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His great mercy has caused us to be born again to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to obtain an inheritance which is imperishable and undefiled and will not fade away, reserved in heaven for you, who are protected by the power of God through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. In this you greatly rejoice, even though now for a little while, if necessary, you have been distressed by various trials, that the proof of your faith, being more precious than gold which is perishable, even though tested by fire, may be found to result in praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ; and though you have not seen Him, you love Him, and though you do not see Him now, but believe in Him, you greatly rejoice with joy inexpressible and full of glory, obtaining as the outcome of your faith the salvation of your souls” (1 Pet. 1:3–9). “Beloved, do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal among you, which comes upon you for your testing, as though some strange thing were happening to you; but to the degree that you share the sufferings of Christ, keep on rejoicing; so that also at the revelation of His glory, you may rejoice with exultation” (1 Pet. 4:12–13). “Christ immediately followed His Revelation 3:10 promise with the exclamation, ‘Behold, I come quickly’ (v. 11)” (Showers, M, p. 212). “I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown” (Rev. 3:11). “in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8). “...it will be through His any-moment coming that He will keep or separate the church saints from the entire period of testing” (Showers, M, p. 212). “Since, according to James 1:13, God does not tempt people to sin, we must conclude that the purpose of infinitive in Revelation 3:10 refers to God’s testing people, not to His tempting them to sin... to demonstrate or expose the kind of people they are” (ibid., p. 215). “The purpose of the future period of testing will be for God to test those dwelling on the earth to expose them as the kind of people who are so adamantly opposed to Him that they will never repent, no matter what is done to them. Through that exposure, God will demonstrate that these people deserve His eternal judgment” (ibid., p. 216). “Because the Philadelphia church saints had already passed their test, Christ promised to keep or separate them from the future period of testing that God had purposed for the testing of an altogether different kind of people—those who are so irreversibly ungodly that they will never repent, no matter what is done to them” (ibid., p. 217). “This verse does not say that the Church will be merely kept safe during the trial, but it will be kept from the very hour of the trial, that is, from the very time of it. This requires a removal before the Tribulation ever occurs” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 153). “Throughout the Tribulation, saints are being killed on a massive scale (Rev. 6:9-11; 11:7; 12:11; 13:7, 15; 14:13; 17:6; 18:24). If these saints are Church saints, they are not being kept safe and Revelation 3:10 is meaningless. Only if Church saints and tribulation saints are kept distinct does the promise of Revelation 3:10 make any sense” (ibid.). “John wrote to the faithful church of Philadelphia: ‘Since you have kept my command to endure patiently, I will also keep you from the hour of trial that is going to come upon the whole world to test those who live on the earth' (3:10)... God did not say He would keep the church through [Gk: dia] the Tribulation, as posttribulationists argue (see [George Eldon] Ladd, The Blessed Hope, p. 85-86), but from [Gk: ek] it. Also, notice the word keep [Gk: terein]—one can hardly be kept from something he is enduring... In addition, the word hour supports pretribulationism, since the only way to be kept from a section of time, such as an hour, is not to go through any of it" (Geisler, ST, 4:615).

12. The church is frequently and consistently told to look forward to Christ's coming for her, not to tribulation. "The many exhortations to constant expectation of the Lord's coming are inexplicable if a period of trial is next on God's program for the church. How can the church be looking for the blessed hope when she is looking for the Tribulation period? The conclusion is, therefore, that the church will not be found on earth during the Great Tribulation" (Feinberg, M, p. 161). "There is not a single rapture passage that warns of an impending Tribulation for the church" (ibid., p. 306). "It is a matter of fact, and it is a desolating argument, that the church is never used in any passage on the Tribulation" (ibid., p. 307). (See our discussion of the proper, Scriptural attitude of the Christian toward the Rapture in our section Attitudes Toward the Rapture below.)

13. The church belongs to the day, not to the night. "Now as to the times and the epochs, brethren, you have no need of anything to be written to you. For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, 'Peace and safety!' then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief; for you are all sons of light and sons of day. We are not of night nor of darkness; so then let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and sober. For those who sleep do their sleeping at night, and those who get drunk get drunk at night. But since we are of the day, let us be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and as a helmet, the hope of salvation. For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we are awake or asleep, we may live together with Him. Therefore encourage one another, and build up one another, just as you also are doing" (1 Thes. 5:1–11). "Paul stated that the day of the Lord will not overtake the Thessalonians as a thief. Why does an event coming as a thief come unexpectedly upon the world but with proper expectation for believers? Paul explained this in verses 4 and 5: 'But you, brothers, are not in darkness so that this day should surprise you like a thief. You are all sons of the light and sons of the day. We do not belong to the night or to the darkness.’ Here is a crucial point in Paul’s explanation: the thief is going to come in the night, but the believers are declared not to belong to the night or the darkness. The implication is quite clear that believers are in a different time reference; that is, they belong to the day that precedes the darkness” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 220). “The period of wrath will not overtake the church as a thief because the church will not be there” (ibid., p. 221).

14. Paul comforted the Thessalonians with the Rapture hope, a hollow hope if the Tribulation and martyrdom must come first. “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “In 1 Thessalonians 4, the Thessalonians are told to be comforted and encouraged by the fact that the Rapture could take place at any time and that if so, they could be reunited with their loved ones who had died. To offer this as a comfort to them, if as a matter of fact, they had to survive the Tribulation in order to enjoy the Rapture and in the process face rather certain martyrdom, makes the exhortation of 1 Thessalonians 4:18 a hollow one indeed, if the posttribulationists are right” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 208). “...the Tribulation... a period of great suffering and trial, in which probably most Christians will die... Instead of exhorting Christians to comfort, posttribulationists should be preparing Christians for martyrdom” (ibid., p. 209). “the Tribulation... it will be a time of unparalleled suffering for the world as a whole and for Christians, in particular... it would seem that posttribulationists have a major problem: how they can explain Paul’s comforting the Thessalonian church with the hope of the Rapture when, as a matter of fact, if they were to be plunged into Great Tribulation, most of them would be martyred” (ibid.).

15. Paul did not comfort the Thessalonians with the idea that their deceased loved ones had escaped the church’s coming Tribulation. “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words" (1 Thes. 4:13-18). "...the Thessalonian Christians. If they were actually facing the Great Tribulation, they should have rejoiced that those who died in Christ had escaped its rigors. In Revelation 14:13, those who die are declared blessed because they escape persecution. Hiebert [in D. Edmond Hiebert, The Thessalonian Epistles, p. 205] has summarized this point well in stating, 'But if they had been taught that the church must go through the great tribulation, the logical reaction for them would have been to rejoice that these loved ones had escaped that great period of suffering, which they felt was about to occur'" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 210). "And I heard a voice from heaven, saying, 'Write, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on!" 'Yes,' says the Spirit, 'that they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow with them'" (Rev. 14:13). "If these church saints had been taught that the church must go through all or any part of the broad Day of the Lord or Tribulation, with its intense outpouring of God's wrath, 'the logical reaction for them would have been to rejoice that these loved ones had escaped that great period of suffering' through death (cp. Job 3:11-26; Eccl. 4:1-2; 2 Cor. 5:8; Phil. 1:12)" [quoting D. Edmond Hiebert, The Thessalonian Epistles, p. 205] (Showers, M, p. 198). "The only means Paul used to relieve their distress over the deaths of their fellow saints was the truth of the future Rapture of the church. If these distressed saints had been taught that the church must go through all or any part of the Tribulation, why didn't Paul comfort them further with the additional fact that through their deaths, their fellow saints had escaped that future time of God's wrath" (ibid.)?

16. The Thessalonians feared that there might be a delay between their Rapture and the resurrection of their loved ones. "But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “Why did the Thessalonians fear a delay in the resurrection of their fellow believers? Pretribulationists have a simple explanation for this problem. The Thessalonians had been taught concerning the coming Tribulation and had understood that they would be raptured before this time of wrath overtook the world. What they feared was that at the translation of the church, they might not immediately see their loved ones who had died and that their resurrection would be delayed until after the Tribulation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 203).

17. Paul comforted the Thessalonians with the thought that no, they had not missed the Rapture, nor had the day of the Lord yet come. “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come” (2 Thes. 2:1–2). “Critical writers in investigating 2 Thess. 2:2 have shown that the word translated ‘is at hand’ (in the phrase ‘the day of Christ (or Lord) is at hand’) means, correctly rendered, ‘is come,’ or ‘has come,’ i.e. is something already present, and not something still future. This correctly explains the trouble and alarm of the Thessalonian brethren, who were certainly not afraid of ‘the blessed hope,’ which Paul says they waited for (1 Thess. 1:10), and for which they were prepared (1 Thess. 2:19 and 3:13, and 5:4, 5), but apprehending that ‘the day of Christ’ had already come, and they not having experienced the promised translation, and their pious dead being still with them without an experienced resurrection, they were troubled and distressed at the thought. Those brethren with hearts full of love for the Saviour were not so fearful that they would desire and pray (as multitudes now) that the blessed Lord should delay His Coming, but, in some way misapprehending the real state of affairs, they believed that the initiatory proceedings belonging to the day of Christ had already commenced, and that they and their pious dead were left without realizing the exceeding precious promises given to them” (Peters, TTK, 2:316). “With the present popular conceptions of the sudden grandeur, conspicuity, and universal publicity of the Coming of Christ, it would be utterly impossible to obtain currency for the idea that it was already present or accomplished. People now are looking for the world to come to an end—for an utter break-up of the whole system of nature—for a complete wreck of the universe. When we talk to them of the last day and the return of Christ, they begin to think of the burning up of all sublunary things, and of the complete extinction of human life, and even of the whole dwelling-plane of man and all created things. But if the early Christians had thought of this subject after this style, how is it possible that they could have believed the last day had come, when the world still stood and the stars remained in their places, and the whole course of nature was still going on as before” [quoting Proph. Times, vol. 5, p. 43] (ibid., p. 317)?

18. The Corinthians were encouraged to conduct themselves in view of the Rapture; they were not counseled to prepare for the Tribulation. “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality. But when this perishable will have put on the imperishable, and this mortal will have put on immortality, then will come about the saying that is written, ‘Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?’ The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law; but thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your toil is not in vain in the Lord” (1 Cor. 15:51-58). “Posttribulationists almost universally gloss over the most obvious fact of this exhortation, that is, that the Corinthians were in no wise warned that this event can occur only after the Great Tribulation. The implication of the passage is that the Rapture is an impending event and that there is nothing intervening. If the pretribulation Rapture is correct, it would be natural to present the doctrine of the Rapture in this way, without going into detail about what will happen to people who are not raptured. If, on the other hand, the prospect for the church is to go through the Great Tribulation and other events of the end-time, it would seem incumbent on Paul to state clearly that the hope of the Rapture necessarily must be deferred until preceding events are fulfilled” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 252). “It is a singular fact that in all the rapture passages clearly identified as such, there is no such warning. All the warnings about impending end-time events relate to the coming of Christ, which is clearly posttribulational” (ibid.).

19. The Rapture of the church is not found in any of the Tribulation passages. “The main problem with the Book of Revelation is that there is no clear mention of the rapture of the church from Revelation 4 through Revelation 18. Here again, the massive fact that a book presenting great detail concerning the events leading up to the second coming of Christ should omit completely any hope of the rapture of the church for the tribulation saints must be faced” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 260).

20. The church is not found on earth in any of the Tribulation passages. See Daniel 9:27, Matthew 24, Mark 13, Luke 21 and Revelation 6:1-19:21. “In recognizing the point in time when this seven-year period—so momentous in itself—will become history, it is necessary to observe again the unrelated character of the Church age, which as an intercalation is thrust between the death of Christ and the departure of the Church from the earth” (Chafer, ST, 4:339). “If the Church was in the 483 years, she may be expected to appear in the last 7; but inasmuch as she was not in the 483 years she could not be in the 7, and no Scripture ever relates the Church to the 7 years of tribulation. Only as students ignore the distinctive, unrelated character of the Church age and fail to comprehend the essential perfection of the Church in Christ, will they presume to assert that the Church even enters upon any moment of the great tribulation” (ibid., p. 340). “No New Testament Scripture necessitates the placing of the Church in that period, nor does any New Testament Scripture warn the church regarding the tribulation as though she were in danger of it” (ibid., p. 364). “...the church is not in view in the Revelation (except as seated in heaven viewing the events upon the earth, as has been shown above) from chapter 4 through 19” (Feinberg, M, p. 162). “... ‘church’ occurs nineteen times in chapters 1-3, and it must be added never again in the book... only as the wife of the Lamb (19:7; 21:9) and the bride (22:17)” (ibid., p. 301). “[The 24 elders of Revelation chapters 4 and 5]... ‘in all that follows, to the twentieth chapter, the church is never once referred to as on earth’” [quoting C.I. Scofield, Will the Church Pass Through the Great Tribulation? pp. 23-24] (Pentecost, TTC, p. 208). “It is a striking fact that ekklesia is never used in the main body of the book where the great eschatological events of the end are described (4:1-22:5). Furthermore, the Book of Revelation always employs ekklesia in connection with the churches on earth; never with any body of the saved in heaven” (McClain, GK, p. 446). “The term ekklesia occurs frequently in the first three chapters of Revelation but not at all thereafter, except once in the epilogue, where the divine Author turns from the area of prediction to speak a final word of comfort and admonition to the ‘churches’ to which the entire prophecy was addressed. From this usage it appears that in the Book of Revelation ekklesia is reserved always to designate churches existing on earth. And it therefore becomes significant that during the judgments of chapters 4-19 the term is never once applied to any body of saved persons on earth, although several such bodies appear (cf. 7:1-8; 7:14, ASV; 12:11, 17; 13:7; 14:1-5; 18:4). This omission would be strange if, during the period described, there were any ekklesiai remaining on the earth” (ibid., p. 463). “Of particular importance is the fact that ecclesia is never used of an assembly or body of saints except in reference to saints of the present age” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 23). “It is of utmost significance that every Scripture describing the participants in this future tribulation period refers to Israelites as Israelites, Gentiles as Gentiles, and the saints as saints without ever once using any of the distinctive terms that apply to believers in this present age” (ibid., p. 41). “In the Old Testament the tribulation passages refer to both Israel and the Gentiles and to the saved among either group but never to a corporate body of Jews and Gentiles combined as they are in the church” (ibid., p. 59). “How strange it would be in such a tremendous movement of events as will take place in the tribulation time if no mention of the church as such would appear if, as a matter of fact, the church is actually in the period and enduring its trials” (ibid., p. 62)! “The word ecclesia (church) is never used in a tribulation passage” (ibid., p. 161). “...the significant fact that, while local churches are mentioned in chapters 2 and 3, there is no mention of any local church anywhere in Revelation 4-18” (ibid., p. 261). “The description of the saved as saints of both Jewish and Gentile backgrounds is quite in contrast to the reference to them as combined in one body, the church, in most of the New Testament” (ibid.). “Twenty-four verses in the Book of the Revelation refer to the church... there are no references to the church on the earth in chapters 4 through 18, the chapters relating specifically to the 70th week of Daniel 9, including the seals, trumpets, and bowls” (Showers, M, p. 245). “Twenty-two verses in the Book of the Revelation refer to Israel” (ibid.). “More than 72% of the references to Israel in the Book of the Revelation refer to it on the earth during the 70th week. By contrast, none of the references to the church in Revelation refer to it on the earth during the 70th week” (ibid., p. 246). “One of the problems that Posttribulationists face is that the term ‘church’ is not actually found in any Tribulation context, including the Book of Revelation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 296). “Ladd... he has no Scripture which puts the Church in the Tribulation, nor does he have an example where a Tribulation prophecy addressed to Israel is applied to the Church” (ibid., p. 297). “No passage on the Tribulation ever mentions the Church, though it does mention Israel and the Gentile nations” (ibid.). “In no biblical passage which discusses the Tribulation is the Church mentioned” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 149). “Revelation... in chapters 6-18, which deal with the Tribulation period itself, the Church is not even mentioned once. This is most unusual in light of the prominence of the Church in the chapters dealing with events prior to and after the Tribulation” (ibid., p. 150). “The word church(es) is used nineteen times in the first three chapters [of Revelation], and then not once during the entire Tribulation (6-18). That it reoccurs after the Second Coming (19) and during the new heaven and new earth (22:16) is striking; similar exhortations earlier that had the phrase ‘unto the churches’ (e.g. 2:7, 11 KJV) do not have them during the Tribulation, when, instead, John warns, ‘If anyone has an ear, let him hear’ (13:9)” (Geisler, ST, 4:612). “If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:9–10). “Nowhere during the entire Tribulation period is there a word about the church being on earth” (Geisler, ST, 4:612).

21. The church does not appear within any of Daniel’s seventy weeks. “Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy” (Dan. 9:24). “The church did not exist during any part of the first 69 weeks or 483 years of the 70 weeks... the church did not begin historically until nearly two months after the end of the first 69 weeks of the 70-weeks prophecy” (Showers, M, p. 241). “God does not intend the church to be present on the earth for any part of the 70 weeks or 490 years He has determined specifically for Israel and Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 243). “If God intended to mix any part of His 70-weeks program for Israel and Jerusalem with His program for the church, why didn’t He start the church during the first 69 weeks of the 70-weeks program” (ibid.)? “God will remove the church from the earth before the 70th week begins with the resumption of His 70-weeks program for Israel and Jerusalem” (ibid.). “All other views of the Rapture have the church going through at least part of the 70th week, meaning that all other views mix God’s 70-weeks program for Israel and Jerusalem together with His program for the church” (ibid.). (See our discussion of Daniel’s seventy weeks in the section The Times of the Gentiles of our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom.)

22. The church does not appear in Matthew chapters twenty-four or twenty-five. “Therefore when you see the ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the house-top not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:14–21). “A careful study of Matthew 24-25 will reveal that the subject matter is the end of the age, and the age in view is the same as that of Matthew 13, namely, the whole period between the first and second advents of Christ” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 184). “The questions the disciples raised did not relate to the Rapture but rather to the specific signs leading up to the second coming of Christ. At this point in their spiritual education the disciples would not have understood the subject of the Rapture any more than they understood the subject of the death and resurrection of Christ” (ibid., p. 186).

23. The church is not part of the “Day of the Lord.” “For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night” (1 Thes. 5:2). “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way” (2 Thes. 2:1–7). “The day of the Lord’ and similar terms, as used of end-time events, refer to the Tribulation period (1 Thess. 5:2; 2 Thess. 2:2) and on through the Millennium (2 Peter 3:10-13). Never once is the Rapture part of this day” (Geisler, ST, 4:622). “Day of the Lord’ occurs about twenty times in the Old Testament, often of end-time events. A parallel term, ‘the last days,’ has fourteen occurrences, always of the end times. ‘In that day’ is used over a hundred times, generally of the same events. Isaiah uses all three of the same event (Isa. 1:2, 11-12), but never once does the Old Testament refer to the Rapture: ‘This omission from over one hundred passages seems hard to understand if the rapture is the first event of the Day of the Lord” [quoting Charles C. Ryrie, What You Should Know About the Rapture, p. 103] (ibid.).

24. The descriptions of the Tribulation saints are not descriptions of the church. “It is essential to realize that ‘never are tribulation saints referred to as a church, or as the body of Christ, or as indwelt by Christ, or as subject to translation, or as the bride’” [quoting J. F. Walvoord, The Rapture Question, p. 8] (Feinberg, M, p. 169). “...where is a... Scripture that places the Jewish remnant of the Tribulation period in the church” (ibid., p. 174)?

25. The twenty-four elders are seen in heaven just prior to and during the Tribulation. “And around the throne were twenty-four thrones; and upon the thrones I saw twenty-four elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and golden crowns on their heads” (Rev. 4:4). “the twenty-four elders will fall down before Him who sits on the throne, and will worship Him who lives forever and ever, and will cast their crowns before the throne, saying” (Rev. 4:10) “Those who contend that the Church passes into or through the great tribulation have difficulty identifying the twenty-four elders” (Chafer, ST, 4:395). “The position and constituency of the twenty-four elders favor our position. Many commentators hold that those elders represent the whole body of the redeemed in heaven, the church of Christ. There is proof for that view. (1) The white raiment is the righteousness of the saints only (Rev. 19:7-8). (2) Crowns are nowhere promised in Scripture as rewards for any but those who are in the church (1 Cor. 9:25; Phil. 4:1; 1 Thess. 2:19; 2 Tim. 4:8; Jas. 1:12; 1 Pet. 5:4; Rev. 2:10). (3) Their song is one of redemption for they have been redeemed by the blood of the Lamb from every kindred, tongue, people, and nation. (4) When the multitude that has been saved out of the Tribulation gives thanks to God, the elders and the angels are seen about the throne and give separate thanks and praise. (5) When the 144,000 stand on Mount Zion (Rev. 14:1-5), they are apart from the elders and sing their song before the four living ones and the elders. (6) When the elders give thanks in chapter 11 at the sounding of the seventh trumpet, they do not mention their personal participation in the future rewards of those saints and prophets, probably because they have already received theirs. (7) The word ‘church’ does not occur after the third chapter, and the Bride of Christ is not seen on earth until the reign in chapter 20, when she coreigns with her Lord. Throughout the time of earth’s judgments the group representing the church is seen in heaven as spectators, who are consciously worshipping their Creator and Redeemer” (Feinberg, M, p. 160). “What is said of the twenty-four elders could not be true of angelic beings, for angels are not crowned with victors crowns (stephanos) received as rewards, nor are they seated on thrones (thronos), which throne speaks of royal dignity and prerogative, nor are angels robed in white as a result of judgment” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 208). “Twenty-four is the number of the choruses into which the Levitical priesthood was divided (1 Chron. 24:1-19), and of all the groups of the redeemed only the church is a priesthood (1 Pet. 2:5-9; Rev. 1:6)” [quoting C.I. Scofield, Will the Church Pass Through the Great Tribulation? pp. 23-24] (ibid.). “Eldership is a representative office (Acts 15:2; 20:17)” [quoting C.I. Scofield, Will the Church Pass Through the Great Tribulation? pp. 23-24] (ibid.). “The number of these elders is not without its significance. Scott [in Walter Scott, Exposition of the Revelation, p. 122] comments: ‘But why “twenty-four”? The significance of the numeral must be sought for in the first book of Chronicles 24, 25. David divided the priesthood into twenty-four orders or courses, each course serving in turn (Luke 1:5, 8, 9). The respective elders or chiefs of these courses would represent the whole of the Levitical priesthood. There would thus be twenty-four chief priests and one high priest” (ibid., p. 252). “The ‘four and twenty elders’ in Rev. 4 and 5... ‘four and twenty elders,’ sitting in a circle immediately surrounding the central throne, and who display at least four marks of identification... First, they sit upon ‘thrones’ (4:4, ASV)... they cannot represent angels, for the latter appear in Scripture always as servants, and never as judges. Second, the ‘four and twenty elders’ are clothed in ‘white raiment’ (vs. 4). Such raiment doubtless speaks of both regal splendor and moral character, a fitting symbol of the unimaginable glory for which the redeemed are even now being prepared. Third, these elders wear on their heads ‘crowns of gold’ (vs. 4). Both the crown and its costly substance represent the regal or reigning function at its highest level. While the ideas suggested by ‘thrones’ and ‘crowns’ respectively are not ordinarily wholly separable, yet in Scripture the ‘crown’ seems to have the meaning of executive function, whereas the ‘throne’ is reserved as a symbol of that aspect of rulership which appears in its judicial activity. Of the latter there is an excellent example in the promise of our Lord that His disciples are to ‘sit on thrones judging’ (Luke 22:30, italics added). Fourth, the twenty-four elders sing a ‘new song’ (5:9-10)” (McClain, GK, p. 469). “In summarizing the four marks of identification outlined above—the thrones, the white raiment, the golden crowns, and the redemption song—it may be said that among all the saved there is only one body in the universe of which all these things are true. Others may be redeemed, walk in white, even reign with Christ, but only the Church which is the body and bride of Christ will enjoy these special privileges and also sit with Him in judgment of the world (1 Cor. 6:1-3; Rev. 3:21)” (ibid., p. 470). “The number 24 is never used as a symbol in the Apocalypse apart from these ‘elders,’ suggesting the absolute uniqueness of the Church for which they stand” (ibid., p. 471). “It is an impressive fact that, in the long and bewildering history of attempts to interpret the symbols of the Apocalypse, there is hardly any instance of greater unanimity than with reference to that of the twenty-four elders” (ibid.). “...the twenty-four elders... represent the true Church... This interpretation, if adopted by premillennialists who believe the Book of Revelation presents an intelligible program, shuts out of court any eschatological scheme which would leave the Church on earth during any part of the terrible judgments of the end-time described in chapters 6-19” (ibid.). “If the twenty-four elders of Revelation 4:4 are interpreted as referring to the church—a disputed point—it would tend to confirm that judgment of the church has already taken place, as they are already crowned” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 84). “One of the reasons the twenty-four elders are considered to be men redeemed and rewarded is that they are pictured as having golden crowns and clothed in white clothing (Rev. 4:4). This would imply that they have already been judged and rewarded, as would be the case if there had been a pretribulational Rapture and a judgment seat of Christ following in heaven” (ibid., p. 259). “...these 24 elders... First, these elders are clothed with white garments, which throughout the Revelation are symbols of salvation... The second clue is the fact that they are wearing crowns. These crowns are not diadem crowns worn by those who are royal by nature, which would have been the case had these been celestial beings. These crowns are the stephanos crowns, the crowns of an overcomer, the type of crown given as rewards to the members of the Church at the Judgment Seat of Messiah. A third clue lies in their very title of elders. Nowhere else in Scripture is the term used to describe celestial or angelic beings. This term is used of humans in positions of authority either in the synagogue or church” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 164). “The figure 24 is probably taken from 1 Chronicles 24, where David divided the Tribe of Levi into 24 courses to represent the whole. Since the Church is a kingdom of priests, these 24 elders represent the Church as a whole. This actually provides a fourth clue to the fact that the 24 elders represent the Church and not angels” (ibid.). “Hence, from these four clues, the 24 elders must represent the Church saints. If this is true, then they provide further evidence for a pretribulational Rapture. The Church is already in Heaven in chapters four and five before the Tribulation begins in chapter six” (ibid.).

26. The “tabernacle” of God is seen in heaven during the Tribulation. “Do you not know that you are a temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? If any man destroys the temple of God, God will destroy him, for the temple of God is holy, and that is what you are” (1 Cor. 3:16–17). “Or what agreement has the temple of God with idols? For we are the temple of the living God; just as God said, ‘I WILL DWELL IN THEM AND WALK AMONG THEM; AND I WILL BE THEIR GOD, AND THEY SHALL BE MY PEOPLE’” (2 Cor. 6:16). “So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are fellow citizens with the saints, and are of God’s household, having been built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus Himself being the corner stone, in whom the whole building, being fitted together is growing into a holy temple in the Lord” (Eph. 2:19–21) “He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name” (Rev. 3:12). “And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven” (Rev. 13:6). “The ‘tabernacle’ of God in Rev. 13:6... a body of personal beings who will be dwelling in heaven at this time during the career of the beast... ‘his tabernacle, even them that dwell in the heaven’” (McClain, GK, p. 467) “Herein is one of the unique glories of the Church: to be the corporate dwelling-place of God through the Spirit, beginning with the day of Pentecost and extending out into future ages without end. In the visions of the Apocalypse, then, the Church of the present age appears in its corporate capacity as the habitation (skene) of God already in heaven at the very time the antichrist reaches the height of his power on earth. And this point in time, the reader should recall, will arrive at exactly the middle of the entire period of seven years covered by the judgments of chapters 6-19, i.e., at the beginning of the beast’s total power extending forty-two months (13:5). This body of the saved in heaven, referred to as the ‘tabernacle’ of God, must not be confused with ‘the great multitude’ of Rev. 7:9-17; for, according to the divine identification, the latter are those who are seen coming (Grk. present tense) up out of ‘the great tribulation’ of those terrible days (vs. 14, ASV), whereas the Church is to be kept out of that ‘hour of trial’ (Rev. 3:10, ASV). Moreover, though both groups are redeemed through grace by the same Lord, the descriptions of their respective destinies are clearly different, as may be seen by comparing the account in Rev. 7:14-17 with New Testament predictions of the Church’s regal future” (ibid.).

27. Time is needed for the judgment seat of Christ and the giving of rewards, the Marriage and the Marriage supper. “Let us rejoice and be exceeding glad, and let us give the glory unto him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready. And it was given unto her that she should array herself in fine linen, bright and pure: for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he saith unto me, Write, Blessed are they that are bidden to the marriage supper of the Lamb. And he saith unto me, These are true words of God” (Rev. 19:7-9). “Those who teach that the Church goes through the tribulation agree that the Church must be translated thus; but to save a theory they declare that the Church is raptured to meet the Lord and then returns immediately with Him to the earth. But before she returns, as will yet be indicated, she must pass through the judgment of her rewards, be married to the Lamb, and participate in the marriage supper (Rev 19:1-10). The post-tribulation rapture theory is forced to omit these great events or to contend that they are accomplished instantaneously” (Chafer, ST, 4:373). “Distinction is called for at this point between the marriage supper which is in heaven and celebrated before Christ returns, and the marriage feast (Matt. 25:10, R.V.; Luke 12:37) which is on the earth after his return” (ibid., p. 396). “And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut” (Matt. 25:10). “Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them” (Luke 12:37). “If the church is not taken up into heaven before the Tribulation, there is no time before the visible coming of the Lord in glory for inserting the rewarding of the faithful service of the saints and the marriage supper of the Lamb. Surely those events require just such an interval as the period between the rapture and the revelation, and they take place in heaven” (Feinberg, M, p. 161). “The Scripture is very specific that it is first in [Rev.] 19:7-10 (the marriage supper of the Lamb), then 19:11-19 (the coming of the Lord Jesus in glory)” (ibid., p. 301).

28. The Lamb's bride is seen in heaven with Christ before He returns. “After these things I heard, as it were, a loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, ‘Hallelujah! Salvation and glory and power belong to our God; because His judgments are true and righteous; for He has judged the great harlot who was corrupting the earth with her immorality, and He has avenged the blood of His bond-servants on her.’ And a second time they said, ‘Hallelujah! Her smoke rises up forever and ever.’ And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God who sits on the throne saying, 'Amen. Hallelujah!' And a voice came from the throne, saying, 'Give praise to our God, all you His bond-servants, you who fear Him, the small and the great.' And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, 'Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.' And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, 'Write, "Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb."' And he said to me, 'These are true words of God.' And I fell at his feet to worship him. And he said to me, 'Do not do that; I am a fellow servant of yours and your brethren who hold the testimony of Jesus; worship God. For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.' And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, 'KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.' And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried out with a loud voice, saying to all the birds which fly in midheaven, 'Come, assemble for the great supper of God; in order that you may eat the flesh of kings and the flesh of commanders and the flesh of mighty men and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them and the flesh of all men, both free men and slaves, and small and great.' And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, assembled to make war against Him who sat upon the horse, and against His army. And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone. And the rest were killed with the sword which came from the mouth of Him who sat upon the horse, and all the birds were filled with their flesh" (Rev. 19:1-21). "The 'wife' of the Lamb in Rev. 19:1-9... In the order of events, therefore, John puts the Church in heaven before the glorious coming of Christ (19:11-16), and before the final and most terrible of the entire series of judgments preparatory to His establishment of the Kingdom on earth (19:17-21)" (McClain, GK, p. 466).

29. At His return, Jesus is seen as the bridegroom (already married). "And Jesus answered and spoke to them again in parables, saying, "The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king, who gave a wedding feast for his son. And he sent out his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding feast, and they were unwilling to come. Again he sent out other slaves saying, "Tell those who have been invited, 'Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and my fattened livestock are all butchered and everything is ready; come to the wedding feast'" But they paid no attention and went their way, one to his own farm, another to his business, and the rest seized his slaves and mistreated them and killed them. But the king was enraged and sent his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and set their city on fire. Then he said to his slaves, "The wedding is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy. Go therefore to the main highways, and as many as you find there, invite to the wedding feast." And those slaves went out into the streets, and gathered together all they found, both evil and good; and the wedding hall was filled with dinner guests. But when the king came in to look over the dinner guests, he saw there a man not dressed in wedding clothes, and he said to him, "Friend, how did you come in here without wedding clothes?" And he was speechless. Then the king said to the servants, "Bind him hand and foot, and cast him into the outer darkness; in that place there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." For many are called, but few are chosen" (Matt. 22:1-14). "Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, "Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him." Then all those virgins rose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the prudent, "Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out." But the prudent answered, saying, "No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves." And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. And later the other virgins also came, saying, "Lord, lord, open up for us." But he answered and said, "Truly

I say to you, I do not know you.” Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour” (Matt. 25:1-13). “Be dressed in readiness, and keep your lamps alight. And be like men who are waiting for their master when he returns from the wedding feast, so that they may immediately open the door to him when he comes and knocks. Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them. Whether he comes in the second watch, or even in the third, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves. And be sure of this, that if the head of the house had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would not have allowed his house to be broken into. You too, be ready; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour that you do not expect” (Luke 12:35-41). “It is significant that Jesus does not take the bridegroom and his friends as they proceed to the wedding, but in coming from the wedding, which is fully enforced by Luke 12:35-38, ‘Let your loins be girded about and your light burning; and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when He shall return from the wedding...’ This then, while the main idea of watchfulness is of general application (as the context and analogy of Scripture show), is specially designed for a class of persons who await the Lord’s return from the wedding” (Peters, TTK, 3:301). “Lange’s Com. loci says: ‘It was the custom among the Jews and Greeks that the bridegroom accompanied by his friends, went to the house of the bride to lead her to his own house, and was joined by the virgins, the friends of the bride, not on his going to fetch the bride, but on his returning with her to his own house.’ (Comp. De Wette, Meyer, Lightfoot, Wetstein, etc.)” (ibid.). “In many passages, such as Matthew 25:1-13; 22:1-14; and Luke 12:35-41, the King is seen in the role of Bridegroom at His coming, indicating that the marriage has taken place” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 206).

30. Historically, God has delivered His people from tribulation. “...the deliverance of Lot from Sodom... Noah and his family, delivered from the Flood by the ark... Rahab at Jericho was also delivered from the doomed city. While illustrations cannot properly be taken as proof, they confirm the idea that God characteristically delivers believers from wrath designed for judgment upon the unbelievers. If God delivers the church before the time of tribulation, it will be in keeping with the general principle” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 67).

Unknown and Imminent

The timing of the Rapture is unknown and imminent. “And what I say to you I say to all, “Be on the alert”” (Mark 13:37)! “But when these things begin to take place, straighten up and lift up your heads, because your redemption is drawing near” (Luke 21:28). “But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man” (Luke 21:36). “In My Father’s house are many dwelling places; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also” (John 14:2-3, NASB). “In my Father’s house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I come again, and will receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also” (John 14:2-3, ASV). “The present tense “I come” is used rather than the future, for the Return is regarded not as a distant event, but as one ever imminent and at hand” [quoting Henry Barclay Swete, The Last Discourse and Prayer of Our Lord, p. 8] (Showers, M, p. 156). “Peter, turning around, saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following them; the one who also had leaned back on His breast at the supper, and said, ‘Lord, who is the one who betrays You?’ Peter therefore seeing him said to Jesus, ‘Lord, and what about this man?’ Jesus said to him, ‘If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you? You follow Me!’ This saying therefore went out among the brethren that that disciple would not die; yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but only, ‘If I want him to remain until I come, what is that to you’” (John 21:20–23)? “And this do, knowing the time, that it is already the hour for you to awaken from sleep; for now salvation is nearer to us than when we believed. The night is almost gone, and the day is at hand. Let us therefore lay aside the deeds of darkness and put on the armor of light” (Rom. 13:11–12). “so that you are not lacking in any gift, awaiting eagerly the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Cor. 1:7) “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed” (1 Cor. 15:51–52). “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:13–17). “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:13) “Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious produce of the soil, being patient about it, until it gets the early and late rains. You too be patient; strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand. Do not complain, brethren, against one another, that you yourselves may not be judged; behold, the Judge is standing right at the door” (James 5:7–9). “Remember therefore what you have received and heard; and keep it, and repent. If therefore you will not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you” (Rev. 3:3). “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus” (Rev. 22:20). “We have assurances given to us not to interpose any event whatever between us and such an Advent, but to regard it as an event that may occur at any moment without any notification of its approach (excepting only such as are given by approximative signs)” (Peters, TTK, 2:319) “If any one asks, why is it not then more prominently set forth also in connection with such chronological dates, the answer is plain—such a method would defeat the posture of constant watching enjoined, and would, in a great measure, relieve it of a characteristic purposely designed, viz. that it shall come as ‘a snare.’ A sufficiency is given to instruct us, if we will only compare Scripture: if the exact time of this first secret Coming were given, it would invalidate the express declarations that no one shall be cognizant of it. Hence it is, that this Coming—this Advent embracing from its first stage to the last a distinctive interval of time—is represented as one that may happen at any time; one that we are to watch for constantly; one that we are to look for without placing anything intervening (to be yet fulfilled) between it and the present, seeing that the stage or manifestation (to saints) at its beginning is never included in dates, but always enshrouded in mystery; always represented as coming unknown to all men and to the angels. From this it follows, not knowing the length of this interval, and not having definite events (for those are embraced in this interval) to guide us into a recognition of the time when the Advent really begins, that such a Coming and its resultant (the Kingdom) may be near, so near that we dare not positively assert that it shall be delayed a single day, week, year, etc.” (ibid., 3:97) “the termination of the present dispensation... if we but reflect, that the first stage of the Advent precedes this termination by an interval of time unknown to us, it may therefore occur at any day for aught we know” (ibid., p. 133). “The student of prophecy is not to be a ‘date- setter,' but he is to watch. 'Signs' are for the Jew. There is nothing to prevent Christ coming for His Church at any time" (Larkin, DT, p. 10). "Uncertainty then as to the 'time' of the Lord's return is necessary to promote the 'watchful' spirit" (ibid., p. 15). "...7 years, the Rapture might occur 5, 10 or even 25 years before that, so as to give time for the rebuilding of Babylon and other events that are to occur before the Tribulation Period can begin, otherwise the Rapture would not be a surprise. It is not for the Christian to look for 'Times' and 'Seasons' and 'Signs.' To do so will put him in the class of those who say: 'My Lord delayeth His Coming' (Luke 12:42-48), and he will become preoccupied with other things and neglect to be watchful. Let us live as if we expected the Return of our Lord at any moment" (ibid., p. 17). "In the two passages quoted above [1 Cor. 15:51-52 and 1 Thess. 4:13-17] Paul, by the use of the pronoun 'we,' has five times included himself as possibly to be among the living ones at the time of the Lord's call for His bride. This precludes a doubt as to the belief of the great Apostle in the imminent, personal, premillennial return of Christ. This hope was evidently his greatest motive for true character and service. So it has been to the great missionaries and soul-winners since his day" (Chafer, KHP, 77%). "Very much must yet be fulfilled, according to Scripture, before the events connected with the visible return of Christ to the earth are to occur (2 Thess. 2:1-10). In contradistinction, however, no prophecy remains unfulfilled which in its order precedes the coming into the air to call for His own (1 Thess. 4:13-18), other than that the outgathered bride shall have made herself ready; and, therefore, that coming to call His own is the next event in the prophetic program" (ibid., 76%). "The coming of Christ to receive His Bride has never been made to await some total world-wide evangelization" (Chafer, ST, 5:123). "...the keystone of pretribulationism—the doctrine of imminence" (Feinberg, M, p. 169) "There will be no warning before the rapture, differing with posttribulationists who postulate a preparation signal of seven years" (ibid., p. 305). "The central feature of pretribulationism, the doctrine of imminency, is, however, a prominent feature of the doctrine of the early church. Without facing all the problems that the doctrine of imminency raises, such as its relation to the Tribulation, the early church lived in constant expectation of the coming of the Lord for His church" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 51). "Generally speaking, the early church fathers, as well as the Protestant Reformers, tended to identify contemporary events with the events of the Great Tribulation and because of this could look for the imminent return of Christ" (ibid.). "The Didache (A.D. 120) contains the exhortation, 'Watch for your life's sake. Let not your lamps be quenched, nor your loins unloosed; but be ye ready, for ye know not the hour in which our Lord cometh.’ It would seem from this quotation that the coming of the Lord is considered as possible in any hour, indicating belief in the imminency of the Lord’s return” (ibid., p. 52). “The general impression one receives from reading the early church fathers is that they followed a posttribulational interpretation similar to the false teachers whom Paul rebuked in 2 Thessalonians 2, who had taught the Thessalonians that they were already in the day of the Lord” (ibid.). “It is rather the case that the viewpoint of the early church was not detailed and mature” (ibid.). “The charge that the doctrine of imminency is a new and novel doctrine is false, but the charge that pretribulationism has been developed and defined to a large extent in recent centuries is true” (ibid., p. 53). “The history of the doctrine of the church has always to this hour revealed progress in other areas, and it is to be expected that this will continue also in eschatology” (ibid., p. 54). “The facts are that both Calvin and Luther, as well as other prominent Reformers, tended to identify the events of the Great Tribulation with their own contemporary history; and accordingly the concept of imminency became more prominent, even though the Reformers were amillennial and posttribulational” (ibid.). “Through much of the history of the church, the apparent conflict between the concept of imminency and the necessity of intermediate events before the Second Advent continue to be a problem, with no complete solution until pretribulationism—placing the Rapture before end-time events—was advanced” (ibid.). “...the Protestant Reformers, such as John Calvin and Martin Luther, who found in contemporary events of their day the fulfillment of the Great Tribulation and could, therefore, hold to an imminent return of Christ” (ibid., p. 69). “For the most part, scriptural evidence for imminency today is equivalent to proof of the pretribulation viewpoint” (ibid., p. 73). “In 1 Corinthians 1:7, Paul exhorted the Corinthians to ‘eagerly wait for our Lord Jesus Christ to be revealed,’ which is another mention of the coming of the Lord when He will be revealed in His glory to the church. In Titus 2:13 our future hope is described: ‘While we wait for the blessed hope—the glorious appearing of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ.’ While the appearing of the glory of Christ to the world and to Israel will not be fulfilled until the Second Coming to establish the kingdom on earth, the church will see the glory of Christ when she meets Him in the air. This is the express teaching of 1 John 3:2: ‘But we know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is’” (ibid., p. 74). “The teaching of the coming of the Lord for the church is always presented as an imminent event that should occupy the Christian’s thought and life to a large extent” (ibid., p. 75). “Especially those committed to amillenarianism reject the prophetic outlook of the early church, which was both premillennial and anticipating the imminent return of Christ” (ibid., p. 137). “The early church fathers were posttribulational largely because they held to the doctrine of imminency” (ibid.) “How the coming of the Lord could be a daily expectation as is indicated by the early Fathers and at the same time have a lengthy series of events preceding the Second Advent was apparently not resolved in the early church” (ibid., p. 156). “In light of what has been seen, it is the conviction of this author that the doctrine of the imminent return of Christ is truly biblical and should be believed by all Christians” (Showers, M, p. 147). “All the other Rapture views teach that at least part of the 70th week must transpire before Christ can come to rapture the church. Those views therefore destroy the New Testament teaching of the imminent coming of Christ” (ibid., p. 255). “The Rapture of the Church has no preconditions and can come at any moment” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 781). “John 21:20-23... Romans 13:11-12... James 5:7-9... Revelation 22:20... these last four passages teach that the Rapture is imminent; He could come at any moment. Only if the Rapture comes before the Tribulation can this be true. In Midtribulationism, the Rapture is always at least 3 1/2 years away. In posttribulationism it is at least seven years away. It is never imminent” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 153). “...the Rapture is a signless and imminent event. It may happen at any moment, and nothing needs to be fulfilled before it occurs, as numerous passages attest” (Geisler, ST, 4:616). “The concepts of eagerly awaiting, coming quickly, and being near all encourage belief in Christ’s imminent return. As imminent, it will be signless, and as signless, it will have to be pretribulational, since once the Tribulation begins the end of the seven years could be predicted accurately” (ibid.).

Duration of the Rapture

The duration of the Rapture, i.e., just how much time will elapse during the rapture process, including the Lord’s descending from heaven, the dead in Christ rising first, then the living being caught up together with them in the clouds and meeting the Lord in the air, Scripture does not specify. However, Scripture does specify that the bodily “change” from perishable to imperishable, from mortal to immortal, will be instantaneous, “in the twinkling of an eye.” “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality. But when this perishable will have put on the imperishable, and this mortal will have put on immortality, then will come about the saying that is written, ‘DEATH IS SWALLOWED UP in victory’” (1 Cor. 15:51–54). “For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord” (1 Thes. 4:16–17). “the first resurrection takes only ‘the twinkling of an eye’ (1 Cor. 15:52)” (Geisler, ST, 4:273).

Attitudes Toward the Rapture

As we have just seen, the Rapture of the church is an imminent event; one that could actually occur at any moment. However, as prophesied, the twenty-first century professing church is largely profoundly asleep concerning her imminent “catching up.” It is therefore a major purpose of this book to encourage those apparently few believers in the church “with ears to hear” to wakefulness and expectancy concerning our Lord’s promised return for us.

The Proper Attitude of the Christian Toward the Rapture

Scripture, as exemplified in the forty passages quoted in this paragraph, is exceptionally plain and clear regarding the proper attitude of the Christian toward the Rapture of the church. “And what I say to you I say to all, “Be on the alert”” (Mark 13:37)! “Be on guard, that your hearts may not be weighted down with dissipation and drunkenness and the worries of life, and that day come on you suddenly like a trap; for it will come upon all those who dwell on the face of all the earth. But keep on the alert at all times, praying in order that you may have strength to escape all these things that are about to take place, and to stand before the Son of Man” (Luke 21:34-36). “There is the supplication to watch (Luke 21:34-36) for the purpose of escaping the Tribulation. Throughout the Olivet Discourse, to watch means ‘to be ready.’ Watching is the equivalent of readiness, and readiness is equivalent to salvation. So the means of escaping the Tribulation is by means of salvation. Only those who accept the Messiah before the Rapture of the Church can be ready and watching. Luke gives two reasons for watching. First: that believers may escape all these things that shall come to pass during the Tribulation. What Luke states should not be missed. He points out that the Tribulation will come upon all them that dwell on the face of all the earth (v. 35). In other words, no one living on the earth can escape the effects of the Tribulation. It will fall upon all earth-dwellers. Luke also states there is a possibility to prevail to escape all these things that shall come to pass (v. 36). This is not possible if one is on the earth. Hence, to escape all these things, one must be off the earth. Second: that the believer might stand before the Son of man in Heaven. This will be the result of the Rapture: we stand before the Son of man and by standing before Him, we escape all these things. Both of these things can only be accomplished by the Rapture, and that is why to watch is to be saved” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 642). “You hypocrites! You know how to analyze the appearance of the earth and the sky, but why do you not analyze this present time” (Luke 12:56)? “And not only this, but also we ourselves, having the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting eagerly for our adoption as sons, the redemption of our body” (Rom. 8:23). “so that you are not lacking in any gift, awaiting eagerly the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall also confirm you to the end, blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Cor. 1:7-8). “Behold, I tell you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed. For this perishable must put on the imperishable, and this mortal must put on immortality. But when this perishable will have put on the imperishable, and this mortal will have put on immortality, then will come about the saying that is written, ‘Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?’ The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law; but thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that your toil is not in vain in the Lord” (1 Cor. 15:51-58). “just as you also partially did understand us, that we are your reason to be proud as you also are ours, in the day of our Lord Jesus” (2 Cor. 1:14). “For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus” (Phil. 1:6). “so that you may approve the things that are excellent, in order to be sincere and blameless until the day of Christ” (Phil. 1:10) “Do all things without grumbling or disputing; that you may prove yourselves to be blameless and innocent, children of God above reproach in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you appear as lights in the world, holding fast the word of life, so that in the day of Christ I may have cause to glory because I did not run in vain nor toil in vain” (Phil. 2:14-16). “For our citizenship is in heaven, from which also we eagerly wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who will transform the body of our humble state into conformity with the body of His glory, by the exertion of the power that He has even to subject all things to Himself” (Phil. 3:20-21). “If then you have been raised up with Christ, keep seeking the things above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. Set your mind on the things above, not on the things that are on earth. For you have died and your life is hidden with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory. Therefore consider the members of your earthly body as dead to immorality, impurity, passion, evil desire, and greed, which amounts to idolatry. For it is on account of these things that the wrath of God will come, and in them you also once walked, when you were living in them” (Col. 3:1-7). “and to wait for His Son from heaven, whom He raised from the dead, that is Jesus, who delivers us from the wrath to come” (1 Thes. 1:10). “For who is our hope or joy or crown of exultation? Is it not even you, in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming? For you are our glory and joy” (1 Thes. 2:19-20). “so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints” (1 Thes. 3:13). “But we do not want you to be uninformed, brethren, about those who are asleep, that you may not grieve, as do the rest who have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so God will bring with Him those who have fallen asleep in Jesus. For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep. For the Lord Himself will descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and thus we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words” (1 Thes. 4:13-18). “Now as to the times and the epochs, brethren, you have no need of anything to be written to you. For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, ‘Peace and safety!’ then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief; for you are all sons of light and sons of day. We are not of night nor of darkness; so then let us not sleep as others do, but let us be alert and sober. For those who sleep do their sleeping at night, and those who get drunk get drunk at night. But since we are of the day, let us be sober, having put on the breastplate of faith and love, and as a helmet, the hope of salvation. For God has not destined us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that whether we are awake or asleep, we may live together with Him. Therefore encourage one another, and build up one another, just as you also are doing” (1 Thes. 5:1-11). “Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved complete, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is He who calls you, and He also will bring it to pass” (1 Thes. 5:23-24). “that you keep the commandment without stain or reproach until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Tim. 6:14) “in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8). “instructing us, to the intent that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly and righteously and godly in this present world; looking for the blessed hope and appearing of the glory of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ” (Titus 2:12-13) “Faussett (Com. Tit. 2:13) incidentally remarks, ‘there is but one Greek article to both ‘hope’ and ‘appearing,’ which marks their close connection” (Peters, TTK, 3:313) “so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:28). “Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious produce of the soil, being patient about it, until it gets the early and late rains” (James 5:7). “who are protected by the power of God through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. In this you greatly rejoice, even though now for a little while, if necessary, you have been distressed by various trials, that the proof of your faith, being more precious than gold which is perishable, even though tested by fire, may be found to result in praise and glory and honor at the revelation of Jesus Christ” (1 Pet. 1:5-7) “Therefore, gird your minds for action, keep sober in spirit, fix your hope completely on the grace to be brought to you at the revelation of Jesus Christ” (1 Pet. 1:13). “but to the degree that you share the sufferings of Christ, keep on rejoicing; so that also at the revelation of His glory, you may rejoice with exultation” (1Pet 4:13). “And after you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace, who called you to His eternal glory in Christ, will Himself perfect, confirm, strengthen and establish you. To Him be dominion forever and ever. Amen” (1 Pet. 5:10-11). “But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, in which the heavens will pass away with a roar and the elements will be destroyed with intense heat, and the earth and its works will be burned up. Since all these things are to be destroyed in this way, what sort of people ought you to be in holy conduct and godliness, looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God, on account of which the heavens will be destroyed by burning, and the elements will melt with intense heat! But according to His promise we are looking for new heavens and a new earth, in which righteousness dwells” (2 Pet. 3:10-13). “Therefore, beloved, since you look for these things, be diligent to be found by Him in peace, spotless and blameless, and regard the patience of our Lord to be salvation; just as also our beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given him, wrote to you, as also in all his letters, speaking in them of these things, in which are some things hard to understand, which the untaught and unstable distort, as they do also the rest of the Scriptures, to their own destruction. You therefore, beloved, knowing this beforehand, be on your guard lest, being carried away by the error of unprincipled men, you fall from your own steadfastness, but grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To Him be the glory, both now and to the day of eternity. Amen” (2 Pet. 3:14-18). “And now, little children, abide in Him, so that when He appears, we may have confidence and not shrink away from Him in shame at His coming” (1 John. 2:28). “Beloved, now we are children of God, and it has not appeared as yet what we shall be. We know that, when He appears, we shall be like Him, because we shall see Him just as He is. And everyone who has this hope fixed on Him purifies himself, just as He is pure” (1 John. 3:2-3). “keep yourselves in the love of God, waiting anxiously for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ to eternal life” (Jude 1:21). “Now to Him who is able to keep you from stumbling, and to make you stand in the presence of His glory blameless with great joy, to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, dominion and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen” (Jude 1:24-25). “Nevertheless what you have, hold fast until I come” (Rev. 2:25). “Remember therefore what you have received and heard; and keep it, and repent. If therefore you will not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come upon you” (Rev. 3:3). “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth. I am coming quickly; hold fast what you have, in order that no one take your crown. He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he will not go out from it anymore; and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God, and My new name. “He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches” (Rev. 3:10-13). “And he said to me, “These words are faithful and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent His angel to show to His bond-servants the things which must shortly take place. And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he who heeds the words of the prophecy of this book” (Rev. 22:6-7). “And he said to me, ‘Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near. Let the one who does wrong, still do wrong; and let the one who is filthy, still be filthy; and let the one who is righteous, still practice righteousness; and let the one who is holy, still keep himself holy.’ ‘Behold, I am coming quickly, and My reward is with Me, to render to every man according to what he has done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.’ Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter by the gates into the city. Outside are the dogs and the sorcerers and the immoral persons and the murderers and the idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices lying” (Rev. 22:10-15) “And the Spirit and the bride say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who hears say, ‘Come.’ And let the one who is thirsty come; let the one who wishes take the water of life without cost” (Rev. 22:17). “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen” (Rev. 22:20-21). “The term quickly applies to the return of the Messiah at the Rapture from God’s perspective. God is not bound to time as we know it, and the past and future are as vivid to Him as the present. For the believer, the term emphasizes imminency, meaning He could come at any moment. Although almost two thousand years have passed since this affirmation, nevertheless, the saints are always to be ready and looking for the appearing of the Son of God” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 540). “...believers to fix their fond expectations of the Kingdom upon the Sec. Coming, and not on the First” (Peters, TTK, 1:445). “The two Syriac words Maran-atha (the Lord is about to come) became the watchword of the Christians among themselves” (ibid., p. 472) “...the Chiliastic posture of ‘every hour expecting the Kingdom of God’” (ibid., p. 495). “...the church as a struggling, tried body awaiting deliverance and triumph alone through the personal Advent of the Messiah” (ibid., p. 514) “The church occupies the position of waiting (e.g. 1 Pet. 1:7, 13) for this Revelation of Jesus as King” (ibid., p. 597). “Oosterzee (Ch. Dog., vol. 2, sec. 146, etc.)... remarks... ‘the personal return of the Lord... the life of watchfulness, patience, and heavenly mindedness, it is the soul and power... history makes abundantly manifest, that when this prospect has temporarily receded from the Christian consciousness, the spiritual life also has declined,’ etc.” (ibid., 2:167) “A caution is requisite: the doctrine of the Sec. Advent to be fully and practically beneficial is not simply to be confined to a belief in its mode (i.e. personal) or time of occurrence (i.e. Pre-Millennial), but must be extended to a just apprehension of its greatness, importance, and glory as a Theocratic ordering. The heart must not rest satisfied with a mere knowledge of the manner and time, but must receive both the grand fact as a realization of Covenant promise with its blessed redemptive results, and the application of the same to ourselves personally, i.e. our interest in it, etc. It is to be feared that this doctrine, like all others, may be held purely speculatively, theoretically, without exerting a practical influence upon the life. Unless it be, as James expresses it, an ‘engrafted word’ exerting a sanctifying influence, urging to duty, etc., it will be of little benefit” (ibid., p. 196). “The ‘morning star’ comes before ‘the day’ dawns; the ‘sun’ shines during ‘the day;’ Jesus is both. As the morning star, He is seen by few: as the sun, He is seen by all. Those who watch not merely for the sun, but for the morning star, properly heed the cautions and injunctions relating to the posture of watching” (ibid., p. 317). “...be, as Jesus advises, in the posture of watching servants” (ibid., p. 460). “We should encourage our hearts, as Moses did, by contemplating this great change, thus increasing love, desire, hope, and joy. Let us endeavor to appreciate its excellency, its nearness, its nobility, its spirituality, its blissfulness, and it will enlarge our boldness, firmness, patience, cheerfulness, and submission” (ibid., p. 617). “...the commanded posture of constant watching” (ibid., p. 718) “The doctrine is one thing; the exact period of its realization is another, the former may be true, and the latter may be a mistake. Dr. Cumming in The Great Tribulation (p. 197)... adds: ‘And far better have the character of him who intently looks, and in his intense longing treats that as a sign which is not, than the sceptic and freezing apathy of the man whose heart is dead and whose hopes are cold, and who cares for and looks for none of these things” (ibid., 3:92). “...watch, etc., as the Spirit enjoins (for our personal good)” (ibid., p. 100) “Lange’s declaration (Matt. p. 430): ‘Therefore be ye also ready’—Because it is the fundamental law of watchfulness to be always watching; and because the Son of Man will be generally unexpected when He comes—therein like a thief in the night, that is, at a time when the world will be buried in profound sleep” (ibid., p. 108). “Three extremes are to be avoided: (1) to fix definite, positive time; (2) to ignore the signs; (3) and to encourage any interpretation or application that forbids or hinders a daily posture of watching” (ibid., p. 114). “It is, therefore, doing injustice to believers in the past to say, that they were credulous and foolish, to look for the Advent, seeing that they were mistaken, etc.; on the contrary, it evinces their faith in God’s Word and their conscientiousness in occupying the commanded position when beholding them they believed, thus showing love and desire for the blessed hope, etc. Let them indeed be mistaken in their apprehension of its nearness, yet the observance of such faith, the practical results attained by it, the honoring of Christ evinced by it, the hope and prayer elicited by it, etc., will not—as little as the cup of water—fail in its reward at the Revelation of Jesus. The shortness of time in the Spirit’s comprehension, is indeed brief; these preparatory dispensations, when compared with the eternal ages that follow, are but of short duration; and since these utterances were given, and these worthies thus believed, the length of this dispensation has been so materially shortened that prudence alone dictates, aside from other considerations pressed, the faith, hopes and longings inspired by these signs—thus constantly augmenting, accumulating, and becoming more and more distinctive—as ever presented by godly men who ‘love the appearing.’ Better, a thousand times better, be mistaken as to time, than to ignore those signs and be caught faithless, unobservant, and worthy of rebuke” (ibid., p. 166). “While Millenarianism is something very different from Millerism, it has often occurred to the writer that it would even be far preferable to occupy Miller’s position, mistaken as it was in reference to time, to the Millennial age, etc., than to be indifferent as multitudes of professing Christians are, both to the signs and the Advent. Mr. Miller at least honored Christ’s Word, and however mistaken in particulars (which his followers, we are told, pressed beyond his more prudent opinions) yet the principle involved of watching for Christ’s Advent is a just one, eminently scriptural, and will redound, if not now, in the age to come, to his honor. The same is true of others; for while unable to accept of their particularizing, or of their prophetic schemes in the order laid down by them, yet the evident love and desire for ‘the appearing’ which prompted their labors, the urgency of entreaty and warning to occupy the biblical position of watching servants, has so commended them to us, with all their faults, that we must highly esteem them as brethren beloved. If there is any force in the scriptural cautions and injunctions upon this point, we must believe, provided true Christian character is maintained therewith, such will stand immensely higher and nearer to the King than many, now leaders in the Church, who take a pleasure to show off their wit and sarcasm at others' expense. The reviling, scorning, deriding, sneering, etc., will in either case meet with its due reward. God is the Judge, and not man; whoever honored His Word—feebly, brokenly it may be—will be honored by Him” (ibid., p. 167). “It is to us, whatever it may prove to others, cheering evidence of the inspiration of the Word that it is so formed, that, instead of giving positive certainty as to time, it points us to signs which are calculated, eminently so by reason of a continuous fulfillment, to impress and lead us, if only considered, to watch. This indefinite and yet sign impressing imminency is to us decided proof of the Divine wisdom; man could not—as man’s failures and man’s precipitancy evidence—have so presented the matter as to cause every succeeding age to respond more or less to the practically intended result, viz. to preserve, in view of a constantly recurring contingency indicated by constantly recurring witnessed signs, a constant state of vigilance. In conclusion: let the frequency with which the Spirit presents the Sec. Advent, and the signs preceding and connected with it, be regarded; let the mighty issues related with the same bearing heavily upon the individual believer (in cautions respecting personal responsibility in watching), the Church (multitudes in it, being taken unprepared and unobservant of Divine direction) and the world (scoffing at the whole subject) be contemplated; let the happiness and reward of the watching servant, and the rebuke and loss of the unvigilant be pondered; and surely we are not wrong in thus urging all to occupy this believing position. If the Word makes it so prominent and important; if so much that is desirable is identified with it; if the neglect of it is both an act of disobedience and dangerous; if a completeness of Christian attitude and character requires it; surely we cannot make it less prominent and desirable. Here then is our apology, if in the estimation of any one an excuse is needed, for holding forth upon these scriptural topics, and urging the warnings given by Christ and the apostles” (ibid.). “Again we urge professors of religion, believers in the Bible, to consider that, if their affections are really fixed on Christ—if He is all in all—this subject instead of being unwelcome ought, in virtue of their profession and love, to be intensely interesting and desirable. This looking for the Advent, expressive of faith, hope, love, and obedience, is described as the crowning excellence of God's gifts in 1 Cor. 1:7 'so that ye come behind in no gift, waiting for the Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ' (thus confirming 'the testimony of Jesus' Rev. 1:3). On this passage Olshausen appropriately remarks: 'The expectation of Christ's Coming is a testimony of inward spiritual life, and one of the fruits of faith; for this "waiting" (Rom. 8:9) is not a dry historical assertion of the fact that the Lord will return again one day, but the expression of an earnest desire for it, which is not to be conceived without love, faith, and hope, 1 Cor. 13:13.' Barnes loci, says: 'An earnest wish to see Him, and a confident expectation and firm belief that He will return, is an evidence of a high state of piety. It demands strong faith, and it will do much to elevate the feelings above the world, and to keep the mind in a state of peace.' Dr. Seiss (the Apoc., p. 85) alluding to the 'efficacy and power in the doctrine of Christ's speedy return,' adds: 'It is the most animating and most sanctifying subject in the Bible. It is the soul's serenest light amid the darkness and trials of earth,' etc." (ibid.) "the Westminster Confession: 'So will He have that day unknown to men, that they may shake off all carnal security, and be always watchful, because they know not at what hour the Lord will come; and may be ever prepared to say, Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly, Amen'" (ibid., p. 168). "A believer in the Kingdom, as covenanted, predicted, preached, postponed, connected with the Sec. Advent, etc., in the very nature of the case occupies the position of the Primitive Church, and looks, longs, and prays for the Coming One" (ibid., p. 217). "...the last communication of Jesus: 'Behold, I come as a thief,' 'Surely I come quickly'" (ibid., p. 239) "the duty of looking for the Coming of the Saviour... Both the thief-like stage and the open Parousia demand this attitude and qualification. The special favor and blessing of the Son of Man, the glorious Theocratic King, can only be secured by the acceptance of His instructions, and a manifested obedience to the same" (ibid., p. 308). "as Seiss (Par. Ten Virgins, p. 150) says: 'As Christians, set to be and to do all that we can for ourselves and that Redeemer who has bought us with His blood, His return was never meant to be a terror to us, but a joy and the essence of our gladdest hope. That day is to be our happiest day—the day when all present woes and disabilities shall cease—the day of release from servitude and toil, the day of return from exile and privation, the day of triumph and everlasting jubilee, the day when our Saviour will take us to Himself, to be with Him and like Him forever'" (ibid., p. 309). "Alas! How many hopes are substituted for the Sec. Advent and its related blessings. One has death, another the First Advent; one has Christianity, another development; one has the law, another the Gospel; one has education, another humanity; one has science, another philosophy; one has Spiritualism, another has the Church with its sacraments; one has some special dogma, another the progression of the Spirit, etc., so that numerous hopes are substituted for the Biblical one. It also is not observed that the Old and New Testaments are identical in, and united in, the same Hope... The realization of Hope, as presented in the covenants and promises of salvation, is invariably linked in the Scriptures with the still future Sec. Advent of the Messiah” (ibid., p. 310). “If so prominent in the Scriptures, how can professed Christians censure us for holding it forth prominently, and urging special attention to it?... It is thus impressively presented in order that every believer may ‘love His appearing,’ and when such love is not entertained, it is strong evidence that the heart and life is not right; that the professor is unprepared for such an appearing; that he entertains a false hope. Every consideration urges us (1 Pet. 1:13) to ‘gird up the loins of our mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto us of at the revelation of Jesus Christ’” (ibid., p. 313). “Hope is the root of a Christian’s happiness... Brown (Christ’s Sec. Coming, p. 18), referring to this absence of the Bridegroom and His promised return, says that it would be ‘incongruous not to cherish the feeling of desolation in His absence. And never do we please Christ so much as when we “refuse to be comforted,” even with His own consolations, save in the prospect of His personal return’ (comp. John 16:19-22)” (ibid., p. 314). “Jesus knew that they wished to question Him, and He said to them, ‘Are you deliberating together about this, that I said, “A little while, and you will not behold Me, and again a little while, and you will see Me’? Truly, truly, I say to you, that you will weep and lament, but the world will rejoice; you will be sorrowful, but your sorrow will be turned to joy. Whenever a woman is in travail she has sorrow, because her hour has come; but when she gives birth to the child, she remembers the anguish no more, for joy that a child has been born into the world. Therefore you too now have sorrow; but I will see you again, and your heart will rejoice, and no one takes your joy away from you’” (John 16:19–22). “Dr. Willis Lord concludes his little volume, The Blessed Hope, as follows: “The New Testament saints look forward to the Second Coming of Christ. This is their Polar Star” (Peters, TTK, p. 319). “Ignorance of the nature and results of ‘the Blessed Hope’... an ignorance... utterly unjustifiable in any believer of the Scriptures” (ibid., p. 320). “We live a life of faith, and faith honors God and His Christ” (ibid.). “Lisco (On the Parables, p. 183) remarks: ‘The believers of the old covenant looked for the Coming of Messiah, Isa. 60:1 ss. and 64:1; Luke 2:25. The believers who live under the new covenant look for His Second Coming, Phil. 3:21; Heb. 9:28; Tit. 2:13... this expectancy toward Christ’s Coming and preparation for it, is the leading purpose and main concern of all true Christians, Col. 3:1” (ibid., p. 326) “Is not the coming glory nearer and more certain when depending upon His promised return in resistless power and splendor, than when depending upon any human progress the world has ever known? One is the majestic movement of the Divine program in fulfillment of every covenant: while the other is the vain dream of the world in its ignorance and disregard of the testimony of God” (Chafer, S, C3:14/29). “The program of Satan, which the world calls ‘optimistic’ rests on the Satanic purpose of a reformed society: the program of God, which is called ‘pessimistic’ in that it discredits this age, rests upon the infinite wisdom, love and power of God; and is so certain and near that the believer is taught to watch, wait, and be ready for the first Divine movement toward this glorious end” (ibid., C6:18/19). “It is a direct contradiction to claim supreme affection for Him, and yet be careless of His promised return, or wholly contented while separated from Him” (ibid., C10:2/36). “We did not turn to God from idols to serve the living and true God and to wait for death; but rather to ‘wait for his Son from heaven’ (1 Thess. 1:9, 10)” (Chafer, KHP, 78%). “In those Scriptures which warn Israel of the future coming of her Messiah, that nation is told that they should watch for His coming since that coming will be unexpected (Matt 24:36-51; 25:13). Over against this and for the same reason, the Christian is told to wait for his Lord from heaven (1 Thes 1:9-10)” (Chafer, ST, 4:23). “An instructed believer is not looking for a long life; he is waiting for his Lord from heaven” (ibid., 5:104). “Those appointed to ‘wait for his Son [their Lord] from heaven’ are not to be looking for a long life in this sphere. Citizens of heaven hold no rights to earth in the sight of God” (ibid., p. 321). “Besides making Christ known to all who do not know Him by saving faith, the believer is to ‘live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ’ (Tit. 2:11-14)” (Feinberg, M, p. 155). “It is the Person who is emphasized in all the passages dealing with the glorious expectation of the church rather than the place which they are taken” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 562). “Since throughout the New Testament the saved of the present age are urged to an attitude of constant expectancy, it is only logical to find that the very first act in the Lord’s parousia will concern them” (McClain, GK, p. 375). “Is it an unworthy motive to desire to escape the Great Tribulation? Actually it is no more so than the desire to escape hell. The point in either case is not our desire or wishes but the question as to what the Scriptures promise” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 225). “Another element in the revelation in 1 Corinthians 15:51-58 is the exhortation that is attached to the doctrine of the Rapture. In verse 58 Paul stated, ‘Therefore, my dear brothers, stand firm. Let nothing move you. Always give yourselves fully to the work of the Lord, because you know that your labor in the Lord is not in vain.’ The doctrine of the Rapture, whenever mentioned in the Bible, is always related to practical application. In John 14:2 it is to the point that we should not be troubled in view of the coming of the Lord. In 1 Thessalonians 4 it is a comforting or encouraging hope. In 1 John 3:2-3 it is a purifying hope. Here the Rapture is used as an exhortation to us to be faithful, standing firm in our faith, letting nothing move us, and giving ourselves at all times fully to the work of the Lord” (ibid., p. 251). “The assurance of that appearing is a source of great joy to Christians because that appearing will bring incredibly happy changes for them, such as the loss of their sin nature and the reception of an immortal body” (Showers, M, p. 135). “Christians should continuously be ready for His coming by constantly having their lives in order” (ibid., p. 139). “Charles H. Spurgeon: ... ‘I dare not go where I should be ashamed to be found should my Lord come on a sudden’” [quoting Charles H. Spurgeon, 12 Sermons on the Second Coming of Christ, p. 134] (ibid.). “Let me be ever asking myself, at every moment, If he were to appear now, would I have confidence?... Let us then be always abiding in him; every day, every hour, every instant; even as we would wish to be found abiding in him, were he to appear this very day, this very hour, this very instant. He is about to appear; to appear suddenly; to come quickly” [quoting Robert S. Candlish, The First Epistle of John, p. 213] (ibid., p. 140). “Church saints are to be concerned about ultimate reality, God’s plan and purpose for history, and the implications of these things for them... ‘be on the alert, be watchful’... sobriety... Paul used the word translated ‘sober’ in a figurative sense, thus meaning to ‘be free fr. every form of mental and spiritual “drunkenness”, fr. excess. passion, rashness, confusion, etc., be well-balanced, self-controlled.’ [quoting Arndt and Gingrich, A Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament, p. 540]... church saints are to be continuously free from all fuzzy thinking or wrong concepts concerning ultimate reality. They are to continuously acknowledge the reality revealed by God and to live and minister in the well-balanced, self-controlled manner required by that reality” (ibid., p. 203). “...when Paul stated that church saints should put on the helmet of the hope of salvation, he was indicating that they should protect their minds with the certainty of being delivered from the wrathful first phase of the broad Day of the Lord. Their minds should not be tormented by uncertainty as to whether they will or will not be overtaken by that phase” (ibid., p. 204). “...present-day church saints have their ‘conversation’ (lit., ‘commonwealth, state’) in heaven. Therefore, they should be waiting eagerly for Christ to come from heaven and take them there (Phil. 3:19-20), and should be setting their minds on things ‘above,’ not on things ‘on the earth’ (Col. 3:2)” (ibid., p. 216). “The imminent coming of Christ should have an incredible practical effect on the lives of individual Christians and the church as a whole. The fact that the glorified, holy Son of God could step through the door of heaven at any moment is intended by God to be the most pressing, incessant motivation for holy living and aggressive ministry (including missions, evangelism, and Bible teaching) and the greatest cure for lethargy and apathy. It should make a major difference in every Christian’s values, actions, priorities, and goals” (ibid., p. 255). “Since the imminent coming of Christ is intended to have such a tremendous practical effect on the lives of individual Christians and the church as a whole, and since all views of the Rapture except the pretribulation view destroy the New Testament teaching of the imminent coming of Christ, we can conclude that the issue of when the Rapture of the church will take place really does matter. MARANATHA—Our Lord, Come” (ibid., p. 256)! “Believing that time is limited, that Christ may come at any moment, and that the eternal status of human souls is in the balance heightens the realization that any hour might be our last to reach someone for Jesus” (Geisler, ST, 4:567). “...a pretribulation Rapture... containing strong motivation for holiness in the here-and-now, knowing we may meet our Maker at any moment (1 John 3:2-3)” (ibid., p. 635). “Ignatius of Antioch [Epistle to Polycarp, 1,3] (d. c. 110)... ‘Be watchful, possessing a sleepless spirit’” (ibid., p. 656)

The effects on the Christian of the proper attitude toward the Rapture (as connected with the broader Second Coming) are deep and wide. They include sanctification, love for the brethren, encouragement for ministry and zeal for evangelism. “And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he who heeds the words of the prophecy of this book” (Rev. 22:7). “Nearly every Millenarian work has something to say on the practical nature of the doctrine, and has a chapter or more devoted to the subject... the hope of the nearness of the Sec. Advent... it is a chief characteristic of the true Christian” (Peters, TTK, 3:320). “Alford (Com. loci) justly makes this posture of ‘waiting’ to be ‘the greatest proof of maturity and richness of the spiritual life; implying the co-existence and co-operation of faith, whereby they believed the promise of Christ—hope, whereby they looked on to its fulfillment—and love, whereby that anticipation was lit up with earnest desire.’... Barnes... He says on 1 Cor. 1:7, the waiting: ‘...it will do much to elevate the feelings above the world, and to keep the mind in a state of peace.’... Dr. M’Caul (The Blessed Hope) well remarks: ‘The practice of waiting for the Sec. Advent is an essential feature in the character of a true Christian.’ Calvin (quoted, Lange’s Com. 1 Pet. 4:7) took the same view when he said: ‘It ought to be the chief concern of believers to fix their minds fully on His Sec. Advent.’ Luther, in his ‘Sermon of Consolation’ (p. 23; quoted Proph. Times, vol. 12, p. 151) pointedly remarks: ‘If thou be not filled with a desire after the Coming of this day, thou canst never pray the Lord’s prayer, nor canst thou repeat from thy heart the creed of faith. For with what conscience canst thou say, “I believe in the resurrection of the body and the life everlasting,” if thou dost not in thy heart desire the same? If thou didst believe it, thou must, of necessity, desire it from thy heart, and long for that day to come; which, if thou dost not desire, thou art not yet a Christian, nor canst thou boast of thy faith.’ (It has been well remarked: ‘The application of such a rule as this to the churches of Christendom would unchristianize many in our day.’)... Olshausen on 1 Thess 1:10, affirms that ‘to wait for the Son of God is the most appropriate mark of a true Christian,’ and Auberlen (Langels Com. loci) says: ‘The Apostle defines the life aim of the converts into two particulars, the service of God and the waiting for the return of His Son from heaven,’ and (Hom. and Prac.), ‘The Christian is a man who serves God and waits for Jesus.’... Van Oosterzee (Lange’s Com. 2 Tim., p. 114) declares ‘The affectionate longing for the appearing of the Lord in glory, presupposes a high degree of spiritual life; and, on the other side, is admirably fitted to nourish, to perfect, to purify that life’ (ibid., p. 322). “It is only requisite to point out how the New Test. uses the doctrine of the Second Advent, in order to show how essential it is to Christian doctrine, duty, and character. This we will do in the briefest manner. It is given: 1, to interest us in a blessed coming, Matt. 23:39; Luke 13:35 and 21:27; 2 Thess. 1:10; Heb. 9:28; 1 Pet. 1:7, 13; Rev. 22:7, 20, 2, to encourage faithfulness by a reward, Matt. 16:27 and 24:47; 2 Thess. 1:7-11; 2 Tim. 4:8; Rev. 22:12, 3, to bring out the hope of reward in a ‘regeneration,’ Matt. 19:28, 29; Acts 3:19-21, 4, to avoid deception, Matt. 24:23-27; Luke 17:23, 24; 2 Tim. 4:1-5, 5, to hold forth the culmination of the age, Matt. 24:30, etc., 6, to show the condition of the world, Matt. 24:37-39; Luke 17:26-30; 1 Thess. 5:1-4, 7, to teach a translation, Matt. 24:39-41; Luke 17:34-36; 1 Thess. 4:17, 8, to urge to watchfulness, Matt. 24:42 and 25:13; Mark 13:33, 37; Luke 12:35-37 and 21:34-36; 1 Thess. 5:4-6; Rev. 16:15, 9, to influence to constant readiness, Matt. 24:44 and 25:1-13 and 22:11; Luke 12:35-40, 10, to incite ministerial fidelity, Matt. 24:45-47; Luke 12:42-44; 1 Thess. 2:19, 20; 2 Tim. 4:1-5; 1 Pet. 5:1-4, 11, to rebuke ministerial unfaithfulness, Matt. 24:48-51; Luke 12:45-48, 12, to teach the condition of the Church, Matt. 25:1-12; Luke 18:8; 2 Thess. 2:1-12, 13, to hold forth coming judgment, Matt. 25:19, 27, 31-46; 2 Thess. 1:8, 9; Jude 14-16; Rev. 1:7 and 19:11-16, 14, to show us His majesty and glory, Matt. 26:64 and 25:31 and 24:30; Mark 13:26 and 14:61, 15, to a confession of Christ, Mark 8:38; Luke 9:26, 16, to incite prayer, Mark 13:33; Luke 21:36; 1 Pet. 4:7; Rev. 22:20, 17, to waiting, 2 Thess. 3:5; 1 Cor. 1:7; 1 Thess. 1:10; Luke 12:36, 18, to expectation and looking, Tit. 2:13; Phil. 3:20; Heb. 9:28; 2 Pet. 3:12, 14; Rev. 1:7, 19, to love and desire, 2 Tim. 4:8; Rom. 8:23; 2 Cor. 5:2; Rev. 22:20; Tit. 2:13, 20, to promised honor, Luke 12:37, 39; Matt. 24:46, 47; 1 Pet. 1:7; 2 Thess. 1:10; 1 Pet. 5:4, 21, to occupation during postponement of Kingdom, Luke 19:11-27; Matt. 25: 14-30, 22, to encourage joy and peace in approaching redemption, Luke 21:28; John 16:16-33; 1 Thess. 1:10, 23, to impart comfort, John 14:1-3, 28; 2 Thess. 1:7; 2 Tim. 2:12, 24, to bestow assurance, Acts 1:11 and 3:19-21; Rom. 11:26; Luke 21:34, 36, 25, to test character, 1 Thess. 1:9, 10 and 5:4-9; 1 Cor. 1:7, 8, 26, to avoid misjudging, 1 Cor. 4:5, 27, to remembrance and celebration of His Coming, 1 Cor. 11:26, 28, to inspire hope in the resurrection, 1 Cor. 15:23; Phil. 3:20, 21; 1 Thess. 4:13-18, 29, to inculcate moderation, Phil. 4:5, 30, to excite heavenly mindedness, Col. 3:1-4, 31, to arouse brotherly love, 1 Thess. 3:12, 13, 32, to future rejoicing in successful labor, 1 Thess. 2:19, 20, 33, to sanctification, 1 Thess. 5:23; 1 John 3:2, 3, 34, to comfort in bereavement, 1 Thess. 4:19, 35, to urge steadfastness, 2 Thess. 2:1, 2; 1 Tim. 6:14; 1 Pet. 5:4, 36, to consideration of Antichrist and his doom, 2 Thess. 2:8, 37, to infuse diligence and activity, 2 Tim. 4:1-8; 2 Pet. 3:14, 38, to mortification of the flesh, Col. 3:4, 5; Tit. 2:12, 13; Luke 21:34; 2 Pet. 3:12, 39, to soberness, 1 Pet. 1:13; 1 Thess. 5:6; Phil. 4:5, 40, to regard it as the great hope, Tit. 2:13; 1 Pet. 1:13; Col. 3:4, 41, to induce perseverance, Rev. 2:25 and 3:3, 11, 42, to an abiding with Christ, 1 John 2:28 and 3:2, 43, to patience under trial, James 5:7, 8; 2 Thess. 3:5 and 1:4-10; 1 Pet. 4:12, 13, 44, to patience, Heb. 10:36, 37; James 5:7, 45, to a proclamation, Tit. 2:11-15; 1 Cor. 1:4-10; 2 Tim. 4:1-8, 46, to suitable preparation, Rev. 16:15, 47, to urge men to turn to God, Acts 3:19-21; Rev. 3:3, 48, to enforce obedience, 1 Tim. 4:13, 14; 2 Tim. 4:1, 49, to bring salvation, Heb. 9:28, and 50, to coming gladness and exceeding joy, 1 Pet. 4:13” (Peters, TTK, 3:323) “This can be greatly enlarged, as e.g. pertaining: 1, to induce sincerity, Phil. 1:9-10, 2, to holy conversation and godliness, 2 Pet. 3:11-13, 3, to brotherly love, 1 Thess. 3:2, 13, 4, to confidence, Phil. 1:6, 5, to a hope of a crown, Rev. 3:11, 6, to manifestation of saints, 2 Cor. 5:16; Col. 3:4, 7, to retribution, 2 Thess. 2:7, 8, 8, to promised dominion and authority, Matt. 16:27; 1 Cor. 4:5, etc., 9, to future kingship and priesthood, Rev. 1:6, 10, to reigning on the earth, Rev. 5:10, and 20:4, 11, to Jewish restoration, conversion, and supremacy, Rom. 11:15, etc., 12, to the binding of Satan, Rev. 20:1-6, 13, to the deliverance of creation, Rom. 8:19-23, and 14, to the new heavens and new earth, 2 Pet. 3:13; Rev. 21:1; 15, to the New Jerusalem, Rev. 21:10, etc. Any reader of the present work will see the multiplicity of subjects with which our doctrine stands related and interwoven. Hence the extreme significance of the adjuration of the Apostle, 2 Tim. 4:1-8 [I solemnly charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His kingdom: preach the word; be ready in season and out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with great patience and instruction. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but wanting to have their ears tickled, they will accumulate for themselves teachers in accordance to their own desires; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and will turn aside to myths. But you, be sober in all things, endure hardship, do the work of an evangelist, fulfill your ministry. For I am already being poured out as a drink offering, and the time of my departure has come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing.'] (comp. Lange, Conybeare and Howson, Alford, etc.)” (ibid., p. 324) “Indeed, there is scarcely a subject in the Bible with which it is not linked, and upon which, either directly or indirectly, it does not impart information” (ibid., p. 324). “Thus it defines and vindicates the Judgeship of Jesus, the inheriting of the earth, the perpetuation of the race, the intermediate state, the ‘world to come,’ the perpetuity of the earth, the ending of the age, a future revelation of the divine will, the unity of Scripture, the work of Christ for redemptive purposes, the entailment of the curse and its ultimate removal, the credibility and inspiration of the Scriptures, the Church and the Kingdom of God with the relation that the one sustains to the other, the divine Sovereignty and the Kingship of Jesus, the exaltation of the Christ, etc. It serves largely to explain Scripture, by furnishing the means which indicate the relationship of one part to the other. It enables us to discriminate what pertains to this, or to the future, dispensation. It enlightens us in reference to Providence and the history of the world, by showing the Theocratic Purpose and Plan, and the methods instituted in order to secure their final and complete accomplishment. It brings forth a perfect vindication of the preaching of the disciples, Apostles, and Primitive Church. It holds forth prominently and logically the postponement of the Kingdom to the Sec. Advent, assigning the reasons for the same. It enforces the mutual connection existing between the Old and New Test. It develops, as no other can, the doctrine of election, the process of engrafting, and the continuation of the election. It gives to portions of the Word, as e.g. the transfiguration, temptation, etc., new force and beauty. It brings out with vividness and power the covenanted inheritance of the Son of David, and that of His co-heirs. It enables one to readily detect and avoid the erroneous interpretations placed on the covenants and the promises of God. It upholds and confirms the necessity of the Supernatural, the supremacy of Scripture, the study of prophecy, the faith of the pious Jews, and the watching posture of martyrs and confessors. It gives to us, what no other system presents so grandly, a perfect Redeemer and a perfect Redemption. Surely a doctrine which permeates and gives new life and vigor to so many other related doctrines; which lays its beautifying hand on so many subjects pertaining to our highest personal interests, must, in the nature of the case, be pre-eminently practical" (ibid.). "Dr. Dorner (Person of Christ, vol. 1, p. 409-15)... 'Chiliasm, therefore, was the form in which Christianity first gave conscious expression to the conviction of its destiny to rule the world. Chiliasm was the assertion of the fact, that Christianity is related, positively as well as negatively, to the world. Chiliasm declared that Christianity, by renouncing, was called to glorify the world'... Grosse (pastor at Bridford, England, 1647; quoted by Lond. Quart. Journal of Proph., 1855, p. 194) declares: 'No man rightly desires Christ's Coming, but he that hath assurance of the good and benefit of His Coming. To them the day of Christ is as the day of harvest to the husbandman, as the day of deliverance to the prisoner, as the day of coronation to the king, as the day of wedlock to the bride—a day of triumph and exaltation, a day of freedom and consolation, a day of feat and satisfaction; to them the Lord Jesus is all sweetness, as wine to the palate and ointment to the nostril, saith Solomon; honey in the mouth, saith Bernard; music in the ear, and a jubilee in the heart. Get assurance of Christ's Coming, as a ransomer to redeem you, as a conqueror to subdue all your enemies under you, as a friend to comfort you, as a king to honor you, as a physician to heal you, as a bridegroom to marry you, and then shall you with confidence and boldness, with joy and gladness, with vehement and holy longings, say, "Come Lord Jesus.'" Col. Rawlandson (Ch. Herald, Oct. 30th, 1879) remarks: 'The Christian who puts away from him the doctrine of the Sec. Coming of the Lord puts away his strength, and is like a wounded lark, unable to soar to elevated heights. He who looks for reunion with his Lord only at the hour of death, is like the maimed bird, and cannot sing anything but Lenten dirges. It is a sad thing thus to shut out the comfort and joy of this precious hope.'... Lange's Com. 1 Thess. (p. 50) quotes Chrysostom as saying: 'To keep the Coming of the Lord at all times before our eyes, that is to be likeminded with the Apostles” (ibid., p. 326) “Philpot (The Priest upon His Throne, p. 285): ‘... “the day of the Lord will not overtake us as a thief in the night;” yea, rather, it will accomplish our “perfect consummation and bliss, both in body and soul, in His eternal and everlasting glory”’” (ibid., p. 328). “...experience... like that of the gifted and saintly Hewitson, of whom his biographer says: “The blessed hope took its place thenceforth, not only in his understanding, but in his heart He not only believed in the speedy appearing—he loved it—waited for it—watched for it. “Faith,” we find him saying, “looks back to the cross, and is at peace; it looks forward to the crown, and pants for glory. Oh, to have more of the life and power of such a faith!” So mighty a motive power did it become, that he used to speak of it ever afterward as bringing with it a kind of second conversion. It is interwoven with the texture of his whole future life” (ibid., p. 329). “Lange (Com., Matt. 24) remarks: ‘Readiness for Christ’s Advent diffuses somewhat of the brightness of His future glorification over life”’ (ibid., p. 330). “Watching for the Advent tends, necessarily, to wean men from the world, to make them solicitous to save others, to make them liberal in their contributions, to cause them to consume less in self-gratification, etc.” (ibid., p. 333) “As illustrative of the teachings of others on this point, we present, out of many, the following. Dr. Seiss (Apoc., p. 31), after having referred to the prominence given to the Sec. Advent, etc., adds: “There is also a peculiar efficacy and power in the doctrine of Christ’s speedy return. Like a magnet, it lifts the heart of the believer out of the world and out of his low self, and enables him to stand with Moses on the mount, and transfigures him with the rays of blessed hope and promise which stream upon him in those sublime heights. It is the most animating and most sanctifying subject in the Bible. It is the soul’s serenest light amid the darkness and trials of earth. And the great aim and end of this book (Apoc.) is to set forth this doctrine. The things of which it treats are things touching the Apocalypse of Jesus Christ, and which it describes as “things which must shortly come to pass.” The impending Advent is the theme which pervades it from its commencement to its close. And just in proportion as he who is awake to the great truth of the Saviour’s speedy Coming, and is engaged in waiting and preparing himself accordingly, is a better man, and in a safer condition, and really more happy than the half-Christian and the lukewarm; in that same proportion is he who reads, hears and keeps the words of this prophecy blessed beyond other people. This book, at least its subject matter, thus becomes to him an instrument of security and attainment to save him from surprise when his Lord Cometh, and from the tribulations which shall try the indifferent, as well as a passport to admit him to the marriage supper of the Lamb, and to the highest awards of eternity. Precious book! and happy they who study it.' Again (p. 54-55), 'John was present when that blessed One left the earth. He had heard the angels say, "Ye men of Galilee, this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into heaven" (Acts 1:11). He had seen how "a cloud received Him out of sight," and thenceforward carried in his memory what the words of the angels authorized him to regard as a picture of something in the future to which he ever looked with the profoundest interest. And all the stupendous visions of the Apoc. did not for one moment disturb that picture, or divert his mind from it. However variously he may have been moved, as scene followed scene in the great exhibition of the Divine Purpose, the key-note, to which he ever returned, was the Coming and Kingdom of that ascended Lord. Even in all the long course of unending ages, that upon which his thoughts most firmly fastened was the Coming again of the Lord Jesus. With this he begins, with this he continues, and with this he ends. "He Cometh." Here is the great fact unequivocally stated. Christ has not gone to heaven to stay there. He has gone for His Church's benefit; and for His Church's benefit He will return again; not in spirit only, not in providence only, not in the mere removal of men by death, but in His own proper person as "the Son of Man." Few believe this, and still fewer lay it to heart. Many sneer at the very idea and would fain laugh down the people who are so simple as to entertain it. But it is nevertheless the immutable truth of God, predicted by all His prophets, promised by Christ Himself, confirmed by the testimony of angels, proclaimed by all the Apostles, believed by all the early Christians, acknowledged in all the Church creeds, sung of in all the Church hymnbooks, prayed about in all the Church liturgies, and entering so essentially into the very life and substance of Christianity that without it there is no Christianity, except a few maimed and mutilated relics too powerless to be worth the trouble or expense of preservation. That religion which does not look for a returning Saviour, or locate its highest hopes and triumphs in the judgment scenes for which the Son of Man must reappear, is not the religion of this book, and is without authority to promise salvation to its devotees. And those addresses to the churches which have no "Behold He Cometh" pervading or underlying them, have not been indited by "the Seven Spirits of God," nor sent by Him whose Apocalypse is the crown of the inspired Canon. Murmur at it, dispute it, despise it, mock at it, put it aside, hate it, and hide from it, as men may, it is a great fundamental article of the Gospel that that same blessed Lord, who ascended from Mount Olivet, and is now at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, shall come from thence to judge the quick and the dead, and to stand again upon that very summit from which He went up. This is true, as Christ Himself is true; and “he that hath an ear to hear, let him hear.” Amen.’ On the words ‘Even so, Amen,’ ch. 1:7, he (p. 59) says: ‘I find in them John’s acquiescence in all that the great day is to bring, and his prayer, as repeated at the end of the book, that the Lord would hasten its coming. Terrible as it will be to the wicked, and the unprepared, and those who refuse the warnings which we give them, it is a precious day to the saints, a day to be coveted, and to be prayed for with all earnestness of desire. The poor faint-hearted Christianity of our times can hardly contemplate it without trembling and annoyance. Many who profess and call themselves Christians would rather not hear about it, and would prefer, if they had their choice, that Christ might never come. It was not so in the days of Christianity’s pristine vigor. Then the anxious inquiry of disciples was, “Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of the Coming, and of the end of the world?” “Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore the Kingdom to Israel?” Then Christians wrote to each other in joyous congratulation, that their citizenship was in heaven, whence they looked for the Coming of the Saviour; and comforted one another in the assurance that the Lord Himself is to descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and, as directed by their Lord, lifted up their heads and looked up with joyful hope at every turn in human affairs which they could by any means construe into a probable herald of His nearing Epiphany. Then the prayer, “Thy Kingdom come,” had a depth of meaning and lively anticipation which now has well-nigh been lost. Then “the appearing of Jesus Christ” had a power over the soul which made it “rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory;” and the most earnest and constant call of Apostles and their followers was “Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly. Even so. Amen.” Nor can the Church ever be her true self, or enter into the true spirit of her faith, or rise to the sublimity of her hope, where this is not the highest object of her deepest desire. For how, indeed, can we regard ourselves as rightly planted upon the apostolic foundation if we cannot join with heart and soul in this apostolic prayer” (ibid., p. 385)? “Just in proportion as we love and appreciate the Appearing of Jesus, as we earnestly desire the deliverance, blessings and glory that are dependent on and related to the Second Advent, in that proportion will this book [Revelation], which tells us the grandest and most sublime things of the King and Kingdom, be dear to us” (ibid., p. 386). “A blessing is to be bestowed upon those who keep the words of the prophecy, [Rev. 22] v. 7; which keeping requires, of course, preceding study” (ibid.). “(Smith’s Key to Rev., p. 23)... ‘This neglect is to set our own wisdom above the Word of God, and against it” (ibid.) “This Book [Revelation] was specially designed to sustain the Christian and the Church under sore trial; its magnificent portrayals of ultimate deliverance, reward, and glory at the Coming of Jesus being most admirably adapted for such a purpose. It has done this in the past, comforting and strengthening the persecuted in his flight or in his dungeon, sustaining the martyr at the stake or in the presence of the wild beasts. It has, from the days of John down to the present, consoled, cheered, and confirmed in faith and hope many a depressed, discouraged, tried believer. It will again do this work during the interval between the two stages of the Advent, when the Church [Tribulation saints—ed.], enduring her most bitter and unrelenting persecution, needs special aid and strength to endure unto the end. Then this Book, so full of the events then experienced, so full of Antichrist and his doom, so full of ultimate glorious deliverance, will be studied with an interest and intensity never before realized. Then, too, it will impart the needed consolation and hope, so that a multitude, fortified by its precious promises, will come out of the great tribulation, and receive their reward for faithfulness and endurance” (ibid., p. 387). “In short, ‘The Blessed Hope’ helps us to cling lightly to this world... the doctrine... those who believe it are the most consecrated, unselfish, and strenuous workers in the Master’s service” (Larkin, DT, p. 18).

The Rapture hope effects sanctification. “Beloved, now we are children of God, and it has not appeared as yet what we shall be. We know that, when He appears, we shall be like Him, because we shall see Him just as He is. And everyone who has this hope fixed on Him purifies himself, just as He is pure” (1 John. 3:2–3).

It promotes love for the brethren. “and may the Lord cause you to increase and abound in love for one another, and for all men, just as we also do for you; so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints” (1 Thes. 3:12–13). “Such is the preciousness of this Hope, that we are grateful to any who have expressed it, and urged others to accept of its comforting influences. There is (alas!) a tendency among some to disparage, and even unchurch others, because in some things their system of faith is defective, or contradictory, or erroneous; but making due allowance for human weakness and imperfection (which for the sake of the truth we may specify, without unchristianizing, etc.), the simple fact that this ‘blessed Hope’ is entertained and presented, causes our hearts to warm toward them. It is a bond of union, or, at least, of interested regard, for in it we see them honoring ‘the Christ,’ and in such honoring we rejoice, hoping that some day, when hope is realized, to see eye to eye in all things. For, if any one ‘loves His appearing,’ he certainly loves the Lord Jesus, and we love Him” (Peters, TTK, 3:313). “Hence we so much admire the expressed Hope of the Reformers and others, many of whom we have quoted in this work. Such adherence to the Hope is indicative of fellowship with Jesus, and of a ‘conscience void of offence.’ When e.g. Stockton, in the Book Above All, expresses his faith in the exceeding preciousness of the Sec. Advent, in the fulfillment of the signs, in his waiting for the Lord, in a wish that it may be soon, in the declaration that the only hope of the world is in Jesus, then—whatever differences of view may exist on other points—our heart warms toward the brother as one who is a friend and brother of Jesus. No one can express such heartfelt desires and longings, who is not warmly and truly attached to the Saviour” (ibid.).

It provides encouragement in ministry. “...that if Jesus should come He might find them engaged at their respective posts” (Peters, TTK, 3:325).

And, it stirs up zeal for evangelism. “It is asserted that our doctrine tends to injure missions and destroy their spirit... Because we do not allow ourselves to be enthused with a false hope (viz., that of the conversion of the world in the present dispensation), this charge is made, when the whole tendency of our doctrine—if heartily embraced—is to make us solicitous of the salvation of others, so that they with us may reign with Christ, inheriting His Kingdom and glory” (Peters, TTK, 3:330). “The great and overwhelming fact that a majority of the missionaries in the foreign field today are Pre-Millenarians... two thirds of those now engaged in this work in India are Millenarians” (ibid., p. 331) “Rev. Dr. Mackay, at the Mildmay Conference (1879) refers to the extent that our views are held by missionaries, and states that a Pre-Millenarian missionary being asked, ‘Are you going to the heathen holding these pessimist views? What good will you do?’ He replied: ‘I hold neither pessimist nor optimist views, or any such thing—I am a truthist’” (ibid., p. 332) “Dr. Andrew Bonar (Lond. Quart. Jour., Prophecy, vol. 1, p. 317) declared: ‘He has heard missionaries “regret deeply that the Church at home should be dazzled by the vain hope of conversions on a grand scale.” If the missionary would “see that the gathering out of the elect is his sole hope,” he would be “far less disheartened by opposition than when he vainly expected every day to see symptoms of national and universal conversion’” (ibid.). “Auriol (Lects. during Lent, p. 34): ‘What a motive for fervor and zeal in the missionary cause has he who can look at every soul converted to God as a fresh earnest of the near approach of the day of redemption’” (ibid., p. 333)! “The writer himself, not being trammelled by the scruples that influence others, wishes lay evangelism abundant success, indeed, every method to bring sinners to Jesus, provided proper prudence and wisdom is exercised to avoid self-deception and mere animal excitement” (ibid., p. 334).

Who today has the proper attitude toward the Rapture? This writer suggests that pretribulational premillennialists’ biblical, wakeful and expectant attitude toward Christ’s imminent coming for the church identifies them as being among Christ’s genuine sheep, and also provides strong circumstantial evidence that their eschatology is correct.

Not All Christians Have the Proper Attitude

But alas, not all Christians have the proper attitude. “For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:38-39). “But if that slave says in his heart, ‘My master will be a long time in coming,” and begins to beat the slaves, both men and women, and to eat and drink and get drunk” (Luke 12:45) “I tell you that He will bring about justice for them speedily. However, when the Son of Man comes, will He find faith on the earth” (Luke 18:8)? “Know this first of all, that in the last days mockers will come with their mocking, following after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation.’ For when they maintain this, it escapes their notice that by the word of God the heavens existed long ago and the earth was formed out of water and by water, through which the world at that time was destroyed, being flooded with water. But the present heavens and earth by His word are being reserved for fire, kept for the day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men” (2 Pet. 3:3-7). “It is comparatively easy to endure the reproaches of unbelievers, but not so readily those of excellent men, believers, who, by their sweeping statements, are justly chargeable with moulding the minds of multitudes to a rejection of a true, consistent interpretation of Scripture, preparing the masses of the church to have no faith when the Saviour comes” (Peters, TTK, 1:167). “...the deeply impressive question (alas, so abundantly verified in this day), ‘Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall He find faith on the earth’” (ibid., 2:43)? “But few, wholly dependent on faith and not on the Kingdom itself presenting preliminary external signs for observation, will accept of the prophecies pertaining to this matter and be looking for, watching for, and awaiting with hope the Kingdom” (ibid., p. 46). “...unbelief is so sadly predicted” (ibid., p. 52). “Considering the prominence and preciousness of this doctrine of a Pre-Mill. Advent, it is strange that men should so persistently reject and condemn it, notwithstanding the cautions and warnings given. The reason for its unpopularity and bitter opposition must be found in its condemnatory nature. It sets aside all human systems, all worldly schemes of regeneration, all man-devised plans to realize the Messiah's Kingdom on earth, all confidence in the resources of nature, reason, etc., declaring that the personal intervention of Jesus, the Christ, is requisite to bring about the world's restoration to Millennial blessedness. This is humbling to man's pride, to his worldliness, to his schemes of reformation, all of which this Advent dooms to destruction. This exalting of the Christ and His work is condemnatory of man and his work, and hence man hates it, for it is a constant and jarring protest to his vain ideas of progress and reform, to his estimate of the Church's and world's actual mission and condition" (ibid., p. 196). "It is reasonable to expect that this doctrine of a translation will be ridiculed both before and after the occurrence of it. Indeed, the parallel existing in the days of Noah, just before the deluge, and that just before the Advent would fail in an important particular if ridicule and scorn were not added to the objections urged against belief in a speedy Advent and its inevitable results. Among these results that of the special honoring of some living saints by a translation without seeing death is already made the subject of derision and sport. The abuse of the doctrine by some evidently sincere but misguided persons (who confidently, against most express Scripture, fix the day and hour of its occurrence, and who, against the testimony of the Spirit, that it is not to be anticipated by a gathering of saints and most foolish provision of ascension robes, meet at the designated time to experience it) greatly tends to such levity; just as if the vagaries and foolishness of men in perverting a doctrine necessarily led to its entire rejection—a principle so palpably erroneous that if applied to truth in general would leave but little for us to accept. Scoffers are to arise in the last days, who will express their contempt of God's promises, and pronounce those, who Noah-like trust in them, to be, if not 'mad' or possessed of a 'devil,' at least 'exceedingly soft and foolish.' This naturally is to be expected of the world, but unfortunately some of the scoffers are professed believers in that Word of God, which expressly teaches a still future translation to come suddenly, as a snare, upon the Church and the world, which gives us typical, real illustrations of such translations in two noted cases, and which urges us constantly to look and watch for that which is to effect it. It is saddening that men cannot at least treat such subjects with soberness, and discuss them without sneers. This is before the translation; the same will be true of multitudes immediately after it. Acts 13:41 [“BE-

HOLD, YOU SCOFFERS, AND MARVEL, AND PERISH; FOR I AM ACCOMPLISHING A WORK IN YOUR DAYS, A WORK WHICH YOU WILL NEVER BELIEVE, THOUGH SOMEONE SHOULD DESCRIBE IT TO YOU.”] will be repeated; and those who are arrested by its occurrence and take it to heart will be unsparingly ridiculed. Human nature will be true to itself, and the doctrine will be particularly detestable to it, since it evinces a species of favoritism—a contrast—condemnatory to its own Naturalistic and Humanitarian position. The Spirit predicts—and His Word is truth—that ridicule, sneers, etc., shall give finally place to so positive a dislike and hatred to all pertaining to it that those who are left and are believing shall experience, not merely a wordy reviling persecution, but the stroke of the descending, beheading sword and axe” (ibid., p. 335). “But the most saddening sign is that this questioning and unbelief respecting the reality and nearness of the Coming of Jesus is not confined to the world but is to be found in the Church, among professing believers... as Mather aptly expressed it, ‘the sleeping medicine’ is profusely administered and gladly received. The Advent is placed so remotely in the distance, or is so indefinitely regarded, that its practical influence is lost” (ibid., 3:116). “Conceding due respect for our opponents, and without questioning their honesty or sincerity, we may be allowed to say as a resultant of our position and views, that they as a body compose a sad sign, illustrative of Christ’s warning respecting unbelief. In our estimation it is a very serious thing to issue works, expressly designed to destroy faith in the Second Advent concerning its nearness, the duty of constant watching for it, etc.” (ibid., p. 135) “The Methodists as a body are far removed from the faith of the Wesleys, Fletcher, and others on this point. The Lutherans as a body but little regard the warnings of a Luther, Melancthon, and others” (ibid.). “No matter that Jesus Himself (Mark 13:23; Matt. 24:25)... in direct reference to His Sec. Advent and the events connected therewith, says: ‘But take ye heed. Behold, I have told you before’—men refuse to take ‘heed,’ and multitudes, even of professed followers, totally ignore the caution, and rail upon those who may remind them of the words of Jesus... Noah was ridiculed, and so will the true believer be likewise by the thoughtless... the Gospel hammer ‘which knocks away the injunction of Jesus to observe the signs of the times’” (ibid.). “The spirit of Luke 12:45 [‘But if that slave says in his heart, “My master will be a long time in coming,” and begins to beat the slaves, both men and women, and to eat and drink and get drunk;’] is exhibited on all sides, and many a believer feels in his person, influence, preferment, reputation, church relationship, etc., the inflictions of professed ‘fellow-servants’ who say in their heart, and boldly proclaim it also

‘my Lord delayeth His Coming’... The writer’s heart has been saddened and pained by bitter experience in this direction, but likewise encouraged and strengthened because divinely forewarned in the Word that such trial is to be expected” (ibid., p. 153). “Esteemed men of ability and usefulness, are certainly assuming grave responsibility in this matter, when in books, etc., they teach that Christ’s Advent is not to be watched for as He commanded, but that it is still postponed for many, many long centuries, and that, instead of incoming wrath and tribulation, the Church is to anticipate triumph and continued progress” (ibid., p. 166). “Jesus significantly (Luke 18:8) asks: ‘When the Son of man cometh shall He find faith (the faith) on the earth?’ i.e. will the Church be in such a condition of trial, of testing, that it will fail to exercise faith in the very provision made for deliverance? Faith in a variety of things may indeed be found, but will it believe in and pray for that ‘blessed hope’ which alone can bring in glorious salvation” (ibid., p. 217)? “...the sleeping, unbelieving, lamentable state which is predicted” (ibid., p. 219) “A writer (Prop. Times, vol. 3, p. 160), referring to the Primitive Church loving the appearing, remarks ‘And Massillon may speak for them all, when he affirms of the first Christians, they deem it one step in apostasy, not to sigh after this return’” (ibid., p. 317). “Brookes (Maranatha, p. 365-66) says: ‘It was a leading characteristic of the early Christians that they loved His appearing; and if any who now profess to be Christians do not love it, they ought to be made to understand that there is no promise of a crown of righteousness (2 Tim. 4:8) for them at that day. What would you think of an exile if he were to exhibit the deepest distress and grief at the summons to return home after years of lonely wandering in distant lands? What would you think of a citizen, if he were to turn pale on hearing that the court will soon convene, and the judge will ascend the tribunal? What would you think of a wife, if she shuddered and trembled at the announcement that she might expect her absent husband any hour? There is a conscious guilt there that makes them cowards; and when those who claim to be Christians cry out that they cannot bear the doctrine of our Lord’s Sec. Advent, they give melancholy evidence of not knowing that there is an unsettled controversy between them and God. They cannot think without terror of Christ’s Coming, because they are not prepared for it,’ etc. The least that can be said is that they exhibit gross ignorance of the object of Christ’s Advent in relation to believers... Seiss (Last Times, p. 308) says:... ‘If it has anything distressing in it, you yourself must put it there by your hard-heartedness, your prayerlessness, and unforsaken sin’... Dr. Hodge (Com. 1 Cor 1:7) says that the Sec. Advent... ‘the Spirit awakens desire for that event,’... But alas! Let a believer to-day occupy this position of the early Christians, making the See. Advent the object of desire, longing, prayer, conversation, preaching, etc.—let him assume the spirit and motive which even our opponents in their commentaries, etc., profess to admire, admit to be eminently scriptural and practical, and inform us is positively enjoined by the Saviour as characteristic of a true believer, and what is the sad result? Why this: that his brethren in the Church regard him as ‘fanatical,’ given to ‘an unwholesome enthusiasm,’ evidencing ‘a disordered mind,’ presenting ‘an unhealthy eccentricity,’ etc... If ‘from the very first period of the Church’s history, this doctrine was associated with the most deplorable fanaticism,’ and if, according to Post-Millenarian writers—who tell us that the first three centuries constituted the purest age of the Church—Chiliasm for all that time was the orthodox faith, then beyond question the purest age of the Church was the age of the most deplorable fanaticism? And for this great defection, who were responsible but the fanatical Apostles” (ibid., p. 318)? “That watching and hoping are so unfamiliar to us, is a defect” (ibid., p. 320). “...the teachers and preachers of today who make light of the prophetic statements of God’s word. The Second Coming of Jesus will find them just as much unprepared to receive Him, as the Jews were to receive Him at His First Coming” (Larkin, DT, p. 84). “Satan... He has tried to rob the Church of her ‘Blessed Hope’ of the Lord’s return, by mixing with it a lot of false teaching and ‘time setting’ as seen in ‘Millerism,’ ‘Seventh Day Adventism’ and ‘Millennial Dawnism’” (ibid., p. 113). “Let those who are free to condemn the pious Jew for not recognizing the fulfillment of prophecy in the first advent of Christ, beware lest they fail to rightly interpret the signs of these times, or look with positive unbelief upon the stupendous events that, according to prophecy, are imminent to-day” (Chafer, S, C3:2/29). “It was necessary for Satan to rob the Church, to a great extent, of her ‘blessed hope’ of Christ’s return, before he could attract attention to his own attempts at world improvement, and establish his own authority as ruler over this age. Expectation along the God-appointed lines must be abandoned, for the most part, before humanity can be federated, and religious institutions be made to co-operate in the Satanic program” (ibid., C10:3/36). “John, who had been with Jesus on earth and in the glory, who had heard His promise to return again and who, in the Spirit, had witnessed those representations of the age-closing scenes as recorded in the Revelation, could say in answer to that final promise of Christ: ‘Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.’ John certainly had all the facts before him, and if any child of God does not find the same response in his heart to the last promise of Jesus would it not be well to discover the unhappy cause” (Chafer, KHP, 74%)? “A church with spiritual life will not be surprised when Jesus returns for the Church. But a dead church will be caught unaware because they will not be expecting Him. And as unbelievers, they shall be left behind” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 62).

Chapter 22: The Great Tribulation

Soon after the Rapture of the church (see our previous chapter, The Rapture of the Church) will follow seven years of tribulation on earth, the last half of which Jesus described as “a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:21).

The Fact of the Tribulation

The fact of the Tribulation is stated in numerous Bible passages. “When thou art in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, in the latter days thou shalt return to Jehovah thy God, and hearken unto his voice” (Deut. 4:30) “Why do the nations rage, And the peoples meditate a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, And the rulers take counsel together, Against Jehovah, and against his anointed, saying, Let us break their bonds asunder, And cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens will laugh: The Lord will have them in derision. Then will he speak unto them in his wrath, And vex them in his sore displeasure: Yet I have set my king Upon my holy hill of Zion. I will tell of the decree: Jehovah said unto me, Thou art my son; This day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, And the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; Thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter’s vessel. Now therefore be wise, O ye kings: Be instructed, ye judges of the earth” (Ps. 2:1-10). “Behold, Jehovah maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof. And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the creditor, so with the debtor; as with the taker of interest, so with the giver of interest to him. The earth shall be utterly emptied, and utterly laid waste; for Jehovah hath spoken this word. The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the lofty people of the earth do languish. The earth also is polluted under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, violated the statutes, broken the everlasting covenant. Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are found guilty: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left. The new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the merry-hearted do sigh. The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaseth. They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. The waste city is broken down; every house is shut up, that no man may come in. There is a crying in the streets because of the wine; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone. In the city is left desolation, and the gate is smitten with destruction. For thus shall it be in the midst of the earth among the peoples, as the shaking of an olive-tree, as the gleanings when the vintage is done. These shall lift up their voice, they shall shout; for the majesty of Jehovah they cry aloud from the sea. Wherefore glorify ye Jehovah in the east, even the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel, in the isles of the sea. From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs: Glory to the righteous. But I said, I pine away, I pine away, woe is me! the treacherous have dealt treacherously; yea, the treacherous have dealt very treacherously. Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth. And it shall come to pass, that he who fleeth from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the midst of the pit shall be taken in the snare: for the windows on high are opened, and the foundations of the earth tremble. The earth is utterly broken, the earth is rent asunder, the earth is shaken violently. The earth shall stagger like a drunken man, and shall sway to and fro like a hammock; and the transgression thereof shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fall, and not rise again. And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will punish the host of the high ones on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth. And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison; and after many days shall they be visited. Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed; for Jehovah of hosts will reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem; and before his elders shall be glory” (Isa. 24:1-23). “And these are the words that Jehovah spake concerning Israel and concerning Judah. For thus saith Jehovah: We have heard a voice of trembling, of fear, and not of peace. Ask ye now, and see whether a man doth travail with child: wherefore do I see every man with his hands on his loins, as a woman in travail, and all faces are turned into paleness? Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob’s trouble; but he shall be saved out of it” (Jer. 30:4-7). “And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince who standeth for the children of thy people; and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book” (Dan. 12:1).

“Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of Jehovah cometh, for it is nigh at hand; a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, as the dawn spread upon the mountains; a great people and a strong; there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after them, even to the years of many generations. A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and none hath escaped them. The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as horsemen, so do they run. Like the noise of chariots on the tops of the mountains do they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, as a strong people set in battle array. At their presence the peoples are in anguish; all faces are waxed pale. They run like mighty men; they climb the wall like men of war; and they march every one on his ways, and they break not their ranks. Neither doth one thrust another; they march every one in his path; and they burst through the weapons, and break not off their course. They leap upon the city; they run upon the wall; they climb up into the houses; they enter in at the windows like a thief. The earth quaketh before them; the heavens tremble; the sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining. And Jehovah uttereth his voice before his army; for his camp is very great; for he is strong that executeth his word; for the day of Jehovah is great and very terrible; and who can abide it” (Joel 2:1–11)? “Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining. And Jehovah will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but Jehovah will be a refuge unto his people, and a stronghold to the children of Israel. So shall ye know that I am Jehovah your God, dwelling in Zion my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more” (Joel 3:14–17). “Woe unto you that desire the day of Jehovah! Wherefore would ye have the day of Jehovah? It is darkness, and not light. As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him. Shall not the day of Jehovah be darkness, and not light? even very dark, and no brightness in it” (Amos 5:18–20)? “Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord Jehovah; for the day of Jehovah is at hand: for Jehovah hath prepared a sacrifice, he hath consecrated his guests. And it shall come to pass in the day of Jehovah’s sacri-

face, that I will punish the princes, and the king's sons, and all such as are clothed with foreign apparel. And in that day I will punish all those that leap over the threshold, that fill their master's house with violence and deceit. And in that day, saith Jehovah, there shall be the noise of a cry from the fish gate, and a wailing from the second quarter, and a great crashing from the hills. Wail, ye inhabitants of Maktesh; for all the people of Canaan are undone; all they that were laden with silver are cut off. And it shall come to pass at that time, that I will search Jerusalem with lamps; and I will punish the men that are settled on their lees, that say in their heart, Jehovah will not do good, neither will he do evil. And their wealth shall become a spoil, and their houses a desolation: yea, they shall build houses, but shall not inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, but shall not drink the wine thereof" (Zeph. 1:7-13). "And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, 'Tell us, when will these things be, and what will be the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age?' And Jesus answered and said to them, 'See to it that no one misleads you. For many will come in My name, saying, "I am the Christ," and will mislead many. And you will be hearing of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not frightened, for those things must take place, but that is not yet the end. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs. Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My name. And at that time many will fall away and will deliver up one another and hate one another. And many false prophets will arise, and will mislead many. And because lawlessness is increased, most people's love will grow cold. But the one who endures to the end, he shall be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations, and then the end shall come" (Matt. 24:3-14). "for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short" (Matt. 24:21-22). "But immediately after the tribulation of those days THE SUN WILL BE DARKENED, AND THE MOON WILL NOT GIVE ITS LIGHT, AND THE STARS WILL FALL from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken, and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29–30). “For those days will be a time of tribulation such as has not occurred since the beginning of the creation which God created, until now, and never shall. And unless the Lord had shortened those days, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect whom He chose, He shortened the days” (Mark 13:19-20). “For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, ‘Peace and safety!’ then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief” (1 Thes. 5:2-4) “And His voice shook the earth then, but now He has promised, saying, ‘Yet once more I will shake not only the earth, but also the heaven’” (Heb. 12:26). “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth” (Rev. 3:10). “And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, These that are arrayed in white robes, who are they, and whence came they? And I say unto him, My lord, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they that come of the great tribulation, and they washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb” (Rev. 7:13-14). See also Revelation 6:1-19:6. “The Jews universally held to a great time of trouble preceding the times of the Messiah... the Rabbins called ‘the birth pangs of the Messiah’” (Peters, TTK, 2:734). “...even the most spiritualizing of commentators fully concede a terrible period to precede the Millennium” (ibid., p. 751) “When the church age is brought to a close by the completion of the Body of Christ from Jews and Gentiles, the blindness will be taken away from Israel (Rom. 11:25), and the Jewish clock will again begin to tick. That period is known as the Great Tribulation, which, it is said, is to intervene between the coming of the Lord Jesus for His saints and His coming with His saints. It is the seventieth week of Daniel’s prophecy and is referred to in Daniel 9:27” (Feinberg, M, p. 159). “...many signs (Matt. 24:4-25) that would find their fulfillment in the seven years of the Tribulation... these signs will warn the nation Israel of the momentous event that they forecast, that is, the return of Messiah” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 237). “Christ’s announcement of judgment on Jerusalem undoubtedly was understood by the disciples in its prophetic context as a judgment preceding the second advent of Messiah to the earth. They asked when the judgment would come and what signs would be given to the nation Israel. Christ explained the signs in detail (Matt. 24:4-26), outlining the events of the first half of the Tribulation (vv. 4-8), and also the events of the second half (vv. 9-14). He then described the climactic sign (vv. 15-26). Christ then moved on to the next eschatological event, His second advent to the earth (vv. 27-30), followed by the regathering of Israel (v. 31). In a parenthetical statement in unfolding the eschatological events, He gave exhortations concerning watchfulness, preparedness, and faithfulness (vv. 32-51). He then resumed the eschatological revelation, pointing out that following Israel's regathering, Israel will be judged to separate the saved from the unsaved. The saved will be received into the kingdom but the unsaved will be excluded (25:1-30). In conclusion, He spoke of the judgment of living Gentiles to separate the saved from the unsaved. Again, the saved will be received into the kingdom but the unsaved will be excluded (vv. 31-46). It is evident from this consideration of Christ's eschatological discourse that He does not view Israel's covenants as having been cancelled, nor her kingdom hopes abandoned, but only postponed until a future generation to whom the good news of the kingdom is proclaimed will be brought to faith and repentance. The Lord Jesus Himself will then assume David's scepter and mount David's throne and reign in the covenanted kingdom" (ibid., p. 261). "The Old Testament revelation of the tribulation as a whole is therefore amazingly complete" (Walvoord, MK, p. 261) "In every passage of the Scriptures that the term the Day of Jehovah or the Day of the Lord is found, it is always and without exception a reference to the Tribulation period" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 173). "The term the Day of Jehovah is the most common term in the Old Testament for the Tribulation. It is a period of time that begins with the signing of the Seven-Year Covenant and ends with the Second Coming of Messiah exactly seven years later.... Day of Jehovah passages that deal with the world in general, or relate to a specific Gentile nation... There are seven such passages" (ibid., p. 181). "For there shall be a day of Jehovah of hosts upon all that is proud and haughty, and upon all that is lifted up; and it shall be brought low; and upon all the cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up, and upon all the oaks of Bashan, and upon all the high mountains, and upon all the hills that are lifted up, and upon every lofty tower, and upon every fortified wall, and upon all the ships of Tarshish, and upon all pleasant imagery. And the loftiness of man shall be bowed down, and the haughtiness of men shall be brought low; and Jehovah alone shall be exalted in that day. And the idols shall utterly pass away. And men shall go into the caves of the rocks, and into the holes of the earth, from before the terror of Jehovah, and from the glory of his majesty, when he ariseth to shake mightily the earth. In that day men shall cast away their idols of silver, and their idols of gold, which have been made for them to worship, to the moles and to the bats; to go into the caverns of the rocks, and into the clefts of the ragged rocks, from before the terror of Jehovah, and from the glory of his majesty, when he ariseth to shake mightily the earth. Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils; for wherein is he to be accounted of" (Isa. 2:12–22)? "Wail ye; for the day of Jehovah is at hand; as destruction from the Almighty shall it come. Therefore shall all hands be feeble, and every heart of man shall melt: and they shall be dismayed; pangs and sorrows shall take hold of them; they shall be in pain as a woman in travail: they shall look in amazement one at another; their faces shall be faces of flame. Behold, the day of Jehovah cometh, cruel, with wrath and fierce anger; to make the land a desolation, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it. For the stars of heaven and the constellations thereof shall not give their light; the sun shall be darkened in its going forth, and the moon shall not cause its light to shine. And I will punish the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity: and I will cause the arrogancy of the proud to cease, and will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible. I will make a man more rare than fine gold, even a man than the pure gold of Ophir. Therefore I will make the heavens to tremble, and the earth shall be shaken out of its place, in the wrath of Jehovah of hosts, and in the day of his fierce anger. And it shall come to pass, that as the chased roe, and as sheep that no man gathereth, they shall turn every man to his own people, and shall flee every man to his own land. Every one that is found shall be thrust through; and every one that is taken shall fall by the sword. Their infants also shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes; their houses shall be rifled, and their wives ravished" (Isa. 13:6–16). "The word of Jehovah came again unto me, saying, Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Wail ye, Alas for the day! For the day is near, even the day of Jehovah is near; it shall be a day of clouds, a time of the nations. And a sword shall come upon Egypt, and anguish shall be in Ethiopia, when the slain shall fall in Egypt; and they shall take away her multitude, and her foundations shall be broken down. Ethiopia, and Put, and Lud, and all the mingled people, and Cub, and the children of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword. Thus saith Jehovah: They also that uphold Egypt shall fall; and the pride of her power shall come down: from the tower of Seveneh shall they fall in it by the sword, saith the Lord Jehovah. And they shall be desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate; and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted. And they shall know at I am Jehovah, when I have set a fire in Egypt, and all her helpers are destroyed. In that day shall messengers go forth from before me in ships to make the careless Ethiopians afraid; and there shall be anguish upon them, as in the day of Egypt; for, lo, it cometh" (Ezek. 30:1–9). "Alas for the day! for the day of Jehovah is at hand, and as destruction from the Almighty shall it come. Is not the food cut off before our eyes, yea, joy and gladness from the house of our God? The seeds rot under their clods; the garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the grain is withered. How do the beasts groan! the herds of cattle are perplexed, because they have no pasture; yea, the flocks of sheep are made desolate. O Jehovah, to thee do I cry; for the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath burned all the trees of the field. Yea, the beasts of the field pant unto thee; for the water brooks are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness" (Joel 1:15–20). "Shall I not in that day, saith Jehovah, destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding out of the mount of Esau? And thy mighty men, O Teman, shall be dismayed, to the end that every one may be cut off from the mount of Esau by slaughter. For the violence done to thy brother Jacob, shame shall cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off for ever. In the day that thou stoodest on the other side, in the day that strangers carried away his substance, and foreigners entered into his gates, and cast lots upon Jerusalem, even thou wast as one of them. But look not thou on the day of thy brother in the day of his disaster, and rejoice not over the children of Judah in the day of their destruction; neither speak proudly in the day of distress. Enter not into the gate of my people in the day of their calamity; yea, look not thou on their affliction in the day of their calamity, neither lay ye hands on their substance in the day of their calamity. And stand thou not in the crossway, to cut off those of his that escape; and deliver not up those of his that remain in the day of distress. For the day of Jehovah is near upon all the nations: as thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee; thy dealing shall return upon thine own head. For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the nations drink continually; yea, they shall drink, and swallow down, and shall be as though they had not been. But in mount Zion there shall be those that escape, and it shall be holy; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions. And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble, and they shall burn among them, and devour them; and there shall not be any remaining to the house of Esau; for Jehovah hath spoken it. And they of the South shall possess the mount of Esau, and they of the lowland the Philistines; and they shall possess the field of Ephraim, and the field of Samaria; and Benjamin shall possess Gilead. And the captives of this host of the children of Israel, that are among the Canaanites, shall possess even unto Zarephath; and the captives of Jerusalem, that are in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the South” (Obadiah 1:8–20). “The Day of Jehovah will be particularly heavy on Edom because of their special mistreatment of Israel. Though other nations are equally guilty, Edom has a unique shame due to its blood relationship to Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 185). “The great day of Jehovah is near, it is near and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of Jehovah; the mighty man crieth there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm, against the fortified cities, and against the high battlements. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against Jehovah; and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as dung. Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of Jehovah’s wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he will make an end, yea, a terrible end, of all them that dwell in the land” (Zeph. 1:14–18). “But the day of the Lord will come as a thief; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall be dissolved with fervent heat, and the earth and the works that are therein shall be burned up. Seeing that these things are thus all to be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy living and godliness, looking for and earnestly desiring the coming of the day of God, by reason of which the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat” (2 Pet. 3:10–12). “In summary, then, the Scriptures give some general descriptions of the Great Tribulation as a time of darkness, torment, anguish, turmoil, confusion, death, and massive destruction, especially by fire” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 185). “Premillennialist scholars generally agree that the actual Tribulation period is described in Revelation 6-18” (Geisler, ST, 4:603).

There are remarkably parallel and confirmatory accounts of the Tribulation period in Matthew chapter 24 and Revelation chapter 6. “For [seal 1, Antichrist] many will come in My name, saying, “I am the Christ,” and will mislead many. And you will be hearing of [seal 2, war]

wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not frightened, for those things must take place, but that is not yet the end. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be [seal 3, famine] famines and [seal 6, earthquake] earthquakes. But [seal 4, death from sword, famine, pestilence, wild beasts] all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs. Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and [seal 5, martyrs] will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My name. And at that time many will fall away and will deliver up one another and hate one another. And many false prophets will arise, and will mislead many. And because lawlessness is increased, most people's love will grow cold" (Matt. 24:5-12). "And I saw when the Lamb broke one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying as with a voice of thunder, 'Come.' And I looked, and behold, [seal 1, Antichrist] a white horse, and he who sat on it had a bow; and a crown was given to him; and he went out conquering, and to conquer. And when He broke the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying, 'Come.' And another, a red horse, went out; and to him who sat on it, it was granted to take peace from the earth, and that men should slay one another; and [seal 2, war] a great sword was given to him. And when He broke the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying, 'Come.' And I looked, and behold, a black horse; and he who sat on it had a pair of scales in his hand. And I heard as it were a voice in the center of the four living creatures saying, [seal 3, famine] A quart of wheat for a denarius, and three quarts of barley for a denarius; and do not harm the oil and the wine.' And when He broke the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying, 'Come.' And I looked, and behold, an ashen horse; and he who sat on it had the name [seal 4, death from sword, famine, pestilence, wild beasts] Death; and Hades was following with him. And authority was given to them over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by the wild beasts of the earth. And when He broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of [seal 5, martyrs] those who had been slain because of the word of God, and because of the testimony which they had maintained; and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, 'How long, O Lord, holy and true, wilt Thou refrain from judging and avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?' And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told that they should rest for a little while longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brethren who were to be killed even as they had been, should be completed also. And I looked when He broke the sixth seal, and there was a great [seal 6, earthquake] earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth made of hair, and the whole moon became like blood” (Rev. 6:1-12) “The 24th chapter of Matthew should be compared with Rev. 6:1-17” (Larkin, DT, p. 134). “It should be noted here that in the great eschatological discourse of our Lord [in Matt. 24], there is an exact forecast of the judgments and their sequence under the first six seals of Revelation 6. First, He warned of false Christs (Matt. 24:5; Luke 21:8). Second, He predicted warfare on a world-wide scale (Luke 21:10). Third, He predicted famines and pestilences (Matt. 24:7). Fourth, He spoke of religious persecution and martyrdom (Matt. 24:9). Fifth, He spoke of great earthquakes and fearful sights from heaven (Luke 21:11). But terrible as these future events would be, Christ warned, they will be only the ‘beginning of sorrows’ (Matt. 24:8); thus leaving room for the other and greater sorrows to be more fully revealed by the visions of John beyond the six seals” (McClain, GK, p. 455). “A comparison of Christ’s description of the beginning of birth pangs in Matthew 24:5-7 with the first four seals of Revelation 6:1-8 indicates that the beginning of birth pangs and the first four seals are the same thing. In addition, immediately after His description of the beginning of birth pangs, Christ referred to the killing of those associated with Him (Mt. 24:9). Parallel to this, the fifth seal refers to people killed because of their testimony (Rev. 6:9-11)” (Showers, M, p. 25). “Beginning of birth pangs (Mt. 24)—First four seals (Rev. 6) 1. False messiahs who will mislead many (v. 5)—1. First seal: Rider on white horse, a false messiah (v. 2) 2. Wars, rumors of wars, nation rising against nation (vv. 6-7)—2. Second seal: Rider on red horse takes away peace from earth (vv. 3-4) 3. Famines (v. 7)—3. Third seal: Rider on black horse holds balances, represents famine (vv. 5-6) 4. Death through famines, pestilences, and earthquakes (v. 7)—4. Fourth seal: Rider on pale horse, represents death through famine, pestilence, and wild beasts (vv. 7-8) Since the beginning of birth pangs that will occur during the first half [the ‘middle of the week’ being demarcated by the ‘abomination of desolation’ as per Dan. 9:27 and Matt. 24:15—ed.] of the 70th week are the same as the first four seals, we can conclude that the first four seals of Revelation 6 will take place during the first half of Daniel’s 70th week” (ibid., p. 26). “...the beginning of birth pangs and the first four seals are the same thing and, therefore, the first four seals will also be present during the first half of the seven years” (ibid.). “...the beginning of birth pangs of Matthew 24 and the first four seals of Revelation 6 are the same thing” (ibid., p. 63) “... a series of consecutive tribulational events... First Event: False Messiahs ([Matt. 24] vv. 4-5)... Cf. the first seal (Rev. 6:1-2); Second Event: Wars ([Matt. 24] vv.

6-7)... Cf. the second seal (Rev. 6:3-4); Third Event: Famines ([Matt. 24] v. 7)... Cf. the third seal (Rev. 6:5-6); Fourth Event: Pestilences and Earthquakes ([Matt. 24] vv. 7-8)... Cf. the fourth seal (Rev. 6:7-8); Fifth Event: Martyrs ([Matt. 24] vv. 9-11)... Cf. the fifth seal (Rev. 6:9-11)” (Geisler, ST, 4:601)

Some historicist²⁰ theologians believe that many of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen, events which futurists (such as this writer) place in the future, have already been fulfilled in the past, and therefore have no reference to the future. They come to this conclusion by equating the content of Luke chapter twenty-one with that of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen, then demonstrating that several of the events of Luke chapter twenty-one (i.e. the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D.) have already been fulfilled. They conclude then that the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen must also have already been fulfilled in the past, as those of Luke chapter twenty-one have been. Futurists, on the other hand, point out that there are substantive differences between Matthew (and Mark) and Luke, making it possible therefore that while many of the events of Luke twenty-one have indeed already been fulfilled in the past, all of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen still may very well await future fulfillment. Personally, by examining three “parallel” passages in Matthew, Mark and Luke, this writer has found no substantive differences between Matthew and Mark, but has identified no less than sixteen substantive differences between Matthew (and Mark) and Luke. It is therefore this writer’s conclusion that while many of the events of Luke chapter twenty-one have indeed already had fulfillment in the first century, it is entirely possible that all of the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark chapter thirteen still await future fulfillment (during the Tribulation period). This conclusion was drawn from my careful examination and comparison of the following three “parallel” passages; passages specifically suggested to me by a good historicist friend for parallel comparison: (The numbered items are the sixteen identified differences between Matthew (and Mark) and Luke; the italicized items are common to all three books.) “Therefore when you see [1] the ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION which was spoken of through [2] Daniel the prophet, [3] standing in the holy place ([4] let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be [5] a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And [6] unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but [7] for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:15–22). “But when you see [1] the ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION [3] standing where it should not be ([4] let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains. And let him who is on the housetop not go down, or enter in, to get anything out of his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that it may not happen in the winter. For those days will be [5] a time of tribulation such as has not occurred since the beginning of the creation which God created, until now, and never shall. And [6] unless the Lord had shortened those days, no life would have been saved; but [7] for the sake of the elect whom He chose, He shortened the days” (Mark 13:14–20). “But when you see [8] Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then recognize that [9] her desolation is at hand. Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains, and [10] let those who are in the midst of the city depart, and [11] let not those who are in the country enter the city; because [12] these are days of vengeance, in order that all things which are written may be fulfilled. *Woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days; for there will be great distress upon the land, and [13] wrath to this people, and [14] they will fall by the edge of the sword, and [15] will be led captive into all the nations; and [16] Jerusalem will be trampled under foot by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled” (Luke 21:20–24). This writer’s five conclusions on this are: Conclusion #1: There are 0 (zero) substantive difference between Matthew 24:15-22 and Mark 13:14-20. There is only 1 incidental difference between them (Matthew mentions Daniel by name, but Mark does not). Therefore, it is concluded that Matthew 24:15-22 and Mark 13:14-20 both speak of exactly the same events. Conclusion #2: There are 16 substantive differences between Matthew 24:15-22 (15 differences for Mark 13:14-20) and Luke 21:20-24. Conclusion #3: Luke 21 clearly describes events that pertain both to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. and to the (future) Great Tribulation.

Matthew 24 and Mark 13, however, while clearly describing events pertaining to the (future) Great Tribulation, do not mention any events, as Luke does, that pertain specifically and exclusively to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. Therefore, while some of the prophecies of Luke 21 were clearly fulfilled at the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D., it may very well be that all of the events described in the prophecies of Matthew 24 (and Mark 13) are yet future. Conclusion #4 is in reference to the disciples' three questions: "And Jesus came out from the temple and was going away when His disciples came up to point out the temple buildings to Him. And He answered and said to them, 'Do you not see all these things? Truly I say to you, not one stone here shall be left upon another, which will not be torn down.' And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, 'Tell us, [1] when will these things be, and [2] what will be the sign of Your coming, and of [3] the end of the age'" (Matt. 24:1-3)? "And as He was going out of the temple, one of His disciples said to Him, 'Teacher, behold what wonderful stones and what wonderful buildings!' And Jesus said to him, 'Do you see these great buildings? Not one stone shall be left upon another which will not be torn down.' And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew were questioning Him privately, 'Tell us, [1] when will these things be, and [2, 3] what will be the sign when all these things are going to be fulfilled?'" (Mark 13:1-4)? "And while some were talking about the temple, that it was adorned with beautiful stones and votive gifts, He said, 'As for these things which you are looking at, the days will come in which there will not be left one stone upon another which will not be torn down.' And they questioned Him, saying, 'Teacher, [1] when therefore will these things be? And [2, 3] what will be the sign when these things are about to take place'" (Luke 21:5-7)? Conclusion #4: The disciples' three questions are most clearly articulated by Matthew. Luke answers all three questions, including the first one, which pertains to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. Matthew and Mark, on the other hand, apparently directly answer only the second and third questions, which pertain to Christ's coming and the end of the age. Conclusion #5: A reading of the entireties of Matt. 24, Mark 13 and Luke 21 confirms that only Luke mentions the events that refer exclusively to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D.

Purposes of the Tribulation

Purposes Regarding the Church

The purposes of the Tribulation regarding the church are nonexistent. “We must note that [in Matt. 24] Jesus was revealing the prophetic program for Jerusalem, the nation Israel, and the people of Israel. He made no reference to the church or the prophetic program for the church. Jesus did not speak here of events that will precede the consummation of the program for the church at the Rapture (John 14:1-4; 1 Cor. 15:51-52; 1 Thess. 4:13-17). Rather, He dealt with the future Tribulation, or seven-year period that will complete the prophetic program for Israel as revealed in Daniel 9:27. Because of its Jewish context, therefore, this portion of Scripture must be interpreted with reference to Israel and not to the church” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 248). (See our discussion of the probability that the Rapture is to occur before the Tribulation in the The Timing of the Rapture: Pre-Tribulation section of our previous chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Purposes Regarding Nations

The purposes of the Tribulation regarding the nations of the world are several. “The tribulation is primarily a divine dealing with Israel, but is also the consummation and final display of Gentile world domination” (Walvoord, MK, p. 261).

Regarding Israel, “And these are the words that Jehovah spake concerning Israel and concerning Judah. For thus saith Jehovah: We have heard a voice of trembling, of fear, and not of peace. Ask ye now, and see whether a man doth travail with child: wherefore do I see every man with his hands on his loins, as a woman in travail, and all faces are turned into paleness? Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob’s trouble; but he shall be saved out of it” (Jer. 30:4-7). “Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy. Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the anointed one, the prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: it shall be built again, with street and moat, even in troublous times. And after the threescore and two weeks shall the anointed one be cut off, and shall have nothing: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and even unto the end shall be war; desolations are determined. And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate” (Dan. 9:24-27). “Matthew 24-25, as has been shown above and innumerable times by pretribulationists, are answering questions on the end of the Jewish, not church, age (Matt. 24:1-3)” (Feinberg, M, p. 177). “Though the whole world will be involved in the Great Tribulation, it will particularly affect Israel as is evident from the massive amount of Old Testament Scripture concerning this time period” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 770). “The Tribulation period is called ‘the time of Jacob’s trouble’ (Jer. 30:7 NKJV), and Daniel was told it is the week determined for his people Israel (9:24)” (Geisler, ST, 4:617).

As God’s first-born, Israel is to receive “a double portion.” “And thou shalt say unto Pharaoh, Thus saith Jehovah, Israel is my son, my first-born” (Ex. 4:22) “But he shall acknowledge the first-born, the son of the unloved, by giving him a double portion of all that he has, for he is the beginning of his strength; to him belongs the right of the first-born” (Deut. 21:17). “Behold, I will send for many fishers, saith Jehovah, and they shall fish them up; and afterward I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the clefts of the rocks. For mine eyes are upon all their ways; they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity concealed from mine eyes. And first I will recompense their iniquity and their sin double, because they have polluted my land with the carcasses of their detestable things, and have filled mine inheritance with their abominations” (Jer. 16:16–18). “Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem; and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned, that she hath received of Jehovah’s hand double for all her sins” (Isa. 40:1–2). “The uniqueness of the Tribulation’s relationship to Israel is especially brought out in Jeremiah 30:4-7. While the Scriptures have many names for the Great Tribulation, in this passage a name is given that directly relates the Tribulation to the Jewish nation: the time of Jacob’s trouble. While it is true that all will suffer during that time, Israel will suffer more so. The basic reason for this lies in Israel’s relationship to God as God’s first born (Exod. 4:22) and, therefore, receives double both in blessing and cursing. The principle that Israel receives double for all her sins is stated in Isaiah 40: 1-2 and Jeremiah 16:16-18. This is the reason the Tribulation is uniquely the Time of Jacob's Trouble" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 770).

The purposes of the Tribulation in regard to Israel are:

To scourge the nation. "When the law age is resumed—the Jewish age has been cut short as noted in Daniel's prophecy—judgment will follow upon Israel in that time known as the 'time of Jacob's trouble' (Jer. 30:7)" (Feinberg, M, p. 152). (See our discussion of Israel's persecution during the Great Tribulation in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

To purge the nation of evildoers. "As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah" (Ezek. 20:33-38). "For then will I turn to the peoples of a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of Jehovah, to serve him with one consent. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering. In that day shalt thou not be put to shame for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me; for then I will take away out of the midst of thee thy proudly exulting ones, and thou shalt no more be haughty in my holy mountain. But I will leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall take refuge in the name of Jehovah. The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid" (Zeph. 3:9-13). "And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith Jehovah, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part into the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, Jehovah is my God" (Zech. 13:8-9). "Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, will suddenly come to his temple; and the messenger of the covenant, whom ye desire, behold, he cometh, saith Jehovah of hosts. But who can abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap: and he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi, and refine them as gold and silver; and they shall offer unto Jehovah offerings in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto Jehovah, as in the days of old, and as in ancient years. And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against the false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the sojourner from his right, and fear not me, saith Jehovah of hosts. For I, Jehovah, change not; therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed" (Mal. 3:1-6). (See our discussion of Israel's purging during the Great Tribulation in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

To end the nation's rebellion. "Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy... the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary... And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate" (Dan. 9:24-27). "...the Great Tribulation will be finished when God has completely shattered the obstinate rebellion of the nation of Israel against Him" (Showers, M, p. 46). "In light of Israel's persistent rebellion, God revealed to Daniel an extended future program that He has determined specifically for Israel and its holy city, Jerusalem (Dan. 9:24-27). God indicated that this program would involve 70 'weeks' (lit., 70 'sevens') of time (vs. 24)" (ibid., p. 47). "...'to finish the transgression' (vs. 24)... God was revealing that Israel will not stop its rebellion against His rule until all 70 weeks of His extended program for Israel have run their course. Thus, Israel's rebellion will be shattered or ended when the 70th week of Daniel ends" (ibid.). (See our discussion of Israel's repentance at the end the Great Tribulation in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

And, to bring about Israel's national salvation. “For then will I turn to the peoples of a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of Jehovah, to serve him with one consent. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering. In that day shalt thou not be put to shame for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me; for then I will take away out of the midst of thee thy proudly exulting ones, and thou shalt no more be haughty in my holy mountain. But I will leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall take refuge in the name of Jehovah. The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid” (Zeph. 3:9-13). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in; and thus all Israel will be saved; just as it is written, ‘THE DELIVERER WILL COME FROM ZION, HE WILL REMOVE UN-GODLINESS FROM JACOB.’ ‘AND THIS IS MY COVENANT WITH THEM, WHEN I TAKE AWAY THEIR SINS’” (Rom. 11:25-27). “A major purpose for the Great Tribulation is to bring about Israel's national salvation. ‘God's purpose for Israel in the Tribulation is to bring about the conversion of a multitude of Jews,’ and these will be the ones to enter the Messianic Kingdom ‘and experience the fulfillment of all Israel's covenants’” [quoting Pentecost, Things to Come, p. 237] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 531). “McClain [in The Greatness of the Kingdom, pp. 461-463] views the period of the Great Tribulation as the final preparation before the Messianic Kingdom, and this seventieth week of Daniel ‘is perfectly consistent with the purposes of God for the nation of Israel.’ This is natural, for to Israel belongs ‘in a peculiar covenantal sense the future Messianic Kingdom’” (ibid.). (See our discussions of Israel's survival of and forgiveness and regeneration as a result of the Great Tribulation in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

The purposes of the Tribulation in regard to the Gentile nations are:

To allow evil to have its highest-ever manifestation among them. (See our discussion of the evil nature of the Tribulation in our section Characteristics of the Tribulation below, and our discussion of the satanic power of the Antichrist in our section Characters of the Tribulation below.)

To test them. “Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth” (Rev. 3:10).

To teach them righteousness. “With my soul have I desired thee in the night; yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee earnestly: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world learn righteousness” (Isa. 26:9).

To bring them to repentance. “Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation that hath no shame; before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chaff, before the fierce anger of Jehovah come upon you, before the day of Jehovah’s anger come upon you. Seek ye Jehovah, all ye meek of the earth, that have kept his ordinances; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye will be hid in the day of Jehovah’s anger” (Zeph. 2:1-3). “And men were scorched with fierce heat; and they blasphemed the name of God who has the power over these plagues; and they did not repent, so as to give Him glory” (Rev. 16:9-10). “The outpouring of the wrath of God is seen to be for the purpose of bringing men to repentance (Rev. 16:9-10). While the majority will not repent, some may be turned to Jehovah by these signs” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 295).

And, to purge them of their evil rulers and people. “Behold, Jehovah maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof” (Isa. 24:1). “The earth shall be utterly emptied, and utterly laid waste; for Jehovah hath spoken this word” (Isa. 24:3). “Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, Jehovah cometh forth out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain” (Isa. 26:20-21). “I will utterly consume all things from off the face of the ground, saith Jehovah. I will consume man and beast; I will consume the birds of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea, and the stumblingblocks with the wicked; and I will cut off man from off the face of the ground, saith Jehovah” (Zeph. 1:2-3). “The great day of Jehovah is near, it is near and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of Jehovah; the mighty man crieth there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm, against the fortified cities, and against the high battlements. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against Jehovah;

and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as dung. Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of Jehovah's wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he will make an end, yea, a terrible end, of all them that dwell in the land" (Zeph. 1:14-18). "I have cut off nations; their battlements are desolate; I have made their streets waste, so that none passeth by; their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, so that there is no inhabitant. I said, Only fear thou me; receive correction; so her dwelling shall not be cut off, according to all that I have appointed concerning her: but they rose early and corrupted all their doings. Therefore wait ye for me, saith Jehovah, until the day that I rise up to the prey; for my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger; for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy" (Zeph. 3:6-8). "The birth pangs of the seven years (the 70th week of Daniel 9) before the Messiah's coming to reign are absolutely necessary to remove Satan and rebellious mankind and their rule of the world system from the earth so that the Messianic Age can be born" (Showers, M, p. 27). (See also our discussions of the dashing of the nations to pieces and the purging of all sinners from the world in the section Purposes of the Second Coming of our next chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

Characteristics of the Tribulation

Characteristics of the Tribulation include:

Deception. "And Jesus answered and said to them, 'See to it that no one misleads you. For many will come in My name, saying, "I am the Christ," and will mislead many" (Matt. 24:4-5). "Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way.

And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false, in order that they all may be judged who did not believe the truth, but took pleasure in wickedness” (2 Thes. 2:1-12). “And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him” (Rev. 12:9). “And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast” (Rev. 13:3) “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life” (Rev. 13:11-14). “The beast that you saw was and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss and to go to destruction. And those who dwell on the earth will wonder, whose name has not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they see the beast, that he was and is not and will come” (Rev. 17:8). “God’s purpose is that man, in his efforts at regeneration in his own way and not after God’s plan, shall experience in bitterness and sorrow the falsehood of his own obstinacy and pride, and this, too, by God’s ordering, in the adoration of a blasphemer” (Peters, TTK, 2:721). “...the cry of a common and universal brotherhood under one central headship to meet the longings of ages... the culmination of the sin of Adam to be like God in a headship which theocratically only belongs to God and His Christ. Antichrist is the last step in the development of Satanic influence and power in and through man, and we are assured that this last phase shall be specially pervaded by his energy in order to resist the incoming Messianic Kingdom. Amazing climax! So astonishing is it, that (Rev. 13:3 and 17:8) ‘all the world wondered after the beast,’ excepting only those who are believing and wise” (ibid., p. 723). (See also our discussion of the fact that God sends a delusion on the unbelievers in our section Events Just Prior to the Tribulation below.)

Darkness. “Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of Jehovah cometh, for it is nigh at hand; a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, as the dawn spread upon the mountains; a great people and a strong; there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after them, even to the years of many generations” (Joel 2:1–2). “Woe unto you that desire the day of Jehovah! Wherefore would ye have the day of Jehovah? It is darkness, and not light” (Amos 5:18). “Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining” (Joel 3:14–15). “But immediately after the tribulation of those days THE SUN WILL BE DARKENED, AND THE MOON WILL NOT GIVE ITS LIGHT, AND THE STARS WILL FALL from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken, and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29–30).

Sin. “Everyone who practices sin also practices lawlessness; and sin is lawlessness” (1 John. 3:4). “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God” (2 Thes. 2:1–5). “And because lawlessness is increased, most people’s love will grow cold” (Matt. 24:12–13). “And the rest of mankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands, so as not to worship demons, and the idols of gold and of silver and of brass and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk; and they did not repent of their murders nor of their sorceries nor of their immorality nor of their thefts” (Rev. 9:20–21). “And men were scorched with fierce heat; and they blasphemed the name of God who has the power over these plagues; and they did not repent, so as to give Him glory” (Rev. 16:9). “and they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their sores; and they did not repent of their deeds” (Rev. 16:11). “God will permit human nature to carry out the principles now at work to its legitimate end” (Peters, TTK, 2:721) “When man is cut loose from the Gospel truth, and follows his own imaginings, there is no iniquity and no crime too great which he is not ready to commit” (ibid., p. 722). “...the lauded and magnified perfectibility of man and the eloquently portrayed glorious future (in which eulogy many sincerely unite, thus ridiculing themselves of the humbling cross of Christ)... The nations seeking freedom from the just claims of God and the cross of Jesus, shall reap the liberty that depraved human nature inaugurates in intensified selfishness and oppression” (ibid., p. 746). “It will be a climactic period, expressly designed by a sovereign God to bring the forces of evil to a crescendo before the millennial reign of Christ which will be characterized by peace and righteousness” (Walvoord, MK, p. 258).

Absence of love. “And because lawlessness is increased, most people’s love will grow cold” (Matt. 24:12).

Trials and tribulation. “Now at that time Michael, the great prince who stands guard over the sons of your people, will arise. And there will be a time of distress such as never occurred since there was a nation until that time; and at that time your people, everyone who is found written in the book, will be rescued” (Dan. 12:1). “Alas! for that day is great, so that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob’s trouble; but he shall be saved out of it” (Jer. 30:7). “for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:21). “And I said to him, ‘My lord, you know.’ And he said to me, ‘These are the ones who come out of the great tribulation, and they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb’” (Rev. 7:14). “...a series of trial and trouble unexampled in the history of the world” (Peters, TTK, 2:731)

Anti-Semitism. “Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My name. And at that time many will fall away and will deliver up one another and hate one another. And many false prophets will arise, and will mislead many. And because lawlessness is increased, most people’s love will grow cold. But the one who endures to the end, he shall be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations, and then the end shall come” (Matt. 24:9–14). “And leave out the court which is outside the temple, and do not measure it, for it has been given to the nations; and they will tread under foot the holy city for forty-two months” (Rev. 11:2-3). “And when the dragon saw that he was thrown down to the earth, he persecuted the woman who gave birth to the male child. And the two wings of the great eagle were given to the woman, in order that she might fly into the wilderness to her place, where she was nourished for a time and times and half a time, from the presence of the serpent. And the serpent poured water like a river out of his mouth after the woman, so that he might cause her to be swept away with the flood. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened its mouth and drank up the river which the dragon poured out of his mouth. And the dragon was enraged with the woman, and went off to make war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God and hold to the testimony of Jesus” (Rev. 12:13-17). (See our discussion of Israel’s persecution in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation, as well as our discussion of Israel’s purging in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

Persecution. “Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My name. And at that time many will fall away and will deliver up one another and hate one another” (Matt. 24:9-10). “And when He broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of those who had been slain because of the word of God, and because of the testimony which they had maintained; and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, ‘How long, O Lord, holy and true, wilt Thou refrain from judging and avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?’ And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told that they should rest for a little while longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brethren who were to be killed even as they had been, should be completed also” (Rev. 6:9-11). (See our discussion of the fifth-seal martyrs in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation, our discussion of Israel’s persecution in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation, and our discussion of Israel’s purging in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

Progressive, extensive and severe wrath. “And the kings of the earth and the great men and the commanders and the rich and the strong and every slave and free man, hid themselves in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains; and they said to the mountains and to the rocks, ‘Fall on us and hide us from the presence of Him who sits on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of their wrath has come; and who is able to stand” (Rev. 6:15-17)? “For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time" (Rev. 12:12). "The wrath of God will fall progressively upon different segments of sinful humanity until at last the infliction becomes universal in extent" (McClain, GK, p. 186). "Throughout the visitation of these judgments, the supernatural manifestation of the divine Hand becomes increasingly evident, until the train of events is consummated by the entrance of the incarnate Son once again into human history, this time not only visibly but also in power and glory" (ibid., p. 456). "When the first four vials are poured out, however, the supernatural judgments are no longer partial but become universal in their effects upon the inhabitants of the earth. The sole exceptions concern small areas given special divine protection, e.g., the 144,000 of [Rev.] 7:3-8, and the woman of 12:13-17; both representing certain members of the nation of Israel. Outside of these there seems to be no exemption from the pre-Kingdom judgments" (ibid., p. 457).

Destruction. "Behold, Jehovah maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof. And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the creditor, so with the debtor; as with the taker of interest, so with the giver of interest to him. The earth shall be utterly emptied, and utterly laid waste; for Jehovah hath spoken this word. The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the lofty people of the earth do languish. The earth also is polluted under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, violated the statutes, broken the everlasting covenant. Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are found guilty: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left. The new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the merry-hearted do sigh. The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaseth. They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. The waste city is broken down; every house is shut up, that no man may come in. There is a crying in the streets because of the wine; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone. In the city is left desolation, and the gate is smitten with destruction. For thus shall it be in the midst of the earth among the peoples, as the shaking of an olive-tree, as the gleanings when the vintage is done. These shall lift up their voice, they shall shout; for the majesty of Jehovah they cry aloud from the sea. Wherefore glorify ye Jehovah in the east, even the name of Jehovah, the God of Israel, in the isles of the sea. From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs: Glory to the righteous. But I said, I pine away, I pine away, woe is me! the treacherous have dealt treacherously; yea, the treacherous have dealt very treacherously. Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth. And it shall come to pass, that he who fleeth from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the midst of the pit shall be taken in the snare: for the windows on high are opened, and the foundations of the earth tremble. The earth is utterly broken, the earth is rent asunder, the earth is shaken violently. The earth shall stagger like a drunken man, and shall sway to and fro like a hammock; and the transgression thereof shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fall, and not rise again. And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will punish the host of the high ones on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth. And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison; and after many days shall they be visited. Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed; for Jehovah of hosts will reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem; and before his elders shall be glory” (Isa. 24:1-23). “I have cut off nations; their battlements are desolate; I have made their streets waste, so that none passeth by; their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, so that there is no inhabitant” (Zeph. 3:6). “For you yourselves know full well that the day of the Lord will come just like a thief in the night. While they are saying, ‘Peace and safety!’ then destruction will come upon them suddenly like birth pangs upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape. But you, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you like a thief” (1 Thes. 5:2-4) “And there were flashes of lightning and sounds and peals of thunder; and there was a great earthquake, such as there had not been since man came to be upon the earth, so great an earthquake was it, and so mighty. And the great city was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. And Babylon the great was remembered before God, to give her the cup of the wine of His fierce wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. And huge hailstones, about one hundred pounds each, came down from heaven upon men; and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail, because its plague was extremely severe” (Rev. 16:18–21). “During the tribulation frightful judgments will be poured out upon the Gentiles, resulting in utter destruction of their cities and civilization and leading to their complete doom at the time of the return of Christ” (Walvoord, MK, p. 257).

Chronology of the Tribulation

As is the case with the Rapture of the church (see our previous chapter The Rapture of the Church), the chronology of the Tribulation involves both its timing and its duration.

Timing of the Tribulation

Thankfully, the Tribulation period is to occur only once in human history. “For then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever will” (Matt. 24:21).

The timing of the Tribulation is to be:

Future. That the Great Tribulation is yet future is evident from the fact that in Matthew chapter twenty-four, “immediately after the tribulation of those days... they shall see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory” (vss. 29-30). If the coming of the Son of man in great power and glory has not yet occurred, then neither has the Great Tribulation which immediately precedes it. And because these two events are, in Matthew chapter twenty-four and Mark thirteen, linked with Daniel’s seventieth week (via the abomination of desolation), neither has Daniel’s seventieth week yet transpired. “And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:15-22). “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken: and then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory”

(Matt. 24:29-30). “But when you see the abomination of desolation standing where it should not be (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains. And let him who is on the housetop not go down, or enter in, to get anything out of his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that it may not happen in the winter. For those days will be a time of tribulation such as has not occurred since the beginning of the creation which God created, until now, and never shall. And unless the Lord had shortened those days, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect whom He chose, He shortened the days” (Mark 13:14-20). “In looking over and comparing the various applications of the prophecy to other predictions and the facts of history, there is not one that will stand the test of a critical examination being based on a complete and perfect fulfillment of the 70 weeks in the past” (Peters, TTK, 2:665). “Apolinaris of Laodicea located the Antichrist still future in the last [Daniel’s 70th] week, considering the prophecy as only applicable to him” (ibid., p. 666). “Our Lord’s great prophetic discourse recorded in Matthew and Mark fixes the time of Israel’s final and greatest trouble definitely within the days of the Seventieth Week of Daniel’s prophecy (Dan. 9:27; Matt. 24:15-22; Mark 13:14-20)” (McClain, DP, p. 10). “...this Seventieth Week of years must still be future... particularly because our Lord Himself places the ‘abomination of desolation’ of the Seventieth Week at the end of the present age just prior to His return in power and glory (Matt. 24:15-30)” (ibid., p. 53). “The tremendous events envisioned in and following the last week of Daniel’s prophecy (9:25, 27), and subsequently developed more largely in Revelation 6-20, have never been certainly identified in any area of human history. This is evident from the utter confusion and disagreement among those who have tried to do so. Invariably, also, the chronology has to be forced into the mold of the year-day theory, and the events of history always fail to measure up to the predictions” (McClain, GK, p. 461).

After the end of the Church Age. “Feinberg [in Israel, pp. 160-161] states that Israel’s future technically begins with the close of the Church Age, with ‘the completion of the Body of Christ from Jews and Gentiles.’ At this time, ‘the blindness will be taken away from Israel,’ and then the prophetic time clock will enter the Great Tribulation, a period of time ‘which intervenes between “the fulness of the Gentiles” and the time when “all Israel shall be saved”’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 552). (See our discussions of the facts that the church is to be raptured at the end of the Church Age and prior to the Tribulation in the Timing of the Rapture section of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Before the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom. “for then there will be a great tribulation... But immediately after the tribulation of those days... they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory... But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world”” (Matt. 24:21–25:34). “...early Christian proclamation shared the view of Jewish apocalyptic that the final tribulation would precede entry into the kingdom of God” [quoting Johannes Schneider, Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, p. 674] (Showers, M, p. 215).

Before Christ’s Second Coming. “And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “But the one who endures to the end, he shall be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations, and then the end shall come. Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:13-22). “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken: and then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29-30). “Whatever the ‘abomination of desolation’ may be, there can be no doubt that Daniel put it exactly in the middle of the Seventieth Week, while our Lord placed it at ‘the end,’ just before His second coming in glory. Therefore, the Seventieth Week must also come at the end of the present age just prior to Christ’s coming in glory” (McClain, DP, p. 40).

After the beginning of the Day of the Lord. “For there shall be a day of Jehovah of hosts upon all that is proud and haughty... when he ariseth to shake mightily the earth... when he ariseth to shake mightily the earth” (Isa. 2:12-22). “Wail ye; for the day of Jehovah is at hand; as destruction from the Almighty shall it come... the day of Jehovah cometh, cruel, with wrath and fierce anger; to make the land a desolation, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it.. I will make the heavens to tremble, and the earth shall be shaken out of its place, in the wrath of Jehovah of hosts, and in the day of his fierce anger” (Isa. 13:6-13). “The word of Jehovah came again unto me, saying, Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Wail ye, Alas for the day! For the day is near, even the day of Jehovah is near; it shall be a day of clouds, a time of the nations... And they shall be desolate in the midst of the countries that are desolate; and her cities shall be in the midst of the cities that are wasted” (Ezek. 30:1-7). “Alas for the day! for the day of Jehovah is at hand, and as destruction from the Almighty shall it come” (Joel 1:15). “For the violence done to thy brother Jacob, shame shall cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off for ever. In the day that thou stoodest on the other side, in the day that strangers carried away his substance, and foreigners entered into his gates, and cast lots upon Jerusalem, even thou wast as one of them. But look not thou on the day of thy brother in the day of his disaster, and rejoice not over the children of Judah in the day of their destruction; neither speak proudly in the day of distress. Enter not into the gate of my people in the day of their calamity; yea, look not thou on their affliction in the day of their calamity, neither lay ye hands on their substance in the day of their calamity. And stand thou not in the crossway, to cut off those of his that escape; and deliver not up those of his that remain in the day of distress. For the day of Jehovah is near upon all the nations: as thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee; thy dealing shall return upon thine own head. For as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain, so shall all the nations drink continually; yea, they shall drink, and swallow down, and shall be as though they had not been” (Obadiah 1:10-16). “The great day of Jehovah is near, it is near and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of Jehovah; the mighty man crieth there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm, against the fortified cities, and against the high battlements. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against Jehovah; and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as dung. Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of Jehovah's wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he will make an end, yea, a terrible end, of all them that dwell in the land" (Zeph. 1:14–18). "The day of the Lord as presented in the Old and New Testaments includes rather than follows the tremendous events of the tribulation period (cf. Isa. 2:12-21; 13:9-16; 34:1-8; Joel 1:15-2:11; 2:28-32; 3:9-21; Amos 5:18-20; Obad. 15-17; Zeph. 1:7-18)" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 175). "The day of the Lord begins before the Great Tribulation. When the day of grace ends with the translation of the church, the day of the Lord begins at once" (ibid.). (See also our discussion of the fact that the church is to be raptured before the beginning of the Day of the Lord in the Timing of the Rapture section of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

And, after the Rapture of the church. (See our discussion of the fact that the church is to be raptured before the Tribulation in the Pre-Tribulation section of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Duration of the Tribulation

The duration of the Tribulation period is exactly seven years, as it is concurrent with and bracketed by Daniel's seventieth week. This seven-year duration is confirmed by identifying two successive three and one half year periods in the book of Revelation. "And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate" (Dan. 9:27). "Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:15-22). “But when you see the abomination of desolation standing where it should not be (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains” (Mark 13:14). “And there was given me a measuring rod like a staff; and someone said, ‘Rise and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and those who worship in it. And leave out the court which is outside the temple, and do not measure it, for it has been given to the nations; and they will tread under foot the holy city for forty-two months. And I will grant authority to my two witnesses, and they will prophesy for twelve hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth.’ These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. And if anyone desires to harm them, fire proceeds out of their mouth and devours their enemies; and if anyone would desire to harm them, in this manner he must be killed. These have the power to shut up the sky, in order that rain may not fall during the days of their prophesying; and they have power over the waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth with every plague, as often as they desire. And when they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up out of the abyss will make war with them, and overcome them and kill them” (Rev. 11:1-7). “And the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place prepared by God, so that there she might be nourished for one thousand two hundred and sixty days” (Rev. 12:6). “And the two wings of the great eagle were given to the woman, in order that she might fly into the wilderness to her place, where she was nourished for a time and times and half a time, from the presence of the serpent” (Rev. 12:14). “and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain” (Rev. 13:4-8). “As the Dragon is cast out of the Heavens in chapter 12, and he is cast out in the ‘Middle of the Week,’ it follows that chapters 6 to 11 inclusive cover the ‘First Half’ of the Week, or 3 1/2 years, and chapters 13 to 19 inclusive the ‘Second Half’” (Larkin, DT, p. 134). “Each time this period is mentioned in Scripture, whether as a thousand two hundred and threescore days, or forty-two months, or three and a half years, or time, times, and half a time, it always refers to Israel and a period in which God is dealing with that nation” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 290). “Since these signs will all occur in the seven years of Daniel’s seventieth week, the generation that sees the beginning of these signs will ‘not pass away until all these things have happened’ ([Matt. 24] v. 34), for they all will fall within a brief span of time” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 256). “The greater part of the Book of Revelation is simply an expansion of Daniel’s prophecy within the chronological framework as outlined by the same Seventieth Week, which is divided into two equal periods, each extending for 1260 days, or 42 months, or 3 1/2 years (Rev. 11:2-3; 12:6, 14; 13:5)” (McClain, DP, p. 10). “...the three and a half years of Revelation are exactly one-half of seven years... Daniel’s prophecy divides the Seventieth Week into two halves... Daniel’s prophecy of the Seventy Weeks... the inspired key to the interpretation of the Book of Revelation” (ibid., p. 55) “There is one question, however: Since the chronology in the Book of Revelation is always stated in terms of one-half of seven years, do the events of the book cover only one-half of the Seventieth Week or can both halves of the week be identified? I believe that the entire Seventieth Week of seven years can be located in the Book of Revelation, and that the key passage is 11:2-3, which reads as follows: ‘But the court which is without the temple leave out, and measure it not; for it is given unto the Gentiles [nations]: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months. And I will give power unto my two witnesses; and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in sackcloth.’ Now, since the ‘forty and two months’ of verse 2 constitute a three and a half year period during which Gentile powers shall ‘tread under foot’ the Holy City, this must refer to the last half of Daniel’s Seventieth Week, because it is in the middle of the Seventieth Week that the Roman prince stops the Jewish sacrifice and becomes their persecutor (Dan. 9:27). It is likewise apparent that the ‘thousand two hundred and threescore days’ of verse 3 must refer to the first half of the Seventieth Week, because the two witnesses bear their testimony during this period, and they cannot be slain until the Roman beast comes to the height of his power when it is ‘given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them' (Rev. 11:7; 13:7). Thus we have here clearly the entire Seventieth Week: the first half as the period of the rising power of the Roman prince and the testimony of the Two Witnesses; while the second half is the period of the Beast's absolute dominion over the world and his terrible persecution of Israel. The exact middle of the Seventieth Week is marked by the killing of the Witnesses and the sounding of the 'seventh angel' (Rev. 11:1-15). Only one question remains: Can we locate the beginning and the end of this Seventieth Week in the record of the Book of Revelation? Since we already know that the week will end with the glorious appearing of the true Christ from heaven, it is clear that the seven-year period must end in chapter 19, verses 11 to 21. And since the period begins with the revelation of the false Christ, as we have seen above, the Seventieth Week must begin in Revelation 6:1-2, where the Roman beast begins his ruthless ride to world power. Thus chapters six to nineteen of Revelation cover the Seventieth Week of Daniel's prophecy, an exact period of seven prophetic years divided into two equal halves at the sounding of the 'seventh angel.' Borne along by the same Spirit of prophecy, Daniel furnishes the chronological frame and John fills in the details. If we separate the two, prophecy becomes an insoluble enigma" (ibid., p. 56). "If we examine the context of chapters 11-13 [of Revelation], we shall find not only one, but two periods to which this same unit of measure is applied. The first is the period of the two witnesses in conflict with the beast, stated as 1260 days, ending with their death at his hands (11:3, 7). A second period follows in which the beast, having now put down all opposition and reached the place of world power, is given 'forty and two months' to continue his reign (13:4-8). Adding together these two periods of the same length respectively, obviously the total time equals exactly seven prophetic years of 360 days each" (McClain, GK, p. 459). "The literality of these time-measures is now grounded in history. It is generally agreed by devout students of Biblical prophecy that the first sixty-nine 'weeks' of Daniel's prophecy are 'sevens' of years, and that they have been literally fulfilled by the first coming of Christ (9:25). But if the first sixty-nine sevens of years are literal years, then so also must be the last seven of years. That this last seven lies prophetically in the future has been established by the testimony of Christ Himself. The argument is as follows: both Daniel and our Lord spoke of something called 'the abomination of desolation.' Whatever this thing may be, it is certain that Daniel located it within the last 'week' of his great prophecy (Dan. 9:27 with 12:11). It is equally certain that Christ placed it at 'the end' of the present age in connection with the terrible 'tribulation' immediately preceding His second coming in glory (cf. verses 15, 21, 29, and 30, in Matt. 24). Therefore, since our Lord has not yet come in glory, Daniel's final 'week' of years must lie in the future. This is Christ's own interpretation, and should settle the matter. It also harmonizes perfectly with the New Testament doctrine of the Church, because in this view her career on earth must be placed between Daniel's sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks, an area for which there is no recorded chronology" (ibid., p. 460). "A period of trouble cannot be unprecedented and at the same time general throughout the age" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 158). "The sixty-nine 'weeks' of Daniel (9:24-26) have demonstrated by their fulfillment that the time unit is a year—each 'week' being a period of seven years" (Walvoord, MK, p. 259). "...the Book of Revelation. Chapters 6-16 detail the chronological sequence of the events of the Tribulation, ending with Armageddon and the Second Coming. Then chapters 17-18 follow The Law of Recurrence: Chapter 17 provides more detail about the first half of the Tribulation and chapter 18 about the second half" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 6). "In the Book of Revelation, time zones, be they days, months, or years, are always quite literal" (ibid., p. 54) "Revelation 6-18 deals with the Great Tribulation period. Chapters 6-9 and 17 are concerned with the events of the first half, chapters 10-14 with the events of the middle, and chapters 15-16 and 18 with the events of the second half" (ibid., p. 203). "...the Book of Revelation... never are years used in a symbolic way in this book... The mention of 1,260 days, 42 months, and 3 1/2 years are all literal and not symbolic" (ibid., p. 375). "Ancient Judaism taught that a seven-year period of time will immediately precede the Messiah's coming to rule the world" (Showers, M, p. 21). "The Dead Sea Scrolls and other literature called the severe troubles of the seven years before the Messiah's coming 'the birth pangs of the Messiah'" (ibid.). (See also our discussion of Daniel's seventieth week in the The Times of the Gentiles section of our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom.)

The "beginning of birth pangs" is the first three and one half years of the seven-year Tribulation. "And Jesus answered and said to them, 'See to it that no one misleads you. For many will come in My name, saying, "I am the Christ," and will mislead many. And you will be hearing of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not frightened, for those things must take place, but that is not yet the end. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs'" (Matt. 24:4-8). "Christ introduced and discussed the beginning of birth pangs (Mt. 24:4-8) before He introduced the abomination of desolation and the Great Tribulation (Mt. 24:15-21), and it appears that He introduced and discussed events in chronological order in this section of

Matthew 24. This implies that the beginning of birth pangs will precede the abomination of desolation (of the middle of the 70th week) and the Great Tribulation (of the second half of the 70th week) and therefore will occur during the first half of that seven-year period” (Showers, M, p. 25). “...the first three-and-a-half years being called ‘the beginning of birth pains’” (Geisler, ST, 4:602)

The “Great Tribulation” is the final three and one half years of the seven-year Tribulation. “And he shall speak words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High; and he shall think to change the times and the law; and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and half a time” (Dan. 7:25). “And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “And I heard the man dressed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, as he raised his right hand and his left toward heaven, and swore by Him who lives forever that it would be for a time, times, and half a time; and as soon as they finish shattering the power of the holy people, all these events will be completed” (Dan. 12:7). “...raised both hands emphasized the solemnity and importance of the oath... affirmed the absolute certainty of the Great Tribulation’s lasting for three and one-half years” (Showers, M, p. 48) “Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:15-21). “And the court which is without the temple leave without, and measure it not; for it hath been given unto the nations: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months” (Rev. 11:2). “And the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place prepared by God, so that there she might be nourished for one thousand two hundred and sixty days” (Rev. 12:6). “And there were given to the woman the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness unto her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent” (Rev. 12:14). “and there was given to him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and there was given to him authority to continue forty and two months. And he opened his mouth for blasphemies against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tabernacle, even them that dwell in the heaven. And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them: and there was given to him authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation” (Rev. 13:5–7). “Since this period of ‘desolations’ begins in the middle of the last week and lasts ‘even unto the full end’ ([Dan.] 9:27), obviously it will continue for three and a half years. This is exactly the time specified in Daniel 7:25 during which the Roman beast ‘shall wear out the saints of the Most High’; the same measure of time given in Revelation 13:5-7 when this beast ‘shall make war with the saints and... overcome them’; the same time mentioned in Revelation 11:2, during which the holy city shall be trodden down of the Gentile nations; the same time referred to in Revelation 12:6, 14, during which the ‘woman’ (Israel) shall be given the special protection of God. Thus all of divine prophecy fits together perfectly: The same persecutor, the same kind of persecution, the same nation under persecution, and exactly the same length of time. A number of very ingenious prophetic schemes have been worked out by the artifice of taking these 1260 days and turning them into years. How much more simple and satisfactory it is to take these passages just as they read without any tampering with the language. In this way, the prophecy of the Book of Revelation synchronizes exactly with Daniel’s great prophecy of the end-time” (McClain, DP, p. 63). “His [Antichrist’s] uncontested reign, then, will span the last three and a half years of the Tribulation” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 310). “That the Scriptures emphasize that the Great Tribulation will be three and one-half years is, of course, admitted” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 127). “The Great Tribulation will begin in the middle of the seven-year 70th week. We know this because Jesus indicated that the Great Tribulation will begin with the abomination of desolation (Matt. 24:15-21), which will take place in the middle of the 70th week (Dan. 9:27)” (Showers, M, p. 24). “...the following comments by Irenaeus, Bishop of Lyons during the last quarter of the second century, are significant: ‘But when this Antichrist shall have devastated all things in this world, he will reign for three years and six months, and sit in the temple at Jerusalem; and then the Lord will come from heaven in the clouds, in the glory of the Father, sending this man and those who follow him into the lake of fire; but bringing in for the righteous the times of the kingdom’” [quoting Irenaeus, Against Heresies, Book V., chpt. 30, section 3 in The Ante-Nicene Fathers, ed, by Rev. Alexander Roberts and James Donaldson (Buffalo: The Christian Literature Publishing Company, 1885), I, p. 560] (ibid., p. 49). “...the second three-and-a-half being hard-labor birth pains or ‘the great tribulation’ ([Matt. 24] v. 21 NKJV)” (Geisler, ST, 4:602).

The Great Tribulation is to be “cut short.” “And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:22). “The phrase cut short can mean ‘to terminate.’ In other words, if those days with their awful judgment were allowed to continue indefinitely, the human race would be totally destroyed. But Christ pointed out that God will allow that period to run its course, but will terminate it according to His timetable so that a remnant will be spared” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 253).

It ends with Christ’s return. “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken: and then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29-30). “The great tribulation is brought to its close by the second advent of Christ and destruction of the world power of Gentiles as predicted by Daniel and many prophetic portions of the Old and New Testaments” (Walvoord, MK, p. 257).

The chronology will be understood clearly after the Tribulation begins. “And one said to the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders? And I heard the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and swore by him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a time, times, and a half; and when they have made an end of breaking in pieces the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished. And I heard, but I understood not: then said I, O my lord, what shall be the issue of these things? And he said, Go thy way, Daniel; for the words are shut up and sealed till the time of the end. Many shall purify themselves, and make themselves white, and be refined; but the wicked shall do wickedly; and none of the wicked shall understand; but they that are wise shall understand” (Dan. 12:6-10). “Go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end.’... The ‘time of the end’ will arrive with the beginning of the Seventieth Week, and then prophetic chronology will instantly become so crystal clear that only the ‘wicked’ can possibly misunderstand ([Dan] 12:10)” (McClain, DP, p. 39).

Sociological Systems of the Tribulation

Sociologically, the Bible's description of the Tribulation involves a global government, a global economy and a global religion, all centered in "Babylon." "...one-world government, one-world religion, and one-world economy" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 307)

Government of the Tribulation

The global government of the Tribulation begins with a ten-nation confederacy, progresses (or rather digresses) to a seven-nation confederacy, then culminates at the Tribulation's midpoint in a world dictatorship under Antichrist. "The world government during the first half of the Tribulation is that of ten kings ruling co-equally over ten kingdoms. In the middle of the Tribulation, all the other kings will turn their authority over to the Antichrist, who will then rule the world for the second half of the Tribulation. The Antichrist's rule will terminate with the Second Coming" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 689).

The global government begins with a ten-nation confederacy. "And whereas thou sawest the feet and [ten] toes, part of potters' clay, and part of iron, it shall be a divided kingdom; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay. And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly broken" (Dan. 2:41-42). "After this I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, a fourth beast, terrible and powerful, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns. I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things" (Dan. 7:7-8). "and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows" (Dan. 7:20). "Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be a fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And as for the ten horns, out of this kingdom shall ten kings arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the former, and he shall put down three kings" (Dan. 7:23-24). "Daniel 7:24a... Textually, after the world falls under the One World Government, then and only then does the One World Government split up into ten kingdoms” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 126). “And another sign appeared in heaven: and behold, a great red dragon having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven diadems” (Rev. 12:3). “And he stood on the sand of the seashore. And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names” (Rev. 13:1). “And he carried me away in the Spirit into a wilderness; and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast, full of blasphemous names, having seven heads and ten horns” (Rev. 17:3). “And the angel said to me, ‘Why do you wonder? I shall tell you the mystery of the woman and of the beast that carries her, which has the seven heads and the ten horns’” (Rev. 17:7). “And the ten horns which you saw are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but they receive authority as kings with the beast for one hour” (Rev. 17:12). “And the ten horns which you saw, and the beast, these will hate the harlot and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh and will burn her up with fire” (Rev. 17:16). “Fausset (Com. Dan. 7) correctly says: ‘the definite ten will be the ultimate development of the Roman Empire, just before the rise of the Antichrist’” (Peters, TTK, 2:696). “...in Rev. 17 the toes or horns are limited to one hour or a brief period of time” (ibid., p. 707) “...the ten horns... the formation of this confederacy is still future, and hence, not knowing who they are, it would be rashly premature to attempt even to designate any of them” (ibid., p. 752). “They arise only when the last head appears, being limited to a brief existence, and as they and the head both fight with the Lamb at His Coming” (ibid., p. 754) “This head and these horns arise about the same time” (ibid., p. 755) “The future formation of the ten kingdoms and their confederation under Antichrist... we locate the formation and confederation in the interval” (ibid., 3:149) “...the final world ruler who will emerge first as the head of a ten-nation confederacy and then will make a covenant with Israel (Dan. 9:27) seven years before the second coming of Christ” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 244). “...ten-division confederation that will constitute the revived Roman Empire (Dan. 7:7-8, 20, 23-24)” (Showers, M, p. 65)

Three of the ten kingdoms are uprooted by Antichrist. “I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things” (Dan. 7:8). “and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows” (Dan. 7:20). “Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be a fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And as for the ten horns, out of this kingdom shall ten kings arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the former, and he shall put down three kings” (Dan. 7:23-24). “...it is while the whole number of ten are contemporaneously existing with the beast that the Papacy is destroyed, and not after three are fallen... after the Papacy is overthrown by this confederation and before the war with Christ, three of those kingdoms, for some cause or other, will be uprooted by the Antichrist” (Peters, TTK, 2:755).

Ultimately, a world dictatorship under Antichrist is established. “After this I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, a fourth beast, terrible and powerful, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns. I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things” (Dan. 7:7-8). “and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows” (Dan. 7:20). “Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be a fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And as for the ten horns, out of this kingdom shall ten kings arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the former, and he shall put down three kings” (Dan. 7:23-24). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, The kingdom [singular] of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever” (Rev. 11:15). “And he stood on the sand of the seashore. And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain. If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:1-10). “And the ten horns which you saw are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but they receive authority as kings with the beast for one hour. These have one purpose and they give their power and authority to the beast” (Rev. 17:12-13). “And the ten horns which you saw, and the beast, these will hate the harlot and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh and will burn her up with fire. For God has put it in their hearts to execute His purpose by having a common purpose, and by giving their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God should be fulfilled” (Rev. 17:16-17). “If it be asked how, in opposition to many kingdoms with their varied and clashing interests, it is possible such a head over different nations can be raised up, the answer, not dogmatically expressed, may be as follows: the conflicts now going on under Socialistic, Communistic, Nihilistic, International, and Unbelieving influences are producing in many countries a similarity of feeling, sentiment, and aim. Whatever measure of success may attend their views and measures, it will soon be found that the tendencies and results are mutually destructive, unless a centralization of power is somewhere established. State and society cannot possibly exist, the direst anarchy must prevail, unless some safeguards in behalf of government are erected and sustained. Hence the idea of self-preservation, in the line of humanitarian ideas, will suggest this confederation under Antichrist. We are satisfied with the declaration of the Spirit that this is done under Divine Providence, for it is so declared, Rev. 17:17” (Peters, TTK, 2:754). “The kingdom of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign for ever and ever’ ([Rev.] 11:15, ASV)... The singular number here (supported by weight Ms. evidence) points to the satanic unity of the world system of nations at the end-time” (McClain, GK, p. 473). “...three and one-half years before the second coming of Christ when he takes the role of world ruler” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 245) “First, the man of sin will rise to power as the 11th ruler within the already formed ten-division confederation that will constitute the revived Roman Empire (Dan. 7:7-8, 20, 23-24). Second, as the man of sin rises to power, he will overthrow three of the original ten rulers of the revived Roman Empire (Dan. 7:8, 20, 24). Third, after overthrowing those three rulers, the man of sin will become the dominant ruler of the revived Roman Empire (Dan. 7:20, 24, 26; Rev. 17:12-13, 16-17)” (Showers, M, p. 65). “In light of Ezekiel 38:1-39:16, the eastern balance of power will collapse with the fall of Russian forces and her Moslem allies in Israel and the destruction of Russia itself. With the eastern power destroyed, this will open the way for a one world government” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 126). “Babylon is to be rebuilt and become the Antichrist’s political and economic capital of the world” (ibid., p. 277). (See also our discussion of Antichrist’s ruling absolutely in our section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation below.)

Economy of the Tribulation

The economy of the Tribulation will culminate in world socialism. “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life. And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed. And he causes all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free men and the slaves, to be given a mark on their right hand, or on their forehead, and he provides that no one should be able to buy or to sell, except the one who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of his name” (Rev. 13:11–17). (See our discussion of the mark of the beast in our section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation and our discussion of the fall of the city (political and economic) Babylon in our section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

Religion of the Tribulation

The religion of the Tribulation will have three consecutive stages. Initially, the “woman Babylon” will head the global religion. At the midpoint of the Tribulation, the “woman Babylon” will be destroyed by Antichrist. Finally, the Antichrist himself will be worshiped as God.

Initially, the woman Babylon heads a global apostate religion. “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the judgment of the great harlot who sits on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth committed acts of immorality, and those who dwell on the earth were made drunk with the wine of her immorality.’ And he carried me away in the Spirit into a wilderness; and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast, full of blasphemous names, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls, having in her hand a gold cup full of abominations and of the unclean things of her immorality, and upon her forehead a name was written, a mystery, ‘BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.’ And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And when I saw her, I wondered greatly” (Rev. 17:1–6). “Human religions may indeed become very tolerant of one another, but they can never tolerate the one true faith of God” (McClain, GK, p. 189). “There can never be any neutrality in relation to the true God. If men do not love Him, they will hate Him; as our Lord warned, ‘He that is not with me is against me’ (Matt. 12:30)” (ibid., p. 190). “In the first half of the Tribulation, when the world is ruled by ten kings over ten nations, these ten kings will be supporters of this one-world religious system” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 687). “Babel is Babylon (in Hebrew it is the same word)... Babylon the Great” (ibid., p. 688) “The mystery is the fact that Babylon will develop into a one-world unified religion, and will rule the world religiously for the first half of the Tribulation. It will be headquartered and based in the city of Babylon; it will be supported by the governments of that day; and it will be the primary persecutor of believers who will not submit to its religious authority. All of this was totally unrevealed in the Old Testament” (ibid.). “In [Rev. 17] verse 18, it is stated that the headquarters of Mystery Babylon will be the city of Babylon” (ibid., p. 689). “And the woman whom you saw is the great city, which reigns over the kings of the earth” (Rev. 17:18).

At the midpoint of the Tribulation, the “woman Babylon” is destroyed by Antichrist. “And the ten horns which you saw, and the beast, these will hate the harlot and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh and will burn her up with fire. For God has put it in their hearts to execute His purpose by having a common purpose, and by giving their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God should be fulfilled” (Rev. 17:16–17). “I will punish the world for their evil,’ is the ultimatum of Jehovah (Isa. 13:9-11). This infliction of divine wrath will be directed primarily against two characteristic world sins: human pride and false religion. ‘For the day of the LORD of hosts shall be upon every one that is proud and lofty, and upon every one that is lifted up; and he shall be brought low’ (Isa. 2:12). ‘In that day a man shall cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which they made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and to the bats’ (Isa. 2:20). The utter impotence of all false religion will be demonstrated before the eyes of all men. What a spectacle!—the proud adherents of the great world religions and cults casting away as worthless all the precious symbols of their misplaced faith, and crawling into ‘holes’ and ‘caves’ for refuge when the true God rises up to ‘shake terribly the earth’ (Isa. 2:19, 21)” (McClain, GK, p. 189). “The world religious system of the first half of the Tribulation will be destroyed in the middle of the Tribulation by the Antichrist and his allied kings ([Rev. 17] v. 16)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 689). (See our discussion of the fall of ecclesiastical Babylon the Great in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation below.)

Finally, the Antichrist is acknowledged and worshiped as God. “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our gathering together to Him, that you not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God” (2 Thes. 2:1-4). “And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they wor- shipped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain. If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:1–10). “Connected with this purely civil relationship there is also the religious claim of power to direct the worship of the nations, and it is this especially which gives him the title of Antichrist. Both are combined, and it is this combination which makes Him so fearful to contemplate; the former giving him the ability to enforce the penalties relating to the latter” (Peters, TTK, 2:712). “the whole Roman Empire... worship of the emperors... This religious development, culminating in imperial worship, will be repeated on a more fearful scale” (ibid., p. 729). “The design actuating these confederated powers is that of self-aggrandizement, the exaltation of Humanity, in the person of a recognized leader, above that of God Himself, the bringing of all nations in subjection to this denial of the true God and His Christ, and to the acknowledgment of the deification of Humanity in this last head” (ibid., p. 757). “Men have always been able to find reasons for worshipping themselves. F. L. Godet, noted Swiss theologian, pointed out that the ‘theological system’ of the Antichrist could be summed up in three propositions: ‘1. There is no personal God without and above the universe. 2. Man is himself his own god—the god of this world. 3. I am the representative of humanity; by worshipping me, humanity worships itself’” (McClain, DP, p. 63). “The worship of the Antichrist will replace the worship of Mystery Babylon as the world religious system, and this new world religious system will be the religion of the second half of the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 691).

Characters of the Tribulation

The characters of the Tribulation period can be divided into two broad categories: evil and good.

Evil Characters of the Tribulation

The evil characters of the Tribulation period include Satan, demons, the Antichrist, the false prophet, the apostate church (Babylon the Great) and lost mankind. “Satan will play the role of the counterfeit father... The False Prophet will play the role of the counterfeit holy spirit. The ministry of the Holy Spirit is to call men to worship Messiah... In every detail... the Antichrist will play the part of a counterfeit son” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 204).

Individually, these evil characters are:

Satan. “And there was war in heaven, Michael and his angels waging war with the dragon. And the dragon and his angels waged war, and they were not strong enough, and there was no longer a place found for them in heaven. And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him. And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, ‘Now the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of His Christ have come, for the accuser of our brethren has been thrown down, who accuses them before our God day and night.’ And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb and because of the word of their testimony, and they did not love their life even to death. ‘For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time” (Rev. 12:7-12). “And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him’” (Rev. 13:1-4)? “And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the serpent of old, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he should not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be released for a short time” (Rev. 20:1-3).

Demons. “Then another sign appeared in heaven: and behold, a great red dragon having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven diadems. And his tail swept away a third of the stars of heaven and threw them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, so that when she gave birth he might devour her child” (Rev. 12:3-4). “And there was war in heaven, Michael and his angels waging war with the dragon. And the dragon and his angels waged war, and they were not strong enough, and there was no longer a place found for them in heaven. And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him. And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, ‘Now the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of His Christ have come, for the accuser of our brethren has been thrown down, who accuses them before our God day and night.’ And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb and because of the word of their testimony, and they did not love their life even to death. ‘For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time’” (Rev. 12:7-12). “And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs; for they are spirits of demons, performing signs, which go out to the kings of the whole world, to gather them together for the war of the great day of God, the Almighty” (Rev. 16:13–14). “And he cried out with a mighty voice, saying, ‘Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! And she has become a dwelling place of demons and a prison of every unclean spirit, and a prison of every unclean and hateful bird’” (Rev. 18:2). “Fallen angels will be used on several occasions to render judgment on the earth” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 224)

The Antichrist. The Antichrist is a major character of the Tribulation period. Therefore, we will now examine his person and his career in some detail. “It was a generally received opinion of the Jews (comp. Reuss, His. of Ch. Theol. Ap. Age, p. 115, etc.) that the Messianic Kingdom could not be introduced without the previous manifestation of the Antichrist. This view was derived from Daniel and the other prophets... This belief was incorporated in the early Church, and was universally held as belonging to the period immediately antecedent to the open, visible Advent of the Lord Jesus at His Second Coming... The language, etc., of the apostles fully corroborates the Jewish view” (Peters, TTK, 2:669) “The distinctive marks of the Antichrist, as presented by the Spirit, are (1) the last and great adversary of God and Christ; (2) the development of infidelity so that it results in a denial of Father and Son, both as it relates to their authority and redemptive work; (3) the denial of the Messiahship of Jesus based upon that of His having come in humanity; (4) the denial of the Theocratic position of Jesus, founded upon that He will not come again in humanity (i.e. as ‘Son of man’); (5) the retention of a religious element, which causes him to become the object of general worship; (6) the claimer of attributes and honor belonging to God; (7) the blasphemer by way of eminence, exceeding all that has hitherto transpired, being lawless and actuated by Satan, etc; (8) the most astounding capacity and success in obtaining adherents; (9) the obtainer of vast power over the nations; (10) the leader of ten subordinate powers; (11) the eulogized head of a sustaining power; (12) the persecutor of the believers; (13) the overthrower of the whore; (14) the slayer of all who will not worship him; (15) the performer of signs and lying wonders; (16) the direct antagonist of ‘the King’ at His Coming; (17) and finally, the last head or controlling polity arising out of the revived fourth beast or Roman Empire. No wonder that he who humbly receives the Word contemplates such characteristics with astonishment and dread; and that, when locating this Antichrist still in the future (where undoubtedly the Scriptures place it), he regards this a subject well worthy of the closest attention and study” (ibid., p. 699). “...he is one who knows the truth of God as it is recorded (which he opposes), but positively and obstinately rejects it, and sets up another standard for the truth. Therefore he is no heathen, in the sense of one who has never heard the Word, but is one conversant with Bible doctrine and determined upon crushing it” (ibid., p. 712).

Regarding Antichrist’s Person:

He is an actual person; not merely an idea or an influence. “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved” (2 Thes. 2:3–10). “And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain. If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:1–10). “Brooks (El. of Proph. Interp., p. 257) asserts: ‘The Fathers were unanimous in their opinion that the Antichrist was to be a person’” (Peters, TTK, 2:679) “Almost all great movements for good or for evil, have been gathered to a head by one central personal agency” (ibid., p. 682). “Lange’s Com. on 2 Thess. p. 137... ‘In every worldly empire a tendency to apotheosis had been observable (Nebuchadnezzar, Alexander); of this current Paul notes the shameless consummation. Why should it be more conceivable that in this last empire the personal climax should be omitted, which was wanting in none of its predecessors? In all history there exists a reciprocity of action between the actual movement of the time and the achievements of an energetic personality. For every historical individual there is a thousandfold work of preparation, and he makes his appearance not otherwise than as a child of his age. And again the drift of the time only reaches an irresistible supremacy, when one man conceives the spirit of the time at its height, with bold grasp brings to bear what is fermenting half obscurely in a thousand minds, and so stamps the age with his seal. He can do it, if he has the courage—after all, it will be the effrontery—to express and carry out what is in a thousand hearts” (ibid., p. 683).

Some scholars envision for him a miraculous conception. “and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed: he shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel” (Gen. 3:15). “that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders” (2 Thes. 2:9) “Hippolytus made Antichrist (Baring Gould’s Curious Myths) the devil, occupying a phantom body, or (Brooks, El. Proph. Interp.) the devil assuming ‘the appearance of flesh, but not be really so, and boast himself to be born of a virgin’” (Peters, TTK, 2:680). “During the Middle Ages many believed (Hagenbach’s His. of Doc., vol. 1, p. 120, Dollinger’s Prophecies of the Middle Ages) ‘that Antichrist would either be brought forth of a virgin, or be the offspring of a bishop and a nun’” (ibid.). “Chapell (Proph. Times, Sep., 1873, p. 131), says: ‘if “the mystery of godliness” was God manifest in the flesh, perhaps, the “mystery of iniquity” will be Satan manifest in the flesh.’ ‘It is a serious question whether the Incarnation will not have a Satanic parallel; whether Antichrist will not be a demon-man just as Christ was a God-man; whether he will not be miraculously begotten by Satan as Christ was by the Holy Ghost’” (ibid., p. 681). “His Supernatural Origin... Genesis 3:15... This verse not only contains the first prophecy of the coming of the Messiah, it at the same time gives the first prophecy of the Antichrist” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 212). “Satan will counterfeit the virgin conception and will some day impregnate a Roman woman who will give birth to Satan’s seed who is going to be the Antichrist” (ibid., p. 213). “A time is coming when the situation of Genesis six will be repeated. A fallen angelic being, this time Satan himself, will impregnate a Gentile woman of Roman origin who will then give birth to Satan’s son. The end product will be a counterfeit god-man” (ibid.).

He is imbued with Satanic power. “And he [Satan] led Him up and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. And the devil said to Him, ‘I will give You all this domain and its glory; for it has been handed over to me, and I give it to whomever I wish. Therefore if You worship before me, it shall all be Yours’” (Luke 4:5-7). “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved” (2 Thes. 2:3–10). “And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him’” (Rev. 13:2–4)? “...a man energized by Satan, or having Satanic powers, was believed in by Justin, Irenaeus, Tertullian, Origen, Hippolytus, Cyprian, Victorinus, Lactantius, Cyril of Jerusalem, Jerome, Chrysostom, Hilary of Poitiers, Augustine, and Ambrose” (Peters, TTK, 2:681). “Irenaeus, who conversed with the disciples of John, said: ‘By Antichrist we understand a single individual whom Satan shall use pre-eminently as his instrument, just in the same way as he did the serpent when tempting our first parents to rebel against God’” (ibid., p. 682)

Concerning his identity, “If, in days to come, a personal Antichrist, more God-defying and blaspheming than he who sits in Rome, shall rise, one of the marks that will signalize him as the concentration of satanic energy and hate, will be that he is a pronounced Anti-Chiliast” (Peters, TTK, 1:552). “...this Antichrist will arise out of and really be the last head of this same Roman power, fallen back to its former unchristian (e.g. given to idol worship), paganized condition” (ibid., 2:328). “All the ancient Fathers, so far as we have their testimony, unite in declaring that the Antichrist shall arise out of the Roman Empire. Lactantius represents the early opinion, when he holds (Div. Inst., B. 7, ch. 16, etc.) that the empire should continue in a divided form being ‘dispersed among many and divided’ until the final confederation. The Jews, from Daniel alone, entertained similar views which were perpetuated” (ibid., p. 649). “...the Reformers were mistaken in confounding the Romish Babylon with the last and highest concentration of Antichristian power” (ibid., p. 687). “This one is Satan’s great masterpiece in the imitation of the program of God” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 306). “Antichrist... it is a well-chosen title. It is a title that describes his true intent, which is to be against Messiah. All his other names essentially portray the various characteristics which he will use in his opposition to Messiah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 205). “The Antichrist, being the counterfeit son, will have both a natural origin and a supernatural origin in imitation of the True Son” (ibid.). “The Antichrist Will Not Be a Jew... how would the Gentiles accept him if he is a Jew” (ibid., p. 206)? “To say that the Antichrist is to be a Jew contradicts the very nature of the Times of the Gentiles” (ibid., p. 210).

Regarding Antichrist’s Career:

In summary, “...the Antichrist... As a single individual it is impossible for him to accomplish what is predicted; it is as a person directing a powerful government, etc., that he performs such great things” (Peters, TTK, 2:687). “...a false messianic ruler (the ‘strong delusion’ of 2 Thess. 2:9-11), who rises to world power in the space of three and a half years and who will wield his terrible power during a subsequent period of the same length” (McClain, GK, p. 460). “Satan intends to present the world with his masterpiece of deception. He will offer the world a substitute for Jesus Christ who, by Satan’s power, will appear to give the world everything that Jesus Christ will give when He assumes His rightful role as King” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 302). “The Antichrist is the counterfeit son in every respect. There has been a counterfeit multiplicity of names, a counterfeit virgin birth, a counterfeit god-man, and now a counterfeit death and resurrection. A counterfeit second coming to rule the world can be seen as he will move to possess the nations and kingdoms of the world. Satan is playing the part of the counterfeit father in this scenario. For as the True Father gave His authority to the True Son, so the counterfeit father will give his authority to the counterfeit son” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 244). “Revelation 13:1, 4-8, 11-14, 16-18... From this we can conclude: (1) The beast (Antichrist) will claim to be God and demand that all worship be given to him in the middle of the Tribulation. (2) He will perform impressive, successfully deceptive signs. (3) He will persecute God’s people. (4) He will rule the world. (5) He will not allow people to buy or sell without his mark (666). (6) His reign will last forty-two months, designated by Daniel as half (the second half) of the seven-year Tribulation period. (7) During this same time the ‘woman’ (Israel) will flee into the wilderness to be preserved through the rest of the Tribulation, ‘1,260 days’ (which is also three and one-half years, 12:6). (8) Also during this time, 144,000 Jews—12,000 from each tribe—will be saved, and through them so will a great multitude of others (7:4-9; 14:1-5)” (Geisler, ST, 4:610).

In sequence:

Antichrist arrives on the scene. (See our discussion of Antichrist's arrival on the scene in the section Events Just Prior to the Tribulation below.)

He is identified. (See our discussion of Antichrist's identification in the section Events Just Prior to the Tribulation below.)

He is judged by God. "I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things. I beheld till thrones were placed, and one that was ancient of days did sit: his raiment was white as snow, and the hair of his head like pure wool; his throne was fiery flames, and the wheels thereof burning fire" (Dan. 7:8-9). "The time sequence of events must not be overlooked here. The divine court is set in heaven, not at the end of the little horn's career, nor at its height, but at its beginning. The order in Daniel 7:8-9 is unmistakable: The little horn rises on earth and opens his mouth to speak 'great things'—and at this precise moment the prophet looks up to behold the high court of divine justice set in heaven" (McClain, GK, p. 184).

He is revealed. (See our discussion of Antichrist's revealing (at the removal of the restrainer) in the section Events Just Prior to the Tribulation below.)

He receives his power from Satan. "And he [Satan] led Him up and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. And the devil said to Him, 'I will give You all this domain and its glory; for it has been handed over to me, and I give it to whomever I wish. Therefore if You worship before me, it shall all be Yours'" (Luke 4:5-7). "Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved" (2 Thes. 2:3-10). "And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him’” (Rev. 13:2–4)? “Jesus resisted Satan’s offer of power when tempted, but Antichrist gladly accepts of Satan’s tender” (Peters, TTK, 2:758)

He conquers nations. (See our discussion of Antichrist’s conquering at the opening of the first seal in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation below.)

He confirms a covenant with Israel, beginning the Tribulation. (See our discussion of Antichrist’s confirming a covenant with Israel in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation below.)

He recovers from a fatal wound. “And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast” (Rev. 13:3)

He is accompanied by a false prophet. “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life” (Rev. 13:11–14). “And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone” (Rev. 19:20).

He performs miracles. “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders” (2 Thes. 2:3–9) “...the performance of miracles. That which unbelief has always ridiculed and scorned as the weakness of Christianity, will be assumed to support unbelief and will be appealed to as its grand persuasive” (Peters, TTK, 2:758). “Pharaoh’s Magicians... Satanic agency—‘after the working of Satan with all power, and signs, and lying wonders’” (ibid.). “Their ‘miracles,’ however astounding and well calculated to entrap the unwary and unbelieving, will not deceive the humble believer in the Word of God, simply because these scenes and agencies are too plainly foretold” (ibid., p. 760).

He deceives the whole world. “And Jesus answered and said to them, ‘See to it that no one misleads you. For many will come in My name, saying, “I am the Christ,” and will mislead many’” (Matt. 24:4-6). “And many false prophets will arise, and will mislead many” (Matt. 24:11). “I have come in My Father’s name, and you do not receive Me; if another shall come in his own name, you will receive him” (John 5:43). “that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false, in order that they all may be judged who did not believe the truth, but took pleasure in wickedness” (2 Thes. 2:9-12). “And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast” (Rev. 13:3) “And he [the false prophet] deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life” (Rev. 13:14). “Those who reject God are the most superstitious, seeking, as Shenkel says, after ghosts” (Peters, TTK, 2:758). “As God set the nation Israel aside who are the ‘natural branches,’ that the door might be opened for Gentiles to hear the gospel in this age, in like manner He will set aside the Gentiles when their day of grace is over” (Chafer, ST, 3:306).

He breaks the covenant with Israel at the mid-point of the Tribulation. (See our discussion of Antichrist's breaking the covenant with Israel in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation below.)

He presents himself as God in the temple at the mid-point of the Tribulation. (See our discussion of Antichrist's seating himself in the temple, claiming to be God, in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation below.)

He blasphemes God. (See our discussion of Antichrist's blaspheming God in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation below.)

He is worshiped. “And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain” (Rev. 13:8). “And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed” (Rev. 13:15). “And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, ‘If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.’ Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus” (Rev. 14:9-12).

He rules absolutely. (See our discussions of Antichrist's ruling as world dictator in the section Government of the Tribulation above and in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation below.)

He persecutes Israel. (See our discussion of Antichrist's persecution of Israel in the section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation below.)

He is conquered and killed by Christ at His appearing. (See our discussion of Christ's conquering and killing Antichrist in the section Purposes of the Second Coming in our chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

And finally, he is resurrected and thrown alive into the lake of fire. (See our discussion of Christ's resurrecting and casting Antichrist into the lake of fire in the section Events in Preparation for the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

Continuing now our discussion of the evil characters of the Tribulation period:

The false prophet. “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life. And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed. And he causes all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free men and the slaves, to be given a mark on their right hand, or on their forehead, and he provides that no one should be able to buy or to sell, except the one who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for the number is that of a man; and his number is six hundred and sixty-six” (Rev. 13:11-18). “And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs” (Rev. 16:13) “And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone” (Rev. 19:20). “...the counterfeit holy spirit in the person of the False Prophet” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 249)

The apostate church (the woman Babylon or mystery Babylon or ecclesiastical Babylon or Babylon the Great). “And another angel, a second one, followed, saying, ‘Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, she who has made all the nations drink of the wine of the passion of her immorality’” (Rev. 14:8). “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the judgment of the great harlot who sits on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth committed acts of immorality, and those who dwell on the earth were made drunk with the wine of her immorality.’ And he carried me away in the Spirit into a wilderness; and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast, full of blasphemous names, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls, having in her hand a gold cup full of abominations and of the unclean things of her immorality, and upon her forehead a name was written, a mystery, 'BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.' And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And when I saw her, I wondered greatly" (Rev. 17:1–6). "...a fighting and struggling Church, which shall ultimately, by apostatizing (2 Thess. 2) and by lack of faith (Luke 18:1-8), fall under the power, as a punishment, of a culminated Antichrist, and endure a fearful persecution (e.g. Rev. 14, Dan. 7, etc.)" (Peters, TTK, 1:634). "Apostate Christendom (the bad fish and the tares of Matthew 13) will be included in mystery Babylon, which appears to consist of all the false religious systems of all ages" (Feinberg, M, p. 161). "When a woman is used symbolically in Scripture, she represents a religious entity" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 58). (See our discussion of the fall of ecclesiastical Babylon in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation below.)

And, lost mankind. "Because you have kept the word of My perseverance, I also will keep you from the hour of testing, that hour which is about to come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell upon the earth" (Rev. 3:10). "And the rest of mankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands, so as not to worship demons, and the idols of gold and of silver and of brass and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk; and they did not repent of their murders nor of their sorceries nor of their immorality nor of their thefts" (Rev. 9:20-21). "And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, 'Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?' And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain” (Rev. 13:1–8). “And men were scorched with fierce heat; and they blasphemed the name of God who has the power over these plagues; and they did not repent, so as to give Him glory. And the fifth angel poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and his kingdom became darkened; and they gnawed their tongues because of pain, and they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their sores; and they did not repent of their deeds” (Rev. 16:9–11).

Good Characters of the Tribulation

The good characters of the Tribulation period include the 144,000, the two witnesses and the Tribulation saints.

Individually, these good characters are:

The 144,000. (See our discussion of the sealing of the 144,000 in the section Events of the First Half of the Tribulation below.)

Events in Preparation For the Tribulation

In this section we will take a look at the ideologies and events that prepare the world for the Tribulation, as well as the events that are prophesied to transpire just before the Tribulation begins.

Ideologies in Preparation for the Tribulation

It is prophesied and therefore expected that anti-Christian ideologies will increase in popularity and influence as the Tribulation period draws near. These ideologies include humanism, liberalism, “tolerance” and spiritualism. For a discussion of these ideologies in the light of premillennialism, see the section Instruments of Opposition of our chapter The Kingdom in Church History. See also our discussion of the ungodly characteristics of the last days of the church in the section Chronology of the Church Age of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church). “Dr. Draper (His. Conflict between Religion and Science, Pref.)... the ‘extensive departure of intelligent classes, etc., from the public religious faith... The time is rapidly approaching when it will give rise to serious political results’... infidelity being more in accord with the natural man—being willingly embraced as more desirable than the restraints imposed by God’s law—will ever reproduce and exalt the reasoning so oft refuted” (Peters, TTK, 3:134).

Events in Preparation for the Tribulation

While the primary focus of the Kingdom during this Church Age has been on gathering the kings and priests for the future Kingdom (see the section The Current Purpose of the Church Age of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (the Church)), other events have been transpiring in preparation for the Tribulation period (which is in turn preparation for the Millennial Kingdom). Events in preparation for the Tribulation include the destruction of the second Jewish temple and the dispersion of the Jews, the trampling of Jerusalem by the Gentiles, the preservation of Israel as a people, the regathering of Israel to the land in unbelief, the reestablishment of Israel as a nation, war, widespread godlessness and apostasy in the church. “Instead of being defeated in His Theocratic purpose, God has been steadily making preparation for its sudden and overwhelming appearance” (Peters, TTK, 2:588).

Considered individually, these events in preparation for the Tribulation period are:

The destruction of the second Jewish temple and the dispersion of the Jews. “And Jesus came out from the temple and was going away when His disciples came up to point out the temple buildings to Him. And He answered and said to them, ‘Do you not see all these things? Truly I say to you, not one stone here shall be left upon another, which will not be torn down’” (Matt. 24:1–2). “But when you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then recognize that her desolation is at hand. Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains, and let those who are in the midst of the city depart, and let not those who are in the country enter the city; because these are days of vengeance, in order that all things which are written may be fulfilled. Woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days; for there will be great distress upon the land, and wrath to this people, and they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led captive into all the nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled under foot by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled” (Luke 21:20–24). “The destruction of the temple and dispersion of the nation forms a new epoch, showing that Divine forbearance in allowing the nation, as such, further space for national repentance was past, until a certain time had elapsed, etc.” (Peters, TTK, 2:465) “Fausset (Com. Isa. 2:3) remarks: ‘If the curse foretold against Israel has been literally fulfilled, so shall the promised blessing be literal. We Gentiles must not, while giving them the curse, deny them their peculiar blessing by spiritualizing it’” (ibid., 3:64).

The trampling of Jerusalem by the Gentiles. “and they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led captive into all the nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled under foot by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled” (Luke 21:24). “Seeing eighteen centuries of literal fulfillment in the treading down of the city by the Gentiles, we feel impelled to await the final catastrophe” (Peters, TTK, 2:769). “Jesus... Messiah... the builders that rejected Him have borne their sad punishment for eighteen centuries” (ibid., 3:601) (See our discussion of Jerusalem’s trampling by the Gentiles in the section The Times of the Gentiles of our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom.)

The preservation of Israel as a people. “And they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, in their trespass which they trespassed against me, and also that, because they walked contrary unto me, I also walked contrary unto them, and brought them into the land of their enemies: if then their uncircumcised heart be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity; then will I remember my covenant with Jacob; and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land. The land also shall be left by them, and shall enjoy its sabbaths, while it lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity; because, even because they rejected mine ordinances, and their soul abhorred my statutes. And yet for all that, when they are in the land of their enemies, I will not reject them, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them; for I am Jehovah their God; but I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations, that I might be their God: I am Jehovah” (Lev. 26:40–45). “Thus saith Jehovah, who giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, who stirreth up the sea, so that the waves thereof roar; Jehovah of hosts is his name: If these ordinances depart from before me, saith Jehovah, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever. Thus saith Jehovah: If heaven above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, then will I also cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 31:35–37). “Behold, the eyes of the Lord Jehovah are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from off the face of the earth; save that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith Jehovah” (Amos 9:8). “For I, Jehovah, change not; therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed” (Mal. 3:6). “The modern [in 1884—ed.] Jews... their own scattered condition and continued preservation among the nations (as predicted) confirms the assurances of this God” (Peters, TTK, 1:288). “(Lev. 26:44), ‘Yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the Lord their God.’ Whether they believe it or not, mercy follows them for the sake of the covenant, and mercy will yet verify that covenant in the history of the nation, for ‘their God’ has sworn it” (ibid.). “...a preservation of the nation. This has been done; and to-day we see that nation wonderfully continued down to the present, although enemies, including the strongest nations and most powerful empires, have perished” (ibid., p. 351). “Every Jew, if we will but ponder the matter, that we meet on our streets is a living evidence that the Messiah will yet some day reign gloriously on David’s throne and over his Kingdom, from which to extend a world-wide dominion” (ibid.). “Why even in the time of rejection are they so wonderfully preserved, and why is their restoration so plainly predicted, unless the promises remain linked with them? Why should the threatenings be carefully given to them and the blessings pertaining to the very same people, be taken from them? Surely it is illogical, if not worse, to appropriate the covenant promises to ourselves, and leave the curses to the Jews. God has united them and bound them together in an inseparable manner with that people, and seeing the latter so fearfully verified, enjoins upon us the belief that the former will also yet be realized. The ‘hope of Israel’ is our hope; and such hope is greatly increased by an intelligent and consistent Scriptural interpretation of the design of this dispensation” (ibid., p. 589). “The Jews, therefore, owing to their nationally promised perpetuity and future position as a nation in the yet unfulfilled Purposes of God, are preserved down to the present day as a people, separate and distinct from all others, who, if such were the Divine Will, can at any moment be reorganized into a distinctive nationality among the nations” (ibid., 2:56). “Basnage (His. Jews) has well said: ‘The preservation of the Jews in the midst of the miseries which they have undergone during 1700 years is the greatest prodigy that can be imagined.’ An Art. in the Eclectic Mag. (taken from the Saturday Review), Ap., 1877, entitled The Jews in Europe, asserts: “The Jews really stand by themselves as the case of a whole nation dispersed in all parts of the world, yet remaining a nation, cherishing a national feeling, but having no local country of its own anywhere.’ Speaking of the purity of Jewish descent, the writer adds: “The gens remains a gens by birth, and not by legal fiction. The phenomenon is one of the strangest in all history; the more it is thought of the more its thorough strangeness comes out” (ibid., p. 59). “Milman [His. of the Jews] (p. 140)... ‘the Jews, equally inflexible and unsocial, maintain their seclusion from the rest of mankind’” (ibid.). “Clarke (Ten Religions, p. 421) says: ‘Dispersed as they are, they are still a distinct people, a nation within other nations. Like drops of oil floating on the water, but never mingling with it, so the Jews are found everywhere floating drops of national life in the midst of other nationalities’” (ibid.). “The greatness and majesty of God, as well as His faithfulness, are shown in this wonderful, covert preservation” (ibid., p. 66). “One of the greatest of modern miracles has been the preservation of the identity of Israel as a race and nation, a fact which has been the stumbling stone for the amillennial denial of Israel’s future. To deny that Israel has a bona fide existence today is to ignore that which is plain to everyone else” (Walvoord, MK, p. 162). “The third evidence is the ‘astounding fact that Israel has continued as a nation until this very day.’ Other ancient nations have disappeared, decayed, or assimilated, ‘but the Jews continue as a recognizable group’ to the point of the reestablishment of Israel as a nation. For Ryrie, this event ‘should prove beyond all doubt to anyone that natural Israel is not the Church’” [quoting Ryrie, Pre-millennial Faith, pp. 65-67] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 446). “To Walvoord [Millennial Kingdom, pp. 160-162], ‘one of the greatest of modern miracles has been the preservation of the identity of Israel as a race and nation’” (ibid., p. 460). “If God had no future for Israel, the Jews would have long disappeared just like other ancient peoples who were exiled from their home country; this has not happened” (ibid., p. 462). “Yes! Still preserved in all their woe, still unconsumed by all these penal fires! Preserved! And for what? Let a thousand glorious prophecies answer!... What a glorious Jehovah is the Lord God of Israel! With what awe, what love, what fear, what hope, should this character, as exhibited towards Israel, inspire us” [quoting Horatius Bonar, “The Responsibilities of Christians as Regards the Jews,” The Quarterly Journal of Prophecy (October, 1855), pp. 347-352] (Horner, FI, p. 326)! “Let men speak or think as they will, Israel in the present is with us” [quoting Horatius Bonar, “The Responsibilities of Christians as Regards the Jews,” The Quarterly Journal of Prophecy (October, 1855), p. 350] (ibid., p. 327)

The regathering of Israel to the land in unbelief. “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord will set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, that shall remain, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. And he will set up an ensign for the nations, and will assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth” (Isa. 11:11–12). “In other words, the last one [the one yet to occur at Christ’s Second Advent—ed.] is only the second one. If the last one is the second one, how many can there be before that? Only one. The first one could not have been the return from Babylon since that was not an international regathering from the four corners of the world, only a migration from one country (Babylonia) to another (Judea)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 102). “As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah” (Ezek. 20:33–38). “The regathering of verses 34–35 [of Ezekiel chapter 20] precedes the judgment. For that reason, it is better to take the regathering of verses 34–35 to speak of the regathering of Israel before the Tribulation. This regathering is now visible with the modern State of Israel, which Walvoord himself sees as having prophetic significance. Following this regathering, comes the judgment of verses 36–37 which is best understood to be the judgment of the Tribulation. It is during this period that the ‘rebels’ are purged out (the two thirds) and the rest are refined and saved. Then those who become believers become part of the final regathering of verse 38” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 543). “God will first regather His people from all over the world where they have been scattered. That this gathering is not in faith, but in unbelief, is seen from the fact that this gathering is with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out. This phrase is repeated twice in verses 33 and 34. This regathering in unbelief occurs after wrath has been poured out on the people. It is no accident that out of the fires of the Nazi Holocaust, the State of Israel was born” (ibid., p. 717). “In these verses, Ezekiel clearly describes a worldwide regathering in unbelief, from wrath and for wrath, in preparation for a specific period of judgment that will then lead to a national salvation, and in turn to their final restoration” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 101). “And the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, the house of Israel is become dross unto me: all of them are brass and tin and iron and lead, in the midst of the furnace; they are the dross of silver. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Because ye are all become dross, therefore, behold, I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem. As they gather silver and brass and iron and lead and tin into the midst of the furnace, to blow the fire upon it, to melt it; so will I gather you in mine anger and in my wrath, and I will lay you there, and melt you. Yea, I will gather you, and blow upon you with the fire of my wrath, and ye shall be melted in the midst thereof. As silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so shall ye be melted in the midst thereof; and ye shall know that I, Jehovah, have poured out my wrath upon you” (Ezek. 22:17-22). “It is also a regathering in unbelief because they are filled with the impurities of brass and iron and lead and tin” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 101). “Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: I do not this for your sake, O house of Israel, but for my holy name, which ye have profaned among the nations, whither ye went. And I will sanctify my great name, which hath been profaned among the nations, which ye have profaned in the midst of them; and the nations shall know that I am Jehovah, saith the Lord Jehovah, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes. For I will take you from among the nations, and gather you out of all the countries, and will bring you into your own land” (Ezek. 36:22-24). “While primarily dealing with the regeneration of Israel, Ezekiel 36:22-24 nevertheless makes it clear that a regathering takes place before the regeneration” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 102). “Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nation that hath no shame; before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chaff, before the fierce anger of Jehovah come upon you, before the day of Jehovah’s anger come upon you. Seek ye Jehovah, all ye meek of the earth, that have kept his ordinances; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye will be hid in the day of Jehovah’s anger” (Zeph. 2:1-3). “In the preceding section of Zephaniah 1:14-18, Zephaniah described some features of a time called the great day of Jehovah, or as other translations have it, ‘the day of the Lord.’ This is the most common Old Testament name for the Tribulation. In Zephaniah 2:1-2, Zephaniah speaks of an event that is to occur before the great day of Jehovah begins. In verse one, the nation of Israel is told to gather together. It is clear from this verse that this is a gathering in unbelief. In verse two, the word before is used three times in relationship to the preceding passage regarding the Tribulation. One of these ‘befores’ includes the before the day of Jehovah itself. While other texts speak of a regathering in unbelief in preparation for judgment, this passage clearly states that this regathering in unbelief will occur before the Tribulation actually begins” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 719). “This is a gathering in unbelief for it is a nation not yet ashamed of her sins” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 103). “The dispersion and the restoration, the tribulation and the blessings cannot be contemporaneous. In the predictions, the latter invariably follows the former” (Peters, TTK, 2:57). “A part of the nation under political influences, and probably under the auspices of some government favorably disposed (various writers refer to England), is thus restored to Palestine in a state of unbelief, and thus drinks the last dregs of Jewish tribulation. This partial restoration must be carefully distinguished from the one under the Messiah, for this is a restoration which means suffering and terrible persecution by Antichrist, while the other is full of blessing” (ibid., p. 85). “The regathering of historic Israel is one of the major themes of prophetic Scripture, beginning in the writings of Moses (Deut. 30:1-3) and reaching its climax in the minor prophets. Yet the sole notice given to it in many theological works is a denial that it will ever be fulfilled” (McClain, GK, p. 198). “And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither Jehovah thy God hath driven thee, and shalt return unto Jehovah thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul; that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee” (Deut. 30:1-3). “The united testimony of the prophets is all to the same point, that Israel will yet be regathered from the nations of the world and reassembled in their ancient land. The beginnings of this final regathering are already [in 1958—ed.] apparent in contemporary history with almost two million Jews, or approximately one in six of all the Jewish population of the world, now living in Palestine. Scriptures make clear that the regathering will continue until consummated after the second advent of Christ” (Walvoord, MK, p. 182). “The significance of the regathering is that it justifies the literal interpretation of prophecy which anticipated just such a movement. If the regathering is to be taken literally, as present history would indicate, it would naturally follow that the predicted golden age is ahead following the second advent of Christ. Just as the second gathering was the prelude for the first advent of Christ, so the third regathering is the prelude for the second advent” (ibid., p. 186). “The present partial possession of the land is a token. The complete possession awaits the coming of Israel’s Redeemer” (ibid.). “A nation ‘scattered for almost two millenniums are now firmly entrenched in the land of their forefathers’” [quoting Walvoord, Israel in Prophecy, preface] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 496). “The Egyptian sojourn did fulfill the predicted first dispersion from the land and provided the first regathering under Moses, both of which were predicted by the Abrahamic Covenant and both of which were literally fulfilled... The Jewish people were carried into the Assyrian and Babylonian Captivities; but this second dispersion was also predicted, this time by the prophets of Israel, as was the second return seventy years later. Once again, both ‘the promise that they would be carried off into captivity and that they would return to the land were literally fulfilled.’ ...The scattering of Israel ‘over the entire earth has continued for almost 1900 years and no significant reversal was witnessed until our generation.’ Even in the third dispersion, which involved a worldwide scattering ‘among all the nations,’ prophecy was again literally fulfilled ‘in that the nation Israel was nevertheless preserved.’ In fact, ‘Israel has been preserved as a distinct people in a situation in which any other race or nationality would have long been swallowed up.’ As for the land, it was for all these centuries emptied of Jews with ‘not a single Jewish village’ and only 25,000 Jews scattered in towns and cities ‘in all of their ancient land,’ and ‘in the area which once belonged to their forefathers’” [quoting Walvoord, Church in Prophecy, pp. 166-174] (ibid., p. 497). “The third regathering ‘is distinct from all previous historic regatherings in that it is an assembly of the children of Israel from all the nations of the earth’” [quoting Walvoord, Church in Prophecy, pp. 166-174] (ibid., p. 498). “For Walvoord [Church in Prophecy, pp. 166-174], the present Jewish State is the beginning of this final regathering, for it ‘seems highly probable that the regathering of Israel, which has so significantly begun in the twentieth century, will have its consummation and completion after Christ comes back and all Israel is assembled in the Holy Land’” (ibid.). “Walvoord insists that just as the ‘dispersion and regathering from Egypt was literal; the dispersion and regathering from Babylon was literal; the dispersion to the entire world is literal,’ even so must the final regathering also be literal” [quoting Walvoord, Church in Prophecy, pp. 166-174] (ibid.). “For Walvoord and most Dispensationalists, it is ‘a proper conclusion that Israel back in the land is a preparation for the end of the age’” [quoting Walvoord, Church in Prophecy, pp. 166-174] (ibid.). “The present State of Israel is definitely part of the divine prophetic program which will ultimately lead to the second coming for, just as ‘the second gathering was the prelude for the first advent of Christ, so the third regathering is the prelude for the second advent’” [quoting Walvoord, Millennial Kingdom, pp. 185-186] (ibid., p. 523). “The real problem is the failure to see that the prophets spoke of two international returns. First, there was to be a regathering in unbelief in preparation for judgment, namely, the judgment of the Tribulation. This was to be followed by a second world wide regathering in faith in preparation for blessings, namely the blessings of the messianic age. Once it is recognized that the Bible speaks of two such regatherings, it is easy to see how the present State of Israel fits into prophecy” (ibid., p. 716). “Isaiah 11:11-12... Not only is this a literal prediction of a literal return to a literal land, it has been literally fulfilled in part since May 15, 1948, when Israel was declared a nation. Millions of Jews from all over the globe have already returned. If this has been literally fulfilled, why should there be any doubt about the restoration of the messianic political kingdom as well” (Geisler, ST, 4:468)? “Spiritual restoration and a return to the land are linked so that the people are never considered blessed, forgiven, or redeemed except in the land promised to their fathers” (Horner, FI, p. 237). “I might show you by scriptural evidence that the Jews will probably first be gathered in an unconverted state, though humbled, and will afterwards be taught to look to Him whom they have pierced [Zech. 12:10-14], through much tribulation” [quoting J. C. Ryle, Are You Ready For The End Of Time?, p. 115] (ibid., p. 345).

The reestablishment of Israel as a nation. “Who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things? Shall a land be born in one day? shall a nation be brought forth at once? for as soon as Zion travailed, she brought forth her children. Shall I bring to the birth, and not cause to bring forth? saith Jehovah: shall I that cause to bring forth shut the womb? saith thy God. Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and be glad for her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn over her” (Isa. 66:8–10) “The Jewish nation... This nation, therefore, now [in 1884—ed.] under trial, is still the chosen nation, and this will be manifested in due time” (Peters, TTK, 1:416). “Some of the futurist interpretation of the Revelation has been eminently fulfilled, and in this day. Reference here is to the return of Israel and her establishment as a nation” (Feinberg, M, p. 326). “The Present Situation—1964... This booklet was first written in 1940, and a great deal has transpired since then. Following World War II, England on May 14, 1948, gave up the Mandate assigned to her under the League of Nations, and moved out of Palestine. On the same date the Jewish authorities—through David Ben Gurion—proclaimed officially the new State of Israel. Without hesitation President Truman, acting for the United States, was the first to give recognition to the new State. The Arab powers at once launched their military attack against Israel, and were decisively defeated. In February of 1949 Israel and Egypt signed an armistice, followed by similar agreements with others of the attacking nations. The State of Israel was accepted into the United Nations organization, and was given recognition by many of its member-nations. However, in spite of all this, the peace now enjoyed by Israel is an uneasy one. Under the Partition Plan, only about three-fourths of the land of Palestine is now in the hands of the Jewish State. She is still ringed about by implacable Moslem powers which have sworn to destroy Israel and to reoccupy the entire land of Palestine. Israel still desperately needs help” (McClain, DP, p. 72). “The preservation of Israel as a racial entity and the resurrection of Israel as a political entity are twin miracles of the twentieth century which are in perfect accord with the premillennial interpretation” (Walvoord, MK, p. 136). “The twentieth century has witnessed the miracle of this ancient people establishing after the lapse of nineteen hundred years a political state bearing its name and embodying at least a portion of their ancient geographical possessions. This is all the more remarkable because those who are accomplishing this phenomenon are not for the most part believers in the Scriptures and do not recognize the prophetic significance of what they are doing” (ibid., p. 185). “Israel today is not publicly recognized as God’s people, indeed, they do not claim any special privilege themselves. Certainly Israel as a nation is not being blessed of God in spiritual ways” (ibid., p. 212). “Dispensationalism insists that Zionism and modern Israel is of major theological significance. Walvoord [in Millennial Kingdom, p. 136] insists that the ‘establishment of the new state of Israel... introduced a new and important factor in the interpretation of Biblical prophecy’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 495). “In yet another work [Church in Prophecy, pp. 166-174], Walvoord again expresses a favorable view of Zionism and the State of Israel. For Dispensationalism, ‘the remarkable revival of the nation Israel and their return to their ancient land’ is one of ‘the most striking situations from the standpoint of Biblical prophecy.’ For Dispensationalists, this was not a surprise because ‘God’s program for Israel is one of the major revelations of Scripture’ from Genesis to Revelation. Walvoord clearly believes that the present state is prophetically significant and ‘a clear indication of the approaching end of the present age and the beginning of events which will bring history to consummation.’ The reason the Middle East is biblically significant is ‘because it contains the land which was promised to Israel in the Abrahamic Covenant’ (ibid., p. 497). “While Walvoord, following Chafer’s lead, sees three dispersions and three regatherings, other Dispensationalists add a fourth. The fourth dispersion is to occur in the middle of the Great Tribulation as described in Matthew 24:15-28 and Revelation 12:6-17. The re-establishment of the present state was necessary for the fourth dispersion to occur. The fourth dispersion will be followed by the fourth and final regathering after the second coming for the enjoyment of the Messianic Kingdom” (ibid., p. 499). “The Tribulation begins with the signing of the seven year covenant (and not with the Rapture). This covenant is made between the Antichrist and the leaders of Israel. Therefore, the signing of such a covenant presupposes a Jewish leadership of a Jewish state. Such a Jewish state has to exist before such a covenant can be signed. This demands the existence of a Jewish state before the Tribulation” (ibid., p. 719). “The return of exiled Jews to their land after nearly two millennia—and their having been nationally restored—is another proof that God fulfills His promises literally” (Geisler, ST, 4:507). “To this moment they continue a distinct, isolated and separate nation, far more than any nation on the earth” [quoting J. C. Ryle (1816-1900), Are You Ready for the End of Time? pp. 148-150] (Horner, FI, p. 297). “If ever there is a “nation born in a day,” that nation will be Israel” [quoting J. C. Ryle (1816-1900), Are You Ready For The End Of Time?, p. 159] (ibid., p. 348).

War. “And after the threescore and two weeks shall the anointed one be cut off, and shall have nothing: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and even unto the end shall be war; desolations are determined” (Dan. 9:26). “...the constantly recurring wars—as if purposely to show how vain the hopes of humanity—the present attitude and warlike attitude of nations in their heavy armaments, etc., and all these instrumentalities for the destruction of human life and property on an enlarged scale, are evidences not merely of the continued corruption of human nature but of approaching wrath” (Peters, TTK, 3:129).

Widespread godlessness. “But realize this, that in the last days difficult times will come. For men will be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, arrogant, revilers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, unholy, unloving, irreconcilable, malicious gossips, without self-control, brutal, haters of good, treacherous, reck- less, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God; holding to a form of godliness, although they have denied its power; and avoid such men as these” (2 Tim. 3:1–6). “Cramer (p. 434) well said: ‘The more daring the blasphemers are in their riot and debauchery, the nearer the Lord.’ So also Osiander: ‘The more secure, the nearer the Judge’” (Peters, TTK, 3:95). (See also our section Ideologies in Preparation for the Tribulation above.)

And, apostasy in the church. (See our discussion of the prophesied apostasy in the church in the section Chronology of the Church Age in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

Events Just Prior to the Tribulation

Events just prior to the Tribulation include the Rapture of the church, a possible time gap between the Rapture and the Tribulation, removal of Israel’s blindness, God’s sending a delusion on the unbelievers, the apostasy, Israeli wars, building of the Tribulation temple, arrival on the scene of Antichrist, identification of Antichrist and revealing of Antichrist (removal of the Restrainer).

Considered individually, these events are:

The Rapture of the church. As of this writing, the (imminent) Rapture of the church is the next event on the prophetic calendar. “The first sign indicative of the Coming open manifestation of the Son of Man will be the Translation of living saints in connection with a secret resurrection of saints” (Peters, TTK, 3:160). (See our discussion of the Rapture of the church in our previous chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

A possible time gap between the Rapture of the church and the Tribulation. Some scholars see the beginning of the Tribulation period immediately following the Rapture of the church (with no time gap in between), while others see a time gap, or interval, of anywhere from a day or two to seventy-five or more years between these two events. “... ‘the Time of the End’ is still future. It is to be applied to this interval between the two stages of the Advent, a period which may embrace, for aught we know (considering the events that are to take place in it, and that the last week of Daniel does not include the whole time of interval, but only the time when the Covenant is made with the restored Jewish nation, the breaking of the same, and Antichrist’s persecution of the Jews), from 35 to 75 years, more or less” (Peters, TTK, 2:336).

Removal of Israel’s blindness. “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “The blindness which befell Israel is scheduled for removal when ‘the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.’... The ‘until’ marks, then, the terminus of Gentile blessing, and the beginning of Israel’s restoration. This in turn can be identified as the time of the Lord’s coming for the church and the end of the age of grace” (Walvoord, MK, p. 189). (See also our discussion of Romans 11:25 in the section Reaffirmation by Paul in our chapter Reaffirmation of the Kingdom.)

God’s sending a delusion on the unbelievers. “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false, in order that they all may be judged who did not believe the truth, but took pleasure in wickedness” (2 Thes. 2:1-12). “And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him” (Rev. 12:9). “And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast” (Rev. 13:3) “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life" (Rev. 13:11–14). "The beast that you saw was and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss and to go to destruction. And those who dwell on the earth will wonder, whose name has not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they see the beast, that he was and is not and will come" (Rev. 17:8). "The worship of Antichrist evidences that man, however atheistic some of his utterances are, cannot divest himself of some conception of religion, the necessity of worship, and the superiority of some being. For, constituted by the mercy and love of the Creator a religious being, he cannot, as Lathardt justly observes in his Apolog. Lectures, 'get rid of the idea;' because a belief in something higher than his individual self naturally arises from his moral constitution" (Peters, TTK, 2:725). "...man's depravity shall then lead him into the grossest delusions, and into believing and trusting in damnable lies. The falling back upon heathen philosophy, the denial of the personality of God, the exaltation of Humanity, etc., is clearly paving the way for a modified form of idolatry... It will be suited to the professed enlightenment of the age... The religious element in man cannot be entirely crushed, and the masses must have something to satisfy an inherent craving" (ibid., p. 748) "An object all repulsive would become speedily loathsome; but clothe the skeleton with silks and rich fabrics to hide the deformity, paint the mask with a bright countenance, and many, who otherwise would be repelled, hug it in fond delusion" (ibid., 3:146). "Of those who reject 'the truth' it is written, 'He shall send them strong delusion that they should believe the lie.' Because they have rejected the Christ of God, a judicial blindness shall fall upon them that they shall accept the Christ of humanity, who will be Satan incarnate" (Anderson, SOG, p. 187). "Paul pointed out that God shall send them a powerful delusion so that they should believe the lie (2 Thes. 2:11). The lie is that this individual who will have instituted a one-world government, one-world religion, and one-world economy is actually the world's messiah, the world's god" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 308). "These verses have often been interpreted as teaching that if one hears the gospel before the Rapture and rejects it, he will not have an opportunity to be saved after the Rapture. But this is not the teaching of this passage. The point of no return is the acceptance of the 'big lie' of the Antichrist's self-proclaimed deity and the submission to the worship of him by means of taking the mark of the Beast. It is only then that the point of no return is actually reached. The option of taking the mark of the Beast only begins in the middle of the Tribulation. Even the context of this passage shows that it speaks of events that occur in the middle of the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 255). (See also our discussion of deception during the Tribulation period in our section Characteristics of the Tribulation above.)

The apostasy. “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction” (2 Thes. 2:1–3) “...the general rush of violent departure from the faith precedes that final disclosure of the Antichristian despot... a denial of fundamental truths, which culminates finally in this apostatizing from all truth” (Peters, TTK, 2:689) (See our discussion of the fact that apostasy will also be a characteristic of the last days of the church in the section Chronology of the Church Age in our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

Israeli wars. It seems evident from Scripture that one or more regional Middle Eastern wars will precede the final global campaign of Armageddon. Some Bible scholars see only one such war (the Ezekiel 38-39 Gog/Magog war), while others see two (the Psalm 83/Isaiah 17 war, then the Ezekiel 38-39 Gog/Magog war). While some scholars place these wars within the period of the Tribulation itself (or at least within the time interval between the Rapture of the church and the Second Coming), others see the possibility of one or possibly even both of these conflicts preceding the Tribulation, and possibly even preceding the Rapture of the church.

The eighty-third Psalm is a prayer to Jehovah on behalf of the Jews who are surrounded by enemies, that He would protect them from these enemies’ threats of annihilation. “A Song, a Psalm of Asaph. O God, keep not thou silence: Hold not thy peace, and be not still, O God. For, lo, thine enemies make a tumult; And they that hate thee have lifted up the head. They take crafty counsel against thy people, And consult together against thy hidden ones. They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from being a nation; That the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance. For they have consulted together with one consent; Against thee do they make a covenant: The tents of Edom and the Ishmaelites; Moab, and the Hagarenes; Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek; Philistia with the inhabitants of Tyre: Assyria also is joined with them; They have helped the children of Lot. Selah Do thou unto them as unto Midian, As to Sisera, as to Jabin, at the river Kishon; Who perished at Endor, Who became as dung for the earth. Make their nobles like Oreb and Zeeb; Yea, all their princes like Zebah and Zalmunna; Who said, Let us take to ourselves in possession The habitations of God. O my God, make them like the whirling dust; As stubble before the wind. As the fire that burneth the forest, And as the flame that setteth the mountains on fire, So pursue them with thy tempest, And terrify them with thy storm. Fill their faces with confusion, That they may seek thy name, O Jehovah. Let them be put to shame and dismayed for ever; Yea, let them be confounded and perish; That they may know that thou alone, whose name is Jehovah, Art the Most High over all the earth” (Ps. 83:0–18). “The Arab States... They are a tumultuous and crafty people who unite together against the Jews. Their aim is the total annihilation of Israel so that the very name Israel will no longer be remembered (v. 4 [They have said, Come, and let us cut them off from being a nation; That the name of Israel may be no more in remembrance.]). It is no coincidence that Nasser, the former dictator of Egypt, repeated this verse almost word for word just prior to the Six Day War” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 489). It is of interest that all the countries mentioned in this Psalm are those that immediately surround Israel: Edom, Moab, Gebal and Ammon being in present-day Jordan, the capitol of the Hagarites being Damascus in Syria, Amalek being immediately south of Israel, Philistia being Gaza, and Tyre being in Lebanon. For this reason, some prophecy students understand Jehovah’s answer to this Psalm/prayer to be a separate war that precedes the Ezekiel 38/39 Gog/Magog war, setting the stage for that later invasion. Some students see Isaiah chapter 17 as Jehovah’s answer to the Psalm 83 prayer. One notable feature of Isaiah 17 is the complete annihilation of the city of Damascus. “The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap... Ah, the uproar of many peoples, that roar like the roaring of the seas; and the rushing of nations, that rush like the rushing of mighty waters! The nations shall rush like the rushing of many waters: but he shall rebuke them, and they shall flee far off, and shall be chased as the chaff of the mountains before the wind, and like the whirling dust before the storm. At eventide, behold, terror; and before the morning they are not. This is the portion of them that despoil us, and the lot of them that rob us” (Isa. 17:1–14).

In Ezekiel chapters 38 and 39, Ezekiel prophesies the Gog/Magog war. In this war, a coalition of larger and more geographically distant nations including Russia and Iran attacks Israel at a time when the Israelites are dwelling in “unwalled villages,” seemingly at relative peace (possibly as a result of the previous Psalm 83/Isaiah 17 war). In this war, Israel is greatly outnumbered by her enemies, and would most certainly have perished but for Jehovah’s supernatural intervention. “And the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, set thy face toward Gog, of the land of Magog, the prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal, and prophesy against him, and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal: and I will turn thee about, and put hooks into thy jaws, and I will bring thee forth, and all thine army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed in full armor, a great company with buckler and shield, all of them handling swords; Persia, Cush, and Put with them, all of them with shield and helmet; Gomer, and all his hordes; the house of Togarmah in the uttermost parts of the north, and all his hordes; even many peoples with thee. Be thou prepared, yea, prepare thyself, thou, and all thy companies that are assembled unto thee, and be thou a guard unto them. After many days thou shalt be visited: in the latter years thou shalt come into the land that is brought back from the sword, that is gathered out of many peoples, upon the mountains of Israel, which have been a continual waste; but it is brought forth out of the peoples, and they shall dwell securely, all of them. And thou shalt ascend, thou shalt come like a storm, thou shalt be like a cloud to cover the land, thou, and all thy hordes, and many peoples with thee. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: It shall come to pass in that day, that things shall come into thy mind, and thou shalt devise an evil device: and thou shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwalled villages; I will go to them that are at rest, that dwell securely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates; to take the spoil and to take the prey; to turn thy hand against the waste places that are now inhabited, and against the people that are gathered out of the nations, that have gotten cattle and goods, that dwell in the middle of the earth. Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, with all the young lions thereof, shall say unto thee, Art thou come to take the spoil? hast thou assembled thy company to take the prey? to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to take great spoil? Therefore, son of man, prophesy, and say unto Gog, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: In that day when my people Israel dwelleth securely, shalt thou not know it? And thou shalt come from thy place out of the uttermost parts of the north, thou, and many peoples with thee, all of them riding upon hors- es, a great company and a mighty army; and thou shalt come up against my people Israel, as a cloud to cover the land: it shall come to pass in the latter days, that I will bring thee against my land, that the nations may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Art thou he of whom I spake in old time by my servants the prophets of Israel, that prophesied in those days for many years that I would bring thee against them? And it shall come to pass in that day, when Gog shall come against the land of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, that my wrath shall come up into my nostrils. For in my jealousy and in the fire of my wrath have I spoken, Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel; so that the fishes of the sea, and the birds of the heavens, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground. And I will call for a sword against him unto all my mountains, saith the Lord Jehovah: every man's sword shall be against his brother. And with pestilence and with blood will I enter into judgment with him; and I will rain upon him, and upon his hordes, and upon the many peoples that are with him, an overflowing shower, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone. And I will magnify myself, and sanctify myself, and I will make myself known in the eyes of many nations; and they shall know that I am Jehovah" (Ezek. 38:1-23). "And thou, son of man, prophesy against Gog, and say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I am against thee, O Gog, prince of Rosh, Meshech, and Tubal: and I will turn thee about, and will lead thee on, and will cause thee to come up from the uttermost parts of the north; and I will bring thee upon the mountains of Israel; and I will smite thy bow out of thy left hand, and will cause thine arrows to fall out of thy right hand. Thou shalt fall upon the mountains of Israel, thou, and all thy hordes, and the peoples that are with thee: I will give thee unto the ravenous birds of every sort, and to the beasts of the field to be devoured. Thou shalt fall upon the open field; for I have spoken it, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will send a fire on Magog, and on them that dwell securely in the isles; and they shall know that I am Jehovah. And my holy name will I make known in the midst of my people Israel; neither will I suffer my holy name to be profaned any more: and the nations shall know that I am Jehovah, the Holy One in Israel. Behold, it cometh, and it shall be done, saith the Lord Jehovah; this is the day whereof I have spoken. And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth, and shall make fires of the weapons and burn them, both the shields and the bucklers, the bows and the arrows, and the handstaves, and the spears, and they shall make fires of them seven years; so that they shall take no wood out of the field, neither cut down any out of the forests; for they shall make fires of the weapons; and they shall plunder those that plundered them, and rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord Jehovah. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a place for burial in Israel, the valley of them that pass through on the east of the sea; and it shall stop them that pass through: and there shall they bury Gog and all his multitude; and they shall call it The valley of Hamon-gog. And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying them, that they may cleanse the land. Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them a renown in the day that I shall be glorified, saith the Lord Jehovah. And they shall set apart men of continual employment, that shall pass through the land, and, with them that pass through, those that bury them that remain upon the face of the land, to cleanse it: after the end of seven months shall they search. And they that pass through the land shall pass through; and when any seeth a man's bone, then shall he set up a sign by it, till the buriers have buried it in the valley of Hamon-gog. And Hamonah shall also be the name of a city. Thus shall they cleanse the land. And thou, son of man, thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Speak unto the birds of every sort, and to every beast of the field, Assemble yourselves, and come; gather yourselves on every side to my sacrifice that I do sacrifice for you, even a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel, that ye may eat flesh and drink blood. Ye shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth, of rams, of lambs, and of goats, of bullocks, all of them fatlings of Bashan. And ye shall eat fat till ye be full, and drink blood till ye be drunken, of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you. And ye shall be filled at my table with horses and chariots, with mighty men, and with all men of war, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will set my glory among the nations; and all the nations shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid upon them. So the house of Israel shall know that I am Jehovah their God, from that day and forward. And the nations shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity; because they trespassed against me, and I hid my face from them: so I gave them into the hand of their adversaries, and they fell all of them by the sword. According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions did I unto them; and I hid my face from them. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Now will I bring back the captivity of Jacob, and have mercy upon the whole house of Israel; and I will be jealous for my holy name. And they shall bear their shame, and all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me, when they shall dwell securely in their land, and none shall make them afraid; when I have brought them back from the peoples, and gathered them out of their enemies' lands, and am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations. And they shall know that I am Jehovah their God, in that I caused them to go into captivity among the nations, and have gathered them unto their own land; and I will leave none of them any more there; neither will I hide my face any more from them; for I have poured out my Spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 39:1–29). "Ezekiel 38 uses hema ('fury,' v. 18) and ap ('face,' v. 18) together with ebra ('wrath,' v. 19) for 'that day' (v. 19) when God will pour out His wrath against the armies of six nations that will attack Israel with a massive military invasion (vv. 1-16). Note that this outpouring of hema, ap, ebra divine wrath will involve the sword (v. 21), pestilence (v. 22), and beasts (39:4). This invasion and judgment are to occur after a restoration of the Jews to their homeland (38:8, 12) and when they feel so safe and secure that they will have no defenses of their own for their protection (38:8, 11, 14). Israel, which began to be restored to its homeland in 1948, will feel safe and secure as the result of establishing a binding covenant with the Antichrist at the beginning of the 70th week (Dan. 9:27). But the Antichrist will turn against Israel in the middle of the 70th week and, as noted in an earlier chapter, will desolate it during the second half of that seven-year period. Thus, Israel will feel safe and secure only during the first half of the 70th week. It would appear that this invasion and judgment of Ezekiel 38 will take place during the first half of the 70th week. Thus, there will be an outpouring of God's hema, ap, and ebra wrath during the first half of the 70th week, and it will involve the sword, pestilence, and beasts" (Showers, M, p. 113). "The name Rosh is the basis for the modern name Russia" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 106). "Gomer, located in present-day Germany" (ibid., p. 108). "In answer to who is involved in this confederacy, it is Russia and the allied states of Iran, Ethiopia, Somalia, Germany, and Armenia" (ibid.). "One interesting observation is that not a single Arab nation participates in this invasion. While some of the nations listed here are Moslem, they are not Arab" (ibid.). "The cup of iniquity of Russia is almost full. With this invasion it will overflow, and this will precipitate God's judgment on Russia. It is God Who is in control; it is He who is bringing the invasion about... The key sin is her long history of anti-Semitism, a problem that

Building of the Tribulation temple. The building of the Tribulation temple may take place before the Tribulation, or it may take place during the first half of the Tribulation. It must take place before the midpoint of the Tribulation, however, in order to make possible Antichrist’s midtribulation desecration of the temple. “And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand)... for then shall be great tribulation, such as hath not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, nor ever shall be.” (Matt. 24:15-21) “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false, in order that they all may be judged who did not believe the truth, but took pleasure in wickedness” (2 Thes. 2:1-12). “And there was given me a measuring rod like a staff; and someone said, ‘Rise and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and those who worship in it. And leave out the court which is outside the tem- ple, and do not measure it, for it has been given to the nations; and they will tread under foot the holy city for forty-two months” (Rev. 11:1-3). “Disagreement has been recorded with respect to the identification of the temple in which this lawless one is to be seated. Early writers contended that it is a church of some description. Later writers are more agreed that it is a restored Jewish temple. It may be no more than a temporary tabernacle which will be serving for the Jewish worship of Jehovah, which will be in progress at that time (cf. Dan 9:27; Rev 13:6)” (Chafer, ST, 2:71). “The Jews before the end of the Jewish age will return to Palestine and rebuild the Temple, the Tribulation Temple in which the man of sin will sit boasting of divine prerogatives and demanding divine worship (Dan. 9:27; 2 Thess. 2:3-4; Rev. 11:1-2)” (Feinberg, M, p. 164). “[Revelation] Chapter 11 opens with a clear distinction between the people who worship in the ‘temple’ and the ‘Gentiles’ who tread underfoot ‘the holy city’ (vss. 1-2). In the same verses, John is told to ‘measure’ the temple, the altar, and the people who worship there—a symbolic action suggesting the resumption of divine possession” (McClain, GK, p. 462). “...the third Jewish Temple, sometimes known as the Tribulation Temple” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 104) “It is interesting to note that while all the other eleven tribes have lost their tribal identity since the records were destroyed in A.D. 70, the Tribe of Levi has not” (ibid., p. 137). “The Jews would not accept a new Jewish State anywhere but in Israel; nor will the Jews accept a new Jewish Temple anywhere but in the Temple Compound” (ibid., p. 138). “One group, based in the Jewish Quarter of the Old City, is in the process of making the furnishings for the next Temple. A second group, located in the Moslem Quarter of the Old City, is training Cohens, descendants of the Aaronic line, in how to perform the sacrificial rites” (ibid.). “A temple will be rebuilt in which animal sacrifices and offerings will again be made for the first half of the seven years ([Dan. 9] v. 27)” (Geisler, ST, 4:599)

Arrival on the scene of Antichrist. “Children, it is the last hour; and just as you heard that antichrist is coming, even now many antichrists have arisen; from this we know that it is the last hour” (1 John. 2:18).

Identification of Antichrist. “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction” (2 Thes. 2:1-3) “That there was to be a revelation of the identity of the Antichrist before the Tribulation is clear from 2 Thessalonians 2:1-3... In this passage, two events are said to occur before the day of the Lord, which always refers to the Tribulation. The first is the apostasy which was discussed earlier. The second is the revelation of the man of sin and the son of perdition" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 127). "Exactly how the Antichrist will be identified is not stated. Perhaps it will be determined by the numerical value of his name or by some other means. But he will be known" (ibid.). "Paul stated that the Tribulation could not have come yet because two events, both of which must precede the Tribulation, had not yet occurred (v. 3). The first is the apostasy of the church, and the second is the revelation of the man of sin, the son of perdition" (ibid., p. 566).

And, revealing of Antichrist (removal of the Restrainer). "And Jehovah said, My spirit shall not strive with man for ever, for that he also is flesh: yet shall his days be a hundred and twenty years. The Nephilim were in the earth in those days, and also after that, when the sons of God came unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them: the same were the mighty men that were of old, the men of renown. And Jehovah saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented Jehovah that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart. And Jehovah said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the ground; both man, and beast, and creeping things, and birds of the heavens; for it repenteth me that I have made them. But Noah found favor in the eyes of Jehovah. These are the generations of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, and perfect in his generations: Noah walked with God. And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. And the earth was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. And God saw the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted their way upon the earth. And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth" (Gen. 6:3–13). "Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him, that you may not be quickly shaken from your composure or be disturbed either by a spirit or a message or a letter as if from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord has come. Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God. Do you not remember that while I was still with you, I was telling you these things? And you know what restrains him now, so that in his time he may be revealed. For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way. And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders, and with all the deception of wickedness for those who perish, because they did not receive the love of the truth so as to be saved. And for this reason God will send upon them a deluding influence so that they might believe what is false” (2 Thes. 2:1-11) “And now ye know what withholdeth’... ‘the decree of God’s Providence,’... ‘your election of God.’... until this gathering out process has progressed up to a certain point... restrains that fearful predicted outbreak until a determined number of God’s people are secured” (Peters, TTK, 2:328). “These saved ones are the antiseptic salt, hindering, like the Spirit who indwells them, the untimely dissolution of humanity” (Chafer, S, C4:5/31). “...the ‘man of sin’... his revelation must follow the translation of the church very speedily, if not immediately... the Roman prince will be clearly revealed the moment he makes his seven-year covenant with the Jewish people” (McClain, DP, p. 54) “The Spirit characteristically restrains and strives against sin (Gen. 6:3)” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 80) “The Spirit of God will return to heaven after accomplishing His earthly work, much as the Lord Jesus Christ returned to heaven after completing His earthly work. In both cases, the work of the Second Person and the Third Person continues, but in a different setting and in a different way” (ibid., p. 81). “That wicked one Paul anticipated is the masterpiece of deception Satan will offer to the world as a substitute for Messiah. In every generation Satan has had his instrument prepared should permission be granted him to put his plan in operation. However, as Paul reminds us, ‘Now you know what is holding him back, so that he may be revealed at the proper [God’s] time’ ([2 Thes. 2] vs. 6). God’s restraint by the work of the Holy Spirit is exercised on Satan so that Satan will not be able to introduce his masterpiece of deception until God’s appointed time. Thus it will be in the Tribulation period that Satan’s kingdom will have its greatest manifestation here on this earth” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 302). “The restraining work of the Holy Spirit is the restraint that prevents the Antichrist from being revealed until the proper time” (Showers, M, p. 122). “The main points appear to be as follows. First: to comfort the believers of Thessalonica, letting them know that they are not in the Tribulation, nor has the Tribulation arrived. Second: to teach that there will be two separate revelations of the Antichrist at different points in time. Third: that two things are being restrained: the mystery of lawlessness in general now, and the Antichrist specifically in the future” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 565). “The revelation to believers before the Tribulation may be to the Church if the Rapture has not occurred, or it may be to a new generation of believers who will have accepted the gospel after the Rapture of the Church. Whoever the believers may be at that time, they will receive a revelation as to the identity of the Antichrist, and it will occur at some time before the Tribulation” (ibid., p. 566). “While the first revelation will be to the believers before the Tribulation, the second revelation in the middle of the Tribulation will be to Israel. By the very act of the Abomination of Desolation, the Antichrist will be revealed as truly being the lawless one, and then Israel can realize with whom they have made their covenant” (ibid., p. 567).

Events of the Tribulation

As we saw in our section Chronology of the Tribulation above, the seven years of the Tribulation period, the seven years that make up Daniel’s seventieth week, are neatly divided by Daniel into two halves of three and one half years each. We will therefore examine the Tribulation events accordingly. We’ll first examine the events of the first half of the Tribulation, then the events of the middle of the Tribulation, then the events of the last half of the Tribulation.

Events of the First Half of the Tribulation

As per Daniel 9:27, the events of the first half of the Tribulation begin with Antichrist’s confirming a seven-year covenant with Israel and conclude at the Tribulation’s midpoint with the “abomination of desolation.” These events commence with the seven “seal” judgments of Revelation chapter six (and continue with the first six “trumpet” judgments), which, as we saw earlier, coincide with the “beginning of birth pangs” which precede the “abomination of desolation” in Matthew chapter twenty-four. “And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, ‘Tell us, when will these things be, and what will be the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age?’ And Jesus answered and said to them, ‘See to it that no one misleads you. For many will come in My name, saying,

“I am the Christ,” and will mislead many. And you will be hearing of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not frightened, for those things must take place, but that is not yet the end. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs. Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My name. And at that time many will fall away and will deliver up one another and hate one another. And many false prophets will arise, and will mislead many. And because lawlessness is increased, most people’s love will grow cold. But the one who endures to the end, he shall be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations, and then the end shall come. Therefore when you see the ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak” (Matt. 24:3–18). “And I saw when the Lamb broke one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying as with a voice of thunder, ‘Come.’ And I looked, and behold, a white horse, and he who sat on it had a bow; and a crown was given to him; and he went out conquering, and to conquer. When He broke the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying, ‘Come.’ And another, a red horse, went out; and to him who sat on it, it was granted to take peace from the earth, and that men would slay one another; and a great sword was given to him. When He broke the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying, ‘Come.’ I looked, and behold, a black horse; and he who sat on it had a pair of scales in his hand. And I heard something like a voice in the center of the four living creatures saying, ‘A quart of wheat for a denarius, and three quarts of barley for a denarius; and do not damage the oil and the wine.’ When the Lamb broke the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying, ‘Come.’ I looked, and behold, an ashen horse; and he who sat on it had the name Death; and Hades was following with him. Authority was given to them over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by the wild beasts of the earth. When the Lamb broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of those who had been slain because of the word of God, and because of the testimony which they had maintained; and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, ‘How long, O Lord, holy and true, will You refrain from judging and avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?’ And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told that they should rest for a little while longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brethren who were to be killed even as they had been, would be completed also. I looked when He broke the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth made of hair, and the whole moon became like blood; and the stars of the sky fell to the earth, as a fig tree casts its unripe figs when shaken by a great wind. The sky was split apart like a scroll when it is rolled up, and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. Then the kings of the earth and the great men and the commanders and the rich and the strong and every slave and free man hid themselves in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains; and they said to the mountains and to the rocks, ‘Fall on us and hide us from the presence of Him who sits on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand’” (Rev. 6:1–17)? “...the events of the first half of the Tribulation. Some are sequential, with one following the other in chronological sequence. Included in these are the Seal and Trumpet Judgments. There are also five events that transpire throughout the first half of the Tribulation. They are: First, the ministry of Elijah; second, the 144,000 Jews and the worldwide revival; third, the ministry of the Two Witnesses; fourth, the political system of the ten kings; and fifth, the religious system of the Ecclesiastical Babylon” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 235). “All together, the Messiah pointed out five events that will occur during the first half of the Tribulation. First, there will be tremendous persecution of the saints ([Matt. 24] vv. 9-10), a fact also given in Revelation 6:9-11. The one-world religious system, known as Ecclesiastical Babylon, will be doing the persecuting and will be responsible for the death of the saints during the first half of the Tribulation (Rev. 17:1-6). Second, the first half of the Tribulation will be characterized by the rise of many false prophets (v. 11). This point is also brought out in Zechariah 13:2-6. Third, there will be a tremendous rise of sin and iniquity (v. 12), because evil will no longer be restrained (2 Thess. 2:6-7). Fourth, those Jews who survive to the end of the Tribulation will be saved (v. 13). The fifth event of the first half of the Tribulation will be the worldwide preaching of the gospel (v. 14), which will be conducted by the 144,000 Jews of Revelation 7:1-8. The results of the ministry of the 144,000 are recorded in Revelation 7:9-17, where it clearly states that a great multitude of Gentiles will come to the saving knowledge of our Lord Jesus the Messiah” (ibid., p. 631).

Antichrist confirms a covenant with Israel. “Wherefore hear the word of Jehovah, ye scoffers, that rule this people that is in Jerusalem: Because ye have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with Sheol are we at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us; for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves: therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious cornerstone of sure foundation: he that believeth shall not be in haste. And I will make justice the line, and righteousness the plummet; and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding-place. And your covenant with death shall be annulled, and your agreement with Sheol shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it. As often as it passeth through, it shall take you; for morning by morning shall it pass through, by day and by night: and it shall be nought but terror to understand the message. For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it; and the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it. For Jehovah will rise up as in mount Perazim, he will be wroth as in the valley of Gibeon; that he may do his work, his strange work, and bring to pass his act, his strange act. Now therefore be ye not scoffers, lest your bonds be made strong; for a decree of destruction have I heard from the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, upon the whole earth” (Isa. 28:14-22). “And after the threescore and two weeks shall the anointed one be cut off, and shall have nothing: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and even unto the end shall be war; desolations are determined. And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate” (Dan. 9:26-27). “I have come in My Father’s name, and you do not receive Me; if another shall come in his own name, you will receive him” (John 5:43). “It is generally supposed [in 1884—ed.]... a covenant with the Jews, raising them into the position of a nation... While this opinion is worthy of the serious consideration of the student, yet another covenant, compact, or agreement that the last head of the Roman power shall enter into is more specifically noted in the Scriptures, and may be the one here denoted, viz., the agreement and union with the ten horns or powers mentioned in Rev. 17:12, 13” (Peters, TTK,

2:664). “The freedom of the Jews from idolatry since the Advent of Jesus and the destruction of their city, has been their particular boast, especially in these days from Rationalizing pens; this boast shall also be taken from them, and John 5:43, be verified, in that rejecting Jesus who ‘came in the Father’s name,’ they will, in this Antichrist, ‘receive another who shall come in his own name’” (ibid., p. 747). “Concerning this individual Gabelein [Arno C. Gaebelein, The Prophet Daniel, p. 142], says: ‘Out of the Roman empire there shall arise in the future a prince. This prince or chief of the fourth empire is identical with the little horn of Daniel vii.’ He is further to be identified with the ‘king of fierce countenance’ of Daniel 8:23, with the ‘wilful king’ of Daniel 11:36, with the ‘man of sin’ of 2 Thessalonians 2, and with the ‘beast out of the sea’ of Revelation 13:1-10. Inasmuch as all the covenants made by Messiah with Israel are eternal covenants, Messiah can not be the one making the covenant, inasmuch as it will be temporary. This covenant, which will guarantee Israel the possession of their land and the restoration of their religious and political autonomy, is to be viewed as a false fulfillment of the Abrahamic covenant. This covenant deceives many in Israel into believing that this ‘man of sin’ is God (2 Thess. 2:3). It is the proclamation of this false covenant that marks the beginning of the seventieth week” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 250). “As the head of the federated empire he will make a seven-year covenant or treaty with Israel (9:27), which will be broken after three and a half years (v. 27)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 304). “On the issue of the Rapture, Dispensationalism is pretribulationist. Because of this, most pretribulationists have assumed that the Rapture will begin the Tribulation. As Ryrie [in Basic Theology, pp. 465-466] points out, that need not be true. Saying that the Rapture is pretribulationist does not mean it comes just before for ‘actually nothing is said in the Scriptures as to whether or not some time (or how much time) may elapse between the Rapture and the beginning of the Tribulation.’ The starting point of the Tribulation is the signing of a seven year covenant between Israel and the Antichrist... When this covenant is made, it will somehow guarantee Israel’s security and so ‘the outlook for Israel will seem bright.’ However, as the Tribulation continues, all this will change” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 530). “Many have taught only on assumption that the Rapture will begin the Tribulation. However, this is not the case” (ibid., p. 564). “The tribulation begins with the signing of a seven-year covenant between the Antichrist and Israel” (ibid., p. 769). “Isaiah 28:14-22... The figure of a flood, when used symbolically, is always a symbol of a military invasion... The same point made in Daniel 9:27 is made by Isaiah. The Tribulation begins with the signing of the seven-year covenant between the leaders of Israel and the Antichrist. Once that covenant is signed, the Tribulation begins and a decree of destruction is issued by God Himself” (ibid.). “...it is not the Rapture that begins the Tribulation, but the signing of the seven-year covenant. Keeping this in mind will prevent many misunderstandings concerning the belief in the imminency of the Rapture” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 128). “There is a common misconception that Israel will accept the Antichrist as the messiah. The Scriptures nowhere state any such thing. The fact is, Israel will not accept him as the messiah. Israel will make a covenant with him and will place her trust for her security in this covenant. But Israel will never accept him as the messiah” (ibid., p. 199). “...there will be a segment of Jews, as there were in Daniel 9:27, who will refuse to have anything to do with this covenant” (ibid.).

The Lamb takes the title deed of the earth, and prepares to evict the usurpers of His realm. “And Jeremiah said, The word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Behold, Hanamel the son of Shallum thine uncle shall come unto thee, saying, Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth; for the right of redemption is thine to buy it. So Hanamel mine uncle’s son came to me in the court of the guard according to the word of Jehovah, and said unto me, Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the land of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine; buy it for thyself. Then I knew that this was the word of Jehovah. And I bought the field that was in Anathoth of Hanamel mine uncle’s son, and weighed him the money, even seventeen shekels of silver. And I subscribed the deed, and sealed it, and called witnesses, and weighed him the money in the balances. So I took the deed of the purchase, both that which was sealed, according to the law and custom, and that which was open: and I delivered the deed of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriah, the son of Mahseiah, in the presence of Hanamel mine uncle’s son, and in the presence of the witnesses that subscribed the deed of the purchase, before all the Jews that sat in the court of the guard. And I charged Baruch before them, saying, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel: Take these deeds, this deed of the purchase which is sealed, and this deed which is open, and put them in an earthen vessel; that they may continue many days. For thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses and fields and vineyards shall yet again be bought in this land” (Jer. 32:6-15). “For Jehovah will rise up as in mount Perazim, he will be wroth as in the valley of Gibeon; that he may do his work, his strange work, and bring to pass his act, his strange act. Now therefore be ye not scoffers, lest your bonds be made strong; for a decree of destruction have I heard from the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, upon the whole earth” (Isa. 28:21–22). “And I saw in the right hand of Him who sat on the throne a book written inside and on the back, sealed up with seven seals. And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, ‘Who is worthy to open the book and to break its seals?’ And no one in heaven, or on the earth, or under the earth, was able to open the book, or to look into it. And I began to weep greatly, because no one was found worthy to open the book, or to look into it; and one of the elders said to me, ‘Stop weeping; behold, the Lion that is from the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has overcome so as to open the book and its seven seals.’ And I saw between the throne (with the four living creatures) and the elders a Lamb standing, as if slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, sent out into all the earth. And He came, and He took it out of the right hand of Him who sat on the throne. And when He had taken the book, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, having each one a harp, and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy art Thou to take the book, and to break its seals; for Thou wast slain, and didst purchase for God with Thy blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. And Thou hast made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth.’ And I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels around the throne and the living creatures and the elders; and the number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands, saying with a loud voice, ‘Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches and wisdom and might and honor and glory and blessing.’ And every created thing which is in heaven and on the earth and under the earth and on the sea, and all things in them, I heard saying, ‘To Him who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb, be blessing and honor and glory and dominion forever and ever.’ And the four living creatures kept saying, ‘Amen.’ And the elders fell down and worshiped” (Rev. 5:1-14). “The Sealed Book of Revelation 5... In the magnificent scene of chapters 4 and 5 there is seen in the hand of God a ‘book written within and on the backside, sealed with seven seals’ (5:1). The Lamb receives this book from the hand of God, and as He breaks its seals there fall upon the world with increasing severity the judgments of heaven. As to the nature of the book (lit. ‘roll’), Deismann showed some years ago, on the basis of archaeological evidence [Adolph Deismann, ‘Treasures in Earthen Vessels,’ The Biblical Review, October, 1922], that it must be understood in the light of a similar document which appears in Jer. 32:6-15. This was not a book at all in the ordinary sense, but rather a title-deed written on both sides of a sheet of material, which was then rolled up and sealed, leaving the roll so that one copy would be outside and visible but the other copy hidden inside. In case of tampering or dispute, the breaking of the seals would reveal the original copy and establish the lawful owner in his rights. Thus Biblically interpreted, the sealed document of Revelation 5 becomes a symbol of high importance; and the breaking of its seals by our Lord marks the first judicial assertion (in Revelation) of His regal rights, for the purpose of punishing and dispossessing the usurpers of His realm. In this sense, the breaking of the first seal becomes a strong harbinger of the impending Kingdom” (McClain, GK, p. 472). “As Creator, He alone is its legitimate owner; therefore, the right to rule the entire universe is exclusively His, including the right to use His power to crush any enemy who challenges His rule” (Showers, M, p. 76). “God was the landlord; mankind was the tenant possessor” (ibid., p. 83). “...mankind forfeited tenant possession or administration of their earth inheritance to Satan because they followed Satan’s lead to rebel against God (Gen. 3)” (ibid., p. 84). “...the theocracy was lost and replaced by a satanocracy” (ibid.). “Because mankind forfeited their God-given tenant possession of the earth to Satan, God placed nature under a curse (Gen. 3:17-19)... creation was made subject to vanity, corruption, groaning, and travails in pain. It can hardly wait until the day when, in conjunction with redemption, it will be released from this curse and defilement (Rom. 8:19-23)” (ibid.). “But Adam sinned, and so the crown fell from his head; and, by a judicial permission this once fair domain of creation has lapsed into the hands of the usurper, Satan” [quoting James Kelly, The Apocalypse Interpreted, Vol. I, p. 288] (ibid., p. 85). “Parallel to the fact that an Israelite was forbidden to lose his tenant possession inheritance to a person outside his tribe is the fact that it was wrong for mankind to forfeit their tenant possession inheritance to a being outside mankind. But they did forfeit their tenant possession inheritance to Satan, a being outside mankind (Satan is an angel [2 Cor. 11:14], not a human)” (ibid.). “He also has established a program through which a kinsman of mankind redeems both mankind and the tenant possession of the earth which mankind lost to Satan” (ibid.). “In Matthew 19:28 Jesus declared that ‘the regeneration’ would take place ‘when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory.’... involved mankind’s tenant possession or administration of the earth as God’s representative... takes over the rule of the earth as the Kinsman-Redeemer, He will restore mankind’s forfeited inheritance. The first Adam lost that inheritance; Christ, as ‘the last Adam’ (1 Cor. 15:45), will restore it” (ibid., p. 86) “...in Acts 3:19-21 Peter was referring to the future Messianic Age (the Millennium)... This restoration, to be that of the original creation order, will include restoration of mankind's tenant possession or administration of the earth as God's representative plus removal of the curse and defilement of nature" (ibid., p. 87). "Repent therefore and return, that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord; and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you, whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time" (Acts 3:19–21). "...although Christ paid the redemption price to redeem mankind's forfeited tenant possession inheritance of the earth, He will not return the administration of the whole earth to Adam, the man who forfeited it. As the Kinsman-Redeemer and last Adam, Christ will keep the earth to administer it for God's purposes (Rev. 11:15)" (Showers, M, p. 88). "...it seems apparent that the sealed scroll Christ took from the right hand of God in heaven (Rev. 5) is the deed of purchase for mankind's tenant possession or administration of the earth... just as scroll deeds of purchase were made when Jeremiah paid the redemption price for his cousin's tenant possession of land, so a scroll deed of purchase was made when Christ paid the redemption price for mankind's tenant possession of the earth by shedding His blood on the cross" (ibid.). "Provision has accordingly been made, not merely for the salvation of man, but for the recovery of his lost inheritance. The redemption price has been duly paid; and "the evidence of the purchase," represented by the expressive symbol of the sealed book, is exhibited in this vision as in the Divine possession; its formal production at length taking place, because now, "He whose right it is," is coming forth to assert it" [quoting James Kelley, The Apocalypse Interpreted, Vol. I, p. 289] (ibid.). "Jeremiah's scroll deeds were placed in a secure place where they could be preserved for a long period of time, since he did not take actual possession of the land immediately after paying the redemption price for it because circumstances removed him for many years to a location far from the land. In like manner, Christ's scroll deed was placed in a secure place (God's right hand in heaven, Rev. 5:1, 7) for a long period of time because He did not take actual possession of the earth immediately after paying the redemption price for it at the cross, being removed for many years to a location far from the earth (heaven, Acts 1:9-11)" (ibid., p. 89). "Just as foreign squatters controlled the land of Israel (including the land Jeremiah had purchased) for many years while the Jews and Jeremiah were removed from it, so foreign squatters (Satan and the human members of his kingdom) are controlling the world system during the years Christ is removed from the earth" (ibid.). "...of the tribe of Judah,'... (Gen. 49:8-10)... We can conclude, then, that in the context of Revelation 5 the title ‘the Lion of the tribe of Judah’ is applied to Christ to indicate that He is the one who has the power and right to defeat Satan and his followers, by evicting them and their rule from the earth, and to take possession of the earth to rule it as the last Adam” (ibid., p. 90). “The Hebrew word translated ‘root’ in the expression ‘root of Jesse’ ‘denotes both the relic of past glory and also the hopeful starting-point for a better future.’ [quoting Christian Maurer, ‘rhiza,’ Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, Vol. VI, ed. by Gerhard Kittel, trans. and ed. by Geoffrey W. Bromiley, p. 986] The idea involved is ‘From the root a fallen tree can renew itself and put forth fresh shoots, Job 14:7-9. The root, then is the hope of a new beginning after catastrophe.’ [Ibid.]” (ibid.) “Christ defeated Satan and his forces when He paid the redemption price of His shed blood. Through the payment of that price, Christ defeated Satan and his forces in the sense that He gained the right to take tenant possession of the earth away from them and rule the earth as the last Adam. This truth sheds light on the meaning of Christ’s statement just before He went to the cross, ‘the prince of this world is judged’ (Jn. 16:11). Christ’s death sealed Satan’s doom. At the proper time, determined sovereignly by God, Christ will exercise the right He gained at the cross to throw out the usurper” (ibid., p. 92). “...those people who have been redeemed by Christ’s blood ‘shall reign on the earth’ (5:9-10). It is important to note that the verb translated ‘shall reign’ is in the future tense in the Greek text and that this declaration will be made when Christ takes the scroll from God’s hand. Thus, the redeemed will reign on the earth after Christ takes the sealed scroll” (ibid., p. 9). “Thus, once again, Revelation 5 associates Christ’s redemptive work with the future rule of the earth. It is interesting to note that the Apostle Paul also declared that church saints ‘shall reign’ (future tense) with Christ (2 Tim. 2:12 [‘If we endure, we shall also reign with Him; If we deny Him, He also will deny us;’])” (ibid., p. 93). “...the following conclusion: The sealed scroll of Revelation 5 is the deed of purchase for mankind’s tenant possession or administration of the earth. This deed was made when Christ paid the redemption price by shedding His blood on the cross for mankind’s tenant possession of the earth” (Showers, M p. 93). “The significance of Christ’s action with the sealed scroll of Revelation 5 is the evidence it provides—that He is the true Kinsman-Redeemer, the one who paid the redemption price in the past and therefore has the right to take tenant possession of the earth” (ibid., p. 95). “Revelation 5 makes it clear that He alone is worthy to break them, because only the kinsman-redeemer could legitimately break the seal or seals of a deed of purchase, and Christ is the only Kinsman-Redeemer of mankind’s forfeited inheritance.

Only Christ has paid the redemption price” (ibid.). “Just as an armed force will attack an alien occupying army with a tremendous bombardment before it launches the invasion that will evict that alien army, so Christ, through the breaking of the seals, will attack the domain of Satan and his forces (the alien forces occupying the earth since the fall of mankind) with a tremendous bombardment of divine wrath or judgment before He launches the invasion (His great and terrible Day of the Lord invasion of the earth when He comes with His angels), which will evict Satan and his forces from the earth” (ibid., p. 96). “On the day of His Second Coming to the earth, when Christ confronts Satan and his forces gathered in Israel to try to prevent His return to take possession of the earth (Rev. 19:11-19), He will read publicly the open scroll deed of purchase—the final, conclusive evidence that He is the true Kinsman-Redeemer and has the right to evict His enemies and take tenant possession of the earth” (ibid., p. 98). “The sealed scroll of Revelation 5 is the deed of purchase for mankind’s forfeited inheritance of tenant possession of the earth” (ibid., p. 99). “The scroll is the key to understanding the significance or purpose of the future events of Revelation 6 through 22, which constitute the fulfillment of the Kinsman-Redeemer’s second responsibility—the eviction of God’s enemies from the earth and taking of its tenant possession” (ibid.). “The seven-sealed book is taken to be the title deed to the earth. As noted by Renald Showers (b. 1934) [in Maranatha, Our Lord Come!, p. 99]: ‘The sealed scroll of Revelation 5 is the deed of purchase for mankind’s forfeited inheritance of tenant possession of the earth... Through breaking the seven seals, Christ will instigate a tremendous bombardment of divine wrath or judgment against the domain of Satan and his forces for the last seven years before His Second Coming’” (Geisler, ST, 4:605). “Only Christ, the Lamb, is found worthy to open the books and release on the earth the judgments therein (5:1-7); only He has defeated Satan by His death and resurrection (Col. 2:14; Heb. 2:14-15)” (ibid.). “When you were dead in your transgressions and the uncircumcision of your flesh, He made you alive together with Him, having forgiven us all our transgressions, having canceled out the certificate of debt consisting of decrees against us, which was hostile to us; and He has taken it out of the way, having nailed it to the cross. When He had disarmed the rulers and authorities, He made a public display of them, having triumphed over them through Him” (Col. 2:13-15). “Since then the children share in flesh and blood, He Himself likewise also partook of the same, that through death He might render powerless him who had the power of death, that is, the devil; and might deliver those who through fear of death were subject to slavery all their lives” (Heb. 2:14-15). “Isaiah 28:21–22... Two of the Old Testament names for the Tribulation are given in this passage: Jehovah’s strange work and Jehovah’s strange act. It is given these two unusual names because of the latter phrase in verse 22: for a decree of destruction have I heard from the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, upon the whole earth. It is strange in that it calls for the destruction of the whole earth. This decree is issued in Heaven because of the covenant that is signed on earth. It is strange in that it calls for the destruction of the whole earth. This decree of destruction is the same as the Seven-Sealed Scroll of Revelation five. ...with the breaking of the seals, there is massive destruction of the earth. But this decree of destruction will be issued only when the covenant is signed” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 200). “So then, the same point made in Daniel 9:27 is made by Isaiah. The Tribulation begins with the signing of the Seven-Year Covenant between the leaders of Israel and the Antichrist. Once that covenant is signed, the Tribulation begins and a decree of destruction is issued by God Himself” (ibid., p. 201). (See also our discussion of the loss of our inheritance of tenant possession of the earth to Satan in the section The Effects of the Fall of our chapter The Fall.)

Elijah prepares Israel. “Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, will suddenly come to his temple; and the messenger of the covenant, whom ye desire, behold, he cometh, saith Jehovah of hosts” (Mal. 3:1). “Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the great and terrible day of Jehovah come. And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers; lest I come and smite the earth with a curse” (Mal. 4:5-6). “Truly, I say to you, among those born of women there has not arisen anyone greater than John the Baptist; yet he who is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffers violence, and violent men take it by force. For all the prophets and the Law prophesied until John. And if you care to accept it, he himself is Elijah, who was to come” (Matt. 11:11–14). “And as they were coming down from the mountain, Jesus commanded them, saying, ‘Tell the vision to no one until the Son of Man has risen from the dead.’ And His disciples asked Him, saying, ‘Why then do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?’ And He answered and said, ‘Elijah is coming and will restore all things; but I say to you, that Elijah already came, and they did not recognize him, but did to him whatever they wished. So also the Son of Man is going to suffer at their hands.’ Then the disciples understood that He had spoken to them about John the Baptist” (Matt. 17:9–13). “But the angel said to him,

‘Do not be afraid, Zacharias, for your petition has been heard, and your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you will give him the name John. And you will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth. For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and he will drink no wine or liquor; and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit, while yet in his mother’s womb. And he will turn back many of the sons of Israel to the Lord their God. And it is he who will go as a forerunner before Him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers back to the children, and the disobedient to the attitude of the righteous; so as to make ready a people prepared for the Lord’” (Luke 1:13–17). “Elijah is a forerunner of the Sec. Advent (the open Parousia) just as John was a forerunner of the First Advent (the public appearance of the Messiah)” (Peters, TTK, 2:87). “Tertullian (On the Res. ch. 22), Commodianus (Instruct., Sec. 41) and others, make Elias still future, an idea being developed that he would be a contemporary of the Antichrist at the last times” (ibid., p. 565). “The rejection of the Kingdom and its postponement serves to explain the apparent difficulties and adds most forcibly to the inspiration of the Word, evincing a preservation of unity in the most delicate of Divine purposes. Such a remarkable preservation of agreement, indicative both of God’s willingness to make John the Elias, if the nation had repented under his preaching, and of God’s foreknowing that John would be rejected and that another Elias was therefore appointed to come, is beyond the ability of ‘mere fishermen’ to concoct, bearing as they do a relationship to the deepest purposes of God” (ibid., p. 566). “Before, probably but a very short time before, the open Revelation of Jesus with His saints in behalf of the Jewish nation (Zech. 14), Elijah the Prophet will be sent to the Jews as predicted (Mal. 4:5, 6), being unto them a forerunner as John the Baptist at the First Advent” (ibid., 3:162). “We doubt not that in the darkest hour of gloom, when feeling the persecuting power of the Antichrist, and when all hope seems to have perished, Elijah, according to promise, will come, and will prepare the remnant to accept so heartily the Lord Jesus” (ibid., p. 164). “He is divinely commissioned to do a work of preparation in the nation of Israel: ‘Prepare ye the way of the LORD,’ will be the burden of his message (Isa. 40:3); and it will sound to the nation a note both of comfort and of warning. He will announce the end of Jewish affliction, certain judgments of God, and the good news of the coming Kingdom (Isa. 40:1-2, 9-11)” (McClain, GK, p. 181). “Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem; and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned, that she hath received of Jehovah’s hand double for all her sins. The voice of one that crieth, Prepare ye in the wilderness the way of Jehovah; make level in the desert a highway for our God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low; and the uneven shall be made level, and the rough places a plain: and the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it. The voice of one saying, Cry. And one said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the breath of Jehovah bloweth upon it; surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the word of our God shall stand forever. O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion, get thee up on a high mountain; O thou that tellest good tidings to Jerusalem, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold, your God! Behold, the Lord Jehovah will come as a mighty one, and his arm will rule for him: Behold, his reward is with him, and his recompense before him. He will feed his flock like a shepherd, he will gather the lambs in his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and will gently lead those that have their young” (Isa. 40:1-11). “John the Baptist... when asked by the Pharisees, ‘Art thou Elijah?’, replied, ‘I am not’ (John 1:21, ASV). And our Lord, after the death of John, said to the disciples, ‘Elijah indeed cometh, and shall restore all things’ (Matt. 17:11, ASV)” (McClain, GK, p. 181). “The context of the Isaiah passage is in harmony with this: for the messenger here comes to warn of the leveling judgments of God (40:4), as well as to announce the good news of the Kingdom (40:9-11)” (ibid., p. 182). “Elijah... John the Baptist... since there were to be ‘two comings’ of Messiah, so also there must be ‘two forerunners’” (ibid., p. 337). “John was a type of Elijah in that he came in the spirit and power of Elijah. If Israel had accepted the message, then John the Baptist would have accomplished the function of Elijah, which was the work of restoration. However, John the Baptist and the Messiah were both rejected, and so Elijah is yet to come to perform the work of restoration before the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 134).

The two witnesses prophesy for 1260 days (3.5 years), are killed, resurrected and translated. “And there was given me a measuring rod like a staff; and someone said, ‘Rise and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and those who worship in it. And leave out the court which is outside the temple, and do not measure it, for it has been given to the nations; and they will tread under foot the holy city for forty-two months. And I will grant authority to my two witnesses, and they will prophesy for twelve hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth.’ These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. And if anyone desires to harm them, fire proceeds out of their mouth and devours their enemies; and if anyone would desire to harm them, in this manner he must be killed. These have the power to shut up the sky, in order that rain may not fall during the days of their prophesying; and they have power over the waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth with every plague, as often as they desire. And when they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up out of the abyss will make war with them, and overcome them and kill them. And their dead bodies will lie in the street of the great city which mystically is called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. And those from the peoples and tribes and tongues and nations will look at their dead bodies for three and a half days, and will not permit their dead bodies to be laid in a tomb. And those who dwell on the earth will rejoice over them and make merry; and they will send gifts to one another, because these two prophets tormented those who dwell on the earth. And after the three and a half days the breath of life from God came into them, and they stood on their feet; and great fear fell upon those who were beholding them. And they heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, ‘Come up here.’ And they went up into heaven in the cloud, and their enemies beheld them” (Rev. 11:1-12). “Not only will multitudes from among the Gentiles participate in the earthly millennial kingdom having been redeemed through faith by blood, but also a remnant from among Israel will participate in that earthly Davidic kingdom. In order to bring this remnant to faith in Christ, God will send two witnesses to minister to the people of Israel in Jerusalem (Rev. 11:3-12)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 312). “In verse three, the timing of the ministry is given as 1,260 days, which is the equivalent of 3 1/2 years. These 3 1/2 years cover the first half of the Tribulation period” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 231). “It is best to take these men to be two Jewish prophets whom God will raise up during the Tribulation itself” (ibid., p. 232). “The center of their ministry will be the City of Jerusalem, whereas that of the 144,000 Jews will be worldwide” (ibid., p. 233).

The 144,000 are sealed. Particularly because the identity of the 144,000 is central to the theology of Jehovah's Witnesses²¹, we will give a fair amount of space here to the 144,000's proper identification. "After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth, so that no wind should blow on the earth or on the sea or on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God; and he cried out with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it was granted to harm the earth and the sea, saying, 'Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the bond-servants of our God on their foreheads.' And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel: from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed" (Rev. 7:1-8). "And I looked, and behold, the Lamb was standing on Mount Zion, and with Him one hundred and forty-four thousand, having His name and the name of His Father written on their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, like the sound of many waters and like the sound of loud thunder, and the voice which I heard was like the sound of harpists playing on their harps. And they sang a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and the elders; and no one could learn the song except the one hundred and forty-four thousand who had been purchased from the earth. These are the ones who have not been defiled with women, for they have kept themselves chaste. These are the ones who follow the Lamb wherever He goes. These have been purchased from among men as first fruits to God and to the Lamb. And no lie was found in their mouth; they are blameless" (Rev. 14:1-5). "In chapter seven the 144,000 are sealed by God, set apart to a special ministry, before the 21 Jehovah's Witnesses, who deny that Israel is to have any future role in the Kingdom, believe that the 144,000 of Revelation chapters seven and fourteen are properly identified as the full number of Christians who are to co-reign with Christ (invisibly, from heaven) during the Millennial Kingdom. They believe the other 99+% of Jehovah's Witnesses, in contrast to these 144,000 members of the "anointed," "heavenly" class, are never to be born again, are not in the new covenant, and have, not the (biblical for this Church Age) "heavenly" hope but an "earthly" one. Of course, if Jehovah's Witnesses are mistaken on their identity of the 144,000, then their entire ecclesiology, with its identification of Jehovah's Witnesses as "God's organization," etc. is unbiblical and false.

great tribulation begins. They seem to be sealed at the very outset of the tribulation period. In all probability the multitude of Gentiles, described in the passage that follows (Rev. 7:9-17), has come to a knowledge of salvation through the ministry of this group. In chapter fourteen the same group is pictured at the termination of the tribulation, when the kingdom is established. The returning King is on Mt. Zion, as was predicted of Him (Zech. 14:4). At His return the faithful witnesses gather unto Him, having been redeemed (Rev. 14:4) and having faithfully witnessed in the midst of apostasy (Rev. 14:4-5). They are called 'the first-fruits unto God and to the Lamb' (Rev. 14:4), that is they are the first of the harvest of the tribulation period that will come into the millennium to populate the millennial earth. As the judgments are about to be poured out upon Babylon (Rev. 14:8), upon the Beast (Rev. 14:9-12), upon the Gentiles (Rev. 14:14-17), and upon unbelieving Israel (Rev. 14:18-20), these 144,000 are viewed as being preserved through all that the earth experiences so that they may be the first-fruits of that period" (Pentecost, TTC, p. 300). "Of the various purposes for the Tribulation, two are related to Israelology. The first purpose is to bring about a worldwide revival (Matt. 24:14; Rev. 7:1-17). The means by which God will accomplish the second [first?—ed.] purpose of the Tribulation is found in Revelation 7:1-8. In verses 1-3, the four angels commissioned to bring judgment on the earth are commanded to hold off their destruction until a specific number of servants are sealed. Sealing was done for two reasons: service and protection. Both reasons apply here. They are sealed for protection so that they cannot be hurt, either by the judgments poured out by God or by the persecutions against believers. They are also sealed for service, for they are the ones who will proclaim the message of the gospel in the Tribulation. In verse four, the identification of those who are sealed is clearly specified as being 144,000 Jews. To make it even more clear, in verses five through eight, twelve tribes are listed with the statement that 12,000 are chosen from each of the twelve tribes listed. Such careful delineation definitely indicates that these 144,000 are Jews and will be nothing else, in spite of much speculation to the contrary. The emphasis is on the Jewishness of the 144,000. There is no reason, exegetically or theologically, to make them a symbol of the Church, a common attempt by Covenant Theologians. This ministry of the 144,000 Jews preaching the gospel fulfills the prophecy of Matthew 24:14: And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a testimony unto all the nations; and then shall the end come. Following the vision of the 144,000 Jews, John saw the results of their ministry in Revelation 7:9-17. In verses 9-10, John saw a multitude of Gentiles from every nationality and language group standing before the throne of God. The expression after these things means that the salvation of these myriads of Gentiles follows chronologically the 144,000 Jews and there is a cause and effect relationship. After describing the worship of the One on the throne (vv. 11-12), the text proceeds to identify who these Gentiles are who are found around the throne (vv. 13-14). These Gentiles are identified as those who have come out of the Great Tribulation. They are saved Gentiles for they have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb. Since they follow chronologically the ministry of the 144,000 Jews, the implication is that they are the Gentiles who become believers as a result of the preaching of the 144,000 Jews. Because of the massive persecution that these Tribulation saints have undergone, this passage concludes with a description of the comfort they now enjoy in the presence of God (vv. 15-17)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 767). “Rev. 14:1-5... The first verse presents what appears to be a millennial scene, with the 144,000 Jews of Revelation seven now on Mount Zion with Messiah, the Lamb. They have the name of God the Father on their foreheads, which is the seal that protected them from death (Rev. 7:3-4). The question is: Why bring in a millennial scene at this juncture of the Book of Revelation? The answer lies in its connection with the previous two chapters, where Satan organized his attempt to destroy the Jews. The first verse of chapter 14 opens with the 144,000 Jews standing on Mount Zion with the protective seal on their foreheads prominently displayed. This shows that Satan’s attempt at total Jewish destruction will fail. This is the purpose of the first proclamation, and it will provide comfort to the Tribulation saints. Verses 2-3 describe the song of the 144,000, a song that they alone will know. Four characteristics are described next (vv. 4-5). First, they are male virgins, a necessity in light of their calling to evangelize the world during the first half of the Tribulation. The severity of the judgments falling on the earth, and the persecution of the saints initially by the Ecclesiastical Babylon and then by the counterfeit trinity will not be conducive to marriage. Second, they follow Messiah wherever He may lead. Third, they are the firstfruits, a term that indicates the first of much more to come later. The very fact that the 144,000 are merely the firstfruits of many more Jewish believers to come further points to the failure of the program of the counterfeit trinity. Fourth, in relation to their morality, they are without a lie or blemish; they are not tainted by any kind of false religious or political system” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 265). “During the Tribulation period, 144,000 Jews from the twelve tribes are ‘sealed’ (cf. 14:3), 12,000 from each (7.5-8). Since the literal hermeneutic requires that Israel and tribe be taken literally—and since they are presented as such throughout the Bible—it follows that God will preserve His remnant through the Tribulation so they can go into the millennial kingdom just as He promised. This remnant, plus the great multitude (14:3, 6) of others who come to Christ during the Tribulation, will be the ‘sheep’ Christ welcomes into His messianic kingdom (Matt. 25:33-34)” (Geisler, ST, 4:511).

Specifically, we would emphasize:

The 144,000 are sealed at and/or toward the beginning of the Tribulation. (Jehovah’s Witnesses and many Covenant theologians teach that the 144,000 have been sealed throughout the past two thousand years of church history.) “After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth, so that no wind should blow on the earth or on the sea or on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God; and he cried out with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it was granted to harm the earth and the sea, saying, ‘Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the bond-servants of our God on their foreheads.’ And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel: from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed” (Rev. 7:1-8). “The first eight verses of the chapter are devoted to a description of the 144,000 sealed servants of God. In this passage the circumstances of their salvation are only implied. The fact that they are said to ‘have the seal of the living God’ implies their salvation, for the seal is the designation of ownership. Again, their salvation is implied in that they are called ‘the servants of our God.’ Such a designation could only be ascribed to saved individuals. In chapter fourteen these 144,000 are specifically said to be ‘redeemed from among men’ (v. 4) and are ‘the first-fruits unto God.’ The fact that they are associated with the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders in the worship of God assures us of their salvation. Thus the promise concerning individual salvation is seen to be fulfilled in the 144,000, even though these are only a portion of Israelites saved during that period” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 269). “Taken in its proper context, Revelation 7:1-8 pictures twelve tribes of Israel miraculously preserved through the Great Tribulation because they have trusted in Christ and are saved and are servants of God. They are pictured here as preserved through the Great Tribulation in contrast to the multitude from every nation who are not preserved physically, as described in Revelation 7:9-17. As the first half of Revelation 7 deals with those not martyred, the last half of Revelation 7 deals with the martyred dead who accept Christ and then are martyred for their faith. While the 144,000 may be witnesses, the Scriptures do not indicate this specifically. Their presence in the world intact is the dramatic evidence of the keeping power of God, and this is the point of their preservation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 263). “Ryrie [in Basic Theology, pp. 490-492] again discusses the 144,000. Ryrie rejects the posttribulational position, ‘the 144,000 Jews to be “spiritual Israel” which is forced to keep this group in an unsaved state throughout the Tribulation. Ryrie insists on taking the text literally and takes them to be Jews who will be saved at the beginning of the Tribulation. The very fact that they ‘have the seal of the living God,’ and are ‘the bond servants of our God,’ simply makes it unreasonable that they are unsaved during the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 532).

They are literal Jews. (Jehovah’s Witnesses and many Covenant theologians teach that they are “spiritual Jews,” i.e. [mostly Gentile] “anointed” Christians.) “After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth, so that no wind should blow on the earth or on the sea or on any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God; and he cried out with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it was granted to harm the earth and the sea, saying, ‘Do not harm the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have sealed the bond-servants of our God on their foreheads.’ And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed from every tribe of the sons of Israel: from the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, from the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed” (Rev. 7:1-8). “A study of the various renderings of the twelve tribes in both the Old and New Testaments illustrates the fact that one tribe is always omitted in order to keep the number to twelve. Sometimes this is the tribe of Levi. Here it happens to be the tribe of Dan. The problem is that if the two sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh, are considered separate tribes, it brings the number to thirteen. Accordingly, the omission of Dan here is really not significant and offers no support for denial that these are actually Israelites” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 262). “Ladd’s question, ‘How then can these twelve tribes be literal Jews since they are not the literal twelve tribes of Israel?’ can be answered rather simply: they are the literal twelve tribes of Israel, and the absence of Dan does not disqualify the other names from being the literal tribes of Israel. God simply chose not to select 12,000 from the Tribe of Dan for His purpose concerning the 144,000” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 299). “In fact, every tribe listed in Revelation seven is found among the twelve tribes of Israel. True, the Tribe of Dan is missing, but that is hardly sufficient to claim that all the others listed are ‘simply not the twelve tribes.’ It is not true that the Tribe of Ephraim is omitted. The name is simply substituted by his father’s name, Joseph. Nor is there any reason to assume that ‘the Tribe of Manasseh is included twice.’ The Tribe of Joseph stands for the Tribe of Ephraim while the Tribe of Manasseh stands for itself. Even if Manasseh is included twice, it does not negate them from being literal Jews. Again, this is careless exegesis. Ladd is trying hard to push his posttribulational theology into the text. Revelation 7:4 clearly states that these 144,000 came from every tribe of the children of Israel, yet Ladd states that they ‘are simply not the twelve tribes of Israel.’ Who, then, should the reader believe: John who wrote the book or Ladd? The names that John does list are: Judah, Reuben, Gad, Asher, Naphtali, Manasseh, Simeon, Levi, Issachar, Zebulun, Joseph, and Benjamin. Are these not the familiar Jewish names from the Old Testament that speak of the tribes of Israel? Ladd declares that ‘the twelve tribes listed are simply not the twelve tribes of Israel,’ but with only one exception (Dan), they are those very tribes of Israel. The fact that the tribe of Dan is missing is hardly exegetical evidence to dismiss all those mentioned from being Jewish” (ibid., p. 300). “Ladd uses the missing Dan to get to his foregone conclusion that these 144,000 are the Church. He states: ‘We may believe that John deliberately listed the 144,000 in an irregular listing of tribes to say that here are those who are true spiritual Jews without being literal Jews: in other words, the church.’ It is really difficult to take Ladd seriously, for this is very imaginative exegesis. He is working overtime to try to do away with the Jewishness of the 144,000. Only because of the exclusion of Dan, Ladd insists that these are not literal Jews but the Church. For him ‘the 144,000 are the church on the threshold of the Great Tribulation.’ Ladd, a Posttribulationist, does not have a single verse that actually puts the Church into the Tribulation, so he must use a back door approach; this is one such back door. The 144,000 are clearly in the Tribulation. By making the 144,000 the Church, Ladd is able to put the Church in the Tribulation” (ibid.). “Furthermore, having one tribe missing is not peculiar to the Book of Revelation. In Deuteronomy 33, Moses addressed the tribes one by one. Every tribe is named but one: Simeon. Not even Ladd would claim that such an ‘irregular listing’ by Moses means they were not literal Jews but the Church” (ibid., p. 301). “After writing about the 144,000 in Revelation 7:1-8, John then talks about another multitude in Revelation 7:9-17 which no man could number, and which came out of every nation and language and group. A simple reading of the text would make these two different groups distinguished from each other in two ways. The first group is Jewish, but the second is Gentile. The first group is numbered at exactly 144,000 with 12,000 coming from twelve tribes. The second group is a huge multitude that no man could number” (ibid.). “McClain [in The Greatness of the Kingdom, pp. 461-463] notes that the 144,000 are ‘definitely distinguished from the uncounted multitude from “all nations” later in the same chapter’ (ibid., p. 531). “While Ladd and other Covenant Theologians try very hard to make the 144,000 of Revelation 7 and 14 into non-Jews, though Jewish tribes are carefully listed, Dispensationalist Ryrie [in Basic Theology, pp. 468-469] has no problem taking the text as it reads and identifies the 144,000 as Jews” (ibid., p. 532). “Dan is left out of the 144,000. The Bible nowhere spells out why Dan is excluded... Dan is included in the Millennial Israel (Ezek. 48:1)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 207). “Now these are the names of the tribes: From the north end, beside the way of Hethlon to the entrance of Hamath, Hazar-enan at the border of Damascus, northward beside Hamath, and they shall have their sides east and west, Dan, one portion” (Ezek. 48:1). “The mention of the four winds shows that these 144,000 Jews will come from all parts of the world and not only from Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 220). “In place of the name of Ephraim there is the name of his father Joseph (v. 8), but it is the same tribe. Such an interchange between Joseph and Ephraim is not unusual and also appears elsewhere, as in Ezekiel 37:16” (ibid.). “And thou, son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions” (Ezek. 37:16) “The text itself does not state the reason why the Tribe of Dan is left out. The actual reason is simply to maintain the symmetry of twelve. When all tribal names are actually listed, the total comes to thirteen and not twelve because Joseph produced two tribes: Ephraim and Manasseh. In order to maintain the symmetry of twelve, one name must always be dropped. This is not the only place this happens. For example, in Deuteronomy 33, Moses presents his twelve tribal blessings, as Jacob did in Genesis 49. But to maintain the symmetry of twelve, Moses also had to drop one tribe, and that was the Tribe of Simeon. In Ezekiel 47-48, in describing the tribal settlement in the Messianic Kingdom, to maintain the symmetry of twelve, Ezekiel drops the tribe of Levi, putting this tribe in a separate place and category. Just as there was no sinister reason for dropping Simeon, there is no sinister reason for dropping Dan. In all cases, it was merely to retain the symmetry of twelve. In the Book of Revelation, three numbers are prominent: four, seven and twelve. Hence, the dropping of Dan” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 220). “Revelation speaks of a role for Israel in the last days before the Second Coming, a specific and significant involvement in God’s future plan, first mentioned during the Tribulation: ‘Then I heard the number of those who were sealed: 144,000 from all the tribes of Israel’ (7:4). Neither word, tribe or Israel, is ever scripturally used in anything but a literal way” (Geisler, ST, 4:57). (See also our discussion of the fact that in the Bible, “tribes” always refers to literal tribes of people in the section The Church is Not “Israel” of our chapter The Mystery Kingdom (The Church).)

They are “first fruits.” “And they sang a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and the elders; and no one could learn the song except the one hundred and forty-four thousand who had been purchased from the earth. These are the ones who have not been defiled with women, for they have kept themselves chaste. These are the ones who follow the Lamb wherever He goes. These have been purchased from among men as first fruits to God and to the Lamb” (Rev. 14:3–4). “The reference to the 144,000 as ‘the first fruits unto God and to the Lamb’ (14:4) cannot mean the first in time of all the redeemed in world history, for this would displace the saints of the Old Testament. In the context of Revelation, they are the ‘firstfruits’ of the nation of Israel to be redeemed out of end-time judgments, to form the nucleus of the living nation on earth in the Millennial Kingdom. For they are divinely protected from physical harm and therefore do not die (7:3)” (McClain, GK, p. 479).

Their existence is in harmony with the broader doctrine of the Jewish remnant:

In summary, “In considering the Old Testament prophecies it was noted that God has a remnant within the remnant of the nation. It is believed that the 144,000 of Revelation 7 and 14 constitute a special part of the remnant of Israel, set apart by a sovereign act of God, to be special witness during the tribulation period. Several considerations are important here. The first is as to whether the 144,000 are literal or figurative. Some have held that this was a representative number to symbolize an innumerable host of Israel saved during the tribulation. Darby [in Kelly, editor, Collected Writings of J.N. Darby, Prophetical XI, II, 37] says: ‘The number... is symbolic; it is the perfect number of those who escape of the remnant in Israel. God alone can know the number of those He seals.’ Scott [in Walter Scott, Exposition of the Revelation of Jesus Christ, p. 166] takes the same view when he writes: ‘The number of the sealed is of course symbolic, and simply denotes that God has appropriated a certain, complete, yet limited number of Israel for Himself.’ This would make the 144,000 identical to the saved of Israel of the tribulation period. Now it is made clear that many of the saints of Israel are slain during the tribulation (Rev. 13:7; 20:4) whereas these 144,000 are sealed, evidently with a view to their preservation through the period. Thus the remnant of the nation, which is subject to death, can not be the same as the 144,000 who are not subject to death. These must be viewed as a separate company. It would seem to be better to conclude, with Ottman [in Ford C. Ottman, The Unfolding of the Ages, p. 166], ‘To lose sight of a literal Israel here is to throw a pall of darkness over the whole subject,’ and again [Ibid., p. 180], ‘In this sealed company from the twelve tribes of Israel is, whatever may be said to the contrary, plainly and literally before us.’ And since Israel is literal here and the tribes are literal, it would seem best to take the numbers literally also. If these 144,000 are seen to be only a part of the total remnant, the comparative smallness of the number, when compared with the number of saved Gentiles (Rev. 7:9), creates no problem. And, if God is setting these apart as sovereignly appointed witnesses, why should there not be a specific number appointed” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 297)? “It is to be noted that the remnant of Romans 11:26 is not converted until the second advent of Christ and the 144,000 are ministering as sealed witnesses immediately after the church has been raptured. It would thus seem that the 144,000 are a part of the remnant of Israel, but not the entire remnant itself. It may be that Paul was likening himself to one of these witnesses when he speaks of himself as ‘one born out of due time’ (1 Cor. 15:8). Scofield [in C.I. Scofield, Reference Bible p. 1226] remarks: ‘Gr. to ektromati, “before the due time.” Paul thinks of himself here as an Israelite whose time to be born again had not come, nationally (cf. Mt. 23:39 [“O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were unwilling. Behold, your house is being left to you desolate! For I say to you, from now on you shall not see Me until you say, ‘BLESSED IS HE WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD!’””]), so that his conversion by the appearing of the Lord in glory (Acts 9:3-6) was an illustration, or instance before the time, of the future national conversion of Israel. See Ezek. 20:35-38; Hos. 2:14-17; Zech. 12:10-13:6; Rom. 11:25-27.' They are the set-apart witnesses of whom Paul was the prototype. And as there were specifically numbered groups who were sent out as witnesses during the Lord's ministry (the twelve and the seventy), there will be a specifically designated group appointed here also" (ibid., p. 298). "...the Remnant of Israel is fulfilling the calling of the nation as a whole" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 773).

Specifically, three facts are pertinent to this discussion: 1. The Jewish remnant always exists. "...the Remnant of Israel... there is never a time when it is non-existent" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 601). "There are two Israels: Israel the Whole and Israel the Remnant. Ethnically, the two are the same, but spiritually, they are not. The Remnant at any point of history may be large or small but there is never a time when it is non-existent, except immediately after the Rapture" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 763). 2. The remnant has not always been easily identified. "And Jehovah said unto him [Elijah], Go, return on thy way to the wilderness of Damascus: and when thou comest, thou shalt anoint Hazael to be king over Syria; and Jehu the son of Nimshi shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel; and Elisha the son of Shaphat of Abel-meholah shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room. And it shall come to pass, that him that escapeth from the sword of Hazael shall Jehu slay; and him that escapeth from the sword of Jehu shall Elisha slay. Yet will I leave me seven thousand in Israel, all the knees which have not bowed unto Baal, and every mouth which hath not kissed him" (1 Kings. 19:15-18). "These seven thousand were the remnant of that day, quite small compared to the nation as a whole. The remnant corresponds to the still small voice. The remnant in contrast to Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha, is the quiet thing; so quiet, that Elijah did not know they even existed. God's presence was in this remnant" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 603). 3. The remnant will believe in Immanuel. "Then said Jehovah unto Isaiah, Go forth now to meet Ahaz, thou, and Shear-jashub thy son, at the end of the conduit of the upper pool, in the highway of the fuller's field" (Isa. 7:3) "Therefore the Lord Himself will give you a sign: Behold, a virgin will be with child and bear a son, and she will call His name Immanuel" (Isa. 7:14). "And Jehovah spake unto me yet again, saying, Forasmuch as this people have refused the waters of Shiloah that go softly, and rejoice in Rezin and Remaliah's son; now therefore, behold, the Lord bringeth up upon them the waters of the River, strong and many, even the king of Assyria and all his glory: and it shall come up over all its channels, and go over all its banks; and it shall sweep onward into Judah; it shall overflow and pass through; it shall reach even to the neck; and the stretching out of its wings shall fill the breadth of thy land, O Immanuel. Make an uproar, O ye peoples, and be broken in pieces; and give ear, all ye of far countries: gird yourselves, and be broken in pieces; gird yourselves, and be broken in pieces. Take counsel together, and it shall be brought to nought; speak the word, and it shall not stand: for God is with us. For Jehovah spake thus to me with a strong hand, and instructed me not to walk in the way of this people, saying, Say ye not, A conspiracy, concerning all whereof this people shall say, A conspiracy; neither fear ye their fear, nor be in dread thereof. Jehovah of hosts, him shall ye sanctify; and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. And he shall be for a sanctuary; but for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence to both the houses of Israel, for a gin and for a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And many shall stumble thereon, and fall, and be broken, and be snared, and be taken. Bind thou up the testimony, seal the law among my disciples. And I will wait for Jehovah, that hideth his face from the house of Jacob, and I will look for him” (Isa. 8:5-17). “It is Isaiah the prophet who put the remnant concept into theological terms. It is mostly found in the unit comprising chapters 7-12 and called ‘The Book of Immanuel’ since, in the Hebrew text, that name is found three times (7:14, 8:8, 10). Building on the contrast of the noise and the quiet, Isaiah (8:5-8) points out that the non-remnant tends to put its trust in that which is noisy (the Assyrian Army) but the remnant has a quiet confidence in the God of Israel and the One to come, Immanuel. Ultimately the noise will destroy the non-remnant which puts its faith in the noise, but Immanuel will save the believing (8:9-11). Immanuel thus becomes the point of division between the remnant and the non-remnant. For the remnant, Immanuel will prove to be a sanctuary, but for the non-remnant Immanuel will prove to be a Stone of Stumbling and a Rock of Offense (8:14-15). The remnant places its trust in the law and the prophets (8:16) and, therefore, waits upon the Lord (8:17). So important was the doctrine of the remnant to Isaiah that he named one of his sons Shear Yashuv which means ‘a remnant shall return’ (7:3). With that naming, Isaiah was looking forward to the future final salvation of the Remnant of Israel (10:20-23). Until then, it is God who will protect the remnant and guarantee its survival (46:3-4)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 604).

Concerning the biblical doctrine of the remnant (Note: The following discussion of the doctrine of the remnant is from Fruchtenbaum’s Israelology, which in turn quotes heavily from Pentecost’s Things to Come, pp. 291-301):

Regarding the Jewish remnant in general: Regarding the necessity of a remnant, “Pentecost discusses the 144,000 Jews in conjunction with the doctrine of the remnant. This he does in five categories, the first of which is the ‘necessity of a remnant.’ The necessity of the existence of a believing Jewish remnant is based on the four unconditional and eternal covenants God made with Israel, and the very nature of these covenants ‘demands the existence of a remnant to whom and through whom these covenants can be fulfilled.’ The Abrahamic Covenant promised ‘a land, a seed, and a blessing, which would be universal and eternal.’ This requires ‘a remnant to be that promised seed, who can occupy the land given that seed and through whom the promised blessing may come.’ The Palestinian Covenant ‘gives the basis on which Israel will occupy the land,’ and this makes ‘the existence of a remnant imperative to receive the promised inheritance of the land.’ The Davidic Covenant promised ‘a king, a kingdom, and a throne to the seed of Abraham,’ and ‘an everlasting earthly kingdom over which David’s son should reign.’ This fact also necessitates ‘a remnant to whom the promises of the Davidic covenant can be fulfilled.’ The New Covenant promised a national salvation and restoration of Israel and so ‘there must be a remnant of the nation continuing with whom God can fulfill His word.’ Finally, the very character of God requires the existence of a remnant, for ‘God has made these solemn promises to the nation Israel’ and ‘the very character of God is at stake in their fulfillment.’ God’s integrity ‘makes the existence of a remnant necessary” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 533). Regarding the remnant in Israel’s history, “In the second category, Pentecost summarizes the ‘remnant in Israel’s history’: Even a casual survey of Israel’s recorded history will establish the principle that God dealt with a believing remnant within the nation. Caleb and Joshua (Num. 13-14), Deborah and Barak (Judges 4), Gideon (Judges 7), Samson (Judges 13-17), Samuel (1 Sam 2), the Levites in Jeroboam’s day (2 Chron. 11:14-16), Asa (2 Chron. 15:9), the seven thousand faithful ones in the days of Elijah (1 Kings 19:18) all illustrate this point... God preserved for Himself a faithful, believing, witnessing remnant in times of apostasy, persecution, and indifference” (ibid.). Regarding the remnant in the prophets, “In the third category, he summarizes the ‘remnant in the prophets’: It would be impossible to cite all the references to the remnant in the prophetic books. A few passages will be cited to show that such a subject is a main line of prophetic revelation. Isaiah speaks of it in 1:9, 4:3-4, 6:12-13; 10:21; 26:20; 49:6; 51:1; 65:13-14. Entire chapters, such as twenty-six, thirty-three, thirty-five, and sixty-five, are devoted to it. Jeremiah follows the same theme in passages such as Jeremiah 15:11, 33:25-26, and 44:28. The entire passage in chapters thirty through thirty-three is based upon the existence of the remnant. Ezekiel takes up the theme in such references as 14:22; 20:34-38; 37:21-22. It appears again in the other prophets: Hosea 3:5; Amos 9:11-15; Zechariah 13:8-9; Malachi 3:16-17" (ibid., p. 534). Regarding the remnant in the New Testament, "In the fourth category, the author summarizes the 'remnant in the New Testament.' Pentecost affirms the existence of a special Jewish remnant even throughout the gospel period which was 'a believing group within the spared nation.' It is important to realize that the Remnant of Israel is always within Israel and not outside of it. The ministry of John, Jesus, the twelve and the seventy disciples was all limited to Israel as a nation and the kingdom was offered to Israel alone; but it is also true that 'God was dealing throughout Christ's earthly ministry with the remnant that existed then.' However, Pentecost then reveals the persistent weakness of Dispensationalism in developing a theology of Israel Present. He states that between the rejection of the Messiahship of Jesus until the Great Tribulation 'it is not possible to refer to a remnant of the nation Israel.' However, this is simply not true, as Romans 11 makes very clear. Pentecost declares that in 'the body of Christ all national distinctions disappear,' but the Bible nowhere teaches this; for in every context where the Scriptures teach that there is 'neither Jew nor Greek' it is speaking of how one is saved. Earlier in his own work, Pentecost showed that there is still a distinction between Jewish believers and Gentiles believers, so he goes well beyond the text with such declarative statements. Pentecost is correct in that all 'Jews who are saved are not saved into a national relationship, but into a relationship to Christ in that body of believers'; however, the point is that these Jews who become believers do not lose their nationality, their Jewishness, anymore than Gentiles cease to be Gentiles. The author's declaration that 'there is no continuing remnant of Israel with whom God is particularly dealing today' is simply a false conclusion. There is always a remnant of the Israel which is the 'Israel of God' of Galatians 6:15-16. Paul's argument in Romans 11:1-10 is to emphasize that there is still a Remnant of Israel today. Pentecost does make reference to Romans 11:5 and correctly rejects the view of Covenant Theology 'that the church becomes the remnant and will be the witness in and through whom the promises of God are fulfilled to a "spiritual" Israel.' Nevertheless, Romans 11 does speak of a Jewish remnant in this present age of grace, and the Remnant of Israel is always part of the nation and not apart from it. The point is that there is still a Remnant of Israel today. True, all Jewish believers are part of the Church, but they are still part of Israel, for they and they alone make up the 'Israel of God.' These unproven statements

Regarding the Jewish remnant in Revelation: “In the fifth category, Pentecost deals extensively with the ‘remnant in Revelation.’ Pentecost begins the discussion on the remnant in Revelation by referring to Paul’s comments in Romans 11. He points out that 11:25 teaches that ‘the blindness of Israel is a temporary blindness,’ but then he repeats his error of the previous section by deducting a false conclusion: ‘Because the nation is now blinded, God can not have a remnant within the nation with whom the covenants will be fulfilled.’ The point of Romans 11:1-20 is exactly the opposite: that God does have a believing Remnant of Israel today. Not only does Romans 11:25 teach that ‘the blindness of Israel is temporary blindness,’ it also teaches that this blindness is in part, that is it is a partial blindness, for there are Jews who believe. It is that part of Israel which is not blinded that makes up the Remnant of Israel today. Pentecost goes on to say that ‘the “all Israel” in Romans 11:26’ refers to the ‘believing remnant, the believing Jews at the second advent of Christ.’ What is not at all clear from Pentecost is the question as to whether or not the all Israel which makes up the Remnant of Israel at the second coming includes all Jews living at that time; the implication is that it does not” (ibid., p. 535). Regarding the existence of the remnant, “Having given this [the paragraphs quoted immediately above—ed.] as an introduction, Pentecost moves on to discuss the remnant in Revelation in six points. The first point is the ‘existence of the remnant.’ Pentecost concludes that the very fact that Satan attacks Israel in the Tribulation, an Israel that has ‘regathered in unbelief back to the land’ and is now forced ‘to flee for preservation from the Satanic attack’ shows that ‘a remnant does exist in the tribulation period,’ and it is ‘this remnant that God is preparing for the fulfillment of all Israel’s covenants and promises” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 535). Regarding the status of the remnant, “...second point is the ‘status of this remnant.’ Again, Pentecost states that Israel, when regathered before the Tribulation, ‘is still in unbelief.’ However, God intends to bring the nation to salvation and will use a variety of means, such as the Scriptures, the work of the Holy Spirit in ‘convicting and enlightening,’ miraculous signs, ‘the ministry of the 144,000 sealed of Israel’ of Revelation seven and the two witnesses of Revelation 11. Pentecost feels that ‘the majority will not repent,’ but ‘some may be turned to Jehovah by these signs.’ In passing, it should be noted that Pentecost understands the 144,000 to speak of literal Jews, and he will develop this point later; but insofar as the status of the remnant is concerned, the entire nation is ‘unsaved at the beginning of the tribulation,’ though throughout the Tribulation many Jewish ‘individuals are experiencing salvation’ and ‘the nation will be saved finally at the second advent’” (ibid., p. 536). Regarding the means of salvation of the remnant, “The third point is the ‘means of salvation of the remnant.’ The remnant will come to saving faith because the Holy Spirit will still be active in the Tribulation, though some of His ministries will differ from the way He operates today. Furthermore, according to Matthew 24:14, there will be the preaching of ‘the gospel of the kingdom’ which includes ‘two distinct facets’: the proclamation of the coming of the kingdom; and, ‘that the salvation is through the blood of the lamb’” (ibid.). Regarding the ministry of the remnant, “The fourth point concerns the ‘ministry of the remnant,’ and Pentecost believes that ‘this believing remnant holds the position of a witnessing body during the tribulation period.’ The very purpose of Israel’s calling in the Old Testament, to be ‘the witness for God to the nations of the earth,’ will be fulfilled by the remnant in the Tribulation, for ‘God will raise up a faithful witness during the tribulation to fulfill this original purpose for this nation’” (ibid.). Regarding the relation of the 144,000 to the remnant, “The fifth point is the ‘relation of the 144,000 to the remnant.’ Covenant Theologians, including premillennial ones like Ladd, struggle hard and use all sorts of exegetical gymnastics to try to prove that the 144,000 Jews are not Jews and that the twelve tribes of Israel are not the twelve tribes of Israel but are somehow representative of the Church; however, Pentecost, like all Dispensationalists, takes the text at face value and accepts the 144,000 to be Jews. He has no trouble making the twelve tribes of Israel mean the twelve tribes of Israel. His concern here is to determine just how these 144,000 Jews of Revelation seven relate to the remnant. Just as in the Old Testament God had ‘a remnant within the remnant of the nation,’ Pentecost views the 144,000 of Revelation 7 and 14 to ‘constitute a special part of the remnant of Israel, set apart by a sovereign act of God, to be special witness during the tribulation period.’ While a minority of Dispensationalists viewed the figure 144,000 as a figurative number, ‘to symbolize an innumerable host of Israel saved during the tribulation,’ and, therefore, ‘make the 144,000 identical to the saved of Israel of the tribulation period,’ Pentecost speaks for the majority of Dispensationalists by taking the figure literally. This is an exact number because of their special role in the Tribulation. They are sealed for the purpose of being preserved through the Tribulation and, therefore, ‘are not subject to death.’ For that reason, they ‘must be viewed as a separate company.’ Pentecost concludes that ‘since Israel is literal here and the tribes are literal, it would seem best to take the numbers literally also.’ Because these are set apart by God as special witnesses, then there should be no problem with such a specific number like 144,000, and no reason not to take that figure literally. The 144,000 are to be viewed as being ‘part of the remnant of Israel, but not the entire remnant itself.’ This is obvious from at least one fact alone: the 144,000 are saved at the beginning of the Tribulation, while the nation or ‘the remnant of Romans 11:26 is not converted until the second advent of Christ.’ Furthermore, these 144,000 are not only a part of the remnant, they ‘are ministering as sealed witnesses immediately after the church has been raptured.’ Pentecost views them as carrying out the program of world evangelism in the Tribulation. A minority of Dispensationalists have held to the view that the 144,000 of Revelation seven are a distinct group from the 144,000 of revelation 14, but Pentecost again speaks for the majority of Dispensationalists by making them the same group. Since to separate them requires one ‘to spiritualize certain things in the two chapters,’ it is wiser to stick to a literal interpretation and to ‘make them identical.’ The 144,000 in Revelation seven are ‘set apart... before the great tribulation begins’ and are ‘sealed at the very outset of the tribulation period.’ The myriad of Gentiles saved ‘come to a knowledge of salvation through the ministry of this group.’ In Revelation 14, the same 144,000 are viewed as being with the Messiah in the Messianic Kingdom. These 144,000 Jews are called the firstfruits which means ‘they are the first of the harvest of the tribulation period that will come into the millennium to populate the millennial earth.’ They are the firstfruit of many more Jews to come to saving faith” (ibid.). And, regarding the destiny of the remnant, “The sixth point concerns the ‘destiny of the remnant.’ The specific destiny of the remnant is the Messianic Kingdom when their Messiah will rule over them from the Throne of David. Pentecost concludes that the ‘promises are not heavenly, but earthly, and will be fulfilled in the millennium” (ibid., p. 537).

The 144,000 will proclaim the gospel to the nations during the Tribulation period. “The Old Testament pictures Israel as the witness for God to the nations of the earth. Israel was unfaithful to this ministry. God will raise up a faithful witness during the tribulation to fulfill this original purpose for this nation” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 297). “God will set apart Israel again during the Tribulation to be His light to the world (Rev. 7:1-8)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 259). “Matthew 24:14... 144,000... Israel in the Old Testament was the servant of God and their ministry was to receive revelation from God and then to disseminate that revelation to the nations that were in darkness due to their ignorance of God. These 144,000, then, will be set apart as God’s emissaries to the Gentiles to bring those in darkness a knowledge of the salvation that was provided through the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. As a result of their ministry, an innumerable company will be brought to faith in Jesus Christ and experience the blessings of the salvation He has provided” (ibid., p. 311). “It is difficult to accept any interpretation that spiritualizes the names of the Jewish tribes into the Israel of God or the church universal. That principle of interpretation is valid that states: ‘When the plain sense makes good sense, seek no other sense.’ Concerning the 144,000 sealed ones, one concludes that when the church is caught up to be with the Lord, God will call a remnant of His people—He has ever had a true witness to Himself and His goodness among His people Israel even in the darkest hours of their apostasy and declension—to proclaim the gospel of the kingdom, for ‘this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come’ (Matt. 24:14). The presence of that remnant is brought out in many Old Testament passages and explains the existence and purpose of the imprecatory psalms. The result of their testimony is seen in the great multitude of Gentiles saved (Rev. 7:9-17)” (Feinberg, M, p. 162). “It is by means of these 144,000 that the gospel will be proclaimed to all nations during the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 532). “The 144,000 Jews... They will be evangelists during the first half of the Tribulation, conducting a worldwide revival” (ibid., p. 775). “Revelation 7:1-17... In verses 1-8, John describes the means by which God will bring about this worldwide revival, while verses 9-17 portray the results of the revival” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 175). “...this revival will occur during the first half of the Tribulation” (ibid., p. 176). “During the first half of the Tribulation, God will evangelize the world by means of the 144,000 Jews and thus fulfill the prophecy found in Matthew 24:14” (ibid., p. 177). “And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations, and then the end shall come” (Matt. 24:14). “[Rev. 7:9-10, 13-14]... ‘After these things’... After the vision of the 144,000 Jews, John saw myriads and myriads of Gentiles, as well as other Jews who have come to a saving knowledge of the Savior during the Tribulation. The connecting link, after these things, is chronological and also shows a cause and effect relationship between the first and the second parts of Revelation seven. Thus, by means of the 144,000 Jews, God will accomplish the second purpose of the Great Tribulation, that of bringing about a worldwide revival” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 177). “This ministry of the 144,000 Jews preaching the gospel fulfills the prophecy of Matthew 24:14” (ibid., p. 221). “...the 144,000 Jews (Rev. 7:4-8), are scattered into the world, preaching ‘the gospel of the kingdom’ (Matt. 24:14) and winning ‘a great multitude’ of others to Christ (Rev. 7:9)” (Geisler, ST, 4:602).

And, the 144,000 will enter alive the Messianic Kingdom. “For this reason, they [the great multitude] are before the throne of God; and they serve Him day and night in His temple; and He who sits on the throne shall spread His tabernacle over them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore; neither shall the sun beat down on them, nor any heat” (Rev. 7:15-16) “Then I looked, and behold, the Lamb was standing on Mount Zion, and with Him one hundred and forty-four thousand, having His name and the name of His Father written on their foreheads. And I heard a voice from heaven, like the sound of many waters and like the sound of loud thunder, and the voice which I heard was like the sound of harpists playing on their harps. And they sang a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and the elders; and no one could learn the song except the one hundred and forty-four thousand who had been purchased from the earth” (Rev. 14:1-3). “They are seen ‘before the throne’ (Rev. 14:3). Thus the destiny of this remnant is the kingdom over which Christ will rule from the ‘throne of David.’ These promises are not heavenly, but earthly, and will be fulfilled in the millennium” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 301). “These 144,000 come up again in a later chapter entitled, ‘Populating the Millennial Kingdom,’ where he provides a pretribulational answer as to who enters the Messianic Kingdom. The 144,000 are again identified as Jews and will be among those to enter the Messianic Kingdom. Beyond these will be ‘the faithful Jewish survivors of Ezekiel 20:38” [quoting Ryrie, Basic Theology, pp. 488-489] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 532). “and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah” (Ezek. 20:38). “There will be a large portion of the Jewish population who will become members of the Remnant of Israel only at the end of the Tribulation. These can be called the Faithful Remnant. Based upon all the passages involved, this group will make up the majority of the one-third of the nation that will survive the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 786).

The Seven Seal Judgments

With the opening of the seal judgments, the four horsemen of the Apocalypse begin their rides. “The seven seals... all seven will be part of the same program of Christ’s evicting Satan and his forces and taking tenant possession of the earth” (Showers, M, p. 111). “One of the marks of the richness of the depiction in Rev. is that God’s wrath is also against devils and powers which oppose God, as is made plain by the revelation of God in Christ... and in this connection we are given the picture of two antithetical forces of wrath. The devil with his great wrath—Rev. 12:17 has the image of the angry dragon—and along with him the angry nations (11:18) fight against God and His kingdom. This is the great eschatological wrath which opposes the wrath of God... The drama of revelation can thus be understood in large measure as a battle between two wraths” [quoting Gustav Stahlin, ‘orge,’ Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, Vol. V, p. 439] (ibid.). “...the objects of God’s wrath (Satan and his forces, including all nations, people, and angels who oppose God)” (ibid., p. 122) “There are seven Seal Judgments, with the seventh containing the Seven Trumpet Judgments. The seventh Trumpet Judgment contains the seven Bowl Judgments” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 204). “...each series of judgments is more intense” (Geisler, ST, 4:605) “The time up to the fourth seal is described as ‘the beginning of birth pains’ (Matt. 24:8), and by the sixth seal ‘the great day of their wrath’ will have arrived. The intensity of God’s wrath will be increasing; once again, if God had not foredetermined to shorten these days there would be no flesh alive by the end of the Tribulation (cf. Matt. 24:22)” (ibid., p. 607).

Seal 1: Antichrist conquers. “I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things” (Dan. 7:8) “Then I desired to know the truth concerning the fourth beast, which was diverse from all of them, exceeding terrible, whose teeth were of iron, and its nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet; and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows. I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them” (Dan. 7:19-21) “and as for the ten horns, out of this kingdom shall ten kings arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the former, and he shall put down three kings” (Dan. 7:24). “And Jesus answered and said to them, ‘See to it that no one misleads you. For many will come in My name, saying, “I am the Christ,” and will mislead many” (Matt. 24:4-5). “And I saw when the Lamb broke one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying as with a voice of thunder, ‘Come.’ And I looked, and behold, a white horse, and he who sat on it had a bow; and a crown was given to him; and he went out conquering, and to conquer” (Rev. 6:1-2). “And he stood on the sand of the seashore. And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain” (Rev. 13:1–8). “As Daniel’s ‘Beast’ represented the ‘FOURTH KINGDOM’ upon the earth, the Roman Empire, it is evident that its characteristics describe the old Roman Empire, while the characteristics of John’s Beast represent the revived Roman Empire” (Larkin, DT, p. 121). “The body being that of a LEOPARD, with the feet of a BEAR, and the mouth of a LION is to show that the revived Roman Empire in its last stage will include the characteristics of the first ‘Three Wild Beasts’ of Daniel, that is, of the LION (Babylon), the BEAR (Medo-Persia), and the LEOPARD (Greece), and as the largest part of the ‘Beast,’ the body, is represented by the LEOPARD, the prevailing characteristic of the revived Roman Empire will be GRECIAN” (ibid.). “Christ as the Lamb, is holding and breaking the ‘seals’ of the Book. He does not appear as a White Horse Rider until chapter 19” (ibid., p. 134). “...our Lord appears as the Lamb in heaven breaking the seal which releases the rider of the white horse on earth” (McClain, GK, p. 452). “The rider on the white horse is the counterpart of the ‘little horn’ of Daniel’s vision” (ibid., p. 453). “His activity during the first half of the 70th week will be characterized by a driving compulsion to conquer the whole world and bring it under his dominion” (Showers, M, p. 105). “...the judgment of the world. Isaiah 3:1-15 indicates that sometimes God judges rebellious people by removing good leaders or rulers and giving them oppressive rulers. Thus, there are times when God gives people the kind of rulers they deserve” (ibid., p. 109). “For, behold, the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, doth take away from Jerusalem and from Judah stay and staff, the whole stay of bread, and the whole stay of water; the mighty man, and the man of war; the judge, and the prophet, and the diviner, and the elder; the captain of fifty, and the honorable man, and the counsellor, and the expert artificer, and the skilful enchanter. And I will give children to be their princes, and babes shall rule over them. And the people shall be oppressed, every one by another, and every one by his neighbor: the child shall behave himself proudly against the old man, and the base against the honorable. When a man shall take hold of his brother in the house of his father, saying, Thou hast clothing, be thou our ruler, and let this ruin be under thy hand; in that day shall he lift up his voice, saying, I will not be a healer; for in my house is neither bread nor clothing: ye shall not make me ruler of the people. For Jerusalem is ruined, and Judah is fallen; because their tongue and their doings are against Jehovah, to provoke the eyes of his glory. The show of their countenance doth witness against them; and they declare their sin as Sodom, they hide it not. Woe unto their soul! for they have done evil unto themselves. Say ye of the righteous, that it shall be well with him; for they shall eat the fruit of their doings. Woe unto the wicked! it shall be ill with him; for what his hands have done shall be done unto him. As for my people, children are their oppressors, and women rule over them. O my people, they that lead thee cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths. Jehovah standeth up to contend, and standeth to judge the peoples. Jehovah will enter into judgment with the elders of his people, and the princes thereof: It is ye that have eaten up the vineyard; the spoil of the poor is in your houses: what mean ye that ye crush my people, and grind the face of the poor? saith the Lord, Jehovah of hosts” (Isa. 3:1-15). “During the 70th week, God will inflict on the rebellious world a ruler who will be the ultimate expression of its own spirit of lawlessness... That rebellious nature will make him an oppressive, dictatorial tyrant who will subject the world to his self-centered whims, causing the world to suffer the horrible consequences of the same spirit of lawlessness that prompts it to rebel against God. Thus, God will judge the world by giving it the kind of ruler it deserves” (Showers, M, p. 109). “Just as God raised up Pharaoh, who despised and stubbornly resisted Him and tried to annihilate His people, to demonstrate His awesome power through him and thereby impress the world with Himself (Ex. 9:16; Rom. 9:17), so He will bring the Antichrist on the world scene for a similar purpose” (ibid.). “...to judge the lawless world by giving it the kind of lawless ruler it deserves” (ibid., p. 122) “By establishing a one-world government, he will imitate the worldwide authority that will belong to Jesus Christ in His Kingdom: ‘He was given authority over every tribe, people, language and nation’” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 303). “That the figure is not Messiah is indicated by the fact that the crown here is a stephanos crown, the crown of an overcomer or victor. It is not the diadem crown, the crown of sovereignty and royalty, the type of crown Messiah will wear in chapter 19” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 204). “This rider is not to be confused with Christ (cf. Rev. 19) because: (1) This is not the Second Coming, which is after the Tribulation; (2) Christ will come with a ‘sword,’ the Word of God, not a bow; (3) At His return, Christ will not be ‘bent on conquest’ but will be engaged in the final conquering; (4) By parallel with Matthew 24:4-5, this is a false Christ” (Geisler, ST, 4:605).

Seal 2: War. “And when He broke the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying, ‘Come.’ And another, a red horse, went out; and to him who sat on it, it was granted to take peace from the earth, and that men should slay one another; and a great sword was given to him” (Rev. 6:3-4). “And you will be hearing of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not frightened, for those things must take place, but that is not yet the end. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs” (Matt. 24:6-8). “The rider of the second seal will be given a great sword and will remove peace from the earth... it will be equal to the wars and rumors of wars, nation rising against nation, and kingdom against kingdom in Jesus’ beginning of birth pangs statements in Matthew 24:6-8” (Showers, M, p. 113). “There are three major wars during the period of the Tribulation, and the second seal is the first of these three wars. The second war will be in the middle of the Tribulation, and the third, which is the Campaign of Armageddon, toward the end of the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 216).

Seal 3: Famine. “And when He broke the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying, ‘Come.’ And I looked, and behold, a black horse; and he who sat on it had a pair of scales in his hand. And I heard as it were a voice in the center of the four living creatures saying, ‘A quart of wheat for a denarius, and three quarts of barley for a denarius; and do not harm the oil and the wine.’ And when He broke the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying, ‘Come.’ And I looked, and behold, an ashen horse; and he who sat on it had the name Death; and Hades was following with him. And authority was given to them over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by the wild beasts of the earth” (Rev. 6:5-8). “For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs” (Matt. 24:7-8). “...the failure of crops... especially during the interval, to teach, if possible, men their dependence upon a higher power, and their impotency to relieve themselves from the entailed curse” (Peters, TTK, 3:152) “When the third seal is broken, a voice in the midst of the four beasts speaks. The person speaking determines the prices of food and sets limits on the famine—he administers the famine... either God or Christ, not mankind or Satan, will administer the famine associated with the third seal” (Showers, M, p. 113). “The judgment of a worldwide famine, however, is tempered by mercy. For while there is a famine of food, there will be an abundance of medicine, for the oil and wine are not hurt. These items were used for medicinal purposes” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 217). “Revelation 6:7-8...by the wild beasts of the earth... Once food becomes scarce, wild animals which generally leave man alone will begin to attack man for food” (ibid.).

Seal 4: Death. “And when He broke the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying, ‘Come.’ And I looked, and behold, an ashen horse; and he who sat on it had the name Death; and Hades was following with him. And authority was given to them over a fourth of the earth, to kill with sword and with famine and with pestilence and by the wild beasts of the earth” (Rev. 6:7-8). “For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes. But all these things are merely the beginning of birth pangs” (Matt. 24:7-8).

Seal 5: Martyrs. “And when He broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of those who had been slain because of the word of God, and because of the testimony which they had maintained; and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, ‘How long, O Lord, holy and true, wilt Thou refrain from judging and avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?’ And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told that they should rest for a little while longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brethren who were to be killed even as they had been, should be completed also” (Rev. 6:9-11). “Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations because of My name. At that time many will fall away and will betray one another and hate one another. Many false prophets will arise and will mislead many. Because lawlessness is increased, most people’s love will grow cold. But the one who endures to the end, he will be saved. This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world as a testimony to all the nations, and then the end will come” (Matt. 24:9–14). “...when Christ or the Antichrist is to be chosen” (Peters, TTK, 2:739) “No doubt too, one cause of the exceeding bitterness and animosity manifested toward the followers of Jesus, will be the previous proclamation that this last revived head [Rev. 13:3, 12] will be the Antichrist” (ibid.). “And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast” (Rev. 13:3) “And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed” (Rev. 13:12). “After the Church is caught out the preaching of the ‘Gospel of the Kingdom’ will be resumed. Matt. 24:14. As it is a proclamation that Christ is about to set up an ‘Earthly Kingdom,’ it will be exceedingly distasteful to Antichrist and his followers, and a ‘Great Persecution’ will follow. Matt. 24:9-13. It is the ‘souls’ of the martyrs of this Persecution that John saw under the Altar” (Larkin, DT, p. 134). “Before the opening of the sixth seal the martyrs of that time will have already borne their faithful testimony to ‘the Word of God’ and died for its sake (6:9)” (McClain, GK, p. 455). “Excepting the 144,000 sealed Israelites, in the supreme ‘trial’ those who choose Christ will be killed, while those who reject Him will live” (ibid., p. 465)! “The fact that John did not see believers being slain, but instead saw the disembodied souls of saints who had been slain before he saw them, forces the conclusion that when Christ breaks the fifth seal, it will not cause the martyrdom of those saints” (Showers, M, p. 110). “The martyred saints of the fifth seal will be living and dying during the first four seals” (ibid., p. 119).

Seal 6: Cosmic disturbances. “And I looked when He broke the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth made of hair, and the whole moon became like blood; and the stars of the sky fell to the earth, as a fig tree casts its unripe figs when shaken by a great wind. And the sky was split apart like a scroll when it is rolled up; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth and the great men and the commanders and the rich and the strong and every slave and free man, hid themselves in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains; and they said to the mountains and to the rocks, ‘Fall on us and hide us from the presence of Him who sits on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of their wrath has come; and who is able to stand’” (Rev. 6:12-17)? “For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and in various places there will be famines and earthquakes” (Matt. 24:7). “The great day of his wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?” ([Rev. 6] v. 17). These responses clearly indicate that unregenerate mankind will be convinced that these cataclysmic phenomena are expressions of God's wrath directed against them. Certainly this would not be their conclusion if they were the ones causing these catastrophic disturbances... it is the unregenerate, who will be living on the earth when the sixth seal is broken, who will say, 'The great day of his wrath is come' (v. 17)... the narrow or 'great and terrible day of the LORD'... it appears that they will conclude that the narrow Day of the Lord has come with the breaking of the sixth seal... this conclusion of the unregenerate will be wrong" (Showers, M, p. 119). "The cosmic disturbances involved with the sixth seal will cause the unregenerate to flee in terror to the mountains to hide from God's wrath (Rev. 6:12-17). By contrast, the cosmic disturbances involved with 'the great and terrible day of the LORD' will not cause them to flee and hide. Instead, when Christ comes out of heaven, the rulers and armies of the nations will be gathered together with the Antichrist and the False Prophet, ready for battle in bold, defiant rebellion against God and Christ (Rev. 19:11-19). Apparently the display of supernatural powers associated with the Antichrist and the False Prophet (2 Th. 2:9-10; Rev. 11:7-10; 13:4, 11-15), along with the presence of Satan and his angels on the earth during the second half of the 70th week (Rev. 12:7-17), will cause this radical change in the unregenerate between the time of the sixth seal and the time of Christ's coming" (ibid., p. 121). "...only with the sixth seal do unbelievers recognize that it is the wrath of God" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 218). "Even the unsaved under the sixth seal will recognize the judgment as the 'wrath of the Lamb' (Rev. 6:15-16)" (Geisler, ST, 4:653).

Seal 7: Silence in heaven, prayers, thunder, lightning, earthquake. "And when He broke the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. And I saw the seven angels who stand before God; and seven trumpets were given to them. And another angel came and stood at the altar, holding a golden censer; and much incense was given to him, that he might add it to the prayers of all the saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, went up before God out of the angel's hand. And the angel took the censer; and he filled it with the fire of the altar and threw it to the earth; and there followed peals of thunder and sounds and flashes of lightning and an earthquake. And the seven angels who had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound them" (Rev. 8:1-6). "At the breaking of the 'Seventh Seal' there will be 'silence in Heaven' for a limited period. This will be a period of preparation for the greater conflict to follow" (Larkin, DT, p. 134).

The First Six of the Seven Trumpet Judgments

The seventh seal judgment (see the paragraph immediately above) contains the seven trumpet judgments.

Trumpet 1: Hail, fire, blood, one third of earth burned up. “And the first sounded, and there came hail and fire, mixed with blood, and they were thrown to the earth; and a third of the earth was burned up, and a third of the trees were burned up, and all the green grass was burned up” (Rev. 8:7). “This is a repetition of the ‘Seventh Egyptian Plague.’ Ex. 9:22-26. That was ‘literal.’ Why should not this be” (Larkin, DT, p. 134)? “And Jehovah said unto Moses, Stretch forth thy hand toward heaven, that there may be hail in all the land of Egypt, upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt. And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven: and Jehovah sent thunder and hail, and fire ran down unto the earth; and Jehovah rained hail upon the land of Egypt. So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as had not been in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation. And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field, both man and beast; and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field. Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was there no hail” (Ex. 9:22–26).

Trumpet 2: A fiery mountain thrown into the sea; one third of the sea destroyed. “And the second angel sounded, and something like a great mountain burning with fire was thrown into the sea; and a third of the sea became blood; and a third of the creatures, which were in the sea and had life, died; and a third of the ships were destroyed” (Rev. 8:8-9).

Trumpet 3: A star falls from heaven; one third of fresh water spoiled. “And the third angel sounded, and a great star fell from heaven, burning like a torch, and it fell on a third of the rivers and on the springs of waters; and the name of the star is called Wormwood; and a third of the waters became wormwood; and many men died from the waters, because they were made bitter” (Rev. 8:10-11).

Trumpet 4: One third of the sun, moon and stars darkened, an eagle proclaims woe. “And the fourth angel sounded, and a third of the sun and a third of the moon and a third of the stars were smitten, so that a third of them might be darkened and the day might not shine for a third of it, and the night in the same way. And I looked, and I heard an eagle flying in midheaven, saying with a loud voice, ‘Woe, woe, woe, to those who dwell on the earth, because of the remaining blasts of the trumpet of the three angels who are about to sound’”

(Rev. 8:12–13)! “Revelation 8:13... Because the three final Trumpet Judgments are especially severe for mankind on the earth, they are called Woe Judgments... This severity is so pronounced that there is a warning of their approach sounded with a voice in the atmospheric heavens. The eagle is most likely a seraph (Rev. 4:7) chosen to give this warning to the earth” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 224).

Trumpet 5: Locusts torment men for five months. “And the fifth angel sounded, and I saw a star from heaven which had fallen to the earth; and the key of the bottomless pit was given to him. And he opened the bottomless pit; and smoke went up out of the pit, like the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by the smoke of the pit. And out of the smoke came forth locusts upon the earth; and power was given them, as the scorpions of the earth have power. And they were told that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, but only the men who do not have the seal of God on their foreheads. And they were not permitted to kill anyone, but to torment for five months; and their torment was like the torment of a scorpion when it stings a man. And in those days men will seek death and will not find it; and they will long to die and death flees from them. And the appearance of the locusts was like horses prepared for battle; and on their heads, as it were, crowns like gold, and their faces were like the faces of men. And they had hair like the hair of women, and their teeth were like the teeth of lions. And they had breastplates like breastplates of iron; and the sound of their wings was like the sound of chariots, of many horses rushing to battle. And they have tails like scorpions, and stings; and in their tails is their power to hurt men for five months. They have as king over them, the angel of the abyss; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in the Greek he has the name Apollyon. The first woe is past; behold, two woes are still coming after these things” (Rev. 9:1-12). “The meaning of this scourge of ‘Scorpion Locusts’ seems to be that a vast army of ‘Demons’ will be liberated from the ‘Bottomless Pit,’ who shall enter into and take possession of the ‘bodies’ of men, and so ‘torment’ them that they shall desire to die and shall not be able, the demons preventing them” (Larkin, DT, p. 135). “...fallen angel. The Abyss is a temporary place of confinement for fallen angels or demons. It is the place where the demons feared to be sent when they were cast out by Messiah (Lk. 8:31). It is temporary, for the final abode for fallen angels will be the Lake of Fire. Not all demons are confined in the Abyss at the present time. Those that are, are waiting there to be released for specific judgments on mankind” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 226).

“...all suicide attempts will fail. Men will be forced to endure the torment in all its fury” (ibid.).

Trumpet 6: Four angels released, one third of mankind killed by two hundred million horsemen. “And the sixth angel sounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God, one saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, ‘Release the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates.’ And the four angels, who had been prepared for the hour and day and month and year, were released, so that they might kill a third of mankind. And the number of the armies of the horsemen was two hundred million; I heard the number of them. And this is how I saw in the vision the horses and those who sat on them: the riders had breastplates the color of fire and of hyacinth and of brimstone; and the heads of the horses are like the heads of lions; and out of their mouths proceed fire and smoke and brimstone. A third of mankind was killed by these three plagues, by the fire and the smoke and the brimstone, which proceeded out of their mouths. For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails; for their tails are like serpents and have heads; and with them they do harm. And the rest of mankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands, so as not to worship demons, and the idols of gold and of silver and of brass and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk; and they did not repent of their murders nor of their sorceries nor of their immorality nor of their thefts” (Rev. 9:13-21). “These two invasions of ‘Scorpion Locusts’ and ‘Infernal Cavalry’ warn us that in the days after the Church is caught out, Satan and his ‘Demon Forces’ will be increasingly active and do all they can to torment and destroy mankind” (Larkin, DT, p. 135). “...four fallen angels” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 227) “...the east in Scripture is always Mesopotamia and never China. This army of two hundred million are demons and not Chinese” (ibid., p. 228). “To summarize why these two hundred million are demons and not Chinese, four things should be noted: first, they are led by four fallen angels; second, the location of the army is stated to be the Euphrates, where Babylon is located (which in the future will be the headquarters of the counterfeit trinity); third, the description given in the text rules out this army’s being human; and fourth, the kings of the east are not connected with this at all” (ibid., p. 229).

Ecclesiastical (“Mystery”) Babylon the Great falls. “And one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and spoke with me, saying, ‘Come here, I shall show you the judgment of the great harlot who sits on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth committed acts of immorality, and those who dwell on the earth were made drunk with the wine of her immorality.’ And he carried me away in the Spirit into a wilderness; and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast, full of blasphemous names, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls, having in her hand a gold cup full of abominations and of the unclean things of her immorality, and upon her forehead a name was written, a mystery, ‘BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.’ And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And when I saw her, I wondered greatly. And the angel said to me, ‘Why do you wonder? I shall tell you the mystery of the woman and of the beast that carries her, which has the seven heads and the ten horns. The beast that you saw was and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss and to go to destruction. And those who dwell on the earth will wonder, whose name has not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, when they see the beast, that he was and is not and will come. Here is the mind which has wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman sits, and they are seven kings; five have fallen, one is, the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain a little while. And the beast which was and is not, is himself also an eighth, and is one of the seven, and he goes to destruction. And the ten horns which you saw are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but they receive authority as kings with the beast for one hour. These have one purpose and they give their power and authority to the beast. These will wage war against the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, because He is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those who are with Him are the called and chosen and faithful.’ And he said to me, ‘The waters which you saw where the harlot sits, are peoples and multitudes and nations and tongues. And the ten horns which you saw, and the beast, these will hate the harlot and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh and will burn her up with fire. For God has put it in their hearts to execute His purpose by having a common purpose, and by giving their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God should be fulfilled. And the woman whom you saw is the great city, which reigns over the kings of the earth’” (Rev. 17:1-18). “In the primitive ages this figurative name of Babylon was frequently given heathen Rome by the Christians, on account of the resemblance of the character of those two cities, for their idolatry and for their oppressing—one the Jews; the other the Christians. St. Peter dates his first letter from Babylon (1 Pet. 6:13), that is, from Rome as St Jerome and Eusebius tell us. “The appellation of Babylon (said Tertulian) is used by St. John for the city of Rome, because she resembles ancient Babylon, in the extent of her walls; her haughtiness; on account of her dominion; and in persecuting the saints” (Lib. adv. Jud.). St. Austin also says, “Rome is a second Babylon and a daughter of the ancient Babylon” (de Civ. lib. 22, c. 18). Babylon the great is therefore sufficiently distinguished” (Peters, TTK, 2:708). “...the attempted union of Church and State during ‘Times of the Gentiles.’ The character and destiny of the State forbids such a union. The State, as now constituted, is selfish, and for the sake of self-interest, as the history of the past painfully illustrates, and as history of the future predicted shows, will sacrifice the Church” (ibid., 3:14). “The ‘Woman’ is destroyed Three and a Half Years BEFORE THE CITY; and the fact that the first verse of the chapter eighteen says— ‘after these things,’ that is after the destruction of the ‘Woman’ what happens to the ‘City’ occurs, shows that the ‘Woman’ and the ‘City’ are not one and the same” (Larkin, DT, p. 140). “After these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was illumined with his glory. And he cried out with a mighty voice, saying, Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! And she has become a dwelling place of demons and a prison of every unclean spirit, and a prison of every unclean and hateful bird. For all the nations have drunk of the wine of the passion of her immorality, and the kings of the earth have committed acts of immorality with her, and the merchants of the earth have become rich by the wealth of her sensuality” (Rev. 18:1–3). “That Christ was to have a ‘Bride’ was first revealed to Paul (Eph. 5:23-32), and the ‘Mystery’ that Antichrist is to have a ‘bride’ was first revealed to John on the Isle of Patmos. The name of Antichrist’s ‘bride’ is ‘Babylon the Great’” (Larkin, DT). “All the outstanding festivals of the Roman Catholic Church are of Babylonian origin. Easter... Lent... the ‘Rosary’... the ‘Sign of the Cross’... Celibacy... Tonsure... Monks... Nuns” (ibid.) “...confusion which is the meaning of the word Babylon” (ibid., p. 141). “All this was a ‘Mystery’ in John’s day, because the ‘Papal Church’ had not as yet developed; though the ‘Mystery of Iniquity’ was already at work (2 Thess. 2:7)” (ibid.) “For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work; only he who now restrains will do so until he is taken out of the way” (2 Thes. 2:7). “The Woman, as a ‘State Church,’ will control and rule the State, and her long dream of world-wide Ecclesiastical Supremacy will at last be realized... after the ‘True Church’ (the Bride of Christ) is taken out of the world the ‘False’ or ‘Papal Church’ (the bride of Antichrist) will remain... the professing body of Christians (having the ‘form of Godliness without the power’) left behind... confiscate her wealth

(eat her flesh) and burn her churches and cathedrals with fire. Rev. 17:16” (Larkin, DT, p. 141). “This will occur at the time the worship of the Beast is set up, for Antichrist in his jealous hate will not permit any worship that does not centre in himself” (ibid.). “...she shall again be ‘drunk with the blood’ of the martyrs of the Tribulation Period” (ibid.). “The meaning of chapter seventeen of the Book of Revelation is no longer a Mystery; the prophetic portrait of the Woman there given corresponds too closely with the history of the Papal Church to be a mere coincidence” (ibid.). “As he [the Antichrist] will break with the Jewish people in the middle of the Seventieth Week, even so he will break with the apostate church which he has supported as long as he needed her influence in his rise to world power. Just as the Jew will pay dearly for the treaty with the Roman beast, so the great harlot will pay dearly for her ride (Rev. 17:16)” (McClain, DP, p. 61). “Ecclesiastical Babylon (First Half [of the Tribulation]) - [Rev.] 17:1-18” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 9) “The headquarters of this one-world religion will be the rebuilt city of Babylon [Some scholars, as Peters and Larkin above, suggest Rome; others, as Fruchtenbaum here, rebuilt Babylon.—ed.], the mother of idolatry, for it was here that idolatry and false religion began (Gen. 11:1-9)” (ibid., p. 235). “In [Rev. 17] verse six, the woman is drunk with the blood of those who suffered martyrdom for Messiah. This answers the question as to who was killing and hurting the fifth seal saints: the false super-church. The myriads of Gentiles who are saved under the ministry of the 144,000 Jews will suffer persecution by the Ecclesiastical Babylon, and many will be martyred” (ibid.). “‘Babylon the Great’... this is the great apostate ‘church’ on earth ([Rev.] 18:2)” (Geisler, ST, 4:613)

The great multitude is saved. “And when He broke the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of those who had been slain because of the word of God, and because of the testimony which they had maintained; and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, ‘How long, O Lord, holy and true, wilt Thou refrain from judging and avenging our blood on those who dwell on the earth?’ And there was given to each of them a white robe; and they were told that they should rest for a little while longer, until the number of their fellow servants and their brethren who were to be killed even as they had been, should be completed also” (Rev. 6:9–11). “After these things I looked, and behold, a great multitude, which no one could count, from every nation and all tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed in white robes, and palm branches were in their hands; and they cry out with a loud voice, saying, ‘Salvation to our God who sits on the throne, and to the Lamb.’ And all the angels were standing around the throne and around the elders and the four living creatures; and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshiped God, saying, ‘Amen, blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and might, be to our God forever and ever. Amen.’ And one of the elders answered, saying to me, ‘These who are clothed in the white robes, who are they, and from where have they come?’ And I said to him, ‘My lord, you know.’ And he said to me, ‘These are the ones who come out of the great tribulation, and they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. For this reason, they are before the throne of God; and they serve Him day and night in His temple; and He who sits on the throne shall spread His tabernacle over them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore; neither shall the sun beat down on them, nor any heat; for the Lamb in the center of the throne shall be their shepherd, and shall guide them to springs of the water of life; and God shall wipe every tear from their eyes” (Rev. 7:9-17). “And in her [the woman Babylon] was found the blood of prophets and of saints and of all who have been slain on the earth.’ After these things I heard, as it were, a loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, ‘Hallelujah! Salvation and glory and power belong to our God; BECAUSE HIS JUDGMENTS ARE TRUE AND RIGHTEOUS; for He has judged the great harlot who was corrupting the earth with her immorality, and HE HAS AVENGED THE BLOOD OF HIS BOND-SERVANTS ON HER” (Rev. 18:23–19:2). “...another class of saved of the ‘End Time.’ They are not the Church, for they come out of the ‘Great Tribulation.’ They are probably Gentiles who accept Christ as their Saviour after the Church is caught out” (Larkin, DT, p. 134). “Finally, in connection with these devastating events preliminary to the establishment of the Kingdom, Joel holds forth bright hope for all who turn to the Lord— ‘whosoever shall call on the name of the LORD shall be delivered’ (2:32). This gracious provision, as we shall see later, will be in force during all the judgments associated with the setting up of the Kingdom on earth; a fact which demonstrates that these judgments cannot be placed in the category of final judgment, for then the day of salvation will be past” (McClain, GK, p. 186). “This body [the church] of the saved in heaven, referred to as the ‘tabernacle’ of God, must not be confused with ‘the great multitude’ of Rev. 7:9-17; for, according to the divine identification, the latter are those who are seen coming (Grk. present tense) up out of ‘the great tribulation’ of those terrible days (vs. 14, ASV), whereas the Church is to be kept out of that ‘hour of trial’ (Rev. 3:10, ASV). Moreover, though both groups are redeemed through grace by the same Lord, the descriptions of their respective destinies are clearly different, as may be seen by comparing the account in Rev. 7:14-17 with New Testament predictions of the Church's regal future" (ibid., p. 467). "...144,000... The result of their ministry will be that 'a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, tribe people and language' ([Rev. 7] vs. 9) will '[wash] their robes and [make] them white in the blood of the Lamb' (v. 14)" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 252). "These who are saved out of the Tribulation period will 'have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb' (v. 14). They will be participants in the millennial kingdom that will be established at Christ's second advent (vv. 15-17). Thus we see that salvation during the Tribulation period will be by the grace of God received by faith based on the blood of Christ" (ibid., p. 312). "Most conservative interpreters regard Revelation 7:9-17 as referring also to those who die as martyrs" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 226). "In chapter 7 the contrast is between the 144,000 of Israel, who are sealed and protected through the Great Tribulation, and the multitude of the saved (which no man can number), who do not survive the Tribulation and who are not sealed" (ibid., p. 230). "...great multitude... in heaven (Rev. 7:9-17)" (Showers, M, p. 248) "These are they who came out of the Great Tribulation,' is a translation of a present tense participle. Concerning the use of this specific present tense participle in Revelation 7:14, A.T. Robertson wrote, 'Present middle participle with the idea of continued repetition'" [quoting A.T. Robertson, Word Pictures in the New Testament, Vol. VI, p. 352] (ibid., p. 250). "R.H. Charles came to the same conclusion as Robertson. He asserted that the combination of this present tense participle with the two finite verbs ('washed' and 'made...white') in the same verse (14) is a Semitic type construction giving the sense of continuous action to the participle." [quoting R.H. Charles, The Revelation of St. John in The International Critical Commentary, Vol. I, p. 213] (ibid.). "In light of the significance of this participle, we can conclude that the elder was indicating that the people of the great multitude were coming out of the Great Tribulation individually (one by one) and continuously through death, mainly death by martyrdom. Thus, when discussing the continuous action significance of the participle in the elder's declaration, Charles stated, 'The martyrs are still arriving from the scene of the Great Tribulation.' Jeremias also concluded that the great multitude of Revelation 7 consisted of martyrs." [quoting Joachim Jeremias, "hades," Theological Dictionary of the New Testament, Vol. I, p. 149] (ibid.). "Revelation 7:9-17... After these things... Therefore are they before the throne of God; and they serve him day and night in his temple... The expression after these things means that the salvation of these myriads of Gentiles follows chronologically the 144,000 Jews and there is a cause and effect relationship. After describing the worship of the One on the Throne (vv. 11-12), the text proceeds to identify who these Gentiles are that are found around the Throne (vv. 13-14). These Gentiles are identified as those who have come out of the Great Tribulation. They are saved Gentiles, for they have washed their robes in the blood of the Lamb. Since they follow chronologically the ministry of the 144,000 Jews, the implication is that they are the Gentiles who come to Messiah as a result of the preaching of the 144,000 Jews. Included are the fifth seal saints who suffered martyrdom. Because of the massive persecution that these Tribulation saints have undergone, this passage concludes with a description of the comfort they now enjoy in the presence of God (vv. 15-17)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 221). “From this chapter it should be evident that the Holy Spirit will be still at work in the Tribulation, for the work of regeneration is His particular ministry. While the work of restraining evil is removed, allowing the Antichrist to begin his evil rise to power, the Holy Spirit Himself will still be in the world and will have an active ministry. While He will no longer be baptizing (for that is a special ministry for the Church only), He will be performing some of His other ministries, such as regeneration, filling, sealing, etc.” (ibid., p. 222) “Israel will not come into God’s Kingdom empty-handed, for ‘the hundred and forty-four thousand who were redeemed from the earth’ (Rev. 14:7 NKJV) from every ‘tribe’ of Israel will win ‘a great multitude which no one could number, of all nations, tribes, peoples, and tongues, standing before the...Lamb’ (7:9 NKJV). Thus, in the mystery, the fall of Israel became the salvation of the Gentiles, and the rise of Israel will bring salvation to countless souls: ‘If their rejection is the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead?’ (Rom. 11:15; Col. 1:26-27)” (Geisler, ST, 4:35). “The ‘great multitude’ of others are those won to Christ by the 144,000 converted Jews ([Rev.] 7:4-9; cf. 14:3)” (ibid., p. 614). “The identification of saints during the Tribulation is with either the 144,000 saved Jews or the myriad others converted through their efforts” (ibid.). This writer would add that Jehovah’s Witnesses’ identification of the great multitude as an assembly of non-spirit-anointed persons living during this (church) age who entertain an “earthly” hope, as opposed to the 144,000 with their supposedly “heavenly” hope, is entirely baseless. It would be presumptuous for anyone alive now to claim to be able to identify the members of this great multitude before the great tribulation, out of which this group comes (Rev. 7:14), even begins. It is this writer’s hope that some present-day members of the Jehovah’s Witnesses will indeed abandon their false doctrines and wash their robes in the blood of the Lamb during the Tribulation, and thus become part of this great multitude. How much better, though, for us to repent and be washed in the blood of the Lamb now, and be kept from this future hour of testing entirely (Rev. 3:10) via the Rapture of the church! As of this writing, this option is still available for any who would come to Jesus for salvation before the end of this gracious Church Age (John 5:39-40).

There shall be no more delay. “How long, O Jehovah? wilt thou hide thyself for ever? How long shall thy wrath burn like fire” (Ps. 89:46)? “And the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and on the land lifted up his right hand to heaven, and swore by Him who lives forever and ever, who created heaven and the things in it, and the earth and the things in it, and the sea and the things in it, that there shall be delay no longer” (Rev. 10:5-6) “...‘there shall be delay no longer’ ([Rev. 10] vs. 6, ASV)... If in the Old Testament there was one thing which to the prophets was mysterious about the eagerly expected Messianic Kingdom, it was the seeming long delay in its establishment. As an example of the acute distress felt in the presence of this mystery, let the student read the cry, ‘How long, LORD?’ (Ps. 89:46), in the context of the entire psalm. So also the redeemed have felt down through the centuries as they have prayed, ‘Thy kingdom come.’ As the pledge that these prayers shall be answered we have the great angelic shout of chapter 10: There is to be no more long delay, for very shortly the mystery of a long-deferred kingdom will be finished. In fact, from this point in the chronology of the book, within the brief span of ‘forty and two months’ (13:5), the satanic usurper will be fully dispossessed and the rightful King will arrive in power and glory” (McClain, GK, p. 473). “What an encouragement for the redeemed to know that there are no dark hours to God. Even when all seems to be lost, for those who have eyes to see, the Lord still sits upon His throne high and lifted up in the heavens; and the unfailing character of His Universal Kingdom guarantees that the Mediatorial Kingdom of His Son shall be established on earth, in spite of all satanic opposition” (ibid., p. 474). “...there is to be ‘delay no longer’ ([Rev. 10] vs. 6, ASV). The mystery of a silent heaven is now at last to be cleared away” (ibid.).

Events of the Middle of the Tribulation

The middle of the Tribulation period is clearly delineated by Daniel’s “abomination of desolation.” “And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate” (Dan.

9:27). Other midtribulation events include Satan's casting out of heaven, Antichrist's ruling absolutely, Israel's persecution and exile from her land, and implementation of the "mark of the beast." "The sixth Trumpet Judgment concludes at the time of the middle of the Tribulation and is followed by a temporary cessation of the judgments poured out of Heaven. The Tribulation enters into the temporary proverbial eye of the hurricane. But it does not mean that the earth will be at peace. The nations will be in turmoil as the Antichrist proceeds to take over the political, economic and religious control of the entire world" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 237). "In the Book of Revelation, the events of the middle of the Tribulation comprise chapters 10-14 and chapter 17" (ibid.). "To summarize Revelation 11-16, Revelation 11 closes with the announcement that the Bowl Judgements are about to be poured out. This point is now temporarily dropped, to be picked up again in chapters 15-16. Chapters 11-14 are parenthetical to do two things: first, to add some details about the events of the middle of the Tribulation; and second, to show why the Bowl Judgments are so necessary. Revelation 12-13 then points out the events on earth necessitating the seven Bowl Judgments contained in the seventh trumpet, namely, the actions of the counterfeit trinity. Revelation 14 shows how the program of the counterfeit trinity will fail and also announces some of the results of the Bowl Judgments. The Bowl Judgments are then described in Revelation 15-16" (ibid., p. 270).

The middle of the Tribulation features a number of pivotal events. Considered individually:

Satan is cast out of heaven to the earth. "But the prince of the kingdom of Persia was withstanding me for twenty-one days; then behold, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me, for I had been left there with the kings of Persia" (Dan. 10:13). "However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the writing of truth. Yet there is no one who stands firmly with me against these forces except Michael your prince" (Dan. 10:21). "Now at that time Michael, the great prince who stands guard over the sons of your people, will arise. And there will be a time of distress such as never occurred since there was a nation until that time; and at that time your people, everyone who is found written in the book, will be rescued" (Dan. 12:1). "The fact that Israel will survive at all is due to the ministry of the Archangel and Chief Prince, Michael" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 774). "And the seventy returned with joy, saying, 'Lord, even the demons are subject to us in Your name.' And He said to them, 'I was watching Satan fall from heaven like lightning. Behold, I have given you authority to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy, and nothing shall injure you. Nevertheless do not rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you, but rejoice that your names are recorded in heaven” (Luke 10:17–20). “When Jesus said—‘I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven,’ (Luke 10:18), He was not referring to some past fall of Satan, but it was a prophetic utterance, by way of anticipation, of his future fall, when he shall be cast out of Heaven by Michael the Archangel” (Larkin, DT, p. 114). “Yet in the same manner these men, also by dreaming, defile the flesh, and reject authority, and revile angelic majesties. But Michael the archangel, when he disputed with the devil and argued about the body of Moses, did not dare pronounce against him a railing judgment, but said, ‘The Lord rebuke you’” (Jude 1:8–9). “Although Michael is a holy angel and Satan is a fallen being, positionally Satan is greater than Michael; Michael is the Archangel, but Satan is the Anointed Cherub. Michael did not rail against someone greater than he, but committed the situation to the Lord” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 1011). “And there was war in heaven, Michael and his angels waging war with the dragon. And the dragon and his angels waged war, and they were not strong enough, and there was no longer a place found for them in heaven. And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him. And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, ‘Now the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of His Christ have come, for the accuser of our brethren has been thrown down, who accuses them before our God day and night.’ And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb and because of the word of their testimony, and they did not love their life even to death. ‘For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time’” (Rev. 12:7–12). “A heavenly reserve, in the person of Michael the archangel, will be sent into the action on behalf of the besieged Israelites. Through the centuries the chief ministry of this great angel has been to defend the interests of the chosen nation (Dan. 12:1)” (McClain, GK, p. 193). “And in the final scene this conflict reaches even into the heavens where Satan meets defeat at the hand of Michael ([Rev.] vss. 7–9), the great angel to whom has been divinely assigned the protection of the interests of Israel (Dan. 12:1)” (ibid., p. 462). “Michael... the archangel who had led the forces of the holy angels against Satan and the demon world through all these centuries” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 201). “Israelology in the field of Angelology Proper would point to Michael the Archangel. Michael holds two positions in the angelic hierarchy. First, he is the Archangel, or chief-angel in authority over the other angels. He alone has the position of Archangel. Second, he is also a Chief-Prince (Dan. 10:13). There are a plurality of Chief-Princes in the angelic hierarchy and Michael is one of a number. The main function of a Chief-Prince is to serve as a guardian angel over a nation. Michael is the Chief-Prince over Israel (Dan. 10:21) and it is because of his work on behalf of Israel that Israel will survive the Tribulation (Dan. 12:1). It was Michael's role as Chief-Prince that led to his disputation with Satan over the body of Moses (Jude 9)" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 848). "Satan... the opponent to God's program" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 242) "...his access to Heaven is removed forever... he now knows it is only 3 1/2 years before the Second Coming" (ibid., p. 262). "Michael, besides being the Archangel, is also the Chief Prince and protective angel assigned to Israel" (ibid., p. 285).

Satan gives the earthly kingdom to Antichrist. "Again, the devil took Him to a very high mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world, and their glory; and he said to Him, 'All these things will I give You, if You fall down and worship me.' Then Jesus said to him, 'Begone, Satan! For it is written, "YOU SHALL WORSHIP THE LORD YOUR GOD, AND SERVE HIM ONLY"' (Matt. 4:8-10). "Antichrist'... He will accept the 'Kingdoms of this world' that Satan offered Christ, and that Christ refused. Matt. 4:8-10" (Larkin, DT, p. 124). "And he led Him up and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. And the devil said to Him, 'I will give You all this domain and its glory; for it has been handed over to me, and I give it to whomever I wish'" (Luke 4:5-6). "And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders" (2 Thes. 2:8-9) "And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him" (Rev. 12:9). "And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, 'Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him'" (Rev. 13:2-4)? "And he laid hold of

Antichrist blasphemes God. “Then I kept looking because of the sound of the boastful words which the horn was speaking; I kept looking until the beast was slain, and its body was destroyed and given to the burning fire” (Dan. 7:11). “and the meaning of the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three of them fell, namely, that horn which had eyes and a mouth uttering great boasts, and which was larger in appearance than its associates” (Dan. 7:20). “And he will speak out against the Most High and wear down the saints of the Highest One, and he will intend to make alterations in times and in law; and they will be given into his hand for a time, times, and half a time” (Dan. 7:25). “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God” (2 Thes. 2:3-4). “And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven” (Rev. 13:5-6) “The question now may be raised as to what form the beast’s blasphemy of God and the Church will take. Since to blaspheme is to speak impiously and injuriously of divine things, in what way will he speak? To this the inspired record gives no specific answer in the passage. But from the general teaching of Scripture there are some legitimate inferences which may be drawn. First, among all the redeemed, none have attracted a greater measure of satanic hatred than the Church which is the body and bride of Christ. For its members are destined to reign with Him in the highest level of His Kingdom, a comparable place once held by Satan himself. Second, when the satanic beast of the end-time reaches the height of his absolute earthly power, the Church will have been removed to heaven wholly beyond his malignancy. Third, this mysterious disappearance of millions of people from the earth bodily in ‘the twinkling of an eye’ (1 Cor. 15:51-52) will be a world-shaking event, something impossible to keep from public knowledge by any power or device of news control. Such an event, clearly miraculous in nature, will demand some plausible explanation on the part of the beast who will then be on the march toward political supremacy and seeking to attract to himself as world leader the admiration and confidence of all men. In this dangerous emergency, with his leadership at stake, what could be more reasonable than to find the beast resorting to the well-known technique of ‘the great lie,’ explaining perhaps to his followers that the vanished people were opposers of social progress, ‘apostles of discord’ standing in the path of religious unity; and therefore they have been taken away by divine judgment? Perhaps this will be part of the ‘strong delusion’ welcomed by the ungodly of that coming day (2 Thess. 2:11). At any rate, a lying explanation of this kind would certainly satisfy the meaning of the ‘blasphemy’ of Rev. 13:6, for it would malign both the character of God and also that of the true Church which today is the only light of the world and salt of the earth” (McClain, GK, p. 468).

Antichrist seats himself in the temple, claiming to be God. “And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days; for the vision is yet for many days” (Dan. 10:14) “And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak marvellous things against the God of gods; and he shall prosper till the indignation be accomplished; for that which is determined shall be done. Neither shall he regard the gods of his fathers, nor the desire of women, nor regard any god; for he shall magnify himself above all” (Dan. 11:36-37) “Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:15-22) “Let no one in any way deceive you, for it will not come unless the apostasy comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, displaying himself as being God” (2 Thes. 2:3-4). “And he stood on the sand of the seashore. And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain. If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:1-10). “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life. And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed. And he causes all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free men and the slaves, to be given a mark on their right hand, or on their forehead, and he provides that no one should be able to buy or to sell, except the one who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for the number is that of a man; and his number is six hundred and sixty-six” (Rev. 13:11-18). “And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone” (Rev. 19:20). “And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years” (Rev. 20:4). “...the removal of the worship instituted by the Jews at their partial restoration, or, to the restoration of idol, image worship and the exclusion of other forms... ‘And for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate;’... idol or image worship or something relating to false worship is meant, by which desolation is produced... it appears that when the last head of this Roman power arises and causes by oppression and fearful persecution the worship of God to cease (i.e. forbids the liberty of such worship), in place of that worship shall be substituted the image worship to which all are forced upon pain of death, just before the Millennial age is ushered in (see Rev. 19:20; 14:9-14; 13:14-16)” (Peters, TTK, 2:664). “The sign which Christ revealed is that of the ‘abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet,’ standing in the holy place (Matt 24:15). This is Christ’s own recognition and interpretation of Daniel 9:26-27, which passage is the one being considered. This intimation on the part of Christ respecting the man of sin serves as an introduction to His own description of the great tribulation (cf. Matt. 24:21-22), which, as has been seen, is Daniel’s seventieth week—the last seven years of Gentile times. Thus, again, this sinister personage is placed, relative to the time of his appearing, within that yet future hour of trial to come on the earth” (Chafer, ST, 4:349). “There is another reason for the Roman prince’s change of attitude toward the Jew. From 2 Thessalonians 2:4 and Revelation 13:8-15 we learn that, intoxicated with his great power, he will actually take his seat in the temple of God and demand the honors and worship of God Himself. This to the sternly monotheistic Jew will certainly be the very ‘abomination of desolation,’ and many will refuse to bow the knee, in spite of the fact that this idolatrous worship will become almost universal (Rev. 13:8). This refusal on the part of godly Jews will furnish the Roman beast with the necessary pretext for the breaking of his treaty and the forcible cessation of the Jewish Temple sacrifice” (McClain, DP, p. 62). “...set up some detestable thing (probably an image of himself) in the Temple” (Showers, M, p. 43) “Jesus referred to this Daniel 9:27 ‘overspreading of abominations’ in Matthew 24:15. Then He said, ‘then shall be Great Tribulation such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be' (Mt. 24:21), thereby indicating that the Great Tribulation will begin when the overspreading of abominations of Daniel 9:27 occurs" (ibid.). "In all probability, he will sit in the very Holy of Holies" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 254). "The image will be set up in the Holy of Holies to carry on the Abomination of Desolation... So while the Antichrist will be disposed of after 1,260 days, the image will remain in the Temple another thirty days beyond that. Then it, too, will be disposed of" (ibid., p. 256). "Thus, the two stages of the Abomination of Desolation, lasting a total of 1,290 days will be the declaration of deity by the Antichrist in the Holy of Holies followed by the setting up of his image in the same place" (ibid.). "...the specific event that will mark the beginning of the second half of the Tribulation: the Abomination of Desolation standing in the holy place ([Matt. 24] v. 15). The Abomination of Desolation will involve two stages. The first stage will be when the Antichrist will take over the Jewish Temple, sit down in the Holy of Holies, and declare himself to be god (2 Thess. 2:3-10). The second stage of the Abomination of Desolation will be when the False Prophet will make an image of the Antichrist and stand it up in the Holy of Holies (Rev. 13:11-15; Dan. 12:11). This act of the Abomination of Desolation will signal that the second and worse half of the Tribulation has begun" (ibid., p. 632). "...Antichrist will erect his own image in the middle of the Tribulation (2 Thess. 2:3-4; Rev. 13:11-18) and attempt to kill all who refuse to worship it (7:13-14; 12:13; 13:10)" (Geisler, ST, 4:602). "...the Romans did not desecrate the temple with 'the abomination of desolation' ([Matt. 24] v. 15 NKJV)" (ibid., p. 644)

Antichrist breaks the covenant with Israel. "And your covenant with death shall be annulled, and your agreement with Sheol shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it" (Isa. 28:18). "And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate" (Dan. 9:27). "By his very nature, the Man of Sin will be violently anti-Semitic. His treaty with the Jews will be based wholly on political expediency. Therefore, once he has reached the pinnacle of world power aided by their great wealth and influence, he will have no further use for them... he will break with the Jewish people in the middle of the Seventieth Week" (McClain, DP, p. 61)

The "Great Tribulation" begins. "Therefore when you see the ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION which was spoken of through

Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall” (Matt. 24:15–21). See our discussion of the fact that The “Great Tribulation” is the final three and one half years of the seven-year Tribulation period in our section Chronology of the Tribulation above.

Antichrist rules absolutely. “After this I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, a fourth beast, terrible and powerful, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet: and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns. I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another horn, a little one, before which three of the first horns were plucked up by the roots: and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things” (Dan. 7:7-8). “and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows” (Dan. 7:20). “Thus he said, The fourth beast shall be a fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. And as for the ten horns, out of this kingdom shall ten kings arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the former, and he shall put down three kings” (Dan. 7:23-24). “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, “The kingdom [singular] of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever” (Rev. 11:15). “And he stood on the sand of the seashore. And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain. If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:1-10). “And the ten horns which you saw are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but they receive authority as kings with the beast for one hour. These have one purpose and they give their power and authority to the beast” (Rev. 17:12-13). “And the ten horns which you saw, and the beast, these will hate the harlot and will make her desolate and naked, and will eat her flesh and will burn her up with fire. For God has put it in their hearts to execute His purpose by having a common purpose, and by giving their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God should be fulfilled” (Rev. 17:16-17). “...the little horn, or the Antichrist Stage ([Daniel chapter 7] vv. 24b-26)... he will be allowed to rule for only a time, times, and half a time, which from other passages (Dan. 9:27; 12:7; Rev. 11:2, 3; 12:6, 14; 13:5) means 3 1/2 years” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 30). (See also our discussion of the Tribulation’s ultimate governmental form, world dictatorship, in our section Government of the Tribulation above.)

Israel is persecuted. Regarding the fact of Israel’s persecution, “I beheld at that time because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake; I beheld even till the beast was slain, and its body destroyed, and it was given to be burned with fire” (Dan. 7:11). “and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows” (Dan. 7:20). “Then I desired to know the truth concerning the fourth beast, which was diverse from all of them, exceeding terrible, whose teeth were of iron, and its nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with its feet; and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and the other horn which came up, and before which three fell, even that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake great things, whose look was more stout than its fellows. I beheld, and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; until the ancient of days came, and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High, and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom” (Dan. 7:19-22). “and as for the ten horns, out of this kingdom shall ten kings arise: and another shall arise after them; and he shall be diverse from the former, and he shall put down three kings. And he shall speak words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High; and he shall think to change the times and the law; and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and half a time” (Dan. 7:24-25). “And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and upon the wing of abominations shall come one that maketh desolate; and even unto the full end, and that determined, shall wrath be poured out upon the desolate” (Dan. 9:27). “Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days; for the vision is yet for many days” (Dan. 10:14) “He shall enter also into the glorious land, and many countries shall be overthrown; but these shall be delivered out of his hand: Edom, and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon. He shall stretch forth his hand also upon the countries; and the land of Egypt shall not escape. But he shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt; and the Libyans and the Ethiopians shall be at his steps. But tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him; and he shall go forth with great fury to destroy and utterly to sweep away many. And he shall plant the tents of his palace between the sea and the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him. And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince who standeth for the children of thy people; and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book” (Dan. 11:41-12:1). “In Daniel 11:36-12:4, the prophet was given a vision of what conditions will be like for his people (Israel) during the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 768). “Then I, Daniel, looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on the brink of the river on this side, and the other on the brink of the river on that side. And one said to the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders? And I heard the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and swear by him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a time, times, and a half; and when they have made an end of breaking in pieces the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished" (Dan. 12:5-7). "In Daniel 12:5-7, a question is raised as to how long this period will be allowed to continue. The answer is that the persecution of the Jews will last for three and one-half years" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 768). "Then they will deliver you to tribulation, and will kill you, and you will be hated by all nations on account of My name. And at that time many will fall away and will deliver up one another and hate one another" (Matt. 24:9-10). "Therefore when you see the ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then those who are in Judea must flee to the mountains. Whoever is on the housetop must not go down to get the things out that are in his house. Whoever is in the field must not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing babies in those days! But pray that your flight will not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath. For then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever will. Unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days will be cut short" (Matt. 24:15-22). "Matthew 24:15-28... In this passage, Christ provided a warning sign to those Jews living at the time the covenant is broken and the Abomination of Desolation occurs, which commences the persecution of the Jews (vv. 15-20)" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 771). "And leave out the court which is outside the temple, and do not measure it, for it has been given to the nations; and they will tread under foot the holy city for forty-two months" (Rev. 11:2-3). "A great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars; and she was with child; and she cried out, being in labor and in pain to give birth. Then another sign appeared in heaven: and behold, a great red dragon having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven diadems. And his tail swept away a third of the stars of heaven and threw them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, so that when she gave birth he might devour her child. And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God and to His throne. Then the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place prepared by God, so that there she would be nourished for one thousand two hun- dred and sixty days” (Rev. 12:1-6). “Between the ‘fifth’ and ‘sixth’ verses of this chapter the present ‘Church Period’ comes in. Here is the ‘gap’ between the ‘Sixty-ninth’ and ‘Seventieth’ Weeks of Daniel’s ‘Seventy Weeks.’ John jumps over this ‘gap,’ from the Ascension of Christ to the casting out of Satan, because he is not dealing in these Tribulation chapters with the Church but with Israel, and wishes to continue her history without a break” (Larkin, DT, p. 136). “The Woman of Revelation 12 is connected with the sun, the moon, and the twelve stars. The Old Testament background is Joseph’s dream in Genesis 37:9-10 which makes it evident that the sun represents Jacob, the moon Rachel, and the twelve stars the twelve sons of Jacob who fathered the twelve tribes of Israel. The Woman in this chapter represents the nation of Israel, who produced the man child, who is Jesus the Messiah. The rest of her seed who have the testimony of Jesus are the Jewish believers such as the 144,000” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 302). “And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told it to his brethren: and they hated him yet the more” (Gen. 37:5). “And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it to his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed yet a dream: and, behold, the sun and the moon and eleven stars made obeisance to me. And he told it to his father, and to his brethren; and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth” (Gen. 37:9-10)? “The moon represents Rachel, who in turn represents Jewish women, especially Jewish motherhood (Jer. 31:15; Matt. 2:18)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 772). “Thus saith Jehovah: A voice is heard in Ramah, lamentation, and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children; she refuseth to be comforted for her children, because they are not” (Jer. 31:15). “A voice was heard in Ramah, weeping and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children; And she would not be comforted, because they are not” (Matt. 2:18). “Israel is pictured as a woman, a motif taken from the Old Testament concept of Israel as the Wife of Jehovah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 259). “A good reason why this cannot be the Church is that it would be an anachronism, with the Church giving birth to Messiah whereas the opposite is true” (ibid., p. 260). “And there was war in heaven, Michael and his angels waging war with the dragon. And the dragon and his angels waged war, and they were not strong enough, and there was no longer a place found for them in heaven. And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him. And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, ‘Now the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God and the authority of His Christ have come, for the accuser of our brethren has been thrown down, who accuses them before our God day and night. And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb and because of the word of their testimony, and they did not love their life even to death. For this reason, rejoice, O heavens and you who dwell in them. Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time” (Rev. 12:7-12). “And when the dragon saw that he was thrown down to the earth, he persecuted the woman who gave birth to the male child. And the two wings of the great eagle were given to the woman, in order that she might fly into the wilderness to her place, where she was nourished for a time and times and half a time, from the presence of the serpent. And the serpent poured water like a river out of his mouth after the woman, so that he might cause her to be swept away with the flood. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened its mouth and drank up the river which the dragon poured out of his mouth. And the dragon was enraged with the woman, and went off to make war with the rest of her offspring, who keep the commandments of God and hold to the testimony of Jesus” (Rev. 12:13-17). “When Satan is cast out of heaven (Rev. 12:13) and desires to pour out vengeance on that group with whom God is particularly dealing, since the church is not on earth, he attacks the nation Israel” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 295). “All persecutions of Israel, ‘both past and future, [are] traced back to Satan himself” [quoting McClain, The Greatness of the Kingdom, pp. 461-463] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 531) “Whenever the figure of a flood is used symbolically, it is always a symbol of a military invasion” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 263). “And he stood on the sand of the seashore. And I saw a beast coming up out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and on his horns were ten diadems, and on his heads were blasphemous names. And the beast which I saw was like a leopard, and his feet were like those of a bear, and his mouth like the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave him his power and his throne and great authority. And I saw one of his heads as if it had been slain, and his fatal wound was healed. And the whole earth was amazed and followed after the beast; and they worshiped the dragon, because he gave his authority to the beast; and they worshiped the beast, saying, ‘Who is like the beast, and who is able to wage war with him?’ And there was given to him a mouth speaking arrogant words and blasphemies; and authority to act for forty-two months was given to him. And he opened his mouth in blasphemies against God, to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, that is, those who dwell in heaven. And it was given to him to make war with the saints and to overcome them; and authority over every tribe and people and tongue and nation was given to him. And all who dwell on the earth will worship him, everyone whose name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb who has been slain. If anyone has an ear, let him hear. If anyone is destined for captivity, to captivity he goes; if anyone kills with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the perseverance and the faith of the saints” (Rev. 13:1-10). “And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life. And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed. And he causes all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free men and the slaves, to be given a mark on their right hand, or on their forehead, and he provides that no one should be able to buy or to sell, except the one who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for the number is that of a man; and his number is six hundred and sixty-six” (Rev. 13:11-18). “He continues forty-two months, which is the last half of the seven years. He persecutes the saints—Israel (cf. Dan. 7:21-22)” (Chafer, ST, 4:351). “As great as has been Israel’s sufferings in days past, unprecedented suffering awaits them in this period. But God has determined to preserve a remnant in Israel even though Satan will seek to exterminate every physical descendant of Abraham in order to prevent the fulfillment of the covenant God gave to him. John described this persecution (Rev. 12:13-17), and it is only the willingness of Gentiles to harbor the fleeing Jews that will prevent their utter destruction” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 253). “...Daniel’s great prophecy of the Seventy Weeks. In chapter 9 a future ‘prince’ out of the Roman Empire (vs. 26b) makes a ‘firm covenant’ with Daniel’s people for a period of ‘one week,’ i.e., one period of seven years (vs. 27, ASV). In the midst of this period he breaks with the people of Israel, stops their sacrificial system, and inaugurates a time of persecution lasting to the end of the week, obviously three and a half years. The same persecutor, the same persecuted people, and the same period of persecution, are referred to in Daniel 7:25 and Revelation 13:5-7; with which compare Daniel 12:1, 7” (McClain, GK, p. 460). “Satan’s perpetual hatred of Israel is based on the fact that it is through Israel that God will fulfill His program of redemption... in this [Rev. 12:6] passage, the time of Israel’s flight and hiding is given as 1,260 days or 3 1/2 years. This refers to the second half of the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 261). “Revelation 12:6, 13-17 says that when the Jews flee, Satan will persecute them so severely that God will have to intervene to preserve them for the remaining three and one-half years of the 70th week” (Showers, M, p. 69). (See also our discussion of the fact that the holy city is trampled for forty-two months in our section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.)

Regarding the reasons for the persecution, “Satan has no controversy with the wicked and is attempting to vent his wrath only against the people of God, not against his own subjects” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 229). “Satan’s perpetual hatred of Israel is based on the fact that it is through Israel that God will fulfill His program of redemption” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 773). “Satan has a special antagonism against Israel since this is the nation through which God works out His program of redemption. Because of this hatred of Israel, Satan stood up against Israel and tempted David to number Israel knowing it would lead to the death of many Israelites (I Chron. 21:1). This is why Satan is found frequently in heaven for he enjoys accusing Israel before God (Zech. 3:1-2). This is also why in the Tribulation his primary activity will be to try to destroy Israel once and for all (Rev. 12:6-17). He will be largely responsible in gathering the Gentile armies against the Jews in the Campaign of Armageddon (Rev. 16:12-16). Satan is the source of all anti-Semitism” (ibid., p. 848). “And Satan stood up against Israel, and moved David to number Israel” (1 Chron. 21:1). “And he showed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of Jehovah, and Satan standing at his right hand to be his adversary. And Jehovah said unto Satan, Jehovah rebuke thee, O Satan; yea, Jehovah that hath chosen Jerusalem rebuke thee: is not this a brand plucked out of the fire” (Zech. 3:1-2)? Satan’s aim is to thwart God’s purpose. He aims to thwart God’s purpose by preventing Israel from repenting. “Since Christ will not crush Satan and his forces and take possession of the earth until the nation of Israel repents (Zech. 12-14; Acts 3:12, 19-21), during the 70th week Satan and his forces will exert great effort to annihilate Israel before it can repent (Dan. 9:27; Mt. 24:15-16; Rev. 12:7-17)” (Showers, M, p. 94). (See our discussion of Israel’s repentance in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation below.) He aims to thwart God's purpose by making fulfillment of the covenants impossible. "Satan will seek to exterminate every physical descendant of Abraham on the face of the earth, because if he could accomplish that, then the Abrahamic Covenant could not come to fulfillment" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 302). (See our discussion of the Abrahamic Covenant in our chapter Conscience, Government and Promise, and our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Second Coming is to fulfill the covenants and prophecies in the section Purposes of the Second Coming of our chapter The Second Coming of the King.)

Israel is exiled from the land. "And he shall speak words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High; and he shall think to change the times and the law; and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and half a time" (Dan. 7:25). "Therefore when you see the abomination of desolation which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let the reader understand), then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains; let him who is on the housetop not go down to get the things out that are in his house; and let him who is in the field not turn back to get his cloak. But woe to those who are with child and to those who nurse babes in those days! But pray that your flight may not be in the winter, or on a Sabbath; for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short. Then if anyone says to you, "Behold, here is the Christ," or "There He is," do not believe him. For false Christs and false prophets will arise and will show great signs and wonders, so as to mislead, if possible, even the elect. Behold, I have told you in advance. If therefore they say to you, "Behold, He is in the wilderness," do not go forth, or, "Behold, He is in the inner rooms," do not believe them. For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be. Wherever the corpse is, there the vultures will gather" (Matt. 24:15-28). "Verses 23-28 contain a special message directed to the believing remnant within Israel, warning them not to heed any rumor that the Messiah has returned and so come out of hiding" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 771). "Why not on the Sabbath? In Israel on the Sabbath day there is no public transportation. The buses are all locked up and the trains do not run" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 258). "And the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place prepared by God, so that there she might be nourished for one thousand two hundred and sixty days. And there was war in heaven, Michael and his angels waging war with the dragon. And the dragon and his angels waged war, and they were not strong enough, and there was no longer a place found for them in heaven. And the great dragon was thrown down, the serpent of old who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world; he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him... ‘Woe to the earth and the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great wrath, knowing that he has only a short time.’ And when the dragon saw that he was thrown down to the earth, he persecuted the woman who gave birth to the male child. And the two wings of the great eagle were given to the woman, in order that she might fly into the wilderness to her place, where she was nourished for a time and times and half a time, from the presence of the serpent” (Rev. 12:6-14). “To the ‘Woman’ will be given the ‘wings of a great eagle,’ that she may fly into the ‘Wilderness,’ into ‘her place,’ where she shall be nourished for a ‘Time, Times, and Half a Time,’ or 3 1/2 years. This takes us back to the flight of Israel from Egypt, of which God said—“Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on ‘Eagle’s Wings,’ and brought you unto myself.’ Ex. 19:4” (Larkin, DT, p. 136). “There is a restoration now, but there will be one more forced exile from the land in the middle of the Great Tribulation, the one spoken of in Matthew 24:15-28 and Revelation 12:6-14” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 418). “The reason for this flight ([Matt. 24] v. 21) is because at this time world-wide anti-Semitism will break out in all its fierceness. Satan’s attempt to annihilate the Jews once and for all will have begun in earnest” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 633). “Revelation 12:14 states that Israel will hide in the wilderness from Satan for ‘a time, and times, and half a time.’ Daniel 7:25 uses this identical time designation for the length of time that Antichrist will persecute the saints of the 70th week” (Showers, M, p. 45). “...flee to the mountains... (Matt. 24:16)... This was a specific warning to avoid the center of trouble (Jerusalem) and flee to the mountains, which is what the remnant will do at that time” (Geisler, ST, 4:638).

Israel is gathered at Bozrah. “I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather the remnant of Israel; I will put them together as the sheep of Bozrah, as a flock in the midst of their pasture; they shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men” (Mic. 2:12). “The remnant is gathered together as the sheep of Bozrah. Since the sheep of Bozrah are not any different than other sheep, this gathering together as the sheep of Bozrah simply means that they are to be gathered in Bozrah. The ancient city of Bozrah was located in the region of Mount Seir. Mount Seir is a very rocky range of mountains, and its name means the

'hairy mountains.' This fulfills the requirement of the Matthew passage. It is located in the wilderness section of ancient Edom and so fulfills the requirement of the Revelation passage. The very nature of the chain of mountains of Mount Seir makes it quite defensible, fulfilling the requirements of the Isaiah passage. Mount Seir is located on the western side of ancient Edom, extending from southeast of the Dead Sea down to the city of Akaba. It towers over the Arabah, part of the rift valley from the south shore of the Dead Sea to the Gulf of Eilat. Today the area is in southern Jordan. The city is now known as Petra" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 776). "A really fascinating issue is the exact location of Bozrah in the mountain range of Mount Seir. Two places have been suggested. One is the present Arab village of Buseira, which seems to retain the name of Bozrah. This is the main argument in favor of it. Another suggestion is the city now known as Petra. While both cities meet all the above requirements, this author prefers the identification with Petra. Petra is located in a basin within Mount Seir, and is totally surrounded by mountains and cliffs. The only way in and out of the city is through a narrow passageway that extends for about a mile and can only be negotiated by foot or by horseback. This makes the city easy to defend, and its surrounding high cliffs give added meaning and confirmation to Isaiah 33:16. Only a few abreast can enter through this passage at any one time, giving this city even greater defensibility. The name Bozrah means 'sheepfold.' An ancient sheepfold had a narrow entrance so that the shepherd could count his sheep. Once inside the fold, the sheep had more room to move around. Petra is shaped like a giant sheepfold, with its narrow passage opening up to a spacious circle surrounded by cliffs. This is not true of the town of Buseira. Furthermore, by modern Petra is a site known as Butzeira, which retains the Hebrew Botzrah better than Buseira" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 292). "He shall dwell on high; his place of defence shall be the munitions of rocks; his bread shall be given him; his waters shall be sure" (Isa. 33:16). "He shall enter also into the glorious land, and many countries shall be overthrown; but these shall be delivered out of his hand: Edom, and Moab, and the chief of the children of Ammon" (Dan. 11:41). "Another reason this city was chosen is revealed in the context of Daniel 11:40-45. This passage concerns the conquests of the Antichrist in the middle of the Tribulation as he begins his world political takeover. The key verse which bears upon the discussion here is in verse 41" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 777). "The passage states that while the Antichrist will conquer the whole world, three nations will escape his domination: Edom, Moab and Ammon. All three of these ancient nations currently comprise the single modern state of Jordan. The city of Bozrah in Mount Seir is located in ancient Edom or southern Jordan. Since this area will escape the domination of the Antichrist, it is logical for the Jews to flee to this place. Thus, God will provide a city of refuge outside the Antichrist's domain for the fleeing remnant. It will be a very defensible city located in Mount Seir. Furthermore, as they flee and while they are living there, food and water will be miraculously provided" (ibid.). "It is here in Edom that the 'City of Refuge' that God has provided for Israel is located, and is known today as Petra" (Larkin, DT, p. 137).

The mark of the beast (666) is implemented. "And I saw another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spoke as a dragon. And he exercises all the authority of the first beast in his presence. And he makes the earth and those who dwell in it to worship the first beast, whose fatal wound was healed. And he performs great signs, so that he even makes fire come down out of heaven to the earth in the presence of men. And he deceives those who dwell on the earth because of the signs which it was given him to perform in the presence of the beast, telling those who dwell on the earth to make an image to the beast who had the wound of the sword and has come to life. And there was given to him to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast might even speak and cause as many as do not worship the image of the beast to be killed. And he causes all, the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free men and the slaves, to be given a mark on their right hand, or on their forehead, and he provides that no one should be able to buy or to sell, except the one who has the mark, either the name of the beast or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him who has understanding calculate the number of the beast, for the number is that of a man; and his number is six hundred and sixty-six" (Rev. 13:11-18). "And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, 'If anyone worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.' Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus. And I heard a voice from heaven, saying, 'Write, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on!"' 'Yes,' says the Spirit, 'that they may rest from their labors, for their deeds follow with them” (Rev. 14:9–13). “...he [Antichrist] will slay all who will not receive his mark and tender homage to him (Rev. 13:15-17 and 14:9-13)” (Peters, TTK, 2:698). “The purpose of the mark will be to serve as a sign of identification of those who will own the Antichrist as their god... The verse does not speak of credit cards, banking systems, a cashless society, a one-world money system, or computers, etc.” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 251) “Each letter of the Hebrew alphabet has a numerical value. There are 22 letters in the Hebrew alphabet and in the order of numerical value they are as follows: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90, 100, 200, 300, and 400. So everyone’s name in Hebrew has a numerical value. The numerical value of the author’s name is 966. The name of Jesus the Messiah has the numerical value of 749. In this passage, whatever the personal name of the Antichrist will be, if his name is spelled out in Hebrew characters, the numerical value of his name will be 666. So this is the number that will be put on the worshipers of the Antichrist. Since a number of different calculations can equal 666, it is impossible to figure the name out in advance. But when he does appear, whatever his personal name will be, it will equal 666. Those who are wise (v. 18) at that time will be able to point him out” (ibid.). “No one will take the mark out of ignorance, for by this time there will have been two worldwide proclamations of the gospel. The first was the 144,000 during the first half of the Tribulation, and the second was the angel in Revelation 14:6-7 in the middle of the Tribulation” (ibid., p. 267). “And I saw another angel flying in midheaven, having an eternal gospel to preach to those who live on the earth, and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people; and he said with a loud voice, ‘Fear God, and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come; worship Him who made the heaven and the earth and sea and springs of waters” (Rev. 14:6-7).

The Seventh of the Seven Trumpet Judgments

With the seventh trumpet, the mystery of God is finished. “but in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he is about to sound, then the mystery of God is finished, as He preached to His servants the prophets” (Rev. 10:7). “...days... plural number... The Bowl Judgements all come toward the end of the Tribulation and with them the mystery of God is finished. The seventh trumpet that contains the seven Bowl Judgments is the third woe. For this reason, it is the worst of all. The little Book contains all the information regarding the seventh trumpet with the Bowl Judgments, as found in Revelation 15-16” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 239). “...the seventh trumpet is not a singular judgment, but a process by which the mystery of God is finished... the seventh trumpet is the process of the Seven Bowl Judgments... The mystery is that there will be a series of seven climactic judgments that will destroy the satanic mystery of the man of sin. This was not revealed in the Old Testament” (ibid., p. 693). God’s Kingdom is foreseen. “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, ‘The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever.’ And the twenty-four elders, who sit on their thrones before God, fell on their faces and worshiped God, saying, ‘We give Thee thanks, O Lord God, the Almighty, who art and who wast, because Thou hast taken Thy great power and hast begun to reign. And the nations were enraged, and Thy wrath came, and the time came for the dead to be judged, and the time to give their reward to Thy bond-servants the prophets and to the saints and to those who fear Thy name, the small and the great, and to destroy those who destroy the earth.’ And the temple of God which is in heaven was opened; and the ark of His covenant appeared in His temple, and there were flashes of lightning and sounds and peals of thunder and an earthquake and a great hailstorm” (Rev. 11:15-19). “Revelation 11:14-19... The kingdom of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ: and he shall reign for ever and ever... the word kingdom is singular, and so Messiah will gain the one-world kingdom of the Antichrist” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 269). “...the Temple in Heaven. The Ark of the Covenant mentioned is the original ark of which Moses made a copy” (ibid., p. 270). The seventh trumpet judgment contains the seven bowl judgments. “The ‘Seventh Trumpet’ includes all that follows down to the end of chapter nineteen. We must not forget in our study of the Book of Revelation that the ‘Seventh Seal’ includes the ‘Seven Trumpets’ and the ‘Seven Vials,’ and that the ‘Seventh Trumpet’ includes the ‘Seven Vials,’ for the ‘Seventh Seal,’ and the ‘Seventh Trumpet,’ and the ‘Seventh Vial’ all end alike with ‘voices,’ ‘thunderings,’ ‘lightnings’ and an ‘earthquake.’ Rev. 8:5, 11:19; 16:18” (Larkin, DT, p. 136). “...the seventh Trumpet Judgment will contain the seven Bowl Judgments, which will finish the judgments of God declared by the prophets. All the prophecies dealing with the Tribulation’s second half will then be fulfilled” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 238). “The results spelled out under the seventh trumpet come after the seven Bowl Judgments are complete” (ibid., p. 274).

Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation

The last half of the Tribulation features a number of events that bring to a climax the time of Jacob’s (and the world’s) trouble. “...the last half of Daniel's seventieth week, known more specifically as the Great Tribulation" (Feinberg, M, p. 164). "So horrendous will be those days that unless they were shortened, no one would be saved. For Israel's sake they are shortened. Immediately after the tribulation of those days the Son of Man will appear, coming in clouds of heaven with power and great glory" (ibid.).

Considered individually:

The holy city is trampled for forty-two months. "And leave out the court which is outside the temple, and do not measure it, for it has been given to the nations; and they will tread under foot the holy city for forty-two months" (Rev. 11:2-3). "This will be the final Gentile control of Jerusalem, and it will last 42 months, or 3 1/2 years. It will be this Gentile takeover of the city and the Temple that will cause a cessation of the sacrifices" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 254). (See also our discussion of Israel's persecution in our section Events of the Middle of the Tribulation above.)

"This good news of the Kingdom" is preached. "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a witness to all the nations, and then the end shall come" (Matt. 24:14). This verse is central to the worldview and self-identification of Jehovah's Witnesses. At the time of this writing, Jehovah's Witnesses believe that they are fulfilling this verse today. However, this is impossible for at least two reasons. First, this prophecy is to have fulfillment during the Tribulation period (see vs. 21), not before; same as all the events of Matthew chapter twenty-four. Second, Jehovah's Witnesses are today preaching not only a false gospel (Gal. 1:8-9; believing the JW gospel does not result in personal spiritual regeneration; this is one evidence among many that it is false; for more on this please see this writer's self-published book Reasoning with Jehovah's Witnesses), but a false kingdom message: a kingdom message in which the man-made and self-appointed organization of Jehovah's Witnesses has attempted to usurp both the church's and Israel's roles in the Kingdom. (It should be noted as well that Matt. 24:14 is a prophecy of a future eschatological event; not a command for Christians alive now.) "Melville, Newton, and a host of able writers, have aptly said: 'that the Gospel preached for a witness, conveys the idea of rejection rather than of acceptance'" (Peters, TTK, 3:117) "Matt. 24:14... the critical student is reminded of the peculiar phrase 'the Gospel of the Kingdom,' i.e. the Gospel preached is glad tidings concerning the covenanted Messianic Kingdom. It is not simply glad news of repentance, faith, etc., but distinctively of the Kingdom" (ibid., p. 137). "...the 'Gospel of the Kingdom'... it is to be preached again after the Rapture of the Church, for a 'witness' unto all nations, that the time has come for the setting up of the Kingdom (Matt.

24:14)... the ‘Gospel of the Kingdom’ has nothing to do with ‘salvation,’ but is simply an announcement that the ‘Messianic Kingdom’ is AT HAND” (Larkin, DT, p. 86). “The Gospel of ‘The Kingdom.’ Matt. 24:14. This is the ‘Good News’ that God purposes to set up a Kingdom on this earth over which David’s Son, JESUS, shall reign, as prophesied in Luke 1:32-33. Two preachings of this Gospel are mentioned, one past, beginning with the ministry of John the Baptist, and preached by Jesus and His Disciples, but it ended with the rejection of Jesus as King. This Gospel is to be preached again after the Church is taken out. It will be the fulfillment of Matt. 24:14, where it says: ‘This Gospel of “THE KINGDOM” shall be preached in all the world for a WITNESS unto all nations; and then shall the end come.’ This has no reference to the Gospel that is now being preached to the nations. It is the Gospel of SALVATION, but the ‘Gospel of the Kingdom’ is not for ‘Salvation’ but for a WITNESS, that is, it is the announcement that the time has come to SET UP THE KINGDOM. It will be preached first by Elijah the forerunner (Mal. 4:5-6 [‘Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the great and terrible day of Jehovah come. And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers; lest I come and smite the earth with a curse.’]), and by others who shall be commissioned to bear the news to all nations as a proclamation of the coming of Christ as King to occupy the ‘Throne of David,’ and for the purpose of regathering Israel to the Promised Land” (ibid., p. 126). “The Jewish question will have divided the nations of the earth, that is, after the kingdom gospel will have been preached in all the inhabited earth by the 144,000 Jewish missionaries (cf. Matt. 24:14; Rev. 7)” (Chafer, ST, 4:343). “The passage in question [Matt. 24:14] is found in a context belonging to the future great tribulation” (ibid., 5:282). “...Matt. 24:14, where the issue is the end of Israel’s age” (Feinberg, M, p. 180). “The gospel of the kingdom is national, whereas the gospel of grace is individual” (ibid., p. 255). “Fitzwater [in P.B. Fitzwater, Christian Theology, p. 522] has stated the premillennial viewpoint with clarity: ‘When the Church has been caught up, removed from the earth, then will be resumed the kingdom message begun by John the Baptist when he cried, “Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand” (Matthew 3:2)... When John’s voice was stilled, Christ took it up, and when Christ was rejected and crucified, the kingdom passed into abeyance—the nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return”’ (ibid., p. 272). “The critics of this position have charged that since the gospel of the kingdom is being preached during the tribulation there can be no preaching of the cross. The tribulation will witness the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom. Matthew 24:14 makes this very clear. However, the preaching of the cross and the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom are not mutually exclusive” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 271). “It must be recognized that the term gospel in its literal usage means simply ‘good news.’ The gospel of the kingdom was the good news that the promised King was soon to appear on the scene to offer the promised kingdom. In such usage the gospel of the kingdom was not primarily soteriological but eschatological in concept. The gospel of the kingdom did not offer a way of salvation, but rather offered the hope of the fulfillment of Israel’s eschatological promises, which contained within them the fulfillment of the soteriological hopes, as has previously been seen in contemplating the two aspects of the Old Testament salvation” (ibid., p. 272). “There were two phases to John’s preaching of the gospel of the kingdom: ‘Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand’ (Matt. 3:2) and ‘Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world’ (John 1:29). The one was just as much a part of John’s message as the other. In these two declarations it may be stated that John proclaimed a cross as well as a kingdom. So it will be in the tribulation period” (ibid.). “Thus the message, as recorded in the Book of Acts, centers around the call to repentance that was a precondition to blessing under the Palestinian Covenant. Christ in Matthew 24:14 predicted that ‘this Gospel of the kingdom will be preached in the whole world.’ The Gospel of the kingdom is the message that John the Baptist proclaimed to Israel. It involved first a call to repentance, then an invitation to behold or to look by faith to the Lamb of God that takes away the sin of the world (John 1:29). This is the same message that will be proclaimed in the world during that period Christ called, literally, ‘the tribulation, the great one’ (Matt. 24:21). This future period is the unfulfilled seven years of Daniel’s prophecy of the seventy weeks (Dan. 9:24-27). During this period the Gospel of the kingdom will be preached to Gentiles by 144,000 who will be sovereignly redeemed and commissioned to be God’s servants (Rev. 7:1-8). They will proclaim salvation by grace through faith based on blood so that men can have ‘washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb’ (v. 14). The same message will be proclaimed by the two witnesses (11:3), prophets God will raise up to bring a message to the nation Israel. Indeed, their message is no different than the one the prophets have always brought to a disobedient covenant people down through the ages. The general response to both the witness of the 144,000 and that of the two witnesses is found in Revelation 9:20-21: ‘The rest of mankind that were not killed by these plagues still did not repent of the work of their hands; they did not stop worshipping demons, and idols of gold, silver, bronze, stone and wood—idols that cannot see or hear or walk. Nor did they repent of their murders, their magic arts, their sexual immorality or their thefts.’ In Revelation 16:9-11 we find the same response. In fact, again and again in these passages we can see that in spite of all the wrath God poured out on unbelievers, men refused to repent. The Tribulation is a period in which God will significantly deal with the nation Israel to bring it to repentance, thus setting the stage for the fulfillment of the covenanted blessings believers will experience and the establishment of the kingdom after Christ’s second advent. This emphasis on repentance stresses the significance of the covenant God made in Deuteronomy 28-30, where repentance was seen as a precondition to the enjoyment of the covenanted blessings” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 121). “During the time that the politico-religious system of the beast is in absolute control, the Gospel of the kingdom will be preached throughout the whole world (Matt. 24:14)” (ibid., p. 251). “...the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom in all the inhabited earth to all nations during the future Tribulation period (Mt. 24:14)” (Showers, M, p. 214). “...the apostles... the gospel of the kingdom, which they had been proclaiming for some time, did not include the ideas of Jesus’ death, burial, and resurrection” (ibid., p. 238). “The ‘gospel of the kingdom’ as announced by John (Matt. 3:3), by the disciples who were specially commissioned (Matt. 10:7), by the seventy (Luke 10:9), and by the Lord (Matt. 4:17) proclaimed the good news that the promised kingdom was ‘at hand.’ The Lord indicates this same good news will be announced again... (Matt. 24:14). Although the news at the first advent was restricted to Israel, prior to the second advent it will be announced not only to Israel but to the whole world. This preaching... marks the beginning of the final step in the realization of the theocratic kingdom program” [quoting Pentecost, Things to Come, p. 472] (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 398). “The conclusion is that this time the kingdom offer will be accepted. This will lead to the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom, which will be the final facet of the theocratic kingdom” (ibid.).

Angelic proclamations are made. Three angelic proclamations take place in Revelation chapter fourteen: 1. An eternal gospel. “And I saw another angel flying in midheaven, having an eternal gospel to preach to those who live on the earth, and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people; and he said with a loud voice, ‘Fear God, and give Him glory, because the hour of His judgment has come; and worship Him who made the heaven and the earth and sea and springs of waters’” (Rev. 14:6-7). “One day God will use an angel to preach the gospel ‘to every nation, tribe, language and people’ (Rev. 14:6)” (Geisler, ST, 3:464). 2. The fall of Babylon the Great. “And another angel, a second one, followed, saying, ‘Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, she who has made all the nations drink of the wine of the passion of her immorality” (Rev. 14:8) 3. A warning against worshiping the Antichrist. “And another angel, a third one, followed them, saying with a loud voice, ‘If any-one worships the beast and his image, and receives a mark on his forehead or upon his hand, he also will drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is mixed in full strength in the cup of His anger; and he will be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, those who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.’ Here is the perseverance of the saints who keep the commandments of God and their faith in Jesus” (Rev. 14:9-12).

Saved people are seen. “And I saw, as it were, a sea of glass mixed with fire, and those who had come off victorious from the beast and from his image and from the number of his name, standing on the sea of glass, holding harps of God. And they sang the song of Moses the bond-servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying, ‘Great and marvelous are Thy works, O Lord God, the Almighty; Righteous and true are Thy ways, Thou King of the nations. Who will not fear, O Lord, and glorify Thy name? For Thou alone art holy; For all the nations will come and worship before Thee, For Thy righteous acts have been revealed” (Rev. 15:2-4).

The marriage of the Lamb takes place in heaven. “For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, that to Christ I might present you as a pure virgin” (2 Cor. 11:2). “that He might present to Himself the church in all her glory, having no spot or wrinkle or any such thing; but that she should be holy and blameless” (Eph. 5:27). “And I heard, as it were, the voice of a great multitude and as the sound of many waters and as the sound of mighty peals of thunder, saying, ‘Hallelujah! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready.’ And it was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. And he said to me, ‘Write, “Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.”’ And he said to me, “These are true words of God” (Rev. 19:6-9). “Notice that it does not say the ‘Marriage of the Bride,’ but the ‘Marriage of the LAMB.’ That grand event will be not so much the consummation of the hopes of the Bride, as it will be the consummation of the plan of God for His Son, arranged for before the foundation of the World. Eph. 1:4 [‘just as He chose us in Him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before Him.}]” (Larkin, DT, p. 80). “There have been many long betrothals but Christ’s has been the longest on record” (Larkin, DT, p. 81). “...the church at present is a bride and in heaven will become the wife of Christ when she is presented a glorious church (Eph. 5:27)” (Walvoord, MK, p. 245) “The marriage ceremony takes place in Heaven and involves the Church. That it must take place after the Judgment Seat of Messiah is evident from verse eight, for the Bride is viewed as being dressed in white linen, which is the righteous acts of the saints” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 161). “There will be no earthly marriage in heaven (cf. Matt. 22:30), but there will be something far better—the heavenly marriage of the Lamb” (Geisler, ST, 4:302). “There will be a great wedding as the church, Christ’s bride, is joined to her Husband and Head” (ibid., p. 561). (See also our discussion of the (subsequent and earthly) marriage feast of the Lamb in our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

The Seven Bowl Judgments

The seven bowl judgments result in unprecedented destruction on earth. “And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvelous, seven angels who had seven plagues, which are the last, because in them the wrath of God is finished” (Rev. 15:1). “After these things I looked, and the temple of the tabernacle of testimony in heaven was opened, and the seven angels who had the seven plagues came out of the temple, clothed in linen, clean and bright, and girded around their breasts with golden girdles. And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God, who lives forever and ever. And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God and from His power; and no one was able to enter the temple until the seven plagues of the seven angels were finished” (Rev. 15:5-8). “And I heard a loud voice from the temple, saying to the seven angels, ‘Go and pour out the seven bowls of the wrath of God into the earth’” (Rev. 16:1). “...the vials of an insulted God. Notwithstanding all this so faithfully portrayed by inspiration, many men persistently close their minds and hearts to such warnings! Yea more, they make them even the subject of jest and scoffing! But jesting lips and scoffing hearts will tremble and quake with fear when the predicted vengeance comes. God has declared it, and we believe Him” (Peters, TTK, 2:700). “While the bowl judgments (Rev. 15-16) are on the same objects as the trumpets, they are later and more extensive. For example, while with the trumpets only one-third of the object is inflicted, with the bowls the entire object is inflicted; apparently, then, the same objects are later revisited with intensified judgment” (Geisler, ST, 4:607).

Bowl 1: Into the earth: Sores are inflicted upon those who have the mark of the beast. “And the first angel went and poured out his bowl into the earth; and it became a loathsome and malignant sore upon the men who had the mark of the beast and who worshiped his image” (Rev. 16:2). “This is a repetition of the ‘Sixth Egyptian Plague.’ Ex. 9:8-12. If that was literal why should not this be? The ‘literalness’ of these ‘Vial Judgments’ is the key to the literalness of the whole Book of Revelation” (Larkin, DT, p. 138). “And Jehovah said unto Moses and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace, and let Moses sprinkle it toward heaven in the sight of Pharaoh. And it shall become small dust over all the land of Egypt, and shall be a boil breaking forth with blains upon man and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt. And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh; and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became a boil breaking forth with blains upon man and upon beast. And the magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils; for the boils were upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians. And Jehovah hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them, as Jehovah had spoken unto Moses” (Ex. 9:8-12).

Bowl 2: Into the sea: The sea becomes blood; everything in the sea dies. “And the second angel poured out his bowl into the sea, and it became blood like that of a dead man; and every living thing in the sea died” (Rev. 16:3).

Bowl 3: Into the fresh water: The water becomes blood. “And the third angel poured out his bowl into the rivers and the springs of waters; and they became blood. And I heard the angel of the waters saying, ‘Righteous art Thou, who art and who wast, O Holy One, because Thou didst judge these things; for they poured out the blood of saints and prophets, and Thou hast given them blood to drink. They deserve it.’ And I heard the altar saying, ‘Yes, O Lord God, the Almighty, true and righteous are Thy judgments’” (Rev. 16:4-7). “This is a repetition of the ‘First Egyptian Plague.’ Ex. 7:19-24” (Larkin, DT, p. 138). “And Jehovah said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and stretch out thy hand over the waters of Egypt, over their rivers, over their streams, and over their pools, and over all their ponds of water, that they may become blood; and there shall be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in vessels of wood and in vessels of stone. And Moses and Aaron did so, as Jehovah commanded; and he lifted up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants; and all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood. And the fish that were in the river died; and the river became foul, and the Egyptians could not drink water from the river; and the blood was throughout all the land of Egypt. And the magicians of Egypt did in like manner with their enchantments: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as Jehovah had spoken. And Pharaoh turned and went into his house, neither did he lay even this to heart. And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river" (Ex. 7:19–24).

Bowl 4: Upon the sun: Men are scorched with fire. "And the fourth angel poured out his bowl upon the sun; and it was given to it to scorch men with fire. And men were scorched with fierce heat; and they blasphemed the name of God who has the power over these plagues; and they did not repent, so as to give Him glory" (Rev. 16:8-9). "This is the only plague for which there is no Egyptian parallel, and as the others are literal so must it be. The Prophet Malachi refers to it. Malachi 4:1" (Larkin, DT, p. 138). "For, behold, the day cometh, it burneth as a furnace; and all the proud, and all that work wickedness, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith Jehovah of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch" (Mal. 4:1).

Bowl 5: Upon the throne of the Antichrist: His kingdom is darkened. "And the fifth angel poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and his kingdom became darkened; and they gnawed their tongues because of pain, and they blasphemed the God of heaven because of their pains and their sores; and they did not repent of their deeds" (Rev. 16:10-11). "This will be a repetition of the 'Ninth Egyptian Plague.' Ex. 10:21-23" (Larkin, DT, p. 138). "And Jehovah said unto Moses, Stretch out thy hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days; they saw not one another, neither rose any one from his place for three days: but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings" (Ex. 10:21–23). "The entire kingdom of the Beast will be darkened which, at this stage, will include the entire world with the exception of the three Transjordanian nations where light will still exist" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 276).

Bowl 6: Upon the Euphrates river: The river dries up, preparing the way for the kings from the east for the campaign of Armageddon. "And the sixth angel poured out his bowl upon the great river, the Euphrates; and its water was dried up, that the way might be prepared for the kings from the east. And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs; for they are spirits of demons, performing signs, which go out to the kings of the whole world, to gather them together for the war of the great day of God, the Almighty. (“Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who stays awake and keeps his garments, lest he walk about naked and men see his shame.”) And they gathered them together to the place which in Hebrew is called Har-magedon” (Rev. 16:12-16).

Bowl 7: Upon the air: A massive earthquake occurs, the city splits, cities of the nations fall, Babylon the Great is remembered, islands and mountains disappear, and great hailstones fall. “And the seventh angel poured out his bowl upon the air; and a loud voice came out of the temple from the throne, saying, ‘It is done.’ And there were flashes of lightning and sounds and peals of thunder; and there was a great earthquake, such as there had not been since man came to be upon the earth, so great an earthquake was it, and so mighty. And the great city was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. And Babylon the great was remembered before God, to give her the cup of the wine of His fierce wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. And huge hailstones, about one hundred pounds each, came down from heaven upon men; and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail, because its plague was extremely severe” (Rev. 16:17-21). “‘Great Hail’... a repetition of the ‘Seventh Egyptian Plague.’ Ex. 9:13-35... The Law required that the ‘blasphemer’ should be ‘stoned’ (Lev. 24:16), and the ‘Blasphemers’ of the ‘End Time’ shall be stoned from HEAVEN” (Larkin, DT, p. 138). “So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as had not been in all the land of Egypt since it became a nation” (Ex. 9:24). “With the seventh Bowl Judgment ([Rev.] 16:17-21), there is a declaration: It is finished” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 695). “The conclusion of this study can be summarized using these very same words: It is finished, because with the eighth divine mystery having conquered the two satanic mysteries, all other mysteries come together: First, the satanic mysteries are now destroyed forever; second, the Messianic Kingdom is established, and the Son is enthroned upon the Throne of David; third, this means that the Mystery Kingdom period ends, replaced by the Messianic Kingdom; fourth, the Mystery Church then co-reigns with the Messiah over the Messianic Kingdom; and fifth, the mystery of the fullness of the Gentiles is complete, meaning that all Israel is saved, and all Israel is restored to the Land. Finally, with the declaration, it is finished, all of the mysteries come together, and it is finished, indeed. What continues is the results of the divine mysteries. What is terminated are the satanic mysteries once and for all” (ibid.).

Israel survives. Regarding the remnant’s protection: “But thou, Israel, my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham my friend, thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth, and called from the corners thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant, I have chosen thee and not cast thee away; Fear thou not, for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. Behold, all they that are incensed against thee shall be put to shame and confounded: they that strive with thee shall be as nothing, and shall perish. Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contend with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought. For I, Jehovah thy God, will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee. Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel; I will help thee, saith Jehovah, and thy Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel. Behold, I have made thee to be a new sharp threshing instrument having teeth; thou shalt thresh the mountains, and beat them small, and shalt make the hills as chaff. Thou shalt winnow them, and the wind shall carry them away, and the whirlwind shall scatter them; and thou shalt rejoice in Jehovah, thou shalt glory in the Holy One of Israel” (Isa. 41:8-16). “This is a promise to preserve the remnant in the midst of tremendous persecution during Satan’s campaign to destroy the Jews” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 779). “Now at that time Michael, the great prince who stands guard over the sons of your people, will arise. And there will be a time of distress such as never occurred since there was a nation until that time; and at that time your people, everyone who is found written in the book, will be rescued” (Dan. 12:1). “The fact that Israel will survive at all is due to the ministry of the Archangel and Chief Prince Michael” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 286) Regarding the remnant’s provision: “The poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst; I, Jehovah, will answer them, I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them. I will open rivers on the bare heights, and fountains in the midst of the valleys; I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water. I will put in the wilderness the cedar, the acacia, and the myrtle, and the oil-tree; I will set in the desert the fir-tree, the pine, and the box-tree together: that they may see, and know, and consider, and understand together, that the hand of Jehovah hath done this, and the Holy

One of Israel hath created it” (Isa. 41:17-20). “According to Isaiah 41:17-20, just as in the wilderness of Sinai God miraculously provided food and water for Israel, He will do so again in the Tribulation when the Jews flee to the wilderness” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 779). “Behold, I will do a new thing; now shall it spring forth; shall ye not know it? I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert. The beasts of the field shall honor me, the jackals and the ostriches; because I give waters in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert, to give drink to my people, my chosen” (Isa. 43:19-20) “Thus saith Jehovah, As the new wine is found in the cluster, and one saith, Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it: so will I do for my servants’ sake, that I may not destroy them all. And I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains; and my chosen shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there. And Sharon shall be a fold of flocks, and the valley of Achor a place for herds to lie down in, for my people that have sought me. But ye that forsake Jehovah, that forget my holy mountain, that prepare a table for Fortune, and that fill up mingled wine unto Destiny; I will destine you to the sword, and ye shall all bow down to the slaughter; because when I called, ye did not answer; when I spake, ye did not hear; but ye did that which was evil in mine eyes, and chose that wherein I delighted not. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Behold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry; behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty; behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be put to shame; behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and shall wail for vexation of spirit. And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen; and the Lord Jehovah will slay thee; and he will call his servants by another name: so that he who blesseth himself in the earth shall bless himself in the God of truth; and he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the God of truth; because the former troubles are forgotten, and because they are hid from mine eyes” (Isa. 65:8-16). “In... Isaiah 65:8-16, the prophet describes how on one hand God will supply for the Faithful Remnant, whereas He will withhold provisions from the apostates” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 780). “This passage makes clear that while the apostates will be allowed to suffer and die, the Faithful Remnant will be divinely protected and provided with food and water. By this means the Faithful Remnant will be able to survive the persecutions and devastations of the Great Tribulation” (ibid.). “And the two wings of the great eagle were given to the woman, in order that she might fly into the wilderness to her place, where she was nourished for a time and times and half a time, from the presence of the serpent” (Rev. 12:14). “These miraculous provisions will cause them to reconsider their relationship to God” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 780). Regarding the remnant’s survival: “In that day shall the branch of Jehovah be beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the land shall be excellent and comely for them that are escaped of Israel. And it shall come to pass, that he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, even every one that is written among the living in Jerusalem; when the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and shall have purged the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof, by the spirit of justice, and by the spirit of burning” (Isa. 4:2–4). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that the remnant of Israel, and they that are escaped of the house of Jacob, shall no more again lean upon him that smote them, but shall lean upon Jehovah, the Holy One of Israel, in truth. A remnant shall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto the mighty God. For though thy people, Israel, be as the sand of the sea, only a remnant of them shall return: a destruction is determined, overflowing with righteousness. For a full end, and that determined, will the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, make in the midst of all the earth” (Isa. 10:20–23). “And the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward. For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and out of mount Zion they that shall escape. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this” (Isa. 37:31–32). “And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those that escape, as Jehovah hath said, and among the remnant those whom Jehovah doth call” (Joel 2:32). “But in mount Zion there shall be those that escape, and it shall be holy; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions” (Obadiah 1:17). “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in; and thus all Israel will be saved; just as it is written, ‘THE DELIVERER WILL COME FROM ZION, HE WILL REMOVE UNGODLINESS FROM JACOB.’ ‘AND THIS IS MY COVENANT WITH THEM, WHEN I TAKE AWAY THEIR SINS’” (Rom. 11:25–27).

Israel’s will is broken. “Then I, Daniel, looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on the brink of the river on this side, and the other on the brink of the river on that side. And one said to the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, How long shall it be to the end of these wonders? And I heard the man clothed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and swear by him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a time, times, and a half; and when they have made an end of breaking in pieces the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished” (Dan. 12:5-7). “This passage [Dan 12:5-7] then states a goal of the Tribulation: to break the power or the will of the Jewish nation. The Tribulation will continue and will not end until this happens. God intends to break the will of the holy people in order to bring about a national regeneration” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 768).

Israel's blindness is removed. “For I do not want you, brethren, to be uninformed of this mystery, lest you be wise in your own estimation, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles has come in” (Rom. 11:25) “and are not as Moses, who used to put a veil over his face that the sons of Israel might not look intently at the end of what was fading away. But their minds were hardened; for until this very day at the reading of the old covenant the same veil remains unlifted, because it is removed in Christ. But to this day whenever Moses is read, a veil lies over their heart; but whenever a man turns to the Lord, the veil is taken away” (2 Cor. 3:13–16). “Pentecost [in Things to Come, pp. 301-304] emphasizes the removal of the blindness. He begins with a summary of what the New Testament teaches on this subject, which is that ‘the nation Israel is a blinded nation.’ They are blinded in two ways: first, ‘they are spiritually blind because they willfully rejected their Messiah’; and second, ‘a divine judgment has come upon them so that the nation is judicially blinded.’ What Isaiah 6:9-10 predicted would happen is quoted by the New Testament as having happened and Paul, in 2 Corinthians 3:14-15, stated that this blindness ‘was the continuing state of the people,’ though in verse 16 Paul also ‘anticipated that this condition shall change.’ The central passage on this issue is Romans 11:17-27, which teaches that ‘Israel has been set aside from the place of blessing so that the Gentiles might be brought into the place of blessing, from which Israel was cut off and to which they will be returned.’ In his exposition of this passage, Pentecost deduces five things. First, this ‘particular blindness is a mystery.’ This means it was unrevealed in the Old Testament, but is now revealed in the New. The very ‘fact that this blindness is a mystery shows that it is a kind of blindness hitherto unrevealed.’ For that reason, it cannot be a reference to ‘the spiritual blindness’ common to all men because they are ‘children of Adam,’ nor can it be a reference to ‘willful blindness’ also common among men, for both of these types of blindness were known in the Old Testament. Rather, this is ‘a new form of blindness, not hitherto experienced by men.’ This mystery blindness ‘was the divine visitation of Israel by God because of the national sin of rejecting the Messiah.’ Second, the ‘nature of this blindness is revealed,’ in that the Greek term pictures it as ‘the thick impenetrable covering’ which is a result of ‘repeated rejection of the revelation that was given’ and by now ‘has become the settled condition.’ Third, ‘this blindness is “in part” which ‘reveals that this blindness is not universal.’ It is possible for Jewish individuals to be saved, ‘though the nation has been judicially blinded.’ What Pentecost fails to see is that this very fact allows for the Remnant of Israel to exist even today. Fourth, this blindness is destined to ‘be removed from the nation.’ The very word until ‘anticipates the removal of this blindness at some appointed time.’ Fifth, ‘the time of the removal of this blindness is stated,’ which is, ‘until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in.’ Pentecost interprets this as speaking of ‘the rapture of the church when the time of Gentile privilege gives way to the time when Israel will be restored to the place of blessing.’ Pentecost then clarifies what the removal of the blindness will actually mean for Israel. It will not mean that all Jews will immediately have a clear understanding of spiritual truth, for they will still have the common human ‘blindness of his sin nature.’ It will render the truth understandable by all Jews who will now be restored ‘to a place alongside the Gentiles in the place of blessing again.’ It means that God will again be dealing with Israel as a nation, which He has not done ‘since their rejection of the Messiah.’ It will set the stage for ‘the final removal of blindness, ...the spiritual blindness, ...’ at the second coming. ‘The removal of the judicial blindness permits Israel to hear the good news of the kingdom... that is proclaimed in that day in order that they might be saved, both individually and nationally.’ It is the removal of the judicial blindness that ‘makes possible the setting aside of the 144,000, the calling out of the believing remnant, and Israel’s ministry to the nations during the tribulation period”’ (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 547). “Feinberg’s [in Israel, pp. 109, 116-117] view of [Rom.] 11:25 is that this verse is evidence that God has not cast away His people for the fact is that ‘the blindness of the Jews is only partial and temporary,’ and the hope of Israel will yet find fulfillment. That hope is the national salvation and restoration of Israel. Israel is destined to be ‘grafted into her own olive tree,’ and the Olive Tree is the ‘restoration to blessing.’ Among the blessings are: the second coming, salvation, regathering, the Holy Spirit, the New Covenant, a renovated earth, the land, the temple, and the Messianic Kingdom. The blindness of Romans 11:25 is a blindness of the heart, but this is the ‘outcome of repeated disobedience’ which in turn ‘renders men unapproachable with the truth.’ It is blindness that is a hardening ‘strictly a matter of the heart, which is the center of all spiritual life”’ (ibid., p. 550). (See also our discussion of the fact that during the postponement of the Kingdom Israel is blinded in the section Consequences of the Postponement of our chapter Postponement of the Kingdom.)

Israel recognizes Jesus as Messiah. “And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born” (Zech. 12:10). “Behold, He is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see Him, even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev. 1:7). “If there is a truth distinctly taught in the Bible, it is, that the Jewish nation will some time in the future recognize Him whom they have pierced as the Messiah, the one who is to fulfill the Abrahamic covenant” (Peters, TTK, 1:330). “It is Jehovah, not man, who always must initiate the work of grace. ‘They shall look upon me,’ says Jehovah, ‘whom they have pierced’ ([Zech. 12] vs. 10). And the sudden realization that the great Deliverer in their hour of peril is none other than the historic Jesus of Nazareth will start the flood of tears” (McClain, GK, p. 197). “Israel, who rejected her Messiah at His first coming (John 1:10-11), will accept Him at His second, when ‘every eye will see him, even those who pierced him’ (Rev. 1:7) and a nation will be born in a day (Isa. 66:8)” (Geisler, ST, 4:35).

Israel repents. “And they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, in their trespass which they trespassed against me, and also that, because they walked contrary unto me, I also walked contrary unto them, and brought them into the land of their enemies: if then their uncircumcised heart be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity; then will I remember my covenant with Jacob; and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land” (Lev. 26:40-42). “It should be noted that the word iniquity is in the singular and that it is specific. There is one specific iniquity which Israel must confess before she can begin to enjoy all of the benefits of the Abrahamic Covenant. It was committed by their fathers or ancestors, but now must be confessed by a subsequent generation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 304). “But from thence ye shall seek Jehovah thy God, and thou shalt find him, when thou searchest after him with all thy heart and with all thy soul. When thou art in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, in the latter days thou shalt return to Jehovah thy God, and

hearken unto his voice” (Deut. 4:29-30) “And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither Jehovah thy God hath driven thee, and shalt return unto Jehovah thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul; that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee” (Deut. 30:1-3). “And Jehovah said unto me, Backsliding Israel hath showed herself more righteous than treacherous Judah. Go, and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith Jehovah; I will not look in anger upon you; for I am merciful, saith Jehovah, I will not keep anger for ever. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against Jehovah thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith Jehovah. Return, O backsliding children, saith Jehovah; for I am a husband unto you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion: and I will give you shepherds according to my heart, who shall feed you with knowledge and understanding. And it shall come to pass, when ye are multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, saith Jehovah, they shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of Jehovah; neither shall it come to mind; neither shall they remember it; neither shall they miss it; neither shall it be made any more. At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of Jehovah; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of Jehovah, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the stubbornness of their evil heart. In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I gave for an inheritance unto your fathers” (Jer. 3:11–18). “All these blessings are conditioned by [Jer. 3] verse 13, where they must acknowledge or confess one specific iniquity which they committed against Jehovah their God” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 305). “to proclaim the year of Jehovah’s favor, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn; to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them a garland for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of Jehovah, that he may be glorified” (Isa. 61:3). “Therefore, behold, I will allure her, and bring her into the wilderness, and speak comfortably unto her. And I will give her her vineyards from thence, and the valley of*

Achor for a door of hope; and she shall make answer there, as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt. And it shall be at that day, saith Jehovah, that thou shalt call me Ishi [my husband], and shalt call me no more Baali [my owner]. For I will take away the names of the Baalim out of her mouth, and they shall no more be mentioned by their name. And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the heavens, and with the creeping things of the ground: and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the land, and will make them to lie down safely. And I will betroth thee unto me for ever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in justice, and in lovingkindness, and in mercies. I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness; and thou shalt know Jehovah” (Hos. 2:14-20). “For the children of Israel shall abide many days without king, and without prince, and without sacrifice, and without pillar, and without ephod or teraphim: afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek Jehovah their God, and David their king, and shall come with fear unto Jehovah and to his goodness in the latter days” (Hos. 3:4-5). “I will go and return to my place, till they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me earnestly” (Hos. 5:15). “There are certain presuppositions behind the understanding of this verse [Hos. 5:15]. Before anyone can go back to a place, he must first leave it. In this passage, God states that He is going to go back to His place. God’s place is Heaven. Before God can go back to Heaven, He must first leave it. The question is: When did God ever leave Heaven? God left Heaven at the incarnation in the Person of Jesus of Nazareth. Then, because of one specific offense (the word is singular) committed against Him, He returned to Heaven at the ascension from the Mount of Olives. This verse further states that He will not come back to the earth until the offense that caused Him to return to Heaven is acknowledged or confessed. What is that Jewish national offense committed against the Person of Jesus? It is not, as so many people think, in killing Him. The actual killing of Jesus was done by Gentile, not Jewish, hands. He was condemned and sentenced by a Gentile judge. He was crucified by Gentile soldiers. But all this is ultimately irrelevant for, regardless of Jewish acceptance or Jewish rejection, Jesus would have had to die anyway to become the sacrifice for sin. The national offense of Israel was in the rejection of His Messiahship. According to this verse, only when this offense is acknowledged or confessed will Messiah return to the earth” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 306). “Come, and let us return unto Jehovah; for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up. After two days will he revive us: on the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live before him. And let us know, let us follow on to know Jehovah: his going forth is sure as the morning; and he will come unto us as the rain, as the latter rain that watereth the earth” (Hos. 6:1-3). “And Jehovah uttereth his voice before his army; for his camp is very great; for he is strong that executeth his word; for the day of Jehovah is great and very terrible; and who can abide it? ...Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly; gather the people, sanctify the assembly, assemble the old men, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts; let the bridegroom go forth from his chamber, and the bride out of her closet. Let the priests, the ministers of Jehovah, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare thy people, O Jehovah, and give not thy heritage to reproach, that the nations should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the peoples, Where is their God” (Joel 2:11-17)? “And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born. In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon. And the land shall mourn, every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family of the Shimeites apart, and their wives apart; all the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart. In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness” (Zech. 12:10-13:1). “Zechariah 12, 13, and 14 are one prophetic revelation, a unit of thought that develops one theme. Chapter 13 speaks of the national cleansing of Israel from their sin. Chapter 14 describes the Second Coming and the establishment of the Kingdom. But the cleansing of Israel followed by the Second Coming and the Messianic Kingdom are all conditioned on Zechariah 12:10” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 305). “Before Israel will receive the cleansing of her sin and before Messiah will return to establish His Kingdom, Israel must first look unto (not upon, as in the KJV) the One Whom they have pierced and to plead for His return. Once they do this, then, and only then, will they receive their cleansing and begin to enjoy the blessings of the Messianic Age” (ibid., p. 306). “And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith Jehovah, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part into the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, Jehovah is my God” (Zech. 13:8-9). “and then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “Repent therefore and return, that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord; and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you [Men of Israel, vs. 12], whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time” (Acts 3:19-21). “...the future predicted repentance of the nation” (Peters, TTK, 1:362) “...the nation, as a nation, will repent” (ibid., 2:71) “The connection of this Kingdom with Jewish restoration necessitates the realization of their predicted repentance and conversion” (ibid., p. 75). “...a remarkable feature pervading all the predictions is this: that God, although men may disallow it, will so order all things that when the period of fulfillment arrives, when the time that the realization of the Covenant comes, this very nation so long stubborn and unrepentant, so long the rejecters of the Messiah, shall be repentant and believing; that after protracted correction, it will again experience mercy, and always in the land from which it was driven” (ibid., p. 80). “At the First Advent, as we showed in detail, the Kingdom was conditioned on repentance which the nation, as such, declined; at the Sec. Advent repentance is again presented as the requisite moral preparation, and it is accepted” (ibid., p. 90). “The Old Testament scriptures clearly teach that the Messianic Kingdom cannot be set up until Israel as a nation Repents” (Larkin, DT, p. 86). “The existence of God’s Mediatorial Kingdom on earth has always been conditioned. It was received as a promise by Abraham through faith; it was established in history at Sinai subject to Israel’s willingness to obey God; it was terminated on earth because of Israel’s sin; its restoration on earth is foretold by the prophets in connection with Israel’s repentance; and the initial demand of its announcement in the gospel period was, ‘The kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel’ (Mark 1:15)” (McClain, GK, p. 304). “Very little mention is made of repentance in the Epistles. Why? Because the covenants were not made with the church; they were made with Israel” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 122). “Israel will repent... when it sees Him at His Second Coming” (Showers, M, p. 47) “...the repentance of Israel... For centuries Israel’s stiff-necked rebellion against God and His Messiah has been so stubborn and persistent that nothing short of the severest persecution in Israel’s history will break that rebellion and bring the nation to genuine repentance... backing Israel so tightly into a corner that it will have no means of escaping total annihilation unless it repents. At that darkest time in all its history, the nation will repent (Zech. 12:2, 10-13:1)” (ibid., p. 108). “Zechariah... Mourning was an acknowledgement of sin” (ibid., p. 313). “Using Zechariah 12:10-13:2 as a base, McClain [in The Greatness of the Kingdom, pp. 197-198] points out six things about Israel’s repentance: first, the timing of it is ‘after the judgment upon the nations which come against Jerusalem.’ What McClain does not make clear is if this judgment is that of Armageddon or the judgment of the Gentiles following the second coming. Second, the cause will be God, who will pour out His grace upon the nation and a vision of the Messiah which will cause them to realize He is the One they had rejected. Third, this repentance ‘will be genuine, not superficial.’ Fourth, the repentance will begin with the Jews of Jerusalem and will spread to Jews throughout the land. It will include every family beginning with the House of David and ‘spreading to “all the families that remain.”’ Fifth, the results will be a national cleansing of the nation from ‘sin and uncleanness.’ Sixth, this repentance is ‘the preliminary condition for her spiritual ministry to all the nations of the earth’” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 546). “The repentance that began in Jerusalem and spread to Jews throughout the land will also spread to the Jews still in the Dispersion” (ibid., p. 559). “Feinberg added, ‘When the one who is greater than Joseph makes himself known to his brethren, they will be heartbroken with grief and contrition’ (Gen. 45:14-15)” [quoting C. L. Feinberg, ‘Zechariah,’ Wycliffe Bible Commentary, p. 909] (Horner, FI, p. 201)

Israel receives an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. “until the Spirit be poured upon us from on high, and the wilderness become a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be esteemed as a forest” (Isa. 32:15). “For I will pour water upon him that is thirsty, and streams upon the dry ground; I will pour my Spirit upon thy seed, and my blessing upon thine offspring” (Isa. 44:3) “neither will I hide my face any more from them; for I have poured out my Spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 39:29). “And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born” (Zech.

12:10). “And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit. And I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth: blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of Jehovah cometh. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those that escape, as Jehovah hath said, and among the remnant those whom Jehovah doth call” (Joel 2:28–32). “...the outpouring of the Spirit, quoted in Acts 2:17-21, which occurred on the day of Pentecost but will have its complete fulfillment in the days prior to the second coming of Christ” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 21). “For these men are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only the third hour of the day; but this is what was spoken of through the prophet Joel: “AND IT SHALL BE IN THE LAST DAYS,” God says, “THAT I WILL POUR FORTH OF MY SPIRIT UPON ALL MANKIND; AND YOUR SONS AND YOUR DAUGHTERS SHALL PROPHECY, AND YOUR YOUNG MEN SHALL SEE VISIONS, AND YOUR OLD MEN SHALL DREAM DREAMS; EVEN UPON MY BONDSLAVES, BOTH MEN AND WOMEN, I WILL IN THOSE DAYS POUR FORTH OF MY SPIRIT And they shall prophesy. AND I WILL GRANT WONDERS IN THE SKY ABOVE, AND SIGNS ON THE EARTH BENEATH, BLOOD, AND FIRE, AND VAPOR OF SMOKE. THE SUN SHALL BE TURNED INTO DARKNESS, AND THE MOON INTO BLOOD, BEFORE THE GREAT AND GLORIOUS DAY OF THE LORD SHALL COME. AND IT SHALL BE, THAT EVERYONE WHO CALLS ON THE NAME OF THE LORD SHALL BE SAVED”” (Acts 2:15–21).

Israel is forgiven and regenerated (saved). “And I will give them a heart to know me, that I am Jehovah: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God; for they shall return unto me with their whole heart” (Jer. 24:7). “In those days, and in that time, saith Jehovah, the children of Israel shall come, they and the children of Judah together; they shall go on their way weeping, and shall seek Jehovah their God. They shall inquire concerning Zion with their faces thitherward, saying, Come ye, and join yourselves to Jehovah in an everlasting covenant that shall not be forgotten” (Jer. 50:4–5). “Jeremiah 50:4-5... the New Covenant in Jeremiah 31:31-34” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 323) “Therefore by this shall the iniquity of Jacob be forgiven, and this is all the fruit of taking away his sin: that he maketh all the stones of the altar as chalkstones that are beaten in sunder, so that the Asherim and the sun-images shall rise no more” (Isa. 27:9). “Therefore thus saith Jehovah, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob: Jacob shall not now be ashamed, neither shall his face now wax pale. But when he seeth his children, the work of my hands, in the midst of him, they shall sanctify my name; yea, they shall sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and shall stand in awe of the God of Israel. They also that err in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmur shall receive instruction” (Isa. 29:22-24). “But now thus saith Jehovah that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel: Fear not, for I have redeemed thee; I have called thee by thy name, thou art mine” (Isa. 43:1). “God is Israel’s Creator and so fully intends to redeem Israel ([Isa. 43] v. 1)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 824). “I, even I, am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake; and I will not remember thy sins” (Isa. 43:25). “Behold, Jehovah hath proclaimed unto the end of the earth, Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy salvation cometh; behold, his reward is with him, and his recompense before him. And they shall call them The holy people, The redeemed of Jehovah: and thou shalt be called Sought out, A city not forsaken” (Isa. 62:11-12). “And I will give them a heart to know me, that I am Jehovah: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God; for they shall return unto me with their whole heart” (Jer. 24:7). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith Jehovah. But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people: and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know Jehovah; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith Jehovah: for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more. Thus saith Jehovah, who giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, who stirreth up the sea, so that the waves thereof roar; Jehovah of hosts is his name: If these ordinances depart from before me, saith Jehovah, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me for ever. Thus saith Jehovah: If heaven above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, then will I also cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 31:31-37). “Covenant Theology holds to the position that the New Covenant was made with the Church. Dispensationalists hold that the New Covenant was made with Israel. This is based on a literal understanding of Jeremiah 31:31-34 which clearly states that God was going to make the New Covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah. Ladd, however, believes that the New Testament has ‘reinterpreted’ this passage as a reference to the Church” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 258). “There is no evidence that the Book of Hebrews has reinterpreted the meaning of Jeremiah” (ibid., p. 259). “And I will bring Israel again to his pasture, and he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan, and his soul shall be satisfied upon the hills of Ephraim and in Gilead. In those days, and in that time, saith Jehovah, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for, and there shall be none; and the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found: for I will pardon them whom I leave as a remnant” (Jer. 50:19-20). “And I will give them one heart, and I will put a new spirit within you; and I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and will give them a heart of flesh; that they may walk in my statutes, and keep mine ordinances, and do them: and they shall be my people, and I will be their God” (Ezek. 11:19-20). “And I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you; and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep mine ordinances, and do them” (Ezek. 36:25-27). “...the Holy Spirit will indwell the Jews” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 408) “Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass that, in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. And the children of Judah and the children of Israel shall be gathered together, and they shall appoint themselves one head, and shall go up from the land; for great shall be the day of Jezreel. Say ye unto your brethren, Ammi; and to your sisters, Ruhamah” (Hos. 1:10-2:1). “Come, and let us return unto Jehovah; for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up. After two days will he revive us: on the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live before him. And let us know, let us follow on to know Jehovah: his going forth is sure as the morning; and he will come unto us as the rain, as the latter rain that watereth the earth” (Hos. 6:1-3). “The leaders of Israel will finally recognize the reason the Tribulation has fallen on them. Just as the Jewish leaders once led the nation to the rejection of the Messiahship of Jesus, they will now lead the nation to the acceptance of His messiahship by issuing the call of Hosea 6:1-3. The confession of Israel’s national sin will last for two days as the entire nation becomes regenerated and saved” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 784). “I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely; for mine anger is turned away from him. I will be as the dew unto Israel; he shall blossom as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive-tree, and his smell as Lebanon. They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the grain, and blossom as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon. Ephraim shall say, What have I to do any more with idols? I have answered, and will regard him: I am like a green fir-tree; from me is thy fruit found” (Hos. 14:4-8). “And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit. And I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth: blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of Jehovah cometh. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those that escape, as Jehovah hath said, and among the remnant those whom Jehovah doth call” (Joel 2:28-32). “Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth over the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in lovingkindness. He will again have compassion upon us; he will tread our iniquities under foot; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the lovingkindness to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old” (Mic. 7:18-20). “For then will I turn to the peoples of a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of Jehovah, to serve him with one consent. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering. In that day shalt thou not be put to shame for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me; for then I will take away out of the midst of thee thy proudly exulting ones, and thou shalt no more be haughty in my holy mountain. But I will leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall take refuge in the name of Jehovah. The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid. Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. Jehovah hath taken away thy judgments, he hath cast out thine enemy: the King of Israel, even Jehovah, is in the midst of thee; thou shalt not fear evil any more. In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, Fear thou not; O Zion, let not thy hands be slack. Jehovah thy God is in the midst of thee, a mighty one who will save; he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love; he will joy over thee with singing” (Zeph. 3:9-17). “For I do not desire, brethren, that you should be ignorant of this mystery, lest you should be wise in your own opinion, that blindness in part has happened to Israel until the fullness of the Gentiles has come in. And so all Israel will be saved, as it is written: ‘The Deliverer will come out of Zion, And He will turn away ungodliness from Jacob; For this is My covenant with them, When I take away their sins.’ Concerning the gospel they are enemies for your sake, but concerning the election they are beloved for the sake of the fathers. For the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable.” (Rom. 11:25-29). “The issue is: Will there be a national salvation of Israel? Those who answer in the affirmative do not say that it will be a different kind of salvation, for when it does happen, it will be by grace through faith. Believing in a total restoration of Israel to the land does recognize a separate program, but not a separate salvation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 200). “He will return as a result of Israel’s national salvation” (ibid., p. 541). “It is important to note that the national salvation of Israel precedes the second coming and is not subsequent to it” (ibid., p. 555). “The national salvation is to extend to every individual Jewish person, and it is to be true through succeeding generations from the time that the initial regeneration of Israel occurs. Thus, during the kingdom, the unregenerate people will be among the Gentiles only. In the entire period of the kingdom there will be no unsaved Jews. That is the reason there will be no need for one Jew to say to another, know the Lord, for they shall all know Him” (ibid., p. 586). “The national regeneration will come by means of the national confession of Isaiah 53:1-9. The nation as a nation will be saved” (ibid., p. 784). “Who hath believed our message? and to whom hath the arm of Jehovah been revealed? For he grew up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him. He was despised, and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and as one from whom men hide their face he was despised; and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows; yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and Jehovah hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was oppressed, yet when he was afflicted he opened not his mouth; as a lamb that is led to the slaughter, and as a sheep that before its shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth. By oppression and judgment he was taken away; and as for his generation, who among them considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living for the transgression of my people to whom the stroke was due? And they made his grave with the wicked, and with a rich man in his death; although he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth” (Isa. 53:1-9). “The leaders of Israel will finally recognize the reason why the Tribulation has fallen on them. Whether this will be done by the study of the Scriptures, or by the preaching of the 144,000, or via the Two Witnesses (the third sign of Jonah to which the Jews of Jerusalem had already responded), or by the ministry of Elijah, is not clearly stated. Most likely, it will be a combination of these things” (ibid.).

Israel is judged. “As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah. As for you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Go ye, serve every one his idols, and hereafter also, if ye will not hearken unto me; but my holy name shall ye no more profane with your gifts, and with your idols. For in my holy mountain, in the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah, there shall all the house of Israel, all of them, serve me in the land: there will I accept them, and there will I require your offerings, and the first-fruits of your oblations, with all your holy things. As a sweet savor will I accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country which I sware to give unto your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have polluted yourselves; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have dealt with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 20:33-44). "Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, "Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him." Then all those virgins rose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the prudent, "Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out." But the prudent answered, saying, "No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves." And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. And later the other virgins also came, saying, "Lord, lord, open up for us." But he answered and said, "Truly I say to you, I do not know you." Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour" (Matt. 25:1-13). It should be noted that many scholars believe the judgment of Israel will take place after the Tribulation, rather than during the Tribulation. For that reason, we will defer our detailed discussion of Israel's eschatological judgment to our chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.

Israel is purged. "As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah” (Ezek. 20:33-38). “For then will I turn to the peoples of a pure language, that they may all call upon the name of Jehovah, to serve him with one consent. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering. In that day shalt thou not be put to shame for all thy doings, wherein thou hast transgressed against me; for then I will take away out of the midst of thee thy proudly exulting ones, and thou shalt no more be haughty in my holy mountain. But I will leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall take refuge in the name of Jehovah. The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies; neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth; for they shall feed and lie down, and none shall make them afraid” (Zeph. 3:9-13). “For there shall be the seed of peace; the vine shall give its fruit, and the ground shall give its increase, and the heavens shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to inherit all these things” (Zech. 8:12). “And it shall come to pass in that day, saith Jehovah of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered; and also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land. And it shall come to pass that, when any shall yet prophesy, then his father and his mother that begat him shall say unto him, Thou shalt not live; for thou speakest lies in the name of Jehovah; and his father and his mother that begat him shall thrust him through when he prophesieth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the prophets shall be ashamed every one of his vision, when he prophesieth; neither shall they wear a hairy mantle to deceive: but he shall say, I am no prophet, I am a tiller of the ground; for I have been made a bondman from my youth. And one shall say unto him, What are these wounds between thine arms? Then he shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends” (Zech. 13:2-6). “...the false prophets who have led Israel astray during the course of the Tribulation will be executed... Often the parents of the false prophets will themselves be the ones to carry out the execution (vv. 2-3)... the scars on their bodies, a symbol of their prophetic office” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 334) “And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith Jehovah, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part into the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, Jehovah is my God” (Zech. 13:8-9). “In the Holocaust, under Hitler, one-third of the world Jewish population died. Under the fierce persecution of the Antichrist, controlled and energized by Satan, two-thirds of the Jewish population will die. This will be the largest and most intense persecution of the Jews ever known in Jewish history” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 774). “As Zechariah 13:8-9 has pointed out, two-thirds of the Jewish population will be destroyed in the persecutions of the Tribulation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 791). “Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, will suddenly come to his temple; and the messenger of the covenant, whom ye desire, behold, he cometh, saith Jehovah of hosts. But who can abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner’s fire, and like fuller’s soap: and he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi, and refine them as gold and silver; and they shall offer unto Jehovah offerings in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto Jehovah, as in the days of old, and as in ancient years. And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against the false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the sojourner from his right, and fear not me, saith Jehovah of hosts. For I, Jehovah, change not; therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed” (Mal. 3:1-6). “It is evident that the people are to come into divine judgments and many will be ‘purged out’ (Ezek. 20:37-38), and ‘so all Israel [that portion accepted of God] shall be saved’ (Rom 11:26-27)” (Chafer, ST, 4:312). “Even today there are many Jewish people who care little or nothing about the ancient promises of Jehovah to Israel; as one wealthy Jew in southern California once expressed himself: ‘Los Angeles is good enough for me.’ Such members of the nation will be gathered out of the lands where they dwell and be dealt with judicially” (McClain, GK, p. 199). “Ezekiel [20:33-44] draws a simile with the Exodus and the Wilderness Wanderings. The judgment declared upon Israel at Kadesh Barnea was a period of forty years, during which time the rebels were purged out. By the same token, the Tribulation as a judgment is a period of time when once again the rebels are to be purged out. The judgment at Kadesh Barnea was in the wilderness; in the Tribulation, the Jews are in the wilderness again (Rev 12:6). This passage is better understood as referring to the judgment of the Great Tribulation itself, which will be especially severe for Israel (Matt. 24:15-22), rather than a special judgment of Israel following the second coming” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 540).

Israel pleads for Christ's return. “And they shall confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, in their trespass which they trespassed against me, and also that, because they walked contrary unto me, I also walked contrary unto them, and brought them into the land of their enemies: if then their uncircumcised heart be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity; then will I remember my covenant with Jacob; and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land” (Lev. 26:40-42). “Something to notice is that the word iniquity is in the singular and that it is specific. There is one specific iniquity committed by the fathers and continued by them which Israel must confess before she can begin to enjoy all of the benefits of the Abrahamic Covenant” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 781). “O God, the nations are come into thine inheritance; Thy holy temple have they defiled; They have laid Jerusalem in heaps. The dead bodies of thy servants have they given to be food unto the birds of the heavens, The flesh of thy saints unto the beasts of the earth. Their blood have they shed like water round about Jerusalem; And there was none to bury them. We are become a reproach to our neighbors, A scoffing and derision to them that are round about us. How long, O Jehovah? wilt thou be angry for ever? Shall thy jealousy burn like fire? Pour out thy wrath upon the nations that know thee not, And upon the kingdoms that call not upon thy name. For they have devoured Jacob, And laid waste his habitation. Remember not against us the iniquities of our forefathers: Let thy tender mercies speedily meet us; For we are brought very low. Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name; And deliver us, and forgive our sins, for thy name's sake. Wherefore should the nations say, Where is their God? Let the avenging of the blood of thy servants which is shed Be known among the nations in our sight. Let the sighing of the prisoner come before thee: According to the greatness of thy power preserve thou those that are appointed to death; And render unto our neighbors sevenfold into their bosom Their reproach, wherewith they have reproached thee, O Lord. So we thy people and sheep of thy pasture Will give thee thanks for ever: We will show forth thy praise to all generations” (Ps. 79:1-13). “Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, Thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; Thou that sittest above the cherubim, shine forth. Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh, stir up thy might, And come to save us. Turn us again, O God; And cause thy face to shine, and we shall be saved. O Jehovah God of hosts, How long wilt thou be angry against the prayer of thy people? Thou hast fed them with the bread of tears, And given them tears to drink in large measure. Thou makest us a strife unto our neighbors; And our enemies laugh among themselves. Turn us again, O God of hosts; And cause thy face to shine, and we shall be saved. Thou broughtest a vine out of Egypt: Thou didst drive out the nations, and plantedst it. Thou preparedst room before it, And it took deep root, and filled the land. The mountains were covered with the shadow of it, And the boughs thereof were like cedars of God. It sent out its branches unto the sea, And its shoots unto the River. Why hast thou broken down its walls, So that all they that pass by the way do pluck it? The boar out of the wood doth ravage it, And the wild beasts of the field feed on it. Turn again, we beseech thee, O God of hosts: Look down from heaven, and behold, and visit this vine, And the stock which thy right hand planted, And the branch that thou madest strong for thyself. It is burned with fire, it is cut down: They perish at the rebuke of thy countenance. Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, Upon the son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself. So shall we not go back from thee: Quicken thou us, and we will call upon thy name. Turn us again, O Jehovah God of hosts; Cause thy face to shine, and we shall be saved” (Ps. 80:1–19). “The specific person they are pleading for is the One on God’s right hand (v. 17), referred to as the son of man. This is none other than Jesus the Messiah, Who has been sitting at the right hand of God the Father ever since the ascension from the Mount of Olives after He was rejected by Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 338). “Oh that thou wouldest rend the heavens, that thou wouldest come down, that the mountains might quake at thy presence, as when fire kindleth the brushwood, and the fire causeth the waters to boil; to make thy name known to thine adversaries, that the nations may tremble at thy presence! When thou didst terrible things which we looked not for, thou camest down, the mountains quaked at thy presence. For from of old men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen a God besides thee, who worketh for him that waiteth for him. Thou meetest him that rejoiceth and worketh righteousness, those that remember thee in thy ways: behold, thou wast wroth, and we sinned: in them have we been of long time; and shall we be saved? For we are all become as one that is unclean, and all our righteousnesses are as a polluted garment: and we all do fade as a leaf; and our iniquities, like the wind, take us away. And there is none that calleth upon thy name, that stirreth up himself to take hold of thee; for thou hast hid thy face from us, and hast consumed us by means of our iniquities. But now, O Jehovah, thou art our Father; we are the clay, and thou our potter; and we all are the work of thy hand. Be not wroth very sore, O Jehovah, neither remember iniquity for ever: behold, look, we beseech thee, we are all thy people. Thy holy cities are become a wilderness, Zion is become a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolation. Our holy and our beautiful house, where our fathers praised thee, is burned with fire; and all our pleasant places are laid waste. Wilt thou refrain thyself for these things, O Jehovah? wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us very sore” (Isa. 64:1-12)? “And Jehovah said unto me, Backsliding Israel hath showed herself more righteous than treacherous Judah. Go, and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, Return, thou backsliding Israel, saith Jehovah; I will not look in anger upon you; for I am merciful, saith Jehovah, I will not keep anger for ever. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against Jehovah thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith Jehovah. Return, O backsliding children, saith Jehovah; for I am a husband unto you: and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion: and I will give you shepherds according to my heart, who shall feed you with knowledge and understanding. And it shall come to pass, when ye are multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, saith Jehovah, they shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of Jehovah; neither shall it come to mind; neither shall they remember it; neither shall they miss it; neither shall it be made any more. At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of Jehovah; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of Jehovah, to Jerusalem: neither shall they walk any more after the stubbornness of their evil heart. In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I gave for an inheritance unto your fathers” (Jer. 3:11-18). “All of these blessings are conditioned by verse 13 where they must acknowledge or confess one specific iniquity which they committed against Jehovah their God” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 781). “I will go and return to my place, till they acknowledge their offence, and seek my face: in their affliction they will seek me earnestly” (Hos. 5:15). “He returned to heaven at the ascension from the Mount of Olives. He will not come back to the earth until the offense that caused Him to return to heaven is acknowledged or confessed... According to this verse, only when this offense is acknowledged or confessed will Christ come back to the earth” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 782). “And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: and also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit. And I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth: blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of Jehovah cometh. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of Jehovah shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those that escape, as Jehovah hath said, and among the remnant those whom Jehovah doth call” (Joel 2:28-32). “And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born. In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem, as the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon. And the land shall mourn, every family apart; the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart; the family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart; the family of the Shimeites apart, and their wives apart; all the families that remain, every family apart, and their wives apart. In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for sin and for uncleanness” (Zech. 12:10–13:1). “Before Israel will receive the cleansing of her sin, and before Christ will return to establish His kingdom, Israel must first look unto the One whom they have pierced and must plead for His return. Once they do this, then, and only then, will they receive their cleansing and begin to enjoy the blessings of the Messianic Age” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 782). “The pleading of the Jews for the Messiah to come and save them is the subject of much revelation. It is described in Zechariah 12:10-13:1” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 333). “Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow, saith Jehovah of hosts: smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered; and I will turn my hand upon the little ones. And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith Jehovah, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part into the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, Jehovah is my God” (Zech. 13:7-9). “God’s Shepherd, the Messiah, was smitten and so His sheep, Israel, were scattered throughout the world” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 335). “O

Jerusalem, Jerusalem, who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were unwilling. Behold, your house is being left to you desolate! For I say to you, from now on you shall not see Me until you say, “Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord”” (Matt. 23:37–39)! “Speaking to the Jewish leadership, Christ reiterated His original desire to gather them if they would only accept Him (v. 37). Because of their rejection of His messiahship, in place of being gathered they are going to be scattered. Their house, the Jewish Temple, will be left desolate and will be destroyed with nothing remaining (v. 38). He then declares that they will not see Him again until they say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord (v.39). This is a quotation of a messianic Psalm, Psalm 118:26” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 783). “Blessed be he that cometh in the name of Jehovah: We have blessed you out of the house of Jehovah” (Ps. 118:26). “Because of their rejection of His Messiahship, instead of being gathered, they are going to be scattered. Their house, the Jewish Temple, will be left desolate and will be destroyed, with nothing remaining (v. 38)... Blessed is He that comes in the name of the Lord. This is a messianic greeting. It will mean their acceptance of the Messiahship of Jesus” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 307). “In [Matt. 23] verses 37-39, Jesus also laid down the precondition to the Second Coming, in that He will not return until the Jewish leaders ask Him to return” (ibid., p. 621). “Repent therefore and return, that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord; and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you [Men of Israel, vs. 12], whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time” (Acts 3:19-21). “He will not return until the leadership of Israel leads the nation to the acceptance of that Messiahship” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 764). “The second coming of Christ does have a major precondition that must be met before Christ will return to establish the Messianic Kingdom. What this condition is can be deduced from five passages of Scripture” [These five passages are included in the passages quoted above—ed.] (ibid., p. 781). “Jesus will not come back to the earth until the Jews and the Jewish leaders ask Him to come back. Just as the Jewish leaders led the nation to the rejection of the Messiahship of Jesus, they must some day lead the nation to the acceptance of the Messiahship of Jesus. This, then, is the twofold basis of the second coming of Christ: Israel must confess her national sin and then plead for Messiah to return, to mourn for Him as one mourns for an only son. Until these two things happen, there will be no second coming” (ibid., p. 783). “It has been pointed out previously when speaking of the basis of the second coming of Christ that there are two facets to this basis: first, there must be the confession of Israel’s national sin (Lev. 26:40-42; Jer. 3:11-18; Hos 5:15) and, second, a pleading for the Messiah to return (Zech. 12:10; Matt. 23:37-39)” (ibid., p. 784). “It is this fact that explains Satan’s war against the Jews throughout history in general and during the Tribulation in particular... If Satan can succeed in destroying the Jews once and for all before they come to national repentance, then Jesus will not come back and Satan’s career is eternally safe... Anti-Semitism in any form, active or passive, whether it is racial, ethnic, national, economic, political, religious or theological, is all part of the satanic strategy to avoid the Second Coming” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 307). “This, then, is the two fold basis of the Second Coming: Israel must confess her national sin, and then plead for Messiah to return, to mourn for Him as one mourns for an only son” (ibid.). “The pleading of Israel for the Messiah to return will not be confined to the Jews of Bozrah, but will include the Jews still in Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 333). “In conclusion, during the fifth stage, Israel as a nation will be regenerated and saved after two days of national confession of sin. On the third day, they will plead for the Second Coming” (ibid., p. 339).

All nations gather against Israel. “And now many nations are assembled against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye see our desire upon Zion. But they know not the thoughts of Jehovah, neither understand they his counsel; for he hath gathered them as the sheaves to the threshing-floor. Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion; for I will make thy horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass; and thou shalt beat in pieces many peoples: and I will devote their gain unto Jehovah, and their substance unto the Lord of the whole earth. Now shalt thou gather thyself in troops, O daughter of troops: he hath laid siege against us; they shall smite the judge of Israel with a rod upon the cheek” (Mic. 4:11–5:1). “The burden of the word of Jehovah concerning Israel. Thus saith Jehovah, who stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man within him: behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of reeling unto all the peoples round about, and upon Judah also shall it be in the siege against Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all the peoples; all that burden themselves with it shall be sore wounded; and all the nations of the earth shall be gathered together against it. In that day, saith Jehovah, I will smite every horse with terror, and his rider with madness; and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the peoples with blindness. And the chieftains of Judah shall say in their heart, The inhabitants of Jerusalem are my strength in Jehovah of hosts their God. In that day will I make the chieftains of Judah like a pan of fire among wood, and like a flaming torch among sheaves; and they shall devour all the peoples round about, on the right hand and on the left; and they of Jerusalem shall yet again dwell in their own place, even in Jerusalem. Jehovah also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem be not magnified above Judah. In that day shall Jehovah defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and he that is feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of Jehovah before them. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem" (Zech. 12:1-9). "Behold, a day of Jehovah cometh, when thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee. For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city" (Zech. 14:1-2). "And the sixth angel poured out his bowl upon the great river, the Euphrates; and its water was dried up, that the way might be prepared for the kings from the east. And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs; for they are spirits of demons, performing signs, which go out to the kings of the whole world, to gather them together for the war of the great day of God, the Almighty. ("Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who stays awake and keeps his garments, lest he walk about naked and men see his shame.") And they gathered them together to the place which in Hebrew is called HarMagedon" (Rev. 16:12-16). "The capture of Jerusalem by the forces of the Antichrist will not come easily. God will greatly energize the Jews to withstand the attack to a great degree, causing heavy losses to the armies of the Antichrist" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 328). "Jewish women will be subjected to massive rapes (Zech. 14:2)" (ibid., p. 330)

The campaign of Armageddon commences. "For I have sworn by myself, saith Jehovah, that Bozrah shall become an astonishment, a reproach, a waste, and a curse; and all the cities thereof shall be perpetual wastes. I have heard tidings from Jehovah, and an ambassador is sent among the nations, saying, Gather yourselves together, and come against her, and rise up to the battle" (Jer. 49:13-14). "And the multitide of all the nations that fight against Ariel, even all that fight against her and her stronghold, and that distress her, shall be as a dream, a vision of the night. And it shall be as when a hungry man dreameth, and, behold, he eateth; but he awaketh, and his soul is empty: or as when a thirsty man dreameth, and, behold, he drinketh; but he awaketh, and, behold, he is faint, and his soul hath appetite: so shall the multitude of all the nations be, that fight against mount Zion” (Isa. 29:7-8) “Behold, the name of Jehovah cometh from far, burning with his anger, and in thick rising smoke: his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue is as a devouring fire; and his breath is as an overflowing stream, that reacheth even unto the neck, to sift the nations with the sieve of destruction: and a bridle that causeth to err shall be in the jaws of the peoples” (Isa. 30:27-28). “Come, and let us return unto Jehovah; for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up. After two days will he revive us: on the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live before him. And let us know, let us follow on to know Jehovah: his going forth is sure as the morning; and he will come unto us as the rain, as the latter rain that watereth the earth” (Hos. 6:1-3). “With the armies of the Antichrist at the city of Bozrah, the Campaign of Armageddon will begin its last three days, according to Hosea 6:1-3” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 331). “Proclaim ye this among the nations; prepare war; stir up the mighty men; let all the men of war draw near, let them come up. Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong. Haste ye, and come, all ye nations round about, and gather yourselves together: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Jehovah. Let the nations bestir themselves, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the nations round about. Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, tread ye; for the winepress is full, the vats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining. And Jehovah will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but Jehovah will be a refuge unto his people, and a stronghold to the children of Israel” (Joel 3:9-16). “Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence done to the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land” (Joel 3:19). “The burden of the word of Jehovah concerning Israel. Thus saith Jehovah, who stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man within him: behold, I will make Jerusalem a cup of reeling unto all the peoples round about, and upon Judah also shall it be in the siege against Jerusalem. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all the peoples; all that burden themselves with it shall be sore wounded; and all the nations of the earth shall be gathered together against it. In that day, saith Jehovah, I will smite every horse with terror, and his rider with madness; and I will open mine eyes upon the house of Judah, and will smite every horse of the peoples with blindness. And the chieftains of Judah shall say in their heart, The inhabitants of Jerusalem are my strength in Jehovah of hosts their God. In that day will I make the chieftains of Judah like a pan of fire among wood, and like a flaming torch among sheaves; and they shall devour all the peoples round about, on the right hand and on the left; and they of Jerusalem shall yet again dwell in their own place, even in Jerusalem. Jehovah also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem be not magnified above Judah. In that day shall Jehovah defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and he that is feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of Jehovah before them. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem” (Zech. 12:1-9). “Behold, a day of Jehovah cometh, when thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee. For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Then shall Jehovah go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south. And ye shall flee by the valley of my mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azel; yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah; and Jehovah my God shall come, and all the holy ones with thee. And it shall come to pass in that day, that there shall not be light; the bright ones shall withdraw themselves: but it shall be one day which is known unto Jehovah; not day, and not night; but it shall come to pass, that at evening time there shall be light” (Zech. 14:1-7). “And this shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite all the peoples that have warred against Jerusalem: their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their sockets, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great tumult from Jehovah shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbor, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbor” (Zech. 14:12-14) “saying, ‘We give Thee thanks, O Lord God, the Almighty, who art and who wast, because Thou hast taken Thy great power and hast begun to reign. And the nations were enraged, and Thy wrath came, and the time came for the dead to be judged, and the time to give their reward to Thy bond-servants the prophets and to the saints and to those who fear Thy name, the small and the great, and to destroy those who destroy the earth” (Rev. 11:17-18). “And the sixth angel poured out his bowl upon the great river, the Euphrates; and its water was dried up, that the way might be prepared for the kings from the east. And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet, three unclean spirits like frogs; for they are spirits of demons, performing signs, which go out to the kings of the whole world, to gather them together for the war of the great day of God, the Almighty. (“Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who stays awake and keeps his garments, lest he walk about naked and men see his shame.”) And they gathered them together to the place which in Hebrew is called Har-magedon” (Rev. 16:12-16). “Demons will be used to help gather the Gentile armies to war against the Jews in the Armageddon War (Rev 16:13-14)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 849). “If the question be raised as to why this fateful gathering should take place in the land of Palestine, the obvious answer is that, according to the record of chapters 6-19, the only area of successful open resistance to the beast remaining on earth appears in the 144,000 protected by the divine seal (7:1-8); and these are Israelites” (McClain, GK, p. 478). “Except for these [144,000], all other open opposition has been abolished by the beast. The two great witnesses have been killed (11:7). The apostate church has been utterly destroyed (17:16). What is left of the nation of Israel has been forced to take refuge in the wilderness (12:14). All others, whether Jew or Gentile, who rejected the mark of the beast have been martyred (13:15)... that land and city where down through the times of divine revelation most of the troubles of Satan have been centered” (ibid., p. 479) “At the conclusion of that period [the

Tribulation], however, there will be a revolt against his [Antichrist's] authority and a coalition of nations referred to as 'the kings from the East' (Rev. 16:12) will move from east of the Euphrates River into the Middle East to seek to overthrow that ruler. Before the battle can be joined, these two great powers will be 'gathered together to make war against the rider on the horse and his army' (19:19). Evidently the sign of the Son of Man, that will appear in the heavens (Matt. 24:30) and herald the second advent of Jesus Christ to the earth, will cause these two—who were preparing to fight for world supremacy—to ally their forces and try to prevent the Lord's return" (Pentecost, TKC, p. 310). "Revelation 16:12-16 says the armies of the nations will not even begin to gather in Israel for Armageddon until the sixth bowl is poured out" (Showers, M, p. 47) "...they will be gathered together to make war when Christ comes out of heaven... Satan, the Antichrist, and the False Prophet... Apparently the presence of these three persons with supernatural powers will cause the kings and military men to react boldly in response to the cosmic disturbances after the sixth bowl and in contrast to their cowardly response to the cosmic disturbances of the sixth seal" (ibid., p. 69). "While the term 'Battle of Armageddon' has been commonly used, it is really a misnomer, for more than one battle will be taking place. For this reason, many prophetic teachers have stopped employing that term and are using the term 'Campaign of Armageddon,' as in this chapter. But this, too, is a misnomer because there will be no fighting in Armageddon itself; all of the fighting will take place elsewhere. A more biblical name for this final conflict is found in the closing words of verse 14: the war of the great day of God, the Almighty. This is a more accurate description of the nature and extent of this final conflict" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 311). "What is known as the Valley of Armageddon in Christian circles is actually the biblical Valley of Jezreel. The term Armageddon is never applied to the valley itself, but only to the mount at the western end. Here, in this large valley of Lower Galilee, the armies of the world will gather for the purpose of destroying all the Jews still living" (ibid., p. 312). "It should be noted that the passage says nothing of a battle in this valley, for no fighting will take place here. The Valley of Jezreel, guarded by the Mountain of Megiddo, will merely serve as the gathering ground for the armies of the Antichrist" (ibid.). "To summarize the study of the second stage of the Campaign of Armageddon, while the Antichrist will move his forces into the Valley of Jezreel, his enemies will take the opportunity to destroy the city of Babylon quickly and suddenly. According to Isaiah 13:3, they will be Gentile believers of the Tribulation. Just prior to this, however, the Jews will be warned to flee out of Babylon. This they will do, and will make their way to Jerusalem to report to the Jews who are there. This sudden destruction of the world political and economic capital will cause great consternation on the earth, but not in Heaven. For when Babylon's destruction comes, it will signal that the Second Coming will occur soon, and along with it the regeneration and restoration of Israel" (ibid., p. 327). "The burden of Babylon, which Isaiah the son of Amoz did see. Set ye up an ensign upon the bare mountain, lift up the voice unto them, wave the hand, that they may go into the gates of the nobles. I have commanded my consecrated ones, yea, I have called my mighty men for mine anger, even my proudly exulting ones" (Isa. 13:1-3). "...the main purpose of the Campaign of Armageddon is the annihilation of the Jews" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 330) "At the end of the Tribulation, at the battle of Armageddon and after it, the following will occur: (1) All nations of the earth will surround Jerusalem. (2) Jerusalem will be captured. (3) A remnant will flee through the valley created by an earthquake. (4) Christ will return to the Mount of Olives. (5) Christ will judge the nations. (6) Christ will restore the 'house of David.' (7) Christ will reign 'over the whole earth.'"... This entire event is described as the day of the Lord (2 Peter 3:10)" (Geisler, ST, 4:609).

The city (political and economic) Babylon the Great falls. "The burden of Babylon, which the son of Amoz did see. Set ye up an ensign upon the bare mountain, lift up the voice unto them, wave the hand, that they may go into the gates of the nobles. I have commanded my consecrated ones, yea, I have called my mighty men for mine anger, even my proudly exulting ones. The noise of a multitude in the mountains, as of a great people! the noise of a tumult of the kingdoms of the nations gathered together! Jehovah of hosts is mustering the host for the battle. They come from a far country, from the uttermost part of heaven, even Jehovah, and the weapons of his indignation, to destroy the whole land" (Isa. 13:1-5). "Wail ye; for the day of Jehovah is at hand; as destruction from the Almighty shall it come. Therefore shall all hands be feeble, and every heart of man shall melt: and they shall be dismayed; pangs and sorrows shall take hold of them; they shall be in pain as a woman in travail: they shall look in amazement one at another; their faces shall be faces of flame. Behold, the day of Jehovah cometh, cruel, with wrath and fierce anger; to make the land a desolation, and to destroy the sinners thereof out of it. For the stars of heaven and the constellations thereof shall not give their light; the sun shall be darkened in its going forth, and the moon shall not cause its light to shine. And I will punish the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity: and I will cause the arrogance of the proud to cease, and will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible. I will make a man more rare than fine gold, even a man than the pure gold of Ophir. Therefore I will make the heavens to tremble, and the earth shall be shaken out of its place, in the wrath of Jehovah of hosts, and in the day of his fierce anger. And it shall come to pass, that as the chased roe, and as sheep that no man gathereth, they shall turn every man to his own people, and shall flee every man to his own land. Every one that is found shall be thrust through; and every one that is taken shall fall by the sword. Their infants also shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes; their houses shall be rifled, and their wives ravished. Behold, I will stir up the Medes against them, who shall not regard silver, and as for gold, they shall not delight in it. And their bows shall dash the young men in pieces; and they shall have no pity on the fruit of the womb; their eye shall not spare children. And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldeans' pride, shall be as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. It shall never be inhabited, neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither shall the Arabian pitch tent there; neither shall shepherds make their flocks to lie down there. But wild beasts of the desert shall lie there; and their houses shall be full of doleful creatures; and ostriches shall dwell there, and wild goats shall dance there. And wolves shall cry in their castles, and jackals in the pleasant palaces: and her time is near to come, and her days shall not be prolonged" (Isa. 13:6–22). "For Jehovah will have compassion on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the sojourner shall join himself with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob. And the peoples shall take them, and bring them to their place; and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of Jehovah for servants and for handmaids: and they shall take them captive whose captives they were; and they shall rule over their oppressors" (Isa. 14:1–2). "For, lo, I will stir up and cause to come up against Babylon a company of great nations from the north country; and they shall set themselves in array against her; from thence she shall be taken: their arrows shall be as of an expert mighty man; none shall return in vain. And Chaldea shall be a prey: all that prey upon her shall be satisfied, saith Jehovah" (Jer. 50:9–10). "Go up against the land of Merathaim, even against it, and against the inhabitants of Pekod: slay and utterly destroy after them, saith Jehovah, and do according to all that I have commanded thee. A sound of battle is in the land, and of great destruction. How is the hammer of the whole earth cut asunder and broken! how is Babylon become a desolation among the nations! I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also taken, O Babylon, and thou wast not aware: thou art found, and also caught, because thou hast striven against Jehovah. Jehovah hath opened his armory, and hath brought forth the weapons of his indignation; for the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, hath a work to do in the land of the Chaldeans. Come against her from the utmost border; open her store-houses; cast her up as heaps, and destroy her utterly; let nothing of her be left. Slay all her bullocks; let them go down to the slaughter: woe unto them! for their day is come, the time of their visitation” (Jer. 50:21–27). “Therefore the wild beasts of the desert with the wolves shall dwell there, and the ostriches shall dwell therein: and it shall be no more inhabited for ever; neither shall it be dwelt in from generation to generation. As when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah and the neighbor cities thereof, saith Jehovah, so shall no man dwell there, neither shall any son of man sojourn therein” (Jer. 50:39–40). “Behold, a people cometh from the north; and a great nation and many kings shall be stirred up from the uttermost parts of the earth. They lay hold on bow and spear; they are cruel, and have no mercy; their voice roareth like the sea; and they ride upon horses, every one set in array, as a man to the battle, against thee, O daughter of Babylon” (Jer. 50:41–42). “Therefore hear ye the counsel of Jehovah, that he hath taken against Babylon; and his purposes, that he hath purposed against the land of the Chaldeans: Surely they shall drag them away, even the little ones of the flock; surely he shall make their habitation desolate over them. At the noise of the taking of Babylon the earth trembleth, and the cry is heard among the nations” (Jer. 50:45–46). “For Israel is not forsaken, nor Judah, of his God, of Jehovah of hosts; though their land is full of guilt against the Holy One of Israel. Flee out of the midst of Babylon, and save every man his life; be not cut off in her iniquity: for it is the time of Jehovah’s vengeance; he will render unto her a recompense” (Jer. 51:5–6). “Babylon hath been a golden cup in Jehovah’s hand, that made all the earth drunken: the nations have drunk of her wine; therefore the nations are mad. Babylon is suddenly fallen and destroyed: wail for her; take balm for her pain, if so be she may be healed. We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed: forsake her, and let us go every one into his own country; for her judgment reacheth unto heaven, and is lifted up even to the skies” (Jer. 51:7–9). “And I will render unto Babylon and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea all their evil that they have done in Zion in your sight, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 51:24). “Behold, I am against thee, O destroying mountain, saith Jehovah, which destroyest all the earth; and I will stretch out my hand upon thee, and roll thee down from the rocks, and will make thee a burnt mountain. And they shall not take of thee a stone for a corner, nor a stone for foundations; but thou shalt be desolate for ever, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 51:25–26). “And the land trembleth and is in pain; for the purposes of Jehovah against Babylon do stand, to make the land of Babylon a desolation, without inhabitant” (Jer. 51:29). “The violence done to me and to my flesh be upon Babylon, shall the inhabitant of Zion say; and, My blood be upon the inhabitants of Chaldea, shall Jerusalem say. Therefore thus saith Jehovah: Behold, I will plead thy cause, and take vengeance for thee; and I will dry up her sea, and make her fountain dry” (Jer. 51:35–36). “My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and save yourselves every man from the fierce anger of Jehovah” (Jer. 51:45). “Then the heavens and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for joy over Babylon; for the destroyers shall come unto her from the north, saith Jehovah. As Babylon hath caused the slain of Israel to fall, so at Babylon shall fall the slain of all the land” (Jer. 51:48–49). “Then the angel that talked with me went forth, and said unto me, Lift up now thine eyes, and see what is this that goeth forth. And I said, What is it? And he said, This is the ephah that goeth forth. He said moreover, This is their appearance in all the land and, behold, there was lifted up a talent of lead; and this is a woman sitting in the midst of the ephah. And he said, This is Wickedness: and he cast her down into the midst of the ephah; and he cast the weight of lead upon the mouth thereof. Then lifted I up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, there came forth two women, and the wind was in their wings; now they had wings like the wings of a stork; and they lifted up the ephah between earth and heaven. Then said I to the angel that talked with me, Whither do these bear the ephah? And he said unto me, To build her a house in the land of Shinar: and when it is prepared, she shall be set there in her own place” (Zech. 5:5–11). “After these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was illumined with his glory. And he cried out with a mighty voice, saying, Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! And she has become a dwelling place of demons and a prison of every unclean spirit, and a prison of every unclean and hateful bird. For all the nations have drunk of the wine of the passion of her immorality, and the kings of the earth have committed acts of immorality with her, and the merchants of the earth have become rich by the wealth of her sensuality.’ And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that you may not participate in her sins and that you may not receive of her plagues; for her sins have piled up as high as heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities. Pay her back even as she has paid, and give back to her double according to her deeds; in the cup which she has mixed, mix twice as much for her. To the degree that she glorified herself and lived sensuously, to the same degree give her torment and mourning; for she says in her heart, "I sit as a queen and I am not a widow, and will never see mourning." For this reason in one day her plagues will come, pestilence and mourning and famine, and she will be burned up with fire; for the Lord God who judges her is strong. And the kings of the earth, who committed acts of immorality and lived sensuously with her, will weep and lament over her when they see the smoke of her burning, standing at a distance because of the fear of her torment, saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, Babylon, the strong city! For in one hour your judgment has come." And the merchants of the earth weep and mourn over her, because no one buys their cargoes any more; cargoes of gold and silver and precious stones and pearls and fine linen and purple and silk and scarlet, and every kind of citron wood and every article of ivory and every article made from very costly wood and bronze and iron and marble, and cinnamon and spice and incense and perfume and frankincense and wine and olive oil and fine flour and wheat and cattle and sheep, and cargoes of horses and chariots and slaves and human lives. And the fruit you long for has gone from you, and all things that were luxurious and splendid have passed away from you and men will no longer find them. The merchants of these things, who became rich from her, will stand at a distance because of the fear of her torment, weeping and mourning, saying, Woe, woe, the great city, she who was clothed in fine linen and purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls; for in one hour such great wealth has been laid waste! And every shipmaster and every passenger and sailor, and as many as make their living by the sea, stood at a distance, and were crying out as they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, "What city is like the great city?" And they threw dust on their heads and were crying out, weeping and mourning, saying, "Woe, woe, the great city, in which all who had ships at sea became rich by her wealth, for in one hour she has been laid waste!" Rejoice over her, O heaven, and you saints and apostles and prophets, because God has pronounced judgment for you against her.' And a strong angel took up a stone like a great millstone and threw it into the sea, saying, "Thus will Babylon, the great city, be thrown down with violence, and will not be found any longer. And the sound of harpists and musicians and flute-players and trumpeters will not be heard in you any longer; and no craftsman of any craft will be found in you any longer; and the sound of a mill will not be heard in you any longer; and the light of a lamp will not shine in you any longer; and the voice of the bridegroom and bride will not be heard in you any longer; for your merchants were the great men of the earth, because all the nations were deceived by your sorcery. And in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints and of all who have been slain on the earth” (Rev. 18:1-24). “Political Babylon (Second Half [of the Tribulation]) - [Rev.] 18:1-24” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 9) “Shinar, which is the same as Babylonia... Throughout the second half of the Tribulation, Babylon will be both the center of world economy and the world political center” (ibid., p. 314). “Isaiah 13:1-5... The ones destroying Babylon are referred to as God’s consecrated ones. God will use Gentile believers to destroy Babylon” (ibid.). “Isaiah 13:6-14:23... This prophecy of Babylon’s destruction has never been fulfilled in the manner required by the text” (ibid., p. 315). “The context of Isaiah 13:6-22 clearly puts the destruction of Babylon, announced in verses 1-5, within the scope and time of the Day of Jehovah, a reference to the Great Tribulation” (ibid.). “...it would appear that while the Antichrist is meeting his forces in the Valley of Jezreel, his enemies take the opportunity to gather and destroy his capital city” (ibid., p. 321). “Prior to the sudden and great destruction of Babylon, the Jews will be given a warning to leave Babylon. They will succeed in their escape and will make their way to Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 322). “These prophecies of the destruction of Babylon have never been fulfilled in the manner required by the statements of Scripture. As Daniel 5-6 shows, the Medes and the Persians conquered Babylon intact with Belshazzar being the only casualty. Babylon as a city continued to exist and Daniel was even given a position of authority within the city. The Babylon of past history slowly died out and became a ghost town” (ibid.). “All these things point to the fact that the city of Babylon is to suffer a destruction at the time of Israel’s regeneration. This requires Babylon’s destruction to come during the Campaign of Armageddon. This in turn requires the city of Babylon to be rebuilt” (ibid., p. 323). “...political and economic Babylon that will rule the world for 3 1/2 years” (ibid.) “[Rev.] 18:1-3:... Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, and is become a habitation of demons, and a hold of every unclean spirit... This will be the place of demonic abode and confinement during the Messianic Age (vv. 1-2)... The reason for this severe judgment of Babylon will be the global political (kings of the earth) and economic (merchants of the earth) corruption originating in this city because of the Antichrist’s rule (v. 3)” (ibid., p. 324). “Revelation 18:4-5:... a call to the Jews to flee the city prior to Babylon’s destruction: ... Come forth, my people, out of her” (ibid.) “[Rev.] 18:9-10:... kings... standing afar off for the fear of her torment... These are the seven kings who have co-reigned with the Antichrist and submitted their authority to the Antichrist, the king of Babylon. Whatever power or authority they held, was held by the grace of Babylon... They will be able to see the smoke of Babylon afar off, for they will see it from the Valley of Jezreel in Israel” (ibid., p. 325). “[Rev.] 18:11-17a... merchants... Babylon will become the economic center of the world, the center of business and world trade” (ibid.) “[Rev.] 18:17b-19:... shipmaster... 18:20: ... Rejoice over her, you heaven, and ye saints, and ye apostles, and ye prophets; for God has judged your judgment on her. There will be lamenting on the earth by kings, merchants, and transporters. But in Heaven there will be three groups rejoicing: saints, apostles, and prophets. The destruction of Babylon will mark the soon return of the Messiah” (ibid., p. 326). “[Rev.] 18:21-24:... a strong angel took up a stone as it were a great millstone and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with a mighty fall shall Babylon, the great city, be cast down, and shall be found no more at all... Jeremiah commanded a scroll-wrapped stone to be thrown into the Euphrates River to symbolize the sinking of the city of Babylon. Now another person, an angel, also casts a stone, the size of a millstone, into the sea to depict how totally Babylon will disappear so as not to be found any more (v. 21). Babylon will cease to be the world center and capital (vv. 22-23) because she was guilty of the blood of the prophets (e.g. the Two Witnesses) and the slaughter of the Tribulation saints (v. 24)” (ibid.).

Chapter 23: The Second Coming of the King

The Second Coming of the King is the focal point of Bible prophecy. At Christ's Second Coming, Jesus and His bride will be spectacularly revealed to the world, Satan's kingdom will be defeated and the world will be prepared for the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom. "The two Advents are the two main instrumentalities for accomplishing Redemption; each one has its appropriate sphere of action, and 'the glory' of the Second is the reward subsequent to obedience and suffering at the First" (Peters, TTK, 1:243). "The general theme concerning the return of Christ has the unique distinction of being the first prophecy uttered by man (Jude 1:14-15) and the last message from the ascended Christ as well as being the last word of the Bible (Rev 22:20-21). Likewise, the theme of the second coming of Christ is unique because of the fact that it occupies a larger part of the text of the Scriptures than any other doctrine, and it is the outstanding theme of prophecy in both the Old and New Testaments" (Chafer, ST, 4:306). "This the greatest theme of all prophecy" (ibid., p. 389) "The consummation of Scripture as well as the consummation of God's divine plan is the revelation of Jesus Christ" (Walvoord, MK, p. viii).

The Fact of the Second Coming

The fact of the Second coming is evident from Scripture: from the Pentateuch, from the Hebrew prophets, from the gospels, from the Acts of the Apostles, from the epistles of Paul, Peter and John, and from the Revelation. "that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee" (Deut. 30:3). "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth! The voice of thy watchmen! they lift up the voice, together do they sing; for they shall see eye to eye, when Jehovah returneth to Zion. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem; for Jehovah hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. Jehovah hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God" (Isa. 52:7-10). "I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13–14). “And ye shall flee by the valley of my mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azel; yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah; and Jehovah my God shall come, and all the holy ones with thee” (Zech. 14:5). “But who can endure the day of His coming? And who can stand when He appears? For He is like a refiner’s fire and like fullers’ soap” (Mal. 3:2). “For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels; and will then recompense every man according to his deeds” (Matt. 16:27). “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt 24:27). “But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, nor the Son, but the Father alone. For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah. For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:36–39). “Blessed is that slave whom his master finds so doing when he comes” (Matt. 24:46). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats” (Matt. 25:31–32) “For whoever is ashamed of Me and My words in this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of Man will also be ashamed of him when He comes in the glory of His Father with the holy angels” (Mark 8:38). “For whoever is ashamed of Me and My words, of him will the Son of Man be ashamed when He comes in His glory, and the glory of the Father and of the holy angels” (Luke 9:26). “And be like men who are waiting for their master when he returns from the wedding feast, so that they may immediately open the door to him when he comes and knocks. Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them” (Luke 12:36–37). “Be dressed in readiness, and keep your lamps alight. And be like men who are waiting for their master when he returns from the wedding feast, so that they may immediately open the door to him when he comes and knocks. Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them. Whether he comes in the second watch, or even in the third, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves. And be sure of this, that if the head of the house had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would not have allowed his house to be broken into. You too, be ready; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour that you do not expect” (Luke 12:35–40). “And then they will see THE SON OF MAN COMING IN A CLOUD with power and great glory” (Luke 21:27). “and they also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven’” (Acts 1:11). “and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you, whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time” (Acts 3:20–21). “For who is our hope or joy or crown of exultation? Is it not even you, in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming” (1 Thes. 2:19)? “And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming” (2 Thes. 2:8) “when He comes to be glorified in His saints on that day, and to be marveled at among all who have believed — for our testimony to you was believed” (2 Thes. 1:10). “that you keep the commandment without stain or reproach until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, which He will bring about at the proper time — He who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords” (1 Tim. 6:14-15) “I solemnly charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His kingdom” (2 Tim. 4:1) “looking for the blessed hope and the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior, Christ Jesus” (Titus 2:13) “Otherwise, He would have needed to suffer often since the foundation of the world; but now once at the consummation of the ages He has been manifested to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. And inasmuch as it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment, so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:26-28). “and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation’” (2 Pet. 3:4). “For yet in a very little while, He who is coming will come, and will not delay” (Heb. 10:37). “Behold, He is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see Him, even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev 1:7). “(‘Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who stays awake and keeps his garments, lest he walk about naked and men see his shame.’)” (Rev. 16:15) “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.’ And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried out with a loud voice, saying to all the birds which fly in midheaven, ‘Come, assemble for the great supper of God; in order that you may eat the flesh of kings and the flesh of commanders and the flesh of mighty men and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them and the flesh of all men, both free men and slaves, and small and great.’ And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, assembled to make war against Him who sat upon the horse, and against His army. And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone. And the rest were killed with the sword which came from the mouth of Him who sat upon the horse, and all the birds were filled with their flesh” (Rev. 19:11–21). “And he said to me, ‘These words are faithful and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent His angel to show to His bond-servants the things which must shortly take place. And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he who heeds the words of the prophecy of this book” (Rev. 22:6-7). “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen” (Rev. 22:20-21).

The Necessity and Importance of the Second Coming

The Second Coming of the King is a necessary and important event in the overall Kingdom program. “Van Oosterzee (Ch. Dog., vol. 2, p. 580), speaking of the reasonableness of the Second visible Coming of Jesus, remarks: ‘History and experience even, give every reason to doubt whether without such a personal appearing and intervention of the King, the Kingdom of God could indeed ever arrive at the complete development and triumph, to which it is designed to come’” (Peters, TTK, 3:182). “...the Second Advent... the great event that towers above every other” (ibid., p. 329) “The Pre-Millennial view is the only one that can receive this prominence and nearness of the Advent, fully adopt it, and make it an essential element. It has no definite intervening period to neutralize its force, and no substitution for this Advent (as e.g. death) to destroy its redemptive preciousness” (ibid., p. 384). “The prevailing idea of many writers is to make the incarnation the greatest event in history (as e.g. by Dr. Nevin in Mercersburg Theology, Dr. Turnbull in Christ in History, etc.), and this certainly cannot be eulogized too highly, seeing that through it the means are provided for the fulfillment of the covenants. But even this should not be allowed to overshadow the glorious manifestation of this humanity in the future, and the Kingdom resulting therefrom” (ibid., p. 438). “It is clear then that Christ’s ‘First Coming,’ important as it was, is not the ‘doctrinal centre’ of the Scriptures, that is, Christ’s First Coming was not the centre of a circle that contains all doctrine, but was one of the foci of an ellipse of which the other is the ‘Second Coming’” (Larkin, DT, p. 8). “The First Coming was for the salvation of my ‘SOUL;’ the Second is for the salvation of my ‘Body,’ for there can be no resurrection of the body until Christ comes back” (ibid., p. 9). “There are 20 times as many references in the Old Testament to Christ’s Second Coming as to His First Coming” (ibid.). “No event, unless it be the cross, is more emphasized in Scripture than the personal return of Christ to this earth. This truth occupies at least one verse in twenty of the New Testament, and is not only the subject of the last words of Jesus to His own in the world, but is the subject of the closing words and promise of the Bible itself” (Chafer, KHP, 74%). “The most important aspect of the prophetic context of the millennium is the personal return of Jesus Christ to the earth... the glorious appearance of the Lord in the heavens accompanied by the saints and the holy angels... It constitutes the most tremendous intervention of divine power in the entire course of human history” (Walvoord, MK, p. 264). “Just as Scripture concerning the rapture of the church is climactic and determinative in truth revealed about the church, so the second coming is determinative in tracing the future course of Gentiles and Israel in the world, the resurrection of the righteous, and the fulfillment of prophecies concerning the kingdom of God on earth” (ibid.). “One out of every twenty-five verses in the New Testament refers either to the rapture of the church or to Christ’s coming to reign over the world” (ibid., p. 268).

The Person of the Second Coming

The Person of the Second Coming is the very same Jesus who came the first time. “The Jews, in order to reconcile the statements of the prophets respecting the Messiah, resort (see articles ‘Messiah,’ ‘Jews,’ etc., in our encyclopedias, etc.) to a twofold Messiah, one in a state of poverty and suffering, the other in a state of splendor and glory. They thus make two persons and two Messiahs, whereas the Old Test, speaks only of one Messiah, as covenanted and predicted, viz., that glorious David’s Son who shall restore the Theocracy. How are these Scriptures to be reconciled? By arbitrarily and violently making two Messiahs, or by making two Advents, the one in humiliation, etc., and the other in triumph and glory” (Peters, TTK, 3:414)? For a full description of this Person, see our chapter The King of the Kingdom.

Titles of the King at His Second Coming

Certain titles of the King are particularly applicable to Him at His Second Coming. These titles include the bridegroom, the Son of Man and the Son of David. (For a detailed discussion of all the King’s titles see the section Titles of the King of our chapter The King of the Kingdom.)

As the (already married) bridegroom, Jesus is husband of the bride (the church). “Then the kingdom of heaven will be comparable to ten virgins, who took their lamps, and went out to meet the bridegroom. And five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. For when the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them, but the prudent took oil in flasks along with their lamps. Now while the bridegroom was delaying, they all got drowsy and began to sleep. But at midnight there was a shout, “Behold, the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.” Then all those virgins rose, and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the prudent, “Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.” But the prudent answered, saying, “No, there will not be enough for us and you too; go instead to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.” And while they were going away to make the purchase, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding feast; and the door was shut. And later the other virgins also came, saying, “Lord, lord, open up for us.” But he answered and said, “Truly I say to you, I do not know you.” Be on the alert then, for you do not know the day nor the hour” (Matt. 25:1-13). “Since the Lord is returning to the earth to the marriage feast as a Bridegroom, He must be accompanied by the bride. Therefore, those waiting on the earth could not be the bride” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 283). “In the parable not only the wise but the unwise, who were appointed unto wrath, went to meet the Bridegroom. This could not picture the rapture, for no unsaved go out to meet Him at that time” (ibid.).

As the Son of Man, Jesus is the “last Adam,” the new head of the human race. “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13-14). “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt 24:27). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats” (Matt. 25:31-32) “But Jesus kept silent. And the high priest said to Him, ‘I adjure You by the living God, that You tell us whether You are the Christ, the Son of God.’ Jesus said to him, ‘You have said it yourself; nevertheless I tell you, hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming on the clouds of heaven” (Matt. 26:63-64). “And Jesus said, ‘I am; and you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven” (Mark 14:62). “For just as the lightning, when it flashes out of one part of the sky, shines to the other part of the sky, so will the Son of Man be in His day” (Luke 17:24). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory” (Mark 13:26). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory” (Luke 21:27). “So also it is written, ‘The first MAN, Adam, BECAME A LIVING SOUL.’ The last Adam became a life-giving spirit” (1 Cor. 15:45). “For He did not subject to angels the world to come, concerning which we are speaking. But one has testified somewhere, saying, ‘WHAT IS MAN, THAT

THOU REMEMBEREST HIM? OR THE SON OF MAN, THAT THOU ART CONCERNED ABOUT HIM? THOU HAST MADE HIM FOR A LITTLE WHILE LOWER THAN THE ANGELS; THOU HAST CROWNED HIM WITH GLORY AND HONOR, AND HAST APPOINTED HIM OVER THE WORKS OF THY HANDS; THOU HAST PUT ALL THINGS IN SUBJECTION UNDER HIS FEET. For in subjecting all things to him, He left nothing that is not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him” (Heb. 2:5–9).

As the Son of David (and as the Messiah, the Christ, the Lion of Judah, the King of the Jews and the King of Kings), Jesus is the rightful heir to David’s throne. “The record of the genealogy of Jesus the Messiah, the son of David, the son of Abraham” (Matt. 1:1) “All the crowds were amazed, and were saying, ‘This man cannot be the Son of David, can he?’” (Matt. 12:23)? “The crowds going ahead of Him, and those who followed, were shouting, ‘Hosanna to the Son of David; BLESSED IS HE WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD; Hosanna in the highest’” (Matt. 21:9)! “And behold, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you shall name Him Jesus. He will be great and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:31–33). “And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write: He who is holy, who is true, who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut, and who shuts and no one opens, says this” (Rev. 3:7) “and one of the elders said to me, ‘Stop weeping; behold, the Lion that is from the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has overcome so as to open the book and its seven seals” (Rev. 5:5). “I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star” (Rev. 22:16). “The Apocalypse... the covenant relationship of Jesus requires, as confirmatory and essential, just such references (Rev. 3:7, and 5:5, and 22:16), because as the predicted Seed of David He inherits David’s throne and Kingdom, and hence his personality, as covenanted, must be distinctively observed. It is, therefore, both reasonable and requisite to find them in such a book” (Peters, TTK, 1:351).

Purposes of the Second Coming

The purposes of the Second Coming are numerous, with each purpose being related to the Kingdom in some way. “The Sec. Advent must be contemplated as a means toward a foretold end” (Peters, TTK, 3:529).

Individually these purposes are:

To reveal Christ, the angels and the King's bride (the church) to humankind. “For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels; and will then recompense every man according to his deeds” (Matt. 16:27). “When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory” (Col. 3:4). “When Christ, who is our life, shall be manifested, that is, the Second Coming, then shall ye also with him be manifested in glory. Thus, just as the mystery was glory manifested, so shall believers be manifested to the world in glory, meaning in their glorified state when believers return with Him” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 674). “For after all it is only just for God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, and to give relief to you who are afflicted and to us as well when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire, dealing out retribution to those who do not know God and to those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. And these will pay the penalty of eternal destruction, away from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power, when He comes to be glorified in His saints on that day, and to be marveled at among all who have believed — for our testimony to you was believed” (2 Thes. 1:6-10). “And about these also Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, ‘Behold, the Lord came with many thousands of His holy ones, to execute judgment upon all, and to convict all the ungodly of all their ungodly deeds which they have done in an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things which ungodly sinners have spoken against Him” (Jude 1:14-15). “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS” (Rev. 19:11-16). “The personal Coming shall occur when ‘the mystery of God is finished.’ ...the finishing of the mystery includes the open revelation of Christ” (Peters, TTK, 2:182) “If the mystery is indeed finished, then the King has come and the Kingdom is established” (ibid.). “Christ will be followed by His glorified saints, who will be spectators of the immediate victory of their Lord” (Feinberg, M, p. 165). “When He returns, Messiah will be followed by armies [Rev. 19] (v. 14). The word is in the plural number, meaning that at least two separate armies will return with Him. One army is known as hosts of the Lord, or the angelic army. Matthew 16:27 states: For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 345) “Another army that will return with Jesus is the army of the Church saints who had been raptured previously, before the Tribulation. Jude 14-15 describes the events as follows:... Behold, the Lord came with ten thousands of his holy ones” (ibid., p. 346) “However, Isaiah 63:1-6 made it clear that although the armies of saints and angels will return with Him, they will not participate in the fighting” (ibid.). “Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? this that is glorious in his apparel, marching in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save. Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winevat? I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the peoples there was no man with me: yea, I trod them in mine anger, and trampled them in my wrath; and their lifeblood is sprinkled upon my garments, and I have stained all my raiment. For the day of vengeance was in my heart, and the year of my redeemed is come. And I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me; and my wrath, it upheld me. And I trod down the peoples in mine anger, and made them drunk in my wrath, and I poured out their lifeblood on the earth” (Isa. 63:1-6).

To save Israel. (See our discussions of Israel’s survival in the section Events of the Last Half of the Tribulation of our previous chapter The Great Tribulation. See also our discussions of Israel’s regathering and judgment in the section Events in Preparation for the Millennial Kingdom of our next chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

To defend Israel and to end her persecution. “In that day shall Jehovah defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and he that is feeble among them at that day shall be as David; and the house of David shall be as God, as the angel of Jehovah before them. And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem” (Zech. 12:8-9). “Behold, a day of Jehovah cometh, when thy spoil shall be divided in the midst of thee. For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; and the city shall be taken, and the houses rifled, and the women ravished; and half of the city shall go forth into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be cut off from the city. Then shall Jehovah go forth, and fight against those na- tions, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south” (Zechariah 14:1-4). “for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:21-22). “His first action on earth will be the defense of Jerusalem: ‘In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem’ (Zech. 12:8)” (McClain, GK, p. 193). “...for the elect’s sake those days shall be shortened’ (Matt. 24:21-22). And the elect here are those of the nation of Israel, for whom this will be the ‘time of Jacob’s trouble’ (Jer. 30:7)” (ibid., p. 461) “Only then will the Gentile nations realize that God did not cast off His people forever. Israel’s judgment and dispersion was due to sin, primarily the sin of the rejection of the Messiahship of Jesus... The nations will recognize at the Second Coming that God is still Israel’s God and He will avenge their affliction of Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 348). (See also our paragraph To dash the nations to pieces below.)

To conquer the Antichrist. “And it shall come to pass in the day that Jehovah shall give thee rest from thy sorrow, and from thy trouble, and from the hard service wherein thou wast made to serve, that thou shalt take up this parable against the king of Babylon, and say, How hath the oppressor ceased! the golden city ceased! Jehovah hath broken the staff of the wicked, the sceptre of the rulers; that smote the peoples in wrath with a continual stroke, that ruled the nations in anger, with a persecution that none restrained. The whole earth is at rest, and is quiet: they break forth into singing. Yea, the fir-trees rejoice at thee, and the cedars of Lebanon, saying, Since thou art laid low, no hewer is come up against us. Sheol from beneath is moved for thee to meet thee at thy coming; it stirreth up the dead for thee, even all the chief ones of the earth; it hath raised up from their thrones all the kings of the nations. All they shall answer and say unto thee, Art thou also become weak as we? art thou become like unto us? Thy pomp is brought down to Sheol, and the noise of thy viols: the worm is spread under thee, and worms cover thee” (Isa. 14:3-11). “At the time of the redemption of Israel, the Jews whom the king of Babylon sought to destroy will taunt him with a new parable ([Isa. 14] vv. 3-4) commemorating the greater strength of the power of God (v.5). The Antichrist ruled the nations of the world (v. 6), but then the whole world will rejoice over his demise (vv. 7-8). As the spirit of the Antichrist enters into the gates of Hell, the previous great ones of the earth already there will suddenly rise up off their thrones (vs. 9) in utter shock that he, too, has entered the abode of Hell (v. 10). Yet it will be so, and all the pomp of his worldwide reign will suffer the demise of Hell (v. 11)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 352). “They that see thee shall gaze at thee, they shall consider thee, saying, Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did shake kingdoms; that made the world as a wilderness, and overthrew the cities thereof; that let not loose his prisoners to their home? All the kings of the nations, all of them, sleep in glory, every one in his own house. But thou art cast forth away from thy sepulchre like an abominable branch, clothed with the slain, that are thrust through with the sword, that go down to the stones of the pit; as a dead body trodden under foot. Thou shalt not be joined with them in burial, because thou hast destroyed thy land, thou hast slain thy people; the seed of evil-doers shall not be named for ever. Prepare ye slaughter for his children for the iniquity of their fathers, that they rise not up, and possess the earth, and fill the face of the world with cities” (Isa. 14:16–21). “Many will be able to view the body of the Antichrist and will stare in utter disbelief that he died so suddenly and easily, considering he had shaken the kingdoms of the world and the earth trembled in his presence ([Isa. 14] vv. 16-17)... the Antichrist, whose body will be trampled by the fleeing feet of his own armies (v. 19)... his body will never be buried at all (v. 20)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 353) “Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people, For the salvation of thine anointed; Thou woundest the head out of the house of the wicked man, Laying bare the foundation even unto the neck. Selah” (Hab. 3:13). “And he shall plant the tents of his palace between the sea and the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him” (Dan. 11:45) “And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming; that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders” (2 Thes. 2:8–9) “And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, assembled to make war against Him who sat upon the horse, and against His army. And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone. And the rest were killed with the sword which came from the mouth of Him who sat upon the horse, and all the birds were filled with their flesh” (Rev. 19:19–21). “Bh. Horsley (Letter on Isa. 18) says: ‘I have an unfashionable partiality for the opinions of antiquity. I think there is ground in the prophecies for the notion of the early Fathers, that Palestine is the stage on which Antichrist, in the height of his impiety, will perish’” (Peters, TTK, 2:657). “God is going to ultimately and violently overthrow this satanic masterpiece of delusion and imitation” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 307). “For the second time, the Antichrist will die” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 352). “The next portion of [Second Thessalonians] verse eight states that by Messiah’s simple declaration—just one word—the Antichrist will fall dead at His feet: Whom the Lord Jesus shall slay with the breath of his mouth” (ibid., p. 691). We’ll cover Antichrist’s resurrection and casting into the lake of fire in the section Events in Preparation For the Millennial Kingdom in our next chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.

To conquer Antichrist’s army. “For I have sworn by myself, saith Jehovah, that Bozrah shall become an astonishment, a reproach, a waste, and a curse; and all the cities thereof shall be perpetual wastes. I have heard tidings from Jehovah, and an ambassador is sent among the nations, saying, Gather yourselves together, and come against her, and rise up to the battle” (Jer. 49:13–14). “Therefore hear ye the counsel of Jehovah, that he hath taken against Edom; and his purposes, that he hath purposed against the inhabitants of Teman: Surely they shall drag them away, even the little ones of the flock; surely he shall make their habitation desolate over them. The earth trembleth at the noise of their fall; there is a cry, the noise whereof is heard in the Red Sea. Behold, he shall come up and fly as the eagle, and spread out his wings against Bozrah: and the heart of the mighty men of Edom at that day shall be as the heart of a woman in her pangs” (Jer. 49:20–22). “In the context (see [Jer. 49] vv. 13-14), this passage is dealing with the Campaign of Armageddon. The massive blood-letting that begins at Bozrah begins moving south down the Arabah until it empties in the Red Sea at the present-day cities of Eliat and Akaba. The distance from there to Jerusalem is about two hundred miles. The level of blood is to be about four feet high. Exactly how this will be fulfilled remains to be seen. It may not be totally human blood, but also things turned into blood by divine judgment” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 354). “And this shall be the plague wherewith Jehovah will smite all the peoples that have warred against Jerusalem: their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet, and their eyes shall consume away in their sockets, and their tongue shall consume away in their mouth. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great tumult from Jehovah shall be among them; and they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbor, and his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbor. And Judah also shall fight at Jerusalem; and the wealth of all the nations round about shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance. And so shall be the plague of the horse, of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass, and of all the beasts that shall be in those camps, as that plague” (Zech. 14:12–15). “Zechariah 14:12–15:... The nations that have gathered against the Jews (3:9-11) will now find themselves being trodden by the King of the Jews” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 353). “And the angel cast his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vintage of the earth, and cast it into the winepress, the great winepress, of the wrath of God. And the winepress are trodden without the city, and there came out blood from the winepress, even unto the bridles of the horses, as far as a thousand and six hundred furlongs” (Rev. 14:19–20). “The blood stretches for 1,600 furlongs, which is approximately two hundred miles. The two hundred miles may refer to the entire area from the Valley of Armageddon to Bozrah, which is about two hundred miles. Another possible explanation is that it refers to the round trip distance between Jerusalem and Bozrah. The fighting will begin at Jerusalem and move to Bozrah (100 miles), and with the Second Coming, will return back from Bozrah to the Valley of Jehoshaphat (another 100 miles). But the best explanation is based on Jeremiah 49:20-22 [See above in this paragraph—ed.]” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 354)

To dash the nations to pieces. “Why do the nations rage, And the peoples meditate a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, And the rulers take counsel together, Against Jehovah, and against his anointed, saying, Let us break their bonds asunder, And cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens will laugh: The Lord will have them in derision. Then will he speak unto them in his wrath, And vex them in his sore displeasure: Yet I have set my king Upon my holy hill of Zion. I will tell of the decree: Jehovah said unto me, Thou art my son; This day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, And the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; Thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter’s vessel” (Ps. 2:1-9). “The Mighty One, God, Jehovah, hath spoken, And called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined forth. Our God cometh, and doth not keep silence: A fire devoureth before him,

And it is very tempestuous round about him. He calleth to the heavens above, And to the earth, that he may judge his people: Gather my saints together unto me, Those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice” (Ps. 50:1-5). “A Psalm of David. Jehovah saith unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thine enemies thy footstool. Jehovah will send forth the rod of thy strength out of Zion: Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people offer themselves willingly In the day of thy power, in holy array: Out of the womb of the morning Thou hast the dew of thy youth. Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent: Thou art a priest for ever After the order of Melchizedek. The Lord at thy right hand Will strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He will judge among the nations, He will fill the places with dead bodies; He will strike through the head in many countries. He will drink of the brook in the way: Therefore will he lift up the head” (Ps. 110:0-7). “And there shall come forth a shoot out of the stock of Jesse, and a branch out of his roots shall bear fruit. And the Spirit of Jehovah shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of Jehovah. And his delight shall be in the fear of Jehovah; and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither decide after the hearing of his ears; but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked” (Isa. 11:1-4). “For that nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted” (Isa. 60:12). “Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? this that is glorious in his apparel, marching in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save. Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winevat? I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the peoples there was no man with me: yea, I trod them in mine anger, and trampled them in my wrath; and their lifeblood is sprinkled upon my garments, and I have stained all my raiment. For the day of vengeance was in my heart, and the year of my redeemed is come. And I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me; and my wrath, it upheld me. And I trod down the peoples in mine anger, and made them drunk in my wrath, and I poured out their lifeblood on the earth” (Isa. 63:1-6). “For, behold, Jehovah will come with fire, and his chariots shall be like the whirlwind; to render his anger with fierceness, and his rebuke with flames of fire. For by fire will Jehovah execute judgment, and by his sword, upon all flesh; and the slain of Jehovah shall be many” (Isa. 66:15-16). “And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall the sovereignty thereof be left to another people; but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. Forasmuch as thou sawest that a stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure” (Dan. 2:44-45). “Proclaim ye this among the nations; prepare war; stir up the mighty men; let all the men of war draw near, let them come up. Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong. Haste ye, and come, all ye nations round about, and gather yourselves together: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Jehovah. Let the nations bestir themselves, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the nations round about. Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, tread ye; for the winepress is full, the vats overflow; for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining. And Jehovah will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but Jehovah will be a refuge unto his people, and a stronghold to the children of Israel” (Joel 3:9-16). “Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence done to the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land” (Joel 3:19). “And now many nations are assembled against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye see our desire upon Zion. But they know not the thoughts of Jehovah, neither understand they his counsel; for he hath gathered them as the sheaves to the threshing-floor. Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion; for I will make thy horn iron, and I will make thy hoofs brass; and thou shalt beat in pieces many peoples: and I will devote their gain unto Jehovah, and their substance unto the Lord of the whole earth” (Mic. 4:11-13). “And I will execute vengeance in anger and wrath upon the nations which hearkened not” (Mic. 5:15). “A prayer of Habakkuk the prophet, set to Shigionoth. O Jehovah, I have heard the report of thee, and am afraid: O Jehovah, revive thy work in the midst of the years; In the midst of the years make it known; In wrath remember mercy. God came from Teman, And the Holy One from mount Paran. Selah. His glory covered the heavens, And the earth was full of his praise. And his brightness was as the light; He had rays coming forth from his hand; And there was the hiding of his power. Before him went the pestilence, And fiery bolts went forth at his feet. He stood, and measured the earth; He beheld, and drove asunder the nations; And the eternal mountains were scattered; The everlasting hills did bow; His goings were as of old. I saw the tents of Cushan in affliction; The curtains of the land of Midian did tremble. Was Jehovah displeased with the rivers? Was thine anger against the rivers, Or thy wrath against the sea, That thou didst ride upon thy horses, Upon thy chariots of salvation? Thy bow was made quite bare; The oaths to the tribes were a sure word. Selah. Thou didst cleave the earth with rivers. The mountains saw thee, and were afraid; The tempest of waters passed by; The deep uttered its voice, And lifted up its hands on high. The sun and moon stood still in their habitation, At the light of thine arrows as they went, At the shining of thy glittering spear. Thou didst march though the land in indignation; Thou didst thresh the nations in anger. Thou wentest forth for the salvation of thy people, For the salvation of thine anointed; Thou woundest the head out of the house of the wicked man, Laying bare the foundation even unto the neck. Selah. Thou didst pierce with his own staves the head of his warriors: They came as a whirlwind to scatter me; Their rejoicing was as to devour the poor secretly. Thou didst tread the sea with thy horses, The heap of mighty waters. I heard, and my body trembled, My lips quivered at the voice; Rottenness entereth into my bones, and I tremble in my place; Because I must wait quietly for the day of trouble, For the coming up of the people that invadeth us. For though the fig-tree shall not flourish, Neither shall fruit be in the vines; The labor of the olive shall fail, And the fields shall yield no food; The flock shall be cut off from the fold, And there shall be no herd in the stalls: Yet I will rejoice in Jehovah, I will joy in the God of my salvation. Jehovah, the Lord, is my strength; And he maketh my feet like hinds' feet, And will make me to walk upon my high places" (Hab. 3:1-19). "In answer to the Remnant's request, God is viewed as coming from Edom with all His shining glory ([Hab. 3] vv. 3-4)... Nature will also be greatly affected by the Second Coming (vv. 8-10), as will the terrestrial heavenly sphere (v. 11)" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 349). "But these enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here and slay them in my presence” (Luke 19:27). “See to it that you do not refuse Him who is speaking. For if those did not escape when they refused him who warned them on earth, much less shall we escape who turn away from Him who warns from heaven. And His voice shook the earth then, but now He has promised, saying, ‘YET ONCE MORE I WILL SHAKE NOT ONLY THE EARTH, BUT ALSO THE HEAVEN.’ And this expression, ‘Yet once more,’ denotes the removing of those things which can be shaken, as of created things, in order that those things which cannot be shaken may remain. Therefore, since we receive a kingdom which cannot be shaken, let us show gratitude, by which we may offer to God an acceptable service with reverence and awe; for our God is a consuming fire” (Heb. 12:25–29). “Paul most delicately (to avoid exciting unduly the hostility of the Roman Empire, under which the believers then lived) and yet effectively declares the result of this shaking, just as Daniel and all the prophets portray it, viz., ‘the removing of those things that are (marg. may be) shaken’ (i.e. those Kingdoms, ‘as of things that are made’ (i.e. temporarily allowed, or created), ‘that those things which cannot be shaken may remain’ (i.e. the covenanted and oath-bound promises respecting the Kingdom now to be realized in the restored Theocratic arrangement under David’s Son), ‘wherefore, we receiving a Kingdom’ (the same that is thus covenanted and which saints inherit), ‘which cannot be moved’ (i.e. will never be thus shaken and destroyed like the others), ‘let us,’ etc. It is hard to say which excites our greatest surprise and admiration, the remarkable nicety of Paul’s language, thus avoiding the prejudice (cruel and persecuting) of Gentile rulers, without in the least sacrificing truth or the exceeding harmony, even in the minutest particulars, between him and men who spoke many centuries before him” (Peters, TTK, 2:497). “For thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Yet once, it is a little while, and I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations; and the precious things of all nations shall come; and I will fill this house with glory, saith Jehovah of hosts” (Hag. 2:5–7). “...what heavens and earth are shaken and removed (viz., the Gentile Kingdoms and their upholders)” (Peters, TTK, p. 499) “Nevertheless what you have, hold fast until I come. And he who overcomes, and he who keeps My deeds until the end, to him I will give authority over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter are broken to pieces, as I also have received authority from My Father; and I will give him the morning star” (Rev. 2:25-28). “And the ten horns which you saw are ten kings, who have not yet received a kingdom, but they receive authority as kings with the beast for one hour. These have one purpose and they give their power and authority to the beast. These will wage war against the Lamb, and the Lamb will overcome them, because He is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those who are with Him are the called and chosen and faithful” (Rev. 17:12-14). “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS’” (Rev. 19:11-16). “His garments are stained with blood, just as in Isaiah 63:1-6” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 345) “And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried out with a loud voice, saying to all the birds which fly in midheaven, ‘Come, assemble for the great supper of God; in order that you may eat the flesh of kings and the flesh of commanders and the flesh of mighty men and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them and the flesh of all men, both free men and slaves, and small and great” (Rev. 19:17-18). “And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, assembled to make war against Him who sat upon the horse, and against His army. And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone. And the rest were killed with the sword which came from the mouth of Him who sat upon the horse, and all the birds were filled with their flesh” (Rev. 19:19-21). “...the predicted overthrow and destruction of states and kingdoms at the end of this dispensation” (Peters, TTK, 1:652) “Dr. Fausset... Com. (Dan. 7:44) he remarks: “There must be a “regeneration” of the world, as of the individual, a death previous to a resurrection, a destruction of the world-kingdoms before they arise anew as the kingdoms of Christ” (ibid., 2:478) “...no nation... will be willing to give up its own government and submit to the incoming Theocracy under the Messiah” (ibid., p. 743). “Infidels of every age, with a show of piety and mercy somewhat remarkable, and a love for humanity truly astonishing, have denounced the cruelty, enormity of vengeance, etc., of Moses' commands, of some of the Psalms, and of this portrayal of the future, so that (as Bolingbroke) they declare the man 'as worse even than an Atheist, who could impute it to the Supreme Being.'... Now all such objections and apologies are conjectured to be in place in order to show, on the one hand, that the God represented in the Old Test. is not the God of the New Test., and, on the other hand, to reconcile the God of the Old Test. to the supposed softening portraiture of the God of the New Test. Both are mistaken, the same God of vengeance exists in the New Test. that existed under the Old, and while mercy and forbearance is now shown, we are abundantly cautioned that the day of vengeance and wrath will again, when iniquity is full, come" (ibid., p. 771). "...the Song of Moses is only realized by supernatural intervention and vengeance... the ease with which Omnipotence smites" (ibid., p. 772) "...the Divine Plan, will especially be unwelcome to the kings of the earth and to nearly all who are in power, ecclesiastical or civil. This, too, will evidently be one cause of that deep hatred against Christ, and result in the widespread confederation and gathering of the nations against Him. The kings and mighty men of the earth (Rev. 19:19, etc.) will be unwilling to yield up (Ps. 2:2, 3) their power and submit to the rule that must be imposed for the good of man" (ibid., p. 775). "The kings of the earth set themselves, And the rulers take counsel together, Against Jehovah, and against his anointed, saying, Let us break their bonds asunder, And cast away their cords from us" (Ps. 2:2-3). "God does not delight in employing violence, but force, terrible and destructive, must be used... It has been observed that the Bible presents the history of great nations that figure so prominently in secular history, only in so far as they stand related to the development of the Theocratic idea in its preparatory stages and final realization... The omission must be found in the Theocratic idea, viz., that God regards only one form of government, and the people who are to be incorporated with it, as deserving of His particular continued and detailed notice" (ibid., p. 776). "...unbelief, owing to the rejoicing over vengeance and the overthrow of enemies, regards as inconsistent with piety... vengeance (now also forbidden to the saints as something belonging only to God, and to be exerted under His authority and direction)... 'the wrath of the Lamb;' thus showing how the same Saviour, who loved us even to a shameful and cruel death, will ultimately at His coming manifest His anger against those who willfully and malignantly reject Him. If we consider what God intends to perform, viz., to set up the fallen Davidic Kingdom in the glorious manner covenanted and predicted, and then what opposition God's Purpose will meet with at the time when it is to be accomplished, we have the key to the proper understanding of a host of passages” (ibid., 3:391) “It cannot be denied that the charge given by God was to utterly root out and exterminate the nations of Canaan, and the reason actuating the King of the Theocracy is plainly given, in that the retention of those nations and kingdoms with their wickedness was in direct conflict with His own government, and would necessarily result in leading His own subjects astray and in open rebellion... Indeed, the history of the nation proves that the violation of this very feature weakened, and ultimately proved disastrous to, the Theocratic ordering... This gives us the key to those terrible predictions relating to the future, in which it is positively asserted that the kings and their armies shall be overthrown, and the kingdoms of the earth shall be utterly broken, etc... in the establishment of such a Kingdom it must necessarily lead to this result, because its nature forbids its allowing the existence of governments that would, if permitted to survive, be a constant invitation to His subjects to withdraw from their allegiance, etc.” (ibid., p. 598) “A Theocracy, in the very nature of the case, must thus mete out, in defence of its fundamental idea, these temporal punishments, and it will do it again until the world is brought into complete subjection” (ibid.). “He clearly declares elsewhere that force will be used when He comes to establish His Kingdom on earth (Luke 19:27). But the force then will be that of divine omnipotence, not that of sinful men” (McClain, GK, p. 287). “As the Messianic King our Lord would need none of the conventional weapons of this cosmos in order to rule the nations with a rod of iron. He needs only to speak, and the thing will be done” (ibid., p. 347). “In that remarkable vision of the coming of the King from heaven to establish His Kingdom on the earth, John says that ‘the armies which are in heaven followed him’ (Rev. 19:11-14, ASV). Strange armies they are, bearing no weapons and striking no blows. For it is the ‘sharp sword’ of the King Himself which strikes the enemy and wins the victory— ‘which sword proceeded out of his mouth’ (19:21)” (ibid., p. 382). “One remarkable feature of the final conflict is that the heavenly ‘armies’ of our Lord bear no weapons and strike no blows. In all that vast assembly, only its regal Leader bears a sword. His vesture alone, not theirs, is stained with blood. Thus, we are told, the opposing armies ‘were slain by the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which sword proceeded out of his mouth’ (Rev. 19:21)” (ibid., p. 480). “If it is argued that such a holocaust of physical destruction as that pictured in Revelation 19 is wholly out of character for ‘the meek and lowly Jesus,’ the answer is that this same Jesus is none other than the Incarnation of that God whose destroying hand was made bare again and again in Old Testament history” (ibid., p. 481). “When He returns He will smite the nations and ‘rule them with an iron scepter’ and ‘dash them to pieces like pottery’ (Ps. 2:9)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 249). “...the end of the Tribulation, when all earthly kingdoms crumble (Rev. 11:15)” (Geisler, ST, 4:650).

To bind Satan. (See our discussion of the binding of Satan in the section Events in Preparation for the Millennial Kingdom of our next chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

To crush iniquity. “...as Dr. Morehead (art. 4, Chris. Instructor, March 13th, 1879) pertinently observes: ‘...the Advent itself is designed to crush the culmination of iniquity’” (Peters, TTK, 3:215).

To regather Israel to her land. “that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee” (Deut. 30:3). “But immediately after the tribulation of those days THE SUN WILL BE DARKENED, AND THE MOON WILL NOT GIVE ITS LIGHT, AND THE STARS WILL FALL from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken, and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the SON OF MAN COMING ON THE CLOUDS OF THE SKY with power and great glory. And He will send forth His angels with A GREAT TRUMPET and THEY WILL GATHER TOGETHER His elect from the four winds, from one end of the sky to the other” (Matt. 24:29–31). (See our discussion of the regathering of Israel to the land in belief in the section Events in Preparation for the Millennial Kingdom of our next chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

To judge Israel. (See our discussion of Israel’s judgment in the section Events in Preparation for the Millennial Kingdom of our next chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

To purge all unrepentant sinners from the world. “A Psalm of David. Jehovah saith unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thine enemies thy footstool. Jehovah will send forth the rod of thy strength out of Zion: Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people offer themselves willingly In the day of thy power, in holy array: Out of the womb of the morning Thou hast the dew of thy youth. Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent: Thou art a priest for ever After the order of Melchizedek. The Lord at thy right hand Will strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He will judge among the nations, He will fill the places with dead bodies; He will strike through the head in many coun- tries. He will drink of the brook in the way: Therefore will he lift up the head” (Ps. 110:0-7). “If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land: but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it. How is the faithful city become a harlot! she that was full of justice! righteousness lodged in her, but now murderers. Thy silver is become dross, thy wine mixed with water. Thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves; every one loveth bribes, and followeth after rewards: they judge not the fatherless, neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them. Therefore saith the Lord, Jehovah of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel, Ah, I will ease me of mine adversaries, and avenge me of mine enemies; and I will turn my hand upon thee, and thoroughly purge away thy dross, and will take away all thy tin; and I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counsellors as at the beginning: afterward thou shalt be called The city of righteousness, a faithful town. Zion shall be redeemed with justice, and her converts with righteousness. But the destruction of transgressors and sinners shall be together, and they that forsake Jehovah shall be consumed. For they shall be ashamed of the oaks which ye have desired, and ye shall be confounded for the gardens that ye have chosen. For ye shall be as an oak whose leaf fadeth, and as a garden that hath no water. And the strong shall be as tow, and his work as a spark; and they shall both burn together, and none shall quench them” (Isa. 1:19-31). “Behold, Jehovah maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof. And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the creditor, so with the debtor; as with the taker of interest, so with the giver of interest to him. The earth shall be utterly emptied, and utterly laid waste; for Jehovah hath spoken this word. The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the lofty people of the earth do languish. The earth also is polluted under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, violated the statutes, broken the everlasting covenant. Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are found guilty: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left. The new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the merry-hearted do sigh. The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaseth. They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. The waste city is broken down; every house is shut up, that no man may come in. There is a crying in the streets because of the wine; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone. In the city is left desolation, and the gate is smitten with destruction. For thus shall it be in the midst of the earth among the peoples, as the shaking of an olive-tree, as the gleanings when the vintage is done” (Isa. 24:1-13). “Isaiah 24:1-13... The decimation of populations is beyond comprehension: ‘few men left’ (vs. 6); the situation is compared with the few olives and grapes left after the harvest (vs. 13)” (McClain, GK, p. 182). “But ye that forsake Jehovah, that forget my holy mountain, that prepare a table for Fortune, and that fill up mingled wine unto Destiny; I will destine you to the sword, and ye shall all bow down to the slaughter; because when I called, ye did not answer; when I spake, ye did not hear; but ye did that which was evil in mine eyes, and chose that wherein I delighted not. Therefore thus saith the Lord Jehovah, Behold, my servants shall eat, but ye shall be hungry; behold, my servants shall drink, but ye shall be thirsty; behold, my servants shall rejoice, but ye shall be put to shame; behold, my servants shall sing for joy of heart, but ye shall cry for sorrow of heart, and shall wail for vexation of spirit. And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen; and the Lord Jehovah will slay thee; and he will call his servants by another name: so that he who blesseth himself in the earth shall bless himself in the God of truth; and he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the God of truth; because the former troubles are forgotten, and because they are hid from mine eyes” (Isa. 65:11-16). “For, behold, Jehovah will come with fire, and his chariots shall be like the whirlwind; to render his anger with fierceness, and his rebuke with flames of fire. For by fire will Jehovah execute judgment, and by his sword, upon all flesh; and the slain of Jehovah shall be many. They that sanctify themselves and purify themselves to go unto the gardens, behind one in the midst, eating swine’s flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, they shall come to an end together, saith Jehovah. For I know their works and their thoughts: the time cometh, that I will gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come, and shall see my glory” (Isa. 66:15-18). “And thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, the God of Israel: Drink ye, and be drunken, and spew, and fall, and rise no more, because of the sword which I will send among you. And it shall be, if they refuse to take the cup at thy hand to drink, then shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith Jehovah of hosts: Ye shall surely drink. For, lo, I begin to work evil at the city which is called by my name; and should ye be utterly unpunished? Ye shall not be unpunished; for I will call for a sword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, saith Jehovah of hosts. Therefore prophesy thou against them all these words, and say unto them, Jehovah will roar from on high, and utter his voice from his holy habitation; he will mightily roar against his fold; he will give a shout, as they that tread the grapes, against all the inhabitants of the earth. A noise shall come even to the end of the earth; for Jehovah hath a controversy with the nations; he will enter into judgment with all flesh: as for the wicked, he will give them to the sword, saith Jehovah. Thus saith Jehovah of hosts, Behold, evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great tempest shall be raised up from the uttermost parts of the earth. And the slain of Jehovah shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: they shall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the face of the ground” (Jer. 25:27-33). “In the 25th chapter of Jeremiah... The devastating effects are pictured in verse 33: even the proper burial of the dead will finally become a task beyond the power of the living. As all this is related to man’s failure to recognize and obey the true God, who therefore ‘hath a controversy with the nations’ (vs. 31)” (McClain, GK, p. 182). “Behold, the tempest of Jehovah, even his wrath, is gone forth, a sweeping tempest: it shall burst upon the head of the wicked. The fierce anger of Jehovah shall not return, until he have executed, and till he have performed the intents of his heart: in the latter days ye shall understand it” (Jer. 30:23-24). “Fear not thou, O Jacob my servant, saith Jehovah; for I am with thee: for I will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee; but I will not make a full end of thee, but I will correct thee in measure, and will in no wise leave thee unpunished” (Jer. 46:28). “But as for them whose heart walketh after the heart of their detestable things and their abominations, I will bring their way upon their own heads, saith the Lord Jehovah” (Ezek. 11:21). “As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, surely with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, will I be king over you: and I will bring you out from the peoples, and will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out; and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there will I enter into judgment with you face to face. Like as I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I enter into judgment with you, saith the Lord Jehovah. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant; and I will purge out from among you the rebels, and them that transgress against me; I will bring them forth out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel: and ye shall know that I am Jehovah... And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have polluted yourselves; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have dealt with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 20:33-44). "Let thy hand be lifted up above thine adversaries, and let all thine enemies be cut off. And it shall come to pass in that day, saith Jehovah, that I will cut off thy horses out of the midst of thee, and will destroy thy chariots: and I will cut off the cities of thy land, and will throw down all thy strongholds. And I will cut off witchcrafts out of thy hand; and thou shalt have no more soothsayers: and I will cut off thy graven images and thy pillars out of the midst of thee; and thou shalt no more worship the work of thy hands; and I will pluck up thine Asherim out of the midst of thee; and I will destroy thy cities. And I will execute vengeance in anger and wrath upon the nations which hearkened not" (Mic. 5:9-15). "I will utterly consume all things from off the face of the ground, saith Jehovah. I will consume man and beast; I will consume the birds of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea, and the stumblingblocks with the wicked; and I will cut off man from off the face of the ground, saith Jehovah" (Zeph. 1:2-3). "The great day of Jehovah is near, it is near and hasteth greatly, even the voice of the day of Jehovah; the mighty man crieth there bitterly. That day is a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of wasteness and desolation, a day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of the trumpet and alarm, against the fortified cities, and against the high battlements. And I will bring distress upon men, that they shall walk like blind men, because they have sinned against Jehovah; and their blood shall be poured out as dust, and their flesh as dung. Neither their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them in the day of Jehovah's wrath; but the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy: for he will make an end, yea, a terrible end, of all them that dwell in the land" (Zeph. 1:14-18). "I have cut off nations; their battlements are desolate; I have made their streets waste, so that none passeth by; their cities are destroyed, so that there is no man, so that there is no inhabitant. I said, Only fear thou me; receive correction; so her dwelling shall not be cut off, according to all that I have appointed concerning her: but they rose early and corrupted all their doings. Therefore wait ye for me, saith Jehovah, until the day that I rise up to the prey; for my determination is to gather the nations, that I may assemble the kingdoms, to pour upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger; for all the earth shall be devoured with the fire of my jealousy” (Zeph. 3:6-8). “And it shall come to pass, that in all the land, saith Jehovah, two parts therein shall be cut off and die; but the third shall be left therein. And I will bring the third part into the fire, and will refine them as silver is refined, and will try them as gold is tried. They shall call on my name, and I will hear them: I will say, It is my people; and they shall say, Jehovah is my God” (Zech. 13:8-9). “But who can abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner’s fire, and like fuller’s soap: and he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the sons of Levi, and refine them as gold and silver; and they shall offer unto Jehovah offerings in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto Jehovah, as in the days of old, and as in ancient years. And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against the false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the sojourner from his right, and fear not me, saith Jehovah of hosts. For I, Jehovah, change not; therefore ye, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed” (Mal. 3:2-6). “Then they that feared Jehovah spake one with another; and Jehovah hearkened, and heard, and a book of remembrance was written before him, for them that feared Jehovah, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith Jehovah of hosts, even mine own possession, in the day that I make; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not” (Mal. 3:16-18). “For, behold, the day cometh, it burneth as a furnace; and all the proud, and all that work wickedness, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith Jehovah of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch” (Mal. 4:1). “He presented another parable to them, saying, “The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a man who sowed good seed in his field. But while men were sleeping, his enemy came and sowed tares also among the wheat, and went away. But when the wheat sprang up and bore grain, then the tares became evident also. And the slaves of the landowner came and said to him, “Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? How then does it have tares?” And he said to them, “An enemy has done this!” And the slaves said to him, “Do you want us, then, to go and gather them up?” But he said, “No; lest while you are gathering up the tares, you may root up the wheat with them. Allow both to grow together until the harvest; and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, ‘First gather up the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them up; but gather the wheat into my barn’” (Matt. 13:24-31). “Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a dragnet cast into the sea, and gathering fish of every kind; and when it was filled, they drew it up on the beach; and they sat down, and gathered the good fish into containers, but the bad they threw away. So it will be at the end of the age; the angels shall come forth, and take out the wicked from among the righteous, and will cast them into the furnace of fire; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth” (Matt. 13:47-50). “And as were the days of Noah, so shall be the coming of the Son of man. For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and they knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall be the coming of the Son of man. Then shall two man be in the field; one is taken, and one is left” (Matt. 24:37-40) “The illustrated parallel indicates that those ‘taken’ were not taken in the Rapture, but rather, like those ‘taken’ in the Flood, at the end of the Tribulation, taken in judgment. This is further supported by the parallel passage, where those ‘taken’ were brought to a place of judgment. The disciples asked where they would go, and Jesus replied, ‘Where there is a dead body, there the vultures will gather’ (Luke 17:37). Those ‘left’ to go into the Millennium after the judgment of the Tribulation were the ones saved” (Geisler, ST, 4:625). “Then there shall be two men in the field; one will be taken, and one will be left. Two women will be grinding at the mill; one will be taken, and one will be left” (Matt. 24:40-41). “Two men will be in the field; one will be taken [away in judgment] and the other left [to go into the kingdom]. Two women will be grinding with a hand mill; one will be taken [away in judgment] and the other left [to go into Messiah’s kingdom]’ (24:40-41)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 240). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats; and He will put the sheep on His right, and the goats on the left. Then the King will say to those on His right, “Come, you who are blessed of My Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For I was hungry, and you gave Me something to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me drink; I was a stranger, and you invited Me in; naked, and you clothed Me; I was sick, and you visited Me; I was in prison, and you came to Me.” Then the righteous will answer Him, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, and feed You, or thirsty, and give You drink? And when did we see You a stranger, and invite You in, or naked, and clothe You? And when did we see You sick, or in prison, and come to You?” And the King will answer and say to them, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did it to one of these brothers of Mine, even the least of them, you did it to Me.” Then He will also say to those on His left, “Depart from Me, accursed ones, into the eternal fire which has been prepared for the devil and his angels; for I was hungry, and you gave Me nothing to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave Me nothing to drink; I was a stranger, and you did not invite Me in; naked, and you did not clothe Me; sick, and in prison, and you did not visit Me.” Then they themselves also will answer, saying, “Lord, when did we see You hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not take care of You?” Then He will answer them, saying, “Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.” And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life” (Matt. 25:31-46). “The suggestion that some ‘goats’ (unsaved) will enter the Millennium is without any textual support” (Geisler, ST, 4:620). “And just as it happened in the days of Noah, so it shall be also in the days of the Son of Man: they were eating, they were drinking, they were marrying, they were being given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. It was the same as happened in the days of Lot: they were eating, they were drinking, they were buying, they were selling, they were planting, they were building; but on the day that Lot went out from Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all. It will be just the same on the day that the Son of Man is revealed. On that day, let not the one who is on the housetop and whose goods are in the house go down to take them away; and likewise let not the one who is in the field turn back. Remember Lot’s wife. Whoever seeks to keep his life shall lose it, and whoever loses his life shall preserve it. I tell you, on that night there will be two men in one bed; one will be taken, and the other will be left. There will be two women grinding at the same place; one will be taken, and the other will be left. [Two men will be in the field; one will be taken and the other will be left.”] And answering they said to Him, ‘Where, Lord?’ And He said to them, ‘Where the body is, there also will the vultures be gathered” (Luke 17:26–37). “For after all it is only just for God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, and to give relief to you who are afflicted and to us as well when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with His mighty angels in flaming fire, dealing out retribution to those who do not know God and to those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. And these will pay the penalty of eternal destruction, away from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of His power, when He comes to be glorified in His saints on that day, and to be marveled at among all who have believed — for our testimony to you was believed” (2 Thes. 1:6-10). “And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and sitting on the cloud was one like a son of man, having a golden crown on His head, and a sharp sickle in His hand. And another angel came out of the temple, crying out with a loud voice to Him who sat on the cloud, ‘Put in your sickle and reap, because the hour to reap has come, because the harvest of the earth is ripe.’ And He who sat on the cloud swung His sickle over the earth; and the earth was reaped. And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, and he also had a sharp sickle. And another angel, the one who has power over fire, came out from the altar; and he called with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, saying, ‘Put in your sharp sickle, and gather the clusters from the vine of the earth, because her grapes are ripe.’ And the angel swung his sickle to the earth, and gathered the clusters from the vine of the earth, and threw them into the great wine press of the wrath of God. And the wine press was trodden outside the city, and blood came out from the wine press, up to the horses’ bridles, for a distance of two hundred miles” (Rev. 14:14-20). “Scripture makes it very clear that all sinners will be cut off before the institution of the Kingdom (Isa. 1:19-31; 65:11-16; 66:15-18; Jer. 25:27-33; 30:23-24; Ezek. 11:21; 20:33-44; Mic. 5:9-15; Zech. 13:9; Mal. 3:2-6; 3:18; 4:3). In the record of the judgment of the nations (Matt. 25:35) it is revealed that only the saved enter the kingdom. In the parable of the wheat and the tares (Matt. 13:30-31) and in the parable of the good and bad fish (Matt. 13:49-50) it is shown that only the saved go into the kingdom” (Pentecost, TTC, p. 504). “...no unsaved person would enter the promised kingdom” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 238). “His return will terminate the opportunity for people to prepare themselves to enter the millennial kingdom, and only the prepared will be accepted. No unsaved (unprepared) person will be admitted into Christ’s millennial kingdom” (ibid., p. 258).

To save the world. “And unless those days had been cut short, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect those days shall be cut short” (Matt. 24:22). “And unless the Lord had shortened those days, no life would have been saved; but for the sake of the elect whom He chose, He shortened the days” (Mark

13:20). “so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:28). “King Jesus comes the second time unto Salvation (Heb. 9:28)” (Peters, TTK, 3:396) “Following His rejection by Israel all New Testament Scripture agrees in setting the goal, not in the present world order, but in the future at His second coming” (McClain, GK, p. 335). (See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Kingdom is to save mankind in the section A Kingdom is Needed To Accomplish God’s Plan of our chapter A Kingdom Needed.)

To end the times of the Gentiles. “and they will fall by the edge of the sword, and will be led captive into all the nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled under foot by the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled” (Luke 21:24). “Gentile domination ceases... it simply ceases because the new order or dominion introduced is immensely its superior in securing the happiness and glory of the Gentile nations” (Peters, TTK, 2:775). “‘Times of the Gentiles’... The visible Sovereignty of this world only becomes the Sovereignty of our Lord at the expiration of a pre-determined period, and for that we must patiently wait” (ibid., 3:12). “...‘the times of the Gentiles’ ends upon Christ’s return to the earth” (Walvoord, MK, p. 284). “The second coming will also mark the end of the Times of the Gentiles which will permit the dominant role that Israel will have in the Messianic Kingdom” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 541). (See also our discussion of the fact that the times of the Gentiles are terminated by Christ’s Second Advent in the section The Times of the Gentiles of our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom.)

To rule the world. “God be merciful unto us, and bless us, And cause his face to shine upon us; Selah That thy way may be known upon earth, Thy salvation among all nations. Let the peoples praise thee, O God; Let all the peoples praise thee. Oh let the nations be glad and sing for joy; For thou wilt judge the peoples with equity, And govern the nations upon earth. Selah Let the peoples praise thee, O God; Let all the peoples praise thee. The earth hath yielded its increase: God, even our own God, will bless us. God will bless us; And all the ends of the earth shall fear him” (Ps. 67:1-7). “Oh sing unto Jehovah a new song; For he hath done marvellous things: His right hand, and his holy arm, hath wrought salvation for him. Jehovah hath made known his salvation: His righteousness hath he openly showed in the sight of the nations. He hath remembered his lovingkindness and his faithfulness toward the house of Israel: All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. Make a joyful noise unto Jehovah, all the earth: Break forth and sing for joy, yea, sing praises. Sing praises unto Jehovah with the harp; With the harp and the voice of melody. With trumpets and sound of cornet Make a joyful noise before the King, Jehovah. Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; The world, and they that dwell therein; Let the floods clap their hands; Let the hills sing for joy together Before Jehovah; For he cometh to judge the earth: He will judge the world with righteousness, And the peoples with equity" (Ps. 98:1-9). "A Psalm of David. Jehovah saith unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thine enemies thy footstool. Jehovah will send forth the rod of thy strength out of Zion: Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people offer themselves willingly In the day of thy power, in holy array: Out of the womb of the morning Thou hast the dew of thy youth. Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent: Thou art a priest for ever After the order of Melchizedek. The Lord at thy right hand Will strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He will judge among the nations, He will fill the places with dead bodies; He will strike through the head in many countries. He will drink of the brook in the way: Therefore will he lift up the head" (Ps. 110:0-7). "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this" (Isa. 9:6-7). "Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed; for Jehovah of hosts will reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem; and before his elders shall be glory" (Isa. 24:23). "And in the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall the sovereignty thereof be left to another people; but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever" (Dan. 2:44). "I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed" (Dan. 7:13-14). "For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet" (1 Cor. 15:25). "John to the seven churches that are in Asia: Grace to you and peace, from Him who is and who was and who is to come; and from the seven Spirits who are before His throne; and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the first-born of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth. To Him who loves us, and released us from our sins by His blood” (Rev. 1:4-5) “And the seventh angel sounded; and there arose loud voices in heaven, saying, ‘The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He will reign forever and ever’” (Rev. 11:15). “And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron; and her child was caught up to God and to His throne” (Rev. 12:5). “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS’” (Rev. 19:11-16). “...diadem crowns, indicating His natural royalty” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 345). “The time is surely coming when all governments will be overthrown, making place for the universal Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ” (Peters, TTK, 2:773). “A Theocracy embracing a pure Infallibility, administered through righteous and glorified agents, is to possess the rule over the earth. Fallible Imperialism, with its weakness and vices, will be crushed under its force; Constitutional Monarchy, with its utter inability to meet the clashing interests of classes and Republicanism which suffers from the suffrage of self-interest and ignorance being made the basis of its ordering, all forms of government, unable to remove the evils under which their subjects are groaning, must be subverted and give place to this one, which in itself honors God and blesses humanity with a perfect government that fully performs, yea immensely more, what others promise. This is clearly taught. All that oppose this coming Kingdom and its august Ruler shall be destroyed. Kings and nobles, high and low, rich and poor, who resist, shall fall beneath its invincible power—a power which will settle all difficulties between nation and nation, aristocracy and commoner, capital and labor, man and man” (ibid., p. 780). “The importance of this grand event cannot be overemphasized. For the arrival of the divine King from heaven to take over the kingdoms of the world will mark the most crucial turning point in human history since Calvary. From this point onward nothing will ever be the same again. The deep darkness of man's 'day' will now pass into the glorious light of God's 'Day'" (McClain, GK, p. 192). "Best of all, the change from darkness into light will be irreversible, leaving no room for any point of return back to the dismal failures of man's attempts to govern himself" (ibid.). "After judging the nations as righteous Judge, He is to rule as King, with a rod of iron. These nations will gather and attempt to destroy the Jews in order to abolish God's rule over them (Ps. 2:1-6). However, they will partake of the wrath of God at the Second Coming and He will rule over them. Hence, Jesus will indeed be the King of Kings and Lord of Lords" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 346). (See also our detailed discussion of the government of the Millennial Kingdom in the section Description of the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

To restore the Theocratic Kingdom. "In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up its ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old" (Amos 9:11) "He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end" (Luke 1:32-33). "Repent therefore and return, that your sins may be wiped away, in order that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord; and that He may send Jesus, the Christ appointed for you, whom heaven must receive until the period of restoration of all things about which God spoke by the mouth of His holy prophets from ancient time" (Acts 3:19-21). ""AFTER THESE THINGS I will return, AND I WILL REBUILD THE TABERNACLE OF DAVID WHICH HAS FALLEN, AND I WILL REBUILD ITS RUINS, AND I WILL RESTORE IT"" (Acts 15:16) "If, as a punishment, and for purposes of mercy, God can so minutely foretell and historically overrule the overthrow of the Theocracy and Theocratic people, He can as readily predict and bring to pass the restoration of the same and the overthrow of the Gentile powers" (Peters, TTK, 2:773). "When Jesus so plainly predicts its postponement to the Sec. Advent, it is pure assumption in men to profess to found a Theocratic Kingdom, in this or that form, before that Advent" (ibid., 3:546). "...restore His theocratic kingdom rule on the earth" (Showers, M, p. 112) (See also our discussion of the promise of eventual restoration of the Theocracy in our chapter The Decline and Fall of the Theocratic Kingdom and our discussion of the restoration of Israel in our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

To inaugurate the Millennial Kingdom. "...the second advent itself. The amillenarian holds that it is the event beginning the eternal state while the premillenarian holds it begins the millennial kingdom on earth" (Walvoord, MK, p. 109). (See our detailed discussion of the inauguration of the Kingdom in our next chapter Inauguration of the Kingdom.)

To achieve world peace. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9:6). "All the earnest efforts of sincere men to bring in a permanent condition of world peace without the presence of the 'Prince of peace' will come to nothing. The world must learn its lesson: 'Without me ye can do nothing' (John 15:5); a lesson that even the people of God are sometimes in danger of forgetting, when dealing with mundane problems" (McClain, GK, p. 183). (See our discussion of the fact that peace will be one of the characteristics of life in the Millennial Kingdom in the section Description of the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

To complete the work that Christ initiated at His First Coming. "The next day he saw Jesus coming to him, and said, 'Behold, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world'" (John 1:29)! "who gave Himself for our sins, that He might deliver us out of this present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father" (Gal. 1:4) "so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation without reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him" (Heb. 9:28). "The prophets give place to a very small space in describing the humiliation, sufferings, and death of the Messiah, when compared with the larger one appropriated in portraying the realization of salvation under His Theocratic rule. The former, indispensable, was a sad, mournful subject, the latter a triumphant one; the former, exceedingly precious, was a means to secure a glorious end, the latter a description of the splendid results attained by it. We would not for worlds detract from the glory of the cross, but while surveying it with love and reverence, it would be weakness and lack of wisdom if we did not look with hope and joy at the sublime end which it is intended to subserve. We are too apt by confining ourselves to the sacrifice on the cross, to limit the range of Scripture passages. The intent and scope that the Spirit had in view, is marred by our not constantly keeping in view the entire Divine Plan which the blessed sacrifice so vitally subserves. Thus e.g. John 1:29; Gal. 1:4, etc. receive deeper significancy when we contemplate redemption perfected, and then consider by whom it is perfected, and by what a costly and necessary sacrifice its ultimate completion and realization are secured. The full meaning of Jesus being the propitiation of our sins and of the world, will be only seen and appreciated when covenants and prophecy are amply fulfilled” (Peters, TTK, 3:453).

To fulfill the covenants and prophecies. “Thus saith Jehovah: If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, so that there shall not be day and night in their season; then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant, that he shall not have a son to reign upon his throne; and with the Levites the priests, my ministers” (Jer. 33:20–21). “As in the days of thy coming forth out of the land of Egypt will I show unto them marvellous things. The nations shall see and be ashamed of all their might; they shall lay their hand upon their mouth; their ears shall be deaf. They shall lick the dust like a serpent; like crawling things of the earth they shall come trembling out of their close places; they shall come with fear unto Jehovah our God, and shall be afraid because of thee. Who is a God like unto thee, that pardoneth iniquity, and passeth over the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? he retaineth not his anger for ever, because he delighteth in lovingkindness. He will again have compassion upon us; he will tread our iniquities under foot; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the lovingkindness to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old” (Mic. 7:15-20). “Do not think that I came to abolish the Law or the Prophets; I did not come to abolish but to fulfill. For truly I say to you, until heaven and earth pass away, not the smallest letter or stroke shall pass from the Law until all is accomplished” (Matt. 5:17-18). “He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David; and He will reign over the house of Jacob forever; and His kingdom will have no end” (Luke 1:32-33). “And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write: He [Jesus] who is holy, who is true, who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut, and who shuts and no one opens, says this” (Rev. 3:7) “and one of the elders said to me, ‘Stop weeping; behold, the Lion that is from the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has overcome so as to open the book and its seven seals” (Rev. 5:5). “I, Jesus, have sent My angel to testify to you these things for the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright morning star” (Rev. 22:16). “...our subject... we only have to do with the course of events down to the re-establishment of the Davidic Kingdom, and to the fulfillment of the covenants and the promises based upon them... God knows the future and makes no statements concerning it that shall not come to pass” (Peters, TTK, 2:711). “An essential part of the work of Christ, is to fulfill the covenants and the prophets. This He has done to a certain extent, and is now performing in the Church and world, but the most remarkable and desirable portion is still unfulfilled. The sealing of the covenant with His own precious blood, etc., is exceedingly precious, but the fulfillment of the covenant in actual realization is described as blessed beyond description. Indeed, if we but stop to reflect, that the prophets scarcely dwell upon the intermediate, intercalary state but hasten on to describe, under every variety of expressive language, the astounding work that the Lord shall perform in the day when the Covenanted Kingdom and its attendant blessings shall be experienced, then we have evidence, afforded by the Spirit, how much of the utmost value is still related to the future” (ibid., 3:453). “Thus saith the LORD; If ye can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, and that there should not be day and night in their season; then may also my covenant be broken with David my servant, that he should not have a son to reign upon his throne’ (Jer. 33:20-21)... ‘In that day,’ saith the LORD, ‘will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen... and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old’ (Amos 9:11)... The rule of Messiah, while something wholly new and without parallel in all human history, will nevertheless display and maintain an unbroken historic connection with a kingdom which once existed ‘in the days of old.’ This is a Biblical fact beyond dispute which must be taken into account as a guiding principle in all attempts to understand the Kingdom set forth in Old Testament prophecy” (McClain, GK, p. 148). (See also our chapters Covenants of the Kingdom and The Kingdom in Hebrew Prophecy, and our discussion of the fulfillment of Israel’s covenants in the section Description of the Millennial Kingdom of our chapter The Millennial Kingdom.)

And, to fulfill God’s purposes for the earth and for man. “Apart from the reign of Christ in a Davidic kingdom here on earth, God’s promises and God’s covenants would have failed. And apart from this rule, God’s purpose for man would never be brought to conclusion. God’s purpose for the earth would be unrealized and the problem generated by Satan’s rebellion would never be resolved. Thus the physical, literal reign of Christ on the earth is a theological and biblical necessity—unless Satan is victorious over God” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 316). (See our discussions of the facts that the purposes of the Kingdom include the restoration of creation, making the world worth having been created and accomplishing God’s original purpose in creating man in the section A Kingdom is Needed To Accomplish God's Plan of our chapter A Kingdom Needed.)

Characteristics of the Second Coming

Because the Second Coming is an entirely supernatural event, the characteristics of the Second Coming are those of an event far beyond the scope and capabilities of mortal man.

Specifically, the Second Coming of the King is:

Designed by God. "It is utterly beyond the capacity of 'ignorant and unlearned' men to introduce and develop so perfect and majestic an adaptation to an end which purposes the most glorious and desirable redemption" (Peters, TTK, 3:529).

Possible. "And looking upon them Jesus said to them, 'With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible'" (Matt. 19:26). While admittedly far beyond the capabilities of natural man, Jesus' return in glory is no more impossible than His creation of the world, or the virgin birth, or the transfiguration, or His resurrection. If the latter events are within the realm of possibility for an omniscient, omniscient and omnipotent God, then reasonably so is the former.

Necessary. "The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show to His bond-servants, the things which must shortly take place; and He sent and communicated it by His angel to His bond-servant John" (Rev. 1:1) "The writer may be allowed to add: the great defect of systems of Theology for centuries has been the following: they have laid too much stress on provisional redemption and not on redemption itself as realized at the Sec. Advent in 'the day of Christ.' Thus the mysterious sacrifice, exceedingly precious by which redemption is procured and assured is deemed the only great and central point in Theology, while the completion of redemption is merely secondary to that of the means. This blemish in many works which reflects upon the Christship of Jesus ought to be removed. A little reflection teaches this: if that sacrifice alone is sufficient to secure our salvation, how comes it that it does not save from temporal death, from temporal evil, corruption, etc., and that it becomes absolutely necessary for Jesus the Christ to come again to salvation in behalf of those who honor His sacrifice. Something then additional to that sacrifice is needed, viz., the personal interference of the Saviour in our behalf. The sacrifice made by Him enables Him to do this, constituting Him, in view of its acceptance by the Father, a perfect Redeemer, and enabling Him in accord with right, because of its acceptance by us, to exert His power and Christship in our interests. If this be so that something must be superadded, when the time arrives, to the sacrifice to secure what faith and hope in the sacrifice sees and desires, why refuse to recognize distinctly, as the Bible does, that the Redeemer to perfect His own work must come again ‘the second time unto salvation’? The prevailing view makes that Second Coming a minor point, a comparative insignificant matter (alas! some even who profess to be ministers of ‘the Christ’ proclaim it ‘an exploded doctrine’), exalts the means, the preparatory work above ‘the Christship’ of the future, and painfully evidences its lack of faith in salvation obtained under Theocratic auspices” (Peters, TTK, 3:529).

Certain. “How then shall the Scriptures be fulfilled, that it must happen this way” (Matt. 26:54)? “If he called them gods, to whom the word of God came (and the Scripture cannot be broken” (John 10:35) “For yet in a very little while, He who is coming will come, and will not delay” (Heb. 10:37). “I am the Alpha and the Omega,’ says the Lord God, ‘who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty” (Rev. 1:8). “And he said to me, These words are faithful and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent His angel to show to His bond-servants the things which must shortly take place. And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he who heeds the words of the prophecy of this book” (Rev. 22:6-7). “He who testifies to these things says, Yes, I am coming quickly. Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen” (Rev. 22:20-21). “The results of the First Advent, the accurate fulfillment down to the present day, the personal appropriation of the truths relating to it, impress us with a deep and abiding sense of the reality of that foreknowledge of the future which promises so much connected with a Second coming of the same Jesus” (Peters, TTK, 1:249).

Desired. “What if God, although willing to demonstrate His wrath and to make His power known, endured with much patience vessels of wrath prepared for destruction” (Rom. 9:22)? “in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8). “But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, in which the heavens will pass away with a roar and the elements will be destroyed with intense heat, and the earth and its works will be burned up. Since all these things are to be destroyed in this way, what sort of people ought you to be in holy conduct and godliness, looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God, on account of which the heavens will be destroyed by burning, and the elements will melt with intense heat” (2 Pet. 3:10-12)! “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus” (Rev. 22:20). “His Second Coming... is the most desirable event that can occur. It is an event desirable to Christ (only delayed through motives of mercy and grace), because then He obtains His inheritance, and His glory is revealed” (Peters, TTK, 3:314) “Every one who truly loves the Saviour will (2 Tim. 4:8) ‘love His appearing’” (ibid., p. 315) “Barnes says (Com. 1 Thess. 1; Rom. 9)... ‘It should be always the characteristic of our piety, as it was that of John, to say, “Even so, come, Lord Jesus.”’ Commenting on 2 Tim. 4:8, he says: ‘To believe in the Sec. Advent of the Lord Jesus to judge the world, and to desire His return, became a kind of a criterion by which Christians were known. No others but true Christians were supposed to believe in that, and no others truly desired it. It is so now. It is one of the characteristics of a true Christian that he sincerely desires the return of his Saviour, and would welcome His appearing in the clouds of heaven.’ On 2 Pet. 3:13 he remarks (explaining the ‘halting unto’ to denote ‘to await with desire’): ‘The true Christian does not dread the Coming of that day. He looks forward to it as the period of His redemption, and would welcome, at any time, the return of his Lord and Saviour. While he is willing to wait as long as it shall please God for the Advent of His Redeemer, yet to Him the brightest prospect in the future is that hour when He shall come to take him to Himself’” (ibid.). “So Bullinger said: ‘All the godly, with sighs unspeakable, wish for the Coming of the Judge in glory;’ so Luther, Melancthon, Tyndale, Latimer, Bradford, Bunyan, Piscator, Ridley and a host of others” (ibid., p. 317). “It is delightful to think of the time when in glorified social converse we shall hear from the quickened lips of an Irenaeus, or Justin, or Luther, or Calvin, or Zwingli, and many others, how they, amid trial and darkness, loved ‘the Appearing’ of Jesus—how this hope sustained them, etc.” (ibid.) (See also our discussion of the proper attitude of the Christian toward the Rapture of the church in the section Attitudes Toward the Rapture of our chapter The Rapture of the Church.)

Swift. “For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat; and I will execute judgment upon them there for my people and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations: and they have parted my land, and have cast lots for my people, and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they may drink. Yea, and what are ye to me, O Tyre, and Sidon, and all the regions of Philistia? will ye render me a recompense? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompense upon your own head” (Joel 3:1-4). “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus” (Rev. 22:20). “There is a current and popular idea that the coming of the Kingdom of God to earth is a process, long and gradual... Such a notion has no foundation in the writings of the Old Testament prophets... In the case of those Gentile nations which have contemptuously scattered and afflicted the chosen nation of Israel, there will come divine retribution ‘swiftly and speedily’ (Joel 3:1-4)” (McClain, GK, p. 174).

Personal. “The allusion to false Christs is indicative of their personal coming; now the speaking of His own Coming in connection with such, without any discrimination as to the manner of coming (i.e. as to personality), shows that a personal Coming is denoted” (Peters, TTK, 2:191). “Every dispensation in the historical development of Redemption is preceded by a personal manifestation of God, as the Adamic, Mosaic, the present; and as the Millennial differs from this one also, introducing a new era, and promises in glowing terms a special manifestation, we cannot see why it should form an exception” (ibid., p. 195). “Those to whom Paul wrote were looking for the personal Advent of Christ” (ibid., p. 209). “The Jews, impelled by the prophecies, looked for a personal Coming of the Messiah to destroy the wicked one” (ibid., p. 210). “The word Parousia is used in the New Test. twenty-four times, Matt. 24:3, 27, 37, 39; 1 Cor. 15:23, and 16:17; 2 Cor. 7:6, 7, and 10:10; Phil. 1:26, and 2:3 [2:12]; 1 Thess. 2:19, and 3:13, and 4:15, and 5:23; 2 Thess. 2:1, 8, 9; James 5:7, 8; 2 Pet. 1:16, and 3:4, 12, and 1 John 2:18. In all places where applied to persons it denotes, as all admit, a personal presence or arrival” (ibid., p. 211). Note: Jehovah’s Witnesses believe that in relation to Jesus’ Second Coming, the Greek word parousia signifies an invisible presence (they believe that Jesus has been invisibly present since his taking Kingdom power in the year 1914). However, an examination of the twenty-four occurrences of parousia in the New Testament does not support this idea of an invisible presence, but rather of a personal (as per George Peters’ comment immediately above) and visible one: “And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, ‘Tell us, when will these things be, and what will be the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age’” (Matt. 24:3)? “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:27). “For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah” (Matt. 24:37). “and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:39). “But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, after that those who are Christ’s at His coming” (1 Cor. 15:23) “And I rejoice over the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus; because they have supplied what was lacking on your part” (1 Cor. 16:17). “But God, who comforts the depressed, comforted us by the coming of Titus; and not only by his coming, but also by the comfort with which he was comforted in you, as he reported to us your longing, your mourning, your zeal for me; so that I rejoiced even more” (2 Cor. 7:6–7). “For they say, ‘His letters are weighty and strong, but his [Paul’s] personal presence is unimpressive, and his speech contemptible” (2 Cor. 10:10). “so that your proud confidence in me may abound in Christ Jesus through my coming to you again” (Phil. 1:26). “So then, my beloved, just as you have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your salvation with fear and trembling” (Phil. 2:12) “For who is our hope or joy or crown of exultation? Is it not even you, in the presence of our Lord Jesus at His coming” (1 Thes. 2:19)? “so that He may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all His saints” (1 Thes. 3:13). “For this we say to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, and remain until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep” (1 Thes. 4:15). “Now may the God of peace Himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be preserved complete, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ” (1 Thes. 5:23). “Now we request you, brethren, with regard to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together to Him” (2 Thes. 2:1) “And then that lawless one will be revealed whom the Lord will slay with the breath of His mouth and bring to an end by the appearance of His coming” (2 Thes. 2:8) “that is, the one whose coming is in accord with the activity of Satan, with all power and signs and false wonders” (2 Thes. 2:9) “Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious produce of the soil, being patient about it, until it gets the early and late rains. You too be patient; strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand” (James 5:7–8). “For we did not follow cleverly devised tales when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of His majesty” (2 Pet. 1:16). “and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation” (2 Pet. 3:4). “looking for and hastening the coming of the day of God, on account of which the heavens will be destroyed by burning, and the elements will melt with intense heat” (2 Pet. 3:12)! “Children, it is the last hour; and just as you heard that antichrist is coming, even now many antichrists have arisen; from this we know that it is the last hour" (1 John. 2:18).

Literal. "The simple fact that they are thus spoken of together, without an effort at discrimination; that the Second is far more definitely and minutely described than the First; that they both (the First as preparative) stand related to the Millennium—this should influence us to believe that as one was literal, so the other will be the same" (Peters, TTK, 2:184). "When reading Martensen, one wonders how he would have spiritualized the promises relating to the First Advent, had he lived before its realization" (ibid., p. 284). "We affirm (1) that the prophecies relating to the First Advent brought a literal Coming of the Messiah, and not a spiritual one; and (2) that the predictions relating to the Second Advent, being given in the same intended sense (for no discrimination is made), will also bring us a literal, personal Coming of the Messiah. Simple consistency demands such a faith" (ibid., p. 350).

Bodily. "And in that day His feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which is in front of Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in its middle from east to west by a very large valley, so that half of the mountain will move toward the north and the other half toward the south" (Zech. 14:4). "The Spirit, as if purposely to meet the anticipated unbelief, even condescends to tell us, that 'His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mt. of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the East,' Zech. 14:4" (Peters, TTK, 2:178). "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you to Myself; that where I am, there you may be also" (John 14:3). "If I go... I will come again"... If His departure was in bodily form, so also must be His return" (McClain, GK, p. 374). "And after He had said these things, He was lifted up while they were looking on, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And as they were gazing intently into the sky while He was departing, behold, two men in white clothing stood beside them; and they also said, Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven. Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey away" (Acts 1:9–12). "Dr. Nast's remark (Art. in West. Ch. Advocate, Aug. 6th, 1879) is eminently true; 'We must hold fast to this, that the phrase "the Son of man cometh" has the definite signification of a "Coming in person" (Parousia), concerning which Bh. Merrill (an opponent) says, "If Christ does not come in person as the Son of man, He does not come at all." Twenty-nine times the Saviour applies His Davidic title, “Son of man,” as “coming,” “come,” “came,” to His personal visible appearing on earth, either at the First or Second Advent” (Peters, TTK, 2:167). “This should also be a caution to a certain class of believers who, with an evident desire to honor ‘the Christ’ unconsciously and with a Gnostic element of opposition to matter, strip Jesus, the Messiah, of all humanity by a process of spiritualizing, so that when He comes again, it is not as the Son of Man, but as a purely spiritual being stripped of all human relationship. The Messiah that they present is not recognizable by covenant or prediction. While not denying His coming, they do deny the personality—as covenanted and predicted—of the Christ” (ibid., p. 700). “According to Jesus, this coming will be both bodily and visible. Christ’s feet shall touch the Mount of Olives as predicted in Zechariah 14:4, and He will return in the same manner that He ascended into heaven (Acts 1:11)” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 254).

Visible. “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13–14). “and the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isa. 40:5). “How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation, that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth! The voice of thy watchmen! they lift up the voice, together do they sing; for they shall see eye to eye, when Jehovah returneth to Zion. Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem; for Jehovah hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. Jehovah hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God” (Isa. 52:7–10). “And in that day His feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which is in front of Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in its middle from east to west by a very large valley, so that half of the mountain will move toward the north and the other half toward the south” (Zech. 14:4). “For I say to you, from now on you shall not see Me until you say, “Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord”” (Matt. 23:39)! “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt 24:27). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats” (Matt. 25:31-32) “But Jesus kept silent. And the high priest said to Him, ‘I adjure You by the living God, that You tell us whether You are the Christ, the Son of God.’ Jesus said to him, ‘You have said it yourself; nevertheless I tell you, hereafter you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming on the clouds of heaven’” (Matt. 26:63-64). “And Jesus said, ‘I am; and you shall see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven’” (Mark 14:62). “For just as the lightning, when it flashes out of one part of the sky, shines to the other part of the sky, so will the Son of Man be in His day” (Luke 17:24). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory” (Mark 13:26). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory” (Luke 21:27). “and they also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven’” (Acts 1:11). “The angels did not prophesy that Jesus would return to the same place, but rather in the same manner in which He had left. Jesus left in the clouds of Heaven and, according to Matthew 24:30, He will return in the clouds of Heaven” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 343). “that you keep the commandment without stain or reproach until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, which He will bring about at the proper time — He who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords” (1 Tim. 6:14-15) “I solemnly charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His kingdom” (2 Tim. 4:1) “in the future there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will award to me on that day; and not only to me, but also to all who have loved His appearing” (2 Tim. 4:8). “Otherwise, He would have needed to suffer often since the foundation of the world; but now once at the consummation of the ages He has been manifested to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. And inasmuch as it is appointed for men to die once and after this comes judgment, so Christ also, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, shall appear a second time for salvation with- out reference to sin, to those who eagerly await Him” (Heb. 9:26-28). “Behold, He is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see Him, even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev 1:7). “Still others contend that Christ, in some way unexplained had come or was to come in and through them, either spiritually or by the conference of power, etc.” (Peters, TTK, 1:473) “Some declare for a present Kingdom in the church, and also for a future one here on earth at the Sec. Advent, but incorporate with the latter mystical conceptions or spiritualizing deductions (which detract from the early view), as e.g. making the reign of the Messiah invisible, retaining the Son of Man during this period in the third heaven, etc., thus violating the express terms of the covenant and promises” (ibid., p. 524). “He comes not as the invisible God, who may be present unseen and unknown, but as Man, the Son of Man, the Man ordained, and one too, as will be shown hereafter, to be seen and recognized” (ibid., 2:167). “Dr. Gleig (His Bible, vol. 2 p. 190) incidentally remarks: ‘There was a tradition current in Judea that the Messiah would come direct from the clouds of heaven.’ Hence, some writers say, the Messiah was named ‘the Son of Clouds.’ Such an expectation was evidently based on the prophecy of Daniel, and this indicates: (1) that Jesus in His address to Caiaphas indorses this view; (2) that He places His Kingdom after that period as they understood it; (3) that Daniel must have been inspired when he passes over this dispensation—the First Advent—and locates the Coming of the Kingdom in the future, at the Sec. Advent” (ibid., p. 187). “This coming dispensation is not dependent on human instrumentality; it is directly inaugurated by Jesus Himself, and in so marked a manner—by the works performed, the results attained, etc.—that no one can fail to see it” (ibid., p. 408). “If the spiritualizers had their way consistently, then the second coming of Christ would have to be a spiritual coming instead of a literal one. Is that not precisely the conclusion and predicament of the liberals” (Feinberg, M, p. 49)? “It is well known that liberals interpret the second coming in a spiritualizing manner as an ever-present one” (ibid., p. 53). “Christ has come once literally, and He will again break into the stream of history with no less literality” (McClain, GK, p. 137). “In the day of the coming Kingdom, it will not be necessary to write endless volumes on Christian ‘evidences’ and ‘apologetics.’ Debates on the existence of God will become absurd and obsolete, suited only to be classed with arguments over the existence of sunlight. Eschatological systems which define the Kingdom of God wholly in terms of the invisible will need to be revised. For the supernatural evidences of the existence of God, and of His Christ, and of His Kingdom, will be open to all men. “The glory of the LORD shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it' (Isa. 40:5). In that day it can be said truly that "The LORD hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God' (Isa. 52:7-10)" (ibid., p. 176). "...unlike His First Coming, the Second Coming will not be in secret. When the Messiah returns the second time, all men will see it, for it will be like a flash of lightning surrounding the world" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 634). "...his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives..." (Zech. 14:4)... Again, when the literal sense makes good sense, seeking other sense results in nonsense... 'Men of Galilee,' they said, 'why do you stand here looking into the sky? This same Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come back in the same way you have seen him go into heaven' (Acts 1:11)... Since they saw Him go visibly, physically, and gloriously, He will return visibly, physically and gloriously" (Geisler, ST, 4:468). "The spiritual kingdom is what He established while He was on earth the first time; at this juncture (His return) there is a major and radical transformation from a purely invisible kingdom to a visible one, from the early mystery form of the kingdom to the messianic form, from the spiritual to the political dimension of Christ's reign (cf. 1 Cor. 15:24-27)" (ibid., p. 491). "then comes the end, when He delivers up the kingdom to the God and Father, when He has abolished all rule and all authority and power. For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet. The last enemy that will be abolished is death. For He has put all things in subjection under His feet. But when He says, 'All things are put in subjection,' it is evident that He is excepted who put all things in subjection to Him" (1 Cor. 15:24-27). (See also our discussion of Jesus' visible parousia in our paragraph Personal above.)

Glorious. "There went up a smoke out of his nostrils, And fire out of his mouth devoured: Coals were kindled by it. He bowed the heavens also, and came down; And thick darkness was under his feet. And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly; Yea, he soared upon the wings of the wind. He made darkness his hiding-place, his pavilion round about him, Darkness of waters, thick clouds of the skies. At the brightness before him his thick clouds passed, Hailstones and coals of fire. Jehovah also thundered in the heavens, And the Most High uttered his voice, Hailstones and coals of fire. And he sent out his arrows, and scattered them; Yea, lightnings manifold, and discomfited them. Then the channels of waters appeared, And the foundations of the world were laid bare, At thy rebuke, O Jehovah, At the blast of the breath of thy nostrils. He sent from on high, he took me; He drew me out of many waters" (Ps. 18:8-16). "At His Second Coming, He will come with the wrath of God ([Ps. 18] vv. 8-9), riding upon a cherub (v. 10), which will have horse-like features, according to Revelation 19:11. There will be convulsions throughout nature at the Second Coming (vv. 11-15) as the entire world is illuminated by the brightness of His glorious return” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 350). “and the glory of Jehovah shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together; for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it” (Isa. 40:5). “For the Son of Man is going to come in the glory of His Father with His angels; and will then recompense every man according to his deeds” (Matt. 16:27). “For just as the lightning comes from the east, and flashes even to the west, so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt 24:27). “and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:30). “Throughout the Old Testament, clouds and the Shechinah Glory are interrelated. In this New Testament passage, the interrelationship can be seen again” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 343). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne. And all the nations will be gathered before Him; and He will separate them from one another, as the shepherd separates the sheep from the goats” (Matt. 25:31-32) “For just as the lightning, when it flashes out of one part of the sky, shines to the other part of the sky, so will the Son of Man be in His day” (Luke 17:24). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory” (Mark 13:26). “And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory” (Luke 21:27). “This Sec. Advent will be the greatest and grandest event that the world has ever yet witnessed... To this Coming the Scriptures especially turns the eye of faith and speaks of it in the most lofty and exultant strain; and we may rest assured that what God thus describes, and to which He directs the hope of prophets, Apostles, and believers, must be inconceivably magnificent. It is an honor to aid in upholding and directing attention to it” (Peters, TTK, 2:197). “While thus visibly manifesting Himself, it is also true that this very majesty may be veiled to some extent from mortals, and that the glorified saints are alone capable to behold His full glory” (ibid., p. 351). “For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels’ (Matt. 16:27). Here we have for the first time in the gospel narrative an explicit reference to the second advent” (McClain, GK, p. 335). “Darkness will envelope the earth throughout the latter part of the Tribulation, as the sun, moon, and stars will fail to give their normal light (Rev. 8:12). This darkness will suddenly be illuminated by the shining of the brightness of the glory that belongs to Jesus Christ. This revealed glory will identify the true Messiah” (Pentecost, TKC, p. 254). “Christ foresaw physical darkness as well as moral and spiritual darkness, and indicated that it will be against this darkness that ‘the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky’ (Matt. 24:30)” (ibid.). “All through the Old Testament, God revealed His presence among His people by the shining of light” (ibid.). “The transfiguration of Christ was a premature disclosure of the glory to be revealed at the second advent of Christ” (ibid.). “Every description of the second coming would indicate that it is the most spectacular and glorious event ever to take place on the earth” (Walvoord, MK, p. 270). “...His [Jesus’] transfiguration (Matt. 17), which prefigured His second coming” (Geisler, ST, 4:638).

Supernatural. “What is done in that coming day will be the work of God alone, in which human effort will have no place” (McClain, GK, p. 176). “Although tangible to men, no human or natural means have any part in the ushering in of this Kingdom” (ibid., p. 177).

Forceful. “The ‘rod of iron,’ the ‘treading of the wine-press,’ the ‘wrath of the Lamb,’ etc., which precedes the Millennial era are widely different from Neander’s ‘meekness.’ The prophets are far from predicting the introduction of the Kingdom by such means for they unite in telling us that men will learn righteousness when God’s judgments are in the world. The ‘meekness’ or ‘gentleness’ of the saints finds its culmination in martyrdom” (Peters, TTK, 3:187).

Efficacious. “Our likes or dislikes have nothing to do with it; the question is whether such an Advent, as incorporated in the Plan, is eminently adapted and even necessary to produce the result foretold” (Peters, TTK, 3:528).

And, unexpected by most people. “But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, nor the Son, but the Father alone. For the coming of the Son of Man will be just like the days of Noah. For as in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, they were marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and they did not understand until the flood came and took them all away; so shall the coming of the Son of Man be” (Matt. 24:36-39). “Be dressed in readiness, and keep your lamps alight. And be like men who are waiting for their master when he returns from the wedding feast, so that they may immediately open the door to him when he comes and knocks. Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them. Whether he comes in the second watch, or even in the third, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves. And be sure of this, that if the head of the house had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would not have allowed his house to be broken into. You too, be ready; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour that you do not expect” (Luke 12:35–40). “And Peter said, ‘Lord, are You addressing this parable to us, or to everyone else as well?’ And the Lord said, ‘Who then is the faithful and sensible steward, whom his master will put in charge of his servants, to give them their rations at the proper time? Blessed is that slave whom his master finds so doing when he comes. Truly I say to you, that he will put him in charge of all his possessions. But if that slave says in his heart, “My master will be a long time in coming,” and begins to beat the slaves, both men and women, and to eat and drink and get drunk; the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him, and at an hour he does not know, and will cut him in pieces, and assign him a place with the unbelievers” (Luke 12:40–46). “And just as it happened in the days of Noah, so it shall be also in the days of the Son of Man: they were eating, they were drinking, they were marrying, they were being given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all” (Luke 17:26-27). “I tell you that He will bring about justice for them speedily. However, when the Son of Man comes, will He find faith on the earth” (Luke 18:8)? “Know this first of all, that in the last days mockers will come with their mocking, following after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation” (2 Pet. 3:3-4). “(‘Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who stays awake and keeps his garments, lest he walk about naked and men see his shame’)” (Rev. 16:15). “And he said to me, ‘These words are faithful and true; and the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent His angel to show to His bond-servants the things which must shortly take place. And behold, I am coming quickly. Blessed is he who heeds the words of the prophecy of this book” (Rev. 22:6-7). “He who testifies to these things says, ‘Yes, I am coming quickly.’ Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all. Amen” (Rev. 22:20-21). “Is there not a danger in all this of saying, ‘My Lord delayeth his coming’” (Chafer, KHP, 64%)? Timing of the Second Coming

As of this writing, the timing of the Second Coming is, in light of our discussion above, yet future. “We cannot possibly receive the notion entertained by a small party of Separatists, under the leadership of Barbour and Russell, viz., that Jesus is already present” (Peters, TTK, 3:163).

It is to occur:

In the last days. “And it shall come to pass in the latter days [‘last days,’ NASB], that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it” (Isa. 2:2). “The anger of Jehovah shall not return, until he have executed, and till he have performed the intents of his heart: in the latter days [‘last days,’ NASB] ye shall understand it perfectly” (Jer. 23:20). “and thou shalt come up against my people Israel, as a cloud to cover the land: it shall come to pass in the latter days [‘last days,’ NASB], that I will bring thee against my land, that the nations may know me, when I shall be sanctified in thee, O Gog, before their eyes” (Ezek. 38:16). “afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek Jehovah their God, and David their king, and shall come with fear unto Jehovah and to his goodness in the latter days [‘last days,’ NASB]” (Hos. 3:5). “But in the latter days [‘last days,’ NASB] it shall come to pass, that the mountain of Jehovah’s house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and peoples shall flow unto it” (Mic. 4:1). “But realize this, that in the last days difficult times will come” (2 Tim. 3:1). “Know this first of all, that in the last days mockers will come with their mocking, following after their own lusts, and saying, ‘Where is the promise of His coming? For ever since the fathers fell asleep, all continues just as it was from the beginning of creation’” (2 Pet. 3:3–4). “The phrase ‘last days,’ derived from Gen. 49:1; Isa. 2:2; Micah 4:1, was applied by the Jews to that closing period of time, when under the auspices of the Messiah a new era or age would be inaugurated, and thence were allied with the coming and reign of David’s Son... most of the references direct our attention to the future, the closing period of the dispensation, for an astounding outbreak of wickedness and an open display of Divine power, to be followed by a glorious age” (Peters, TTK, 2:423).

At the end of the age. “But as for you, go your way to the end; then you [Daniel] will enter into rest and rise again for your allotted portion at the end of the age” (Dan. 12:1, NASB). “and the enemy who sowed them is the devil, and the harvest is the end of the age; and the reapers are angels. Therefore just as the tares are gathered up and burned with fire, so shall it be at the end of the age” (Matt. 13:39–40). “So it will be at the end of the age; the angels shall come forth, and take out the wicked from among the righteous” (Matt. 13:49) “And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, ‘Tell us, when will these things be, and what will be the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age” (Matt. 24:3)? “teaching them to observe all that I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age” (Matt. 28:20). “...the proper meaning of ‘aion’ is (as Barnes, Heb. 1:2), ‘age, duration,’... the very selection of such a word in addressing Jews is in itself exceedingly significant... Lederer (Nathaniel, Sept. 1868), gives quotations from Jewish prayer-books, etc., showing their belief in the Son of David restoring the Davidic throne and Kingdom, and among the prayers, used in thanksgiving after meal, is the following: ‘May He who is most merciful grant us life and make us worthy to draw near and to behold the days of the Messiah, the building of the sanctuary, and the life in the age to come’” (Peters, TTK, 2:421). “Matt. 13:39, 40, 49, ‘the harvest is the end of the world,’ ‘so shall it be at the end of this world,’... Jesus, thus adopting the Jewish phraseology, points unerringly to a future age to be introduced, after this one is closed, connecting with it the Kingdom of the Son of man precisely as the Jews were accustomed to regard the matter” (ibid.).

Before the millennium. “And I saw heaven opened; and behold, a white horse, and He who sat upon it is called Faithful and True; and in righteousness He judges and wages war. And His eyes are a flame of fire, and upon His head are many diadems; and He has a name written upon Him which no one knows except Himself. And He is clothed with a robe dipped in blood; and His name is called The Word of God. And the armies which are in heaven, clothed in fine linen, white and clean, were following Him on white horses. And from His mouth comes a sharp sword, so that with it He may smite the nations; and He will rule them with a rod of iron; and He treads the wine press of the fierce wrath of God, the Almighty. And on His robe and on His thigh He has a name written, ‘KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.’ And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried out with a loud voice, saying to all the birds which fly in midheaven, ‘Come, assemble for the great supper of God; in order that you may eat the flesh of kings and the flesh of commanders and the flesh of mighty men and the flesh of horses and of those who sit on them and the flesh of all men, both free men and slaves, and small and great.’ And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, assembled to make war against Him who sat upon the horse, and against His army. And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs in his presence, by which he deceived those who had received the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image; these two were thrown alive into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone. And the rest were killed with the sword which came from the mouth of Him who sat upon the horse, and all the birds were filled with their flesh. And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the serpent of old, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he should not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be released for a short time. And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the word of God, and those who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received the mark upon their forehead and upon their hand; and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed. This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection; over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with Him for a thousand years" (Rev. 19:11–20:6). "in the New Test. so little is said of the Mill. age and so much of the Sec. Advent and its imminency, implies that the Mill. follows that Advent" (Peters, TTK, 2:187). "...Advent is necessarily Pre-Millennial. For, it is utterly impossible to reconcile the existence of Antichrist with the state delineated in the Millennium" (ibid., p. 217) "Dr. Morehead in the Christian Instructor (Chicago, March and April, 1879), in a series of articles controverts the Whitbyan view, and in the close of the second article, after referring to the primitive expectation (quoting Scripture, Olshausen, Calvin, etc.) of the constant imminency of the Sec. Advent, deduces: '(1) The Apostolic Christians waited for Christ. They knew not how long he might tarry; they knew not how soon He might appear. They might fall asleep, but death itself could not destroy their "blessed hope" (2) They waited for Christ. Therefore, their hope was not the reformation of mankind, nor the civilization of the race, nor the elevation of society, nor the education of the masses, nor, the conversion of the world. (3) They waited for Christ. Therefore, they did not look for the overthrow of the world-spirit of evil through the instrumentality of the Gospel which they preached. Their heroic endeavor was to save souls from the curse and condemnation of the world. (4) They waited for Christ. Therefore, they did not wait for an effusion of the Holy Spirit for the world's conversion. The Spirit had been poured out upon them, according to the promise of the Saviour, and to have waited for His Coming would have been a practical denial of His presence in the Church. (5) They waited for Christ. Therefore, they did not look for the world's subjugation first. Where in all the New Test. is the Church put in the posture of expectancy as to the conversion of the world? Let one passage be cited that she waited for that—was so taught to wait. (6) They waited for Christ. Therefore, they could not have waited for a Millennium, brought about by the agencies even then at work, to be had and enjoyed before Christ's Coming, for if so, how, in all human reason, could they have waited for the Saviour? They waited. We, on the contrary, having succeeded to our satisfaction in putting off His Coming to a far, far distant future, naturally enough concern ourselves very little about it, and have taken to make the best of the present evil world” (ibid., 3:180).

And, immediately after the Tribulation. “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken, and then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29–30). “According to Christ's own teaching in Matthew 24:29-30, the Second Advent will ‘immediately’ follow the Tribulation” (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 45).

Regarding the possibility of knowing the time of the Second Coming:

The day will be known once the Tribulation begins. “And he shall speak words against the Most High, and shall wear out the saints of the Most High; and he shall think to change the times and the law; and they shall be given into his hand until a time and times and half a time” (Dan. 7:25). “Seventy weeks have been decreed for your people and your holy city, to finish the transgression, to make an end of sin, to make atonement for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal up vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most holy place. So you are to know and discern that from the issuing of a decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until Messiah the Prince there will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; it will be built again, with plaza and moat, even in times of distress. Then after the sixty-two weeks the Messiah will be cut off and have nothing, and the people of the prince who is to come will destroy the city and the sanctuary. And its end will come with a flood; even to the end there will be war; desolations are determined. And he will make a firm covenant with the many for one week, but in the middle of the week he will put a stop to sacrifice and grain offering; and on the wing of abominations will come one who makes desolate, even until a complete destruction, one that is decreed, is poured out on the one who makes desolate” (Dan. 9:24–27). “And I heard the man dressed in linen, who was above the waters of the river, as he raised his right hand and his left toward heaven, and swore by Him who lives forever that it would be for a time, times, and half a time; and as soon as they finish shattering the power of the holy people, all these events will be completed” (Dan. 12:7). “And there were given to the woman the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness unto her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent” (Rev. 12:13–14). “...the Second Coming of the Messiah... It will occur exactly seven years after the signing of the seven-year covenant and 3 1/2 years (42 months or 1,260 days) after the Abomination of Desolation” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 641).

However, the hour will not be not known until it arrives. “But be sure of this, that if the head of the house had known at what time of the night the thief was coming, he would have been on the alert and would not have allowed his house to be broken into. For this reason you be ready too; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour when you do not think He will” (Matt. 24:43–44). “Take heed, keep on the alert; for you do not know when the appointed time is. It is like a man, away on a journey, who upon leaving his house and putting his slaves in charge, assigning to each one his task, also commanded the doorkeeper to stay on the alert. Therefore, be on the alert — for you do not know when the master of the house is coming, whether in the evening, at midnight, at cockcrowing, or in the morning — lest he come suddenly and find you asleep. And what I say to you I say to all, “Be on the alert”” (Mark 13:33–37)! “Although the day of the Second Coming will be known once the Tribulation starts, the time of the day is not” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 643).

Location and Destination of the Second Coming

The location of the Second Coming is Bozrah. “Come near, ye nations, to hear; and hearken, ye peoples: let the earth hear, and the fulness thereof; the world, and all things that come forth from it. For Jehovah hath indignation against all the nations, and wrath against all their host: he hath utterly destroyed them, he hath delivered them to the slaughter. Their slain also shall be cast out, and the stench of their dead bodies shall come up; and the mountains shall be melted with their blood. And all the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll; and all their host shall fade away, as the leaf fadeth from off the vine, and as a fading leaf from the fig-tree. For my sword hath drunk its fill in heaven: behold, it shall come down upon Edom, and upon the people of my curse, to judgment. The sword of Jehovah is filled with blood, it is made fat with fatness, with the blood of lambs and goats, with the fat of the kidneys of rams; for Jehovah hath a sacrifice in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the land of Edom. And the wild-oxen shall come down with them, and the bullocks with the bulls: and their land shall be drunken with blood, and their dust made fat with fatness” (Isa. 34:1–7). “Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? this that is glorious in his apparel, marching in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save. Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winevat? I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the peoples there was no man with me: yea, I trod them in mine anger, and trampled them in my wrath; and their lifeblood is sprinkled upon my garments, and I have stained all my raiment. For the day of vengeance was in my heart, and the year of my redeemed is come. And I looked, and there was none to help; and I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me; and my wrath, it upheld me. And I trod down the peoples in mine anger, and made them drunk in my wrath, and I poured out their lifeblood on the earth” (Isa. 63:1–6). “[Isaiah] 63:1... Only one man can answer, I that speak in righteousness. Only one man has the power that is mighty to save. It is the Person of Jesus the Messiah marching toward Israel from the land of Edom and the city of Bozrah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 340). “[Isaiah] 63:3-6:... He fought all alone and there were none to help Him (vv. 5-6)... The main point to learn from this passage is that the battle is initiated in the land of Edom and at the city of Bozrah. By the time Messiah reaches Israel, His garments are already stained with blood from the slaughter of the enemy” (ibid., p. 341). “I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather the remnant of Israel; I will put them together as the sheep of Bozrah, as a flock in the midst of their pasture; they shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men. The breaker is gone up before them: they have broken forth and passed on to the gate, and are gone out thereat; and their king is passed on before them, and Jehovah at the head of them” (Mic. 2:12–13). “The breaker, the king, and Jehovah are all the same Person in this verse” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 342). “God came from Teman, And the Holy One from mount Paran. Selah. His glory covered the heav- ens, And the earth was full of his praise” (Hab. 3:3). “Teman and Mount Paran are both in the vicinity of Bozrah and are located in the same mountain range of Mount Seir” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 342). “Jehovah also shall save the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem be not magnified above Judah” (Zech. 12:7). “At the sixth stage of the Campaign of Armageddon, Jesus will return at the request of Israel and enter into battle with the Antichrist and his armies. With His return to the Remnant of Israel in Bozrah, He will indeed save the tents of Judah first, before saving the Jews of Jerusalem, as Zechariah 12:7 predicted” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 350). “The term tents points to temporary abodes rather than permanent dwellings. The fact that Judah is living in tents shows that Judah is not home in Judah, but is temporarily elsewhere. That elsewhere is Bozrah. Since the Messiah will save the tents of Judah first, this, too, shows that the initial place of His return will be Bozrah and not the Mount of Olives” (ibid., p. 351). “...the first onset of Christ and his army is upon a large mass of the confederation in Idumea, thus corresponding with other passages” (Peters, TTK, 2:762). “...the slaughter in Idumea and that in Palestine” (ibid.) “...the hints seem to convey the idea that part of the enemy are met on the way to Jerusalem from Mount Sinai, the Antichrist and another portion at Jerusalem or near it, and that other portions are attacked and defeated by the Jews” (ibid., p. 767) “...crushed one portion on the road to Palestine from Sinai, and another in Palestine itself” (ibid., p. 768). “...the approach of Jesus and His saints will follow the route of the Israelites, and hence the coming to Jerusalem will be literally from the East... It is the very route taken in the triumphal entry of the Gospels, and indicative of this future triumphal entry” (ibid., 3:27). “The initial place of His return will not be the Mount of Olives, as is commonly taught, but the place known as Bozrah” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 339). “The exact place is known as Bozrah (in Hebrew) or Petra (in Greek). That is where the ‘body’ will be (Mic. 2:12-13); that is where the ‘vultures’ will be gathered to come against them (Is. 34:1-7; 63:1-6); and that will be the place of the Second Coming (Hab. 3:3)” (ibid., p. 634).

The destination of the Second Coming is Israel/Jerusalem. “that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee” (Deut. 30:3). “Behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and he shall reign as king and deal wisely, and shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In his days Judah shall be saved, and

Israel shall dwell safely; and this is his name whereby he shall be called: Jehovah our righteousness” (Jer. 23:5-6). “and I will make that which was lame a remnant, and that which was cast far off a strong nation: and Jehovah will reign over them in mount Zion from henceforth even for ever” (Mic. 4:7). “Let the nations bestir themselves, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the nations round about. Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, tread ye; for the winepress is full, the vats overflow; for their wickedness is great” (Joel 3:12-13). “While the battle between Messiah and the Antichrist will begin at Bozrah, it will apparently continue all the way back to the eastern walls of Jerusalem, which overlook a section of the Kidron Valley, also known as the Valley of Jehoshaphat. The key passage is Joel 3:12-13” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 351). “And Jehovah will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but Jehovah will be a refuge unto his people, and a stronghold to the children of Israel” (Joel 3:16). “Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion; for, lo, I come, and I will dwell in the midst of thee, saith Jehovah. And many nations shall join themselves to Jehovah in that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in the midst of thee, and thou shalt know that Jehovah of hosts has sent me unto thee. And Jehovah shall inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and shall yet choose Jerusalem” (Zech. 2:10-12). “and speak unto him, saying, Thus speaketh Jehovah of hosts, saying, Behold, the man whose name is the Branch: and he shall grow up out of his place; and he shall build the temple of Jehovah; even he shall build the temple of Jehovah; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne; and the counsel of peace shall be between them both” (Zech. 6:12-13). “And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto me whom they have pierced; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born” (Zech. 12:10). “Then shall Jehovah go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south” (Zech. 14:3-4). “Zech. 14:3-4. In view of the fact that the Mount of Olives nowhere in Scripture is given a spiritualized interpretation, it seems clear that this refers to the physical Mount of Olives to the east of Jerusalem” (Walvoord, MK, p. 320). For example: “And David went up by the ascent of the mount of Olives, and wept as he went up; and he had his head covered, and went barefoot: and all the people that were with him covered every man his head, and they went up, weeping as they went up” (2 Sam. 15:30). “And when they had approached Jerusalem and had come to Bethphage, to the Mount of Olives, then Jesus sent two disciples” (Matt. 21:1) “And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to Him privately, saying, ‘Tell us, when will these things happen, and what will be the sign of Your coming, and of the end of the age?’” (Matt. 24:3)? “And after singing a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives” (Matt. 26:30). “And as they approached Jerusalem, at Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount of Olives, He sent two of His disciples” (Mark 11:1) “And as He was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew were questioning Him privately” (Mark 13:3) “And after singing a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives” (Mark 14:26). “And it came about that when He approached Bethphage and Bethany, near the mount that is called Olivet, He sent two of the disciples” (Luke 19:29) “And as He was now approaching, near the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to praise God joyfully with a loud voice for all the miracles which they had seen” (Luke 19:37) “Now during the day He was teaching in the temple, but at evening He would go out and spend the night on the mount that is called Olivet” (Luke 21:37). “And He came out and proceeded as was His custom to the Mount of Olives; and the disciples also followed Him” (Luke 22:39). “But Jesus went to the Mount of Olives” (John 8:1). “And after He had said these things, He was lifted up while they were looking on, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. And as they were gazing intently into the sky while He was departing, behold, two men in white clothing stood beside them; and they also said, ‘Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into the sky? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in just the same way as you have watched Him go into heaven.’ Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day’s journey away” (Acts 1:9–13) “...a return to the very place from which our Lord ascended, and it shall be marked by the dividing asunder of the Mount of Olives” (Walvoord, MK, p. 267). “And Jesus said to them, ‘Truly I say to you, that you who have followed Me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man will sit on His glorious throne, you also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel” (Matt. 19:28). “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you were unwilling. Behold, your house is being left to you desolate! For I say to you, from now on you shall not see Me until you say, “Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord”” (Matt. 23:37-39)! “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, just as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you would not have it! Behold, your house is left to you desolate; and I say to you, you shall not see Me until the time comes when you say, “Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord”” (Luke 13:34-35)! “For I would not, brethren, have you ignorant of this mystery, lest ye be wise in your own conceits, that a hardening in part hath befallen Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in; and so all Israel shall be saved: even as it is written, There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer; He shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob” (Rom. 11:25-26) “...the Fathers... universally held to the idea that Antichrist would fight the last battle and perish in Palestine” (Peters, TTK, 2:761). “Messiah-Jehovah saves Jerusalem” (ibid., p. 769)

Events of the Second Coming

The events of the Second Coming include:

The Father gives the Kingdom to Christ. “Why do the nations rage, And the peoples meditate a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, And the rulers take counsel together, Against Jehovah, and against his anointed, saying, Let us break their bonds asunder, And cast away their cords from us. He that sitteth in the heavens will laugh: The Lord will have them in derision. Then will he speak unto them in his wrath, And vex them in his sore displeasure: Yet I have set my king Upon my holy hill of Zion. I will tell of the decree: Jehovah said unto me, Thou art my son; This day have I begotten thee. Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, And the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession. Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; Thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter’s vessel. Now therefore be wise, O ye kings: Be instructed, ye judges of the earth. Serve Jehovah with fear, And rejoice with trembling. Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish in the way, For his wrath will soon be kindled. Blessed are all they that take refuge in him” (Ps. 2:1-12). “A Psalm of David. Jehovah saith unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thine enemies thy foot-* stool. Jehovah will send forth the rod of thy strength out of Zion: Rule thou in the midst of thine enemies. Thy people offer themselves willingly In the day of thy power, in holy array: Out of the womb of the morning Thou hast the dew of thy youth. Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent: Thou art a priest for ever After the order of Melchizedek. The Lord at thy right hand Will strike through kings in the day of his wrath. He will judge among the nations, He will fill the places with dead bodies; He will strike through the head in many countries. He will drink of the brook in the way: Therefore will he lift up the head” (Ps. 110:0-7). “I saw in the night-visions, and, behold, there came with the clouds of heaven one like unto a son of man, and he came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed” (Dan. 7:13-14). “and the enemy who sowed them is the devil, and the harvest is the end of the age; and the reapers are angels. Therefore just as the tares are gathered up and burned with fire, so shall it be at the end of the age. The Son of Man will send forth His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all stumbling blocks, and those who commit lawlessness, and will cast them into the furnace of fire; in that place there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then the righteous will shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He who has ears, let him hear” (Matt. 13:39-43). “But I say to you, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it new with you in My Father’s kingdom” (Matt. 26:29). “He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High; and the Lord God will give Him the throne of His father David” (Luke 1:32) “And it came about that when he returned, after receiving the kingdom, he ordered that these slaves, to whom he had given the money, be called to him in order that he might know what business they had done” (Luke 19:15). “I saw in the right hand of Him who sat on the throne a book written inside and on the back, sealed up with seven seals. And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, ‘Who is worthy to open the book and to break its seals?’ And no one in heaven or on the earth or under the earth was able to open the book or to look into it. Then I began to weep greatly because no one was found worthy to open the book or to look into it; and one of the elders said to me, ‘Stop weeping; behold, the Lion that is from the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has overcome so as to open the book and its seven seals.’ And I saw between the throne (with the four living creatures) and the elders a Lamb standing, as if slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, sent out into all the earth. And He came and took the book out of the right hand of Him who sat on the throne. When He had taken the book, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell down before the Lamb, each one holding a harp and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. And they sang a new song, saying, ‘Worthy are You to take the book and to break its seals; for You were slain, and purchased for God with Your blood men from every tribe and tongue and people and nation. You have made them to be a kingdom and priests to our God; and they will reign upon the earth’” (Rev. 5:1-10). “Daniel (7:14) says that ‘there was given unto Him (the Son of man) dominion, and glory, and a Kingdom’... Luke (1:32): ‘the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David,’... (comp. Ps. 2 and 110, etc.)... (Luke 19:15), ‘that when he was returned, having received the Kingdom,’... we have ‘the Ancient of Days’ (in Dan.) interpreted as the Father... the Father bestowing this Kingdom upon the Son of David, it is sometimes called (Matt. 26:29) the ‘Father’s Kingdom’ (Matt. 13:39-43)” (Peters, TTK, 1:577) “...the Father subdues the enemies of Christ and puts them under His feet.’ The simple fact is, that the Father does this in and through Christ Himself, Christ acting as the agent, and hence Christ is frequently represented in the Scriptures as the One coming in wrath, in vengeance to perform this work” (ibid., p. 578). “...Mark (13:32), that the Son did not know the day or hour. Now let it be noticed that this Kingdom is given by the Father to ‘the Son of man’ at the Sec. Advent; hence it follows, (1) that Jesus speaks of this future period as ‘the Son of man,’ i.e. as David’s Son; (2) that the Father retaining the prerogative of bestowing the Kingdom, the time of the Advent connected with the same is also thus retained as intimately associated with it. Consequently the Divine, the Father in Christ, could not reveal what exclusively belonged to the Father—what pertained to the Divine prerogative—and, therefore, while the descendant of David is inseparably connected with the Divine, yet the Divine in such a matter (for ‘My Father is greater than I’) may deny to the humanity—David’s Son—the precise knowledge of the day and hour, for the reason assigned. For David’s Son takes the things belonging to the Father, and shows those that are allowed, the human being subservient to the will of the Father and to the knowledge imparted. Tillotson, Ser. on Mark 13:32, 33, attributes this not knowing to the human nature of Christ, referring to Luke 2:52, etc., showing that the human nature did not necessarily, by virtue of its union with the Divine, know all things, or otherwise he could not, as man, be said to grow in wisdom, etc.” (ibid., p. 580) “...the Father will not allow this Plan to fail” (ibid., p. 581)

Cataclysmic events occur. “Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of Jehovah is near in the valley of decision. The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining. And Jehovah will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem; and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but Jehovah will be a refuge unto his people, and a stronghold to the children of Israel. So shall ye know that I am Jehovah your God, dwelling in Zion my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more” (Joel 3:14–17). “And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south. And ye shall flee by the valley of my mountains; for the valley of the mountains shall reach unto Azel; yea, ye shall flee, like as ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah; and Jehovah my God shall come, and all the holy ones with thee” (Zech. 14:4–5). “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken” (Matt. 24:29) “And the seventh angel poured out his bowl upon the air; and a loud voice came out of the temple from the throne, saying, ‘It is done.’ And there were flashes of lightning and sounds and peals of thunder; and there was a great earthquake, such as there had not been since man came to be upon the earth, so great an earthquake was it, and so mighty. And the great city was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. And Babylon the great was remembered before God, to give her the cup of the wine of His fierce wrath. And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. And huge hailstones, about one hundred pounds each, came down from heaven upon men; and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail, because its plague was extremely severe” (Rev. 16:17–21). “Along with this victory ascent upon the Mount of Olives, a number of cataclysmic events will occur as the Great Tribulation comes to an end. These cataclysmic events will be a result of the seventh Bowl Judgment, described in Revelation 16:17-21” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 355). “With the seventh bowl, a voice cries out, It is done, because the seventh bowl brings the Tribulation to a definite end ([Rev. 16] v. 17). This declaration will be followed by convulsions of nature, including the greatest earthquake ever to occur in the history of the earth (v. 18). This will cause the City of Jerusalem to be split into three divisions, while the city of Babylon will suffer the full wrath of God (v. 19). Many geographical changes will take place (v. 20) and hail weighing 120 pounds will fall (v. 21)” (ibid., p. 356). “Not only will Jerusalem be split into three divisions, but the Mount of Olives will be split into two parts, creating a valley running east and west. This newly-formed valley will provide a way of escape for the Jewish inhabitants of Jerusalem from the earthquake that will destroy the city. In this way the inhabitants of Jerusalem will be rescued following the deliverance of the other Jews in Bozrah” (ibid.). “With the multitudes defeated in the closing Day of Jehovah in the Valley of Jehoshaphat ([Joel 3] v. 14), the blackout will occur (v. 15), as well as the great earthquake (v. 16a). But a refuge will be provided for the Jews from these cataclysmic events (vv. 16b-17) by means of the valley cutting through the Mount of Olives spoken of by Zechariah. The Great Tribulation and the Campaign of Armageddon will come to an end with these cataclysmic events” (ibid., p. 357).

All the angels worship the first-born. “Jehovah reigneth; Let the earth rejoice; Let the multitude of isles be glad. Clouds and darkness are round about him: Righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne. A fire goeth before him, And burneth up his adversaries round about. His lightnings lightened the world: The earth saw, and trembled. The mountains melted like wax at the presence of Jehovah, At the presence of the Lord of the whole earth. The heavens declare his righteousness, And all the peoples have seen his glory. Let all them be put to shame that serve graven images, That boast themselves of idols: Worship him, all ye gods [angels, LXX]. Zion heard and was glad, And the daughters of Judah rejoiced, Because of thy judgments, O Jehovah. For thou, Jehovah, art most high above all the earth: Thou art exalted far above all gods. O ye that love Jehovah, hate evil: He preserveth the souls of his saints; He delivereth them out of the hand of the wicked. Light is sown for the righteous, And gladness for the upright in heart. Be glad in Jehovah, ye righteous; And give thanks to his holy memorial name” (Ps. 97:1–12). “But when the Son of Man comes in His glory, and all the angels with Him, then He will sit on His glorious throne” (Matt. 25:31). “And when He again [note “again”—ed.] brings the first-born into the world, He says, ‘AND LET ALL THE ANGELS OF GOD WORSHIP HIM’” (Heb. 1:6).

The sign of the Son of Man appears. “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken, and then the sign of the Son of Man will ap- pear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29–30). “According to this passage [Matt. 24:29-30], just prior to the Second Coming, the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the heavens, and that sign will certainly be the Shechinah Glory, for the Son of man will come in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 615). “At this point, Matthew states that the sign of the Son of man will appear ([Matt. 24] v. 30a). As this sign is coupled with God’s glory, it is obviously the Shechinah Glory light that will signal the Second Coming of the Messiah. The answer to the second question, ‘What will be the sign of the Second Coming?’ is: the Shechinah Glory. But immediately after the tribulation of those days, there will be a total black-out with no light penetrating at all, followed by a sudden, glorious, tremendous light that will disperse the blackness. This Shechinah light will be the sign of the Second Coming of the Messiah. The light will be followed by the return of the Messiah Himself (v. 30b)” (ibid., p. 635).

Christ appears in the sky. “But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will fall from the sky, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken. And then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in the sky, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of Man coming on the clouds of the sky with power and great glory” (Matt. 24:29-30). “But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars will be falling from heaven, and the powers that are in the heavens will be shaken. And then they will see the Son of Man coming in clouds with great power and glory” (Mark 13:24–26). “And there will be signs in sun and moon and stars, and upon the earth dismay among nations, in perplexity at the roaring of the sea and the waves, men fainting from fear and the expectation of the things which are coming upon the world; for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. And then they will see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory” (Luke 21:25–27). “Behold, He is coming with the clouds, and every eye will see Him, even those who pierced Him; and all the tribes of the earth will mourn over Him. Even so. Amen” (Rev 1:7).

Christ defeats Antichrist and his army. He defeats Antichrist’s army at Bozrah. (See our discussion of the fact that the location of the Second Coming is Bozrah in our section Location and Destination of the Second Coming above.) He then defeats Antichrist’s army in Israel. (See our discussion of the fact that the destination of the Second Coming is Israel/ Jerusalem in our section Location and Destination of the Second Coming above. See also our discussion of the fact that one of the purposes of the Second Coming is to defeat Antichrist in our section Purposes of the Second Coming above.)

And, Christ sets foot upon the mount of Olives. “Then shall Jehovah go forth, and fight against those nations, as when he fought in the day of battle. And his feet shall stand in that day upon the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east; and the mount of Olives shall be cleft in the midst thereof toward the east and toward the west, and there shall be a very great valley; and half of the mountain shall remove toward the north, and half of it toward the south” (Zech. 14:3–4). (See our discussion of the fact that the destination of the Second Coming is (the mount of Olives in) Israel/Jerusalem in our section Location and Destination of the Second Coming above.)

Attitudes Toward the Second Coming

The church, the Tribulation saints and lost mankind will have differing attitudes toward the Second Coming.

For the church, the (pretribulational) Rapture is her blessed hope (Titus 2:12-13). Therefore, the Scriptures admonish her to be primarily expectant of her imminent Rapture, as distinct from the subsequent Second Coming. (See our discussion of the proper attitude of the Christian toward the Rapture in the section Attitudes Toward the Rapture in our chapter The Rapture of the Church.) She will be revealed later with Christ at His Second Coming. “When Christ, who is our life, is revealed, then you also will be revealed with Him in glory” (Col. 3:4).

For the Tribulation saints the Second Coming will mean the end of tribulation and persecution and the inauguration of the Millennial Kingdom. Therefore, the Tribulation saint should be ready and expectantly on the alert for that day. “Behold, I have told you in advance” (Matt. 24:2). “Therefore be on the alert, for you do not know which day your Lord is coming” (Matt. 24:42). “For this reason you be ready too; for the Son of Man is coming at an hour when you do not think He will” (Matt. 24:44). “But take heed; behold, I have told you everything in advance” (Mark 13:23). “Take heed, keep on the alert; for you do not know when the appointed time is” (Mark 13:33). “Therefore, be on the alert — for you do not know when the master of the house is coming, whether in the evening, at midnight, at cockcrowing, or in the morning —” (Mark 13:35) “And what I say to you I say to all, “Be on the alert”” (Mark 13:37)! “Blessed are those slaves whom the master shall find on the alert when he comes; truly I say to you, that he will gird himself to serve, and have them recline at the table, and will come up and wait on them” (Luke 12:37). “You hypocrites! You know how to analyze the appearance of the earth and the sky, but why do you not analyze this present time” (Luke 12:56)?

For lost mankind, the Second Coming will be an unexpected day of terror, judgment and defeat. (See our discussion of the fact that the Second Coming will be unexpected for most people in the section Characteristics of the Second Coming above.)

Chapter 24: Inauguration of the Kingdom

Between the Second Coming of the King and the beginning of the Millennial Kingdom, several events will transpire in preparation for the Kingdom. These events include Antichrist's resurrection and casting into the lake of fire, the binding of Satan, Israel's regathering to the land in belief, the gathering and judging of the Tribulation survivors, Israel's possession of the land, the first resurrection and the marriage feast of the Lamb. Since this chapter deals with the resurrection of the dead (at least the first resurrection, which precedes the Millennial Kingdom; we'll cover the second resurrection, which follows the Millennial Kingdom later in our chapter The Lake of Fire), we will also cover in this chapter the intermediate state of the dead: the temporary state that intervenes between death and resurrection.

Events in Preparation for the Millennial Kingdom

As the dust settles from the horrific Tribulation period and the glorious Second Coming, earth's new rulers and subjects will be preparing for the Millennial Kingdom. "Obviously, there is going to be a great confluence of all the elect at the beginning of the Millennium—all views agree on this" (Walvoord, TRQ, p. 178).

Regarding the duration of this preparatory period, seventy-five days transpire between Christ's return and the commencement of the Millennial Kingdom. "And from the time that the regular sacrifice is abolished, and the abomination of desolation is set up, there will be 1,290 days. How blessed is he who keeps waiting and attains to the 1,335 days" (Dan. 12:11-12)! "Then the woman fled into the wilderness where she had a place prepared by God, so that there she would be nourished for one thousand two hundred and sixty days" (Rev. 12:6). "The second half of the Tribulation is declared to be 42 months or 1,260 days long, which is the same as saying 3 1/2 years. Daniel 12:7 refers to it as a time, times, and a half. Daniel 12:11 states that there will be a total of 1,290 days during which time the Temple will be desecrated. In other words, the Temple's desecration will extend 30 days beyond the 3 1/2 year period. However, in Daniel 12:12 those who manage to make it to the 1,335th day (an additional 45 days) are promised a unique blessing which could hardly be anything else but the Millennium. That many will not make it to this day is clear from other Scriptures, since they are killed in the interlude. But the interlude is limited to 75 days" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 120) "A special blessing is pronounced on those who will make it to the 1,335th day. The blessing is that those who survive until the 75th day of the interval will enter the Messianic Kingdom... There will be many who will fail and die before the 1,335th day comes, although they did survive past the 1,260th day” (ibid., p. 361). “A number of events will transpire during the seventy-five day interval, but it is impossible to determine the chronological sequence of these events” (ibid., p. 362). Regarding the first thirty days, “And from the time that the regular sacrifice is abolished, and the abomination of desolation is set up, there will be 1,290 days. How blessed is he who keeps waiting and attains to the 1,335 days” (Dan. 12:11-12)! “The desecration of the Temple is allowed to remain for thirty days beyond the end of the Tribulation. Then it will be destroyed, bringing the Abomination of Desolation to an end” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 362). Regarding the final forty-five days, “Once the judgment determining who can enter the kingdom has been concluded, it may take another 45 days to form the governmental structure necessary to operate the kingdom” (Showers, M, p. 58).

Antichrist is resurrected and cast into the lake of fire. “Thou shalt not be joined with them in burial, because thou hast destroyed thy land, thou hast slain thy people; the seed of evil-doers shall not be named for ever” (Isa. 14:20). “And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought the signs in his sight, wherewith he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast and them that worshipped his image: they two were cast alive into the lake of fire that burneth with brimstone” (Rev. 19:20) “...the Antichrist be resurrected at this time and then be cast alive into the Lake of Fire. It is for this reason that Isaiah 14:20 declared that the body of the Antichrist will never see burial” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 363). “The term the second resurrection applies to the resurrection of all the damned, and this, too, will come in stages. Jesus was the firstfruits of the first resurrection. The irony to be found here is that he who would be the counterfeit son will be allowed to act out the counterfeit role to completion by becoming the firstfruits of the second resurrection. But the result of his resurrection will be the Lake of Fire” (ibid.). “For the first thousand years that the Lake of Fire will be inhabited, the Antichrist and the False Prophet will be there all by themselves” (ibid.).

Satan is bound. “And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will punish the host of the high ones on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth. And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison; and after many days shall they be visited” (Isa. 24:21-22). “And I saw an angel coming down from heaven, having the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the serpent of old, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it over him, so that he should not deceive the nations any longer, until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be released for a short time" (Rev. 20:1-3). "The prophet Isaiah speaks of certain rebels among 'the high ones that are on high' (angelic beings) and 'the kings of the earth' (24:21). The next verse (22) says, 'And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison, and after many days shall they be visited [punished].' The 'many days' here correspond to the 'thousand years' of Revelation 20" (McClain, GK, p. 215). "[John 17] verse 15, 'I pray not that thou shouldest take them from the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil one' (ASV)... Now the disciples are kept from the evil one; then the evil one will be kept from them, and also from the whole world of nations for the duration of His Messianic reign (Rev. 20:1-6)" (ibid., p. 378). "...the Abyss, the temporary place of confinement for fallen angels" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 364). "...the Abyss... it is never associated with human beings; it is always associated with fallen angels with the exception of the Antichrist [i.e. Rev. 11:7, 17:8—ed.]. Since the Antichrist will be conceived by the power of Satan, he is connected with angelic beings and therefore also with the Abyss... the Abyss is that section of Sheol or Hades which is a temporary place of confinement for fallen angels... it is always a temporary place of confinement. Satan will be confined in the Abyss, but even for him it is temporary, for one thousand years' duration (Rev. 20:3)" (ibid., p. 741).

Israel is regathered to the land in belief. "And ye shall not wrong one another; but thou shalt fear thy God: for I am Jehovah your God. Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep mine ordinances and do them; and ye shall dwell in the land in safety... And the land shall not be sold in perpetuity; for the land is mine: for ye are strangers and sojourners with me" (Lev. 25:17-24) "And it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither Jehovah thy God hath driven thee, and shalt return unto Jehovah thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul; that then Jehovah thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon thee, and will return and gather thee from all the peoples, whither Jehovah thy God hath scattered thee. If any of thine outcasts be in the uttermost parts of heaven, from thence will Jehovah thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee: and Jehovah thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers. And Jehovah thy God will circumcise thy heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live. And Jehovah thy God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, that persecuted thee. And thou shalt return and obey the voice of Jehovah, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day. And Jehovah thy God will make thee plentiful in all the work of thy hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, for good: for Jehovah will again rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers; if thou shalt obey the voice of Jehovah thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which are written in this book of the law; if thou turn unto Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul” (Deut. 30:1-10). “There is no more important Scripture relating to Israel than this, and every word of this prophecy covering the time to the present hour has been literally fulfilled. Shall it not be so to the end? Shall they not be regathered as actually as they have been scattered? And that in relation to, and by virtue of, a ‘return,’ or second coming ([Deut.] 30:3) of the divine Person to the earth? Is there any other explanation of the miraculous preservation of that nation than that Jehovah’s oath cannot be broken” (Chafer, KHP, 14%)? “Following the regeneration of Israel will be the regathering from all over the world ([Deut.] 30:3) so that even if Jews should be found in the uttermost parts of the heavens, they will nevertheless be returned (30:4) and brought back into the Promised Land (30:5). This regathering will occur only after the regeneration of Israel (30:6), at which time the punishments previously applied to Israel will now be applied to the Gentiles (30:7). Although curses may fall on the Gentiles, there will only be blessings for Israel (30:8-9) because they will totally return to the Lord (30:10)” (Fruchtbaum, I, p. 796). “The second facet of the final restoration of Israel is the regathering of Israel from all over the world. This is based on the Land Covenant of Deuteronomy 29:1-30:20. Traditionally, this covenant has been known as the Palestinian Covenant, for it largely concerns the Land that for centuries was called Palestine. It was an appropriate term at the time it was coined, and even Jews called the Land ‘Palestine.’ This is now an unfortunate term for two reasons. First: it was a name given to the Land by the Roman Emperor Hadrian after the second Jewish revolt under Bar Cochba (A.D. 132-135) for the purpose of erasing any Jewish remembrance of the Land as part of his policy to 'de-judaize' the Land. Second: due to the historical events in the Middle East in the twentieth century, the name is associated more with Arabs than with Jews. For these reasons (and others), the author prefers to call it 'the Land Covenant'" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 411). "This regathering will occur only after the regeneration of Israel (v. 6)" (ibid., p. 413). "And it shall come to pass in that day, that the root of Jesse, that standeth for an ensign of the peoples, unto him shall the nations seek; and his resting-place shall be glorious. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord will set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, that shall remain, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. And he will set up an ensign for the nations, and will assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth" (Isa. 11:10-12). "In Isaiah 11:11-12:6, the final regathering is described as the second of the world-wide regatherings of Israel. The first regathering is the one in unbelief prior to the Great Tribulation in preparation for judgment. The regathering described in this passage is the second one (v. 11a), in faith and in preparation for the millennial blessings" (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 797). "Although many commentators identify the first regathering as the return from the Babylonian Captivity, that could hardly be described as a worldwide regathering. The first regathering is the one in unbelief prior to the Great Tribulation, and this has been happening since 1948. The first gathering is in unbelief in preparation for judgment. The regathering described in this passage is the second one (v. 11a), in faith in preparation for the millennial blessings" (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 414). "And Jehovah will utterly destroy the tongue of the Egyptian sea; and with his scorching wind will he wave his hand over the River, and will smite it into seven streams, and cause men to march over dryshod. And there shall be a highway for the remnant of his people, that shall remain, from Assyria; like as there was for Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt" (Isa. 11:15-16). "For Jehovah will have compassion on Jacob, and will yet choose Israel, and set them in their own land: and the sojourner shall join himself with them, and they shall cleave to the house of Jacob. And the peoples shall take them, and bring them to their place; and the house of Israel shall possess them in the land of Jehovah for servants and for handmaids: and they shall take them captive whose captives they were; and they shall rule over their oppressors" (Isa. 14:1-2). "As Israel is being regathered, not only will this be accomplished with the help of angels, but the Gentiles will be conducting the Jews back into the Land ([Isaiah 14] v.2b)” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 439). “In days to come shall Jacob take root; Israel shall blossom and bud; and they shall fill the face of the world with fruit” (Isa. 27:6). “And it shall come to pass in that day, that Jehovah will beat off his fruit from the flood of the River unto the brook of Egypt; and ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel. And it shall come to pass in that day, that a great trumpet shall be blown; and they shall come that were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and they that were outcasts in the land of Egypt; and they shall worship Jehovah in the holy mountain at Jerusalem” (Isa. 27:12-13). “In Isaiah 27:12-13, the prophet emphasized the totality of the regathering, for every Jew one-by-one will be brought back into the Land of Israel” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 797). “...the totality of the regathering... As in the previous Isaiah [11:11-12:6] passage, the key locality of the regathering will be from the Middle East nations since, as a result of the fall of Israel in the middle of the Tribulation, the majority of the Jews will be located in this vicinity and it is here that they will have suffered the most. And so the Jews will be taken one by one out of Egypt and Assyria (modern Iraq). Jews are still to be found in various Arab countries suffering tremendous persecutions. But in the regathering they will be rescued from the land of their enemies. The regathering will be from all over the world, but with special emphasis on the Middle East nations” (Fruchtenbaum, FM, p. 415). “and the ransomed of Jehovah shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away” (Isa. 35:10). “Fear not; for I am with thee: I will bring thy [Israel’s, vs. 1] seed from the east, and gather thee from the west; I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back; bring my sons from far, and my daughters from the end of the earth; every one that is called by my name, and whom I have created for my glory, whom I have formed, yea, whom I have made” (Isa. 43:5-7). “The magnitude of the final regathering of Israel is described in Isaiah 43:5-7. As far as locality is concerned, the regathering will be worldwide and, to emphasize the fact, all four points of the compass are mentioned (vv. 5-6). The magnitude is then illustrated by the usage of three words: created, formed, and made (v. 7). These three words are used interchangeably in the creation account of Genesis 1-2. Hence, from God’s perspective, the final regathering will be on the magnitude of the original creation” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 797). “And the ransomed of Jehovah shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and sighing shall flee away” (Isa. 51:11). “And nations shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising. Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: they all gather themselves together, they come to thee; thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be carried in the arms” (Isa. 60:3-4). “Surely the isles shall wait for me, and the ships of Tarshish first, to bring thy sons from far, their silver and their gold with them, for the name of Jehovah thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel, because he hath glorified thee” (Isa. 60:9). “And I will bring forth a seed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains; and my chosen shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there” (Isa. 65:9). “And they shall bring all your brethren out of all the nations for an oblation unto Jehovah, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, saith Jehovah, as the children of Israel bring their oblation in a clean vessel into the house of Jehovah” (Isa. 66:20). “Therefore, behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that it shall no more be said, As Jehovah liveth, that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but, As Jehovah liveth, that brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the countries whither he had driven them. And I will bring them again into their land that I gave unto their fathers” (Jer. 16:14-15). “The comparative magnitude of the final regathering with previous works of God is something Jeremiah also pointed out. In Jeremiah 16:14-15 it is compared with the Exodus. Throughout Jewish history, the Exodus has been considered the high point of Jewish history, but after the final regathering this will change (v.14). In the future it will be the final regathering of the Jews that will become the high point of Jewish history (v. 15)” (Fruchtenbaum, I, p. 797). “And I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all the countries whither I have driven them, and will bring them again to their folds; and they shall be fruitful and multiply. And I will set up shepherds over them, who shall feed them; and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, neither shall any be lacking, saith Jehovah” (Jer. 23:3-4). “Therefore, behold, the days come, saith Jehovah, that they shall no more say, As Jehovah liveth, who brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but, As Jehovah liveth, who brought up and who led the seed of the house of Israel out of the north country, and from all the countries whither I had driven them. And they shall dwell in their own land” (Jer. 23:7-8). “For thus saith Jehovah,

Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout for the chief of the nations: publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Jehovah, save thy people, the remnant of Israel. Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the uttermost parts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together: a great company shall they return hither. They shall come with weeping; and with supplications will I lead them: I will cause them to walk by rivers of waters, in a straight way wherein they shall not stumble; for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my first-born. Hear the word of Jehovah, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off; and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as shepherd doth his flock" (Jer. 31:7-10). "And the word of Jehovah came unto me, saying, Son of man, thy brethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel, all of them, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far from Jehovah; unto us is this land given for a possession. Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Whereas I have removed them far off among the nations, and whereas I have scattered them among the countries, yet will I be to them a sanctuary for a little while in the countries where they are come. Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: I will gather you from the peoples, and assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel. And they shall come thither, and they shall take away all the detestable things thereof and all the abominations thereof from thence" (Ezek. 11:14-18). "As a sweet savor will I accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries wherein ye have been scattered; and I will be sanctified in you in the sight of the nations. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the country which I sware to give unto your fathers. And there shall ye remember your ways, and all your doings, wherein ye have polluted yourselves; and ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight for all your evils that ye have committed. And ye shall know that I am Jehovah, when I have dealt with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt doings, O ye house of Israel, saith the Lord Jehovah" (Ezek. 20:41-44). "Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: When I shall have gathered the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the nations, then shall they dwell in their own land which I gave to my servant Jacob. And they shall dwell securely therein; yea, they shall build houses, and plant vineyards, and shall dwell securely, when I have executed judgments upon all those that do them despite round about them; and they shall know that I am Jehovah their God” (Ezek. 28:25–26). “For thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I myself, even I, will search for my sheep, and will seek them out. As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered abroad, so will I seek out my sheep; and I will deliver them out of all places whither they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day. And I will bring them out from the peoples, and gather them from the countries, and will bring them into their own land; and I will feed them upon the mountains of Israel, by the watercourses, and in all the inhabited places of the country. I will feed them with good pasture; and upon the mountains of the height of Israel shall their fold be: there shall they lie down in a good fold; and on fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel. I myself will be the shepherd of my sheep, and I will cause them to lie down, saith the Lord Jehovah. I will seek that which was lost, and will bring back that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick: but the fat and the strong I will destroy; I will feed them in justice” (Ezek. 34:11-16). “For I will take you from among the nations, and gather you out of all the countries, and will bring you into your own land” (Ezek. 36:24). “The word of Jehovah came again unto me, saying, And thou, son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions: and join them for thee one to another into one stick, that they may become one in thy hand. And when the children of thy people shall speak unto thee, saying, Wilt thou not show us what thou meanest by these? say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his companions; and I will put them with it, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in my hand. And the sticks whereon thou writest shall be in thy hand before their eyes. And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord Jehovah: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the nations, whither they are gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land: and I will make them one nation in the land, upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all; neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions; but I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their God. And my servant David shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in mine ordinances, and observe my statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, they, and their children, and their children's children, for ever: and David my servant shall be their prince for ever" (Ezek. 37:15-25). "Ezek. 37... one stick represents 'Judah and the children of Israel his companions'... the other stick represents 'Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and all the house of Israel, his companions' (i.e. all the ten tribes, not a few)... This feature answers with irresistible force the Babylonian return theory, for history testifies that no such a return of the twelve tribes was ever witnessed" (Peters, TTK, 2:89). "Ezekiel 37:21-25... Given that this prophecy was given after the Babylonian captivity, and given that Israel had a king neither then nor since, literal fulfillment awaits the future. Also, David cannot be a part of it until after he is resurrected in the first resurrection, just before the Millennium (Rev. 20:4-6)" (Geisler, ST, 4:507). "And they shall know that I am Jehovah their God, in that I caused them to go into captivity among the nations, and have gathered them unto their own land; and I will leave none of them any more there" (Ezek. 39:28) "God will leave not a single Israelite in the lands of the Gentiles after the regathering (Ezek. 39:28)" (Walvoord, MK, p. 181). "For the children of Israel shall abide many days without king, and without prince, and without sacrifice, and without pillar, and without ephod or teraphim: afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek Jehovah their God, and David their king, and shall come with fear unto Jehovah and to his goodness in the latter days" (Hos. 3:4-5). "As to this people's identity there can be no question: 'For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king... Afterward shall the children of Israel return... in the latter days' (Hos. 3:4-5). It is the Israel of history" (McClain, GK, p. 284). "They shall walk after Jehovah, who will roar like a lion; for he will roar, and the children shall come trembling from the west. They shall come trembling as a bird out of Egypt, and as a dove out of the land of Assyria; and I will make them to dwell in their houses, saith Jehovah" (Hos. 11:10-11). "For, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem" (Joel 3:1) "behold, I will stir them up out of the place whither ye
